THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 1.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., JANUARY, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

PHILADELPHIA, 1904.

The next National W. C. T. U. Convention will be held in the Quaker City, the dates to be announced later.

In all probability the 1905 convention will be held in Los Angeles, Cal. Many invitations have been received for the conventions.

It is expected that the statue of Frances E. Willard for Statuary Hall, Washington, D. C., will be finished during the year, in which case those who attend the convention at Philadelphia may arrange to attend the unveiling of the statue immediately following the convention.

ANTI-POLYGAMY.

The efforts to send the Mormon Smoot out of the United States Senate will be successful if each woman who is informed upon the subject does what she can towards getting petitions signed and sent and letters written to congressmen in regard to the matter. Just stop and answer for yourself the question, "what have I done?" The women and girls of this country, blest with the sunlight of God's love and the privilege of Christian homes, owe some time, influence, energy and effort toward the eradication of this awful Mormon scourge. In His name lend some help. Send for petitions to Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis, Washington, D. C., care of Reform Bureau; in the meantime, get two or more voters to write to your Senators, asking them to use their influence against a Mormon apostle being in the United States Congress.

SUCCESS OF PROHIBITION.

According to official statistics of the Census Bureau given out on October 25, 1900, nine counties in California lost in population in the preceding ten years, every one of them a saloon county. Seven cities suffered a decline in population during the decade, every one of them a saloon city. The average gain of the whole State during the ten years was not quite 23 per cent. The average gain of the Prohibition cities, over 90 per cent, or nearly four times the average of the whole State. The great saloon city of San Francisco gained only two-thirds as fast as the whole State. Sacramento less than one-half as fast and nearly all the prominent saloon cities in like proportion. Surely as a business proposition prohibition pays.

The county of Los Angeles has a precinct option ordinance that has swept the saloons from a majority of the precincts, and only three towns outside the city of Los Angeles have saloons. The city of Los Angeles has limited the number of saloons to 200, one to every 600 inhabitants. San Francisco has one saloon to every 85 inhabitants. The following figures show the relative growth of San Francisco with its 4,000 saloons and Los Angeles with 200 saloons:

	1890	1900	Per Ct. Inc.
San Francisco.....	298,997	342,782	15
Los Angeles.....	50,395	102,479	103

Real estate men of prohibition cities, in all advertising matter sent east, make the statement prominent that the place advertised has no saloons, because they know it will attract a desirable class of home-seekers. School authorities know that the absence of the saloon is helpful to all educational centers. As a result we have the mile limit law at Berkeley and prohibition at Palo Alto, two of the most rapidly growing cities of the State. Two prohibition counties are Riverside and Sutter. The city of Riverside adopted prohibition in 1894 and the result was so satisfactory that the county adopted a similar ordinance. The population of the city of Riverside in 1890 was 4,645; 1903, 12,000. Building improvements alone in the city during the past two years have amounted to over $1,000,000. The city of Pasadena was incorporated in 1886, became a prohibition city in 1887. Value of building permits issued during 1903, $1,200,000. The growth of Redlands has been wonderful; for the past two years has amounted to 43 per cent. increase. The assessed valuation for the year 1902 was over half a million greater than the figures of the preceding year. Over three hundred new business blocks and residences were constructed during the past year. The other prohibition cities of southern California are equally prosperous.—Exchange.

In every White Ribbon home the Union Signal should be taken. Price, one dollar per year. Please subscribe for it for yourself and for one young woman whose life is touched by the Christ love. Send subscriptions to Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill.

Headquarters for Temperance Literature. Room 915 the Silversmiths Building, 131-137 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill., in charge of Miss Addie A. Austin and Miss Ruby T. Gilbert. Send to these young women for supplies, leaflets, pictures, badges and other W. C. T. U. supplies. All orders will receive prompt attention.

TO THE MOTHERHOOD OF INDIANA.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Happy because it is to be full of good works, trying to carry the gospel of light and love to darkened sin, cursed rum, ruined hearts and homes. Already I have received several letters saying: "I have been appointed Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings. Will you please give me some information on this subject?" To all such I gladly respond. Dear Sisters we are not only dealing for time, but for eternity. May the dear Lord put this work on your hearts as never before. To begin: "Knowledge is power." To be intelligent workers we must have literature. It would be well for every Superintendent to have "American Motherhood," by Dr. Mary Wood Allen, $1.00 per year. A most helpful book for any mother who is earnestly seeking to know the best for self and baby. Every union ought to supply their superintendent with some literature. As Mothers' Meetings and the Purity Work have again been combined, and as home keepers, we dare not be indifferent to the evils of impunity blighting so many young lives and bringing sorrow to so many homes. In order to counteract these evils, and establish a single standard of purity for men and women, we must enlist all the forces we can rally and do our work as "unto the Lord." Introduce the White Ribbon Cradle Roll into your Mothers' Meetings. There is no better way of interesting young mothers in our work than by inducing them to enroll their babies as members of this branch. My Leaflet will explain the White Ribbon Cradle Roll, and a sample will be sent to all who apply. We cannot reach out after the children too early.

I will send report blanks to all County Superintendents whose names I have. If I should miss any please apply to me. Let this year be the best we have ever known for the advancement of our department. Superintendents, please be accurate in reporting. So much is lost in our reports because we forget. I pledge you, dear hearts, the best I have for this another year. May God help us to all stand together for the protection of the home, the salvation of children and the destruction of the sum of all villany, the Legalized Saloon.

MR. S. M. STAHL,
State Superintendent.

TEXAS LOCAL OPTION HARD HIT.

Battle in sight for Constitutional Prohibition—What leaders say—A special to the Fort Worth Record declares that the recent decision of the Texas court of appeals in the C. O. D. shipment case will open up the State to the wholesale liquor men. The court decided that the Terrell Local Option law of 1901, which sought to prevent such shipment into local option territory is unconstitutional and this decision, coming just at the close of the State local option convention, tends to nullify the efforts of that body in planning more aggressive work. One of the foremost local option leaders in the State said to the Record correspondent:

"This, as I view it now, without a copy of the full opinion to peruse, I regard as the strongest blow against local option and the strongest in favor of State prohibition yet dealt in Texas. Its effects are likely to be most important. It looks as if this decision opens up legally the entire local option territory of Texas to the unbroken package and 'jug trade' system of the wholesale liquor men and breweries, and which they have so energetically, adroitly and illegally worked, pending the settlement of the question before the court. * * * The prospect is really a discouraging and disheartening one for local optionists. It would seem to confirm the oft-repeated assertion of straight Prohibitionists, that 'local option can't prohibit, even where adopted.'"

This leader believes that if the above conviction becomes general among the Democrat local optionists of Texas, the saloonists and brewers might as well prepare for a fiercer fight than was waged in 1887, when the prohibition amendment to the constitution was defeated by a majority of 192,000.

He further says in this connection: "That victory over constitutional prohibition was not won by the liquor men and brewery managers, as they seem to have deluded themselves into believing; it was won by the great mass of local option Democrats, who hold to the good old Democratic theory of local self-government in all things."

If local option should be abandoned for constitutional prohibition, as may be the case, the sequel will be that "the liquor traffic will be driven out of Texas, root and branch."

Dr. J. B. Cranfill believes the decision is destined "to be very hurtful to the cause of liquor prohibition in the State." He does not criticize the justice of the decision under the law, but in conclusion he says: "Let the liquor men not hug any delusion to their hearts. This is going to be a prohibition State and that speedily. The time will soon come when there will not be a liquor saloon in Texas, and when it does come, it will be the greatest day for the liquor dealers themselves that our State has ever seen."

Rev. G. C. Rankin, editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, comments as follows: "The rendering of this decision will make every express office in the local option districts practically a bar room and the agent a practical bartender. * * * [and] furthermore, this decision is necessarily going to precipitate a sentiment in favor of a State Prohibition campaign, unless the civil courts or the legislature come to the relief of the people"—Exchange.

Y. W. C. T. U.

This is the first time since my re-election that I have had an opportunity to send you a message through the column of our State paper. I wish all a Happy Christmas and a Useful New Year. Let us do something that will count for our Lord this year 1904.

Miss Blanche Shockney, Greentown, Ind., R. R. No. 3, is Howard County Y. Secretary.

The first quarterly report blanks, sent out the first of the month, comes in very slow. Answer in some way and return them please.

Your Secretary was in Cincinnati a few days attending the National Convention and will be glad when I go to visit your Unions to tell you all about it.

Shall we hold a Mid-summer Y. Conference, girls, as many of the other States do? Let me know what you think of the plan sent your local or County President or Secretary. We want an expression, so we can plan.

Write for plans, programs, pledge cards or year books, which we hope to have soon, or Y. Almanac, 25 cents a piece, to help our Missionary, Miss Kara Smart, in Japan.

CLARA M. SEARS.

TEXAS.

There are thirty-nine prohibition counties in Texas which furnish only twenty-three convicts. San Jacinto County, with open saloons and a population of 10,277, has twenty-five convicts in the penitentiary. Montgomery County, with saloons and a population of 17,067, has forty-one convicts in the penitentiary. These two poor piney-woods counties, dominated by saloons, have nearly three times as many convicts as the above named thirty-nine prohibition counties. Collin County, with prohibition and a population of 50,087, has twenty convicts. Lamar County, with saloons and a population of 48,627, has ninety-six convicts within the walls. Taking prohibition territory throughout, there is one convict to about 1,500 population. In whisky territory there is one convict to every 500 population.

Mrs. Florence D. Richard, of Ohio, gave an account of a wonderful pledge-signing crusade in Chicago. Five weeks were given to this work in Sunday-schools, day schools, stores, factories, etc., resulting in 75,000 signatures to the total abstinence pledge. The managers of the great department stores received her very kindly and gave her every opportunity to address their employees, in one case extending her time into business hours. She found a most responsive audience in 600 cash boys, who declined to entertain a motion to adjourn. Mrs. Richards is a lay delegate from one of the Ohio conferences to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church which will meet next May.

You will be glad to know that an unusually large proportion of the Annual Report has been sold and sent out. If any of you want orders filled please send to the treasurer at once fifteen cents for single copy, post paid. If a half dozen copies or more are wanted send ten cents per copy and pay the express when the books are delivered. Some of you have been troubled because they are later than you expected. The compiler, our Recording Secretary, was very prompt getting in the copy, but some "unexpected things usually occur." The printer told us at the beginning that he was very busy. I am glad to have them thus early, and to get such good value for our money. Send to

MEDAL CONTEST WORKERS.

How time is flying! It seems but a short time since we were in the Hartford City convention, and still it has been two whole months and what have we done toward holding 650 contests? There are some who are working faithfully and others from whom I have not heard. Let us all be up and doing, for if we hold 650 contests this year it means about 55 each month. Now, are you helping to bring the banner to Indiana? Remember, the few cannot do it alone. We need you. We have only held 65 thus far altogether. Now, we want to make up for lost time and work with renewed energy the whole of the remaining year. Pray for me and work with me and I am sure the Lord will bless our efforts.

NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION

Is one of the subjects now interesting men of science in this country as never before. The Red Cross Hospital, of New York, and the Frances Willard Hospital, of Chicago, are demonstrating the fact that alcohol is not necessary in medicine. The splendid Supplement this month on the subject of non-alcoholic medication is edited by our State Superintendent of that department, Mrs. A. T. Whitson. Through her energetic efforts and splendid plans much aggressive work has been done all over Indiana during the past year.

The readers of the MESSAGE will accept this Supplement as the gift of this department.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.

If you expect your Union to be helped, encouraged and supported by the good people of your community, you should hold at least one good public meeting a quarter in some one of the churches. Now would be a good time to engage the churches and lay plans for the programs. Engage your speakers now. Advertise and advertise by talking and announcing through your many church meetings and through the newspapers. Do this for several weeks and previous to each quarterly meeting and you will surely find it pays. Every Union should hold at least one parlor meeting quarterly. The ordinary business meeting, followed by a short, good program, will interest every one who attends. Then serve refreshments and enjoy a social half hour, at which time new members will always be secured after a few parlor meetings are held. We need the good men of every community. Invite them to evening parlor meetings and they will come and get interested.

STATE PRESIDENTS' NIGHT AT THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

The following are some of the minute speeches made by a few of the many State Presidents on the last evening of the convention (before an immense audience) as reported in the Union Signal:

Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, of Indiana: Indiana has done more this year to support the cause of temperance than in any year in her history. In the first place, our state paper, the MESSAGE, goes into every W. C. T. U. home; then, we have had most excellent public meetings during the year. We had with us one week our most excellent President, Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, and our noble Vice-President, Miss Anna A. Gordon. They made a tour of the State and were most acceptably received, delighting many large audiences. We also had Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp, of Kentucky; Miss Carrie Lee Carter, National Organizer, and Mrs. Maria Weed, who came to speak to us on the Mormon question. Miss Marie C. Brehm, of Illinois, who is a neighbor, also favored us with her presence and our own Vice-President and Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley have been in the field 219 days this year.

Mrs. Emma Bourne, of New Jersey: The best of all that came to New Jersey last year was this good National President and this good National Vice-President. Another good thing that we had in New Jersey was the greeting from Bishop Fitzgerald, of the Methodist Church, who said to the great audience at Ocean Grove that next to the church of God he likes best to greet the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Mrs. Morrow, of West Va.: Legislative victories seem to be the keynote of the testimonials this evening. West Virginia has had a few. We have had a code temperance measure enacted by our legislature, bringing our prohibitive territory under the blessings of federal law and out of the hands of commerce. While we have had no notable achievements, we had the largest convention ever held in the State of Virginia.

Mrs. Katharine Lente Stevenson, of Massachusetts: Massachusetts' chief victories this year may be defined, I think, in the way the boy wrote his composition—that pins have saved a great many lives by not swallowing them. Twenty-two bills were presented by the liquor interests of Massachusetts, every one of which, through the prompt action of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, united with other organizations, were smothered in committee. We take away four banners from the convention, showing that we have done good department work, but perhaps our greatest victory and triumph is a prophecy because the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union invited the next World's Convention to come to Boston. The invitation has been accepted and you are all invited.

Miss Emma E. Page, representing Wyoming: I am glad to be a minute woman for Wyoming. There can be said for Wyoming what can be said for no other State in the Union—that she has had woman's suffrage for thirty-four years. Wyoming brings to this great country the solution of one of its most perplexing problems—the divorce evil. They say in my splendid west there are twice as many as in the east, but in Wyoming, where woman has had the ballot for so long, there are one-fourth as many divorces according to the population, as in any other State in the Union. They say that in Wyoming they have not established prohibition. That is true, but when the question is up there is a larger woman's vote polled than men's vote on the question, and they are going to succeed, for God is with them, and God never yet lost a battle.

Mrs. Ida H. Read, of Vermont: Vermont has not come to the platform to boast of any victories. After standing for fifty years on the mount of prohibition Vermont has come down to the valley and shadow of local option and high license with the majority of those States that are represented on this platform tonight. We have had a hard struggle in that State, and while you have had the storm centers in the South the cyclone of the liquor traffic has swept our Green Mountain State, and through the failure of the manhood of Vermont to appreciate their blessed privilege at the ballot box we have lost the beautiful star of prohibition that brought peace and prosperity. In this hour of darkness Mother National was true to her daughter. Such words of cheer and love as came to support our drooping spirits and the money, too that came to help us in this great battle against wrong makes the defeat that we are obliged to acknowledge to-night a greater tribute to righteousness than victory of wrong. Mother National sent to us ten of the magnificent women who are special field workers, and our own beloved president and vice-president came to us in the storm and bluster of winter, going here and there and ringing out their strong voices against this great wrong that was threatening us. How we thank them for it all! I come to-night to show our appreciation by presenting the name of our State Treasurer as a life member of the National W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Harriet B. Kells, of Mississippi: As I have listened to these other State Presidents I am reminded of what Mr. Dooley said to Mr. Hinnisey: "It do take a great many bunches of naves to say so many fine things of yourself; 'tis a bold one that can do it." Nevertheless, I am bold enough to say that Mississippi is a promising State, especially before the primary election. At the last election we astonished everybody, as well as ourselves, for we elected everybody we didn't want. Mississippi is the storm center of the temperance question in the United States. I know Texas will dispute that, because it is her big and breezy way and because she is so graciously riding on the crest of her recent victories, but Texas is just where Mississippi was fifteen years ago when local option was sweeping its patch like wild fire through the South; only ten counties in Mississippi are wet to-day. But we find local option a delusion and a snare and now we are on the firing line for straight prohibition. We have a new million dollar capitol, and the first time the Legislature meets we intend to memorialize it for a prohibitory law and we want you to come down and help us. We now extend to you a public invitation to hold the next National Convention at Jackson and help us to win that victory.

HADLEY INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Knowing that the different W. C. T. Unions are desirous of learning about the work being done in the Hadley Industrial School and of the needs of its inmates, I wish that I had the pen of a ready writer, in order that I might present them in such a manner as would arouse a greater interest in the Home than ever before known.

First, the school proper is in a very prosperous condition. Miss Hobart, who served so faithfully upon the Board for a number of years, was here recently and expressed herself greatly pleased—said it is better in every respect than it has been for years. The order is good, and Miss Florence Myers, the teacher, who expects to go out as a missionary to China next year, is putting all the force of her character and working even beyond her strength to aid the girls in making the very most and best of themselves—physically, mentally and spiritually. She has put in hard labor trying to beautify the school room—tinting its walls, decorating it with pictures and mottoes, and in various ways making it attractive, so as to give the girls pleasure and comfort.

She not only teaches in the day, but has a study home in the evening—first, an hour of study; then services, which are generally led by one of the pupils—all are expected to take part, either by testimony or prayer. A number have been converted since the term of school has commenced and nearly all now profess to be Christians. Their ages range from six to sixteen; over half of them are twelve years of age and over. Some of the little ones make beautiful prayers, and their testimony is very definite and sometimes quite touching. There is good work being done here along all lines.

Some people get the idea that this is a Reform School and try to get incorrigible girls in here, but they are never knowingly received and if they get in are sent away. The School and Home being so inseparably connected, the demeanor of the pupils in the Home is marked on their Department report in School. Disobedience or disrespect to the officers; lack of promptness; the condition of their rooms; their dress, manners at table, cleanliness, etc. They commence with one hundred credits, all misdemeanors subtract from these credits, and once in two months a report will be sent to parent, guardian or W. C. T. U. In case of flagrant misdemeanors, the one who sends them here is notified of it, but it is very seldom necessary to resort to this measure.

Unions and individuals from different States write for our circulars and methods and even apply for admission for children under their care, but we cannot admit many who apply in our own State and refuse all applications from other States. I should have said that Miss Myers gives the pupils short talks on table manners and many things that go to make for their improvement in various ways.

There are four officers in the Home at present—Superintendent, teacher, matron in the kitchen and a general assistant, who oversees the washing and ironing, administers medicine when any are sick and sews. Everybody needs to hustle here to do the absolutely necessary work of cooking, washing dishes, setting tables, milking, making butter, washing, ironing, sweeping twelve rooms daily and several others once or twice a week, four halls and four flights of stairs in the house, besides a porch stairs and pavements out of doors, getting children ready for school, besides other duties too numerous to mention.

The very moderate salary the officers are paid is not an inducement to any but self-sacrificing persons to stay here after they get here; and the hard labor breaks down constitutions that are not iron-clad, because of the lack of needed help on account of the strained circumstances of the institution. If the institution could be endowed or have a larger amount of tillable land to work, so that more eatables could be grown and more fodder for the stock raised, it would simplify matters. But with only sixty acres of tillable land on which to raise food for the inmates of the Home and for the stock, it takes more money to supply the needs here than most people realize; and the donations received do not adequately supply the groceries and fuel and provide for the absolute necessities of a family of over thirty, even though our food is very plain and the salaries of the officers extremely moderate. Fruit of every kind was a failure in this vicinity this season and dried fruit would greatly add to our comfort.

The keeping of the books and attending to the correspondence and overseeing the affairs of the house and farm ought to be considered enough for one woman to do, but in addition she has to do manual labor on account of the lack of help and the poor little girls who need mothering are deprived of any mother care. The older girls who need advice and the watchful care of an older person in the continual hustling, cannot receive as much attention as they need.

Owing to this lack of money and consequently of help, the officers, as I said, work too hard and are unable to remain very long, so that frequent changes are compelled to be made, very much to the detriment of the girls.

If any one contemplates giving money for benevolent purposes, here is an object worthy of consideration and gifts of all charitably inclined people. Now is the time to form the characters of these girls and now is the time we need the co-operation of all benevolent and Christian people, and we hope to hear in a substantial manner from many such who only have to be told of our needs to help provide for them.

Mrs. L. D. Burnett-Cowan, whom some of you may remember as State Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings when we first added that department to our work in Indiana, is now acting as Superintendent of the Home and School, holding the post until some reliable, persevering Christian woman can be found to fill the place, who has stick-to-it-iveness enough to stay in spite of hard places.

The farmer, an old gentleman who has not for years worked out of doors in cold weather, is holding his place until some one can be found to relieve him. He is not only a good farmer, but a Christian gentleman, a suitable associate and protector of the young girls whose duties, milking cows, working in the garden and laboring in various ways on the farm, necessarily compel them to associate together. Hoping for a prompt and generous response, I make this report of the success and also the needs of the school.

LOCATION OF INSTITUTES.

North, South, East and West have been heard from according to the institute plan proposed at State Convention, but counties in all these sections have not yet located their institutes and in fact all counties were not represented at Convention.

Let every County President who has not done so call an executive meeting at once and locate the institute. This may also be done by correspondence with other county officers and the locality where the institute is most needed. When the location is decided on please notify at once the Superintendent.

THE FRANCES E. WILLARD NATIONAL TEMPERANCE HOSPITAL, CHICAGO, ILL.

NON-ALCOHOLIC ISSUE.

State Superintendent
and Editor of SUPPLEMENT,

AMANDA T. WHITSON,

3335 N. Meridian St.,
Indianapolis, Ind.

Associate Superintendent,

Homer J. Hall, M. D.,

Franklin, Ind.

The closing month of the year of 1903 finds the Frances E. Willard National Temperance Hospital building well under way, the fine weather of November greatly aiding the work. The cost of the building will be about sixty thousand dollars, for which provision has been duly made. A legacy from William Bush, a prosperous business man of Chicago, and in full sympathy with the work of the hospital, and a gift from the medical department of the college located at Valparaiso, Ind. (this medical department is separated only by a court from the property owned by the hospital), of ten thousand dollars, made it possible to consider the erection of this new modern structure. In accepting this gift from the college the hospital in no way compromises its authority, all management of the new hospital remains unchanged, and the constitution, by-laws, principles and pledge (which latter is the distinctive feature of our temperance hospital found expedient in past years), will govern the new institution. These donations added to the fund which had been accumulating for several years made the entire amount in sight a starting place. Our lots were paid for several years ago. To complete the building we have secured a loan of thirty-five thousand dollars on long time and reasonable rate of interest, thus making possible the fulfillment of the long deferred hopes for this hospital which, in its work, demonstrates the great heart principles of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. L. H. Plumb, one of the incorporators of the hospital, has promised to endow a bed in perpetuity, donating the sum of five thousand dollars, which is the necessary amount, the bed to be called the Mary Allen West bed. A few more such generous donors would place the hospital past the necessity of a struggle with any indebtedness. The building is to be a four story and basement, strictly fire proof, modern and commodious, ample in size to accommodate from seventy five to eighty patients, with plenty of light, airy rooms.

It is expected that the building will be completed, ready to occupy, by May 1, 1904, at which time a bazar will be held. Useful and fancy articles will be most acceptable for this sale. It would be a great monument to the principle of non-alcoholic medication, and to the temperance cause generally, if this grand institution could be dedicated free from debt. It will if we all pull together and lift a little in the work.

MRS. MARGARET INGLEHART,
President of the Hospital Board.

The principle of non-alcoholic medication must be generally accepted before prohibition can be established on firm foundations. The growth of this enterprise is such that we must have a building.—Frances E. Willard in annual address at Atlanta, 1890.

1876. At the suggestion of Frances E. Willard, Mrs. Wittemeyer, then President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, presented a memorial from that body to the International Medical Congress, the most representative medical body convened up to that time, 600 delegates in attendance, which met at Philadelphia. The memorial asked that an inquiry be made as to whether alcohol in medicine was a necessity. The Medical Congress had just tabled a similar request from another temperance society, but when this memorial was presented they took the first request from the table and consented to grant a professional reply. Their deliverance was:

- (1) Alcohol is not shown to have a definite food value.
- (2) Its use as a medicine is chiefly that of a cardiac stimulant, and admits of substitution.
- (3) As a medicine it is not well fitted for self-prescription by the laity.
- (4) The purity of alcoholic liquors is not as well assured as articles of medicine should be.

1883. The American Medical Association, in session at St. Louis, was visited by Mary Allen West, editor-in-chief of the Union Signal, and Mrs. Clara Hoffman, State President of the W. C. T. U. of Missouri. This Congress reaffirmed the action of 1876, and also on request from our representatives requested Congress to pass the scientific temperance instruction law to apply to all schools under national control.

At the National W. C. T. U. Convention held in Detroit in October of this year, Dr. Mary Weeks Burnett, Superintendent of Department of Heredity, first introduced the plan of establishing a "National Temperance Hospital and College, where should center the reputable schools of medicine, old and young, regular and irregular, great and small," "where any student or patient could have any kind of a teacher or physician;" where, to quote Miss Willard in words uttered when the hospital was first opened, "we have but one fixed law; no matter who you are, when your medicine is prepared, take notice, once for all, that you cannot have alcohol in yours under any circumstances at any time." The formal opening of the hospital occurred on May 4, 1886, and the first patient was Miss Grace Hamm, from Canada. Dr. S. J. Hillsop was the first interne. The following resolution was adopted:

"Physicians of pure character, in good standing, who are total abstainers from alcohol and tobacco, may become members of the visiting and consulting staff after signing the pledge not to administer alcohol in any form to his patients, nor call into consultation any physician who would advise its use."

FROM THE NATIONAL PRESIDENT, LILLIAN M. N. STEVENS, PORTLAND, ME.

There is abundant proof that alcohol in medicine often creates an appetite for strong drink and that it arouses in some an inherited appetite, which appetite might be as harmless as a little powder in an obscure corner of a house, but touch a match to this powder and the house would be set on fire. The hereditary appetite is kindled very often by alcoholic medicine, and in some cases which have come under my observation the fire thus kindled cannot be quenched. Again, there is an increasing amount of proof that alcohol as a medicine is not necessary. Not long ago, in conversation with a physician, he stated that there was not now nearly as much alcohol prescribed by physicians as twenty-five years ago, and gave as one reason that there are many temperance women who have been asking their family physicians if there is nothing they can substitute for alcohol. He admitted that there are many substitutes, giving as an illustration that it was easy and handy to order brandy for fainting spells and in the old time it usually pleased the patient. Spirits of ammonia or capsicum answer the same purpose and in these later days people are finding this out and the temperance people especially are glad to know it. The educational work of the W. C. T. U. in this line is certainly felt. Such testimony as to the good results of non-alcoholic medication as were given by Dr. Homer Hall, of Indiana, on the platform of our Cincinnati Convention, is very convincing and encourages us to believe that some day there will be full recognition of the principles and practice advocated by the W. C. T. U.

"Non-alcoholic treatment of disease is meeting with great success. Our principles are being more generally approved and our influence extended by means of this noble institution (Temperance Hospital.) This is bed-rock testimony and whenever we have struck down the use of alcohol as a necessary concomitant of the medical practice, we shall have won our cause before the public."—Frances E. Willard, 1892.

FINED FOR SELLING PERUNA.

Several months ago nine of the merchants of Wyoming county, W. Va., were indicted in from one to six cases each, making an aggregate of twenty-six cases, for selling Peruna, on the ground that it is an intoxicating drink and its sale was a violation of the liquor laws of the State. An agreement was made whereby one was to be made a test and the whole to abide by the results of that one. The Wyoming Herald gives the following synopsis of the trial:

"At a former term of the court the case selected being the one against V. L. Kelly, was tried, and resulted in a verdict of not guilty. Being a revenue case, the prosecuting attorney moved to have the verdict set aside, and Judge Sanders took the matter under advisement until next term, when he set aside the verdict and granted a new trial. At the last term of court the case was again tried. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Edw. Sarver had a bottle of it analyzed, which showed it to contain 28 per cent of alcohol. The sales were not denied, but the defense proved it to be patent medicine and largely advertised, and that they bought it as such and also offered to prove that he sold it as a medicine, and when he learned it would produce intoxication he at once desisted from the sales, but the court refused to let the evidence go to the jury, who returned a verdict of guilty and the court imposed a fine of $100 and costs in each case, which amounted to between $700 and $800 in all. This is said to be the first conviction for selling Peruna."

A strong quartette will go out in Indiana Institute work this year. Rev. Alice R. Palmer, State Treasurer, who was so acceptably in the work last year, our State President, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, whom Indiana white ribboners will all be delighted to see and hear and our well known and much appreciated Mrs. Pearce, of Terre Haute and Mrs. Haughton, of Richmond, with your Superintendent as a supply, to fill possible vacancies.

MARY HADLEY HALL.

While the Free Parliament at our Institutes was open to any or all departments no one was more generally selected for the program than that of Non-Alcoholic Medication or developed more intelligent enthusiastic discussion. The physicians were out in good force to take part in these discussions, and the truths brought to light by them and others, were a revelation even to those who had given the subject some attention. It is safe to predict that our local unions, during the coming year, will study this department as never before. All hail to this scientific light, which is and must increasingly be an invaluable friend to our cause.

MARY HADLEY HALL,
State and National Supt. Institutes.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL SUPERINTENDENT OF NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION.

Indiana sent one of the best reports of this department received last year. Her President and State Superintendent promise even better things for 1904. This promise local and county Unions will, no doubt, do their part in making good, for the bright women of Indiana see the hopefulness for total abstinence reform from this department, so will not need coaxing and pushing in order to set to work wisely and with diligence. I would recommend that each Union send to Mrs. Whitson or to me for a copy of the department book, "Alcohol a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine," and have it used at each meeting this year for ten minutes of study, beginning with the chapter upon "Diseases and Their Non-Alcoholic Treatment." Have some bright woman who is a good reader in charge of this study. This is not devoting too much time to one department and it is providing proper equipment for those who are engaging in the war against intemperance. We must be familiar with the facts and have arguments at command or we shall never win in the fight for total abstinence. The book was prepared to meet this need and where it is being used intelligently the women are enthusiastic over it. The Superintendent of North Dakota says "it is as fascinating as a novel."

To influence those outside of our own membership distribution of leaflets is necessary, or press work, or public meetings, or all of these. Indiana is a little behind some of the strong States in the distribution of department literature, although so well forward in the special work done by the State Superintendent. The leaflet upon "Patent Medicines" has elicited warm approval from leading physicians recently. The editor of the St. Paul Medical Record, for instance, said: "The distribution of such literature will be commended by the entire medical profession. I hope your work may have the wide influence it deserves."

Among recent expressions regarding the medical use of alcohol which should inspire us with fresh courage is the following from Sir Victor Horsley, one of the foremost surgeons of England: "I never order alcohol. If, after an operation, a patient needs stimulating, we have better remedies to turn to. No alcohol is given in my surgical wards because I know patients recover better without it. Alcohol fails to help any of the physiological activities of the body, so its use will drop out of treatment gradually, just as the fashion of bleeding patients has been dropped."

Dr. James Edmunds, of London, also said in the Practitioner, of November, 1902, a special alcohol edition: "Looking back now, after fifty years of active medical work in London, I believe that my patients and I have gained everything and lost nothing by my disuse of alcoholic beverages."

In the same journal, Dr. A. Pearce-Gould (than whom no more eminent surgeon lives), says: "For many years I have dispensed almost entirely with alcohol as an aid in surgical treatment. As a student, I saw it used for every kind of surgical malady, except head injuries, but as soon as I made trial for myself of the effect of withdrawing alcohol, I found how entirely overrated its value was and how gravely mistaken had been the teaching. It is commonly held, I believe, that alcoholic liquors are of especial value in all forms of septic inflammation, such as erysipelas, pyæmia, septicæmia and hectic fever. I believe that this notion is founded solely upon tradition, unsupported by any trustworthy evidence and untested by experiment or experience."

English and German physicians appear to be more outspoken against the medical use of alcoholic liquors than are American physicians, yet an increasing number of the latter make little or no use of these liquors in their practice. I hope during the year to publish a small pamphlet giving the views of American physicians so far as I have been able to gather them.

A new leaflet is Special Medical Directions for Women, and another is A Life's Tragedy, the story which won the prize given in June, 1903. These sell at 2 cents each, or 75 cents per hundred.

Hoping for a grand report from Indiana this year, I am,

"Alcohol is, next to heredity, the most common single cause of insanity."—Arthur W. Dunning, M. D.

Mrs. Martha M. Allen, Nat. Supt. Non-Alcoholics,
 27 Broad Street, Oneida, N. Y.

DEAR MADAM—I have received your circular letter without date, and its interesting enclosures. First, let me thank you as physician and man for your admirable pamphlet on "The Danger and Harmfulness of Patent Medicines." Its restrained tone and its array of exact fact differentiate it sharply from the bulk of so called "temperance" literature—indeed, from "reform" literature in general. Intemperance in language and inexactitude in statement do much to neutralize the good in polemic publications—you have happily avoided both. I wish your pamphlet could reach the conscience of the newspapers, especially the religious journals, the greatest of all sinners in spreading the use of "Peruna" and similar deadly concoctions. I enclose seventy-five cents for one hundred copies.

DR. S. SOLIS COHEN,
 Philadelphia.

Ah! little, too little, in order to exercise proper forbearance and charity, does the ordinary temperance reformer know of the agony which seizes the drunkard when the old desire for drink comes back. Woolley describes it as can the man only who knows. He says: "I shall never drink again; but one night, in a New England train and very ill, I met a stranger who pitied me and gave me a quick, powerful drug out of a small vial and my pain was gone in a moment or two; but alcohol was licking up my very blood with tongues of flame! I should have gotten drunk that very night if I could. I thought of everything—of my two years of clean life, of the meeting I was going to, vouched for by my friend and brother, D. L. Moody, whose faith in me had gone out into all the world; of the bright little home in New York, and of Mary and the boys.

"I tried to pray, and my lips framed oaths. I reached up for God, but He was gone, and the fiercest fiend of hell had me by the throat and shouted, 'Drink! drink! drink!' I said, 'But Mary, but the boys.' It said, 'To hell with Mary! Come on to the saloon.' It was not yet daylight, Sunday morning, when I stood on the station platform at Pawtucket alone. I flew from saloon to saloon; they were shut; so were the drug stores; and all that day, locked in my room at the hotel, I fought my fight, and won it in the evening by the grace of God, and the people never knew that the man who spoke to them that night had been in hell all day."

Was the drink habit dead in that Christian disciple, and should he have been treated as a reprobate if he had found an open saloon that day and gratified his appetite again?—Copied.

TAKEN FROM THE STATE MINUTES.

Mrs. Amanda T. Whitson, State Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication, appeared before the State Executive Committee and presented a proposition from the National Superintendent of this Department, by which enough literature would be furnished free, by her, to supply every physician in Indiana with three valuable leaflets on Non-Alcoholic Medication, if the W. C. T. U. would send them out. Mrs. Whitson offered to secure the list of names, write the wrappers and mail them out if the counties and Unions would furnish the postage. This proposition was at once accepted by a unanimous vote and the counties and Unions urged to send the required postage at once when notified of the amount necessary. Mrs. Whitson reported 6,000 physicians in the State.

[The amount of money necessary for each county to send will be made known at an early date. When notified, please respond at once, as I cannot send them out until money for postage has been received. These leaflets are very valuable and no county or Union can afford to miss this great opportunity.—AMANDA T. WHITSON.]

A PRIZE BANNER,

Of beautiful heavy white silk, trimmed in gold letters and fringe, will be given to the State reporting the largest number of local Unions using the department book, "Alcohol a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine," spending ten minutes at each meeting in reading from the book and discussion of same, and distributing the most literature of the department. Award will be made proportionately to the entire number of Unions in a State. Pages of books or magazines must not be counted, but non-alcoholic State papers may be counted.

To the local Superintendent sending the best all-round report will be given a three dollar package of department leaflets.
 MARTHA M. ALLEN,
 National Supt. Non-Alcoholic Medication.

"I have practiced medicine continuously more than sixty six years; the first twelve in New York, the last fifty-four in Chicago. It took me the first ten years to learn the real nature of alcohol and its delusional effects in the treatment of diseases, and during the last fifty-four years spent in Chicago I have not found it necessary or beneficial to prescribe for my patients any alcohol or alcoholic liquors, either fermented or distilled. During the past half century I have been actively engaged in the treatment of every variety of disease that has prevailed in the city, whether epidemic, endemic or sporadic, and if any bad effects have followed my refusal to allow my patients alcohol or any kind of alcoholic liquors, the people have been very slow in detecting the same."—N. S. Davis, M. D., L. L. D.

MAGAZINES ADVERTISING LIQUOR.

The startling conquest of the popular magazine by the liquor advertiser has been the subject of a careful investigation, reported in the Friends' Intelligencer, Nov. 7, as follows:

A sub-committee of the Committee on Philanthropic Labor, of Baltimore Yearly Meeting of Friends, made the following report:

"Thirty-four publications were examined. Of these, thirteen contained no advertisements to which any exception could be taken. They are: Country Life in America, Youths' Companion, Book News, the Chautauqua, the Bookman, St. Nicholas, the Century, the Critic, the Outlook, Ladies' Home Journal, Saturday Evening Post, the Independent and the Country Gentleman. To all of these letters were written stating the purpose of the investigation, and replies were received from all of them except Book News, stating it is their fixed policy to exclude all advertisements of intoxicating liquors or other articles and schemes of doubtful propriety.

"Six other magazines contain no advertisements of intoxicating liquors, and four of them write that it is their fixed policy to exclude all such. These four, the American Monthly Review of Reviews, the American Agriculturist, the Cosmopolitan and McClure's, contain advertisements of tonics which have a considerable percentage of alcohol. The American Agriculturist contains also a considerable number of medical advertisements. The others are, Everybody's Magazine and Harper's Bazar; these also contain advertisements of tonics, and the Cosmopolitan has a great number of medical advertisements.

"The following fifteen periodicals contain liquor and some of them, other objectionable advertisements. The liquor advertisements refer to beer, whisky or champagne: The World's Work, Current Literature, Life, Leslie's Weekly, Harper's Weekly, Harper's Monthly, North American Review, the National Magazine, New England Magazine, Outing, Munsey, Scribner's, Leslie's Popular Monthly, Lippincott's and the Atlantic Monthly. All of these magazines have many admirable features and they go into many homes."

To those publications mentioned that contain objectionable advertisements the following letter was directed to be sent in the name of the Yearly Meeting:

"The Religious Society of Friends has always felt a deep concern for the sobriety, purity and honesty of our people, and desires earnestly that these principles may be extended. We realize the widespread influence exerted by the (name of journal) with its many admirable qualities, and it is with regret, that we find advertisements of intoxicating liquors, proprietary medicines and doubtful financial enterprises published in your pages.

"We are informed by a number of publishers of popular magazines that it is their policy to reject such advertisements, and it is our hope, in thus appealing to you, that yours may be added to the list of journals whose managers are careful that such great influence may always be exerted on the side of righteousness. We would highly appreciate such action on your part and would be grateful for a reply.

"Signed on behalf of Baltimore Yearly Meeting of Friends, CLERK."

Is it merely a matter of business to insert a whisky advertisement in a paper? Is it not a matter of morals? Should Christians put the temptation to secure this liquor in the hands of their family through their party paper? Business has a moral side as well as a financial one.—Patriot, Parsons, W. Va.

What one church has done, other churches and W. C. T. Unions can do, and great would be the result.
 STATE SUPERINTENDENT.

There is no department in our State or National Unions more needed than that of Non-Alcoholic Medication. If it could be universally taken up and practically worked in every local Union, we should have our best year, even if we took up no other work for a year. On our way to a convention a little while ago one of our local workers pointed to a beautiful home, saying, "The lady who lives there lived with me for years. She was a most unhappy and hard working girl because her father and other relatives were drinking men. She is a good woman, but with all she has suffered and all her friends have said against the practice, she keeps her whisky bottle in the cupboard and doses her children with it every time any little thing gets the matter with them. If any of the neighbors become suddenly sick, she goes running to them with her whisky flask under her shawl. She doesn't seem to see the danger there is in it." Why doesn't she see? Why do not scores and hundreds of others see? This department will answer these questions and many others that the future good of humanity depends upon. I think that within the past few years this topic of Non-Alcoholic Medication has been more discussed, and more enthusiastically discussed, than any other presented in over 40 Institutes which I have attended. Our people, through personal work, the press and platform, are certainly waking up to the question as an issue.

ALICE RUTH PALMER,
 State Treasurer and State Organizer.

The banishment of alcohol would not deprive us of a single one of the indispensable agents which modern civilization demands, and neither would chemical science be retarded by its loss.—Dr. James R. Nichols, editor Boston Journal of Chemistry.

DEAR CO-WORKERS—With great appreciation for the favors and kindness shown me during the past, for the promptness of so many in sending reports and for the great and increasing interest manifested throughout the State, through your efforts in this department and with a feeling that as your own interest has so greatly increased also, you are ever more willing and anxious to help push the work the coming year than during the past. I am greatly encouraged to present to you through this issue both the State and National plan of work. Hundreds and may I say thousands need only to have their attention called to the fact, from authority, that alcohol is a dangerous thing and not needed in medicine at all to be convinced. A good leaflet placed in the home now and then will convince them. So this year I will ask you to plan a literature campaign. Place a different leaflet at three different times in the home of every one in your community, village, town or ward, ring the bell and hand it in at the door. The time you pass around, carry with you a pledge card, a donation card and the leaflet "Why I am a White Ribboner." Call later for your donation card. The result will be many new members, much information imparted and many dollars added to your treasury. The National Superintendent has offered a prize, see elsewhere in this issue, which I believe Indiana can and will be pleased to win.

One afternoon's meeting for women only with a paper and a free discussion on the subject, "Alcohol and Nursing Mother" and an evening meeting for men and women both on the subject, "Patent Medicines. Shall we use them? Why not?" will result in a great deal of interest being aroused on the subject. Try it and report.

Discuss all papers as they are being read. Results will be far better. To every one who takes part in a discussion the work, in a measure, becomes their very own, and the writer is made to feel you appreciate her efforts in preparing the paper.

If your Union has no Superintendent and none can be found willing to take this department, may I not kindly ask the local President to take up the work and report to your County Superintendent, if you have an active one, or to your State Superintendent?

Elizabeth Stanley, State Vice-President, made this subject prominent in fifty of her lectures. The work was presented in nearly every Institute held.

Nearly fifteen hundred extra copies of the non-alcoholic issue of the MESSAGE was sent out to as many physicians, teachers and prohibitionists.

Dr. Homer J. Hall has been very active in pushing this department, both in lecturing and in special work in State medical associations, of which he is an active, enthusiastic, honored and influential member. He has given valuable assistance to your State Superintendent.

Unions report physicians using less and less alcoholic medicines. Many of the more progressive ones using none at all.

Hundreds, yes, thousands, of people are using patent medicines and do not know they contain a large per cent of alcohol, and do not know of the danger of using the same.

To those who so freely and generously gave of their means to help in the non-alcoholic issue of the MESSAGE last year I want again to say I thank you most heartily. If, during the past year, the Lord has prospered you, and you feel you can spare some of your income this year to help push this very important work, rest assured it will be greatly appreciated.

Every one of us who reads this paper has a special work in this line, be it ever so little or much. Light has been given us, and God will one day ask an accounting for even this little. If we do our part God will take care of the rest. MRS. A. T. WHITSON.

Prof. Baron Liebig, a German chemist of great renown, says: "We can prove with mathematical certainty that as much flour or meal as would lie on the point of a table knife is more nutritious than five measures (ten quarts) of the best Bavarian beer." And yet it is freely prescribed, by many physicians, as a nutriment for nursing mothers, thus early in the life of the child sowing seeds of drunkenness. The weakest wines contain from three to five per cent alcohol and are unsafe.

It is a fact, now-a-days disputed by nobody, that a certain relation exists between tuberculosis and alcoholism. 1. Alcohol, in its action as a predisposing agent, stands in the same relation to tuberculosis as to other contagious diseases. But the problem is here of greater importance, as tuberculosis is the disease that has the greatest predisposition for the human body and demands the greatest number of victims. 2. Alcohol makes a person more disposed for tuberculosis by its paralyzing and smothering effects on the protoplasm of the cells, making their power of resistance against the bacteria less. It prepares the soil for the tuberculosis by destroying all the works of defense of the organism, especially by affecting the nervous system, for which it is a powerful poison. It also produces organic troubles in the organ of nutrition and their works. 3. By producing innate weakness it makes a person predisposed for tuberculosis from its birth. 4. At last alcohol makes disease worse by continued influence on the already infected organism, thus hastening the development of the infection. It prevents the cure of the disease, which is generally possible; annihilates alcoholism and thus terminate the cause of tuberculosis. To triumph over alcohol is almost as to triumph over tuberculosis. Co-operation with the work against alcohol can do more against the tuberculosis than the sanitoriums.—From paper by Dr. Legiam of Paris at the Anti Alcohol Congress in Bremen, April, 1903.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Vice-President, has been engaged for a week's work in Marion County on the subject of "Non-Alcoholic Medication," beginning January 17, 1904. Mrs. Stanley has recently prepared a special lecture on this subject. It will be as captivating as her other lectures have been on other subjects. Write her for terms and dates. Her address is Richmond, Rural Route.

The Frances E. Willard National Temperance Hospital of Chicago has never used alcohol in any form as a medicine, nor as an outward application. The per cent death rate from this hospital has been far below that of hospitals using alcohol. All donations of money for the hospital should be sent to Mrs. E. B. Cook, Treasurer, 316 Washington Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Homer J. Hall, of Franklin, Ind., has kindly consented to give some time in the lecture field, speaking on the subject of "Non-Alcoholic Medication." Dr. Hall has not used alcohol in medicines for many years and speaks from experience. He has been especially successful in his treatment of typhoid and pneumonia patients. The Doctor can give only a limited number of dates. Unions wishing to engage a speaker on this subject will make no mistake in engaging Dr. Hall. He presents the subject in an interesting and fascinating manner. Write him for terms and dates.

The December Meeting of the Indianapolis Mapleton Union was held at the home of its President, Mrs. Amanda T. Whitson, December 16th. Notwithstanding it was near the holiday season, her parlor was filled with ladies. Dr. Rachel Swain, of the Swain Sanitarium, Woodruff Place, read a very interesting paper on the subject of "Health and the Non-Use of Alcohol in Medicines." The paper was a very interesting and valuable one, which was shown by the intensely interested ladies discussing the paper as she read it and the continuation of the discussion during the social hour which followed and during which light refreshments were served. Special musical numbers were given by Mrs. Williams, a professor of music, Misses Overman and Astley, of the Indianapolis Conservatory of Music, by Miss Carr and Mrs. Josie Jones.

At a reception given by Mrs. Amanda T. Whitson, State Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication, to local Presidents and Superintendents of this department, three plans were adopted. First, to secure Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley for a week's work in the county in January, two lectures to be given daily on the subject of non-alcoholic medication. Second, the distribution of leaflets, written by Martha M. Allen and Dr. Max Kassawitz, from house to house. Third, to plan one regular meeting and one evening meeting on this subject, during the year, in each Union, at which a special effort will be made to interest men and boys. Mrs. Whitson served refreshments and gave much valuable information.

MRS. SMITH,
County Pres., Supt.

Indianapolis Mapleton Union held an evening meeting at the home of Mrs. Kate B. Carr. An interesting paper on the Temperance Hospital was read by Mrs. Carrie Handy. A statistical talk was given by Mrs. Amanda T. Whitson on Non-Alcoholic Medication. As these papers were being read they were discussed and questions were asked and answered; this way proving to be the best we have ever found to interest the indifferent ones on these subjects. We invite our neighbors to come and in this informal way of bringing the subject before them, they are soon found asking questions and even living more temperate from the knowledge received. At this meeting, a neighbor and wife came in and were made to think as never before on this great theme, Non-Alcoholic Medication. In a day or two this man was taken ill and his mother-in-law said to her daughter, "go to the drug store and get some whisky; we must get him warm; he is having a chill." The daughter answered, "no, mother, we were at a meeting where we learned that those things break down instead of building up and I am going to try hot water and hot applications." She did, and soon he was better. Thus we are sowing the seed that we trust will bring forth a great harvest. We believe to make any department a success, it must be pushed and a more faithful worker is not on the field than the one in our Union in this department. MRS. K. CARR.

HOW TO CONVERT DOCTORS TO NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION.

The true physician desires, above all things in his profession, to cure his patient. The doctor also takes pleasure in pleasing his patients and their friends. Convince a doctor that his patients do better, that is recovers more certainly and more rapidly, by the use of alcohol and he will prescribe it. And convince him that his patients will recover more rapidly and more certainly without the use of alcohol and he will cease prescribing it. Notice, we said, convince a doctor, but remember a doctor is a hard man to convince. Especially is this true as to the drugs that aid in curing or hinders the curing of a patient. A good auntie will come into a home where there is a person sick and will recommend a certain remedy that she is certain cured her own neighbor's child that had the same disease. Her positive assertions and manner convince the family that is the remedy to be given.

But the intelligent physician would require more proof than convinced the good aunt.

He would ask if it was really the same disease, and ask proof of it. He would ask if that certain remedy cured the patient, or was it some other part of the treatment that gave the relief. He would inquire if the conditions of the two were alike or not. He would inquire if the recuperative powers of nature did not have more to do with the recovery of the patient than the lauded remedy of the good aunt.

And a score of other vital questions might be asked by the careful physician before he would consider the remedy favorably. And then he would desire to test its efficacy on more than a score of patients in a similar condition before he would consider it a reliable remedy. This is what it takes to convince a doctor of the reliability especially of a new remedy. We have given this illustration to show the reader more clearly that a doctor is a hard man or woman to convince. That is, he is not likely to make a change in his practice by taking up new remedies or ceasing the use of the old ones, without the highest authority or his own proof.

The medical profession is the guardian and promotor of that which is most dear to the larger portion of humanity, namely, human life, and be assured the members of this sacrificing profession are never so happy as when they have discovered a surer remedy of restoring and maintaining the health of the people.

Convince the medical profession that the use of alcohol is injurious in the treatment of the sick and the injured and they will cease its use. When? Not soon, but in due time.

To convince you that a plan of treating disease need not necessarily remain because it is hoary with age, we need only to refer to blood letting that prevailed in the treatment of most diseases, both in Europe and America, for more than a hundred years. But its twin brother, namely, the use of alcohol in the general treatment of diseases, remains, with three-fourths of our physicians, to this day.

Will the one-fourth win the three-fourths of the medical profession over to their way of thinking? Yes, if the one-fourth are right. For, in an investigating science like the practice of medicine, truth will always win. But demonstrated truth requires plenty of time for a thorough demonstration.

There is scarcely anything that convinces a doctor like a testing that he makes himself. So the most important plan is, to get the doctors to investigate—that is, to prove to their own satisfaction whether alcohol is a helpful or harmful remedy in the treatment of disease. To accomplish this, the white ribbon women, as a class, are better equipped to succeed than any one else. These ladies know more about non-alcohol medication than any other class of men or women, save the few doctors who have tried it. The four thousand W. C. T. U. women of Indiana and the three hundred thousand in the nation, would have a wonderful influence in enlightening our good doctors if they will but try. These ladies all have their family physician, and a request of him not to prescribe alcohol or any of its preparations to members of their family will have a very salutary influence to set the doctor to thinking, and likely to investigating. But no white ribbon woman should make this request unless she can give an intelligent reason for the request. For the doctor will be almost certain to ask her some questions. She needs to be well posted. For if she answers him intelligently, there is victory ahead. But if not, the doctor will consider the request a foolish woman's notion, without any reason to it.

If our temperance women who wish to see the doctors cease prescribing alcohol (and are willing to begin first with their own family physician), will only secure the non-alcoholic leaflets from Mrs. A. T. Whitson of Indianapolis, Ind. (3335 North Meridian street), or the National Superintendent, Mrs. Martha M. Allen, Oneida, N. Y. (27 Wood street), they can be well prepared to present the subject to an intelligent physician. The person who wishes to be the best equipped possible on this subject needs to secure the book entitled, "Alcohol a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine." By Mrs. M. M. Allen. This valuable book can be secured from either the State or National Superintendents named above. We know of no more certain way to convert doctors to non-alcoholic medication than a careful reading of this well written scientific volume. It quotes the highest medical authority. Gives hospital reports and shows plans of investigation that are convincing to the highest degree. When the doctor reads authority like this and then investigates for himself, he will arrive at the truth, and truth is mighty and will prevail.

HOMER J. HALL, M. D.

THE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL ON THE FIVE SENSES.

[Read at the Fifty-fourth Annual Session of the American Medical Association, in the Section on Materia Medica, Pharmacy and Therapeutics, and approved for publication by the Executive Committee: Drs. S. Solis-Cohen, George F. Butler and N. S. Davis, Jr.]

Recently a new field has been opened for a study of the symptoms following the use of alcohol. The external phenomena of the functional and mental activities of the body can now be measured and tabulated with exactness unknown before. It is assumed that, if the current beliefs and theories are true concerning the tonic and stimulant action of alcohol on the organisms, it is possible to prove it by the more perfect instruments of precision. Also that theories and variable experience held so tenaciously by many persons can be tested by something more than experience, logic and intuition. The action of alcohol taken in the body can now be traced by a study of the functional activity of the senses, the movements of the heart, the muscular activity, mental vigor, temperature of the body and other conditions with a degree of accuracy unknown before. From this point of view a number of observers have taken up this problem and pointed out conditions clearly traceable to the action of alcohol about which there can be no question.

Professor Kraepelin, of Heidelberg, has for a long time made experimental studies with instruments of precision on the external phenomena of the body which were due to the action of alcohol. These studies have been going on for years and recently the conclusions of some two thousand of these experiments have been published. Other observers during the last two years have repeated these experiments with newer instruments of precision, verifying Kraepelin's studies and adding some new facts to the subject. I have made many of these experiments personally, and in common with other observers, have been astonished that such work has not been done before. The uniformity of the conclusions indicate a range of facts that very largely explain many of the symptoms following the use of alcohol. In these experiments, only healthy, temperate persons are available. In Kraepelin's work they were generally university students and a few laborers whose lives were temperate and whose occupation and living were uniform. Each person was examined at a certain time every day to determine the sight, hearing, taste, smell, muscular activity, heart's action, temperature, point of muscular fatigue, memory, time reaction and thought rapidity. These examinations were made daily for a period of ten or more days. The results were tabulated and the average of these examinations was put down as the normal equation of the man. Sometimes the experiments were carried on for a much longer period. The normal condition having been ascertained in this way, the person was given at a certain hour in the day midway between meals or after the time of eating, an ounce of ethylic spirits. Thirty minutes after very careful examinations were made of the senses and other conditions and these examinations were repeated every forty minutes for a period of two or three hours. The second day after, a similar quantity of alcohol was given, followed by the same measurements and tabulation of all the symptoms following. This was continued every day or every second day, according to the susceptibility of the person, until ten or more examinations were made, the person in the meantime living with great regularity, both in exercise, diet and sleep. At intervals of four or five weeks and some times two months, the subject was experimented on again. The results of these experiments on a large number of persons extending over several months indicated the following general conclusions:

THE ACTION OF ALCOHOL ON THE SIGHT.

If the normal vision of a healthy man will enable him to read letters a half an inch long thirty feet away, from thirty to sixty minutes after the use of an ounce of spirits these letters cannot be seen at that distance and must be brought up to within eighteen or twenty-five feet to be seen. The sight has diminished to the extent of from ten to twelve feet. The color sense was also disturbed. Colors that could be distinguished were obscured or lost altogether. The red lines had faded away and were totally obliterated. Forms and shapes were blurred and indistinct, except when seen very near. The expression of the eye was changed. Clinically, this palsy of vision so apparent in intoxicated persons, seen in the prolonged staring and efforts to concentrate the sight, is a very common symptom. This is confirmed in the experience of persons engaged in work requiring precision of vision, also in painters and photographers, who soon realize that the use of spirits seriously disturbs the accuracy of their work and hence never drink in business hours.

EFFECT ON HEARING.

The sense of hearing was markedly diminished. In health, were the sound of a watch could be heard clearly at thirty or forty inches from the ear, this distance was lessened in half an hour or more after spirits had been used. The watch must be moved to ten or fifteen inches from the ear to be heard. Thus the sense of hearing was diminished from a third to a half. Certain sounds could not be distinguished. Certain tones were confused or lost altogether. Musical sounds were greatly disturbed and confused. Extreme states of these palsies are commonly seen in the intoxicated man, whose voice is always several keys higher than natural, simply because he is deaf and cannot hear his own voice except by speaking in a higher key. Even the moderate drinker shows a failure of hearing in the changed tone of voice.

EFFECT ON TOUCH.

The sense of touch was also found diminished. The capacity to distinguish between heat and cold was impaired. Bulbs of iced and hot water which could be distinguished normally at a distance of an inch, after the use of spirits must be separated two or more inches to be recognized. Rough and smooth surfaces were equally confused. The distance at which they could be discriminated normally was enlarged by half or more. In some instances, hyperesthetic states of the skin appeared in the first half hour after the use of spirits, then anesthesia came on, remaining one or two hours before passing away. The first effect of spirits, giving an impression of warmth over the surface, was followed by a sensation of cold which remained a long time. The surface sensation of the body was found to be deranged a much longer time than that of sight or hearing.

EFFECT ON TASTE.

The sensation of taste was changed. Mixtures containing so many drops of bitters, salts or acids, which could be detected in health, after the use of spirits were not recognized. The quantity of flavoring substance used was increased from a third to a half more before it could be recognized. Tea-tasters and experts who depend on their ability to discriminate flavors find from practical experience that this sense is greatly disturbed and obscured by the use of spirits. The power to discriminate odors was equally disturbed, both as to quality and distance. Carbolic acid, which was readily discerned in health, was unrecognized at a short distance and only faintly perceived when brought up closely. Both the sense of taste and smell were profoundly depressed from the effects of an ounce of alcohol, this depression only passing away some hours after. —T. D. Crothers, M. D., Superintendent Walnut Lodge Hospital, Hartford, Conn.

The main differences in the different alcoholic drinks is in the amount of alcohol which they contain. Thus brandy, whisky, gin and rums are from two-fifths to three-fifths alcohol; wine one-tenth to one-fifth; cider one-twentieth to one-tenth; beer and ale one twenty-fifth to one-sixteenth. Alcohol is formed within a few hours after cider is pressed. What is now called sweet cider contains a considerable amount of alcohol. Bitters. Many persons are unsuspectingly led into habits of intemperance by the use of various patent medicines advertised as "bitters," "tonics," etc. Few of any of these mixtures are free from alcohol. Some that are said to be free from alcohol, and on that account are called temperance bitters, actually contain more alcohol than some which make no such claim. Some of the most popular of these nostrums contain as much alcohol as the strongest liquors. "Jamaica ginger" contains so much alcohol that it will burn in a spirit lamp. The habitual use of these compounds is quite as harmful as the use of alcohol in any other form, and sometimes even more injurious on account of the presence of other harmful drugs. The use of alcohol in cookery is one way in which the appetite for alcohol is cultivated. Sauces, jellies, preserves and similar preparations, when they contain brandy, wine, or other alcoholic liquors, have a most pernicious influence and often lay the foundation for a life of intemperance. Candies and confections frequently contain alcohol in the form of wine or brandy. The use of such candies may readily produce an appetite for alcohol in other and stronger forms. Children have been found partially intoxicated as the result of eating freely of such candies. The only safe rule for a person who desires to lead a temperate life is to avoid everything which contains alcohol in any form. Any other course is most unsafe; for the alcohol habit is often formed unconsciously, and is only recognized when it has become fully developed, and has obtained the complete mastery.

"Alcoholism produces the most varied and fatal diseases of the stomach and liver, paralysis, dropsy and madness. It is one of the most frequent causes of tuberculosis. It aggravates and enhances all acute diseases, typhus, pneumonia, erysipelas. These diseases only attack a sober man in a mild degree, while they quickly do away with the man who drinks alcohol."—[Taken from the governmental document which has, within the past year, been ordered posted all over France and signed by the highest authority of diseases in France.]

Dr. Kellogg says: Alcohol has not been used in the Battle Creek Sanitarium for thirty-seven years. In former years alcohol was occasionally employed as a means of generating heat in vapor baths and was sometimes used in evaporating lotion on the skin; but these were exceptional cases and the alcohol thus used could not exert to any degree at all its specific influence.

Red Cross physicians, in the Spanish-American war, demonstrated clearly the superiority of non-alcoholic treatment of fevers, as well as of other troubles.

I recently purchased a jar of the Ramee flavoring extr ct. It gives good satisfaction and contains no alcohol. A large per cent of the liquid in flavoring extracts is alcohol. Give the powdered extracts a trial.

...RAMEE... FLAVORING POWDERS NON-ALCOHOLIC.

We beg to call the attention of all housewives who are interested in the disuse of alcohol, to our non-alcoholic flavors. After considerable experimenting, we are able to offer a fine line of extracts in powder form and containing no alcohol. These extracts impart a fine aroma to the foods in which they are used. Being of triple strength, one ounce Ramee Flavor equals three ounces liquid—it is economy to use them. Our Spice Flavors are especially nice where the color of the powdered spice is not desirable.

Ramee Flavors are put up in amber glass jars with cork lined caps and will retain their strength until the last portion is used.

We are prepared to supply the following: Vanilla, Lemon, Almond, Orange, Banana, Pineapple, Peppermint, Raspberry, Strawberry, Rose, Celery, Wintergreen, Ginger, Allspice, Cinnamon, Clove, Nutmeg, Bay, Dill. Price, 25 cents per jar.

To further introduce our Non-Alcoholic Flavors, we make this trial offer. For eight two-cent stamps, we will send post-paid a 25 cent jar of any of the above listed flavors.

We also make a line of Non-Alcoholic Paste Colors (perfectly harmless) for coloring ices, candy, gelatine, etc. We offer six colors: Blue, Brown, Green, Red, Violet and Yellow. Price, 15 cents per jar.

EVANGELISTIC SUPERINTENDENTS AND ASSOCIATE EVANGELISTS.

I regretted very much that I did not get to see you at the State Convention, but circumstances beyond my control hindered me from going. I have been informed of my continuance at the head of the Evangelistic Department, and I greatly desire that more efficient work may be done this year than ever before. At the National Convention the Board of Evangelists decided upon holding two-day evangelistic conferences wherever it was possible to arrange for them. I have earnestly advocated this during the few years I have been your Superintendent, but as yet have not been able to arrange for them. I am very desirous of your co-operation in this department of our work. I know that it is difficult during the winter, when the ministers are engaged in special services, to arrange for these conferences, and I really think we can do more good by falling into line with them and doing what we can to assist them, and then, later on, they will be more likely to co-operate with us. Watch your opportunity and be quick to seize it, and if I can assist you in any way in the management or carrying out of the program I will gladly serve you. I will be engaged in evangelistic services during January and part of February (no preventing providence), but after that I can answer your calls.

I will only ask for two reports during the year—March and September. This will save postage, and I think will as effectually gather up the reports. If the County Superintendents prefer to send out blank quarterly I am perfectly willing, and will send the blanks upon application. Please send me the names of your County and Local Superintendents as soon as possible. Promptly inform me of any changes in County or Local Superintendents. I earnestly request you to keep a faithful record of your work.

I will gratefully receive any suggestions from my co-workers that will make our department more efficient. I am very sure that we are not making as much of it as we should. Let us be more faithful in the distribution of literature (religious and temperance), visiting the sick, comforting the sorrowing, holding cottage prayer meetings, and in all the various lines of work connected with our department.

I did not receive as many reports this year as last. I cannot account for this, unless the County Superintendents were derelict in their duty. You understand the plan is to work through the County Superintendents where there are any, and where there are not for the Local Superintendents to send direct to the State. Will the County Superintendents do all in their power to assist and encourage the Local Superintendents?

I will be glad to be helpful in any way I can to each one of you, and trust I shall have your faithful co-operation. I would suggest the plan of one week's revival services carried out by the Bath Union in Franklin County. The President of the Union engaged me for a week's meeting. She wrote to her pastor asking him to attend and assist in the meeting. He replied that he had set that time for a revival meeting, and he would be glad to have me work with him. The W. C. T. U. paid me for the first week's services; at the end of the week the pastor and church members requested me to remain for another week, they assuming the expense. The result of the meeting was very helpful all around. The W. C. T. U. and the church were brought into closer fellowship, souls saved, members added to the church and Union, and a fresh baptism for more effectual service. I would like to see our associate evangelists all in the field, and would ask that the County and Local Superintendents arrange for at least a week's revival services, and when possible obtain the services of our evangelists.

My heart says, "God bless you, one and all, and make you all a blessing." With best wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I am faithfully and lovingly your sister and co-worker,

ELIZABETH M. HAUGHTON.

NATIONAL LEGISLATION.

The following two bills, prepared by the National Temperance Society, have, at the request of the society, been introduced in Congress:

"The first is a bill 'providing that the Federal Government shall not grant liquor tax receipts to persons residing in prohibition territory, State or local.' It was introduced in the Senate by Senator Gallinger, November 20, 1903, and referred to the Judiciary Committee. It is known as Senate bill 1526.

The New York Sun, the Washington Post, the Boston Herald and other leading papers of the country have editorially endorsed it.

The following is the bill:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that no collector of internal revenue shall receive any special tax from, nor issue any special tax receipt to any wholesale liquor dealer, retail liquor dealer in malt liquors, or retail dealer in malt liquors, unless such dealer shall at time of making his application to pay such special tax exhibit to such collector a license or permit, issued in accordance with the laws of the State or Territory in which such trade or business is to be carried on, authorizing him to sell distilled spirits, wines or malt liquors, as the case may be, at the place where such trade or business is to be carried on; and such dealer shall register with the collector the date of such license or permit, the period for which it may have been issued, and the authority issuing the same, which facts such collector shall state on the alphabetical list provided for in Section 3240 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

The second bill is one calling for a Commission of Inquiry as to the traffic in alcoholic liquors.

Away back in 1873, at the request of the National Temperance Society, a bill of this nature was introduced in the United States Senate by Senator Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts.

Since then it has been introduced in every Congress. Again and again the bill has been passed in the Senate, but has failed to be acted upon by the House.

The bill is as follows;

"That there shall be appointed by the President, by and with the consent of the Senate, a Commission of Inquiry, of five or more competent persons, whose duty it shall be, first, to inquire and take testimony as to the results of the traffic in alcoholic liquors in connection with crime, pauperism, the public health, the moral, social and intellectual well-being of the people; second, concerning license and prohibitory legislation in the several States of the Union; and, third, to recommend what additional legislation, if any, would be beneficial on the part of Congress to suppress in the sphere of National authority the traffic of alcoholic liquors as beverages."

The National Temperance Society earnestly invokes the co-operation of all temperance organizations, ministers and churches to secure the passage by Congress of these bills, and suggests that letters and petitions be at once forwarded to members of the House and the Senate.

Copies of petitions may be had of the National Temperance Society, 3 East Fourteenth street, New York City.

FROM OUR EXCHANGES.

Milton thought it improper for women to learn Greek and Latin.

No less than eight women have seats on the London board of education.

Two hundred years ago no one thought of a girl playing the piano—only men played.

The W. C. T. U. of Milwaukee, Wis., has begun a crusade against immorality in the schools in that city.

"We cannot expect the conditions of our country to be better and purer until our lawmakers are better and purer."

"The saloon would kill the church if it could, and the church could kill the saloon if it would."—Samuel Dickie.

The New Voice gave the Cincinnati convention a splendid notice. The W. C. T. U. and prohibition are inseparable.

We stand for an equal code of morals for women and men and emphatically condemn every system for the regulation of vice.

Mrs. Lucy Blanchard, of Los Angeles, is the President of the largest W. C. T. U. in the United States, 631 paid up members.

Mary Wollstonecroft had to argue personally with her friends, who thought it unwomanly and improper for girls to study botany.

Mrs. Ada Unruh, of Oregon, National Organizer, traveled more than 17,000 miles last year and worked in fifteen States, speaking in many schools and colleges.

The legislator who will vote to fasten the saloon system on the necks of an unwilling people should be preserved in his own alcohol and used as a sign in a saloon window.

Mrs. Stevens, National President, and Miss Anna Gordon, National Vice-President, attended the Kansas State convention, to the great satisfaction of everyone present.

Bertha W. Burnham, of Oldtown, Me., has been commissioned by Governor Hill as a notary public, "to acknowledge deeds, administer oaths and solemnize marriages."

There was a time in the history of Boston libraries when women were not allowed to take books from the library. Now, more books are taken out by women than by men.

Nothing is gained by hating the saloonkeeper. He must be educated out of the business. There is something better in life for him to do. He simply got started wrong—got into the wrong groove.

In the largest library in Oxford, England, has hung from time immemorial this notice: "Women and dogs not allowed here." It is allowed to hang still, to show the changes in the status of woman.

The Red Cross Hospital, New York, has demonstrated that alcohol is unnecessary as a medicine, none whatever being used there. William T. Wardwell, in view of this fact, has donated this institution a building site valued at $125,000.

In Jane Austin's day it was considered very unsexing, degrading and unwomanly for a woman to write novels. Miss Austin always kept a large piece of sewing on hand with which to conceal her manuscript in case a conservative visitor should come in.

Mrs. Harriet E. Bean has been nominated on the Public School Association ticket for the Boston School Committee. She has been a resident of Dorchester for twenty-five years and she has been prominent in the work of the Dorchester Woman's Club since its organization.

Mrs. L. E. Bailey, of New York, National Organizer, spent the most of the year in Florida and Ohio. She secured over 1,000 active members, 200 honoraries, organized 31 unions and took 100 subscriptions to the Union Signal. For this year she pledges to secure another 1,000 members and 2,000 subscriptions to the Union Signal.

The opening session of the Twentieth Century Club of Detroit was made a memorial to the honorary President of the Club Mrs. Lucinda Hinsdale Stone, widely known as the mother of women's clubs in Michigan. Mrs. Stone, in addition to her pioneer work for schools, churches and libraries, did more than any other person to open the doors of the State University to women, and herself coached the first girl who entered. The Twentieth Century and other clubs throughout the State have contributed generously towards a scholarship fund in the University of Michigan as a permanent memorial of Mrs. Stone.

Mrs. Callie H. Howe, of Missouri, was a field 8 months last year, the time being spent in Vermont, New Hampshire, Mississippi, Louisiana, North Dakota and her own State. Mrs. Howe was one of the national speakers selected to aid in the fight for the retention of Vermont's prohibitory law, and she did valiant campaign work in that State, which included an address before the State Legislature. Mrs. Howe also did pioneer work in Louisiana, took a hand in the Mississippi campaign for State prohibition and devoted more time than usual to her own State. Her statistical report showed $1,483.50 collected for the work.

Mrs. C. C. Faxon, W. C. T. U. Commissioner in the Philippines, speaking of conditions in the islands, says: "With American occupation two classes of people became subjects for missionary effort—the Filipino and the degenerate American. The conditions that follow in the wake of war are not conducive to a healthy moral atmosphere. Three great evils are dominant—intemperance, the social evil and gambling. The two former were practically imported; the latter was quite in harmony with a custom of the country. The new canteen law, though a step in the right direction, did not win us friends in the army, nor has it been carried into effect with the provisions made to supply its place sufficiently to test its value. Gambling and the cockpit are common and are sought by native men and women and foreigners. The opium habit is not exclusively Chinese. Filipinos and Americans are contracting it. The W. C. T. U. work consisted in visiting the sick in the hospitals and supplementing the evangelical work with gifts of fans and flowers; distributing the literature and comfort bags sent; hunting up mothers' boys, and writing letters of encouragement to them."

PLAN OF SCIENTIFIC TEMPERANCE DEPARTMENT.

If our temperance educational laws are thoroughly enforced for the next twenty-five years, we have every reason to believe that the majority of our people will be total abstainers, with all that implies, for the future of our race and nation. It largely rests with the W. C. T. U. whether these laws shall be enforced. God has given us the vision of things as they are and as they should be and if these laws are ever enforced the mothers must do it. Let us devote ourselves to this work with new diligence and courage during the coming year. Make an effort to get the Physiology Journal into the hands of every teacher in your village, town and township. If you cannot get it for a year, get it for four months at 25 cents. The Oral Lesson Book, for primary teachers, is most excellent help and ought to be in every primary and intermediate room in the State. Helps by the Way, just the leaflet, every local Superintendent needs to equip her for the year's work. These helps and the many excellent New Century Leaflets can be had of Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, 23 Trullist, Boston, Mass. The small Scientific Temperance chart, exhibited at State Convention, can be had of the State Superintendent for $1.25. It would take only a small effort to place one of these charts in each district and village school and its very presence would help. See that each teacher has a copy of the law. They can be furnished at 10 cents per dozen. Keep an accurate account of all efforts and be ready to report next September in big, round numbers. MATTIE CAMMACK GIBSON, State Superintendent.

THE UNION SIGNAL AT THE CONVENTION.

The National official organ was enthusiastically supported by members of the convention. Over 1,000 individual subscriptions were received by Miss Emma Alexander during the convention. Pledges of subscriptions were made by nearly every State President and by many individuals. A majority of the States pledged to double their former subscription lists.

Mrs. Rebecca B. Chambers pledged 5,000 for Pennsylvania; Mrs. Katharine Lente Stevenson brought 100 subscriptions and promised to double the list in her State; Mrs. Cornelia B. Forbes said that Connecticut would double her list; Mrs. Frances W. Graham, of New York, said that 150 had been subscribed at their State convention and that they would double their list and if possible treble it; Mrs. Luella A. Ramsey said that South Dakota would endeavor to double her list; Mrs. Ida A. Read promised that Vermont would use every effort to double her list, and Mrs. Emma Bourne promised the same for New Jersey; Mrs. Laura E. Harsha promised that Indian Territory would do her best; Mrs. Mary A. Babcock promised that Rhode Island would make an effort to double her list; Mrs. Clinton Smith pledged the same for the District of Columbia; Mrs. Emma Cash promised that California would do her best; Mrs. Ellen R. Richardson said that New Hampshire pledged to more than double her list; Mrs. Helen M. Stoddard said that every Texas delegate had subscribed and that they would double their list; Mrs. Dora V. Wheelock said the delegation from Nebraska was determined to double its list; Mrs. V. K. Rollins said that all the delegates from Maine had subscribed and that they would pledge 100 new subscribers. Other assurances from Maine indicate that the Pine Tree State will equal all others in supporting our official organ. Mrs. Anderson pledged that North Dakota would double her list and Mrs. Howard M. Hoge promised the same for Virginia; Mrs. Margaret B. Platt said that Washington (West) would get every member in the State to subscribe; Mrs. Benjamin, President of Michigan, pledged fifty dollars in cash subscribers; Mrs. Helen L. Bullock pledged fifty subscribers and to use her best endeavors to secure 100; Rev. Mary J. Borden said New Mexico would endeavor to double her list; Mrs. Bessie L. Scovell pledged the same for Minnesota; Kentucky pledged to try to double her list; Mrs. Holme, of Maryland, said that her State would use every effort to double her list; Mrs. Culla Vayhinger said that Indiana would try to secure 1,000 new members this year and would make the same effort for the Union Signal; West Virginia promised to do as well as Maryland; Miss Ellen D. Morris, of Missouri, pledged to double her list; Mrs. Holman, of Tennessee, promised that that State would double her list; Mrs. Margaret Wintringer, National Organizer, promised fifty subscribers; Mrs. E. B. Hutchinson pledged 125 new subscribers for Kansas and raised her previous pledge of 500 for the State to at least 700; Mrs. L. E. Bailey, National Organizer, pledged 200 new subscribers; Wisconsin promised to try to secure 1,000 during the year.

Upon the redemption of these pledges depends the success of our official paper during the coming year. We believe that each State will measure up to the promise of its president and our plans for the paper will be upon that basis.

FIELD NOTES.

New Officers have been elected as follows for Knox County: President, Mrs. Allie R. Law, 318 Hart street, Vincennes; Vice-President, Mrs. Davis, Vincennes; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Henrietta Lee, Edwardsport; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Fuller, Vincennes; Treasurer, Mrs. Arie Polk, Freelandville; Secretary L. T. L., Mrs. Ora McArthur, Freelandville; Secretary Y., Mrs. Mayme Wahmier, Edwardsport.

Red Key Union is slowly but surely gaining in membership. I think we have almost, if not quite doubled in the last six months. We held a very successful contest the sixth of November, and had Sister Cora Steele with us to preside over the meeting. Miss Pauline Jackson won the medal. We also had a silver medal contest the 11th of this month, when Miss Bessie Hilt won the medal. The church was crowded on both occasions, and good collections were taken. We think now we will give the same class another trial at some nearby country church, and give the collection to the Hadley School. How eagerly I watch for the reports from the Winchester, Ind., Union (my old home Union.)

MILLIE E. LAVELL,
Supt. Contest Work.

LaPorte Union is preparing for Frances E. Willard Memorial Day; also, for their Institute. Many of the Unions are well pleased and encouraged with the excellent reports brought to them by their delegates from the State Convention. This Union is no exception, as its delegates brought good reports. LaPorte Union was also represented at the National by Mrs. Seth Pease, she being the delegate coming the longest distance in the Hoosier State, having traversed the State diagonally. Mrs. Pease in her report speaks in high praise of the Convention, and thinks that all who can attend should do so; also tells with much pride of the young people in attendance who were of great help to the Convention, among them being a daughter of our beloved Mrs. McWhirter. During the month of November we were favored with a visit from one of our members, dear Mary Baumgardner, whose home for the winter will be in Ohio. Sunday, December 13, the Anti Saloon League was well represented in our churches, a number of ministers coming from abroad to assist. Sunday, December 20, a meeting was held to form a committee in each county of the State to look after legislative nominations, the purpose of the League being to oppose nominees of any party that are unfriendly to the temperance laws. The members of the W. C. T. U. are full of enthusiasm, as they feel that much of this has been brought about through their agitation and faithfulness.

Star City Union held a very interesting and profitable meeting Sabbath evening, December 13, at the M. E. Church. The County President, Mrs. Ellen L. Potter, gave a report of the State Convention. Mrs. Ella Benedict, wife of the principal of our school, gave a fine recitation. Master Everett Vaniman also gave a fine recitation. Rev. Lewis, pastor of the Christian Church, presented some very plain facts in a short speech. Our music was excellent. Mrs. A. L. Smith, who is an accomplished musician, sang

"The Knot of White Ribbon." Rev. Clark, pastor of the M. E. Church, voiced his sentiment in a most excellent prayer at the close of the program. We received two new members. One was a young man, a stranger to most of our White Ribboners, but he signed the pledge, put on the white ribbon and gave himself and his dollar. We are praying that the benediction of heaven may rest upon him. At our business meeting on the 16th we took up some new department work, and elected some Superintendents to take the places of those who had moved away: Loyal Temperance Legion (new), Mrs. A. L. Clark; Medal Contest, Mrs. Ella Benedict; Sunday-school Work, Mrs. Mary Blue; Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. Emma Vaniman; Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Ella Benedict; Mercy, Mrs. America Jones; Petition and Legislation (new), Mrs. Ellen L. Potter; Scientific Temperance Instruction, Mrs. Ella Benedict; Peace and Arbitration, Mrs. Fannie Owens. New County Superintendents: Sunday-school Work, Mrs. Myrtle Higgins, Francisville; Peace and Arbitration, Mrs. Clara Wilson, Francisville; Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Ella Benedict, Star City; Petition and Legislation, Mrs. Anna L. Rusk, Francisville; Mercy, Mrs. America Jones, Star City.

Mrs. Amanda T. Whitson, State and County Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication, was the first Marion County Superintendent to adopt the State Department Board of Superintendents' suggestion, that each County Superintendent should call the Local Superintendents of her department together at least once in the year. Mrs. Whitson had three plans to suggest, and they were unanimously endorsed. If these plans mature, Mrs. Stanley, Vice-President of State W. C. T. U., will deliver two lectures daily, for one week, on Non-Alcoholic Medication. Every Local Union will devote two meetings, during the coming year, to this subject, and each Local Superintendent will have leaflets on this subject placed in every house in her district. Mrs. Whitson served a dainty lunch, was extremely generous with literature, and encouraged every woman present. All felt that meeting together in this way and planning the year's work would have most satisfactory results.

E. G. SMITH,
Marion Co. Press Sup't.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haughton, National Evangelist and our State Superintendent of Evangelistic Department, spent two weeks and three Sabbaths recently, assisting in revival services in Bath, Ind. The minister has engaged her to return again in February. Early in January Mrs. Haughton will go to assist the pastor at Sims for two weeks. The second Sabbath that Mrs. Haughton was at Bath, Mrs. Smith, the County President, took her in a buggy to Brookville, eleven miles through a snow storm by private conveyance, where she spoke to the M. E. Sunday-School and preached a temperance sermon. Dear Mrs. Helen M. Stoddard, President of Texas, had been there visiting a loved niece, and had spoken one week before in that same Methodist Church. We rejoice to know that Mrs. Haughton is a-field.

Mary Hadley Y., of Terre Haute, is doing some splendid work. We have had several meetings since the convention, and are contemplating more just as fast as we can get the time to fill the places. We organized a Y over in West Terre Haute December 2 with five members to start with, and we are going to attend their meetings until they get started in the work. We have a force of thirty-three members, nine of whom are honorary. We are still working on the free will offering plan, and have always had money in the treasury. Have also taken up four additional lines of work—Systematic Giving, Mercy, Anti-Narcotic and Mothers' Meetings. Our meetings here of late have been very interesting. We have had many visitors and they seemed to take great interest in our work. We expect to add some more names to the ever increasing number of White Ribboners. Much good is being done here in Terre Haute. We will help push the wheels of the State organization.

Hadley Industrial School. There is not a W. C. T. U. woman in Indiana but what knows of Hadley Industrial School for girls of its origin and the care and training it has given many girls. Many of those who were willing contributors to the support of the school in its beginning have been called from works to rewards and their mantle should fall upon us. We are heirs to an opportunity of doing good to humanity. The school belongs to every W. C. T. U. in Indiana, and if each woman does her part the needs are all easily met. According to our constitution each Union must hold a contest for the benefit of the school. Some have lately sent clothing, carpets, etc., which were gladly received, but at present the finances are behind, which makes the work very hard on the new trustees. The bills for fuel, flour, groceries and salaries of employees must be met. Have you not a free will offering for this work?

MRS. E. H. CHANDLER,
Treas. of Board, Mooresville, Ind.

Contest at Roll—Another very successful Medal Contest was held at Roll, under the management of Mrs. Lillie Palmer, superintendent. The program had been very carefully arranged, and did not fail to interest the most indifferent. The recitations were all well rendered. The Medal was awarded to Miss Lora Boher. To say the Superintendent was proud of her class would be putting it very mild. A quartet of mixed voices furnished the music, which was very touching and appropriate. While the judges retired to make their decision, Miss Maud Day recited, and last, but not least, a collection was taken, and the people were very liberal. The Superintendent intends holding a number of Contests during the winter, and hopes to accomplish much good through this line of work.

Dearborn County Convention convened at the Baptist Church, Tuesday, November 10, with the President, Mrs. Vayhinger, in the chair. Devotional services led by Mrs. Lucy Smith. Dillsboro, Guilford and Cold Springs Unions represented. The Treasurer sent a splendid report. The President gave a good report for the year, having organized three Unions, which are all flourishing. Especially are we proud of our Baby Union, Cold Springs. Papers and reports were given by the Superintendents of L. T. L., Narcotics, Fair, Press and Sunday School work. An interesting talk was given by Mrs. Brumblay, of Bedford, formerly of Moore's Hill, on "Purity." Mrs. Haughton, the National Superintendent of Evangelistic work, gave a helpful talk. At the evening meeting devotional service was led by Mrs. C. M. Kroft, our new President. Solo by Miss Laura Brooks. A very interesting, instructive and helpful lecture by Mrs. Haughton. Six new members were added to the Moore's Hill Union. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. C. M. Kroft, Guilford; Vice-President, Mrs. Lucy Smith, Moore's Hill; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Eva Ward, Guilford; Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. E. Squires, Moore's Hill; Treasurer, Mrs. R. H. Perlee, Dillsboro.

The citizens of Markle enjoyed greatly the series of nine lectures given by Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. of Markle. Mrs. Stanley filled the hearts of the people with her noble purpose. She also gave several talks to the school children, whose hearts she won. She is not only endeavoring to rescue the fallen, but is striving to pave the way for the future safety of our boys and girls. Sunday afternoon she gave "Who Killed Joe's Baby?" painting upon the canvas of imagination the terrible pictures of a drunkard's home with such force as could not be doubted. At the earnest appeal to stand for truth and down with the curse many men offered their names and talents to forward the cause. Sunday evening Mrs. Stanley gave "The Coming Victory." A number of days later Mrs. Stanley was recalled by the W. C. T. U., but this time her work was mostly directed to the country surrounding Markle. During her stay she delivered lectures at the following places: Rock Creek Center, Barnes Chapel, Buckeye, and also at Markle. Large and enthusiastic crowds were in attendance at each of these places and liberal contributions were given to advance the cause. Sunday morning she lectured at Markle on Sunday observance. Her arguments were clear and well defined, and brought conviction to her listeners. On Sunday afternoon, before a house crowded with spell-bound listeners, she delivered, "At the Mercy of the State," for two hours. Mrs. Stanley swayed her audience at will, and was rewarded by many men taking a noble stand for right, and a number of new members to the W. C. T. U. Monday evening she again lectured in the country. Mrs. Stanley has accomplished a great work for Markle, for through her efforts, or at least largely influenced by them, Markle has determined to rid herself of the curse heretofore supported in her midst, and if successful it will owe a large share to Mrs. Stanley. May God bless her as she strives to aid and rescue the fallen.

Delaware County Convention was held at Albany. The President reported five Unions, one being organized the past summer. Nine evangelistic meetings were held during the year in churches, one in cottage and one before the Epworth League. Number doing personal work, 7; pages of literature distributed, 1,852; hours spent with sick, 25; visits to sick, 30. Mrs. Masters, Superintendent. All the Unions observed Flower Mission Day; 266 bouquets were given to the sick, the jail, the hospital, the street-car conductors and motormen—Mrs. Bell Orr, Superintendent. Four hundred pages of literature on Sabbath Observance was distributed and five sermons were preached on the subject—Mrs. Kate Stafford, Superintendent. The report on Systematic Giving, by Mrs. Current, was as follows: Meetings held, 5; pages of literature distributed, 50; number who practice tithing, 16. Mothers' Meetings, by Mrs. Ella Bond: Meetings held, 30; pages of literature, 313; copies of American Mother taken, 3; original papers read, 3; number on cradle roll, 22. Press-work—Clippings: Albany, 18 ft. 2 in.; Muncie, 12 ft. 2 in.; Normal City, 5 ft. 6 in.—total, 27 ft. 8 in. Medal Contest Work: Silver, 7; gold, 1; grand gold, 6; diamond, 1—total 15—Mrs. Lydia Carmichael, Superintendent. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. D. R. Nelson; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Martha Lockhart; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Ella Bond; Treasurer, Mrs. Lydia Rinker, Superintendents appointed: Evangelistic, Mrs. Amy Masters, Muncie; Sabbath Observance, Mrs. Kate Stafford, Albany; Flower Mission, Mrs. Belle Orr, Eaton; Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. Ella Bond, Normal City; Medal Contests, Mrs. Cora Steele, Muncie; Purity, Mrs. Odessa Rayle, Muncie; Systematic Giving, Mrs. Rhoda Curent, Albany; Press, Mrs. Dora Nelson, Muncie; L. T. L., Mrs. Lydia Carmichael. Mrs. Carmichael reported an L. T. L. at Eaton of 133 members. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, of Richmond, was present, and during the afternoon gave a beautiful talk on the life of Frances Willard. Her theme for the evening was, "What the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is doing." Total number of active members in the county, 74.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 2.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., FEBRUARY, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

The Chicago Journal editorially says in part:
"It is true, as stated in the opening address of the President, that the W. C. T. U. is acknowledged as a power throughout the world. Whatever attitude a political party or an individual may assume toward the question of prohibition, whatever badinage may be indulged in toward this organization, or however much the people may be addicted to the use of liquor, the number of persons is comparatively few who will not admit, down in their hearts, that this great body of women is engaged in a noble fight against the worst bane of civilization—alcoholic drink."

"The defenders of liquor have many clever arguments in favor of it, but as a matter of cold, self-apparent truth, the argument of the women is absolutely unanswerable. Intoxicating liquor is the one great curse of the world. The organization recognizes the fact that it cannot annihilate liquor in a day nor in a generation. It realizes that the monster it has started out to conquer is the most difficult to kill of all the devouring creatures of the earth. The W. C. T. U. knows that the busiest men on the planet are the liquor men—that they work day and night and never sleep. To combat such an enemy is indeed a discouraging task, and all honor and respect is due to these courageous women who are building up an organization that is growing year by year with an ever-increasing power."

ANOTHER GOVERNMENT SCANDAL—LIQUOR SELLING IN YELLOWSTONE PARK.

James Fullerton, of Red Lodge, Mont., National President of the Sportsman's Game Protective Association, has addressed the following communication to Montana Congressmen:

"DEAR SIR—We have for a long time been trying to get an investigation into the rotten condition of affairs in the Yellowstone Park. I now ask you to bring the matter publicly before the House or Senate, that a committee may be appointed that will impartially investigate the charges of venality and corruption against the officials who have charge of the Park. I stand prepared to furnish indisputable proof that the President, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Major Pitcher, Superintendent of the Park, have been in collusion for a year to allow H. W. Childs to run a lot of illegal saloons in Yellowstone Park."

I am, with respect, yours truly,
JAMES FULLERTON.

"President Sportsman's Game Protective Association."

This is a serious charge. The rules governing the Yellowstone Park positively forbid the sale or use of liquor within the Park. If Mr. Fullerton can substantiate his charges, as he declares he can, and can prove collusion on the part of the Superintendent of the Park, that officer should be removed and punished. The rules of the Park are rigidly enforced against the public, so much so that visitors of high character and standing have been arrested and grossly humiliated for innocently violating them.—Exchange.

HIGH LICENSE A FAILURE.

This is proved by the liquor dealers on testimony. The Brewers' Journal says: "High license reforms nothing, and wherever it has been given a fair trial it has been to the liquor dealers eminently satisfactory from a financial point of view."

The Bar, the official liquor organ of Chicago, says: "A good high license to help pay the tax of the temperance fanatics will pacify their consciences."

A Boston liquor dealer believes in high license because it puts his business on a more respectable foundation, and he says: "The State offers me something which protects me in my business."

Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular, referring to the Brooks law, says: "Increase of the license fee in Pennsylvania from $500 to $1,000 will be the best investment the liquor interests ever made."

The Wine and Spirit Gazette says: "It must be admitted that the Philadelphia liquor sellers whose stores are at present bonanzas, favor the increase of the annual license fee to $2,000. The higher the fee the better their chance of crowding the little fellows out of business, and creating a monopoly by which a few will make large fortunes."

Mr. Peter Iler, the leading distiller of Nebraska after several years experience of the high license system, in a letter written for the guidance of liquor dealers in another state, says:

"High license does not hurt our business, but on the contrary, has been a great benefit to it. I believe somewhat that high license acts as a bar against prohibition. I do not think that high license lessens the quantity of liquors used."—Exchange.

Mrs. McWhirter needs the following copies of the MESSAGE to complete her files: November, 1899; November, 1900; May, 1903. Any one having one or all of these please inform Mrs. McWhirter by postal and she will send ten cents in stamps for each copy.

AN EPIDEMIC OF CRIME.

As a contribution to the discussion by the press on "the epidemic of crime," the Corner Stone says:

"Crime is on the increase because we sell the right to carry on a crime-producing business for money. In Ohio any man, no matter what his character, may enter the business of crime-making for only $350. He may carry on that business unmolested for a whole year for that amount of money. He may debauch and ruin as many of the boys and young men as he can entice into his den for a whole year for that amount of money. He may do this as a regular business. This may be with him just as much a regular business as selling tea, coffee or sugar. As long as this condition of things prevails of course crime will increase. It is the legalized saloon that is turning loose upon the world an army of what we call criminals. The fact is too evident to need proof."

FROM PRESIDENT.

The first quarter of the year is gone. The report of the treasurer shows that 174 more members paid dues this quarter than the corresponding quarter last year. This is encouraging and I hope it is only the omen of 1000 new members for the year. A letter from Mrs. Carmen tells us that so far Indiana is in the lead in Medal Contests. Reports from over the State show a number of new L. T. L.'s this quarter; also several new unions. I hope every woman who wears the white ribbon is talking victory and working for it. If there is one who feels discouraged, I trust she will, before saying anything about it, go into her closet, shut the door and there wrestle with God until she has the victory and can claim the promises of God for the success of His work. It is His, not ours, and as long as we keep our hand in His, He will see that we have success. The battle never was as fierce as it is to-day. The saloon men say "In order to meet these agitators we must organize, agitate and put our money into the fight." This is just what we must do. I am trusting the unions, where there is only one union in the county, to help organize more and have a county organization before the end of the year. I hope these unions will fall in with the plan which I sent to their Presidents and work for it. Do not be afraid to plan largely for God is pleased with such faith and honors it. If there is any way in which I can help you I shall be glad to do so. Do not forget Mother Thompson's good-bye to us. "Remember Lot's wife." CULLA J. VAYTINGER.

THE GIDEONS.

A new movement, started two years ago in Wisconsin by some traveling salesman, has been remarkably successful in carrying out the object of its founders. The "Gideons" is an organization of Christian traveling men, whose motto is: "The hotel bar must go," and it is going. In the State of Wisconsin alone seventy-five hotels have been compelled to discontinue their bars during the last year on account of the tremendous influence exercised by the Gideons. Already 2,707 have joined the movement.

Among the Gideons the whisky bottle has been thrown aside to give place to the Bible; the proverbial pack of cards has been replaced by the hymn book and their place of amusement and resort changed from the bar room to the church and prayer meeting.

The edict of this organization of drummers is: "No hotel in America supporting a bar in its establishment will receive the patronage of the Gideons in this country."

FROM OUR EXCHANGES.

The County Convention was held at Vincennes in December. It was specially marked by a spirit of great devotion and consecration to our cause, a sweet spirit of helpfulness one to another, and hopefulness for a good year. Several have been added to the membership of the County.

Mrs. Cora Steele, our State Superintendent of Medal Contest Department, is the happy recipient of a beautiful black dress as a token of loving appreciation from the Delaware County Executive Committee. 'Tis a beautiful way the White Ribboners have of "giving flowers" to comrades while they may enjoy them.

Indianapolis Frances Willard Union held a silver medal contest on December 4th in Hall Place M. E. Church. There were six contests: Louisa Sethman, Freda Mann, Eva Smith, Mildred Spence, May Amos, and Madaline Lockwood. The medal was awarded to May Amos. The others were presented with L. T. L. buttons. Ten dollars of the proceeds were sent to the Hadley Home, the annual offering of the Union to the Home.

"Ether and chloroform are made from alcohol; fusel oil is a constituent of bad whisky; naptha, or wood spirits, is another; carbolic acid and creosote are chemical substances which are related to alcohol."—Dr. Kellogg, Battle Creek Sanitarium.

ALCOHOL NOT A STIMULANT.

"The popular idea that alcohol is a stimulant is doubtless the chief occasion for its use as a remedy by physicians. But modern researches have shown that alcohol cannot, in any proper sense, be regarded as a stimulant. It lessens vital activity in all diseases. The giving of alcohol to weak and fainting persons is a most pernicious and injurious practice, as the drug serves still further to depress and weaken the vital forces. The feeling of increased strength imparted by alcohol is deceptive. This is true in relation to both mental and muscular effect."—Dr. Kellogg, Battle Creek Sanitarium.

The employment of Ex-U. S. Senator Thurston by the National Liquor Dealers' Association as their attorney to appear before committees of Congress in behalf of all measures affecting the liquor traffic and the raising of $5,000,000, show that they mean business and are alarmed at the outlook. With them millions are at stake. The rapid growth of the local option movement in the south, under which large portions of territory in all the Southern States are affected, may well cause consternation among the liquor men. In Arkansas, during 1902, 53 out of 75 counties declared against licensing saloons; in Georgia, 103 out of 137; in Kentucky, out of 119 counties, 47 have entire, and 54 partial prohibition; in Mississippi, 65 out of 75; in Tennessee, 84 out of 96; North Carolina prohibits the traffic except in incorporated towns which vote for it. There is not a Southern State in which the anti-liquor tide is not rising.—National Advocate.

No more important general legislation affecting the temperance question has been proposed for over a decade than the Hepburn (H. R. 4072)-Dolliver Bill (Senate 1390.) This measure is simply designed to make State legislation on the liquor question effective by allowing the laws of the State to have complete jurisdiction over liquor shipped into the State, both before and after delivery. Prohibition, whether State wide or local, and all forms of local option legislation will not have a fair test without this law. The bill is before the Judiciary Committee in both houses of Congress. The special thing desired now is short, courteous appeals to Senators and Congressmen on the committees and to your own Congressman to do everything in their power to secure the prompt and favorable consideration of the measure by the committees and its early passage by both branches. Send letters and telegrams to Indiana Congressmen. Urge them to use their influence in favor of this measure.

Frances Willard's Heavenly Birthday, February 17, will be observed in all the countries of the world where flutters the White Ribbon. Every Union should hold commemorative services of some kind, either a public or a parlor meeting, at which a free-will offering should be taken for the national organization fund. At such meeting have some skillful person give a review of "An Uncrowned Queen," the short story of Miss Willard's life written in most attractive form by Mrs. Bernie Babcock. The little book can be obtained from the Temperance Literature Headquarters, 915 The Silvermith's Building, 131-137 Wabash avenue, Chicago. The effect of the sweet Christ-like life of Miss Willard is influencing more people to-day than any other woman known to the Christian world.

The Union Signal should be in the home of every White Ribboner who is interested in the work beyond her own immediate vicinity. It is the greatest philanthropic woman's journal in the world to-day. Please subscribe. Send one dollar by money order or postage for one year's subscription to the Union Signal, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill. Presidents of local Unions, please ask your members to subscribe for themselves and for their ministers and school teachers.

SCIENTIFIC TEMPERANCE INSTRUCTION.

The consternation of our enemies is our greatest encouragement to-day. The liquor traffic hates and fears, more than anything else in our W. C. T. U. work, the scientific teaching in the public school. Hence the revival of the "Committee of Fifty," that they may proclaim against the endorsed text-books and the injustice of educational laws. They are now crying, "Education does not educate," as they once cried, "Prohibition doesn't prohibit." "The Fifty" do not publish their names, but we find their articles in many of our papers and leading magazine reviews and editorial comments on their books.

Our National Superintendent and her advisory board are also preparing books, with opinions of scientists whose names will be published and this little storm will pass as did the "Atwater" breeze.—Exchange.

Many eminent physicians condemn the use of wine, beer or spirits as a preventive against cold.

The subscription price of the MESSAGE is to be included in the payment of the annual membership dues of every regular member of the W. C. T. U. of Indiana.

The MESSAGE per year.....25 cents

All communications intended for the MESSAGE should be in the hands of the Editor before the 20th of the month.

All business communications should be addressed to, and all remittances made payable to Miss Alice E. Palmer, State Treasurer, Franklin, Ind.

MRS. LUELLA F. McWHIRTER, Editor,

FEBRUARY, 1904.

Mrs. Vayhinger says: "In a letter from Mr. Ingalls, the General Freight Agent of the Big Four railroad, in reply to one asking free transportation for our Hadley School donations, he says that if, when we have goods to move, I will write to the agent at Indianapolis, they can help us. So, when you have such goods to go over the Big Four, if you will drop me a card in time I will write to the agent. I trust every Union is planning something good for the Hadley School."

FRANCHISE.

I have a fine proposition to make to franchise superintendents and to friends of the franchise department. By securing a club of twenty-five names to subscribe for the Woman's Journal, a weekly paper published in the interests of women, educational, industrial, legal and political, especially her right to the elective franchise, the regular price of $2.50 will be reduced to $1.50. No live superintendent should be without this invaluable companion. It is full of helpful suggestions in writing papers and fine articles for meetings. Sample copies may be secured by sending five cents to my address. A club of twenty-five secured will enable your State Superintendent to put out the regular franchise issue of the MESSAGE in August and further carry on the work. A mutual benefit affair, you see. And remember we want this year to exceed any yet.

Superintendents, I will soon send you materials and instructions for the year's work and let me hear some good reports. I wish every superintendent would send me her name and the name of the county and local unions she represents.

I wish to urge the discussion of the subject at local meetings—one meeting of each quarter, if possible, being devoted to the subject. Prepare for the canvass soon to be renewed. Here are some more suggested topics for these meetings. Clip them out or mark for future reference:

1. Does Intelligence Count?
2. Civic Responsibilities of Women.
3. Characteristics of the Modern Woman.
4. The Making of Citizens
5. Economic Independence of Women.
6. Our Foremothers.
7. Is Woman the Weaker Vessel?
8. Privileges and Opportunities of Women.
9. Stand Up and be Counted.
10. A New Liberty Bell.
11. Lucy Stone.
12. We, the Women.

MISS PEARL RALL, L. L. B.
State Superintendent.

FLOWER MISSION.

The new year has dawned roseate with the hope for greater effort in our department. Let each of us feel our responsibility and make the Flower Mission work a splendid success. How shall we do this? Only by a systematic plan and untiring interest in carrying out our plans.

Let each County Superintendent, as soon as possible, send to me her name and address, with a list of the names and addresses of the local Superintendents in her county. And right here I wish to ask that "Mrs." or "Miss" be written with each name to prevent awkward mistakes. Then, if each County Superintendent will send a postal to Miss Lella N. Sewall, 330 Mass. Ave., Boston, Mass., our National Superintendent, and ask for samples of the Flower Mission literature I am sure she can better accomplish what she undertakes, for, by having sample leaflets, she will know what she wishes to order and how to advise her local Superintendents in regard to any kind of literature they may desire.

The local Superintendents are those on whom we most depend for the success of the coming year. Each of you will, no doubt, have many original plans and pride yourself on the amount of work you may accomplish in this delightful department.

First and most important, do not forget to keep an account of each bouquet, text card, leaflet or pamphlet distributed, how many visits to the sick, etc. At each meeting of your Union urge all who helped in any of these ways to report to you, so an account may be kept.

Then, a good way to interest your individual Union members and to also broaden your effort is to appoint each week two women to gather flowers, jelly, clothes and literature, either from their own homes or from neighbors and friends and bring to you on a certain day. Then, after making bouquets and fastening text cards to each, you may distribute these where they may do the most good. The next week two more women may help, and in this way each may help you. Of course, you should have a list to which always to add names of those who are sick or poor or in trouble who may be suggested to you. You should also see the superintendent or keeper of any institution which may be visited with bouquets or leaflets and get permission to visit it. Each week something should be done, and it is a good plan to have a certain day and time for each distribution, so that all who are sympathetic may send supplies to you for this work.

Here follows a list of Flower Mission supplies:

1. Text cards.....10c per 100, 90c per 1,000
2. Comfort powders.....25c per box
3. Plan of Work.....60c per 100
4. Flower Mission responsive reading...50c per 100
5. Development of the Flower Mission...50c per 100
6. Lives Laid Down.....35c per 100
7. Frances Willard and the Lamplighter...25c per 100
8. Program for Flower Mission meeting...25c per 100
9. Program for Flower Mission day service,20c per 100
10. Program for L. T. L. Flower Mission entertainment.....85c per 100
11. Report blanks.....45c per 100
12. Suggestions to Flower Mission workers,30c per 100

This literature may be ordered from the National Superintendent, whose address is given above.

Each local Superintendent should order for her own use at once copies of Nos. 3, 4, 8 and 12 in the foregoing list, also as many text cards as possible. Plan for raising funds, and also plan for a big Flower Mission meeting early in the spring.

Write me of any plans that may be helpful to others, as well as your own Union, and in any way I shall be always glad to assist you.

LUELLA S. McWHIRTER.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Three months of this year are now gone and if any of us have been digesting what we heard at the last State Convention during this time, it is now time to go to working out some of these plans we have been studying over.

Our Secretaries have moved out of the State. I have not heard from either of them yet, but hope to in a short time. Under these conditions it will be necessary for me to try to keep in touch with the Senior Legions of the State in the place of Miss Cowdrey, our Corresponding Secretary. It will therefore be a great help to me if the Secretaries of all the Senior Legions will just write and let me know what they are doing.

I wish that we might begin right away to keep the Senior reports entirely separate from the Junior, so that we can have them given at the State Convention. I am satisfied that a great deal of work is being done that is never reported. Shall we not be very careful about this during this year? We had hoped to have new report blanks this year, but unless we find sufficient funds with which to print them ourselves, we will have to forego what seems to be almost a necessity.

And speaking of the money brings to my mind the fact that our State has provided no way by which our State Secretary can have her expenses paid to the National Convention. The ideas and suggestions given at a National, together with the inspiration that comes from meeting with the State Secretaries of the L. T. L. work from such States as Pennsylvania, New York and others, who are leading in L. T. L. work, is helpful beyond realization, not only to our Secretary, but also to the State. Indiana has always been a little slow and behind with dues and finances generally and I am going to ask this year that each Senior Legion, and as many Junior Legions as will (for our State Secretary is as helpful to the Juniors as to the Seniors), give one collection a month to a fund, which shall be held for the sole purpose of sending our State L. T. L. Secretary to the National W. C. T. U. Convention. This may seem like a large demand to you at first, but honestly, dear fellow-workers, we do not ask largely enough in this great work. Do you urge the children to bring money to the legion for your weekly collection? Indeed, do all of you take weekly collections? We ought to do this. I am not asking this for myself, I am asking it for Indiana and for the Indiana Loyal Temperance Legion. With many of you, this would mean only about $1.00 a year, and can't we all do this for the sake of the work in Indiana?

I desire also to call your attention to the fact that Indiana is going to take some forward steps this year. The most important "breaking away" from old things will be a separate State L. T. L. Convention. For a long time it has seemed to be a most desirable thing to hold our L. T. L. Convention in the summer when we are all out of school, and while the matter has not been definitely settled, we are looking forward to a June L. T. L. State Convention for 1904. Do you want to be represented in this convention with a vote? If so, graduate a large class of seniors and bring them to the convention. You will hear more of this summer convention, however, later on. We may not be able to carry through our plans this year, though we are trusting that a way will open up for it.

And now, dear sisters, those of you who read this, won't you help the L. T. L. work this year? Give it your support and try to have a large graduating class for the 1904 convention.

EDITH HILLIS,
State President.

MEDAL CONTESTS.

I do not often ask for space in your State paper, but I want to express to you my delight at the work being accomplished under the Superintendent of this department, Mrs. Cora M. Steele. When dear Mrs. Balch gave up the work I said it will be almost impossible for any one to follow her and keep the work up to the present momentum. At the close of the first year we were pleased to find that nearly as many contests had been held and that many of the high grade medals had been awarded. This is unusual. I cannot find in any State, when a change has been made in superintendents, a better report than was given by Indiana last year. Indiana women have always worked in cooperation with the State Superintendent in this department. The State officials are specially interested and will do all they can to advance the interest of this work. The last two months you have done exceptionally well, and if the work increases, as it always does as Spring advances and the Institutes are being held, you will, without doubt, reach the number you determined on at the National Convention—650 contests during the year. Let me mention right here that the contest work has been helped very perceptibly by the National Superintendent of Institutes, Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall. She not only encourages, but urges the holding of contests at Institutes.

Contests at Institutes are fast becoming a prominent feature. We hear that two diamond contests are in preparation in your State. Endeavor to give all contestants an opportunity to win high grade medals. You who attended the National Convention and heard Mrs. Coggeshall render that masterful oration by J. G. Woolley with force and eloquence felt justly proud of her; we all did. Indiana wants hundreds of such speakers and can have them if all will do their best.

Your L. T. L. State Superintendent, Miss Susie McWhirter, will endeavor to interest every L. T. L. in the State. With all these forces at work, Indiana will make a record that may exceed her present expectations.

MRS. ADELIA E. CARMAN,
National Supt. of Medal Contests.

"The fact that individuals have lived from thirty to sixty days on water alone shows that those who live a shorter time on brandy and water lived in spite of the alcohol instead of by the aid of it"—Kellogg.

"The readers of the Herald will notice that we carry no whisky advertisements. The other day we refused to advertise a patent medicine because the preparation bore an unsavory reputation as to its stimulating properties. A newspaper wields a great influence and that influence ought to be entirely for good, and wholly moral. A great deal of whisky is sold by the aid of advertisements in the newspapers, and it is just as bad to aid in selling whisky from an editor's chair as it is to stand behind the bar and pass it over at ten cents a glass."—The Raleigh Herald.

"All over the civilized world earnest, scientific men, and among them some of the acutest intellects of our time, are patiently and painfully laboring to fight disease, and the results of their labors are freely published and given to the world at large. Only thus can any real therapeutic advance be made. Is it reasonable to suppose that a small number of isolated non-medical men, ignorant of the mere rudiments of the medical sciences, working independently and in secrecy, are capable of discovering remedies more potent to cure disease than this army of choice and educated intellects, working jointly and in the light of day, and seeking their reward, not in great financial advancement, but in the knowledge of good work done? To allow, now, in the twentieth century, this indiscriminate trading in secret remedies is to push the idea of individual liberty to lengths which can only be characterized as absurd and at the same time to permit a wanton injury to be inflicted on the health of the community. I look forward to the day when the advertising, not only of secret remedies, but of remedies of any kind, in the lay papers shall be prohibited."—Harry Campbell, M. D., F. R. C. P., President of the English Society for the Study of Inebriety, of London, England.

Speaking of intemperance among women and that much of it comes through the use of alcohol in medicine, Sir Thomas Barlow, physician to the King of England, is reported to have said: "The only remedy for the evil is total abstinence; half and half measures are useless; we must banish alcohol entirely." The most pitiful dipsomaniac I have ever known is a woman, and she acquired the appetite by first taking alcohol as a medicine. Quite recently my attention was called to an inebriate who had occupied a good position in life and who had never tasted alcohol until he took it in the form of one of the many patent medicines which to-day flood our market, crowd our newspaper advertising and harm more than help humanity. The amount of alcohol that many patent medicines contain varies from five per cent. to eleven per cent. This fact alone should be sufficient to lead all total abstainers to decide that they cannot use patent medicines themselves nor advertise their use for others.—Editor Union Signal.

W. C. T. U. INSTITUTE PROGRAM FOR 1904.

FIRST DAY.

MORNING.

10.00. County officers and workers in council. Brief reports of the work to date. Discussion of plans to be pushed to the close of the year. By order of the W. C. T. U. Executive.

AFTERNOON.

2.00. Opening devotional exercises conducted by a local officer.
 2.30. Organization of the Institute by the Leader. Music.
 3.00. Literature Helps; How to Procure and How to Use Them—By Superintendent of Literature. Discussion. Opening of subscription lists to Union Signal, American Motherhood, Crusader Monthly, School Physiology Journal, etc. Music.
 3.40. Introduction of fraternal delegates and visitors.
 3.55. Announcements. Music. Adjournment.

EVENING.

7.30. Song. Devotion. Music.
 7.45. Address or lecture by Institute Leader. Collection. Invitation to membership. Music. Benediction.
 If the services are on time and not too long, close with a social half hour, in which a crusade for membership may be made by a special committee.

SECOND DAY.

MORNING.

9.00. Devotional exercises. Music.
 9.15. Present and Future of Loyal Legioners. Discussion. Department Question Box and Round Table, where departments may be presented briefly by the different Superintendents and followed by questions and a general discussion as follows: "How Can Our Cause be Advanced Through the Sunday-school?"
 9.35. Should each State have a law requiring the ingredients of patent medicines to be placed on the bottle? Music.
 10.20. Can a Christian consistently sell and use tobacco?
 10.35. Statutory and Constitutional Prohibition for Indiana, by the Superintendent of Christian Citizenship or Institute Leader. Discussion.
 11.05. Our Home Beautiful at Hadley—What is Our Constitutional Obligation to it? By local President.
 11.30. Evangelistic hour.
 12.00. Announcements. Adjourn for lunch.

AFTERNOON.

2.00. Music. Scripture reading (Isa. 1:9-20), by Evangelistic Superintendent or President. Prayer by an honorary member. Music.
 2.20. Open Conference, conducted by the Leader. Topic, "The Co-Operation of Temperance Forces." Foundation texts—Ec. 7:25, 1st Cor. 1:10, Psa. 55:14. Proverb—"Where no counsel is the people fall, but in the multitude of counsellors there is safety."
 In this council of the forces, which can make or unmake for righteousness, the church, the school, temperance organizations, the medical profession and the young people's societies should all be represented in talks of from ten to twelve minutes each, with a brief general discussion and summary by the Leader.
 3.30. Which Shall Live, Scientific Temperance Instruction in Our Schools or the Report of the Committee of Fifty? By the Superintendent of Scientific Instruction. General discussion. Announcements. Prayer.

Y. EVENING.

7.30. Devotional exercises by Y. honorary or minister.
 7.45. An original or a musical contest, or a special program prepared by the Y. Admission charged to help meet Institute expenses. Invitation for membership. Report of contest judges. Special music. Closing prayer.

SUBJECTS FOR EVENING MEETINGS.

1. A Mis-Spent Trust.
2. Some Young People I Know.
3. The American Goliath.
4. The Reason Why.
5. Are Christians Responsible for the Liquor Traffic?
6. What it Costs and Who Pays.
7. The Christian's Attitude Toward Sin.

Dear County President—With all good wishes for your success as assured by your prompt correspondence, and asking you to now correspond with your Section Leader in regard to Sunday services and other details of Institute work. MARY HADLEY HALL, Supt. National W. C. T. U. Institutes, 285 E. Jefferson St., Franklin, Ind.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Our National L. T. L. Secretary says: "It now becomes the duty of each State L. T. L. Secretary to do all in her power to have the recommendations carried out that were passed upon in our conferences at the National Convention at Cincinnati, as well as to make more effective than ever the plans which have proved successful in previous years."

As your State Secretary, I was very glad to have the privilege of attending these conferences. A plan of work will soon be completed and ready to send out. If you do not receive one, please send me a postal card and the return mail will bring it to you. Here are a few of the recommendations:

That each Legion contribute at least $2.00 to the Willard memorial fund.

That each Legion send money or hospital supplies to the L. T. L. room in the Frances E. Willard National Temperance Hospital and hold one hospital meeting during the year.

That the scope of our L. T. L. Red Letter day—September 28—be enlarged, and that it be hereafter designated as "L. T. L. Harvest Home and Crusader Monthly Day."

That we take up the Home Department work. (Modeled after the Home Department work of Sabbath-schools now so extensively adopted.)

That we collect dues from unpledged (as well as pledged) members, these dues to be retained in local treasury.

That we endeavor to organize Legions in public institutions composed of young people.

Support was pledged to the Crusader Monthly. I do hope Indiana may secure this subscription gift:

"A valuable library. Six sets of handsome volumes, selected from the L. T. L. Seal Reading Courses and comprising the subjects of Mercy, Bird Study, Golden Rule, Christian Citizenship, Danger Signal and Sociology, will be given to the State securing the greatest number of subscriptions to the Crusader Monthly from January 1, 1904, to October 1, 1904. The winning State will be announced at the National W. C. T. U. Convention."

Help your State to secure this valuable premium. Price of paper, 25 cents. Good reports coming in every week.

Mrs. Martha L. Gipe organized a good Legion in Indianapolis since the State Convention.

Mrs. Lida Outland organized one at Upland with 119 members. Officers as follows: Mrs. Outland, Leader; Aura Outland, President; Jennie Jones, Secretary; Morris Outland, Treasurer; Cora Stout, Organist; Kemp Deeren, Chorister.

Mrs. Jennie Ward, L. T. L. Secretary of Dearborn County, organized a Legion at Guilford. Mrs. Mary Hammel, Leader; Mrs. Ella Kroft, Assistant Leader; Ruth Kroft, President; Gildie Shields, Vice-President; Lucy Ward, Secretary; Minette Ward, Treasurer. She writes: "Good prospects for more Legions in Dearborn County."

Mrs. W. A. Brown, of Bedford, writes: "We are making a strong effort to begin, and on Saturday, January 16, we expect to organize, with a large crowd of children, both a Junior and Senior division."

And Oh, so many letters of inquiry asking for necessary supplies for organization have been received that this, so far, has been a Happy New Year in L. T. L. work. IDA M. MIX.

Alcohol is a poison. No substitute is necessary for it more than for cigarettes or arsenic. The most general stimulants where alcoholic prescriptions are used as a supposed stimulant is a few drops of aqua ammonia well diluted with water or red or black pepper tea. As a home remedy, ginger tea is excellent, where alcoholic preparations are often used; also a right use of a splendid substitute where alcohol, narcotics and tonics have been misused in the past. Only remember that hot water is soothing and is a sedative, and that cold water is a stimulant and a lasting tonic. The use of alcohol in all its forms is largely displaced by God's purifying liquid—pure water. Each disease, each stage of a disease, requires different care and different remedies. So we cannot wisely say any remedy is a substitute for alcohol in a certain disease.

HOMER J. HALL, M. D., Franklin, Ind.

The chief purposes for which alcohol or alcoholic liquors are recommended by writers and practitioners of medicine at the present time are to relieve pain, promote rest or sleep, and prevent failure of the heart and circulation of the blood in acute inflammatory and febrile diseases. It is true that by its anæsthetic or anodyne properties, when given in liberal doses, it relieves pain and promotes rest. It does so, not by removing the causes of pain or restlessness, but by so diminishing the sensibility of the brain and nerves as to render the patient unconscious of their existence, while the causes remain ready to renew their irritating effects as soon as the alcohol has ceased to act. Its relief is therefore not curative, but temporary and is more than counterbalanced by retarding the excretory action of the kidneys, liver and other eliminating structures of the body. Indeed, the only useful indication that the internal use of alcohol is capable of fulfilling is to temporarily quiet restlessness and relieve pain as an anæsthetic. But for that purpose we have so many other more active and efficient anæsthetic and anodyne remedies that there is no necessity for using alcohol or any kind of alcoholic liquor in the treatment of any form of disease.

PATENT AND COPYRIGHTED OR TRADE MARK MEDICINES FOR POPULAR USE—THE AMOUNT OF ALCOHOL THEY CONTAIN AND THE EVIL EFFECTS PRODUCED THEREBY.

Comparatively few persons outside of the medical profession and the wholesale drug manufacturers have any adequate knowledge concerning the enormous quantity of patented and trade mark medicines consumed by the people of this and other countries without the advice of a physician and without any reliable knowledge of their composition or effects on the living human body, either in health or under the influence of disease. They are purchased and taken more or less by all classes of people, and for every variety of disease, simply on the recommendation of the newspaper or hand-bill advertisements paid for by those who manufacture the drugs. It is no part of my present purpose to discuss either the quantity or quality of the patent and trade mark medicines prepared and advertised for popular use only so far as they contain alcohol in their composition. Careful and reliable chemical analysis has shown that nearly all the class of drugs under consideration contain a sufficient quantity of alcohol or some other narcotic drug to constitute the most active and important ingredient in the medicine. Those sold in liquid form nearly all contain alcohol, and those in the form of pills, powders or tablets generally contain either morphine, codeine, cocaine, caffeine, chloral, antipyrin, or some other coal tar preparation sufficient to cause a temporary soothing and exhilarating influence on the nervous system by which those taking them are made to think they are doing good. As fair examples of the liquid class of popular drugs the following list is given, with the percentage of alcohol each contains as determined by direct chemical analysis:

Green's Nervura, 17.2 per cent of alcohol; Hood's Sarsaparilla, 18.8; Schenck's Seaweed Tonic, 19.5; Brown's Iron Bitters, 19.7; Kaufman's Sulphur Bitters, 20.5; Paine's Celery Compound, 21.0; Burdock Blood Bitters, 25.2; Ayer's Sarsaparilla, 26.2; Warner's Safe Tonic Bitters, 37.7; Parker's Tonic, 41.6; Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, 44.3; Peruna, 21.5.

The last named in the list has only recently been put on the market as a tonic, and has been sold to many total abstainers as a non-alcoholic remedy, while it actually contains as much alcohol as the strongest wine. Many more specimens might be added to the list did our time permit, but the foregoing are sufficient, as it shows that such well known and extensively patronized drugs as Hostetter's Bitters, Warner's Safe Tonic, Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Paine's Celery Compound contain nearly as much alcohol as can be found in the average whisky and brandy of the ordinary saloons.

It is equally true that nearly all the liquid food preparations, such as Hoff's Malt, Malt Marrow, Beef Extract, etc., contain from two to ten per cent of alcohol, causing them to average quite as much as the beer direct from the brewery.

The manufacturers of all such foods and medicines add alcohol to them for two purposes. One is to prevent the materials from spoiling by fermentation and the other is to impart to them at least sufficient anesthetic or anodyne influence to cause the party taking them to feel quieted and somewhat exhilarated for one or two hours. This very brief period of ease or buoyancy is the same as that which follows a small drink of beer, wine or whisky, and though it continues only one or two hours, it is sufficient to create the impression that it is doing them good, and therefore they continue its use, and even increase the doses until they find their digestive organs and nervous system in such a condition that they can neither eat nor sleep without the aid of some preparation containing an anesthetic or opiate. For it is one of the immutable laws of nature that the internal use of such anesthetics and narcotics as alcohol, ether, cocaine, opiates and tobacco is followed by such sensations as call for both a repetition and increase of the dose, and they do this just as certainly when taken under the guise of patented or trade marked medicines or foods as when taken separately and without disguise.

It is well known that alcohol, when taken into the stomach either as a drink or a medicine, never undergoes digestion, but quickly passes into the blood, and with the blood into every tissue and organ of the body. It directly diminishes the sensibility of the brain and all nerve structures in proportion to the quantity taken. If the dose is small, the person taking it soon becomes less conscious of weariness, pain or depression, which generally continues about two hours and is followed by the same restless, tired and nervous condition that existed before, until another dose is taken. If the doses are repeated three or four times a day, the digestion of food is impaired and the constant presence of alcohol in the blood retards the natural molecular or metabolic changes constituting nutrition and secretion and impairs the protoplasm of which all living structures are made, and thereby renders the individual more liable to attacks of neuralgia, rheumatism, influenza, tuberculosis, pneumonia, infectious fevers and all mental disorders. Consequently let all who desire good health and a fair length of life avoid all so-called patent medicines, cordials, bitters, tonics, etc., as certainly as they avoid the daily use of beer, wine or whisky.

DONT'S.

Don't fail to read the report of the State Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication in State Minutes, and note if your Union reported work done.

Don't fail to read the report of the National Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication in National Minutes.

Don't fail to note what other States have done that we have not.

Don't fail to make up your mind that what other States can do Indiana can do also.

Don't fail to carry out State and National plan of work.

Don't fail to remember that it takes but about five minutes to fill out your report blank and only two cents postage to send same to your County or State Superintendent.

And please don't fail to send it.

If a meeting has been held on this department don't fail to send a report of it to the editor of the MESSAGE and to the Phalanx by first mail.

WHY SO MANY PREPARATIONS ARE SHORT LIVED.

It is one of the recognized requirements in the patent medicine field that a preparation to be put on the market must have the power to give an "immediate effect"—that is to say, that it must apparently give immediate relief. It is also well known in the patent medicine field that this "immediate" effect is obtained only by the use of poisonous drugs and alcohol, and that is why these poisons and weakening stimulants, dangerous to life and health, are so recklessly used in such preparations. The fact that they have only a temporary effect, leaving the patient weaker than before, explains why so many patent medicines are short-lived. Of the hundreds put on the market every year, it is almost impossible to name a single permanently successful one.—Selected.

Send to these young women for supplies, leaflets, pictures, badges and other W. C. T. U. supplies. All orders will receive prompt attention.

To the Hadley Industrial School Mrs. R. C. Travis, of Elkhart, has sent a big barrel of nice clothing and a large box of canned fruit. These things were contributed by our generous friends of the Elkhart Woman's Relief Corps, King's Daughters and the W. C. T. U. Such expressions of interest in and love for God's dear children will bear fruit in abundance to her sweet-spirited givers.

Tincture of opium, known as laudanum, is given in doses (under the direction of a physician) of from 10 to 20 drops. About 20 drops of laudanum are equal to one grain of opium or one-sixth grain of morphine, or one teaspoon contains 120 drops of laudanum, being equal to six grains of opium or one grain of morphine. Camphorated tincture of opium, known as paregoric, is given to adults in one to four teaspoonfuls, the latter amount being equal to one grain of opium or one-sixth grain of morphine.

A sample package of non-alcoholic leaflets has been sent to every Union in the State. Where new Superintendents have been appointed and reported to me, a special package has been sent to them. These leaflets contain valuable information and the public should have a chance to read them. Mrs. Allen, National Superintendent, has moved to 27 Broad st., Oneida, N. Y., so please take note and order from her at that point.

I never do, never have, and trust never will advise alcohol in any form as a tonic. The best tonic a patient can have in the spring, as I tell my patients, is the lungs full of fresh air. If the cost were $5.00 a bottle instead of being provided so bountifully by our own beneficent Father, every one would want a bottle or more in the spring, and those who could not afford to buy it would deplore it greatly. I have long ago come to the conclusion that alcohol is not a food, but only a depressant.

FIELD NOTES.

Greensburg Union held a special Mercy and Help Department meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Dr. Wright, which was most interesting. A barrel of clothing will be sent to the Hadley School. The Union will invite the Mid-Year Executive meeting to Greensburg.

Deer Creek Union, West Branch, had a rare treat. Mrs. Sarah E. Thomas, Grant County's official delegate to the National Convention (also a member of Deer Creek Union), came to us laden with the good tidings fresh from the altar, and they were characterized throughout with a steadfastness of purpose that means nothing short of victory. Miss Ina Coggeshall, of Marion, was also present, and gave the famous reading that she delivered in the grand gold medal contest in Cincinnati.

Lapel and Fishersburg had the privilege of having Rev. Aaron Worth with them on the 28th and 29th. Like the characters in Dickens' novels, the name is an index to the man. His lectures are full of good things done up in attractive style and delivered to the people with the genial wit of the Irishman. Though his lectures are unmistakably third party prohibition lectures, many of the most radical members of the other parties pressed forward to shake hands with good brother Worth at the close of the meetings.

Howard County Union held an all-day meeting at the W. C. T. U. headquarters at Kokomo. There were in attendance thirty-two of our faithful women to discuss the County and State plans of work for the coming year, and the interest manifested in that meeting is proof sufficient that Howard is going to launch out into the work this year as never before. The forenoon was taken up with the work of the County Executive, the afternoon being devoted to the County Board of Superintendents. The ground was all covered, one department at a time, which brought forth many interesting discussions. The noon hour was enjoyed partaking of lunch and social conversation. When we adjourned we felt in our hearts we had been granted one more day's work for Jesus and that if it was His will we would serve another day.

The Greensburg W. C. T. U. held a reception at the home of Mrs. Mary DeWeese, on N. Franklin street. The affair was in compliment to Miss Floy Gilmore, who is Assistant Attorney General in the Philippines, and who, in former years, had assisted the Union as declaimer in temperance medal contests. In her pleasing manner Miss Gilmore showed that the women of foreign countries are slower than their American sisters in adopting professions and employments where they enter into direct competition with men. Woman's influence over man not a little accounts for our strength as a nation. The W. C. T. U. is for better homes, noble manhood and womanhood, higher ideals, purer thoughts and all that makes the world better for our having lived for God, and home, and humanity.

Mrs. Ella M. Kroft, the efficient President of Dearborn County, has organized a Junior L. T. L. at Guilford; also a Senior class which will soon be ready to graduate at Columbus. The Lawrenceburg Union opened a mission school in a neglected quarter of the town on January 23. Mrs. Brand was with this Union Sunday, January 17, and Mrs. Vayhinger on Sunday, January 24. They are women who feel the importance of the work. The Bright Union held a contest recently, and is doing excellent work. The Cold Springs Union held another contest the last of January, the third one this year. When the son of the President of this Union, who is an honorary member, read the call for 650 contests this year, he said, "We will hold six of them." Aurora had Mrs. Brand January 16. Moore's Hill has a great deal of work on hands for the year.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 3.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., MARCH, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

PROHIBITION DAY, MARCH 20, NEAL DOW'S BIRTHDAY.

STATE CONVENTION, OCTOBER, COLUMBUS, IND.

NATIONAL CONVENTION, NOVEMBER, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Sir Benjamin W. Richardson, the eminent English physician and surgeon, said: "I am recording a matter of personal history when I say that I, for one, had once no thought of alcohol except as a food. I thought it gave additional strength. I thought it enabled us to endure mental and bodily fatigue. I thought it cheered the heart and lifted up the mind into greater activity. I learned, step by step, that the true action of alcohol is to create paralysis of nervous power."

Abraham Lincoln said: "The liquor traffic is a cancer in society, eating out its vitals and threatening destruction and all attempts to regulate it will aggravate the evil. There must be no attempts to regulate the cancer, it must be eradicated; not a root must be left behind, for until this is done, all classes must continue in danger of becoming victims of strong drink."

The Northern Pacific Railway has recently decreed that any employe detected in the act of taking a drink, whether on or off duty, will be subject to instant dismissal from the service.

The new rule books of nearly all the railways entering Chicago contain the following or words to the same effect: "The use of intoxicants by employes while on duty is prohibited. Their habitual use or the frequenting of places where they are sold is sufficient cause for dismissal."

The close of the year finds Prohibition North Dakota in splendid condition. All the counties of the State, with five exceptions, have a comfortable amount of assets over liabilities and those counties have reduced their debts largely in the past year. All the counties have also a neat cash balance in all funds and warrants of 26 out of 39 counties are payable in cash on demand from all funds. It really looks as though a State might be able to worry along for a few years without the aid of saloon revenue.

THE DIFFERENT SYSTEMS.

The Pittsburg Christian Advocate makes a comparison between the condition of affairs in Georgia under license and in Kansas under prohibition, citing as illustrations of public opinion and social conditions in these States, the fact that Atlanta, Ga., has nine hundred saloons and disreputable houses, over seventy-five per cent of the buildings used for these purposes being owned by church members, and the other fact that in Kansas the Grand Lodge of Freemasons has decided that hereafter no person who rents buildings for use in selling liquor, or who in any way aids the traffic, may either become a Mason or remain a Mason in that State.

ABSTAIN OR GO TO JAIL.

Judge Pollard, of the Second District Police Court, St. Louis, is not only a man who thinks, but a man who acts. He recently had a printed form of oath to be subscribed to by men who have been convicted of drunkenness in his court.

Say the defendant's name is John Jones, and he has been convicted of disturbing the peace of Mehitabel Jones, and the judge has fined him $50. The Court says: "Mr. Jones, I appreciate the fact that it would be a hardship on your family for you to pay this fine or go to the workhouse, yet I feel that you deserve to be punished. It appears clear to my mind that you have violated the law, because you were drunk. Your being drunk was a result of your fondness for intoxicating liquors. The proper punishment for you, therefore, is to enforce your abstinence for a certain period. Are you willing to quit drinking for a specified term on your own accord, or would you prefer to go to the workhouse and quit because you cannot get it?"

The prisoner naturally says that he had rather do without his glass and be free than be a prisoner and abstain. Then the judge produces a form and he signs it. The form is simply an oath that the signer will "touch not, take not," for a specified term.

UNCLE SAM ADMITS INCOMPETENCY.

While railroad and factory corporations and banking institutions can maintain sobriety on the part of their employes without running a saloon annex to their station houses and offices, Uncle Sam, with all his boasted military discipline, and all his carefulness in selecting men physically and mentally strong for his service, confesses his inability to keep them sober, unless he can open beer saloons in his forts and barracks, where his soldiers may obtain drink. Shame! —National Advocate.

Y. W. C. T. U.

Dear Girls—Before the MESSAGE reaches you your President will have received the Annual Year Book, compiled by Mrs. Clara Parrish Wright. Read it carefully, and especially the plan of work, which is fine. Some of the Unions take the 1904 Year Book for their evening's program for a local Union meeting.

I want to call your attention to the fact that Indiana's mark for contests this year is 650. Will you help in this work? Some intend, on Frances Willard's birthday or her home going, the 17th of February, to celebrate or observe it with a contest and make it a special time for securing members.

Not so many of our girls are paying dues this year, as many have other things in view, but plan your Y. W. C. T. U. dues along with other duties. We urge you to take pride in Indiana and see if each one of you cannot secure a new member. God is not going to bless us and give us new members if we do not work. He expects us to do our part.

Your Y. W. C. T. U. Secretary is ready now to visit and help your Union if you will send for her.

Word was sent to each Union December 1 to know what you would think of a mid-summer Y. W. C. T. U. conference, and so far Willard Y., of Terre Haute, and Anderson Y. think it would be very helpful. The Palmer Y., of Indianapolis, was asked to take the conference, but unless you let me know, dear girls, there will be nothing for them to take. When I ask you if you will co operate in my plans and do not hear, you see how hard it is for me and the heart aches it causes.

CLARA M. SEARS.

Although the fight against the demoralizing and ruinous effects of the use of alcohol as a medicine has been fierce and bitter, still it has maintained a strong hold upon the public and even the professional world. However, investigation has been prosecuted of late and many of the best thinkers and reasoners of the profession are seeing and appreciating the folly of employing an article which does not possess a single physiological property to establish its claims as a curative agent. While medical men do not appreciate the fact generally, I am convinced that the tyrant, public opinion and popular demand, has more to do with its employment than professional faith in its medicinal efficacy. It is agreeable to the average taker, and nothing pleases him more than a prescription of some alcoholic compound. Its effects are exhilarating and anaesthetic, producing a temporary sense of comfort and relief. Popular unprofessional opinion has declared it a great strengthener and builder and the physician who discredits its virtues and uses some really valuable agent in its stead, is in danger of abuse and loss of business. Others fall into the fashionable rut and use it because it seems a matter of course. I would urge members of the profession not to be so influenced, but think and reason and only employ it after careful consideration.

"In 1873 the first experiment was made with the Temperance Hospital, of London, and under the forced exclusion of alcohol the mortality rate was reduced to 6 per cent, much lower than any other hospital in London."

"The Frances Willard Hospital of Chicago and the Battle Creek Sanitarium, with many others, have demonstrated the same facts in this country. The Kane Summit Hospital has treated all manner of diseases and injuries with a far less death rate than surrounding hospitals. The surgeon in charge says: 'During the past three years I have performed more than 1,000 operations, a large portion upon cases of railroad injuries, one hundred for appendicitis and in none of these was alcohol administered in any form either before, during or after operation. I defy anyone who still adheres to the administration of alcohol, to show as good results; equally as gratifying results have been obtained with my medical cases, and I fail to understand how any observing and thinking physician can cling to so prejudicial a drug as alcohol when he has within his reach a multitude of valuable, exact and reliable methods for combating, governing and controlling disease.'" —Dr. J. S. Kane, Dean of the Faculty, Medical Department, University of the South.

IN CONGRESS.

The Hepburn-Dolliver interstate liquor act is to protect the people now enjoying freedom from the saloon, in prohibition territory, from having liquor shipped in by express companies, or otherwise, in original packages with the consent of the federal government.

The judiciary committee of the House of Representatives gave a hearing to those interested in the bill—one hour for its friends and its foes to present their claims. Rev. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, Legislative Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was the first speaker, followed by Rev. James Cannon, Jr., editor of the Christian Advocate, of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis. Without any factitious attempt to stir emotion, Mrs. Ellis stirred every heart. She said:

"I represent the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, an organization of 300,000 Christian women of the United States, organized in every state and territory. Word has come to us from our members in all parts of the country in favor of this bill. From Kentucky, with 117 counties, covering two-thirds of the territory of the State under prohibition; from Texas, with 150 counties, equal to two-thirds of the State, under prohibition; from North Carolina, from Mississippi, from Tennessee and other states where the man who has deposited his ballot for the protection of his home, finds that despite his wish, certain persons from other states still carry on this nefarious traffic under the protection of interstate commerce laws."

Mrs. Ellis related how, while recently detained at the railroad station at Emporia, Va., she saw wagonload after wagonload of jugs of liquor brought from a neighboring saloon to be loaded on the train to be sent to prohibition towns in North Carolina. She was informed that a distiller in Emporia, but a short distance from the state line, was carrying on a regular business in North Carolina and was sending over about two wagon loads daily on an average and had sent 600 jugs the day before Christmas.

"It is against such infractions of protective laws," she said, "that we plead, and who has a better right to plead than the mothers of the nation for the protection of their sons—the women of the nation for the protection of their homes?"

The liquor representatives had no argument but 1,500,000 votes and wanted delay in action of committee—they got what they wanted. Another hearing will be given by the committee on March 3. This may mean defeat, because after that time there will be but little time for the passage of the bill by both houses of congress before the adjournment.

BIRTHDAY OF OUR NATIONAL PRESIDENT, MRS. LILLIAN M. N. STEVENS.

"Hail to our chief!" How many times over and how many miles over shall we hear these words caught up by one White Ribboner after another with the advent of March? "Hail to our Chief!" Lillian M. N. Stevens was our chief torch bearer then, when we walked through sorrow's lonely crypt; she is our chief leader now, and for the sake of that sacred then and this glorious now, we bid God bless her on this natal day. How we have gloried in the noble heights already attained by this life of high ideals and high achievements. How we rejoice in the added beauty and dignity of an added year. It will hardly be disputed that a shower of Union Signal subscriptions in honor of her birthday will be welcomed more heartily by our blessed chief than the most generous shower of "Hails!" Again we say, God bless her, and, with tiny Tim, we add, "God bless us every one."

EVA KILBRETH FOSTER.

The National Liquor Dealers' Association is establishing headquarters in Washington City. One of the ablest men of our land is employed with ten picked men to remain on the ground during sessions of our National Congress and to prevent, if possible, adverse legislation. Likewise ten picked men are to be selected to carry on the same work in each of the State legislatures.

In order to carry out these plans it is proposed to raise $5,000,000. The assessment for the saloon keepers of New York City is $750,000. Think of these vast sums of money to corrupt legislators and to oppose the will of the people! Surely the day approaches when a tremendous conflict will be upon us. Temperance people everywhere must organize. The W. C. T. U. should double her numbers; Prohibition alliances must increase everywhere. Young people should be educated to the impending necessity of united effort to overthrow the arch enemy of the race in this, to our mind, its last and most fearful struggle.

NOTICE.

Owing to poor health and multiplied cares, I was compelled to resign the office of County President and beg leave to inform the readers of the MESSAGE that Mrs. Stahl has been elected to that office.

E. A. WILLIS.

God never compromises with any wicked thing. His laws against evil are all prohibitory. Satan is the author of compromise. When men permit liquor selling for a money consideration—a license—they can not expect favor from God for themselves or their children. Every voter is responsible for the use he makes of his ballot. The license system means destruction to our homes, our churches and our country.

NEED OF INCREASED MEMBERSHIP.

At the National Convention Mrs. Rosa Blanchard, of Los Angeles, Cal., was introduced as the President of the largest Union in the world. It has 631 members. The W. C. T. U. membership of that county is 1,700. She said the gains were made largely by one woman, who, with literature and by personal solicitation, added constantly to their membership.

Now, when the liquor forces are organizing so strongly, is the time to seek members for the W. C. T. U. Get honorary members, too. We need them by the hundreds, yea, thousands, in Indiana. Send to our Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, 1403 Ashland avenue, Indianapolis, for membership pledge cards. Get at least a hundred of them, and give them to members who are earnest workers and all together let us work in our State for increased membership. Every Christian man and woman should belong to some temperance organization, and most of them will do so if tactfully approached. Plead with them to come in and help us. We need the influence of their names and their dollars. If they can do no more than this urge them to help this much. Make the pastors and their wives honorary members by vote of the Union and send a committee to tell them of the pleasure it has been to thus extend a courtesy to them.

Every Union in Indiana must add new members. Some Unions could add five hundred members if they only set their minds to it. During March each Union should consider this very seriously and pass a resolution in regard to what it will endeavor to do in securing new members.

CONTESTS.

I trust you are all busy organizing classes, and that soon I may have a rush of orders for medals. Everything seems to be quiet at present, but knowing that "still waters run deep," I am hoping for better things in the near future. I want to tell you that I am informed that we (Indiana) are in the lead for the first quarter, and we want to keep up this record the remainder of the year, do we not? There is but one way to do this, and that is by untiring effort. Now see who will be first in ordering necessary supplies and start in to help win the banner. Let us pray for one another and help toward 650 contests in 1904.

MRS. CORA STEELE,
Muncie, Ind.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

Elkhart Union held a very pleasant and helpful public meeting for the promotion of Sabbath observance at the hospitable home of Mrs. R. C. Travis. Mrs. Work, the President, presided, and Mrs. Atkins had charge of the devotional service, after which Mrs. Troxel read an excellent and well prepared article on "The Sabbath in Social Life." The gist of her paper was that the atmosphere of society is so saturated with the lax observance of the Sabbath that one needs bracing with the strong tonic of honest convictions. Society is not so much heartless as it is thoughtless. The whirl is incessant, and to break from one's social set and stand for principle calls for the decisive courage which gives birth to the martyrs and the patriot.

Miss Karnell spoke very interestingly of the Sunday newspapers from a biblical standpoint. She said instead of the Sabbath being a holy day of rest, it is a day of gaiety, entertainments and excursions.

"Sacred Days" was the subject dealt with most ably by Mrs. R. C. Travis. The holy day of the Greeks is Monday; Persians, Tuesday; Assyrians, Wednesday; Egyptians, Thursday; Turks, Friday; Jews and Adventists, Saturday and Sunday is the Lord's Day. There is more laxity in the observance of the Sabbath than any other holy day. It is said that if this laxity continues in a few years there will be no Sabbath observance. As long as the Sabbath is kept holy there can be no hope of destroying the Christian religion. Joseph Cook observed that the most eminent menace to self-government in this country is the open saloon coupled with Sabbath desecration. After the study refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Travis is the County Superintendent of Elkhart County and through her untiring efforts Elkhart had the best report of any county in the State last year.

Dear Superintendents, it is not too early to begin planning for our Lord's Day week in April. Our lecturer, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, still has a few dates open in April. If you want to secure her services, write her at once before all dates are taken.

Let us unitedly work for the Lord's Day Congress to be held at St. Louis in connection with the Fair. Will send programs to superintendents as soon as they are printed. The Lord's Day leaflets are now ready for distribution, price ten cents per 100.

To the five County Superintendents sending in the best report of work done in the quarter ending March 15, I will give a year's subscription to the American Sunday, a small monthly magazine devoted to Sunday reform. The names of the successful ones will be announced in the MESSAGE.

KATIE WERT HOLLER,
State Superintendent.

THE PRESS.

I have been greatly encouraged and pleased by the many inquiries that have come to me during the past two months about the press work. I am so glad that the press work is being taken up so generally by able women and I shall of course expect full reports of much work done.

In a letter our National Press Superintendent, Mrs. M. B. Horning, of Evanston, Ill., says some things which I want to pass on to you:

"This will be a hard year for us, as a campaign year always is, but let us rush in our work early, before things get to boiling too hard in the presidential kettle. I again want to recommend the scrapbook plan. These books can be made very decorative and pretty. I would like the best in each State sent to me at the National Convention. The Silver Star was won by Kansas. It is longing to go east after so long a sojourn in the west. Will the east capture it?"

Now, I am hoping that after our State convention Indiana may send some splendid scrapbooks to the National Superintendent that will win the Silver Star for Indiana. Let us work to that end.

Plan for a press meeting at an early date and hold more than one if you can. The following subjects may be helpful in arranging a program:

"The Power of the Press." "The Duty of the Religious Press towards Temperance and Missions." "The Influence of the Religious Press to Unify the Church for the Annihilation of the Liquor Traffic."

Make friends with the editors and help them by giving them our news—good W. C. T. U. news and reports will be sought for and gladly received.

I wish that the Superintendents, both County and Local, who have not heard from me yet this year, would send me your name that I may send you leaflets which will be helpful to you in your work. They are yours for the asking, so send a card at once.

Not many reports came in for the last quarter, but I am expecting more the next and those of you who will report but once or twice during the year, will greatly oblige me by letting me know how many report blanks you will need for your county.

Upon the local workers depends our success very largely and of them we beg faithfulness, persistence and reports.

There are great possibilities in our work. We can "cast much bread upon the waters" which will sometime return to us freighted with victories of which we do not think or dream.

Let us make this the best year in the history of the W. C. T. U. for Indiana. Will you help?

MISS LAURA GENEVA CAMMACK,
State Superintendent.

LAW AND STATISTICS.

Because of the serious illness of my mother ever since the State convention I have been unable to send you greetings via the MESSAGE. I am anxious to bring to your thought this department, the business of which is to gather statistics of violations of law in your own neighborhood and make them known to the people affected by them. It is because the law breaking and the artifices resorted to by the saloon element are not generally known that there is so much indifference. If parents and the better class of people could be made to know and consider what is going on the careless indifference would be at an end. Let us make this a year of gathering these facts and giving them to your own public. Please write me freely. Give advice; suggest plans. Being new in the State Superintendents' ranks I shall doubtless make many mistakes. Bear with me. I'll serve you gladly the best I know, and every letter will be answered promptly to the best of my ability.

JENNIE W. STEPHENSON,
State Superintendent.

JAIL AND PRISON WORK.

When we think of so many that are within our jails and prisons and so few that are willing to carry the gospel to them, it seems to me we ought to do more ardent work and try to get others interested. In the past year alone there has been a total of over 2000 prisoners in the work-house of our own city—Indianapolis. At least two-thirds of these were prisoners on account of strong drink.

Drunkenness in Indiana was greater in 1903 than in 1902, according to the reports of the sheriffs of the different counties. The total number of "drunks" harbored in the jails in 1903, was 12,394 and in 1902, 11,866. Of the total number admitted in 1903, 11,304 were whites and 590 colored. There were 32 boys and 7 girls under the age of 16 years; 9,564 men and 501 women from 16 to 50 years; 1,891 men and 16 women were over 50 years old. Of the remaining 383 the age is unknown. From one sheriff comes the report that one man admitted on account of drunkenness was 104 years old.

My dear sisters, you see by these statistics that if we are our brother's keeper we have a great opportunity of doing much good in the name of the Master. I pray that you will all buckle on the whole armour and be filled with the Holy Spirit, that we may be real soul winners for Christ.

Dear Superintendents, I will send blanks March and September, to all counties reported to me in the past year. If those who did not report will send me the name of a county or local worker I will gladly furnish them with blanks. So be sure to do all we can for the Master.

I desire a report of all the work done, so that I may report it at the State Convention.

MRS. ELLEN DAVIS,
State Superintendent.

TO COUNTY PRESIDENTS.

The 1904 W. C. T. U. Institute program is out in the form of an eight page booklet bearing some very interesting advertisements of our literature. The counties generally fill this program with the names of those who are to take part and publish it in one or more issues of local and county papers, and then use the program of subjects only furnished by the State for distribution at the Institute. Another good way is to republish the program entirely with the names of those on duly printed in. The first plan, however, has proven quite satisfactory, and especially so from the standpoint of a saving of funds to the county treasury. All County Presidents have been furnished with a copy of the program, and all who desire a number of copies for distribution at the spring Institutes requested to send a card so stating at once to the State Superintendent, addressed as below, and the programs will be forwarded, postpaid. In writing please state also whether sample copies of our periodicals, such as the Union Signal, American Motherhood, etc., can be used to advantage in the Institute. If they can, some of these will also be sent to you free of cost. Write carefully the address to which you wish them and the programs sent. If the matter of the address is not fully settled, send a card at once expressing your wishes and send the address later, as soon as known.

Superintendents throughout the State are invited to correspond with County Presidents and arrange to furnish sample packages of their literature for distribution at Institutes. This is an excellent way to push department work. With all good wishes for the work and workers I await your reply.

MARY HADLEY HALL,
285 East Jefferson St., Franklin, Ind.

FLOWER MISSION.

In the last issue of the MESSAGE under this subject, is given information concerning the literature of this department and where to secure it. I hope that each superintendent will send for sample copies as suggested. It was also asked that each county superintendent send to me her name and address. As yet there are several counties whose superintendents are unknown to me. So if some one in the following counties will send me the name and address of her County Superintendent of Flower Mission I shall greatly appreciate the favor: Allen, Carroll, Cass, Clay, Floyd, Franklin, Hamilton, Marshall, Whitney. Or if there are no County Superintendents, I desire the names of the local superintendents. And while I am communicating with you, let me suggest a plan which came to me through Mrs. Brand: That we distribute flower-seeds among the poor early this spring, so that they may cover the barren spots and inspire a love for the beautiful.

MISS LUELLA S. McWHIRTER,
State Superintendent.

NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION. (Received too late for supplement.)

The human race is ever looking for a panacea for its ills, physical, mental and spiritual. Instead of going to the one who created and appointed the labor of each separate organ of the body and asking for the panacea, it has hunted through the vegetable and mineral kingdoms and brought out in every way known to chemistry the different elements in these kingdoms and applied them in some way to man's supposed needs. By a misuse of one of God's gifts to men, through the process of distillation, was found this supposed panacea for which chemists had searched ever since the curious Pandoro had opened the mysterious box and poured its contents of disease and trouble upon the earth.

The alcohol produced by distillation was found to be very powerful in its effects and physicians at once prescribed it for all diseases of mind and body. For decades King Alcohol held full sway over the medical profession, and the temperance reform is set back many years because of this blunder among physicians.

Many good people to-day think prohibition of the manufacture of alcoholic liquors would be a calamity, because we must have it for a medicine. They are asking, "what would we use in its place?" So it is very important that this information be placed in their hands. Here is something not easily understood. People all understand and admit that whisky, which is about 25 or 40 per cent alcohol, has the power to create appetite for alcoholic drinks and leads to drunkenness. Yet they do not seem to understand that Jamaica Ginger, which has more than twice as much alcohol in it as whisky has; Peruna, which has about the same per cent of alcohol that whisky has; and Warner's Safe Tonic Bitters, which has more alcohol than the whisky usually sold in the saloon has, all have this same power to create appetite and lead to drunkenness.

If a child, by draining the sweetened drugs of the wine cup, the wine containing 15 per cent of alcohol, or by drinking what is left is the glass of beer, the beer containing 5 per cent of alcohol, can cultivate a taste for alcoholic drinks and become a drunkard, why can not a child, who drinks cider after it is two days old and contains 5 per cent of alcohol, or who takes a whisky toddy for a cold, form the same appetite? What is there in the human body that makes the difference in effect whether we take it as a medicine or as a beverage?

The medical profession has seen it mistake and the doctors who have the real good of the people at heart are doing all in their power to undo the wrongs which have been fastened upon us by that mistake. When the thought that alcohol is necessary as a medicine is removed from the minds of the people, one of the greatest hindrances to the cause of prohibition will have been removed.

The information must be brought to the young doctors in rural districts as well as in the cities, so I hope every county in Indiana will accept Mrs. Whitson's offer to send out leaflets to the doctors if the counties will pay the postage and let's work this department for all there is in it this year.

CULLA J. VAYHINGER.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE.

It is a very easy matter for State Superintendents to devise plans for the work of their departments, but the plans are not worth the paper they are written on unless the local Unions lend their co-operation in making them effective. The problem in temperance reform to-day is to overcome the apathy and indifference of our rank and file. We don the white ribbon as the emblem of our antagonism to the liquor traffic, accept a position of responsibility in the army and then do nothing and are too indifferent to even answer a letter concerning the work. Of course there are scores of loyal women in the W. C. T. U. who are heroic in their self-sacrifice and untiring in their zeal who are ready at all times to answer, "Here am I; what wilt thou have me do?" but their number is too few. Every State worker knows what it means to give thought and prayer in devising some plans to advance the cause, then send out the plan to local workers and receive no reply of any character from 90 per cent of the local Unions. No greater blessing could befall our work than to have each local Union devote an entire meeting to a discussion of this difficulty and a resolution to change the situation so far as they are concerned.

We expect to make this a great year in the work of the Temperance Literature Department, but we must have your co-operation, dear County and Local Superintendents. We want to secure 1,000 new subscribers to the Union Signal. We can in no way keep in touch with the work so effectively as by taking and reading the national paper. The State officers have planned to put 1,000 copies each of "At the Mercy of the State" and "Who Killed Joe's Baby?" in the State. Both of these are full of good points we want brought before the people, and cannot fail to help our cause. The reply to the "Committee of Fifty" is ready for distribution, and it is very important that the State should be sown broadcast with this article. It should at least be in the hands of every teacher and educator in the State. These can be had from Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, 1403 Ashland avenue, Indianapolis, for $2.00 per 100, prepaid, or single copies 5 cents each.

Now, dear Superintendents, let us keep a record of all literature distributed, and not only, keep a record but report it, for we want the best report of any year in the history of the work.

MRS. GERTRUDE MORROW,
State Superintendent.
2807 Bellefontaine St., Indianapolis, Ind.

NOTICE.

You have read, no doubt, the "Convention's Reply to the Committee of Fifty," as great effort has been made to spread it on the pages of our publications, namely, the Union Signal, the Message and the Phalanx. Now the reply to the unjustifiable attack of the Committee of Fifty upon the temperance educational work of the public school, prepared by Miss Hunt and her advisory board, will soon be brought into our State for general distribution and we hope to have a hearty co-operation from you. Consult with your local Superintendents and presidents and plan for a wise, judicious and general placing of this pamphlet. It should be in the hands of Superintendents of public schools, principals and teachers, trustees of townships, local and county superintendents of scientific temperance, ministers, doctors and even others. The State has ordered 1,000 copies of the complete Reply as a beginning and we hope to have money and enthusiasm enough to order 10,000 more. These can be had for $2.00 per hundred. Let us make haste to be about our Master's business. MATTIE CAMMACK GIBSON.

Items from the local Unions, concisely written on postal cards, will be greatly appreciated.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

March 13th will be the next temperance lesson in our International Sunday School lessons.

Some reasons why temperance should be definitely and persistently taught in the Sunday School:

1. Because distinctly taught in the Bible Truths, having prominence in the Word should be emphasized in the teaching of it.
2. Because of such practical importance, so many lives being wrecked and destroyed for lack of knowledge on this subject.
3. Because the majority in the schools are in their most impressionable period. Rev. M. L. Butler, of the Muskogee Methodist church, in a recent sermon, said that he learned while serving on the grand jury that eighty per cent of the cases on trial were under 23 years of age and that seventy-five per cent were illiterate. A very large majority of Christians are converted under 21.

IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO STATE, COUNTY, AND LOCAL UNIONS.

The reply to the Physiological Sub-Committee of the Committee of Fifty, adopted by the last National Convention and 50,000 copies ordered printed, is now ready for distribution and I ask every member of our organization to read carefully and then act on the following plan for distribution which I suggest:

Four points about the Report of the Sub-Committee of the Committee of Fifty should be very definitely borne in mind:

1. That the Report upon temperance education in the public schools is an unwarranted attack upon the work that is the foundation and hope of all our temperance work.
3. That the gist of the report is a subtle condoning of moderate drinking.

2. That the report contains inaccuracies and misrepresentations that many people will accept simply because of their confidence in the official position of many of the members of the Committee of Fifty unless we point out to them these inaccuracies and misrepresentations.

4. That the Report is being placed in public libraries, is being sent to ministers in prohibition States and is being recommended by opponents of our present system of temperance education for school libraries where it will be accessible to teachers and pupils. In view of the above facts, it is evident that there should be a diligent study in our own ranks of the Reply to the Committee of Fifty, and an equally diligent effort to secure a wide reading of the Reply.

The following plan is therefore earnestly recommended:

The State Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction or State Woman's Christian Temperance Union organization should send the Reply to the Governor and members of the legislature, to all state educational officials, to presidents and professors in universities, colleges, normal schools and medical schools and a copy of each to the local unions, urging them to supply it to the persons assigned below to local unions.

The County Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction or County Woman's Christian Temperance Union should order and send the reply to all county school officials; should send copies to the leading county papers and request the publication of at least the abstract which will be furnished for that purpose; should distribute copies at county teachers' institute and medical society meetings as some teachers and physicians may be reached in that way as in no other; should arrange for its distribution in towns where there is no local union.

The Local Union should order and send or give the Reply to school officials, ministers, clergymen, lawyers and business men and place a copy in each public, church and school library. If possible, give a copy to each teacher in the public schools. If this cannot be done, at least give the teachers a copy of the Resolutions on this subject, passed by the last National Convention. A program, based on the Reply, has been prepared and should be used by the local Union for one of its regular meetings or for a parlor or public meeting. This will aid in the study of the Reply. Unions in college or normal school towns, should try to furnish a copy of the Reply to each student, or at least to each member of the senior class, as I find that the report of the Committee of Fifty is being quoted to these young people as the most authoritative book on the alcohol question.

The literature named above can, in some cases, be obtained from the State officers, or may be ordered from the National Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction, 23 Trull street, Boston, Mass., at the following prices: Complete Reply, 5 cents per copy, 40 cents per dozen, $2 per hundred, $16 per thousand; Resolutions, 25 cents per hundred, $2 per thousand; Program, with accompanying leaflets, including one copy of Reply, 10 cents.

Let me urge that State, County and Local Unions give this matter their prompt attention, so that the people in your State may have the very important information that this Reply will bring them; not only in refutation of the unjust criticisms of temperance education, which the report of the Committee of Fifty contains, but also in the facts about the effects of alcohol brought out by the Reply in its discussion of the different papers contained in the report of the Committee of Fifty.

The liquor traffic is taxing every bottle, jug and barrel of liquor for funds for its "educational campaign." Anyone who reads the daily and weekly papers carefully can see how these funds are being used to deceive and confuse the people as to the real nature and effects of alcoholic drinks. This Reply to the Committee of Fifty contains splendid material for an "educational campaign" for the truth.

Now is the time to use it effectively.

MRS. MARY H. HUNT.

The liquor traffic is responsible for most of the crime in Chicago. Whisky ought to be wiped from the face of the earth.—Justice Dooley.

All letters and communications concerning subscriptions to the MESSAGE should be sent to the State Treasurer, Miss Alice Palmer, Franklin, Ind. In her hands are all subscription lists. She makes all corrections and attends to every detail concerning the mailing of the MESSAGE. Letters sent to the editor are always forwarded to Miss Palmer.

MARION COUNTY NEWS ITEMS.

Mrs. Ada B. Leck, Marion County president, Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, State Corresponding Secretary, and Dr. Rebecca Rogers George, furnished the W. C. T. U. program temperance afternoon in Indianapolis Local Council of Women, Tuesday, January 5. Mrs. Brand was asked to deliver her lecture before the National Convention, to be held in Indianapolis in February.

At the regular meeting of Broad Ripple Union five visitors, guests of Mrs. Kelso, president of the Union, were present. Addresses were made by Mrs. H. W. Brand and Mrs. Ada B. Leck. Tencopies each of the books, "At the Mercy of the State" and "Who Killed Joe's Baby," were taken by this small but active Union.

The Board of Department Superintendents of Marion County held a temperance watch meeting January 31, in the Third Christian Church, of Indianapolis. The superintendents were assisted by Dr. Newman, pastor of the church, Mrs. H. W. Brand, William Clark, editor of the Phalanx, Rev. W. W. Criley, of the First English Lutheran Church, Prohibition Alliance Quartette and others. After 11 p. m. lunch, Mrs. Ellen Davis conducted the praise service.

CALL FOR MID-YEAR EXECUTIVE.

The Mid-Year Executive Committee meeting will be held at Greensburg, Ind., April 7 and 8. The vote of the convention last year was to hold the Department Board meeting at the same time and place. We trust every County President in the State will attend the Executive Committee. Let us come together praying that the Holy Spirit will lead in every action taken and that we may be more zealous for the Lord's work.

CULLA J. VAYHINGER,
Moore's Hill, Ind.

MR. FREDERICK.

Mr. J. George Frederick, a well known writer for McClure's, Success and other magazines, attended the National W. C. T. U. Convention in Cincinnati and was introduced by Miss Gordon as the State Secretary of the Pennsylvania Loyal Temperance Legion. His brief address won him many admirers, not so much on account of his youth and growing reputation as a writer, as on account of his sincere earnestness in advocating the temperance movement. He was engaged to make a tour in the interest of the L. T. L. in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. He has recently given his valuable services for two evenings in Greencastle, Ind., speaking in two of the churches and before the Prohibition Alliance, the membership of which include many high school boys and young college men. In emphasizing the responsibility of the ballot, he spoke with a persuasive earnestness most unusual.

Mr. Frederick is a thinker and speaker of rare ability and magnetic enthusiasm, which win for him close attention. Our temperance hosts may well be encouraged when such young men bear our standards.

FIELD NOTES.

Evansville is to have another L. T. L. soon.

Shugart Union, Grant County, will entertain the Institute.

Mrs. Maria Weed, of Chicago, is to be in Indiana from March 25 to April 18.

Marion Central Union will send a barrel for the rummage sale for our Industrial School.

By recent analysis, the widely advertised patent medicine "Paw Paw" is found to contain 20.9 per cent alcohol.

Martinsville Union has a beautiful new Year Book. Much excellent work is being done by the membership.

Warsaw has organized a Union of ten members and held a grand gold contest; paid all expenses and money over for the treasurer.

Amboy Union recently had three lectures on Physical Righteousness by Mrs. Dr. Bush, of Anderson. These talks were very practical and much appreciated by the ladies of Amboy.

Francesville, Pulaski county, is the first Union to send a contribution for the ice water fountain at St. Louis Exposition. The State Treasurer has received $4.30 from this Union for that purpose.

Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, our State Corresponding Secretary, recently visited Aurora, where she spoke to a large audience on Sunday evening in the Baptist Church. On March 4th she is invited to return. The W. C. T. U. Union at Aurora is taking on new life.

Our members have moved as follows: Mrs. McCartney from Deputy to Scottsburg, Mrs. Burton from Warsaw to 716 Aspinwald avenue, Elkhart, Miss Belle Winter from Martinsville to Anderson, Mrs. M. A. Carr from Greencastle to Oakland City, Gibson County.

Mrs. Jennie Ward, the County L. T. L. Secretary of Dearborn County, has organized two Legions, one at Guilford, one at Lawrenceburg and has the third one almost ready for organization. I tell you, County Secretaries, you will have to look out, or Dearborn County will come in first this year.

Our State Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Hattie Brand, needs extra copies of the MESSAGE for March, April, May, July, October, November, December, 1899; March, May, July, August, December 1900; March, July, 1901; August, September, October, 1902. She will greatly appreciate the kindness of any one sending one or more copies.

Miss Belle Kearney will make a tour of our State from April 3 to 28. The Unions cannot fail to interest the public if they secure such speakers as Miss Kearney. She will not put the friends of the Union in an apologetic attitude. She is forceful, magnetic and cultured.

Lawrenceburg Union, on Saturday, January 23, opened an Industrial school in the basement of the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Jennie Ward, of Guilford, County Board Secretary of the L. T. L., was present in the afternoon and organized a Loyal Temperance Legion, with Master Paul Wencks as President.

Mr. and Mrs. Ridgeway, of Amboy, will attend the World's Sunday School Convention at Jerusalem. They will also visit the most interesting parts of the three Eastern continents, besides spending seventeen days in Palestine. We feel assured that Mrs. Ridgeway will wear the little bow of ribbon white in all lands at all times.

Liberty. Mrs. Elizabeth is nowhere better loved and admired than at her old home at Liberty. Recently she attended a Silver Medal contest there and made one of her characteristic speeches, which delighted the audience. The medal, on this occasion, was won by Faith Gordon, whose mother was recently called to her heavenly home. She was laid away with the White Ribbon on her breast.

It has never been decided which Union has secured the largest number of honorary members from State Convention, 1902, till the books closed September, 1903. The Treasurer has obtained a copy of "Alcohol, a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine" as a reward for this Union and if the competing Unions will send in number of honorary members belonging to their respective societies and secured within specified time, to Miss Palmer, at Franklin, the book will be sent the winning Union.

The fifth anniversary of the Indianapolis Frances E. Willard W. C. T. U. was celebrated at the home of Mrs. Moore, January 12. Mrs. Leck, past President, read a paper on the organization of the Union five years ago, in Hall Place church, with only seven members, now having over forty. Rev. Vest, pastor of Hall Place church, gave a talk on Frances Willard and her life work. A solo by Mrs. Keffer, music and other interesting items, the generous hospitality of Mrs. Moore, one of our members, was enjoyed by all new members added to our number.

Kokomo Loyal Temperance Legion has lost one of its most earnest members in the death of our loyal Assistant Secretary, Sister Mabel Thomas. She was always true to her convictions for the right, kind, gentle and loving, sympathetic toward the sorrowing and needy, a good worker in our Union. We all sympathize deeply with our bereaved Brother Thomas, his son, Lloyd, age 9 years, our Junior L. T. L. President, and daughter Mary, age 7, who is one of our faithful little workers. May we all be inspired with the lessons her life has taught and follow that way.

Gas City Union, under the leadership of its faithful President, has set about helping to gain the 1,000 new members, the latest addition being Miss Frances Willard Bassett, of Bridgeton, N. J. We felt that our roll was decorated by the charmed given name. We welcome our young sister gladly. The Sabbath Observance Department, assisted by the good citizens, made an effort for better city government. A petition to that effect circulated by the W. C. T. U. was numerously signed by the voters. This agitation was the outcome of Sunday evening mass meetings held by the Union.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, Vice-President of the W. C. T. U. in Indiana, began a series of lectures on non-alcoholic medication in Indianapolis and vicinity January 20, under the auspices of the Marion County Unions. Mrs. Stanley, in giving her first lecture, so pleased Mr. Nelson, pastor of the Pentecostal Tabernacle, that he offered the use of his chapel to W. C. T. U. women at any time. Mrs. Stanley gave the recitation, "Who Killed Joe's Baby," for the young ladies living in the Bertha Ballard Home, Wednesday evening. Much is expected from Mrs. Stanley's visit to Indianapolis.

Ready money is required right away to make the girls at the Hadley Industrial School comfortable this cold weather and to pay bills for groceries, coal and other absolute necessities. Will the sisters please remember that we have accepted this trust for this year. It is no light matter to appoint trustees to do what we cannot do in person, or do not want to do, and then leave them to struggle as they may with a gigantic problem. The W. C. T. U. has never done that as a body since it has been responsible for this school. Let us each have some part in Christ's beatitude, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," as touching this sacred obligation.

Hartsville Union held a Silver Medal contest on January 19, in the Christian church. There were six contestants: Mrs. M. Cummins, Miss Ella Beam, Mrs. Ruth Philipy, Mrs. Hal White, Mrs. R. Craig and Mrs. Mary Galbraith. The medal was awarded to Mrs. Ruth Philipy. We had most excellent music, a full house and a highly appreciative audience. We are anticipating a gala day in June, when Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer will be with us. We are arranging a box for Hadley Home; also our annual contribution. Our Union has a wide-awake membership of 28. The minister of the Christian Church, Rev. Shoemith, is an honorary member and is truly an honor to our Union, as well as a source of great help.

A Mishawaka daily paper says: Those who braved the cold and went to the A. C. A. assembly hall last evening were treated to a splendid lecture on temperance by Mrs. E. L. Calkins, formerly of Mishawaka, now W. C. T. U. officer of Kalamazoo, Mich. Temperance lectures, as a rule, are considered dry, but those who missed the address by Mrs. Calkins missed a treat in oratory. She is a brilliant, forceful and interesting speaker and a great student in the cause she has espoused. Names were taken after the address of ladies who desired to become members of the Mishawaka W. C. T. U. A meeting was announced for next Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. T. Perkins, West First street, when the society will be fully organized and officers elected. The meeting adjourned with the benediction by Rev. F. A. Lankin. Mrs. C. Holler, a State worker, and other W. C. T. U. officers, were present.

Guilford Union. I am glad Dearborn County can greet the readers of the MESSAGE with the report of a new Junior L. T. L., organized at Guilford, the home of the County Secretary, December 27, 1903, too late to be reported in the January MESSAGE. This Legion is in charge of two of our best members of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Mary Hammel and Mrs. Ella Kroft, our County President. The officers are as follows: President, Ruth Kroft; Vice-President, Goldie Shields; Secretary, Lucy Ward; Treasurer, Minette Ward. We hope to have the Seniors organized soon. Now as this is to be a special work with the Indiana W. C. T. U. this year we should have a Legion for each Union in the County. May the Lord lay this work on the heart of every woman who reads this and help each one who wears the "Bow of white" to feel a personal responsibility is my earnest prayer. Guilford Union voted to furnish supplies for her child, the Loyal Temperance Legion, for the first quarter, thus giving it a good start in life, helping it until it "can stand alone." Our local Superintendent of S. T. I. (also our County Superintendent) is planning a meeting for the County, to be held in the near future, inviting all the schools. It will be an all-day meeting. It is hoped by this meeting to arouse an interest in the teaching of S. T. I. in the schools.

JENNIE WARD,
Press Superintendent.

The Frances Willard Union celebrated its fifth anniversary Tuesday, January 12, at the home of Mrs. Moore, Senate avenue, north, in Indianapolis. This Union was organized by Mrs. Ada B. Leck, President of Marion County, with seven charter members. It now has 46 regular and 9 honorary members. Dr. Vest, pastor of Hall Place M. E. Church, gave an address on the life and work of Frances Willard. He spoke of her own unassuming manner and of the impression she made upon himself and six hundred fellow students, the first and only time he met her. The loyal, loving, faithful hearts of W. C. T. U. women, who are carrying on the work she so loved, were, he thought the most precious monument that could be raised to perpetuate her memory. Dr. Vest spoke warmly of the department plan of work and of the splendid organization of the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Leck spoke of the work done by this Union in the last five years; told of her love for it and of its birth in prayer. Mrs. Estella Bennett, President of the Union, spoke of the work the Union hopes to accomplish in the coming year. Good music was furnished by the young women of Willard Union. Refreshments were served during the social hour following the program. Two new members were secured.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Vice-President and lecturer, has just completed a nine days' tour through Marion, Hendricks and Johnson Counties, lecturing on the subject of Non-Alcoholic Medication. Mrs. Stanley is brilliant and effective. She gave most excellent satisfaction. Many have said, "It's the best speech I ever heard." The continued rain, followed by the worst blizzard of the season, kept many at home. Those who braved the storm felt well paid for going out. Mrs. Stanley addressed the Municipal 400 in Franklin on this subject. Dr. Hall says of her speech, "It is one of the best, if not the very best, that has been given before that body during its fight against, and the closing up of every saloon in Franklin." Mrs. Stanley will return in February for other lectures on this subject. She has been engaged by the temperance committee of Western Yearly Meetings for many dates on this same subject. She gave us nine days' work and made sixteen speeches. No County or Union will make a mistake in engaging Mrs. Stanley for a series of lectures on the subject of Non-Alcoholic Medication. Every Union and church needs this work presented. Pick up any of the Indianapolis dailies, your county papers, and yes, your church papers and count the square inches given for liquor advertisements in the form of patent medicines, nearly every one of which contains more alcohol than does beer. If no alcohol, then some other dangerous drug that should not be used. I am greatly pleased because of the rapid awakening on this subject throughout the State, but many Unions are not awakened up yet. Dear sister, is it your Union? If so, send for Mrs. Stanley to help you. Write to her for terms and dates. Address her at Liberty, Ind.

VOL. IX. No. 4.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., APRIL, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

ONE YEAR'S WORK.

An exchange furnishes the following as representing the yearly supply of food for the whisky fiend: 5,000 suicides; 10,000 murders; 60,000 fallen girls; 100,000 paupers; 3,000 murdered wives; 40,000 widowed mothers; 100,000 orphaned children; 100,000 insane; 100,000 criminals; 100,000 drunkards who die yearly; 100,000 boys who take the place of the dying drunkards. Untold crimes, misery, woe, want, weeping, waiting, war, shame, disgrace, disease, degradation, debauchery, destruction, death, riot, revelry, ruin and $2,000,000,000 in money.

AUSTRALIAN WOMEN'S FLAG.

As Australia is the first country in the world to endow its women with national suffrage and the right to sit in the National Parliament, the Woman's Federal Political Association of Victoria proposes to adopt a symbol to commemorate the event. Just as the establishment of the Commonwealth of Australia was signalized by the selection of a Commonwealth flag, so the association has decided to have an Australian Women's flag, which will be displayed at all important gatherings in Australia, and will be sent to the International Congress of Women, and to the Second International Woman Suffrage Conference, to be held in Berlin in June next. It is proposed also to have this flag floating somewhere at the World's Fair in St. Louis.

All White Ribboners should have the Union Signal as a regular weekly visitor in their homes. Our Indiana Unions must not only be loyal to our own national official organ, but must be generous. Send in subscriptions. Those of you who know its value, tell your membership, urge all to subscribe. Send names of subscribers and money to the Union Signal, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION IN GERMANY.

An interesting communication concerning the growth of temperance sentiment in Germany from United States Consul Deidrich, at Bremen, to Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, of Boston, has just been forwarded the latter by the State Department at Washington.

Referring to the results of Mrs. Hunt's presence at the International Anti-Alcoholic Congress in Bremen last April, which she attended in response to the German request to President Roosevelt that she there represent the American Scientific Temperance Instruction movement, Consul Deidrich sends her the following article from a Berlin paper, which will be of interest to readers in this country. The article, in reviewing a complete biography of recent German literature on the drink question lately issued, says:

"Considering the newness of the propaganda in the Fatherland, the output is enormous.

"There is a total of 871 books printed in the German language dealing with the temperance question, written by 413 different authors and practically all published since the year 1880, the greater portion of them since 1890.

"Besides this, there are now 37 newspapers, magazines and annuals published in German devoted to the temperance question.

"The temperance reformation in Germany has had such a recent beginning and the supposed German repugnance to total abstinence is so well grounded, it is really difficult to comprehend the full meaning of this vast array of literature in the German tongue.

"The evidence is clear that the people of Germany have taken up the alcohol question with an energy excelled by no other people on the face of the earth. Good Templar lodges are multiplying every year. The Blue Cross has spread all over the empire.

"The Imperial Health Office at Berlin is sending out elaborate literature against the use of alcohol as a beverage. Count Douglas, the brother-in-law of the Emperor, is one of the foremost temperance reformers in the country and day after day the Journal of the Imperial Parliament has contained pages of his arguments against drink. Leading lights in German universities are also leaders in the new reform.

"Plans are being matured for a German temperance exhibit at the coming St. Louis Exposition.

"The kindly personal interest taken in the scientific temperance propaganda of Mrs. Hunt by the German Empress shows how the anxiety about drink has reached the upper strata of German society. What nation on earth can furnish a parallel of the late Bremen Congress, when 1,500 people sat for four days to discuss the drink peril. What a deep unrest it must be that causes nearly a thousand different books to be dumped into a single language on a single topic within twenty-five years! And who can measure the effect?

"Germany has passed the first stage of the reform—that of moderation. Abstinence is now the general cry and with a decided squint toward legislation, both remedial and preventive. At the present swift rate, the reform may have complete Prohibition for its watchword in ten years more."

MRS. HATTIE WRIGHT BRAND,
Corresponding Secretary Indiana W. C. T. U.

GOOD CHEER FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF ORGANIZATION.

In spite of the severity of the winter, work in the department of organization has gone steadily forward. By the unanimous action of the State convention we determined to increase the power of the Indiana Woman's Christian Temperance Union by making a net gain of one thousand members. I know your hearts were cheered when the news went out that the State Treasurer's books showed a gain of 174 members at the close of the first quarter. The treasurer reports that dues are coming in for the March quarter, and the many hopeful letters lead us to expect a good gain. Letters were sent to every Union in the State, urging them to strive for a gain of five members by the close of the March quarter. Some will fail; others will make larger gains. Up to this time Greencastle Union has made the largest gain, and the report comes that South Bend and Bluffton are striving not for five, but for fifty new members. One of the States which made the largest gain in membership in 1902 accomplished it by this plan of gaining five in each Union. And dear, local presidents, if you did not make the gain in the March quarter, will you not strive more prayerfully and earnestly to succeed in time for the June report? We believe this could be done in many unions by the careful collection of dues from women whose names are on your membership roll, but who are not members because their dues are unpaid.

Our plan for organized counties is that they shall have at least six unions with a paid membership of not less than ten. Mrs. Emily McIntosh, President of Allen County, is the first to bring her county up to this standard of six Unions. In December she organized the Victory Union, near Edgerton, and in February the New Haven Union. The treasurer's report in the Minutes shows that there are thirteen counties in the State having four or five Unions each, and letters from most of the presidents indicate that they will make a special effort to come up to the standard of six Unions.

Then there is a list of counties in which there is but one Union or none at all. In this unorganized territory we are putting forth special effort, and how happy I am to tell you that Ripley County, where last year we did not have a single member, now has three good unions, with two more in sight in the near future. And Clarke County, which has been in the unorganized list for years, now has three new Unions and county officers. The old Union at Jeffersonville has made large gains and preparations are made for another Union. Green County, which was in the unorganized list, also has a new Union at Bloomfield, and Kosciusko a Union at Warsaw.

Now that the winter is past and the Institute work about to begin, we are looking forward to large gains, and we urge every member in the State to make a strong pull for victories during the coming three months, April, May and June. They are the most favorable months in the year for pushing organizations and holding public meetings. We have, perhaps, never had so many important measures before us as crowded into this year: The Hepburn-Dolliver bill, the Reply to the Committee of Fifty, the expulsion of Apostle Smoot from the United States Senate and the passage of an Anti-Polygamy Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Then, too, we are working steadily toward Statutory Prohibition for Indiana. Let us bear in mind, dear workers, that a doubled membership in Indiana means double power to bring all these things to pass. The following is a list of our new Unions:

Victor Union, Allen County, organized by Mrs. Emily McIntosh; President, Mrs. Della Rush, Edgerton, Ind.

New Haven Union, Allen County, organized by Mrs. Emily McIntosh; President, Mrs. Celia Bowers, New Haven.

Versailles Union, Ripley County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger; President, Mrs. William Bennett, Versailles.

Osgood Union, Ripley County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger; President, Mrs. Irene Harsch, Osgood, Ind.

Batesville Union, Ripley County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, Batesville, Ind.

Morgantown, Morgan County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger; President, Mrs. Florence Cantsey, Morgantown, Ind.

Trafalgar Union, Johnson County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger; President, Mrs. Lida Minglin, Trafalgar, Ind.

Charlestown Union, Clarke County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger; President, Mrs. J. W. Comely, Charlestown, Ind.

Utica Union, Clarke County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger; President, Mrs. Eliza Bottorff, Charlestown, R. F. D., Ind.

Henryville Union, Clarke County, organized by Miss Culla Vayhinger; President, Mrs. S. J. Cross, Henryville, Ind.

Brazil Y, Clay County, organized by Miss Lillie LaDrew; President, Margaret Rector, Brazil, Ind.

Bloomfield Union, Green County, organized by Miss Alice Palmer; President, Mrs. W. H. Wylie, Bloomfield, Ind.

Liberty Center, Wells County, organized by Mrs. Dr. Goodwin; President, Mrs. Fannie Garrett, Liberty Center, Ind.

Warsaw Union, Kosciusko County, organized by Miss Alice Hayward; President, Mrs. Mary E. Wilson, Warsaw, Ind.

Have learned indirectly of two other Unions, but they have not been formally reported. We hope to have them in the next list published.

MRS. HATTIE WRIGHT BRAND.

ATTENTION, SUPERINTENDENTS OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

"Should the same pupils of the Sunday School sign the pledge each year?"

No; if you have a record showing that they have signed the pledge—if not, begin again and be more systematic. It is because of the haphazard way we have had of signing the pledge and keeping no record that has caused us to lose interest in this department. Follow the suggestions given in the circular letter and you will find the interest awakened in this line of work.

Get the Wall Pledge Rolls and transcribe each name upon it and frame, then you will have a record you can keep and you'll know when the work is done well enough. Remember Indiana's aim is 50,000 pledges signed this year.

Give Family Pledge Rolls to each family whose every member has signed the pledge.

Get the "Teaching Points" for each Temperance Sunday and give to all the teachers of the Sunday Schools.

If possible, have copies of the Crusader Monthly distributed each Temperance Sunday. Where the school has a library, endeavor to put into it these books: "Who Killed Joe's Baby?" "At the Mercy of the State" and "Two."

Have an interesting program for each Temperance Sunday and you will have an excellent report at the end of the year.

LIDA OUTLAND,

State Superintendent.

L. T. L. STATE CONVENTION.

The Indiana Senior Loyal Temperance Legion State Convention will be held on Friday, June 17, 1904, at Marion, Indiana. After much thought and careful and prayerful consideration of the matter, we have come to the conclusion that Indiana needs an L. T. L. State Convention during the summer time when the Legioners are out of school and can attend. We are very anxious that the convention be well attended and ask every secretary to keep the matter before her Legion from now on, at every meeting.

EDITH HILLIS,

State President.

THE MESSAGE.

Official Organ of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Indiana.

Entered at the Indianapolis Postoffice as second-class mail matter.

THE STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF THE
W. C. T. U. OF INDIANA.

The subscription price of the MESSAGE is to be included in the payment of the annual membership dues of every regular member of the W. C. T. U. of Indiana.

The MESSAGE per year.....25 cents

All communications intended for the MESSAGE should be in the hands of the Editor before the 17th of the month.

All business communications should be addressed to, and all remittances made payable to Miss Alice R. Palmer, State Treasurer, Franklin, Ind.

MRS. LUELLA F. McWHIRTER, Editor,
Rosabower, Greencastle, Ind.

APRIL, 1904.

All material intended for publication in the MESSAGE must be in the hands of the editor before the 17th of the month.

A Temperance Newspaper should be in every Christian home.

Every Man and woman who professes interest in the temperance cause should be a member of a temperance organization. Be sure and extend an invitation, cordial and earnest, to all such persons to join the W. C. T. U.

Superintendents of a Departments who do not answer promptly all letters sent to them are not living up to the standard of an officer in our blessed cause. A postal card will nearly always suffice to answer direct questions. Promptness counts more than much else in official business.

County Presidents who are prompt in all their correspondence and in keeping all engagements inspire the constituency to like action. Be prompt. Be business like.

The Indiana Mid-Year meeting will be held at Greensburg April 7 and 8. Most generous hospitality will be extended to all those who attend. Every County President should be present during the entire meeting; her expenses to be met by the county. The nearby unions should arrange to attend the meetings if possible. This mid-year meeting will wonderfully benefit all those unions represented. All State Superintendents of Departments are expected to be in attendance and a most enjoyable entertainment is being arranged by the President, Mrs. Lou E. Rall.

At Philadelphia next November will be held the National W. C. T. U. Convention. Now is the time to decide that you will go and begin to talk to your husband about going with you. Arrange also to take your son or daughter with you if possible. We hope to arrange so that railroad tickets will be good going via one route and returning via another, thus giving opportunity for seeing and probably visiting different cities in the East. Gauge your plans from now on so that you can attend the great National W. C. T. U. Convention at Philadelphia.

Now is the time for energetic activity among the W. C. T. U. Unions. The liquor traffic is raising a $5,000,000 defense fund with which to control all temperance legislation in the national Congress and in the State Legislatures during this year. This fund is being raised by a self imposed tax upon the wholesalers and the retailers by the payment of a few cents extra on each bottle, keg or barrel of goods bought. Able legal talent is being secured to work for the interests of the liquor dealers. Their organization is gaining in power and influence. The crisis is coming. Our forces must be organized stronger and better than ever. It is not enough to have two score Christian women in a Union in a county seat town. We must have women and men by the hundreds. Presidents and workers in county seat towns should discuss the need of the hour; lay plans for enlisting our Christian women and men for aggressive warfare. From our Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, 1403 Ashland avenue, Indianapolis, get membership cards. Give these to the best loved, most discreet women of the Union and urge them to make a canvass of their churches for members. We must have the help and influence of the Christian men. Seek them. Tell them how much we need them. Immediately arrange for an evening parlor meeting and invite them. Urge the necessity of law enforcement in your community. You will have strong support by the people. Awake, W. C. T. U.! The liquor traffic has felt your power and has organized for warfare. It is backed by millions. You must look to God for leadership.

A BIG MEETING.

Many Bluffton people met the State Vice-President, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Markley, at the Six Mile Union meeting. Mrs. Stanley spoke on Non-Alcoholic Medicine and Anti-Narcotics; which she discussed in her usual effective manner and strong argument on alcohol upon the human system. The meeting was very pleasant and helpful. At 7:30 o'clock all collected at Six Mile church to listen again to Mrs. Stanley, who held her audience spell-bound for an hour and fifteen minutes in her strong appeal for the people to be honest and true to their best convictions. Along the line of the legalized liquor traffic, Mrs. D. A. Walmer, in her brilliant manner, and who always gives satisfaction, recited "Dot Little Boy Fritz." Mrs. Stanley will speak in the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning. Good music will be furnished for each of these services. Sunday she will be at Poneto in the M. E. Church.

MRS. ARAMINTA BELLE HAWKES,
Wells County Press Superintendent.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Vice President and lecturer, with the President of Wells County, has just completed a week's tour of the county. Mrs. Stanley lectured on the different departments of the W. C. T. U. work, her chief subject being "Non-Alcoholic Medication," and an urgent appeal for the extermination of the legalized liquor traffic, in which she gave most excellent satisfaction. Many who took the time to hear her agree with Dr. Hall, of the municipal Four Hundred in Franklin, who said, "It is one of the best, if not the best lecture or speech I ever heard and it is true. God never compromised with any wicked thing; his laws against evil are all prohibitory. Satan is the author of compromise." The county president, Mrs. D. A. Walmer, is much encouraged over the week's work, thirty new members having been added to the county, many of them being men, who are honorary members to the W. C. T. U. Our county president is deserving of much praise for her faithfulness and untiring effort she is putting forth in the county in behalf of the temperance movement and much is expected from Mrs. Stanley's visit to the county.

YOUNG WOMEN.

Last year I asked the Y's. of the United States for $360 to pay for an interpreter for Miss Kara Smart, our White Ribbon missionary in Japan, and they gave it. Now I am asking them for $500 for this year, because the $360 was not adequate to cover all the outlay. Did your Union have a part in this great work, dear comrades? If so, I want to thank you, and if, for any reason, you could not help then, I want to ask if you will not make an especial effort to do so this year?

CLARA PARRISH WRIGHT,
National Secretary Y. W. C. T. U.

From the reports of Miss Smart's work in the Union Signal and State papers you have learned that her opportunities are unparalleled, simply unheard of. Yet, wonderful as they are, you and I may reap with her, if we are faithful to our opportunity, the opportunity of furnishing a part of the gold that will make it possible for her to enter every open door.

You know the plan: That each one of the thousand local Y. societies shall observe Mrs. Barnes' birthday (April 14) by giving a "world's" entertainment, and send the proceeds to Mrs. Mary Campbell Wells, 520 East 2d avenue, Monmouth, Ill., who is custodian of the fund.

Mrs. Barnes herself has prepared a fine program for this meeting. You will find it on page 23 of the National Y. Year Book. If you have already given it, have a medal contest (for books, medals and full information concerning contests address Mrs. Adelia E. Carmen, 287 Oakley boulevard, Chicago, Ill.), or give "At the White Queen's Court," to be had of Miss Ruby I. Gilbert, 915 The Silversmiths' Building, 131-137 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill. In case you give Mrs. Barnes' program you will need a copy of the 1903 World's Y. Report (in truth, you need it in all your work), which you may have by sending to me at Paris, Ill., enclosing two 2 cent stamps.

Dear young women, shall we not, by concerted action, make this the most inspiring red letter day in all our history? I believe you will stand by me in the carrying out of these plans, and that "$500 for missions" will be your cry. CLARA PARRISH WRIGHT, Paris, Ill. Gen. Sec. Y. W. Branch World's W. C. T. U.

Y. W. C. T. U.

Marion County has another Y with Mrs. Zetta Keffer, 1508 Senate avenue, Indianapolis, President.

Brazil Y held a meeting the 9th of March and elected a new president and treasurer. They are working and taking a good interest in the gymnasium. Oxford Ys have a new secretary, Mrs. Emily Wilson. We trust the girls will help her hold up the Temperance Union in Oxford.

Better prospects for Y work this year than for several years. Let each County Y. Secretary do her best now to organize one or more Unions in her County.

Remember now, girls, the letter sent out to local unions in regard to observing the Red Letter Day, April 14, Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, when a free-will offering will be taken for our missionary, Miss Kara Smart, of Japan.

Who will make the greatest gain in membership, in active or honorary this year?

Treasurers, begin to collect and talk about dues for June 15. See how many new members you can secure by June 15.

CLARA M. SEARS,
Y. W. C. T. U. Secretary.

HADLEY INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The Hadley Industrial School has not had to contend with the afflictions of last winter, having thus far escaped measles, mumps, scarlet fever and spinal meningitis, which caused such suffering last year. Nevertheless we have had our discomforts and distresses, some of which have been very trying. It is no easy task to care for a family of thirty, even under the most favorable circumstances, but in addition to the cold, hard winter we have had a trial with our heating and cooking implements that has tested the utmost patience of our natures. The Board decided that, cost what it would, the furnace must be repaired. It proved not to be so great an undertaking or expense as we feared. Only a hole two or three inches wide and six or seven inches long in the lining between the fire chamber and hot air chamber. While it was being repaired a check came from one of the Unions that more than covered the expense. This money was raised by holding a medal contest. We wish to thank all of the dear sisters and the Unions who have sent us donations.

The old Board served faithfully seven years, at least the President did, and wore herself out doing it, and I would add to the list of saints St. Lucretia on account of her devotion to this work.

The ineffectual attempts to secure a farmer who would prove to be just the right person in every respect were many. At last such a person was found. He came, but the vast amount of work and lack of necessary farming implements, and no money to purchase them with, discouraged him, and he notified the Board of his resignation.

The Board is now holding the second rummage sale this winter to raise money to pay the coal bills. The President gets up early and goes out into the cold, builds a fire in a cold store room, and works till late at night to provide this money for the home. The members of the Board leave their homes when it seems almost impossible to do so and come here to look after affairs. All that can be done they are trying to do. Will you help all in your power?

I must not forget to say that our matron, who so faithfully serves in the culinary department, is suffering from a severe cold and deep seated cough, which we are hoping will, under better conditions, give way, and that the approach of spring, with warmer weather, will stop the coughing so prevalent in the Home.

For the encouragement of all, I will say that the girls have made marked improvement in deportment and an advancement in their studies, and they are longing to get back into the school room, which we hope they will do Monday, February 21. There are one or two artists among the pupils, and the ingenuity they showed in getting up valentines was quite gratifying. We had a market basket full to give out. One was a lovely work apron. The girls are doing fancy work this week. Last week we had a sewing school and did considerable mending. Some of the girls showed considerable proficiency. We have a variety of talent and accomplishments. Quite a number play the piano well and are never so happy as when practicing their music. The Lord has so helped us that we have continued cheerful through all of these adverse circumstances, for which we praise him sincerely and continually.

P. S.—Everybody is requested to solicit dried fruit for the Home.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

On my retirement from the active board of Hadley Industrial School I was honored by being made an advisory member.

I am glad of this, as my interest has in no wise abated. I still agonize over its meager support, knowing the impossibility of making it what it should be without a cash basis, making prompt payments to all employees and all purchases made. I believe there are one thousand women in our State who will willingly give one dollar each toward making this school a success. I have spoke to several and in each case the response has come, "I will be one of the thousand." Let each union appoint one of its members to collect this money and send it to Mrs. Hattie Chandler, who is treasurer of the Hadley School Board. Her address is Mooresville, Ind., R. F. D. This school receives the approval of all good citizens and many who are not members of our W. C. T. U. will contribute if properly approached.

WORLD'S FAIR.

For the first time in the history of Expositions the temperance cause is receiving the prominence it deserves, and is listed with other prominent topics. We have an Exhibit and International Congress on Temperance, W. C. T. U. Days, pictures of prominent W. C. T. U. women in some of the State Buildings, Flower Mission Day, June 9, the distribution of flowers and text cards by the Flower Mission Department on some of the State days, and a beautiful Ice Water Fountain.

The Exhibit is to occupy a space 15 x 18 feet in the Social Economy Department and is to have charts, pictures and drawings to illustrate the work we are doing.

The International Congress is to be from October 10 to 15 inclusive and participated in by the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, the Independent Order of Good Templars and the W. C. T. U. W. C. T. U. days will be October 12 and 13, when we will also have our part in the International Congress and wear our white ribbons upon the grounds.

The Ice Water Fountain is to be placed in a conspicuous position between the Varied Industries and the Manufacturers' Building. It is only a few feet from the waterway, the main walk of the Exposition, and opposite the beautiful cascades. It is to be almost in the shadow of the Figure of Peace which surmounts the Louisiana Purchase Monument. Is to be made of bronze, 8 feet high, the figure of a woman holding a lily. It is to furnish ice water. It is to be modeled by Miss Elsie Ward, of New York, formerly of Missouri. The figure of the woman stands on a pedestal decorated with lilies, symbolic of purity. From a lily on each of the four corners opens a epigot out of which the water will flow. In the base and pedestal there has been an attempt to give an appearance of lightness and grace and yet withal an appearance of strength adequate to carry the burden imposed. The style is French Renaissance and the effort has been made throughout, in ornamentation and in general effect, to keep the fountain simple, refined and strong. It is to cost $3,000 00.

The report of a Vice Syndicate, which has been copied by many religious and temperance papers, has not the least shadow of truth in it. A St. Louis woman made a remark that the keeper of an immoral house had said something of this kind. This was picked up by sensational press and exaggerated. The woman referred to, whom I know very well, says over her own signature: "I am in a position to know as much about a Vice Syndicate as any one in St. Louis. If there is one in St. Louis, I know nothing of it. I do not believe there is any Vice Syndicate in St. Louis."

The municipal and exposition officials, as well as the Christian people, are doing much to reduce vice to a minimum. The W. C. T. U. has a Purity Department and a Rescue Department in active operation. Women wearing badges will be at the station to help unprotected girls. Of these the Deaconesses and the Salvation Army women are uniformed. Eight thousand letters have gone to as many Unions, showing local women how girls can be protected and this is our plan: Women's societies of St. Louis have banded together and secured cheap respectable boarding houses for innocent working girls coming to the city. If girls will inquire of the badged women at the station they will direct them to these homes. The work of the local Unions is to secure the circulars containing the names and addresses of these organizations and give them to girls coming to the city. We have not secured these boarding houses for our own women; they are such houses as are offered by the Salvation Army and are only for innocent working girls who need a refuge while seeking employment. If our women all over the United States, after reading this article, will visit the stations, meeting out-going trains bound for St. Louis and will seek out girls coming here and tell them there is safety only in asking questions of women at the station wearing badges, or of police officers, much unhappiness may be averted.

The St. Louis W. C. T. U. have done all this work without one dollar coming to them outside of the State. The Christian people are wide awake and are doing all that is possible to protect strangers from harm. It is much better for the press and for Christian people to inform girls of places where they can get reliable information and respectable boarding than to raise a hue and cry over an utter falsehood. That there is much evil in St. Louis cannot be denied; we wish we could truthfully say there is not an immoral resort in St. Louis, but we all know in any large city, as well as small ones, there are evil people ready to commit evil deeds. What we want to do is to protect the innocent girls and this we believe we will be able to do. No girl can enter the Union Station, and inquire of the badged women without receiving good advice and we ask the White Ribboners everywhere to circulate this information. Get it put in the local papers. Place dodgers in the stations, churches and all public places. It is not safe to trust strangers, whether they be men or women, unless they wear a badge representing some society or a policeman's uniform.

MRS. E. B. INGALLS, St. Louis, Mo.
National W. C. T. U. Commissioner for World's Fair.

FAIRS AND OPEN AIR MEETINGS.

The months are fast hastening. Only a few weeks more until our out-door meetings will have begun. It has been stated that over half of the population of the United States live in rural districts. To reach this class we must go to them where they are to be found in large numbers, namely, at the meetings they arrange, reunions, picnics, Fourth of July celebrations, etc. And if one of our speakers is to have a place on the program, application must be made early, before the official program is arranged. It is absolutely necessary to have a superintendent in every county, so that the time and place for these meetings may be known, so as to apply to the managers for a place for a W. C. T. U. speaker, a medal contest or prize essay. A superintendent should study the special needs of her locality. If physicians prescribe alcohol as a remedy, then have non-alcoholic medication discussed. If scientific temperance instruction is neglected in the schools, have your speaker talk along that line. It is not too soon to apply to the Agricultural Board for space on the fair ground. Use your influence to elevate the moral tone of fairs; look carefully after the illegal sale of liquor, gambling devices and the sale or distribution of impure literature. Indiana has a law relative to the above; see to its enforcement. Make this department a source of revenue by fitting up check rooms, rest rooms, serve lunch, all of which bring you in close touch with people who are willing to pay for the accommodation furnished. Keep membership cards on hand and have an abundance of literature to distribute.

Increased membership is the rally cry of this department. All prizes this year will be awarded for the largest number of new members secured, in addition to the reports which accompany the cards returned. Honorary members count in all contests. Mrs. Guild, National Superintendent of this department, has offered a cash prize of five dollars to the State reporting the largest number of Senior L. T. L. members engaged during the year in work at fairs and open air meetings. A cash prize of five dollars to the State sending in the best report of open air meetings, over thirty, held in the State. The national banner will be presented to the State securing the largest number of new paid members during the year. Indiana stands a close second in the Nation for open air meeting, and in the number of members secured. This should be an inspiration. With a thorough organization in every county at least 500 new members can be gained by this department in 1904. Send to me for department cards; twenty-five cents per one hundred. Department leaflet No. 202 has valuable suggestions. I want to tell you that Indiana was the first State to introduce W. C. T. U. work at State and County fairs, originating in the fertile brain of Josephine R. Nichols. This claim must be disproved before we give it up. I have searched diligently to find out what State first adopted this department. According to my best information it was our beloved Indiana. Lovingly I appeal to every county and local superintendent to urge the work of this department. Begin work at once and enlist more workers. If new superintendents have been appointed, do not fail to notify me. Ours is a wonderful field; let us enter it and labor more earnestly, more faithfully, more prayerfully.

MRS. ADA B. LECK,
State Superintendent.

"Blessed Are Ye That Sow Beside All Waters."

A CALL TO PRAYER FOR A BETTER OBSERVANCE OF THE SABBATH.

April 10 to 17 will be the 26th annual World's Week of Prayer for the better observance of the Christian Sabbath, the wider dissemination of its inestimable blessings, and its more general observance as the Lord's Day. We do not need to urge its importance. Even those who do not recognize our Lord Christ acknowledge the social and economical value of Sunday rest.

We do not need to say that the Christian Sabbath is seriously threatened, or to enumerate the evidence of this fact. Mammon worship and selfish pleasure seeking, the mad haste to get rich quick and the insane rush for the spectacular and the sensationally exciting, the anxiety to drown conscience and have a "good time," all conspire to make Sunday rest, and still more, Sabbath devotion, increasingly difficult. It sometimes seems as if the highest product of human character and genius had joined hands with the lowest instincts of human nature—greed, selfishness, Godlessness—in a conspiracy to rob man of earth's brightest and best day—the weekly rest day.

Let prayer be offered daily, in public and private, and as far as possible let there be at least one public service in the sanctuary devoted to the presentation of the theme of the Lord's Day, and repeating the suggestion of last year. Let three definite results be sought: First, A higher standard of Sabbath keeping among Christians. Second, Release of as many as possible from Sunday toil. Third, Discontinuance of Sunday amusements, especially Sunday excursions and games. Remember, if we agree as touching anything that we shall ask it shall be done for us. The Lord is not slack concerning His promises.

KATIE WERT HOLLER,
South Bend, State Superintendent.

Miss Palmer, our State Treasurer, was in the field two weeks in February and secured thirty-two active and sixteen honorary members, also two active for Franklin Union this month; organized a small union of seven members at Bloomfield; at seven parlor meetings, and in four public addresses she gave emphatic attention to Scientific Temperance Instruction.

MRS. ADA WALLACE UNRUH'S DATES IN INDIANA.

April—Thursday 14 and Friday 15, Delaware County, Institute at Avondale. Saturday 16, lecture at Fairview. Sunday 17, Blackford County, lecture at Hartford City. Monday 18 and Tuesday 19, Blackford County, Institute at Montpelier. Wednesday 20, Blackford County, lecture at Roll. Thursday 21 and Friday 22, Jay County, Institute at Red Key. Sunday 24, Madison County, lecture at Anderson. Monday 25 and Tuesday 26, Madison County, Institute at Elwood. Wednesday 27, Madison County, lecture at Elwood. Thursday 28 and Friday 29, Wabash County, Institute at Wabash.

May—Sunday 1, Huntington County, lecture at Huntington. Monday 2 and Tuesday 3, Huntington County, Institute at Roanoke. Wednesday 4, Huntington County, lecture at Markle. Thursday 5 and Friday 6, Wells County, Institute at Bluffton.

This east half of section 2, which was for a time without a leader, has been fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh, of Oregon, formerly of Indiana, in her passage through our State. We regret that a few other calls for her cannot be answered, as she had accepted dates elsewhere before the requests were received. Indiana knows Mrs. Unruh and appreciates her and always gives her a warm welcome. No white ribboner within the bounds of her meetings can afford to miss them.

The Institute schedule for the remaining sections of the State is well under way. Correspondence with section leaders should continue. Let those entrusted with it be as prompt as possible. If there are other counties that want sample copies of periodicals or want programs, they are requested to report soon (see March Message) to the Superintendent.

The spring institutes will soon begin and they can and will be a success in proportion to the amount of individual effort expended. In every county the work of planning and arranging is largely given to a committee. If you are a member of that committee you should do all possible to help. If you are not a member of that committee then consider yourself a committee of one to advertise and to announce the meetings, to tell of the good things on the program. This you can do. You can do it while attending to your daily duties.

How?

By sending postals a week or two in advance to ten friends urging them to arrange to attend.

By sending notes by the children to friends.

By explaining fully the importance of the Institute to the boys and girls and asking them to tell their teachers and furnish them copies of the Institute program and pictures of the workers expected to show their teachers.

By announcing the Institute at all social church meetings and explaining how much of interest will be on the program.

By carefully explaining all about the Institute to your pastor and wife when you invite them to dine with you. Tell them of the great plan whereby the numerous phases of reform work carried on by the W. C. T. U. is presented in our Institutes. Show them the pictures of our temperance leaders. Thus seek that co-operation that only comes from interest.

To Subscribers: If you wish your address on the MESSAGE changed please send the undersigned your present address, your future address and the time when your subscription expires. If you wish the address changed for next month please send this information, clearly written, before the twentieth of the current month. This is the only way to secure promptness and satisfaction.

ALICE RUTH PALMER,
State Treasurer, 398 Kentucky street, Franklin Ind.

WORK AMONG SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

We have conceived the idea of furnishing the Indiana Battleship with Comfort Bags, which will require about 450 bags. Now, if each local Union will do just a little, make a few well filled comfort bags, the required number can easily be furnished. I understand the Indiana is in the navy yards undergoing repairs and will not join the fleet before next fall. This will give us ample time for our work.

Be sure that the bags are well filled, as they cannot be used, unless they are. When completed send them prepaid to Mrs. Ella M. Thacher Florence, New Jersey, but be sure and report the number made to us, otherwise you will receive no credit in State work.

I have offered a premium to the County sending the greatest number of well filled bags.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING COMFORT BAGS.

Make of Cretonne or Table Oilcloth, line with red cotton flannel, and bind with blue braid; dimensions, 20 inches long by 7 inches wide, pointed at one end. Three pockets, lower one 3 inches deep, containing 2 spools of coarse thread, white and black. Second, 4 inches deep, containing needles, pins, buttons, tape, court plaster, scissors, comb, beeswax, safety pins, darning cotton. Third pocket, testament, pledge card, leaflets and personal letter.

JULIA OVERMAN,
State Superintendent.

Greensburg Union has published a beautiful Annual Calendar. The cover page contains a picture of Miss Willard in gilt.

Have Sabbath Pledge Signing in Your Sunday Schools on April 10 or 17.

SUMMER ASSEMBLIES.

Mrs. Balch, president of the Tri-State Assembly Union at Island Park, has her plans and program matured for W. C. T. U. day. The Assembly opens July 20 and closes August 12. W. C. T. U. day is August 3 and the night of the second if the Assembly Union so desires. Mrs. Balch hopes that excursions may be organized with railway tickets good for the 2d and returning the 3d.

The presence of our National President, Mrs. Stevens, and Vice President, Miss Gordon, with the State Presidents of Indiana, Mrs. Vayhinger, of Ohio, Mrs. Clark, of Michigan, and Mrs. Benjamine insures a fine program for August 3. It is to be hoped that a large attendance of W. C. T. U. women, L. T. Legioners, Prohibitioners and friends and well wishers of our cause will grace the Assembly, and specially that the efforts of the officers of the Assembly Union for our specially recognized days will be appreciated.

The treasurer is Mrs. Cora M. Steel, Muncie, and the secretary, Miss Pearl Rall, Huntington. Any of these ladies will be glad to give our readers special information regarding excursions, etc.

Let us have definite news from the officers of other Summer Assembly Unions. Yours for the best,

ALICE RUTH PALMER,
Superintendent Summer Assemblies, Franklin, Ind.

ISLAND PARK CHAUTAUQUA

is a tri-State summer assembly. Indiana, Ohio and Michigan have an equal interest in this Union, but at present the two latter States do not seem to feel that it is as much theirs as ours. The work done there by the Assembly Union should have more consideration from the three States interested; each state should work for better attendance on program day, which will be August 3 this year, and each State should feel obligated for a money consideration. Indiana should not consider $25 extravagant. As treasurer of the Assembly Union, I shall be glad to receipt for any amount which Unions or individuals may wish to contribute.

CORA M. STEELE,
Muncie, Ind.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

What is the Reply?

It is a complete and able reply to the report of the Committee of Fifty, who have maliciously attacked the endorsed physiologies and the scientific temperance teachings in the public schools.

Who appointed the Committee of Fifty?

They are self appointed. In 1893 a company of men, organized under the name of the Committee of Fifty, to investigate the liquor problem; sub-committees were chosen to consider different phases of the question.

On what bases do they object to the work in the public schools?

They object to it as frankly and honestly a total abstinence movement. Lord forgive it if it is not. They also cite for criticism the teaching that alcohol is not a food, but a poison. Yet they fail to prove that it is a food.

To whom should we give the Reply?

To superintendents, principals and teachers in the public schools, doctors, preachers, public libraries, colleges and universities, etc. Because the Committee of Fifty is sending their report of 800 pages all over the land and we must meet it.

This is the great work of the State at present and every county should be doing something. Send to your State Superintendent or Mrs. Brand for supplies. The Reply is $2.00 per hundred.

MATTIE CAMMACK-GIBSON,
State Superintendent, L. T. L.

THE HEPBURN-DOLLIVER BILL

provides that no liquor can be shipped into Prohibition territory by express companies, railroads, etc.

The World's Work for November, 1903, gives the following exhibit of the extent of Prohibition in the south, showing how great an area and population is involved in the administration of the inter-state commerce laws.

It is no wonder the liquor lobby are bitterly opposed to the new law that would shut them out of this rich field.

THE SOUTH BECOMING PROHIBITIONIST.

In the southern states there is a strong and effective Prohibition movement, which proceeds not by states, but by counties and towns and neighborhoods.

ARKANSAS—In Arkansas the manufacture and sale of liquors is prohibited in places where "no license" has been voted. Where a license may be procured, it costs $800. In 1902, out of 75 counties, 43 had declared against licensing. In Georgia, of 137 counties, 103 have voted "dry."

KENTUCKY—"In Kentucky, where, according to one of its most prominent citizens, "it is no longer genteel to drink," the counties may prevent or regulate the traffic. Prohibition is the law in 47 counties, partial Prohibition prevails in 54 counties and in 18 counties the liquor traffic is unrestricted.

MISSISSIPPI—Mississippi has Prohibition in 65 out of 75 counties.

NORTH CAROLINA—In North Carolina a new law prohibits saloons except in incorporated towns that vote otherwise. This is to abolish the country grogshop. For twenty years or more, on the petition of a certain number of citizens, saloons have been prohibited within a certain number of miles of a schoolhouse or of a church; and thus many neighborhoods have secured Prohibition. None can lawfully exist now outside of incorporated towns which choose to permit them. Mr. J. W. Bailey, a well-informed editor at Raleigh, regards the demand throughout the South for restriction as the first fruit of negro disfranchisement and an evidence of the new independence of the white people. No southern state could secure a majority for a Prohibition law if the negro voted.

TENNESSEE—Tennessee has a law prohibiting saloons near schoolhouses, whether the schools be in session or not. Incorporated towns of 5,000 population may decide by vote whether there shall be license or no license. Favorable reports are received of the operation of the law where license has been rejected. On September 1 there were 12 counties with saloons and 84 "dry" counties.

TEXAS—In Texas there are 200 Prohibition counties and other counties partially Prohibitionist, and only a few in which liquor-selling is not restricted. Oklahoma is feeling the effect of the movement on her border.

Altogether, in ten Southern states the voters have the opportunity to cast their ballots against licensing the manufacture or sale of liquors, and in one—South Carolina—it is a state monopoly. The South is, therefore, fast becoming Prohibitionist.

The price of the Reply to the Committee of Fifty is $16.00 per 1000, $2.00 per 100 or 20 copies for 50 cents. Smaller orders cannot be filled for less than 5 cents per copy. Every woman in our ranks ought to own a copy of this Reply and be thoroughly familiar with its contents. You will then see the urgent necessity of placing it in the hands of teachers, ministers and physicians. Mrs. Brand will fill all orders promptly.

Miss Belle Kearney's dates in Indiana have been cancelled. Miss Kearney will go abroad the first of May for a year's rest in Europe.

Rev. Anna Shaw, who is recognized as the greatest woman orator on the platform, will lecture in Indiana April 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. A few days later she will sail for Europe for an extended tour.

Mrs. Maria Weed, whom many of our women had the pleasure of hearing at the National Convention at Cincinnati, will begin a tour in Northern Indiana March 29, speaking on the Menace of Modern Mormonism. Indiana women are sending in a strong protest against Apostle Smoot.

If you have not written to Senator Beveridge, who is on the committee, please do so at once.

FIELD NOTES.

Linwood Union met at the home of the president, Mrs. Permelia J. Seal, February 17, and held a Memorial service in honor of Frances E. Willard's heavenly birthday.

Greencastle Union has organized a Loyal Temperance Union with forty-three members. Also has organized a Senior Legion. Mrs. S. A. Hazelett is the leader. Under her care the work is sure to succeed.

Bethany Park Summer Assembly is expecting to have Oliver Stewart to speak again on the afternoon of Prohibition Day and Miss Marie Brehm, the very strong and popular president of Illinois, in the forenoon.

Greensburg Union wishes to extend a cordial invitation to all the members of the ex-Committee and Superintendents through the columns of the MESSAGE and request all who expect to attend to send in their names at once to Mrs. Eva Watson, 115 West North street, Chairman Entertainment Committee.

Tippecanoe County—The executive meeting was held at Mrs. C. C. Robinson's, Perrin avenue, February 19, at 2:30 o'clock. The subjects under discussion were very interesting. The Unions are working in unison and there will be "An at Home" by the first of April for the benefit of the W. C. T. U. Treasury.

The roster of Tippecanoe County W. C. T. U., 1903-1904, is by far the most complete of anything of the kind we ever saw. The county officers are, President, Miss Eliza F. Baker; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. K. T. A. Straw; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Freeman Seney, and Treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Straw, all of LaFayette.

Indianapolis Meridian Union held a beautiful Frances E. Willard Memorial Service at the home of Mrs. Morgan on Broadway. Devotional service was led by Mrs. M. L. Foxworthy. She spoke of the personal life of Miss Willard, touching on her childhood days—how in her young womanhood she gave herself to Christ and became loving, patient and gentle. Mrs. Leck, the County President was present and gave an interesting account of meeting Miss Willard at the National W. C. T. U. Convention at Buffalo. She said she would always remember that last meeting, where with bowed heads and joined hands, Miss Willard prayed that no one speak disparagingly of the work and workers. Mrs. Gipe told of Miss Willard's self-sacrificing life, of her refusal of a fine position and a salary of $2,400 per year and acceptance of the Presidency of the Chicago W. C. T. U. without compensation. Her devotion to the cause was marvelous and her faith in humanity unlimited. The influence from this meeting will long continue. A recitation by Miss Lena Baker was much enjoyed. The meeting closed with a social hour.

W. C. T. U. Unions are chameleon like in the reflection of their membership. If the Union is known in the community as active and influential, it is because of the individual effort of the membership. If it is inactive and not considered a power, it is because of the inactivity of the membership. This may be from different reasons.

Crown Point Union held a meeting at the home of our newly elected President, Mrs. J. P. Merrill, last Tuesday afternoon. Our Union can report two new members, namely: Mrs. Juliet Reed Brown and Mrs. William Glover. Mrs. Merrill presented each member with a souvenir in honor of the birthday of our beloved National President, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens.

Marion Central Union held a Frances Willard Memorial service February 17, at the First Baptist Church. Rev. J. W. Clevenger, pastor of this church, delivered an address on the life of Miss Willard, which was highly appreciated by all present. Rev. Parker, who is assisting in the revival services at this church, rendered a very fine solo. A collection was taken for the "Organization Fund." Two new members were added to the Union.

Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, National Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction, will be in the middle west for a month or more, beginning about April 15 County or Local Unions in Indiana desiring to take advantage of this opportunity to arrange for a public or teachers' institute addressed by Mrs. Hunt are requested to write her at once, stating dates preferred. Terms and dates open for engagements will be given on application. Address Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, 23 Trull street, Boston, Mass.

Economy Union held its regular monthly meeting March 4 Subject: "Sabbath Observance." Interesting papers and readings, interspersed with music, occupied the hour. The Union then divided with two leaders, Miss Daisy Osborn and Bertha Marshall, to conduct a membership contest, a month to be allowed for the work. The division securing the most new members is to be entertained by the one securing fewest.

Marion—Shugart Union has 29 honorary members, six of whom are ministers of the Gospel. The ladies of the Union will give a public entertainment on March 16 at the home of L. L. Johnson, 1308 West Second street. Among other good things on the program there will be a debate. Subject: "Resolved, That the use of intoxicating liquors has caused more suffering to the human race in modern times than war." A great time is expected.

Commemorative meeting for Frances E. Willard was held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Bennett, February 9. The Rev. Dr. Vest, of Hall Place M. E. Church, made a most excellent address, after which a delightful surprise was given the County President, Mrs. A. B. Leck, by a presentation of the beautiful life of Frances E. Willard by the Union as a token of their love and appreciation of her work in the temperance cause. Two dollars as a free will offering was sent to the national treasurer.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. S. D. ANDERMAN—The following resolution, written by Mrs. D. H. Hollingshead, was adopted by the Hartford City W. C. T. U. in honor of Mrs. S. D. Anderman, whose death occurred February 29, 1904, was signed by the writer and committee of indorsement:

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father, to call from our midst, an esteemed member and a dear sister, Mrs. S. D. Anderman; therefore be it

Resolved, That while we bow in submission to Divine Will, we deeply mourn the loss of one bound to us by the tenderest ties of Christian companionship. One who was ever an exemplification of the motto of this grand organization—"For God and Home and Every Land."

Resolved, That we strive to imitate her life, that of doing for others as she would have others do unto her. And with never a look beyond her own little sphere, knowing that it was her Master's will and not her own.

Resolved, That in the death of Sister Anderman this society has sustained an almost irreparable loss, and the community loses an upright, genial Christian woman; therefore be it

Resolved, That while we do not thoroughly understand why this sad bereavement should have fallen so suddenly upon us, we will bow to the will of him who doeth all things well, and while deploring the untimely death of Sister Anderman, we have evidence from her last hours here on earth that our loss is her great gain; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend to her husband and children our heartfelt sympathies in this their hour of sad bereavement and earthly sorrow and bid them to look to that home on high, where wife and mother, at her Savior's feet, has heard the welcome words—"Thou good and faithful servant, well done."

Resolved, That as an earnest testimonial of our love for our dear departed sister that a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the records of this meeting and a copy be sent the family and also to each of our daily papers and the MESSAGE for publication.

MRS. D. H. HOLLINGSHEAD,
MRS. JASON HUGGINS,
MRS. E. A. WILLIS,
Committee.

GEORGE SHUGART—On February 9th, while the Deer Creek W. C. T. U. was celebrating its thirteenth anniversary the sad intelligence came of the death of one of our loved and respected honorary members, George Shugart. He was a grand good man, always and at all times loyal and true. His membership dates back almost to its organization and his unlimited faith in our achievements will certainly serve as a guide post for greater aims. He took great pleasure in wearing our badge on all public occasions and even from his casket it shined forth in all its glory. Our rank is once more broken, but with the clean pure life of George Shugart, we know there is one tie in the selected city thither we are all tending and he is now reaping the reward of the faithful.

ALBERT QUICK—Shugart Union has again been visited by the death angel. Albert Quick, an honorary member, passed away January 10, after an illness of several months. Brother Quick will be greatly missed from our midst and we could not but think, as we looked at him in his casket, with the little white bow he loved so well just over his heart, that if all professed Christian men would wear it how much easier it would be for the great Judge of the Universe to say on that great day, well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. He leaves a wife and one son, Guy, ten years old, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 5.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., MAY, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

REV. ALICE RUTH PALMER,
Treasurer Indiana W. C. T. U.

"Sunday liquor selling is the pirate of commercial life, preying upon all other trades and interests. On Sunday it robs the church and the home of the presence of fathers and brothers. Extending its relentless grasp forward into the week, it robs the Monday workshop of its employes, and the grocer, the baker, the butcher, of their legitimate share of the laborers' wages, which are monopolized by the liquor dealer, while the tipplers' families are left ragged and hungry. The liquor dealer is an Arab whose hand is against every man, and every man's hand should be against him. At the very least he should not be allowed a day more of each week than better merchants."

USING THE PRESS.

How the liquor men use the press in advancing their interests may be seen from a circular sent out to many newspaper editors by the superintendent of correspondence of the Brewers' and Distillers' Association.

After speaking of the dangers menacing the trade by the activity of its foes, the temperance people, the circular proceeds:

"In order, therefore, to protect ourselves and our business it is imperative that every means possible for self-protection be used. Our best friend is the newspaper. This being the case, we are going to make it worth something to them to stand by us in this thing. I have recently been put in charge of this department of work, with instructions to spare neither pains nor money in this, one of the hardest fights we have yet had to put up. What will you charge us for the use of say one of your editorial columns per week, we to furnish material, you to publish it as editorial matter? Of course we will have to be conservative in handling this organization, except where we are sure of our grounds; then we will make every edge cut to serve our purpose. And this matter will have to be kept sub rosa. This is my instruction, and I have to make a confident of you and I can make it pay you. Please let me have your terms as soon as possible, money to accompany each article. Yours truly."

That many newspapers have yielded to the temptation and editors have got their price is evident from the editorial articles that from time to time have appeared in some of the daily papers of the great cities, setting forth direful results of prohibition; the injustice of dispensing with the army canteen; garbled statistics to show the utter failure of prohibition everywhere. The articles were not rabid. On the contrary, they seemed the product of an anxious, conscientious patriot, seeking to do service to his country.—Exchange.

THE LATEST FROM ENGLAND—BRITISH PHYSICIANS WANT COMPULSORY TEMPERANCE EDUCATION.

Mr. Arthur Chamberlain, an English manufacturer and brother of Joseph Chamberlain, M.P., in a recent speech, said the only competitor he was afraid of was the United States and he only feared them because of their superior education and the fact that the people of that country drank only half as much intoxicating liquor as Englishmen.

A movement, inaugurated by physicians, is now on foot for the adoption by Great Britain of the educational method against drink.

About the middle of January, according to the British Medical Journal, the Council of the British Medical Association, through a committee of its members, among whom are Sir Lauder Brunton, Sir Henry Thompson, Sir William Turner, Sir Victor Horsley and Professor G. Sims Woodhead, asked every registered physician in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales to unite with them in signing a petition for the compulsory study of the laws of health, including elementary instruction on the nature and effects of alcohol.

This petition, which late advices from England show has already been signed by nearly 15,000 practitioners in all parts of Great Britain, states as its raison d'être the facts, that as members of the medical profession, the signers have constantly before them "the serious physical and moral conditions of degeneracy and disease resulting from the neglect and infraction of the elementary laws of hygiene," that "much of the degeneracy disease, and accident with which medical men are called upon to deal, is directly or indirectly due to the use of alcohol and that a widespread ignorance prevails concerning not only the nature and properties of this substance, but also its effects on the body and mind."

The petition reviews at some length the steps taken in other English speaking countries toward securing such instruction, namely, Canada and especially in the United States, where the petition says the "whole question is dealt with still more completely."

In view of the fact that this instruction is legally compulsory throughout the whole United States and that certain opponents have vainly tried to abolish such legal requirements and to postpone all teaching concerning the nature and effects of alcoholic drinks until the later school years, it is interesting to note the emphasis laid by this petition of British physicians upon the necessity of having the instruction compulsory and given at an early age. The signers state that under the present school arrangements in Great Britain health instruction is permissible, but they add:

"By this method effective instruction is given to a small proportion of the pupils only. This does not appear to us to be adequate. We believe that it should be compulsory and be given at a much earlier age than at present. We would urge the Board of Education of England and Wales, the Scotch Educational Department and the Irish Educational Authorities to include in the simple hygienic teaching which we desire, elementary instruction at an early age on the nature and effects of alcohol."

"Until the four Central Educational Authorities of the United Kingdom include this subject as a part of the system of National Education, it appears to us that the mass of the pupils must fail, as at present, to receive that systematic teaching of hygiene and of the nature and effects of alcohol which alone we consider adequate to meet the present need."

Thoughtful students of the present conditions in national life in Great Britain as in France, Germany and other European countries, are gravely concerned over the widespread drink evil with its direful consequences to individual and national well-being and prosperity. They are beginning to recognize the greater sobriety of our people and the educational methods which have helped bring about that sobriety as potent factors in the industrial and commercial success of the United States. They see, as shown by this petition from the physicians, that the hope of the nation lies in preventing the formation of drinking habits through education of the rising generation.

MARY H. HUNT.

PHYSICIANS AND EDUCATORS ON THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF FIFTY.

REPLY TO COMMITTEE OF FIFTY MADE A GOVERNMENT DOCUMENT.

The report of the Sub-Committee of the Committee of Fifty with its denunciations of our present system of public school temperance education and its condoning of moderate drinking, has elicited no chorus of approving comments from the medical and educational press, but the reverse.

WHAT MEDICAL JOURNALS SAY.

The Cincinnati Lancet Clinic, after publishing a long resume of the reply to the Sub-Committee by the National W. C. T. U., comments that the latter "seems to score at every point on which it takes issue" with the Sub-Committee.

The Chicago Medical Standard, referring to this reply, says:

"The danger of alcohol is such a real one, so subversive of the welfare of society, that it can hardly be emphasized too much, not of course, at the expense of truth. Yet the splitting of scientific hairs is hardly necessary on either side. Let the simple, unembellished truth be told to the children without reserve by all means. The horrors of alcoholism are not likely to be much overstated."

"The criticism that the indorsed text-books have been exaggerated can hardly be made against the later school books on physiology, written by professors in the Northwestern University Medical School and the Harvard Medical School. These are clean up-to-date and imbued with the teachings of modern science. To discontinue the public instruction in physiology with its bearings on the alcohol and tobacco questions would certainly be a mistake. But let us have accuracy by all means."

UNITED STATES SENATE SETS ITS SEAL OF APPROVAL ON THE REPLY TO THE COMMITTEE OF FIFTY.

On motion of the only member of the medical profession in the United States Senate, Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, the reply to the Physiological Sub-Committee of Fifty has been made a government document by unanimous consent of the Senate. Senator Gallinger was a physician of wide repute before he entered politics and therefore is accustomed to judge of these matters from a scientific standpoint. "It has been a pleasure to me," he writes, "to give wider circulation to this magnificent reply than it would have received had not the Senate placed its seal of approval upon it." This action by the Senate was the more significant because no one had asked that it be taken and every member had received a copy of the Reply, sent him as a matter of information, so had had the opportunity to know for what he was voting.

EDUCATIONAL CRITICISMS OF THE COMMITTEE OF FIFTY'S REPORT.

Educational papers protest energetically against the character of the report of the committee of Fifty.

Dr. A. E. Winship, of the Massachusetts State Board of Education, in an incisive editorial in the New England Journal of Education on the Bowditch-Hodge Report of the Sub-Committee concerning temperance education, says in part:

"There is nothing charged against the physiologies that is so unscientific as Dr. Bowditch's unscientific, undignified, unprofessional assumption that there is any scientific value to his '28 per cent,' '72 per cent,' '41 per cent' of results from answers from only one-fourth of those who should have answered."

"Intemperance is a crying evil; the habit of using intoxicants wrecks the health, the intellect, the morals of millions of Americans; the use of intoxicants tends to undo all that the schools aim to do; their use is a curse of the home, to industries, to municipal and political life."

"It is vastly better, in such a cause, to do a little too much than to do nothing."

"No eminent medical authority has ever made any appreciable effort to utilize the schools for the enlightening of youth regarding the dangers lurking in intoxicants."

"The W. C. T. U. has put a million times the effort into the enlightenment of youth on these subjects than has been put forth by all their critics combined."

An editorial in School and Home Education, a leading educational magazine of Illinois, says of the Committee of Fifty:

"What can be the motive of any committee of intelligent men in setting in array their influence against a movement, that, in spite of the want of skill in instructors in too many instances, is without question doing more to promote temperance in this nation than any other one influence now active, it is not easy to conceive. It certainly cannot be in the interest of science, nor can it be in the interest of better living among those who are wasting their earnings and destroying their bodies and souls in our dram-shops."

Again, in the March number of the same magazine, commenting on the Reply to the Sub-Committee, the editor says of the alcohol-a-food doctrine as promulgated by the Committee of Fifty:

"To call alcohol a food is to encourage hundreds of thousands to place in jeopardy their well-being"

MAY, 1904.

Columbus, Ind., October 21-24, State W. C. T. U. Convention.

Philadelphia, Pa., November, National W. C. T. U. Convention.

The MESSAGE should be received during the first days of each month by every paid regular member of every W. C. T. U. union in Indiana. Presidents, make inquiry and if any members do not receive their papers promptly, please write a card to Miss Alice Ruth Palmer, State Treasurer, Franklin, Ind., concerning the matter and she will give it immediate attention. The MESSAGE subscription lists are all in her charge.

The Mid-Year meeting of the State W. C. T. U. and the annual conference of the State Board of Superintendents were held in the clean city of Greensburg, April 7-8. Gracious hospitality was extended by the dear White Ribboners to all delegates.

The meetings were held in the beautiful M. E. Church, whose pastor, Rev. Geo. Murphey, extended a most cordial welcome. There were present all of the State officers except the dear faithful Secretary, Mrs. Mattie Cammack-Gibson, who was detained on account of the death of a nephew. The Branch Secretaries were both present. There was also present a goodly number of County Presidents and State Superintendents.

Encouraging reports were made by the State officers. The State Treasurer reported an increase of several hundred members thus far this year over the same quarters last year. Mrs. Lizzie Hahn, the President of the Hadley Industrial School Board, was present and reported the condition of the school and farm.

We are pleased to know that Mr. Luther Hadley, a splendid young man who lives adjoining our farm, has rented it for this year. Mr. Hadley is a successful farmer, whose wife was one of our own dear girls in the early days of the school. Much of our land is in timber and is used for pasture, but the tillable land will be well cared for by Mr. Hadley, who will make money for himself and for us. This seems a practical method. Four acres will be planted in potatoes.

For the summer most of the little girls will be allowed to go into the homes of some who invite them. Thus, during the summer time house cleaning and fruit canning, etc., can be more easily done without additional help.

There is need of money now for the home. Everybody interested is asked to present the needs of the institution to neighbors and friends and ask them to help in the One Dollar Hadley Fund. By this fund we are expecting to greatly help the home. All money to be sent to the Treasurer, Mrs. Mattie Chandler, Mooresville, Ind., Rural Route.

The Board of Superintendents were granted the privilege of holding a Diamond Medal Contest on Saturday evening of the State Convention at Columbus, with the understanding that $50 of the proceeds will be put into the W. C. T. U. State Treasury.

Excellent department meetings were held and much interest manifested in all lines of work.

The lecture by Rev. Anna Shaw on the first evening was eloquent, logical and convincing and greatly appreciated by a large audience.

Two contests were held on the second evening, very greatly to the delight of a large audience.

The contest arrangement was most unique, under the management of Mrs. Lou E. Rall, of Huntington. There were three oratorical contestants for a gold medal and four musical contestants for a silver medal.

In the beginning the meeting opened with prayer by Mrs. McWhirter and a recitation by beautiful little Ethel Crooks. Subject, What One Little Miss Knows.

The musical selections were all vocal solos. The first was The Slumber Boat, by Master Tommy Jenkins; recitation, Down with the Traffic, Harold Ogden; solo, The Old Church Bell, Miss Mary McKay; recitation, The Ballot of Bishop and Brewer, Miss Etta Montgomery; solo, Voices of the Woods, Master Elmer Edkins; recitation, Foundation Stories of the W. C. T. U., Miss Grace Doles; solo, The Merry Brown Thrush, Miss Florence Hazelrig.

A reading by Mrs. Josephine Walmer, of Bluffton, was greatly enjoyed while judges were out.

The musical medal was won by Miss Florence Hazelrig and presented by Mrs. Outland. The oratorical medal was won by Harold Ogden and presented by Miss Clara Sears. Benediction by Brother Lathrop. Thus closed a delightful evening entertainment.

ANTI-NARCOTICS.

DEAR SISTERS—In February I sent blanks to 20 County Superintendents and I have received reports from but three counties. I realize that this has been a very hard winter in which to work, but now the warm days are coming and our boys will wish to be out of doors after school hours. We cannot be with them so much and cannot watch them so closely and they are in constant danger. Let us work for them while they play and think for them while they sleep. Knowing, as we know, the effects of this habit upon our children, how can we be so indifferent when smoking boys are seen on every street corner, not only in our cities, but in our towns? What can we hope from the next generation if we do not interest ourselves in the morals of the children now with us?

Mrs. Ingalls, National Superintendent of this department, has prepared a small chart for use in lectures or blackboard work. With its help any woman could furnish an interesting program. The price is only two cents. The literature put out by the W. T. P. A. is the best I have read. Pledge cards and placards, with the Indiana tobacco law, can be procured from our State Treasurer, Rev. Alice Palmer. Will not every local president throughout the State send for a ten cent sample package of literature in this department and devote one meeting of her union to reading, or having this literature read? I am sure it would excite our interest in the work when none is now felt. Let us try to make life for our daughters, the future mothers, less hard than it has been made for us.

MRS. E. G. SMITH,
State Superintendent.

NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION—PRIZE BANNER.

As a wish has been expressed for a banner for this department, I have decided to have one ready for the next National Convention. It will be awarded to the state reporting the largest number of unions using the department book, Alcohol a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine, for study and distributing the most department literature. Pages of books or magazines must not be counted, but pages of non-alcoholic matter in department editions of state papers may be counted. The study of the book may be reported in two ways: first, the number of members reading it at home; second, the number of meetings at which it has been read from aloud for at least eight minutes. Award will be made proportionately to the entire number of unions in a state.

A $3 package of leaflets will be given to the local union sending the best all-round report.

MARTHA M. ALLEN,
27 Broad St., Oneida, N. Y.

EVANGELISTIC SUPERINTENDENTS.

It was my purpose to have a letter of instructions in the March MESSAGE, but was engaged in a revival service at the time the letter should have been written. I stated in the fall that I would not ask for quarterly reports, but would send out my blanks in the spring. The first report would include the work done up to March 15, the second the last half of the year ending September 15. As I have found it difficult to get reports from many of the Unions during former years I have decided (if the MESSAGE can give me the space) to have my questions printed in the MESSAGE so that all superintendents will be sure to have the questions. I have requested the superintendents to send me their names, but very few have granted my request. In some of the organized counties there is no county superintendent, so I have sent my blanks to the county president, requesting her to send them out to the local unions. Possibly some have failed to do this and the unions have not received the blanks. I have sent to the superintendents whose names I have. Any union having done evangelistic work is earnestly requested to answer as many of the following questions as possible and send the report to

THE HADLEY HOME NEEDS MONEY AND THAT VERY SOON.

By unanimous action of the Mid-Year Executive meeting it was decided to ask all friends of the institution to contribute to the One Dollar Hadley Fund. Especially was it desired that friends, not members of the W. C. T. U., should be asked to contribute. The contributions will all be reported in the MESSAGE. The following contributions have been made:

Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, Moore's Hill, $1.00; Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, Richmond R. R., $1.00; Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, Indianapolis, $1.00; Mrs. Ida Mix, Kokomo, $1.00; Prof. M. Vayhinger, Moore's Hill, $1.00; Mrs. Matilda Johnson, $1.00; Master Paul Vayhinger, Moore's Hill, $1.00; Little Lois Vayhinger, $1.00; Mrs. Josephine Walmer, Bluffton, $1.00; Mrs. Sophia Toner, Martinsville $1.00; Mrs. S. M. Stahl, Hartford City, $1.00; Mrs. Lizzie Hahn, Indianapolis, $1.00; Mr. Shellhorn, Greensburg, $1.00.

In sending contributions for this special One Dollar Hadley Fund be sure and mention the purpose intended. Send all money by post office money order to the treasurer of the Hadley School Board.

TO THE MOTHERHOOD OF INDIANA.

In the erection of a building we must lay a good foundation and so it is in the true work of the W. C. T. U. Christ must be the foundation stone on which we build and we must begin work and unceasingly continue to work and if the children of our nation are taught principles of truth and righteousness and their environments and inheritance are made pure, it will not take many generations to purify the ballot box and place in congress men or women that will not sustain the saloon with all its evil deeds. Why not begin with the babies in the White Ribbon Cradle Roll? First in order to organize a W. R. C. R. the Union should appoint a Superintendent and she ought to be an enthusiastic, wide-awake, consecrated woman, one that loves children. As I have said again and again, do not confine your work to the members of the W. C. T. U. Others will gladly help you and by assisting will become interested in the work. Call upon the women, urge them to attend the meetings, make them feel you need them as well as they need the meeting. Keep a record of all your work and then be sure to report to your County Superintendent, that she may report to the State. A new feature has been added to the W. R. C. R. in the form of Cradle Roll Contests and a beautiful silver medal awarded to the child who receives the highest marks. The Cradle Roll Contests are to be conducted much like the W. C. T. U. Contests. Three judges are to be chosen and they are to use blanks marking on voice articulation, memory, gesture and general effect. The medals for this work may be obtained of Mrs. A. E. Carmen, 291 Oakley Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. In order to secure money for the medal and other expenses I would suggest an admission fee of a nickel or a free will offering. Temperance pieces should be used. We cannot begin too early with the children, to educate them against the sin and danger of intemperance. For that reason let us start in the cradle to contest for right and righteousness. Now, dear mothers, to the work. How many White Ribbon Cradle Roll members will you obtain and how many W. R. C. R. contests will you hold this year?

MRS. S. M. STAHL,
State Superintendent.

HIS EXPERIENCE WITH AILMENTS.

By GRANT HEDRICKS.

He was big and strong and husky and he never had been ill. Till he read an advertisement of the Lightning Liver Pill. Which extolled the wonderful merits of a remedy so sure, There was scarce an ailment known to man it ever failed to cure.

He never knew that he was sick until he chanced to look through the interesting pages of this timely little book. It treated of diseases that mankind has long endured, And the simple plan to be pursued in order to be cured.

First he found he had a liver that was surely out of whack; As he read about his kidneys he felt trouble in his back; And as he kept on reading, lower did his spirits fall, For of twenty-seven ailments he had symptoms of them all.

So he bought a box of Lightning Pills and used them every day, Thinking that his trifling ills would take heels and fade away; But his thoughts they never realized, for in a month or two He had the same old symptoms and some others that were new.

Then he wrote off to a "specialist" who advertised a cure By means of an electric belt—he guaranteed it sure, So he bought a thirty dollar belt. It hadn't long been tried Before his ills were aggravated by some blisters on his side.

After many kinds of treatment he was pretty near a case, And the slimmer grew his pocket book, the thinner grew his face.

Till one day, like Newton's apple, something struck his bigot head, Why in blazes don't you exercise? the thought that struck him said.

Now he's big and strong and husky, as he never was before; All his ailments have departed and they'll bother him no more, He has no more use for doctors, with their tonics and their pills,

Since he took his daily exercise to cure him of his ills.

COMMON SALT IS A VERY VALUABLE MEDICINE AND IS GOOD FOR ALMOST ANYTHING.

Salt cleanses the palate and furred tongue, and gargle of salt and water is often efficacious. A pinch of salt on the tongue, followed ten minutes afterward by a drink of cold water, often cures a sick headache. Salt hardens gums, makes teeth white and sweetens the breath. Weak ankles should be rubbed with solution of salt water. Rose colds, hay fever and kindred affections may be much relieved by using fine dry salt like snuff. Dyspepsia, heartburn and indigestion are relieved by a cup of hot water in which a small spoonful of salt has been melted. Salt and water will sometimes relieve an unconscious person when hurt. Hemorrhages from tooth pulling are stopped by filling the mouth with salt and water. Weak and tired eyes are refreshed by bathing with warm water and salt. Public speakers and many noted singers use a wash of salt and water before and after using the voice, as it strengthens the organs of the throat. Salt rubbed into the scalp or occasionally added to the water in washing prevents the hair falling out.—Table Talks.

SPECIAL TO FLOWER MISSION SUPERINTENDENTS.

As June 9, the anniversary of Jennie Casseday's birthday draws near, there is much for each of us to do who has undertaken the responsibility of this department. And I am sure it is a willing and beautiful service. So let us consult together as to how to make this Flower Mission day of more far reaching influence than ever before.

Would it not be wise to hold the Flower Mission meeting as soon as possible? Of course each local Superintendent will plan for this meeting before June 9 so as to derive the benefit from interest thus aroused for a larger celebration this year than usual. Now, in arranging for this meeting, first send for several copies of a Program for a Flower Mission Meeting by Lella M. Sewall. It will afford you a delightful afternoon without any unnecessary effort on your part if you assign each number to some one who will lend enthusiasm to the execution thereof. On the program there is the Flower Mission Responsive Reading, Frances Willard and the Lamplighter and The Development of the Flower Mission and these leaflets, with the program, will cost but a few cents. So send for them and hold an interesting meeting. Invite friends interested in the Flower Mission, outside of the W. C. T. U. and the information obtained may induce them to co-operate with you.

If there is a Loyal Temperance Legion connected with your Union they may greatly assist you and there is a program that can be ordered for them. Especially on June 8 and 9 let them help gather flowers and make bouquets.

Very important to us is our contribution towards the observance of Flower Mission day at the World's Fair. Our National Superintendent has requested that each State contribute toward a general fund to be used in distributing flowers and text cards at the Exposition in St. Louis on Jennie Casseday's birthday, June 9. This appeals to us as a beautiful plan and I feel certain that Indiana will do her part. So let each local Superintendent of Flower Mission, at the very next meeting of the Union, having previously asked the members to bring pennies, nickels and dimes—take a collection. (If there is no meeting, please manage some other way to collect the money.) And send twenty-five cents to me for this State contribution. Keep the remainder of the collection to aid you in your local work—to buy text cards, literature, postage, etc.

Do not fail to send twenty-five cents to me by May 16, so that the contribution from Indiana may be sent on time to our National Superintendent.

As to June 9, the great day of this department, there are many suggestions for each worker. I hope many of our W. C. T. U. members have planted seeds early enough to have bright blossoms to send her Superintendent for Flower Mission day. (If not, plant some seeds now, so as to have flowers the rest of the season.)

Each Union is responsible for the visitation of every public institution in its vicinity on June 9. If any Hospital, Jail, Reform School, Orphan's Home or the Kindergarten is located in a town where there is no W. C. T. U.—let the unions in the same county arrange with those in charge of these institutions to receive boxes of bouquets on that day. If possible, send some members of the W. C. T. U. to hold a public service in each institution when the flowers are distributed. Of course the sick, poor and discouraged in each of our towns will be remembered by a bouquet.

The express companies will ship boxes of flowers, bearing the Flower Mission tag, free of charge.

Let each local Superintendent arrange a certain place to have the flowers sent and also have a committee of helpers appointed.

Solicit immediately contributions of flowers, so as to know from whom you may receive them and also so they may be saved for you.

Do not delay in ordering a sufficient supply of text cards, to be tied with a tiny white ribbon on each bouquet.

Try to make five hundred bouquets. Send slips of plants and many times flower seeds would be very acceptable.

Don't send frail flowers that will easily fade. Daisies, pansies, golden glow, sweet peas, zinnias, asters, mignonette, chrysanthemums, dahlias, carnations and nasturtiums keep well.

Interest your florists. Often they are very liberal. Keep a record of all that is done in your union and right here let me say: There are over twenty counties whose superintendent of Flower Mission has not been reported to me. I have requested that these names and addresses be sent, but only a few have responded. So, if each local superintendent, who has not had her report blanks, will send me a postal with her address, I will be very grateful, for I am anxious to secure the report of the work each union is accomplishing in this department.

Remember that in the February MESSAGE is a list of the supplies for this department. Each local Superintendent should have a copy of each leaflet and also plenty of literature on hand for distribution. Send always to Miss Lella M. Sewall, 330 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass., for orders of supplies.

MISS LUELLA S. MCWHIRTER,

"Rosabower," Greencastle, Ind. State Superintendent.

The Press Reporters of the Unions can do much in wisely giving out information concerning the work of the Union. Mrs. Charles Webb, the efficient faithful reporter for the Greencastle Union, reported that statements were made in the Union to the effect that the young boys of the town were frequenting the pool rooms and quoted the law in regard to minors and poolrooms as it had been discussed in the meeting. In a short time the officers of the law cleared the pool rooms of minors and gave them to understand that the law would be enforced. This all because of the publicity given to the fact that the Union understood the law.

here and perhaps forever, who would avoid the danger if the whole truth were known.

"The part of essential value in man is the moral will. What is the physical effect of alcohol upon those cells of the body that help to reinforce the moral will? suggests a line of investigation that the scientist will do well to follow before he hastens to proclaim that alcohol is a food, thus leading the ignorant to class it with bread and meat as diet. It certainly often undermines the health and leads to moral weakness and imbecility. What leads to this is certainly not food as the term is understood by the plain people."

Hon. Henry Sabin, ex-Superintendent of Public Instruction in Iowa, writes as follows in the Journal of Education of February 25:

"Whatever charges are made against the system of scientific temperance instruction may, with equal force, be brought against every effort to control and abolish the gigantic evils which threaten American youth of today. In certain quarters the practice of inculcating total abstinence seems to be offensive and yet no one was ever harmed by such teaching. On the other hand, no one can deny that hundreds, even thousands have been ruined through habits which commenced with the moderate use of intoxicants.

"Let me quote an extract from the report of the Committee of Fifty as telegraphed to the Ottawa Sun: 'Failing to observe the distinction between the diametrically opposite conceptions of use and abuse, some of the advocates of temperance education have not hesitated to teach our children that the horrible results of a prolonged use of alcohol may be expected to follow any departure from total abstinence.'

"That is not far from the truth, because we do aim to teach them that there is a possibility and a very strong one at that, that the dire results of intemperance may follow any departure from total abstinence. We are earnest enough in our determination to impress upon the plastic mind of the child that the origin of the drink habit is in allowing it to fasten itself upon them when the mind and body are alike in that plastic state which is incident to early childhood."

These citations from the medical and educational press tell their own story. The fallacy that moderate drinking is safe has been disproved by centuries of bitter experience and again by modern science. The teachers and physicians of the United States will not be the ones to give it new lease of life in the coming generation.

FIELD NOTES.

Our Dear Mrs. Smith, President of Milroy Union, was recently called home. The union is not holding its regular meetings.

Headquarters for Temperance Literature 915, the Silversmiths Building, 131-137 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill. Miss Ruby Gilbert, Manager.

Mrs. Mattie Cammack-Gibson recently gave a talk at a meeting of the Gas City Union on the subject, Give me this Mountain, which was quite an inspiration to the union.

Since the State Convention our president, Mrs. Vayhinger, has organized eight unions and Clark county, spent one week in Columbus, Franklin, Shelbyville and Muncie. She has secured 176 members.

May 8th is our next Temperance Sunday and order your red, white and blue pledge cards now of Mrs. Lida Outland, of Upland. Be sure that enough cards are sent for, so that every child in your Sunday Schools have one.

Bright Union held its second Silver Medal contest for this year on March 31 in the M. E. Church. There were six contestants: Anna Blasdel, Clara Sierfferman, Edith Sears, Esther Jackson, Bertha Kaiser and Guy Hurley. The medal was awarded to Miss Bertha Kaiser. Our Union has a membership of 19.

Mrs. Katie Wert Holler, of South Bend, delivered an address on the Sabbath of the Twentieth Century, at the First Christian Church in Mishawaka recently. She laid emphasis upon the thought that the maintenance of the Sabbath is essential to the success of the gospel.

Mrs. Stanley, in all of her lectures, is making quite prominent the Non-Alcoholic phase of the temperance reform and is creating much interest on this line. Flattering reports come to me of her Non-Alcoholic speeches everywhere. Try her and report.

A. T. WHITSON,
State Superintendent.

Wayne County Union held an executive meeting March 18, to prepare a program for the County Institute to be held at Richmond, April 14 and 15. The Economy Union has just shipped a barrel of canned and dried fruit to Hadley Home. We now have a membership contest on hand. The County President, Mrs. Hannah W. Stanley, attended the Mid-Year Executive at Greensburg.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Vice-President, has just finished a week's work in Wells County. Mrs. Walmer, President of the County, writes: Mrs. Stanley excited great enthusiasm in our work. She secured twenty-nine active members and six honoraries. We made her expenses and $6.00 above. She is a power of God. I wish we had a hundred such in Indiana and a thousand in the nation.

Huntington Union has prepared and printed a funeral ritual suitable for unions to use in case of death of one of its members. There has seemed to be a need for something like this and a very beautiful service has been arranged. Any unions desiring these can secure the same for fifty cents per hundred, thirty-five cents per fifty or twenty-five cents per twenty-five. Send orders to Mrs. Lou E. Rall, Huntington, Ind.

Rev. Anna Shaw delighted her many audiences in Indiana. On April 14 she sailed for Naples. She will spend five weeks in Italy, one month in England with Miss Susan B. Anthony and one month in Spain and one month in Switzerland, on Lake Geneva at Vevey, with Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Mrs. Richard Foster Avery, who is there now with two daughters in school. Miss Shaw will return to America October 1. While abroad she will attend the International Council of Women of Berlin and the International Suffrage Association.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley delivered the lecture on Non-Alcoholic Medication at Fairmount, Grant county, on the evening of the 9th to a delighted audience. She also gave it on Sunday morning, the 10th, at Gas City, at the close of which ten new members were enrolled, six of them honorary. All were pleased with her address except those who were so unfortunate as to fail to hear it. She lectured at Marion on Sunday evening to a large and highly appreciative audience. Many were standing, but showed no signs of weariness.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley lectured at Second Friends Church, South Marion, last Sunday night, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. The church was taxed to its utmost capacity, standing room being at a premium so to speak. Mrs. Stanley held her audience spell bound for an hour and a half with her convincing arguments. Many expressed themselves as being willing to listen much longer. Mrs. Stanley is a most fluent speaker, never being at a loss for something to say and she certainly accomplished much good in this vicinity.

Order Flower Mission Literature of Miss Lella M. Sewall, National Superintendent, 330 Massachusetts Avenue, Boston, Mass.

Plainfield Union held a very successful Gold Medal contest on March 23 in the Christian Church. There were six contestants, each of whom had made special preparation and the recitations were all well rendered, the music impressive and appropriate. Miss Ida Newlin was awarded the medal. The receipts were very satisfactory.

Hon. Chas. Dick, who has just been elected to fill Senator Hanna's place as U. S. Senator from Ohio, was at one time a member of a woman suffrage club in Akron and has always been willing to assist the Ohio suffragists. His future will be watched with interest.

North Manchester Union is moving along. We have nine new members since last October. We have been working along the lines of Law Enforcement and Christian Citizenship. Our community has successfully combatted seventeen applications for saloon license since last June. We had eight saloons and three applications to begin with. We have one left whose time will be out on the 25th of May, but we are ready for him. They are still filing applications. They have been desperate, have stolen our power of attorney, but we now have a better one. We hope that all this will make Prohibition votes.

At Vincennes—We have held Gospel Union Temperance meetings for about twenty-six months on Sunday evenings at the different churches, with the ebb and flow that usually attend such services. New faces often appear and a man now and then declares for prohibition after relating some recent experience or circumstance. A committee from the W. C. T. U. usually gets leaders from influential Christians and thanks them for services. Meetings are never dull—rather warm at times and the leader, as well as people, go away thinking, evidently. Our Union is now placing a Wall Pledge Roll in all Sunday Schools.

Elkhart—A very beautiful and appropriate Frances E. Willard Memorial service was held by the Elkhart Central W. C. T. U. at Trinity M. E. Church on the afternoon of February 21. The Crusade Psalm was read, prayer offered by D. Middleton. "Some Glad Day" was sung as a solo by Mrs. Alice Shaffer, the audience joining in the chorus. Rev. Summer-ville Light, who spoke on Frances E. Willard as teacher and leader, said "he would fain have such a beautiful and inspiring song always to introduce his talks;" his words were humming words and were to be printed in the Elkhart papers. Rev. M. A. Tompkins spoke on "Lives that live on after the body is moulded to dust." (Sent to the Phalanx.) Rev. Mr. Wheeler gave a fine talk on "Aims and purposes of the W. C. T. U. originating with Miss Willard." A collection was taken for National Memorial Organization. Mrs. D. Work is President.

Central Union of LaFayette met at the home of the Secretary, Mrs. Frank Hecker, Friday, March 11, 2:30 p. m., with a good attendance and several visitors. Much business was transacted, followed by a paper read on "Citizenship" by Mrs. Shagley. Much good work is being done by the Flower Mission Superintendent. A Missionary Spirit seems to have possession of the membership and a new Union will certainly be the outcome of their efforts. They will entertain the Spring Institute in May. Dainty refreshments were served at close of meeting. The regular monthly meeting of Tippecanoe County Officers and Superintendent was held Friday, March 18, 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Webb. These meetings are found to be very profitable. A reception at the home of Mrs. Dr. Souders will be given by Central W. C. T. U. March 25th, afternoon and evening. The work is progressing.

Tippecanoe County Union held a reception at the home of Mrs. Dr. Souders, 611 South street, LaFayette, on Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings. The White Ribbons are cold water people, but the steady down pour Friday was a little too much at a time, hence a continuation over to Saturday. The house was beautiful with potted plants and cut flowers; in the dining room were yellow jonquils and tulips and in the coffee room were white ones. Yellow and white knots of ribbon were given as favors. The hostess and the presidents of the various unions received the members of the unions, their husbands and friends. There was a good attendance in spite of the inclemency of the weather and every one had a good time. A fine musical program was given and a generous silver offering taken.

The Grand Diamond Medal Contest given on the evening of March 2 in Wysor's Grand Opera House in Muncie, was given under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. for the benefit of the County Hospital Fund. The use of the Opera House was donated. The contest was very largely attended by a most representative audience, nearly all the seats on the lower floor being taken at fifty cents each. The five contestants represented as many counties in our State. Miss Vesta Simmons, of DeSoto, was awarded the medal. The program was fine. Overture, High School Orchestra; Declaration, "Swore Off," Hazlip Clark, Indianapolis; Oration, "The Way of the World," E. R. Warne, Pendleton; Solo, L. H. Colvin; Oration, "Christian Patriotism," Miss Blanche Shepherd, Redkey; Oration, "The Enemy Under the Flag," Mr. Conn, Marion; Solo, Harry Paris; Oration, "The Court of Last Appeal," Miss Vesta Simmons, DeSoto; Piano Solo, Prof. Ira McKinney; Music, High School Orchestra. The judges were Mr. F. T. McWhirter, of Indianapolis; Prof. E. P. Trueblood, Richmond, and Miss Laura Quick, of Anderson.

At Bloomington the temperance people won a battle royal, extending over three days. By remonstrance three applicants for liquor license were defeated. All the saloons in Bloomington are in the First ward. In a month there will be at least four more applications made. The license and anti-license fight has just begun and every voter in the ward will be counted for or against the saloon. The cost of the trial will amount to $100 or more and will be paid by the losing side.

At Bluffton Rev. Anna Shaw appeared before a large and appreciative audience in the M. E. Church and established a reputation as a profound and original thinker and an eloquent, graceful speaker. She is equally charming off the platform and has won many adherents. A burning conviction of the injustice of present social conditions, a quenchless enthusiasm in humanity's behalf, an unshakable faith in the ultimate conquest of right over wrong. Her field is the world and nearly every day in the week, often twice on Sunday, crowded audiences hang on the inspiring words, which drop like living coals from the lips of this woman consecrated to the work of God.

ARAMINTA BELLE HAWKER,
Wells County Press Superintendent.

The Salem W. C. T. U. held a Frances E. Willard Memorial service at the residence of Mrs. Alice H. Menaugh, March 17. The roll call was answered by quotations from Miss Willard's writings and the songs selected were her favorites. After reading the 20th Chapter of St. John and prayer by Mrs. Shrum, Mrs. Faulkner read a paper from the pen of Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, President of the National W. C. T. U. upon the life and character of our beloved chieftain, which was highly edifying; this was followed by short talks from others. Miss Carrie St. John, on behalf of her father, who was unable to be present, read a paper, a splendid eulogy on the life and service of Miss Willard. This paper was full of interest throughout and so greatly appreciated by those present that it was ordered to be published in full. Mrs. Mary Overman recited a beautiful poem written in memory of Miss Willard. Other members of the Union read choice and interesting selections. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Batchelor. While refreshments were being served Miss St. John rendered beautiful piano selections. A number of visitors and influential citizens were present. Many persons present were greatly impressed with the program and ceremonies of the afternoon and keenly felt, though she be dead, she still lives.

Marion County News—A very interesting memorial program was given by the Central Union, February 17, at the residence of Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand. A review of Bernie Babcock's book—the Uncrowned Queen, was read by Mrs. Gertrude Morrow. Mrs. Martha Gipe gave a most interesting talk on Madame Willard and her influence on her daughter's life. The musical program was furnished by Miss Thompson and Mrs. Bennett Kieler. Mrs. Brand served a very dainty lunch.

Francis E. Willard memorial was observed by Palmer Union, West Indianapolis, with an all day meeting. Forty guests were entertained. Mrs. McCain, Union President, presided. Papers and addresses were given by Mrs. Ada B. Leck, County President, Miss Gertrude Morrow, Mrs. Mary Moody and Rev. Hemmenway. Devotional exercises led by Rev. Anna Cox. Mrs. Leck spoke of a convention attended by her and of the request of Frances Willard that those present pledge themselves never to speak discouragingly of the work or disparagingly of the workers. This pledge and one to observe more strictly, the hour of noontide prayer, were taken by those present.

At the regular monthly meeting of Meridian Union Mrs. Mary Moody, County Superintendent of the Anti-Narcotic department, gave a talk on the alarming increase of cigarette smoking among children and the effect this habit is having upon their moral characters. Mrs. Carr conducted the devotional exercises.

A mass meeting was held by Broad Ripple Union, Sunday, March 20. Mrs. Carr and Mrs. Martha Gipe conducted the Mothers' Meeting, which was well attended and created much temperance sentiment.

Easter Evening in the West Branch Church, in the vicinity of the Marion Normal College, the Deer Creek W. C. T. U. held their annual free-will offering services for the benefit of the Hadley Industrial School for girls. Much interest and enthusiasm was manifested, as a beautiful program was rendered to a large and appreciative audience. Much interest was enlisted in the soliciting contest, previously inaugurated by the treasurer, making a loan of ten cents to each member as a talent fund and as an inducement to greater effort a beautiful bouquet of carnations was given to the one that could improve or enlarge their talent the greatest number of times. The result was very gratifying indeed, as the sealed envelopes were opened to see the dollars and cents begin to tumble all over each other in their haste to be counted. In short, more than $40 were realized and while the Deer Creek Union is rejoicing with thankful hearts for the liberality and benevolence of our community, we also know that the dear girls at Hadley will reap great benefit in a practical way. The first prize, a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations, was awarded to Mrs. Sarah E. Thomas, whose envelope contained $6.70. The second prize, a handsome basket of Easter eggs, was won by Mrs. Cora Drakemiller, whose talent had developed into $6.10. Thus the good work goes on.

Kokomo Union celebrated their thirtieth anniversary March 18. In the Friend's Church, the same church where the meeting was held March 18, 1874, the same songs were sung and the same scripture lesson read, the 13th Chap., 1st Cor., Mrs. Emily Ellis conducting the devotional exercises. Minutes of the last meeting March 8 was read by our present Secretary, Mrs. Lydia Kirkpatrick and the minutes of the first meeting, held March 18, 1874, was read by Miss R. B. Street, the Secretary elected June, 1874. Roll call of all members from 1874 to 1877 showed the membership numbered 81. Nine of these were present: Mrs. J. G. Turner, Mrs. Emily Ellis, Miss R. B. Street, Mrs. M. J. H. Wooton, Mrs. Ruth Trueblood, Mrs. Hannah Hockett, Mrs. Debbie Hollowell, Miss Mattie Dixon and Mrs. Anna Hollowell. Five sent greetings, Mrs. Elizabeth Haskett, Mrs. L. B. Branson, of Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Mattie Newlin, of Westfield, Ind., Mrs. E. E. Dixon and Mrs. Mary Darnell, living in Kokomo, but not able to attend. Twenty-four did not respond but are living, the other forty three has passed to their reward. Paper, Our Work, Mrs. Ida M. Mix; Solo, Some Glad Day, Mrs. Henrietta Arnold. Two minute speeches by the crusaders and charter members of the Union. Paper, Our Victories, Miss Carrie Styer. A great deal of interest was manifested and several new members gained.

South Bend Chapin Park Union ladies were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. C. Fassnacht, 601 Park avenue, Thursday afternoon, March 17. The meeting was in charge of the Mothers' department and was attended by eighty ladies. Following a delightful social hour an excellent program was rendered, Miss Huntsman opening with a piano solo, followed by a vocal selection by Mrs. Harter, after which Mrs. Priscilla Beyrer let in prayer. Mrs. C. Fassnacht, the County president, gave a most excellent address on Learn to Think, at the close of which she very justly observed that home is where the plastic mind of the child is trained and the character moulded and shaped. Mrs. Will Taylor then sang Mother's Prayer and Mrs. O. Cotton, President of the Union, gave an excellent paper upon Purity and Home Influence, which was followed by an animated discussion. Mrs. A. Staples gave a talk on the responsibility of mothers. A song Tell Mother I'll be There, was beautifully sung by Miss Ethel Barker, after which dainty refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. Chapin Park Union, under the leadership of our talented and sweet spirited President, Mrs. O. Cotton, is accomplishing much good work. New members are being added at every meeting and the aim is to gain fifty new members before state convention. The departments of Sabbath observance and Mothers' Meetings are being pushed vigorously. Clothing valued at thirty dollars was sent to the Hadley Home. This union is proud to claim as one of its members our enthusiastic County President who so wisely subscribes for the New Crusader for every boy in her large Sunday School class.

Marion County Board of Department Superintendents held their first conference in this year, February 10, at the residence of Mrs. E. G. Smith, in Indianapolis. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Carrie Quinn, President, Mrs. Ada B. Leck, County President, presided. Mrs. Leck spoke of the object of department superintendents, conferences and of the benefit derived from them by local workers. Mrs. Mary Moody spoke on Scientific Temperance Instruction, and gave a report of work done in Juvenile Court along Anti-Cigarette lines, also led a discussion on Household Economics. Miss Robertson, from Indianapolis Flower Mission, was presented by Miss Clara Metz. Miss Robertson gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the object and work of the mission, and asked the co-operation of local superintendents in friendly visiting. Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, State Corresponding Secretary, then talked of some of the most important subjects before temperance people at the present time, in her usual clear and forcible manner. The report of the Committee of Fifty and the Hepburn-Dolliver bill received the most attention. Mrs. Gipe, Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings, gave an excellent plan of work for local superintendents. She urged a carefully prepared program, dealing with one subject for use at each meeting. Mrs. Frances Metz, Superintendent of L. T. L., gave her plan for physical culture and gymnasium work for senior L. T. L's. Mrs. Metz introduced Mrs. Guffrie, L. T. L. Secretary in Lucy Thurman Union, who told of the need of this work among her people. Mrs. Ellen Davis and Mrs. A. Geyer led the devotional exercises. This conference was well attended and much enjoyed.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. J. W. RIDGEWAY, LaPorte, has gone to her reward. Her work on earth ended March 21, when she was admitted to the home of the blest. Brother Ridgeway has the tenderest sympathy of the LaPorte W. C. T. U., of which she was a charter member, proving herself an efficient worker to the last.

In the going away of our dear friend, Mrs. J. W. Ridgeway, of LaPorte, the W. C. T. U. of Indiana has lost one of its truest, most generous and devoted friends. Mrs. Ridgeway gave most generously in the days of the Organizer Stock Co. and to the Fair Cottage and later to the Hadley Industrial School. The Library Room in the school bears her name. For years, through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Ridgeway, the LaPorte W. C. T. U. has had most beautiful headquarters, consisting of several large rooms built purposely for their use in a fine business block on a main street. Our cause has lost a staunch friend and we are grieved. She has gained eternal rest and happiness. The MESSAGE extends cordial sympathy to the lonely bereaved husband, our friend, Mr. J. W. Ridgeway.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 6.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., JUNE, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

As it is nearing the time for our State L. T. L. Convention, which will be held on June 17 at Marion, Indiana, I take this opportunity through the MESSAGE to urgently ask each local Treasurer to please be prompt in sending in their dues, so that I may have them by the 15th day of June. Hoping we will have a good convention, I extend to all a most cordial invitation to be present.

NATHAN LENFESTY,
State Treasurer.

Marion, Ind.

L. T. L. CONVENTION.

Before this MESSAGE reaches you, all L. T. L. Branch Secretaries whose names have been sent to the State Secretary will have received a circular letter, but for fear some may not have gotten one, and also to bring the convention before all our minds, I call attention to it through the columns of the MESSAGE.

The Executive is especially anxious that every Senior Legion send its report to the different superintendents of departments. These superintendents are: Medal Contests, Miss Susie McWhirter, Greencastle; Anti-Gambling, James E. Mix, Kokomo; Anti-Narcotics, Fred. Carter, Westfield; Flower Mission, Miss Korilla Samse, Kokomo; Mercy, Ralph Rinard, Plymouth. We beg every Senior Legion in the State to send in reports to the above named superintendents. May we not expect full reports this year?

As our Corresponding Secretary has moved out of the State I will be glad, indeed, to receive any interesting item that is not included in your department reports.

The Voting Convention is composed of the general officers, State branch secretaries, local and county branch secretaries and all paid up graduates in attendance. This is according to Article 8 of our constitution and means that no one can have a vote in this convention unless their 25 cent dues are paid to the Treasurer, Nathan Lenfesty, Marion, by June 15. All Seniors and Juniors are welcome as visitors.

And this leads me to say that I trust every Secretary of a Senior L. T. L. will bring those Seniors to the convention, whether they are graduates or not. You will be repaid many, many times by the increased enthusiasm which they will have for the Legion. There is wonderful inspiration in a State meeting. No L. T. L. Secretary can afford to miss it. My own heart is full of this convention, and I cannot but urge a large attendance from each Legion. Come early. Our time is very limited, and we must begin the program on time. Come, praying that God will bless our coming together. Sincerely yours in the L. T. L.

EDITH HILLIS,
State President.

WORLD'S FAIR TEMPERANCE HEADQUARTERS.

Temperance headquarters at the World's Fair will be in the Christian Endeavor Hotel, located at one of the gates of the fair grounds. In this immense hotel, with a daily capacity of more than 3,000 guests, one section has been secured for the W. C. T. U. headquarters. These rooms will be under the general hotel management, but will be personally superintended by Mrs. Piola Moore, formerly President of the Dexter (Mo.) W. C. T. U., and Miss Carrie Lee Carter, National lecturer and organizer for the W. C. T. U., both residing at the hotel and devoting their entire time to looking after the comfort of guests. It is a splendid location, adjoining an entrance to the fair, with direct street car service from the Union Station and all parts of the city. Rooms, $1.00 per day; room and board, $2.00 per day if secured now by the purchase of $1.00 charter certificates. Only persons holding these certificates will be entitled to the special rate named.

The Christian Endeavor Hotel has the best location in the city, and is the nearest to the center of the Exposition Grounds. There will be no time lost waiting and struggling for street cars, waiting in line to buy gate tickets, which can be secured at the hotel counter. A postoffice will be located in the hotel.

For charter certificates or information apply to Miss Carrie Lee Carter, 1522 Chemical Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Y. W. C. T. U.

Mary Hadley Y., of Terre Haute, held a woman's suffrage debate. The affirmative (ladies) scored 83 points; negative, 44 points. The room was decorated with woman's suffrage colors, which the young men draped in mourning, but when the score came in for the ladies, with due respect the young men removed the crape. Another debate will soon be held at one of the regular meetings.

Anderson Y., on the 18th, held a Kara Smart social, the program consisting of the best talent in the city. The city teachers, official board of the M. E. Church, the ministers and wives and the editors of the city press and wives were invited. Light refreshments were served. One new member was gained, and a free will offering taken for the world's work.

Will each local Union that held a meeting in the interest of the world's work April 14 please let me know and the amount of the free will offering? Let me say again to local Treasurers, be collecting the dues every opportunity you have, so we can have a full paid membership list and see how many new members we can gain between this and September 15, the close of the year.

Prepare to hold a public Flower Mission meeting and take an offering for the work. Write Miss Luella McWhirter, of Greencastle, our State Superintendent of this department, for her plan and then carry it out.

With love, prayers and best wishes for the success of our Y. W. C. T. U. work, I am your co-worker,

CLARA M. SEARS,
Y. Superintendent.

CHANGE OF DATE.

W. C. T. U. Day at the Island Park Assembly at Rome City will be on August 11 instead of August 3, as heretofore announced, as it will be more convenient for our beloved National President, Mrs. Stevens, and Miss Anna Gordon, who will accompany her. Remember, dear sisters, to plan an outing at this beautiful summer resort so as to be with us at that time, Thursday, August 11.

FLOWER MISSION.

On June 9, the birthday of Jennie Casseday—Flower Mission Day—will be celebrated all over the world by the W. C. T. U. How many hearts may be touched by the bright blossoms to receive the message, the tiny text! May each W. C. T. U. member help in this wonderful and beautiful work, so as to accomplish greater results than ever before. Let each Local Superintendent plan to make five hundred bouquets. Of course this can only be done by each member assisting. A competent committee should be appointed to solicit and collect blossoms and then to make the bouquets and tie on the text cards with white ribbon.

Each County Superintendent is responsible for the visitation of every county institution. She will obtain permission for the W. C. T. U. to hold services and distribute flowers. And then she will arrange for some certain Union to carry out the plan.

Each Local Superintendent, of course, will plan for the observance of Flower Mission day at the jail, free kindergarten, poor farm and any other such institution in or near the town. If a few copies of the Program for Flower Mission services are procured from Miss Sewall, 330 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass., the services will be very easily arranged. Then there are the poor and sick to be remembered.

In some towns, where there are no public institutions, there may be flowers to spare, and they are surely needed in Indianapolis, where the reformatory, jail, orphans' asylums, hospitals, missions, car barns and so many other places can scarcely be supplied. All who can send bright flowers to the city address them to the Young Men's Christian Association, 33 N. Illinois street, Indianapolis, Ind. The express company will carry flowers free, if properly tagged for Flower Mission.

The National Superintendent has undertaken the great responsibility of having bouquets with text cards distributed all over the grounds at the World's Fair. Each State is asked to contribute toward the fund for this plan. Indiana surely responds to this appeal. Twenty-five cents of a collection taken in each Union is requested to be sent to me by each Local Superintendent. I will then send it to Miss Sewall. Only a few have sent any contributions, so I am waiting for others to help. Each Union will wish to do all that is possible for Flower Mission Day.

Let us all join heartily into the celebration of this great day—June 9—and make its observance a fitting memorial to Him who was the inspiration of Jennie Casseday in originating this beautiful movement.

MISS LUELLA S. MCWHIRTER,
Greencastle, Ind. State Superintendent.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

In the March MESSAGE I offered a prize of a year's subscription to the American Sunday to the five County Superintendents sending in best reports of work done in the quarter ending March 15. After a careful examination of the reports sent in I am enabled to say that the following named persons are entitled to the prize: Mrs. B. A. Helm, North Manchester; Mrs. W. A. Ramsey, Bedford; Mrs. R. C. Travis, Elkhart; Mrs. J. P. Parker, Morgantown; Mrs. Martha Orr, Otterbein. These subscriptions will begin with the March issue.

Central Union, of Indianapolis, is doing some excellent missionary work in addition to the good local work they are accomplishing. One of their workers moved to Warren County, and while there is no Union in the community in which she lives she has kept up her Sabbath Observance work and has had signed 500 pledge cards. Another member from Indianapolis Central has used 150 pledge cards in Boone County.

Reports from over the State are very encouraging. At Gas City a petition to the council and the police department is in circulation, asking that the Sunday laws be enforced. Would not this be an excellent plan for other cities and towns to adopt?

KATIE WERT HOLLER,
South Bend. State Supt. Sabbath Observance.

HEALTH, HEREDITY AND PHYSICAL CULTURE.

This department needs active, well equipped workers. There are helps in literature that will help all workers not knowing just how to do the work. Every year there are meetings held in Unions that are not directly reported to me and consequently are lost in the year's accounting. Superintendents should be sure to keep account of the following points:

1. Literature distributed.
2. Public lectures.
3. Physical training classes.
4. Is physical training included in public school curriculum?
5. How many young women's colleges and seminaries in your county?
6. How many have an equipped gymnasium?
7. Is the training required of the students?
8. Do the public schools conduct examinations of eyes and ears?
9. How many W. C. T. U. convention programs have included this topic?
10. How many have conducted respite exercises?
11. Have physicians manifested interest?
12. Study practical hygiene as relating to dress, food, air, exercise, ventilation, recreation, rest, sleep, mental discipline, government of the emotions, control of the passions, cleanliness and temperance.

Write to me for helps, etc. The Journal of Public Health, C. P. Wood, 108 Powell avenue, Evansville, Ind., is a journal that I recommend as excellent by way of teaching prevention of disease. This department is a mighty force in bringing about temperance conditions and prevention of disease and drunkenness, and we must push it as never before. Please let me hear from anybody who is interested, whether a superintendent or not, and it may open a way to put this work in your locality.

Remember what Frances Willard said of this department: Teaching the great doctrine of physical holiness.

CLARA AGNES BOYD,
Rockville, Ind. State Superintendent.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

I come to you, dear White Ribboners of Indiana, urging upon you the needs of this department. Will not our State lead in this work for the sake of the noble boy away from a mother's heart of love; for the husband who, for the lack of sympathy and help of a loving wife, may fall into habits of dissipation? Easily influenced. Satan finds work for idle hands. We plead for these, perhaps discouraged and lonely men, so far from home and loved ones. Dear Superintendents of this department, here is an open door for work in our department. Our duty is commensurate with our opportunity. Mrs. Thacker has offered a premium to the State providing the greatest number of Comfort Bags this year. To this I add I will give a premium to the county furnishing the greatest number.

The nearest quarter-master is located at Columbus, Ohio, and boxes, properly packed, if sent to Quarter-master of U. S. A., Columbus, will be forwarded by him free of cost. Report all work done, or money sent, to me so you may have proper credit in the State work. Will you not answer this call at once?

JULIA OVERMAN,
State Superintendent.

Rosabower, Greencastle, Ind.

JUNE, 1904.

Prince Pu Lun, of China, who has been a guest of Indianapolis, is heir apparent to the throne of the Empire. During his stay in Indianapolis he has been greatly interested in the educational institutions, among them the Girls' Classical School, where by invitation of Mrs. May Wright Sewall, he was present at the graduation exercises and presented the diplomas to the graduating class. No doubt what he has seen and learned in regard to the education of girls and women will cause him to lend his influence toward the betterment of womanhood in China.

Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon, our beloved National President and Vice-President, will be at Island Park, Rome City, Assembly on August 11. Every White Ribboner within a hundred miles should arrange to be there with the temperance host on that day. The Wabash, Clover Leaf, L. E. & W. and G. R. & I. railroads will carry our people. It would be practical for unions or individuals to arrange for excursions. There would be money in such an arrangement for the union or person making the arrangement, as well as a cheaper rate for those going. We must rally our forces at Island Park on August 11.

A MOTHER GONE.

Our dear State Treasurer, Miss Alice R. Palmer, is bereft of her aged mother. Mrs. Palmer passed peacefully away the night of May 7. The widow of N. S. Palmer, a Presbyterian minister, she has devoted her life to her daughters and has been their close friend and counselor. Their home is now desolate and our hearts ache for them. Loving sympathy is extended from White Ribbon sisters to our State Officer, the faithful, loving daughter, Miss Alice R. Palmer and her sisters at this time of great sorrow. With the great solace which comes from a knowledge of a useful and beautiful life her memory lingers with those who knew her best like a delightful fragrance and her children rise up to call her blessed. Mrs. Palmer was a member of the Franklin W. C. T. U. ever since its organization in 1884, though for the past ten years she could not be an active worker. Her illness began in November. Almost her last words were: "Give my love to everybody."

NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION.

The patent medicine campaign, which is now on in full force and is being vigorously pushed by patent medicine venders and druggists, is of vast importance to every one of us who believe in the protection of our homes and loved ones. How I wish I might in some way impress upon you so strongly the very great importance of this work that not another day might go by without steps being taken by you and your Union for a special, systematic, organized campaign against this hidden foe—the so-called patent medicines. If a single member of your Union thinks a non-alcoholic medication program would be uninteresting, let me disabuse your minds. You will find it very, very interesting. If your programs are already printed and no meeting planned on this subject, pray, plan for an extra meeting. An interesting program can be quickly arranged from the book—Alcohol a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine. The question leaflet recently printed by Mrs. Allen is fine and greatly aids in the preparation of the program. Let me suggest that your first program be on the Patent Medicine Chapter. If you have no book, I can furnish you one on short notice. The price is $1.25. It is invaluable. Have you read the article entitled The Patent Medicine Curse, in the May issue of the Ladies' Home Journal, and the reply in the Union Signal of May 5? The Plan of Work given in the non-alcoholic issue of the MESSAGE for January was for a systematic house-to-house distribution of literature. Distribute one kind of a non-alcoholic leaflet one month and another kind the next, etc. When you take the second leaflet, take also a pledge and devotion card and leave it. The third time you call you will receive donations and secure many new and interested members. Be sure to wear your white ribbon.

The cold weather is past and house-cleaning about done. Cannot you begin at once? Through the kindness of Nathan S. Davis, M. D., of Chicago, the best authority on this subject and who wrote the leaflet, and through the Ramee Chemical Company, of South Bend, who placed an advertisement of a flavoring extract with me, I will furnish you this leaflet at a very small cost—50 cents for 500. If less than 500 are ordered the price will be 15 cents per 100. I do this because of my great anxiety for you to take up this work. It is a fine leaflet and you miss an opportunity if you do not order at once. If you want to send stamps for postage when ordering the 500, they will be greatly appreciated and will help your State Superintendent to push her work.

If you have not already read the National Superintendent's article in the Union Signal of April 28, please do so and note her plan for legislative work. She has reduced the price of her leaflet—The Danger and Harmfulness of Patent Medicines—to $5.50 per 1,000, so that unions may be able to use it in the campaign that she is planning for next winter.

The Ramee Chemical Company offers liberal terms to agents for selling their powdered flavoring extracts. Write to them for terms. If your Superintendent or Union, as a Union, would take an agency the profits from sales would aid you very much financially. You could by this means pay for all needed literature for your educational campaign against patent medicines. There are few ladies who do not use some kind of flavoring extracts. Call their attention to the fact that nearly every liquid extract contains a large per cent of alcohol. Urge them to give the powdered extracts a trial and help to banish everything containing alcohol from the kitchen, as well as from the medicine chest. Address the Ramee Chemical Company, South Bend, Ind., for terms to agents.

Sincerely yours for an educational campaign. May I count you as one of the campaigners?

MRS. A. T. WHITSON,
State Superintendent.

PRESS.

You have probably all seen in our State paper and in the Union Signal of the danger attending young women going alone to the St. Louis Exposition.

The message in these papers is effective so far as it reaches, but we can make it much farther reaching by setting forth the subject in our local county and secular papers.

To this end, I wish you, my County and Local Superintendents, would write warnings of this danger awaiting unprotected girls in St. Louis and send to every paper that you can reach.

Mrs. M. E. Otto, 2813 Lucas ave., St. Louis, is the Local Superintendent of Purity, and she and her assistants will meet trains and assist any women and girls who require help.

Women and girls wanting respectable lodgings in St. Louis can also apply to the W. C. T. U., Centenary M. E. church, Sixteenth and Pine streets; the Salvation Army, Eighth and Walnut streets; the Queen's Daughters' Home, 111 North Sixteenth street; Evangelical Lutheran City Mission Society, 1704 Market street and Travelers' Aid W. C. T. U. Association, 1814 Washington avenue.

Dear co-workers, now is the time for action. Lose no time in writing and talking about this grand work of protection for our sisters who will be enticed to St. Louis. Let us do our part to stay the hand of vice which is reaching out for our sisters to lead them to lives of sin and death. Let us feel our responsibility and act at once. I feel sure that I do not appeal to you in vain.

For reports of this and other work done by you I am anxiously waiting. Yours for utilizing the press,
MISS LAURA G. CAMMACK,
State Superintendent.

Converse, Ind.

S. T. I. RALLY.

Our Press Correspondent was unable to attend our Public School Temperance Rally, held here at Guilford, Dearborn county, February 20 and no report was made of it. As it was an experiment with a view to county work, Mrs. Ella Krott, our County President, has asked me to tell about it.

The rally was an all-day meeting in the M. E. church, with a basket dinner spread in a hall nearby. We had a good time all day with a full house in the afternoon.

The object of the meeting was to stimulate the interest in temperance in the schools and among school patrons.

The program consisted of papers on Temperance Teaching in the Schools, by a teacher and a local physician, an address by Prof. R. N. Hargitt, Principle of Schools, Cochran, Ind.; a recitation by a teacher and songs and recitations by pupils from several neighboring schools. These exercises were supplemented by short talks by three or four citizens. We are sure the effect was good and feel encouraged to urge the other Unions of the county to each hold a rally early in the school term next year. We hope to make our own next meeting even better than the first. No doubt, in some cases, an evening meeting might be more successful. All details must be left to the judgment of the individual Superintendent. We tried to put on the program only those connected with schools as teachers, pupils, patrons or officers.

We are planning a prize essay feature for the rallies.

ALTA K. HANSELL,
Dearborn County Superintendent S. T. I.

FIELD NOTES.

Miss Addie Smith, of Campbellsburg, Ind., the former solicitor for Hadley School, has accepted a position as Assistant Superintendent of the Hudson Home of Ewing, Ill. She will travel in Southern Indiana and Eastern Illinois. Any of the White Ribbon sisters knowing of needy children or childless homes will please communicate with her.

Fowlerton Union held a double contest May 15 at 2:30 P. M., a matrons' and a baby silver medal contest, which furnished a very interesting program. Mrs. James Chapman won first prize in the matron and Gale Smith the baby first prize. Mrs. Eunice P. Wilson, our beloved ex-State President, was with us and gave an inspiring talk. Four women joined our ranks, and many more are under conviction. We are having a membership contest.

Goshen Y's Program—Some 'practical work for the Flower Mission Committee, Miss Sarah Manahan. What can we do to hold our membership during the summer months? Joy Bethel Plans for raising money, Blanch Gilbert and Carrie Nusbaum. Discussion to follow each topic. Cocoa and wafers to be served. I like the plan so much of this wide-awake Y. that I want all our girls to know.

CLARA M. SEARS.

Friday, April 15, at Miss Eliza Baker, 223 Waldron street, West Lafayette, a business meeting of the local unions and county officers and superintendents was held. It was interesting and enthusiastic. It was decided to enter a protest as to the sale of intoxicants at the Fair Ground and to see that the State law is observed. We believe this to be the most decisive meeting held for a long time and the incoming months are anxiously awaited by all.

Thursday, April 28, members of LaFayette and Central Unions met with the new Union at the Monon Shop Addition. An interesting program had been prepared by Mrs. Freeman Seney and Miss Kate Gregory. The meeting was well attended and two new members were added. The new union was named the Monon Addition Union and it is hoped many honorary members will be brought in who are prominent and whose interests are with the Monon Shop Addition.

Spencer Union held a medal contest at the Armorial Hall, presided over by Mrs. M. I. Heavenridge, the president. A large assemblage of the best citizens listened with interest to the exercises, composed of the speeches of the seven contestants and vocal and instrumental music. Awarding the prize was a difficult task, as all the speakers nearly reached the standard of excellence set by the judges. However, after due deliberation, the medal was presented to Miss Carrie Kenerleben.

Linwood Union held its anniversary May 3, at the Friends' Church, west of Radley. Ex-State President Mrs. Eunice Wilson was present and delivered an interesting address. This union had held three silver medal and one gold medal contest since New Year's day, 1904.

Marion County—The most important event in W. C. T. U. circles in Marion County during the month of April, was the lecture given by Rev. Anna Shaw. Miss Shaw has a charming personality, while her lectures are both witty and convincing.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, our loved Vice-President, gave the most eloquent speech of her life while upholding suffrage for women before the Prohibition convention held in Tomlinson Hall, Indianapolis. Mrs. Stanley received good notices from all the daily papers.

One Cigarette League in Indianapolis has adopted resolutions condemning the violation of the cigarette law in Indiana. This League will bring Miss Cole to the city in June to assist in their efforts to create sentiment in favor of having the tobacco laws enforced.

The Y.'s of Marion County, under the leadership of Miss Mabel Benson, are having very enjoyable and instructive sessions.

At Waterford on May 4 Mrs. Vayhinger made an address and organized a union of nine members. In the evening of the same day she spoke in the First M. E. Church in Michigan City to an interested audience.

Oxford Union observed Frances Willard's Heavenly birthday February 21, with a very impressive and appropriate service and sent $2.00 to the Memorial Fund.

Thursday, April 14, Miss Eliza Baker, our County President, and several ladies of the Central and LaFayette Unions, organized a Union at the Monon Shop Addition of six members.

Mrs. Kathryn Wert Holler, our State Superintendent of Sabbath Observance and Associate National Superintendent of the Department, has written 308 letters and cards for the department since January 1.

Palmer Y., Indianapolis, mourns the loss, by sudden death, of Miss Nellie Losh, Flower Mission Superintendent. This beautiful young girl was an earnest White Ribboner and church member.

At Warsaw, Mrs. Vayhinger held a meeting on Saturday and Sunday evenings, having an immense audience on Sunday evening. Forty-six members were secured for the W. C. T. U.—Twenty-six active and twenty honoraries.

silver gray oratorical contest occupied the second evening and the white-haired speakers occasioned much applause. Mr. Samuel Mason, of Andrews, captured the prize and Miss Hildah Deighton, of Huntington, won the medal for singing. A large representation from the various unions attended, especially Huntington and Markle and an interurban car returning, was entirely filled with the visitors. A snug sum was netted for the treasury.

Steuben County Institute met at Ashley. Our cultured and capable State President, Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, was leader. The weather was decidedly bad, the roads still worse than the weather, and many of the delegates failed to be present, among them several of those on the program. This would seriously have interfered with the interest had it not been for the skill and ability of our leader in filling these empty places herself and drawing out those present who were not on the program. Good talks were made by Mrs. Woodhull, Mrs. Mary Burch, Mrs. Boor, Mrs. Shaw and others. Our ever faithful County President, Mrs. Willenar, was at her post urging us to greater and better work, ready, as usual, to do more than her share. Some of the work before our society in the State for the year is the holding of 650 medal contests, raising our membership 1,000, and, in connection with other temperance workers, the getting of 50,000 pledge signers. The Ashley Union received seven new active members and two honorary. With such a leader the W. C. T. U. is not likely to either die or go to sleep, and all hope we may have her in our county again.

Grant County has just held one of the most profitable Institutes in her history. Representatives from the Shugart Union met us at the door of the large and beautifully decorated U. B. Church in West Marion, on the afternoon of May 12. The greeting was so cordial that every one felt at home at once. Nothing was left undone that could add to our comfort during our stay. The Institute was large from the beginning to the close. Fifteen Unions were represented, besides our friends from the city and elsewhere. Mrs. Cammack Gibson, the leader, presided with her usual dignity and tact and was ably seconded by Mrs. Shugart, County President, and Mrs. Smith, County Secretary. The program outlined by our State Superintendent was carried out with the efficient help of Dr. Winchester, President of Taylor University; Dr. Hastings, of Fairmount; Charley Coffin, of Marion, and Thurlow Shugart, young son of the County President, with their good papers and talks, and many others with their word in season. At the diamond medal contest in the evening the prize was won by Miss Era Dikes, a young lady of so much ability and loyalty as a white ribboner that I feel sure our State W. C. T. U. will have cause to know more about in the future.

Marshall County Institute was held in Bourbon. The State President, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, was with us and was indeed an inspiration. Each subject on the program was ably discussed and the general discussions were very helpful. In spite of stormy weather, all feel that the Institute was the best ever held in Marshall county. Mrs. Vayhinger, in her pleasing and enthusiastic manner, addressed the interested audience on The Meaning of Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The second evening was to have been a gold medal contest, but was necessarily postponed; but the evening was a success. After a few well delivered recitations, Mrs. Vayhinger took the platform and in her own fascinating manner told of personal experiences in visiting prisons and other places where rum has worked such ruin. She discussed the temperance question and its effects on the financial condition of the home and nation in a masterful way. She begged us to look at the tragedies in life; we need not hunt in books for them and to not be satisfied with looking and grieving, but to do something to help such a state of affairs. She spoke to a crowded house and if perfect attention and thoughtful faces speak for the merit of a subject, Mrs. Vayhinger surely reached the heart of her audience. Nineteen new members were added to the list of W. C. T. U. members of Bourbon.

Delaware County Institute met at the M. E. Church in Avondale, a suburb of Muncie, with Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh as leader. The program was followed as printed in the MESSAGE. Much interest was shown and the meetings were very spiritual throughout the entire Institute. In the evening Mrs. Unruh lectured on the American Boy, wherein she stated that people were more particular about their stock and more careful of their crops than the rearing of their children. Amanda Smith was present at one session and talked and sang. Mr. L. C. Masters, who worked so faithful as State organizer for the Prohibition party last year, was present and gave us an earnest talk on Can a Christian Sell or Use Tobacco? Dr. Shoemaker, of Muncie, talked at length on the subject of patent medicines, stating that they were manufactured so cheaply, and the greater per cent was cheap whiskey, that they did more harm than good to the person who took them. Mrs. Unruh spoke on Mothers' Problems. The W. C. T. U. of Delaware County wished that all the parents might have heard the splendid thoughts and truths that fell from this consecrated woman's lips. The medal contest was withdrawn on account of bad weather and the failure of some of the contestants to come. Mrs. Unruh talked and after songs and prayer the Institute closed, all present feeling stronger and better prepared for the battle against the world's great evils.

Tippecanoe County Institute was held at LaFayette, at the Baptist Memorial Chapel, Monon Addition. Leader, Mrs. Rose Pearce. One year ago, on May 12, occurred the dedication of the Y. M. C. A. building at the Monon Addition. The W. C. T. Unions of LaFayette served refreshments to the vast crowd and pinned little white ribbon bows on all. At this time the Y. M. C. A. opened its doors to our Institute and a most interesting session was held in their building. The evening meeting was held at Baptist Memorial Chapel, many gentlemen being in the audience. Mrs. Pearce made an able address. The Institute sessions were held on the last day in Trinity M. E. church. Though the weather was inclement, the attendance was good. Many interesting subjects were presented and discussed, greatly to the benefit of those present. The splendid lecture in the evening was to a good house. Those present can never get very far away from Mrs. Pearce's address on the Twentieth Century Boy, which was most inspiring and convincing in regard to duty. Under the leadership of Miss Eliza Baker, the work of the County Unions is steadily advancing.

Madison County Institute was held at Elwood. Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh being the leader and Mrs. Retta Jones president. Besides the regular routine of work, Miss Tupman, of Anderson, gave some very beautiful readings, and Miss Breakman sang the sweetest songs. Mrs. Unruh proved to be a marvelous help throughout the convention. In connection with the Great Social Problem, opened for discussion by Mrs. McMahan, resolutions adopted by the Anderson Ys. were read to the effect that We, as a Christian Temperance Union, do all in our power to counteract the terrible white slave traffic which will be engaged in at the World's Fair by warning and advising all young girls and young men in our vicinity who contemplate visiting St. Louis during the exposition and direct all such to proper and respectable lodgings, also to urge the presentation of the matter wherever possible. In the evening Mrs. Unruh delivered the lecture, That Old Bachelor. Mrs. Breakman rendered a fine vocal solo, Miss Lupman gave a reading, and the Elwood Quartet rendered the selection, Rock of Ages. It was recommended that each local Union hold a Flower Mission meeting once a quarter. Resolutions of sympathy were drafted and sent to Mother Starkey and Mrs. Kreiger, whose homes have been visited by death. One question discussed during the morning was, Should Each State Have a Law Requiring the Ingredients of Patent Medicines to be Placed on the Bottles? The Co-operation of Temperance Forces was discussed in the afternoon. Miss Clara Sears acted as secretary throughout the convention, Mrs. Cascadden being kept at home because of sickness in the family.

St. Joseph County Institute was held at South Bend. Our State President, Mrs. Vayhinger, was with us and added greatly to the interest of the meetings. The afternoon and evening sessions were well attended. The feature of the first night's meeting was the address by Mrs. Vayhinger on a Misspent Trust. She handled her subject in an able manner, emphasizing the fact that to America has been given a great store house of wealth. Upon the way in which we spend this trust depends the prosperity of our nation. She illustrated clearly that a large part is spent for what degrades our people and throws criminals, idiots, paupers and orphans back upon the county and state to be cared for. At the afternoon sessions some very excellent papers were read and discussed. Many helpful suggestions were brought out in the papers and they should be given a much wider circulation. The second evening's session was in the nature of a platform symposium, and the following subjects were discussed: Can the Church Banish the Saloon? by Rev. C. C. Travis. The Relation of Temperance to the Medical Profession, by Dr. J. W. Milligen. Economics of the Liquor Traffic, by Mr. Zena Leonard. Does the Prosperity of the Church Demand Special Activity in the Cause of Temperance? by Rev. H. B. Hosteter. Responsibility of the Citizen, by Hon. Chas. F. Holler. Interspersing these subjects was a variety of special music. The attendance was good, interest intense, collections fine, weather delightful, and altogether our Institute was a grand success. Mrs. C. Fassnacht, our County President, presided at all the meetings. Representatives from all the Unions in the county were present.

Dearborn County Institute was held at Lawrenceburg in the Presbyterian church. Mrs. C. M. Croft, County President, in the chair. Mrs. M. E. Haughton, leader. An excellent program was carefully carried out. The importance of the following departments was presented by their Superintendents: Non-Alcoholic Medication, Press, Jail and Prison, Literature. The work done in the jail especially being of great interest. Mrs. Evans, of Cold Springs, read a good paper on How can Our Cause be Advanced by the Sunday School? Mrs. Flora Gough, of Lawrenceburg, read a paper which was followed by discussion. Our Home Beautiful at Hadley, Our Constitutional Obligation, by Mrs. R. A. Perlee, was most interesting. Co-operation of the Temperance Forces by the Church, Rev. Baker, Rev. Cramer and Rev. Croft. The School, by Mr. E. G. Roll, of Guilford. Young People's Societies, by Miss Jessie Stout, of Dillsboro. The Committee of Fifty, by Miss Alta Hansell, of Guilford. A general discussion followed. Mr. W. T. Gooden, editor of the Lawrenceburg Register, was present and introduced. The Loyal Temperance Legion was in evidence during the meetings. Their music was appreciated and inspiring. To have the Legioners help in serving the guests at dinner and supper was a unique feature. The music by Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Faulkner, of Aurora, Miss Mabel Gold, of Lawrenceburg, Miss Elizabeth Scherger and Miss Tillie Vogel, Robert Kirsh and Rev. Cramer of Lawrenceburg, was all much enjoyed. A pledge of $22.00 was made to assist in liquidating the debt on Hadley School. Seven new members were secured. One subscriber for the Union Signal. Six Unions were represented in the Institute. A deep spiritual feeling seemed to prevail through all the sessions. On the first evening, Mrs. M. E. Haughton delivered an address on The Christian's Attitude Toward Sin. This was one of the most inspiring temperance addresses that it has ever been our privilege to hear. The audience was large and attentive. The gold medal contest was a great success. The medal was awarded to C. A. Mulford, of Moore's Hill.

Marion County Semi-Annual Convention and Institute was held in the People's Congregational church, Indianapolis. County President, Mrs. Ada B. Leck, in the chair. The President's report shows much personal work done by her and was received with appreciation. Department Superintendents were nearly all present and had good reports from the local Unions. Their own work has been faithfully done in nearly every instance. Mrs. Ada B. Leck was made chairman of a committee consisting of the Marion county officers and Mrs. Amanda Whitson, Mrs. Frances Metz, Mrs. Frances Williams and Mrs. Mary Moody, to investigate the rumor that a new vice syndicate has been formed in St. Louis and to formulate plans for the protection of girls passing through Indianapolis to the St. Louis fair. At the opening session of the Institute, great sadness prevailed when Mrs. H. W. Brand announced that Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer could not be present, as her mother had just gone home to heaven. Mrs. Brand asked that a service of prayer be held for the purpose of asking God to comfort and help Miss Palmer in her great sorrow. Mrs. Leck then spoke of Mrs. Brand's kindness in consenting to become our leader. The Prohibition candidate for State Statistician, Mr. Cowgill, spoke on Shall Each State have a Law Requiring the Ingredients of Patent Medicines Placed on the Bottle or Package? Mr. Cowgill advised the elimination of the word patent, as so few of these nostrums are patented. Mrs. Whitson will bring this matter before the next State legislature. Mrs. Martha Gipe, in speaking of Mothers' Problems, said God is the only refuge of the mother. Rev. Anna Cox, who led the evangelistic hour, urged that the emphasis be placed on the C in speaking of our organization, as the word Christian overshadowed and embraced them all. In the Symposium, Co-operation of Temperance People with the Church, Rev. Levi White; the School, Miss Gertrude Morrow; Temperance Organization, Mrs. H. W. Brand; Medical Societies, Dr. Rachel Swain; Young People's Societies, Miss Marie Leck; Press, Mr. Edward Clark. Much food for thought was given the suggestions given by Rev. White and Mr. Clark, being very practical. Mrs. Brand presented the subject which shall live, Scientific Temperance Instruction in our Public Schools, or the report of the Committee of Fifty? This is a subject of vital interest to women in Marion county. One hundred copies of the Reply were given out by Mrs. Brand to ladies who volunteered to place them in the school houses in their vicinity. Mrs. Frances Metz visited the school house near the church and had the room full of children both evenings after the Institute. A Senior and Junior Legion has been organized in West Indianapolis during the spring months. She hopes to organize both Legions in the locality of the convention. Mrs. Hattie W. Brand recited Jim and Joe Monday evening. The touching story was well rendered and well received. Ten contestants participated in the Matrons' silver medal contest. Mrs. M. Werner won the medal. The Prohibition Alliance Quartette furnished the music, including the solo, If I Were a Voice. Mrs. Clarissa Metz gave a recitation while the judges were out. Miss Lucie Clark presented Mrs. Zella Kiffer, President of Clara Sears Y. with sixteen Y. song books. The devotional exercises were led, during different sessions, by Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. Belle White, Mrs. Fannie Kelso, Mrs. E. G. Cornelius and Miss Mabel Benson, County Y. Superintendent. The departments were ably presented by the County Superintendents. The convention was well attended and every subject presented met with intelligent interest and discussion. Representatives of the four daily papers were in the room most of the time and gave very fair press notices.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. MATTIE KIGER departed this life March 25, 1904. She had been a great sufferer, but bore it all with Christian patience. She was a faithful member of the Oxford Union; was County Superintendent of Christian Citizenship. We bow in humble submission to God's will. The Union participated in the funeral services.

MRS. MATHENY—Spencer Union has suffered an irreparable loss in the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Matheny. She had been a worker more than thirty years and was one of the first crusaders in New Albany, then her home. Her enthusiasm for the cause, her presence at every meeting, her contributions to the programs would put many a younger member to shame for lagging in interest—for be it known, this dear lady was over eighty-five years of age and her last words spoken in public were for the cause of temperance at the W. C. T. U. meeting the afternoon before she was stricken with paralysis. We are sure if she could have expressed a preference for a last message it would have been to the W. C. T. U. and the temperance cause so dear to her heart while living.

THE GOVERNMENT AND "BLIND PIGS."

Much is being made by pro-liquor papers of the numerous "blind pigs" said to abound in prohibition States or no license communities, but nothing is said about the part the Federal Government plays in tolerating such violations of law in every State where there are prohibition districts. Every blind pig has what is called an Internal Revenue liquor tax receipt, given to the seller of liquor whether he proposes to sell under State or local laws or in violation of them. Internal Revenue officers are so conspicuously and, by contrast with most State and local officers, so refreshingly diligent in their pursuit of those who try to dodge the payment of the Government tax that few persons venture to sell liquor without having settled with the Government and taken its receipt; the display of which permits them to do business without molestation by the Internal Revenue officers.

Whatever may be said as to the legal rights of the Federal Government to impose and collect taxes, the moral right of the Federal Government to encourage as it does this violation of State laws has been and is very emphatically questioned. It is no part of the Federal Government's business to assist in the enforcement of State laws; but it is its business to see that it does not foster law-breaking. In theory the State could enforce its laws as well as the Government enforces its own, but in fact no State does so. Consequently the undeniable truth is that in giving its receipt for the sale of liquors in prohibition States or districts the Government licenses law-breaking. There is no use in befogging that unpleasant fact with technical distinctions. Every one knows that if the blind-piggers were not permitted to pay a tax to do business in a prohibition State mightily few of them would dare to engage in the illegal traffic.—National Advocate.

The Massachusetts State Board of Health finds that the following patent medicines contain the percentages given of alcohol: Green's Nervura, 17.2; Hood's Sarsaparilla, 18.8; Scheck's Seawood Tonic, 19.5; Brown's Iron Bitters, 19.7; Kaufman's Sulfur Bitters, 20.5; Paine's Celery Compound, 21.0; Burdock Blood Bitters, 25.2; Ayer's Sarsaparilla, 26.2; Warner's Safe Tonic Bitters, 35.7; Parker's Tonic, 41.6; Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, 44.3; Peruna, 23.5; Lydia Pinkam's Vegetable Compound, 16.8.

Is it beyond the truth to say that alcohol causes from one-third to one-half of all the criminals, defectives, insane and dependents which the State is compelled to support? What proportion of these are the products of the patent medicine syndicates no one can tell. It is surely large. Note especially that it is only by government protection that the alcoholic nostrum traffic is carried on. This is a profitable business for the syndicates so long as the State will care for their pauperized victims. How long will it continue to do so?

IN INDIANA.

There were 1,724 more saloons in 1902 than in 1896 and the decrease the past year has been exactly 120, but all of this came in the first half of 1903, for there was an increase in the last half of 1903 of 88 over the last half of 1902. Since the year following the enacting of the Nicholson law there has been a gradual increase of saloons, except that the abnormal increase of 231 during the first half of 1902, which could not sustain themselves, makes a seeming decrease the past year, but there are 172 more saloons in the State now than in 1901.—Patriot Phalanx.

Our White Ribboners and all temperance people should refuse patronage to grocers who sell alcoholic drinks. There is a heavy trade in bottled goods by the groceries in the cities.

FROM THE PRESIDENT.

We are entering upon the last quarter of the year. Only a few short weeks and we will be called upon for our final report of work done this year. From the letters which I have received from you, I feel sure that you have had large plans and high ideals for the work. Do not allow the time of in-gathering to slip upon you and find your plans still unaccomplished, your ideals above you, but rather let us do more than we have even dared to dream.

I wish each woman in the State would take down her annual report and just now read the Plan of Work on page 55 and answer the question, What has my Union done to work the plan? How much of the 1,000 gain in membership will be credited to your Union? Do not be satisfied with less than five if you are in a small place; if in a large one, with less than fifty. I feel very anxious that our work shall be strengthened in the county seats. These should be the centers of strength in the counties. If you are so fortunate as to live in one of these, will you not plan for special services in the churches on Sunday and follow with house to house visiting, inviting the women to join us? I believe we can have a thousand women in our county seats for the asking. While other societies and clubs are taking a vacation, let us press our work more strenuously, for our opponent, the saloonkeeper, will take no vacation.

At this time, Indiana leads the nation in contest work, but Illinois has set her standard at 1,000 and is working for it, so we must even pass our 650 mark if we are to carry the National banner home with us. I trust the Unions having access to country school houses will not be satisfied with giving a contest once, but will repeat it in these country places, thus giving the defeated contestants an opportunity to try again, as well as bringing information of our work to these rural districts.

The Goshen Y. has solved the problem of contests in the city by holding them in the homes and taking a silver offering. They pay for their medal and put money in their treasury in this way.

I feel confident that more contests have been held in the State than have been reported to Mrs. Steele. Remember, we get no credit for contests which are not reported to her, so if you have failed to report your contest, please do so before you lay this paper down.

I want next month to tell you just the amount paid into the Frances Willard memorial fund by us and I trust if you have not sent in your $2.00 you will do so.

I am very sorry that the freight agent at Indianapolis refuses to do anything about shipping charges for Hadley goods. He simply ignores the letters. I am glad to see some money reported on the debt, but trust it will increase more rapidly than it has in the past two months. Ask your friends who do not belong to us to give on this.

May you plan largely for the summer months and work your plans. If I can be of any service to you, I will be glad to do anything I can to advance the work. Write me of your work.

CULLA. J. VAYHINGER.

Y. W. C. T. U.

The third quarterly report blanks have been sent to the local unions and we hope to have a full report and prompt one.

Not one of the unions have reported as yet, whether they held a Red Letter meeting observing Frances J. Barnes' birthday and taking a free-will offering for the World's work. Anderson Ys. observed the day. Let us hear from other unions.

Wednesday, May 18, our Lelia Myra Kauffman, President of the Goshen Y. and Mr. Richard Fidler, were married at the home of the bride's parents. Another Christian Temperance home established, as both are earnest Christians.

Wednesday, June 8, Miss Clara E. Worl and Mr. Robert E. Hinman, of Peru, Ind., were married. One by one our Y. girls are going into homes of their own and we trust their love and zeal for the temperance cause will never cease.

The Secretary is so proud of her name-sake, the Clara Sears Y. of Indianapolis, and hopes to visit them soon and become acquainted, to give them plans for future work.

Goshen Y. held an Ice Cream Social on the lawn east of Mr. and Mrs. Fidler's home, Friday evening, the 10th. They cleared quite a nice little sum. The President is planning to hold several contests. September 1 Goshen Ys. will begin to hold regular meetings again.

Only three more months, girls, and another year closes in our beloved temperance work. Can you think of some one you can secure for a member? See treasurer and hand her your dues. Send me items on postal cards of your work. Pray and continually be on the lookout for the enemy.

CLARA. M. SEARS,
Y. W. C. T. U. Sec.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH AND THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session at Los Angeles, Cal., adopted the following report:

It is not the province of the church to control the suffrages of her members, but it is her province to teach great moral principles and to this end we utter our profound conviction that no Christian should sustain a political party committed to the license policy.

A political party that dares not defy the saloon does not deserve the support of the church. A party in which manly Christian opposition to a corrupt and dangerous traffic is a bar to promotion cannot be consistently supported by a Christian voter. But the foregoing must not be considered as in the interest of any political party.

The Episcopal address dealt with some phases of the question in vigorous fashion. We quote in part:

The enormous evils of intemperance are so constant and omnipresent that they seem to stupefy the public heart and conscience, as the horrors of a long-continued bloody war at length dull the sensibilities of whole communities. So it seems almost impossible to maintain the possibility of brilliant success, and the leaders disagree as to the plan for a continuous campaign, or become discouraged and the effort slackens and dies out. Meanwhile the liquor traffic, supported by the two mighty motives of greed and appetite, sleeplessly maintains its diabolical work.

As to methods for counterworking an iniquity so vast and so ruinous to everything dearest to mankind, two things have long been settled in the convictions of American Methodists. The banner we follow in this holy war must bear these two legends: Total Abstinence and Legal Prohibition. Total abstinence, as the only personal security and the only foundation for effectual help to the weaker brother; constitutional prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all intoxicating liquors to be used as beverages, as the only method yet discovered for any widely effectual and permanently successful war upon the liquor traffic.—Exchange.

DUTY OF OFFICERS.

I want to tell you right here that the next time a law officer says it is not his business to make complaint and tells you that if you will sign the complaint he will set the machinery of the law in motion, that you can assure him it is not the duty of any private citizen to do this. It is not safe for any private citizen to attack three kinds of law breakers—keepers of houses of prostitution, gamblers and liquor dealers who sell unlawfully. The suppression of their illegal business is not the concern of private citizens. If they are active in this direction they may have their houses burned down or be subjected to assault; but they dare not assault the officer, because he represents the majesty of the law. Every police officer has the power of government behind him; and lawbreakers know that if they kill the officer they can never kill the office; that as soon as one officer is out of the way there is another in his place. Law enforcement is what you pay the officers for and it is their duty and not a private citizen's.—Judge Grant, of the Supreme Court of Mich.

Women and girls wanting respectable lodgings in St. Louis, should apply to Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Centenary M. E. church, Sixteenth and Pine streets, three blocks from depot; the Salvation Army, Eighth and Walnut streets; the Queen's Daughters' Home, 111 North Sixteenth street; Evangelical Lutheran City Mission Society, 1704 Market street or to the Travelers' Aid W. C. Association, 1814 Washington street, St. Louis, Mo.

JULY, 1904.

Thank Offerings Meetings should be held by the Unions. The needs of our work must be considered by the friends of our cause.

Temperance Rally Days at Lake Maxinkuckee are August 17 and 18. Miss ALICE R. PALMER is to lead a conference of workers and speak on the 18th. Mrs. Shedd, of Argos, is preparing for a grand gold medal contest on the evening of the 17th.

The Diamond Medal Contest on Saturday night of the State Convention will be held at Columbus, in the City Hall. Admission, 25 cents.

Treasurers: Please collect dues from every woman in your town who is, has been, or will be a member of your W. C. T. U., one dollar from each, and forward sixty-five cents of same to County Treasurer unless county is unorganized, then to State Treasurer, before the 25th of September.

County Treasurers: Please urge Local Treasurers to collect dues and forward to you early in September. Send all dues to the State Treasurer before the 25th of September.

Everybody: Please do not wait to have your dues collected. Send at once to the Treasurer if you have not done so earlier in the year. ALICE PALMER, State Treasurer.

DEPARTMENTS MOTHERS' MEETINGS AND WHITE RIBBON CRADLE ROLL.

Dear mothers, we are now in the last quarter of this year and need I remind you that what we do must be done quickly and for you to get credit in the State for your work must be reported and reported on time? I regret that last fall some of your reports were too late to be formulated in my report, for my report was in the hands of the State Recording Secretary before yours reached me. Remember, I am again offering a book to be given at State convention to the Superintendent who holds the most Mothers' Meetings, also to the Superintendent of the White Ribbon Cradle Roll who enrolls the most children, enrollment to be based on the amount of dues sent in. Last year, some reports represented quite a number of children enrolled, but no money and much as I desired to report them to the National, I could not. Your State Superintendent must have three cents for every child enrolled, the same as the State must have one dollar for every W. C. T. U. woman. For enrollment cards for the W. R. C. R. and a leaflet to explain how the dues of the W. R. C. R. are divided, apply to your State Superintendent. Enrollment cards, 10 for 10 cents or 50 for 25 cents. I have a supply of Purity leaflets, title, Don't Girls, by Rev. B. G. Manard, price 50 for 15 cents, 100 for 25 cents. Stepping Stones, or a Guide to Safety, same price; Murder of the Innocents, 100 for 10 cents. Splendid leaflets. Dear hearts, don't for one moment imagine that your department is of but little importance. There is no department of more importance than that of character building, and who will build the character in the home if not the mother and who will save the children if not the organized mother love of the temperance reform? Remember, formation is better than reformation and if we expect to ever reform this world we must begin at the beginning.

MRS. S. STAHL.

Fitzgerald, Georgia, is a town of about 4,000 population on the Atlantic & Birmingham railroad. It has six saloons. Not long ago an effort was made to secure the erection of the building and repair shops of the road at Fitzgerald. The president of the road, Mr. Raoul, was waited upon by a committee of citizens. The president very frankly told them that Fitzgerald was the most desirable place on the road for the location of the shops, from every consideration save one. That one objection is its saloons. He stated that from past experience he would not consent to the location of the shops of the road in any community where labor is rendered unreliable by the presence of gin-mills and that since Fitzgerald will keep its saloons, the proposition to locate a great railroad business there will not be even entertained.

TREASURER'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

We are not living up to the privileges exercised in other States in the amount of our Thank Offerings sent in by Unions and individual lovers of our cause to advance the work of the State. We are limited in the numbers of Annual Reports and other literature which we need for free distribution. Officers exercise the strictest economy (the word is not a good one, I mean they are unduly restricted), in the use of printed supplies and postage. But what leads to perhaps a worse policy than these things, they have no money to pay expenses to visit and help weak Unions nor those just established. Our committee on appropriations honestly and sensibly plans the expenditure to cover the income only. This reaches over only established work. If aggressive work is done within the year, the money to meet the expense must first come in as a thank offering. That plan for acquiring funds was adopted by the State convention—see Plan of Work, page 56, Annual Report.

If those who plan the routes of speakers had only a little money to use in sending them out, the local Unions could be provided with helpers at very much better rates than when the locals undertake to call in workers from the great field. Help others and help yourselves. Can we not exercise more activity, promptness, independence, enthusiasm, courage, spiritual power, esprit de corps in planning for and holding our thank offering meetings this year?

Please write the Treasurer if she can in any way be of assistance. It is not her design to send out envelopes or printed letters, nor an outline program. Greater freedom in local plans may work better.

ALICE PALMER,
State Treasurer.

THE GREATEST PROBLEM.

How to save the drunkard is a great problem. That he can be saved at all is not certain. With weakened will on the one side and habit strong on other, drunkards by the thousands are staggering on toward their graves. To make an effort to save all of them or any of them is a brave thing. He who makes it deserves the respect, if not the praise, of his fellowmen. One takes the risk of being disbelieved who makes the assertion that any class of men stands in greater need of salvation than drunkards. I am willing, however, to take the chance by affirming that the Christian manhood of this country, with a few notable exceptions, is in danger little less grave, if any, than the poor victims of drink who yield to the force of habit. A few brief statements only are needed in explanation.

The business of making drunkards is legal. The law recognizes it and protects it. The man who, by the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages, furnishes the necessary co-operation to appetite to produce drunkenness, is acting within the law and his legal rights. It is a fearful thing for a government to give protection and sanction to such a bad, wretched business. Ours does give such sanction and support.

We express ourselves through political parties. Ours is a government by political parties. Government without political parties, were it possible, might be better. Be that as it may, ours is a government by means of political parties. The Christian citizen who works with a political party or who votes its ticket makes himself responsible for the policy which that party pursues. It is impossible for a man to vote a party ticket without assuming responsibility for party action.

The dominant political parties are committed to the license of the liquor traffic. This can be supported by citing the different states in the Union. With few exceptions every one of them fosters, protects and legalizes the liquor business. The federal government does the same. The policy of the states and of the federal government must be the policies of the parties in power, or the situation would be changed. We know the party in power in Illinois is a saloon-licensing party, because that state has a saloon-licensing policy. Since Kentucky has a saloon-licensing policy we know the party in power is a saloon-licensing party. Every Christian man who votes with either of the political parties committed to that policy fastens upon his own soul responsibility for the guilt and sin of his state. Can it be said that the Christian men of the country are in no danger when a country where Christian men are in control pursues such a wicked policy?

A campaign is needed for the saving of Christian manhood. Great is the incentive to work for the drunkard. Greater the incentive to work with the Christian voter who votes for license. When a Christian government legalizes and sanctions a sinful thing, something is radically wrong. Somebody is in danger.—Oliver W. Stewart.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE AT THE BIENNIAL.

The distinguishing feature of the recent biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was the evidence it gave of the growth of sentiment favorable to woman suffrage. Mrs. Margaret Hamilton Welch, editor of the Club Department of the New York Saturday Evening Post, calls attention to this as follows:

One thing was apparent. Except in some of the Southern Federations, the club women of the United States are beginning to overcome their inborn shrinking from the word politics. In most of the states and most of the clubs the very thought of meddling in politics was for a long time abhorrent. It is no longer so and great national issues, like civil service reform, legislation along special lines, is now as much a concern of club women as library extension or the beautifying of school grounds. That the club women have become so used to voting in their clubs and federations that their minds have become accustomed to the idea of voting at state and national elections is also apparent. Mrs. Decker's address: Is the Ballot of Real Value to Working Women, must divide with Miss Thomas' plea for college education for women the undoubted honors of the seventh biennial. Some of the best speeches from the floor were part of the suffrage session and the almost unanimous election of Mrs. Decker as president of the Federation speaks for itself in the matter of the sentiment of the members towards the one-time bugbear of woman suffrage.

The Southern Liquor Dealer, published at New Orleans, says that Georgia and Mississippi are dead so far as the liquor business is concerned and at the present rate of progress it will only be a few years till all Kentucky will be dry except the larger cities.

THE LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Early W. C. T. U. records show that the first convention, which met for organization in the city of Cleveland in 1874, emphasized the thought that the children should everywhere be gathered into societies of their own, and taught and trained along temperance lines. The committee on these juvenile societies, consisting of Mother Thompson, the Crusade leader, Miss Frances E. Willard and Mrs. A. M. Noe, recommended that in the new paper ordered by the convention a department be instituted for children and youth. The same committee in 1875 authorized the preparation of a juvenile song book and manual. In 1880 Miss Elizabeth W. Greenwood, of Brooklyn, was placed in charge of the Juvenile department as National Superintendent. Miss Greenwood was succeeded in 1882 by Miss Nellie H. Bailey, of Chicago, who was succeeded in 1883 by Mrs. Anna M. Hammer, of Newark, N. J. In 1887 the present incumbent assumed the office. Since 1874 this organized work for the children has gone steadily on until now it embraces many foreign lands as well as all parts of our own country. Previous to 1886 the local societies had various local names, Band of Hope being the one most in use. At the National convention of that year the name Loyal Temperance Legion, and a uniform plan of work, both of which were already in use in some States, were adopted.

The original plan of organized companies has broadened out until it embraces our three departments of work for the boys and girls. Each of these has its own blessed mission, and all of them are necessary to fill out the measure of our responsibility to the children. The Scientific Temperance Instruction gives them God's law of total abstinence as written in their bodies. The Sabbath-school department gives them the safeguard of the pledge, and the help of suitable literature. The Legion does all of these things, and adds the training in practical work which is to make of our boys and girls a disciplined temperance army. It also brings to them the enthusiasm of being banded together in a righteous cause.

The junior societies of the churches cannot do away with the necessity for the Legion. Many of these societies (by no means all of them) give some attention to temperance teaching; but this is only one feature of their work. A subject having so important a bearing upon the welfare of the children needs more than incidental notice. The W. C. T. U. has its own responsibility to the children, which no other agency, not even the Church, can discharge.

Sometimes the pastors will see that their work and ours fit into each other, and will agree to alternate their work with ours, or, at least, give way for a monthly meeting of the L. T. L. Whether meeting independently or alternating with the junior church societies, we must refuse to lose our identity, or be swallowed bodily, even by anything so worthy as a church society.

We are satisfied that the difficulty of obtaining leaders for the Legion may largely find its solution in a faithful trial by each W. C. T. U. of our L. T. L. Normal Grade plan, and the maintaining of a standing committee on the L. T. L., whose members shall attend the Legion meetings, help enforce order, and act as substitutes in the absence of teachers or other regular helpers, and try to secure teachers from the Young People's societies, thus interesting the churches in the L. T. L. In scattered communities a division of the Legion may be carried on in each school district with a quarterly mass meeting of the whole company. Parlor Legions, limited in number, may be superintended by women who could not leave their homes to engage in a general work. Some of our enthusiastic brothers-in-law are rendering efficient service as L. T. L. leaders. Each of our large cities should employ one or more workers at a fair compensation, as not otherwise can a work at all commensurate with the needs be maintained in these great centers of population.

A place for the meetings is a frequent problem. In one city our W. C. T. U. women went before an association of ministers and pressed home the truth that if the churches would not open the doors to the children, the saloons would, and their appeal was not in vain. In another city persistent appeals to the school board have secured the use of ten of the public school buildings; the free use of the town or city hall may be obtained if the authorities understand that the object of the L. T. L. is to make good citizens; the Y. M. C. A. may give the Legion the use of a room. If Sunday is chosen, then ask that each church will in turn open its doors for a stated length of time. If no other place is available the Legion may meet by divisions in homes.

How to maintain the interest becomes often a serious question to the leader. First, act upon the motto of one of your State L. T. L. Secretaries: Begin on time, close on time, keep things moving. Have your programs carefully prepared in advance and let them include plenty of bright singing. Make much of the juvenile offices and officers and appoint as many committees as practicable. Never do anything for the Legioners that they can do themselves. Allow them opportunity for reports and discussions. Give them something to anticipate for the next morning, so that they cannot afford to be absent. Have always on hand some benevolent work. Let special good times be a reward for faithful attendance—never allowing these to be so managed as to put a premium on unfaithfulness.

Let each L. T. L. Superintendent and helper cultivate a belief in this work that will give unfailing enthusiasm, unfaltering courage and a hope that will bear her over all hindrances. HELEN G. RICE,
General L. T. L. Secretary.

MRS. IDA M. MIX, Kokomo, Ind.
General Secretary, L. T. L.

Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand recited Jim and Joe at Gas City on Sunday evening, May 22, to a large and interested audience. A collection was taken for the Hadley Home, which was the largest collection ever contributed by a Gas City audience to our work.

The object of the Loyal Temperance Legion is to teach and train boys and girls from a moral and scientific standpoint in the principles of total abstinence and purity, enlisting them as workers; to lead them to lend a hand in every effort to overthrow the liquor traffic; to accept the rule for enrollment, which is, "I promise to be quiet and orderly, attentive to the instruction of our leader, and thoughtful on the great subjects of Temperance, Purity and Self-Control," and to sign the pledge, "Trusting in God's help, I solemnly promise to abstain from the use of alcoholic drinks, including wine, beer and cider; from the use of tobacco in any form, and from profanity."

All Legioners under eight years of age should be taught orally, and if possible in a room apart from the other Legion. Use Nos. 1 and 2 of Vol. III of L. T. L. Lesson Manuals. Form those from eight to twelve into a class for the study of Vols. II and III of the Lesson Manuals, passing satisfactory oral examinations on all four books of Vol. II and numbers 1 and 2 of Vol. III, and reading numbers 3 and 4 of same volume, questions to be prepared by teacher of class. By these examinations they win two special certificates. The satisfactory grade is 80 per cent, though 75 per cent is passing.

All young people, including those who have not had the advantage of the Junior L. T. L., can, at twelve years of age and over, enter the Senior grade.

All pledged Seniors may secure the L. T. L. diploma by the reading of such articles as shall appear in the Crusader Monthly as Required Readings for Diploma for one year and passing satisfactory examinations on the four numbers of Vol. I of Temperance Lesson Manuals. This examination must be written, the list of questions for which shall be procured through the State L. T. L. Secretary. W. C. T. U. women studying for diplomas may be excused from taking these required readings, but are recommended to include them.

State and National dues are 10 cents a year. Five cents remains in the State for general work and five cents goes to the National. She in turn sends one cent to the world's organization.

After graduation you can become a member of the State Senior Legion by paying 15 cents extra for State Senior work, which makes you a delegate to the L. T. L. State Convention. Honoraries (adults) should pay 25 cents a member. This money is retained in the local treasury. Send all 10 cent dues to the State W. C. T. U. Treasurer.

Those having diplomas and wishing to be members of the State Senior Legion should send their 25 cent dues to the State Senior L. T. L. Treasurer.

In organized counties dues can be arranged to suit the county workers.

Legions paying dues for all pledged members are enrolled on the State honor roll.

The Senior work is very important and meets the question, How shall we hold the boys and girls? After the diploma has been secured, then take up the post graduate's course, which enables our young people to fill the demand of the times for trained specialists in the temperance reform work. In this course there are fourteen seal certificates given for the fourteen different courses, which are: The Pledge, Danger Signals, Purity, Character, Mercy, Bird Study, Golden Rule, Evangelistic, Christian Citizenship, Sociology, Suffrage, Scientific Temperance, Civil Government and L. T. L. Normal. These certificates are engraved with vignettes of prominent reform leaders. Literature is furnished by the National W. C. T. U. Address Miss Ruby I. Gilbert, 915 Silversmith Bldg., 131-137 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill. Decide to follow the regular course laid out for the L. T. L. No other course entitles the pupil to the L. T. L. Junior certificates, diplomas or seal certificates. Secure subscribers to the official organ of the L. T. L., the Crusader Monthly. To secure success ever keep in mind 7 P. M., the L. T. L. hour of prayer.

All red letter days should be observed with appropriate program for each. Our State banners to be awarded are as follows: First, to the Legion paying most dues. Second, to the Legion having the largest graduating class. Third, to the county organizing the most Legions during the year. Mrs. Ida Mix.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

For the tenth time, the Indiana Senior Loyal Temperance Legion has met in an annual convention, and yet how different this meeting to any held before. Never before, in my recollection, have we met as an independent organization in an independent convention. Never before, since I have been connected with the State work, has so much effort been put forth to make our convention successful. In fact, Indiana has taken a long step forward and this morning I feel that a new era is opening before the Senior Legioners of Indiana.

I am especially delighted to have some of the graduates of former years with us in this convention. This is just as it should be. Let the key note of this convention and of the coming year be, Perfect Organization. All we need is more leaders and who is so well fitted to be leaders as those who have taken our course of study and hold a diploma in the Loyal Temperance Legion? Let us be greatly in earnest about this and there is sure success for us.

I favor aggressive standards for our L. T. L. In a letter from our beloved Mrs. Vayhinger, I want you to give my love to the boys and girls. I trust the Father may bless you wonderfully in your meeting and that you may plan largely and well. Do not dishonor God by planning too small, as He is pleased with large faith and work to correspond. This idea of doing things upon a big scale pleases me. I, too, believe that we ought to plan largely and then carry out those plans. I have a motto in my room which I like and which will help us in this large planning. It reads: Resolve to perform what you ought; perform without fail what you resolve. Let us then resolve to plan largely and then carry out those plans without fail. When we stop to consider the evil we are fighting, the Legalized Liquor Traffic, that it is the cause of so large a per cent of our crimes, insanity and every woe this old earth knows and that it is the greatest hindrance to the spreading of the gospel of our Savior and to His Church, we ought not be content with anything short of our best and that means something large. Ever remember it is not what good we may do in any good cause, but the best we can do that is pleasing to our Father.

Do you know, I do not believe that the Loyal Temperance Legion need to stand back for any other organization? nor does it need to be timid in planning and working. Do you remember the first motto we learned in the Legion? It says:

Tremble, King Alcohol, we shall grow up. Now, we Senior Legioners—we graduates—are supposed to be grown up. Are we going to see to it that King Alcohol does tremble? I verily believe that we will. Indeed, King Alcohol does tremble at our advance. We, together with the W. C. T. U., the Prohibition Party, the Anti-Saloon League and all the temperance forces of this land, have so intimidated this powerful King that he is even now holding frequent conferences with his lords, devising ways and means whereby he may attract the youth of our land and he now offers his wares in the guise of confections, at the soda fountain and elsewhere, places frequented by the young people. In my own home city, one of the soda fountains has been known to spike the drinks without orders and there are many, many places like this all over our state and nation.

Then, again, King Alcohol places temptation in the places of amusement; especially is this true for the young man. Attractive summer gardens in close proximity to the saloon and other immoral places prove too pleasant for safety; and the billiard rooms, too often the only room open in the down town districts, aside from the saloon, where men and boys may gather. And we know that the associations of these rooms will surely lead to things more demoralizing. The young man employed all the day must have some recreation for the evening hours. He must have some place to go—something to do. He is not so well satisfied at home or even at a church service as his sister. He is hunting amusement—healthful if he can find it, unhealthful if not. Our churches can and are improving this condition of affairs by well planned, lively social evenings. So can our L. T. L. work along this same line. I believe most heartily in a care free, jolly, social time. I believe young people must have it. I do not believe any young man or woman will grow symmetrically without their times when they can lay all care, worry, business and even petty annoyances and grievances aside and have a thoroughly good time. You know Solomon says: A merry heart doeth good like a medicine; and if he, with all his wisdom found mirth necessary to perfect growth, so do we in this day. The life of the majority of young people is what we have recently learned to call a strenuous one and there must be relaxation or we would all be nervous wrecks before we reached middle life.

However, even good things can be carried too far. We must not abuse even the healthful things or they become insipid and fail to be beneficial. What I want to impress upon us is that we can offer places for clean, wholesome amusement to our young people and friends and even the boys and girls in the L. T. L. can plan and carry out attractive socials. If you have young men in your home who are beginning to frequent billiard rooms, you must remember that the L. T. L. has a department that will save them from the results of its influence and arrange some interesting socials and then, at some opportune time, present the anti-gambling pledge.

Then, we have the tobacco question—and here, I think, the girls need to be careful as well as the boys. Not that they are so liable to use it themselves—for although some girls do smoke cigarettes and think it smart and the way to please the boys—I believe all self-respecting girls would feel themselves forever disgraced if they were to indulge in such a thing, yet why we girls should look with favor upon the young man's use of it and at the same time feel it a disgraceful and shameful habit for us, is a question I do not understand. Custom is a strong factor in our existence and perhaps our seeing the men smoking every day takes off the sense of shame we should feel in seeing a woman smoke, yet the fact remains that the tobacco is just as filthy, just as detrimental to the body and just as blunting to the finer senses of a man as of a woman. How often we are offended upon the streets by having the smoke blown in our faces, or by finding the streets, street cars and other public places unfit for our skirts and numberless other acts of discourtesy to us. And, I do not believe we are wholly blameless for this condition of affairs. Whenever I see a girl driving, walking or under any circumstances allowing a man to smoke in her presence, I think there's a girl who is encouraging the use of tobacco.

No gentleman will smoke in the presence of a lady without her consent and no lady should give that consent. I am fully aware that a great many people differ from me on this point, but all L. T. L. girls know the harmfulness of the weed and can have no use for it. I do not say that we should bar all gentlemen from our society who use it, but I do say that we should absolutely forbid its use in our presence.

EDITH HILLIS, Kokomo, Ind.

when we can have a say-so about it, and in all cases of friendship, I do not believe that we should ever allow any man to repeat the offense of smoking in our presence without our permission. We should discourage its use whenever possible. Our L. T. L. comes to our rescue in another department, that of Anti-Narcotics and we may reach some of our friends that way.

Girls, do not be afraid of offending a man because you object to his habits. I fully realize the positions you are placed in along these lines, but I am absolutely sure that any man worth having for a friend will appreciate you and desire your friendship more for taking a high standard along these lines than for you to let them slip. I know all girls frequently look about them to find that the girls who seemingly have the jolliest times, go the most, have the most friends and seem to be enjoying life to the fullest extent, are girls who object to practically none of these things, but are in for the fullest possible good time. But, after all, these are not the ones who enjoy life to the fullest extent. To find the fullest enjoyment in life we must consider what it is to live. To live is to enjoy the beautiful around us; the society of choice people who have learned the highest and noblest things of this world; to mingle with those whom we feel are our equals, or even superiors, in thought and from whom we can better learn to enjoy and appreciate this world God has given us. To live is to be able to see deep into the beauties around us and to think. Aye, to live is to know God and through Him read wondrous beauty and knowledge from the things about us.

This does not exclude good times, but on the contrary, it gives a dignity and depth of happiness and ability to enjoy life that is an unknown realm to those about us who live only on the surface of things. All existence on the surface must soon grow wearisome and die; but when the roots grow deep, there is happiness and life that will be full of proper gaiety and joy. I cannot preach a solemn existence, because I do not believe in it and would find it impossible to follow, but I can tell of aspirations for the highest and best and point you all to them.

Now, with this idea of growth before us, let us look at the future of the Indiana Loyal Temperance Legion. We cannot stand still. Either we will progress or we will retrograde.

Just for a little while I want to call into our thoughts some of the different departments of our work and what we are doing, or can do, with them in the coming year. First, in the Medal Contest work, we ought to have numberless contests during the coming year. Do not for one moment think that you must confine the class to your L. T. L. This is a missionary movement and educational line. The children themselves ought to be able to interest their playmates and thus help you organize a class. Perhaps the summer time is not the best time to carry on the contest work, as people do not want to attend indoor entertainments in the warm weather, but why not try a lawn social contest? After a class is once formed and particularly after a child once gets a medal, the work is practically done, as the children themselves will then be anxious to keep the work going.

Then, let us consider when we go to planning for the coming year, the Anti-Gambling and Anti-Narcotic Departments. I have already spoken of the need along these lines.

Then we have the Mercy pledge. We all know it. I will try to be kind to all living creatures and try to protect them from cruel usage. Here is work for us and if we will but look about we will daily find many of God's dumb creatures who are receiving cruel treatment and yet I am thankful that this practice is not so common as it used to be. Usually when a man abuses his horse, or any animal unable to protect itself, he is under the influence of King Alcohol.

We are now in the midst of the season for the Flower Mission work. I believe everyone loves the Flower Mission Department. We all love the flowers and we all love to give them to those to whom they come as a blessing and with a message from God. So during these summer months we ought to be piling up our Flower Mission reports. And in the winter time when the blossoms are scarce, a small sprig of anything green is welcome and follows out our sainted Jennie Cassidy's idea. Remember that the rule for making a bouquet was something bright, something white and something sweet. Let us also remember the Scripture text and the bow of white ribbon.

But now I want to suggest something new for us as a State organization. This past year we have had a new department in the Crusader Monthly. This is the National paper of the Loyal Temperance Legion and ought to be in the home of every member. It is through its columns that we learn what other states are doing and receive new ideas for our own work. At the extremely low price of twenty-five cents a year, we ought to have a club in every Legion. Besides the other valuable information we receive from it, it contains the required readings for diploma. Let every Legion have an agent for the Crusader Monthly during the coming year and a Literature Superintendent. Let us remember that literature wisely used is one of the very best methods of converting others to our cause.

We ought to also have in each Legion a Press Superintendent and a committee upon socials and I am not sure but that we ought to have a superintendent of Sabbath Observance. I believe we younger people ought to begin to set a good example before our elders along this line of Sabbath Observance. The Sunday excursion, picnics, the soda fountain and other things open to us on the Sabbath day should never be engaged in. The church and God's work along other lines should be our customary place upon His day. In our executive meeting to be held at same time while we are all together, I trust that those who may gather to plan for our State for the coming year will carefully consider and see fit to add some of the other departments of our work to the Indiana L. T. L. organization.

And now, in closing, I want to leave with you the thought that to accomplish anything along the lines I have referred to this morning we must have a perfect organization. More than anything else, Indiana needs organization. As you will soon hear in the report of the Corresponding Secretary, Indiana has only five counties with only seven senior Legions. I believe there are more than this in the State, but if so we have failed to get their report. I am hoping any praying that in the coming year we may be able to organize our State more perfectly. To this end we want a Corresponding Secretary who can have the time to give to the work—and we need field workers. For so long we had this idea of a field worker upon our heart. We have been looking for some one who could go from county to county and hold at least one meeting in each county for the L. T. L. So far, we have found no one, but we are still hoping and believing that some time we will. Let us ever be hopeful, for after all we are sure of success, seeing that our cause is right. Youth is ever hopeful and that is the reason—at least one reason, why we dare believe that we are such a great factor in this temperance movement. We are not easily discouraged and if those who have been long in the fight some times grow weary or a little discouraged, it is our privilege and possibly our mission to see victory before us and with our eyes fixed upon it and our leader, to press onward.

MISS EDITH HILLIS.

INDIANA STATE L. T. L. CONVENTION

Met in separate session, June 17, at Christian Tabernacle, Marion, Ind. Convention called to order at 10:00 A. M. by President, Miss Edith Hillis, of Kokomo. Were greatly pleased to see so many L. T. L. delegates and also W. C. T. U. officers present. Mrs. Cunningham, Grant County, Secretary of L. T. L. work, led the Devotionals, reading from a portion of Proverbs. Miss Inna Smith, of Marion, State Vice-President, gave the welcome address. Response by Miss Hillis. A motion was made and carried making all W. C. T. U. officers members of our convention without privilege of voting. They were also given place on the platform. The State President, Miss Edith Hillis, made an able address, after which we felt new encouragement and that victory was not far distant. She also showed us the necessary departments in our Legions that in the coming year we may be better organized. Mrs. Lida Stewart was appointed as chairman of press committee. Report of State Treasurer was given and accepted, showing $22.79 in treasury in beginning of year, $37.76 at close. Letters of greeting read by Recording Secretary from Miss Hazel Bennet, Mrs. Gilmore, Miss Palmer and Mrs. Rice. Minutes of Executive Committee were read and adopted. Corresponding Secretary report read by Mrs. Mix and adopted. Mrs. McVicker gave report of South Marion L. T. L. Mrs. Metz gave report of Marion County. Song given by West Marion L. T. L. was greatly appreciated.

Solo by Miss Estella Gard, of Marion, accompanied by Miss Coggeshall, applauded and responded with another selection. Benediction.

ANTI-GAMBLING.

Of all the many forms of vice and sin which spring from a misuse of money, gambling is the worst and is the most destructive of personal manliness and national integrity and honor. Let Herbert Spencer define gambling for us: "Gambling is a kind of action by which pleasure is obtained at the cost of pain to another." It affords no equivalent to the general good. The happiness of the winner implies the misery of the loser. We have not taken up this department of work in Indiana as we should. The Kokomo Legion has done more than any other by securing signers to the pledge, which is as follows: I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from gambling in all its forms, including games of chance for money or other valuable consideration.

Gambling is demoralizing; unsettles the mind of any youth who begins its practice; unfits him for the common business of life; living in a world of unwholesome excitement will gradually destroy all faculty for honest, simple work. The sure result of gambling is the loss of self-respect, which is man's chief treasure.

We shall have to give an account to God for the way in which every shilling of our money was acquired or spent and the man of noble nature faces this responsibility and seeks to use his money for the common good. Gambling is utterly foolish. The only man who makes money is the one behind the scenes and often enough he comes to grief. If you want to enjoy money, make it honestly. What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

HOW CAN A LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION BEST HELP THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE?

The Loyal Temperance Legioners are, first of all, workers and the great need, as well as the variety of work practicable for them to undertake will preclude the possibility of any Legion wondering what it can do. Frances E. Willard was right—"Do everything;" talk, sing, pray, hop, skip and jump for temperance. We need known teetotalers on the ball ground, boys proud of their total abstinence principles and record. We need total abstinences in college, in the home, in the boating parties, at the restaurant, at the soda fountain, down town, everywhere. Are you holding medal contests? L. T. L. socials? public temperance meetings? Are you flower mission workers? Do you circulate temperance literature? hold rousing meetings for children? Have you organized a

Loyal Temperance Legion choir, senior or junior, and prepared yourself to furnish the very best music obtainable in the town for public meetings? In these and many other ways the young people can find countless opportunities to stir the hearts and consciences of the people and can assist in obtaining better enforcement of the prohibitive liquor laws and in the splendid contests for the triumph of prohibition. The National Liquor Dealers' Protective Bureau is sending out its millions of pages of literature as well as poisoning the press of the country, but worst of all is determined to make its financial future secure by capturing our young people through its subtle, satanic devices for creating appetite. Loyal Temperance Legioners, if alert and industrious, can in any community arouse public sentiment on this subject to such a white heat that young people will be on their guard, children will be protected and the arrest of thought given to any thoughtless and indifferent parents. We are looking to the members of the Loyal Temperance Legion, senior and junior, as never before for active help in this great struggle. O! that our young people would utilize the power they possess! Then might King Alcohol (knave that he is) tremble, for his kingdom would be taken from him by an aroused and enlightened generation paying glad allegiance to King Temperance. ANNA A. GORDON.

The object of this fund is two-fold: First, to aid with literature the Legions of the newer States and Territories, especially in their work among the Indians and the work among the colored girls and boys of the Southern States. Second, to assist in planting Legions in Japan.

The specific work for this fund is: First, to raise money for sending The Crusader Monthly into parts of our own land, mentioned above, also to send song books, manuals and other L. T. L. supplies which have already served their purpose and can be spared. Second, to contribute money or supplies for L. T. L. work in Japan.

As director of this Extension Fund, I must have the co-operation of L. T. L. Secretaries of both the receiving and the contributing States. All contributions of money, properly marked, should be sent to me. Supplies should be sent direct to their final destination in order to save postage. Addresses to which these may be sent, can be obtained of me.

I will assign to each State, upon application, a special mission field, or its contributions may be applied to answering the specific calls which I am receiving. Among the calls now before me are: A request from Mrs. Addie N. Fields, Mexico, for thirty subscriptions to The Crusader Monthly to be sent to Mexico; from the National Superintendent of Work Among Indians a list of subscriptions to be sent to teachers and from another source a list to be sent to leaders of colored Legions.

Mission fields already assigned are: To Maine, Virginia (No. 2); to Massachusetts, Mexico; to New York, North Carolina (Thurman); to Pennsylvania, Alabama (No. 2); to Wisconsin, the Indian work of its own State; to Iowa, Florida; to Michigan, Indian Territory; to New Jersey, New Mexico; to New Hampshire, Georgia (No. 2); to Illinois, Oklahoma; to North Dakota, Tennessee (No. 2); to California, Arizona Indian work; to Frances E. Willard Legion, of Knoxville, Tenn., the two mission schools of Chihuahua, Mexico; Ohio, Indian Territory; Connecticut, Louisiana (No. 2).

Although the needs of our own States are sufficient to tax our energies, let us not fail to broaden our outlook and enlarge our sympathies by doing what we can in the line of this National Plan, thus exemplifying the spirit of our motto: Lifting others as we climb. Twenty-five cents will send The Crusader Monthly to do work for us for one whole year, a small amount of money for the large amount of good it will accomplish.

ANTI-NARCOTICS.

It has been the Secretary's pleasure to distribute some Anti-Narcotic literature and to personally advise some who were just forming the baneful habit. From over the State have come encouraging reports of work that has been done. Much literature has been distributed, many have signed the Anti-Narcotic pledge and lectures have been given.

PERSONAL EXPERIENCES IN SECURING LEADERS FOR L. T. L.

The average woman in the W. C. T. U. has somehow conceived the idea that superhuman qualification is needed for leadership in the L. T. L. and she therefore shrinks from accepting such service, although she readily undertakes the responsibility of moulding the life and the character of her own children, holding herself largely responsible for the outcome. Why is it that this same woman shrinks from giving one hour a week to a little band of boys and girls in order to teach them the beauty of total abstinence and train them to be our helpers in this blessed gospel of temperance?

She does not hesitate to teach the Gospel of Christ in the Sabbath school, but from such presentation in the Loyal Legion she begs to be excused.

Recently I asked a member who conducts an important W. C. T. U. department to take a class in the L. T. L. during my enforced absence. She grudgingly consented to lead one meeting, but most emphatically requested that I never again ask her. Why should the white ribboner hesitate to lead her own child, the Legioner, into the pathway which she believes is the safe one, the righteous one, the pleasant one for herself and her family?

"I don't know one thing about L. T. L. work," is the frequent answer to our appeals. The well-worn excuse reminds me of a fellow teacher who, in a public school examination, when asked by the superintendent a simple question in notation, failed to answer. The superintendent then queried:

"Did thee not tell me thee had taught school seven years?"

"Yes," she replied, "but I never began that far back."

How such an answer subjected her to ridicule in the minds of the young spectators! What do the boys and girls think when they hear a member say that she "knows nothing about the L. T. L. work"—the kindergarten and school for the W. C. T. U.?

Once I claimed that I was not enough of a Bible scholar to take a class in Sabbath school, when an old Friend of eighty years said, "If thee don't know now, it is time thee should learn." I took the class, became a student with the other students and I ever afterwards thanked God and the good man who gave me the spur to a life of service for the young.

We cannot promise the leader of the L. T. L. easy work—that needing but little thought and the expenditure of little energy—for the duties of leadership demand our very best efforts; but we do say, with intense earnestness, that it is inspiring, hopeful, joyful work, that the life entering into the fresh activities of you—planning with them and for them—has a blessedness that only those who do it can ever know. Why then, if only for the joy of it, do not our women give a ready response to the call for help in the Legion work? Do we not all understand that the foundation for victory in our fight against the liquor traffic lies in enlisting the young? Is not this the most important work of our great organization?

More than half the unions in the old Keystone State say, "We have no L. T. L. because no leader." But there is, after all, a more hopeful side to conditions. The women who are willing to serve as leaders, although not always possessed of unusual talents, are consecrated to the highest interests of the youth under their care.

The woman who has settled the question of leadership for herself is the woman who feels the responsibility of every young life about her for good or for ill. After winning the boys and girls, such a leader carries them on through the different grades of study into the Senior work, from which she is sending out young men and young women who thoroughly understand the work of the L. T. L. to be that of training for the best manhood and womanhood. To multiply this woman a thousand times would be to make possible one thousand more such normal schools for the training of L. T. L. leaders.—The Union Signal.

(BY MISS FRANCES E. WILLARD.)

MISS ANNA GORDON

Was a delicate and very fragile baby, so delicate that the most faithful of mothers carried her on a pillow much of the first year.

When she was three years old the family moved to Auburndale, ten miles from the city, and one of Boston's loveliest suburbs. Little Anna was now quite strong and a most noticing little thing. As the family walked to their pretty new home, they missed her at the open gate way of a fine old mansion, but the mother caught the gleam of her dress and entered, and there was the fair haired little one kneeling beside a bed of violets with her small arms stretched out over them, and saying in sweet, earnest tones, I didn't know that. Her love of nature has always been so great that with her gift of versification, I have always felt that, with literary surroundings, she might have become a charming writer. Akin to this quality is the love of animals, which well nigh amounts to a passion, and prepared her for a leader in our Mercy Bands. Three little brothers came to the home, and doubtless her share in bringing them up gave Anna much of that bright, attractive way with children that has been one of her greatest charms in our white ribbon work.

She went to the famous Newton High School and afterward to Mt. Holyoke College, and later attended lectures at Lasell Seminary, and studied music, to which she and her whole family had always been devoted. I never heard so many fine voices at family prayers as those of the father and mother and their six children—for when I came to know them the youngest and fairest had passed away.

On my going to conduct the women's meetings for Mr. Moody in Boston there was no one to play the cabinet organ that was beside my desk on the platform. An earnest appeal was made, and after a painful pause and waiting, a slight figure in black, with a little music roll in the hand, came shyly along the aisle of Berkeley St. Church, and Anna Gordon gently whispered, As no one volunteers, I will do the best I can. Something great had come into her life a fortnight earlier. The death of her brother Arthur, eighteen years of age, and nearer to her by years and temperament than any of the others (a lovely, devoted Christian boy who stood in the first rank at the high school and was going to Amherst College to prepare for the ministry) was her first great sorrow. Very soon thereafter, while in one of Mr. Moody's meetings, she had consecrated herself unreservedly to God.

Miss Gordon wrote Marching Songs, Song Book for the Y's, and later the White Ribbon Hymnal, so that her books of song have gone wherever the W. C. T. U. has a group of workers the world over.

Anna Gordon is in her happy prime and with a rich experience and ever widening outlook. Best of all, she grows steadily in the sweet grace of humility and the crowning beatitude of loyalty to our Heavenly Father that earthly brotherhood and sisterhood which are the crowning proofs of the presence of Christ in personal character and prophesy the setting up of that Heavenly Kingdom for which White Ribbon women work and pray.

Mrs. Katherine Lente Stevenson gives this beautiful tribute: No life story of Frances E. Willard could be complete which did not include the story of Anna Gordon as a potent factor in that life. She was a part of Miss Willard's very self, as few daughters are parts of their mothers. Her love for our great leader seemed a composite of all loves.

More truly than any other love I have ever known, was it absolutely free from the faintest shadow of personal jealousy. Other friends came into that many-sided life; her interests were world-wide and many great natures were attracted to her winsome personality, but this early love never wavered, never knew doubt or the shadow of turning, never put the thought of self before the interests of her friend. I hope it will not seem irreverent, said Miss Gordon to me, but I took as my motto long ago, I love them that love her, and no one can love her too well to please me. Is it any wonder that so great a nature should have found close kinship with the greatest woman of the century, or indeed of the ages?

What Anna Gordon was to Frances Willard, eternity alone can show. She touched her life, not alone through the channel of its deep affections, but through the manifold, broad channels of Miss Willard's work for humanity. Not one of the great leader's plans and purposes was ever withheld from her friend, and while her fertile brain originated the seed-thought, to Anna Gordon was given the privilege of preparing the soil in which that thought might come to its perfect maturity. Frances Willard was the genius, but Anna Gordon made the environment in which that genius came to its fullest development. Her capacity for detail has always been marvelous and through all the twenty-one years in which she was Miss Willard's constant companion, whether in traveling, or at Rest Cottage, at home or abroad, it was upon her that the detail work came. She planned the trips; she cared for the finances; she sheltered and protected from petty cares and from routine work; she made it possible for that mighty intellect to give itself, without reserve, without restraint or hindrance, to the work to which she was called. An Organized Providence she certainly has been and a necessary compliment to Miss Willard's inmost nature and life. The story of the beginning of their acquaintance has been told and that act was typical of Anna Gordon's nature. To see a duty has been with her always a synonym for its performance and hers is a clearer insight to discover duty than is granted to many. From her service as organist during the time Miss Willard conducted the Women's Meetings in connection with the great Moody revival in Boston, the friendship was an unbroken one. A few months after the Moody meetings closed, she went to Rest Cottage and became Miss Willard's private secretary. In addition to all that, as conveyed in that term, she has carried on a large and varied work of her own—as World's Superintendent of Loyal Temperance Legion.—Biographical Sketch.

RED LETTER DAYS.

This month we celebrate the birthday of Miss Anna A. Gordon by issuing this supplement, and suggest to each childless Union in the State that on the 21st of July you organize a Legion in her honor, and that each Legion observe this day as picnic day by a special effort to give all boys and girls a good time.

Remember that September 28, Miss Willard's birthday, has also been made a red letter day for the obtaining of Crusader Monthly subscribers, to increase our membership, and by the giving of suitable public meetings.

WANTED—A SHOWER.

So strong the sun poured down its rays
All felt its mighty power;
It withered up the grassy blade,
And scorched the drooping flower.
It baked the brick walks to a turn
Through every daylight hour,
And caused the very stones to burn
And all the cream to sour.

The south wind blew its feeble breath,
All moisture to devour,
Till suffering man cried out, Oh, when
Will come a cooling shower!
The man who had a rain machine
Shut up within his tower,
Did gaily say, This very day,
I'll send them down a shower.

So not in vain men looked for rain,
For clouds began to lower
Down in the west and soon there fell
A pleasant summer shower.
It sprayed the leaves upon the trees,
Revived the drooping flower,
It cooled the air, and everywhere,
Came blessings with the shower.

All over the land our mothers
Are struggling to clear the way,
The clouds of dust of prejudice,
That smother lives each day.
To make this world a fresher place
Where human flowers shall grow;
To dig King Alcohol's deep grave,
Because they hate him so.

The burden of the day they bear,
The summer sun doth glower,
There's nothing they require so much,
As a reviving shower.
Perhaps you have no rain machine,
But, dear friends, use your power,
From pocketbooks to pour on them
A refreshing silver shower.

—Our Messenger.

ANNUAL ADDRESS.

By MISS MARIE C. BREHM,
State President W. C. T. U. of Illinois.

When the Woman's Christian Temperance Union chose for its motto, "For God and Home and Native Land," it was true to the spirit of the poem in its attempt to "paint the sky" for this nation, and it was true to God's own word that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, and sin is a reproach to any people." God first, has been the lesson taught by this organization of Christian women.

The real work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union grows in beauty just in proportion as our hearts are filled with the love of God, and we make it the first concern of our lives to seek His Kingdom and His righteousness. I say it reverently, nevertheless, and I believe it to be true. There is no position nor honor as a Christian worker more to be coveted than to stand out before the world, recognized as a consistent, active member of this great organization, the highest embodiment of a Christian life.

Do we appreciate that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is the widest door of opportunity that has ever swung open to women? Are you interested in putting God first in your life, as regards sending the Gospel to foreign lands? Then see how necessary it is for the principles of total abstinence and the prohibition of the liquor traffic to be a part of your program. For nothing hinders the spread of the Gospel in heathen lands as does the sale of intoxicating liquors. According to the statements made by the missionaries who give their lives for this cause, "rum destroys a hundred souls where we save one." Is your "sky painted first" in home missions?

Again, you see that nothing hinders the spread of the Gospel at home as do the thousands of saloons with their baneful influence on public officials, their active work of destruction among men and boys, their traps and snares for unwary women and girls, their crushing blight upon the lives of the countless children born under the shadow of this colossal wrong.

Are you interested in the work of purity? And do you believe that it is the "pure in heart that shall see God?" Behold how the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, through the education of its purity department, teaches that the seventh commandment was written for both men and women. Through its mothers' meetings educating the mothers how to keep "pure and unspotted" the little ones entrusted to their care. By means of Cradle Roll, Loyal Temperance Legion laying hold of the children themselves and pledging them in their early youth to lives of purity, sobriety and righteousness. Are you persuaded that the best way for you to put God first in your life is by serving in the Sunday School and feeding the lambs of His flock? Again the question arises, what shall it profit you to spend your hours in prayer and Bible study for the sake of these little ones, unless you fortify them against their greatest enemy, the saloon? It is the Woman's Christian Temperance Union that secured the teaching of temperance from a Bible stand-point quarterly in the Sunday Schools of the land. It is this organization of mother love that persistently keeps up the agitation to pledge the boys and girls in the Sunday Schools to abstinence from all alcoholic drinks and tobacco. In whatever direction your activities for God's Kingdom may take you, the principles of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be found to have a prominent place for the reason that they are Christian.

Are you a student of the times? The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has the broadest curriculum of study of present day conditions, affords the truest culture toward a right patriotism. It maintains the highest standard of conduct for the individual, with the truest and highest conception of the mission of the Christian—in the home, the church, the school, the state and the nation. As Joseph Cook said: "It is the church in motion."

Are "you painting your sky first" in the home, believing that the home is the annex of heaven on earth, the corner-stone of the republic, and that the nation that legislates first in the interest of its homes can afford to make mistakes in other directions? Look at the motto—For God—God first, for Home—home next. Without God, the home will go down, without home, the nation will perish. The liquor evil is pre-eminently the enemy of the home. Nothing has destroyed so many lives, desolated so many homes and ruined so many souls, broken so many hearts as intemperance. It sends one hundred thousand men down to drunkard's graves every year who leave behind them heart-broken wives and mothers, and suffering children. Each year brings its hundred thousand victims. Where do they come from?

Somebody's boys must be sacrificed each year to swell the procession that passes from the home through the saloons to the drunkard's grave. To stop that army you must stop the manufacture of intoxicating liquors.

There is a moral issue involved in this question of the home versus the saloon, which will sooner or later claim a just settlement, and we shall find arrayed against the demoralizing forces of the saloon the power of the Home.

"Out from the hearthstone the children go,
Fair as the sunshine, pure as the snow;
A licensed wrong on the crowded street
Waits for the coming of the guileless feet.
Child of the rich, and child of the poor
Pass to their wreck through the dram-shop's door."

Are you trying to put God first in your life by serving your country? You will find it all in the motto, "For God and Home and Native Land." White Ribbons are good patriots. They stand for that higher patriotism that answers to the call of the nation in its need in times of peace as well as in war. Not for the old battles to be fought over again, but for right to triumph over wrong, in the ever present now. Not against the tyranny of King George, but against the tyranny of King Alcohol, against corruption in politics, against greed in business, against oppression of the poor, against the seating of the enemies of the nation in the seats of its congress. Not against the slavery of the black only, but against slavery of all kinds. Slavery through drink, slavery through unjust social conditions, slavery through impurity, slavery through unrighteous legislation. Our warfare peaceful, often quiet and obscure, is for humanity's sake, and we as Christians ought to manifest daily, by word and deed, our faith in God and our loyalty to Christ, whose we are and whom we serve.

THE INTERNATIONAL REFORM BUREAU

Is an active, non-partisan, non-sectarian organization, duly incorporated, with Board of Trustees and Board of Directors, having its headquarters, at 206 Pennsylvania ave., S. E., Washington, D. C. Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, Ph. D., is Superintendent, Rev. O. R. Miller, A. M., is its Field Secretary.

THE REFORM BUREAU'S OBJECT.

The primary object of the Reform Bureau is to secure the passage by Congress of important and much-needed reform legislation along the lines of temperance, Sabbath Observance, stricter divorce laws, anti-gambling, anti-polygamy, etc.

The Bureau promotes those Christian reforms on which the churches sociologically unite, while theologically differing. It proffers co-operation to all associations that stand for the defence of the Sabbath and purity; for the suppression of intemperance, gambling and political corruption; for the substitution of arbitration and conciliation for both industrial and international wars.

The Reform Bureau's past success may be seen from the fact that eight bills passed by Congress were drawn up by the Bureau and introduced at its request, and by it, with the help of other reform organizations, followed up and pushed to final success, as follows:

1. The bill so long desired by Dr. Paton to stop the shipping of liquor, opium and firearms by American traders to the New Hebrides Islands.
2. The bill to close by contract the gates of the St. Louis fair on the Sabbath.
3. The bill to suppress liquor selling in all the immigrant stations of our country.
4. The new divorce law for the District of Columbia, limiting divorces to one cause only.
5. The bill to break up the "divorce colonies" in the territories, especially in Oklahoma, by requiring a 12 months' residence there before one can get a divorce.
6. The Johnson Anti-Canteen amendment to remove from the camps of our soldiers the temptation of intoxicating liquor.
7. The bill to increase the protection of girls under 21 in the District of Columbia.
8. The Senate resolution favoring an international treaty to suppress rum selling among all the uncivilized races of the world.

IT PREVENTS BAD LEGISLATION.

The Reform Bureau has also prevented much bad legislation. It secured the defeat of the Bartlett-Cameron bill to license race gambling in the District of Columbia; and it defeated a similar bill in the Pennsylvania Legislature and two attempts to repeal the strict divorce law of the District of Columbia, also an attempt to grant an opium monopoly in the Philippines.

Is not a society that can report such large moral dividends worthy of generous support?

REFORM BUREAU PLANS FOR 1904-5.

- We shall press for the following measures:
1. Stronger National Anti-Gambling laws.
 2. A better Sabbath law for Washington, D. C.
 3. A National Anti-Cigarette law.

4. The McCumber bill to suppress liquor selling in old soldiers' homes and in all buildings owned by the United States Government.

5. An Anti-Polygamy amendment to the constitution; meanwhile seeking the expulsion of Smoot, in co-operation with the W. C. T. U.

6. The Hepburn Inter-State Liquor bill to stop liquor dealers from another State shipping liquors by express in the original packages to illegal liquor dealers in no-license territory; this bill will greatly strengthen the effectiveness of all No-license and Prohibitory laws.

7. A uniform Marriage and Divorce law throughout the country. Divorce laws in all the States should be raised to the high standard set by the new divorce law at the National Capital.

8. We will urge on other nations the International Temperance Treaty to suppress liquor selling among all uncivilized races of the world.

The Superintendent and Field Secretary, who give their whole time to the work of the Bureau, will also, in addition to their work for good legislation, continue to drive out foul literature, promote better Sabbath observance, work for temperance, urge the Curfew and other needed local reforms wherever they go.

LARGE RESULTS AT SMALL COST.

Bishop Alex. Mackay Smith, of Philadelphia, says: "The Reform Bureau is one of those institutions absolutely necessary in Washington to get Congress to do things which must be done, but which have no one else to put them in motion. I do not believe that any other society for aiding decent things gets such large results at so small a cost."

Are you a member of the Reform Bureau? If not, will you not join, and thus receive its magazine, the Twentieth Century Quarterly, and other bulletins and literature from time to time, which will keep you informed as to the progress of all the great reform movements at our National Capital.

The Bureau memberships are as follows: Junior member (under 21 years), 50c; Associate member, $1.00; Active member, $2.00; Annual member, $3.00; Corresponding member, $4.00; Supporting member, $5.00; Sustaining member, $10.00; Honorary member, $25.00. Patron, $50.00; Life member, $100.00.

Can you not help the Bureau's work to the extent of one of the above memberships, for one year at least? If so, please sign the blank below and give to the Bureau's representative, or mail to the Reform Bureau's headquarters, 206 Pennsylvania ave., S. E., Washington, D. C.

HOLD CONTESTS.

How the time flies and how swiftly the few remaining weeks between now and convention will pass and how necessary that we improve this valuable time.

I trust that we have not forgotten the aim—650 contests—and it may surprise you to learn that more than half of these are yet to be held.

I know that, in some localities, it was necessary to lay down the work for the winter, but I trust that these will be taken advantage of this beautiful weather and make up for lost time. The few who have labored through cold and heat are certainly to be commended, but, my dear sisters, we must help to bear the burden. I feel sure that you will be repaid for any sacrifice made and let us work to win.

May God abundantly bless every effort put forth in this, His cause.

CORA M. STEELE.

FIELD NOTES.

Mrs. Martha M. Allen, National Superintendent Non-Alcoholic Medication, has just written that the lady who proposed to solicit funds for printing the Leaflets to be given to physicians, has not yet secured the required amount.

Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, State President, was out five weeks in Institute work. She gained one hundred and five active and sixty honorary members, pledged one hundred and eight boys and girls for the Loyal Temperance Legion and made twenty-four addresses.

Benton County is moving on. Never before have we had so much temperance talk and work. We have only one saloon in Benton, and that will go when the license expires. The blind pigs are few, and they are being rooted out. It keeps us busy, but the men and the public press are most loyal.

South Kokomo Union has rented a room at the Orphans' Home building in which to hold weekly meetings. The following was a program for a recent meeting: Devotional, Mrs. Edwards; Solo, Mrs. Zealans; for service, Mrs. Arnold; Story, a lesson for Mothers, Mrs. Richards; Purity in Literature and Art, Mrs. Roush.

Dillsboro Union held a very successful silver medal contest April 29 in the Presbyterian Church. There were six contestants, each of whom had made special preparation. The recitations were all well rendered. The music was impressive and appropriate. Miss Lucy Gintes was awarded the medal, which was presented by County President, Mrs. C. M. Kroft.

Little Lois Vayhinger beautifully recited Little Blossom at Watertord.

Franklin County Institute was held at Bath. Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer, leader. The Institute was carried out as laid down, our ministers making the discussions very interesting. On the first evening Miss Palmer lectured and on the second evening there was a silver and gold medal contest. Miss Edyth Maley received the gold medal and Miss Opha Stout, the silver. The Willard Memorial Union of Bath gave a dinner which was enjoyed by all.

Burlington Union held a contest May 28 at Cloverdale M. E. church, which was very interesting. Miss Carrie Kenworthy won the medal. Mrs. Alice Hanson, our President, and Mrs. Edith Johnson conducted the contest, after which, Mrs. Johnson gave a very interesting talk on W. C. T. U. work and read the pledge. Large attendance. Receipts, $11.00. Fifty pages of literature distributed. Three more contests on foot by Burlington Union.

Hammond Union held a triple medal contest May 19. There was a class of children, aged ten or under, of which Miss Ruth Webster won the medal. A class of young people, of which Miss Frances Hamacher took the medal and Miss Nelle Holmes won in the vocal music contest. The audience was pleased with the evening's entertainment and the Union counts it a success every way, except financially. It will help the work for the future.

Crown Point Union observed Flower Mission day June 9. The ladies of the Union met in the parlor of the M. E. church at 8 o'clock. After short devotional service, 135 bouquets were made and distributed; 28 at the county asylum, 17 at county jail, 14 at sanitarium. The remaining bouquets were given to the sick, aged and shut-ins of the town. As the night closed upon us we felt that it had been one more day's work for Jesus.

Marion County W. C. T. U. will give a lawn fete. The funds raised will be used in assisting other organizations. To protect young women passing through Indianapolis on their way to St. Louis Exposition, it was planned to place a W. C. T. U. woman in the Union Station at Indianapolis, but Superintendent Zion thought the woman provided by the company gave sufficient protection to those passing through the station. Much disappointment is felt at the failure of this plan.

Porter County held a most successful and profitable Institute under the leadership of our State President, Mrs. Vayhinger. The day sessions were unusually interesting, several papers being read and ably discussed that brought out facts that were very helpful. At each evening session a contest was held, the first evening by a class of boys and the second by girls. A number of new names were added to the membership roll and many who had never attended an Institute before spoke in warm praise of our gifted President and bespoke future success to our cause.

Princeton Union held its annual Institute May 6 and 7, 1904. The meetings were held in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and were fairly well attended. Mrs. Houghton, our leader, was untiring in her efforts to make the meetings a success. Nearly all the topics on the program were taken up and discussed. There were some subscriptions to our papers. We secured ten new members and twelve one dollar subscriptions to the Hadley Home and a ten dollar silver medal contest. We wish to express to Mrs. Houghton our thanks and appreciation for her work among us.

Mrs. Stahl, our efficient Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings and Purity, spent two days and three evenings in Pulaski county. At Star City she gave her lecture on Alaska, speaking of her shipwreck, which was very interesting. On Sabbath afternoon she held a Mothers' Meeting, which was well attended and highly appreciated. Three new members were gained. In the evening she gave a gospel temperance lecture to a large and attentive audience. We trust that the good seed sown will bring forth an abundant harvest. From Star City she went to Winamac.

Mooreville Union observed Flower Mission day by visiting every shut-in sick person and every aged person in town and in the country near by. Six little girls, dressed in white, distributed seventy-five bouquets for the union. Our union is doing a splendid flower mission work. Saturday, June 18, the president and vice-president will give a reception to the union, each member bringing a lady friend. A good program will be rendered. All the ministers and their wives are invited. In this way we hope to create an interest in the temperance work and secure new members. Ice cream and cake will be served.

South Marion Flower Mission Day was a success. A program of songs and recitations was followed by the reading of a paper by Mrs. Smith. Subject, Why more women attend church than men. After this interesting program, refreshments were served. A collection, amounting to $3.20 was taken, which was given to the Flower Mission Superintendent to buy flower mission literature. Sixty-five bouquets, tied with white ribbon, forty text cards and 1,146 pages of literature were arranged to distribute. Bouquets were pinned on the street car men and were sent to all sick neighbors, to the hospital and jail. Great pains taken to furnish all with bouquets. Forty guests were in attendance.

Economy Union gave a reception at the home of the President, Mrs. Hannah Taylor, on Thursday evening, June 16, in honor of sixteen new members, the result of our membership contest. Good music, social enjoyment and light refreshments were enjoyed by 125 invited guests. Miss Marie Brehm gave her lecture, On the Jericho Road, on June 23, to a good audience in the M. E. Church. The collection paid expenses. Eight more members were enrolled, six honorary. The decorations, arranged by the young people, were the admiration of all.

Lebanon Union Flower Mission Day was most interesting. Ninety-one bouquets, tied with white ribbon with scripture text cards attached, were distributed among the sick, the aged and the prisoners in the county jail. Afterward a visit to the Orphans' Home east of the city, where were eight boys and one girl between the ages of seven and sixteen years, under the motherly care of Mrs. Phil. Herod, the matron. The children seemed happy. On the return a stop was made at the County Infirmary, where a cordial welcome was extended by Mrs. Campbell, Superintendent. About thirty-five persons are now residents at this place, a majority of whom are old men, some of them pitiable indeed. In addition to the flowers distributed to all, temperance literature was also given. Mrs. Herod and Mrs. Campbell joined the W. C. T. U.

DuBois County Institute was held at Bethel on account of the inclement weather, the two days' business was transacted in one day. A little band of faithful women and a few visitors gathered at the little county church. The meeting opened with singing Blessed Assurance. Devotional exercises, Mrs. Sara G. Kelso, Institute leader, Mrs. Elizabeth Houghton. Miss Anna Killin was elected Secretary pro tem. Mrs. Sara G. Kelso, chairman of the enrollment committee, reported present one National Superintendent of Unfermented Wine, one County President, one County Treasurer, one County Press Superintendent, two local Secretaries, one local Treasurer and a goodly number of visitors. Owing to the busy season among the farmers, the crowd was not so large as it would have been otherwise. One woman even drilled corn to get a horse to come and was prevented at last. Mrs. Houghton spoke on Loyal Temperance Legion and literature. A Bible reading was given by Mrs. Houghton. Miss Emma Alford was appointed Superintendent of Evangelistic department. Mrs. M. L. Hobbs spoke on the co-operation of forces. The leader spoke earnestly on the Use of Alcohol as a Medicine. Her husband being a physician, she presented the subject very ably. Miss Helen Rose talked on Which Shall Live, Scientific Temperance in the Public Schools or the Report of the Committee of Fifty? They closed with a love feast and repeated the Lord's Prayer in concert.

South Bend Central Section of the W. C. T. U. entertained a Thimble at the home of Mrs. A. W. Lee. Eighty-five ladies were present. After an enjoyable social hour had been passed and all the guests had arrived, a very helpful program was rendered. Prayer was offered by County President, Mrs. Fassnacht, followed by a pleasing duet by Mrs. Lucian Snyder and Mrs. Will Taylor. The first speaker was Miss Hill, teacher of drawing in our public schools. Miss Hill's experience among the children has enabled one of her keen observation to present to those of less experience many helpful thoughts in regard to the training of children. This impression was left with the listeners: Teach the children to be natural, not mechanical; the mother is to remember she is not to grow old, but to keep in touch with the child. Her address was well received. Mrs. Alexander Staples, President of the Section, gave an earnest talk on The Responsibility of Motherhood. She said, in part, Men and women are trained for every profession in life except that of motherhood and yet what other calling is fraught with so great responsibility? Mrs. Staples' talk, though not to say lengthy, gave food for much serious thought and brought us face to face with facts we should be under obligations to consider. The duet, Unanswered Let, which followed, seemed to be the final aid in clinching the thought with which Mrs. Staples would impress her hearers. Miss Alice Bradley then gave very helpful ideas concerning the teaching of purity among children, her thought being the teaching through nature. Very beautifully indeed were her thoughts illustrated by word pictures. Every mother was surely helped by the thoughts which Miss Bradley presented. Mrs. Emil Rye then dealt with the practical side of life in solving many Mothers' Problems, every illustration being either from personal experience or observation. If, according to Mrs. Rye, Johnnie were spanked when he lays on the floor, kicking and screaming for what he wants, he would be saved considerable trouble in future life. This paper will surely prove helpful to those who heard it. Mrs. Snyder then sang, very sweetly, Balm Days. Choice refreshments were served. The ladies expressed themselves as having spent a very profitable afternoon.

Marion County News Items—Mrs. Carrie Quinn, Medal Contest Superintendent, is doing very successful work. At the Institute recently held Mrs. Quinn prepared a class of ten. Every selection was given in so perfect a manner that the judges had difficulty in rendering a decision. Mrs. Florence Werner received the Matrons' Silver Medal, presented by Hon. B. F. Watson. This same recitation, the result of treating, was given by Mrs. Werner at an entertainment given in Maccabee Hall and was well received there.

At a contest given in the Garden Baptist Church of Indianapolis, Miss Martha Gyer received the Silver Medal. The members of this church became so much interested in W. C. T. U. work that they are planning to organize a union in that vicinity. Probably the most successful contest of recent date was held at Broad Ripple, for the benefit of Hadley Home, by a class of ten. Contests are planned by this class for all towns near Broad Ripple. Mrs. Quinn is fortunate in securing the services of the Alliance Quartette at most of her contests. The music is much enjoyed.

Mrs. Amanda Whitson, State Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication, furnished the program for the social meeting of Indianapolis Central Union in May. Slips of paper were given each person present, upon which questions were written. The questions for this day were upon the use of Patent Medicines, the per cent of alcohol used in their preparation and the effects produced by them. Each person was expected to answer the question upon the slip of paper she held. Mrs. Whitson believes that people only need education along these lines. That the almost universal use of these widely advertised medicines is the result of ignorance and carelessness. Mrs. Whitson also gave a chart talk and showed a slip of muslin three yards long and one yard wide, which was completely covered with Patent Medicine advertisements, clipped from the Indianapolis Star, in one week. If Mrs. Whitson had waited until the next week two issues of the paper would have filled her strip of muslin. Ten members united with Central Union upon this occasion.

Mrs. Rebecca Hessong, of Nora, entertained Broad Ripple Union, of which she is a member, the County W. C. T. U. officers and other friends from Indianapolis, Wednesday, June 8, in a most delightful manner. Carriages met the guests at Broad Ripple. After reaching Mrs. Hessong's beautiful country home, Flower Mission exercises were held. Mrs. Ada Leck spoke of her visit to the Central Hospital for the Insane, where Miss Clarice Metz, our young and very ardent Flower Mission Superintendent, had gained admission and prepared a program.

Over fifty persons were entertained at dinner, the souvenirs being sprays of syringas tied with white ribbon. After dinner the regular meeting of Broad Ripple was held, Mrs. Fannie Kelso, President, presiding. Mrs. Amanda Whitson gave a most instructive talk upon the danger of alcohol used as a medicine. Miss Marie Leck read a paper upon the relation of the W. C. T. U. and Young Peoples' Societies. Four new members were received. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Kelso gave the four young women who had united with the Union a very beautiful motherly talk. She told them of the solemnity of the pledge they had taken and of the help they could and were expected to give the organization. This talk was private, but was overheard and a wish was expressed that each Union President would follow Mrs. Kelso's example.

Flower Mission Day was observed by all unions in Marion county. Miss Clarice Metz, Flower Mission Superintendent, procured permission to visit the Central Hospital for the Insane. The program given so pleased the Superintendent of that institution that an invitation was given the W. C. T. U. to come again. The Gibbs' settlement of North Indianapolis was visited in the evening and a good program rendered, which had been prepared by Miss Metz. More than usual credit is due this young girl, as this work came during the week of her graduation from High School and meant much self-denial for her. Over 400 bouquets were distributed by Francis Willard Union at the City Hospital; the Orphans' Home, Work House, Female Reformatory, Door of Hope and other institutions were visited by the different unions. Mrs. Cassandra Robbins, Flower Mission Superintendent in Central Union, gave a Flower Mission program, 300 bouquets and text cards tied with white ribbon, at Myers' Mission Sabbath School the Sunday preceding June 9.

A Lawn Social was given by Mrs. Mary Moody, County Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics and Mrs. Zetta Bennett Keefer at the home of Mrs. Moody, for the purpose of raising funds for their work. Two palmists donated their services and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed. The money secured will be used in procuring literature for the Clara Sears Y. Branch, of which Mrs. Keefer is President, and in bringing Miss Cole to Indianapolis to lecture on Anti-Cigarette lines.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. MARY WILLS—After a long and painful illness, fell asleep in Jesus, at seventy-five years of age. She was the mother of Mrs. Jennie W. Stephenson, the efficient Corresponding Secretary of Grant County. Mrs. Stephenson has the love and sympathy of a large circle of white ribbon sisters.

MRS. MOLLIE WILKINS—Departed this life May 26 at the age of thirty-eight years. She had been a great sufferer, but bore it all with Christian patience. She was a charter member of the Campbellsburg Union. She was a faithful worker in the temperance cause, yet while we realize our great loss we know that it is her gain.

MRS. SARAH ANNA KIMES—In her death the Hadley W. C. T. U. has lost one of the most earnest members. She was sympathetic, truthful and faithful. Open handed to help every reform. In death she wore the little white ribbon bow and upon her casket, amid the floral tokens, was seen an elegant white ribbon bow, emblematic of the pure, unselfish, white life of our beloved sister and the cause she honored. She leaves a husband and two children, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

There's so much bad in the best of us,
And so much good in the worst of us,
That it scarcely behooves any of us,
To talk about the rest of us.
—Robert Louis Stevenson.

RIGHT WHERE I AM.

Sometimes within me envy stirs,
Because my sister's field is wide;
The blessed power to lead is hers,
And every grace is multiplied
In those who follow and obey
Her gentle counsels day by day.

My lot in life seems very small,
My influence meager; never speech
Of mine shall multitudes enthral
Or inmost heart recesses reach,
Perhaps just one may like to hear
My voice, because she holds me dear.

But I am weak, my sister strong;
The burdens of her wider sphere
She sweetly bears with smile and song,
Would overwhelm me, Ah! 'tis clear
That I am where the Master willed;
So are my envious longings stilled.

Right where I am, there is no need
To fold my hands, my voice to still,
Since here are children who may heed
A word, a touch, that love doth fill,
And sorrowing hearts who long to gain
The joy of heaven amid earth's pain.

Right where I am, then, I will be
All consecrated to my Lord;
Right where I am, give sympathy,
The loving smile, the helpful word;
Right where I am, I'll not refuse
Aught of myself for Him to use.

THE W. C. T. U. DEPARTMENT WORK AT ISLAND PARK ASSEMBLY.

For the fifth year the Assembly Union, superintended by that untiring, successful temperance educator, Mrs. Mary E. Balch, formerly State Corresponding Secretary of the Indiana Union, now residing in Louisville, Ky., and Corresponding Secretary of the W. C. T. U. of her State, has made this Department of Christian Temperance Education a power in helpfulness on the Assembly grounds.

It has superintended the Physical Culture, the Elocution, the Loyal Legion, the Boys' and Girls' Classes, the Kindergarten, Mothers' Meetings and Parlor Conferences, providing at least two grand programs along temperance lines this year, making one great day—August 11—a Tri-State Temperance Rally, as noted in the program.

For the 1904 session, Mrs. Mary E. Everstone will have charge of the Mothers' Meetings and Loyal Temperance Legion; Mercy Meetings in charge of

Mrs. Lou Rall; Suffrage Meetings in charge of Miss Pearl Rall, who will also serve as Press Correspondent for the Union; Medal Contest work in charge of Mrs. Cora Steele. The literature booth and general headquarters will be kept open during the entire session on the Park grounds.

The W. C. T. U. Home will be open for guests by July 20 and all W. C. T. U. workers of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan are urged to attend the Assembly and take part under the direction of the departments of special work. For particulars, address Mrs.
Mary E. Balch, Island Park, Rome City, Ind.

Y. W. C. T. U.

We trust that all of you are working as hard as possible to make this year one of the most successful years we have ever spent.

Try out door contests during August. Take your young friends to some pretty lawn, eat your lunch and have a contest in the evening. You will be surprised what a nice free will offering you will receive, also helping the temperance cause.

Not as many of the Unions returned the quarterly blank as we expected would. Remember how important this part of our work is to your Secretary.

Anderson Y.'s will celebrate their anniversary
August 22, 1904, inviting their friends to share with them a literary and musical program. A paper will be prepared telling where the former members are, etc., which will be one of the attractive features.

Begin to plan to attend the State W. C. T. U. convention to be held at Columbus, Ind. Save some of your vacation money, so you can attend; it will wonderfully help you girls.

Try and gain one new member each before our books close for the year, September 15, 1904. Pray and lift for the sake of our cause through our blessed Lord.

In the history of our cause in Indiana, never have we had such a feast of good things offered on one day's program.

REMEMBER! REMEMBER!

Our thoughts are now turning to the summary of the year's work which must soon be made. All year we have been hearing that the convention of 1903, at Hartford City, was the best ever held, but we are looking forward to a larger attendance, better reports, better plans, and more of the Christ spirit in the great convention to be held at Columbus in October. Our plans for the past year have been good, and many loyal workers have carefully and conscientiously done their part in working them out, but much remains to be accomplished in the few weeks that are left.

Remember that we are working for a gain of 1,000 members above the membership of last year. If every white ribboner in the State will see that her own dues are paid and then consider herself a member of a Get One Committee, we will come up to the State Convention with the largest membership the Indiana
W. C. T. U. has ever had. All dues must be in the State Treasurer's hands by the 25th of September, or they cannot be included in this year's report. Remember this. It is important.

Remember that we are trying hard to win the beautiful Contest Banner this year and if we hold 650 contests we will be quite sure of it. If every union in the State would become a member of a Hold One Contest Committee and get the report to the State Contest Superintendent, Mrs. Cora Steele, by September 25, we would succeed in that. At present we are leading all the States, but the next few weeks will be busy ones everywhere and we must work to win. If you cannot have a public contest, hold a parlor contest.

Remember our plan to distribute 3000 copies of the books, At the Mercy of the State, Who Killed Joe's Baby, and Two. These books ought to be in every Union and circulated as widely as possible.
Mrs. Stanley has done much good by giving readings from the first two books, and I have been giving a reading, Jim and Joe, from the book Two. We have done what we could, but you can reach many more.
So far Marion County is the banner county, having distributed nearly two hundred books. Will you not help work out this plan, sending the report to the State Superintendent of Literature. Order Two from the New Voice Co., price 25 cents. I can fill some orders for Who Killed Joe's Baby, 10 cents, and At the Mercy of the State, 15 cents.

Remember that it will take at least $1,000 to clear up the outstanding indebtedness for Hadley Industrial School and running expenses must be met. We are asking one thousand persons to contribute $1.00 each to this debt fund. Every member of the W. C. T. U. ought to bear this matter on her heart, give what she can and urge others to contribute. Send all money to Mrs. Mattie Chandler, Mooresville, Indiana, who is treasurer of Hadley School.

Earnest effort will bring success along all lines of our work. Let us do our best to surmount difficulties and come up to our State Convention with words of good cheer and shouts of victory.

Terms, entertainment and free will offerings. Of Mrs.
Edholm, Rev. A. F. Frost, D. D., the eminent Baptist Divine, writes: Mrs. Edholm's address on Traffic in Girls and Work of Rescue Missions was chaste, solemn, thrilling and appalling in its disclosure of the present state of society and the awful danger that surrounds our beautiful girls. Her book on The Traffic in Girls should be read by every daughter and mother in the land. For the present Mrs. Edholm's address is 810 N. Pennsylvania st., Indianapolis, Ind.

SUMMER ASSEMBLIES.

Wherever our W. C. T. U. is recognized on the programs of the great summer assemblies, it is well for our people, in fact all friends of temperance, to turn out en masse. We have thousands of members and friends who, from force of circumstances or some hindering cause, do not do much active temperance work. To these in particular let me say help swell the crowd on W. C. T. U. days; make it a business to attend and to urge your neighbors and friends to attend also.

If the W. C. T. U. Day attendance is unusually large this year, next year the Assembly management will grant us greater favors and more largely advertise our meetings. Our workers and all friends can assist the cause greatly by helping to swell the crowd. Take the young people with you. Let it be understood by all your young folks that the best music, speeches and eats are always on W. C. T. U. days and they will attend. Rally to our cause on W. C. T. U. days.

The National Convention will be held this year in Philadelphia during the last week in November, making it convenient for hundreds of delegates and many visitors to go on to Washington to attend the ceremonies of the unveiling of the statue of Miss Frances E. Willard in Statuary Hall of the National Capitol.

Presidents of Unions, are you energetically keeping up the agitation for new members? This must be done if Indiana wins the White Ribbon Star Spangled Banner as a reward for the greatest gain over five hundred in membership during this year.

In Indiana the political lines are so closely drawn that public officials do not dare enforce the liquor laws and tobacco laws on account of the party lash. All alike fear the liquor influence and vote. Oh! that we could demand the same consideration for the church organization.

To claim to be a temperance advocate during these times, means that you must be a member of a temperance organization.

Superintendents of Departments do not answer promptly communications sent them. This is a great hindrance to our work. Our machinery of organization must be kept oiled and running, if it accomplishes the needs of the cause.

Answer letters and postals if you expect courtesy from others.

The current issue of the Ohio Messenger is Institute number. The face of our own Mrs. Mary Hadley-Hall appears on the cover page. The issue reflects great credit upon the splendid ability of the editor, Mrs. Lillian Burt.

Rev. Silas C. Swallow, Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party, is a resident of Harrisburg, Pa., a Methodist minister, for ten years was a presiding elder. For many years he has been Superintendent of the Methodist Book Rooms and editor of the Pennsylvania Methodist. As nominee for governor on the Prohibition ticket, he received more than 132,000 votes. No man in all the land is more feared by the liquor boss or political trickster than Mr. Swallow.

Mr. Geo. W. Carroll, Vice-Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party, is a resident of Beaumont, Texas. A Christian gentleman with large business interests, whose judgment is respected in every bank in Texas. He inherited his father's philanthropic tendencies. Recently he gave $75,000 to Science Hall, Baylor University, and has been known to make many other large gifts.

The temperance ranks have had a reinforcement. A son has come to the home of Hon. Charles F. Holler and wife—our own Kathryn Wirt Holler. The advent of this, the first child in this home, is of great interest to Indiana temperance people, as well as to the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Holler in other States. Mrs. Holler is our State Superintendent of Sabbath Observance and Associate National Superintendent of the same department. The MESSAGE extends hearty congratulations.

PRESS DEPARTMENT.

How swiftly we are being carried on the wings of time and ere we know it we will be brought to our annual gathering of the clans to report our work done in the past year and to plan for the future. These days are freighted with golden opportunities for doing good and are we doing all that we should?

During the first week in June I sent out 152 blank reports to be filled and returned to me and up to this time I have received but seven of these and can you wonder when I say that I feel disappointed? Surely not. I feel sure that much work has been done in the State in this very important department and how I wish that it might be reported to me. I am very anxious that Indiana have a good full report to send to the National, but to have this I must have your reports.

But more anxious am I that a vast amount of good be accomplished in our State by and through the press work. The press so far surpasses any other agency for reaching the masses of the people and through its columns we have such a far-reaching opportunity for doing good, that we can't afford to lose any time nor one single chance. Make yourselves heard, dear ones, through the daily and weekly papers in no uncertain sound and use all the space available.

When we consider the complete organization and workings of our great enemy, the amount of advertising they do, the amount of literature they distribute, the amount of space they use in our papers, etc., it should move us to double our energies and work as we never have before, that we may more successfully meet them in the battle for their right against the wrong—the home vs. the saloon.

To those of you who did not report for the third quarter, I would say please keep the blanks in sight and use them in reporting for the fourth and last quarter, including the work done in the third quarter and not reported. Be it ever so little, please send it. If anyone failed to receive a blank, please write to me and I will be only too glad to send you all you need. I still have some leaflets which are yours for the asking. Write much and report all and God will bless your efforts. Miss LAURA CAMMACK, State Superintendent, Converse, Ind.

PROGRAM FOR PRESS MEETING.

Hymn—Sow Beside all Waters.
Prayer.
Roll Call—Members responding with a short item of temperance news.
Hymn—Perseverance.
Reading—The Press for Christian Temperance, Department Leaflet No. 114.
Hymn—In Heavenly Love Abiding.
Reading—The Press as an Evangelist, Department Leaflet No. 111.
Hymn—While the Days are Going By.
After program, have social and take subscriptions for the Union Signal.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

We feel very much encouraged and well pleased with our L. T. L. convention and with the reception we received at Marion in June. On page 4 of the July supplement you will see the list of officers and superintendents. Remember to keep an account of all work done by your Senior department and send to these different superintendents.

By the time this reaches you, you will have received your blanks for the last quarter of the W. C. T. U. year. Please do not fail to fill out and return to me by the 20th of September, so when you or your delegates come to our convention this fall they can hear a full report done by the L. T. L. leaders this year. If you have failed to send a report in December, March or June, do not forget to include all work done for the year since September 15, 1903.

IDA M. MIX, State Secretary, Kokomo, Ind.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION CONVENTION

Was held in Indianapolis, June 29 and 30. The special prohibition trains from east and west were arriving with bands playing as the hundreds of delegates marched to their headquarters. The city was completely taken by over two thousand splendid men and women, representing Christian citizenship in its most practical form. On the evening of June 28 Tomlinson Hall was crowded to hear the interstate collegiate oratorical contest. There were six contestants. Five colleges and twenty states were represented, with eight hundred contests in the preliminary contests. The first prize, $100 in gold, was won by Walter R. Miles, of Newburg, Ore.; the second, $50 in gold, to the only young woman contestant, Miss Mamie White, of Indianapolis. The orations were original. The convention opened much as our W. C. T. U. conventions do, with a deep spiritual sense of the duty before us.

WIDE OPEN PURSE STRINGS—HARMONY—IRRESISTIBLE ENTHUSIASM.

A revival service. With tears running down their faces and voices choked with joy, the representatives of the Prohibition party responded to the appeal of the National Chairman with pledges and cash from nickels, dimes and quarters up to $500 and $1,000 contributions. There was no end to this tremendous demonstration until $16,000 had swelled the receipts of the National Committee to dimensions that assured a magnificent inauguration of hostilities. It was an hour never to be forgotten by participants and spectators alike. The hall rang with the ushers' calls and so rapidly did they begin to come as the climax approached, that the convention transformed its hearty applause at each announcement into a mighty continuous cheer that baffled gavel and chairman alike in a strenuous attempt to call the assembly back to earth and the regular order of business. W. W. Smith, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., the host of that historic banquet in 1896, led off with $1,000 and the big convention thundered its joy. Hilary Early followed with $500 and Cyclone Davis, the stalwart recruit from Texas, duplicated Mr. Early and the delegates went wild again. Then followed a roll of honor in which practically every man and woman in the monster auditorium took effective part.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

After the reading of the resolutions there was the grandest illustration of Christ in citizenship that it has ever been our privilege to witness. As the final sentence was read there occurred the surprise of the convention. Without waiting for the formal motion to accept, reject or to proceed otherwise, the convention rose to its feet as by a common impulse and burst into the most extraordinary demonstration. The floor was forsaken and chairs and railings suddenly became the coveted vantage points of 2,000 delegates cheering, while a waving mass of stars and stripes lent a beauty to the non-alcoholic pandemonium that no scribe could reproduce in a thousand years of composition. There seemed no way to go on. In a miraculous moment the motion to adopt as a whole was heard and a hundred seconds struck the chairman full amidships, and before he could state the question in the usual form the convention had taken the business into its own hands and went on with the cyclone. Then, above even the thunders of that storm of joy, there broke the strains of "America," and the tumult was swept into a chorus that could be heard blocks away and fairly shook the foundations of the hall. Now the words changed and "Old Hundred" and "Blest be the Tie that Binds" were caught up by 4,000 tongues—delegates and visitors.

Finally, when the human enginery of outward expression seemed to fail, the Rev. Dr. Palmore, editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, was called to the platform and poured out fervent words to God for his blessing upon the convention in its present decisions. And then, as if God himself had instantly answered the petition, came the climax of the deliberations. The roll was taken up for presidential nominations and the "fight" which the outside press had been fondly waiting for was due. Upon the roll call of States Silas C. Swallow, of Pennsylvania, was nominated for president.

There was no attempt at grandiloquence in what followed, but every State whose spokesman was recognized by the chair paid tribute to the Keystone leader and the triumph of harmony was complete. All the hard fights for other candidates were forgotten and the nomination was made unanimous in another whirlwind of delight that equaled the platform demonstration.—Exchange.

For Vice-President Hon. George W. Carroll, of Texas, was nominated amid great enthusiasm, especially among the Southern delegations.

The convention closed with a jollification meeting, with Hon. John G. Woolley and Hon. Oliver W. Stewart for speakers.

Under heading Indianapolis, the Western Christian Advocate says: This last week brought to our city the Prohibition hosts of the nation in their tenth national convention. The gathering was a very enthusiastic one and full of optimism. So frequent were the Amens that the local papers freely likened their sessions to an old fashioned Methodist meeting. A Methodist was put at the head of the ticket; Methodist declarations were displayed on the convention walls and it is safe to say the Church will furnish its share of support at the polls.

No tobacco smoke in the great auditorium or corridors during the days of the National Prohibition convention.

Officers of National Prohibition party: Chairman, Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, Hyde Park, Chicago; Secretary, Prof. James A. Tate, Tennessee; Treasurer, President Samuel Dickie, of Albion College, Michigan.

PROHIBITION PLATFORM—ADOPTED AT INDIANAPOLIS, JUNE 30, 1904.

The Prohibition party in national convention assembled at Indianapolis, June 30, 1904, recognizing that the chief object of all government is the establishment of these principles of righteousness and justice that have been revealed to man as the will of the ever-living God and, desiring His blessing in the perpetuation of the high ideals of government of the people, by the people and for the people, established by our fathers, makes the following declaration of principles and purposes:

THE LIQUOR PLANK.

1. The widely prevailing system of the licensed and legalized sale of alcoholic beverages is so ruinous to individual interests, so inimical to public welfare, so destructive to national wealth and so subversive to the rights of great masses of our citizenship, that the destruction of the traffic is and for years has been the most important question in American politics.

2. We denounce the lack of statesmanship exhibited by the leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties in their refusal to recognize the paramount importance of this question and the cowardice with which the leaders of these parties have courted the favor of those whose selfish interests are advanced by the continuation and augmentation of the traffic until to-day the influence of the liquor traffic practically dominates national, state and local government throughout the nation.

LICENSE A FAILURE.

3. We declare the truth, demonstrated by the experience of half a century, that all methods of dealing with the liquor traffic which recognize its right to exist in any form, under any system of license or tax or regulation have proven powerless to remove its evils and useless checks upon its growth, while the insignificant public revenues which have accrued therefrom have seared the public conscience against a recognition of iniquity.

4. We call public attention to the fact, proved by the experience of more than fifty years, that to secure the enactment and enforcement of prohibitory legislation in which alone lies hope of the protection of the people from the liquor traffic, it is necessary that the legislative, executive and judicial government should be in the hands of a political party in harmony with the prohibition principle and pledged to its embodiment in law and to the execution of these laws.

THE GREATEST ISSUE.

5. We pledge the Prohibition party wherever given power by the suffrages of the people, to the enactment and enforcement of the laws prohibiting and abolishing the manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of alcoholic beverages.

6. We declare that there is not only no other issue of equal importance before the American people to-day, but that the so-called issues upon which the Democratic and Republican parties seek to divide the electorate of the country are in large part subterfuges under the cover of which they wrangle for the spoils of office.

7. Recognizing that the legitimate voters of the country may properly ask our attitude upon other questions of public concern, we declare ourselves in favor of:

The impartial enforcement of all laws.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

The safeguarding of the people's rights by a rigid application of the principles of justice to all combinations and organizations of capital and labor.

A more intimate relation between the people and government by a wise adaptation of the principle of the initiative and referendum.

The safeguarding to every citizen in every place under the government of the people of the United States of all the rights, guaranteed by the laws and the constitutions.

THE SOCIAL EVIL.

The reform of our divorce laws, the final extirpation of polygamy and the total overthrow of the present shameful system of illegal sanction of the social evil, with its unspeakable traffic in girls, by the municipal authorities of almost all our cities.

We declare ourselves in favor of recognition of the fact that the right of suffrage should depend upon the mental and moral qualifications of the citizens.

We declare ourselves in favor of such changes in our laws as will place tariff schedules in the hands of an omnipartisan commission.

LIQUORS AT THE FAIR.

It requires nearly two thousand bartenders and waiters to serve the patrons of the World's Fair on the grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at the present time. These bartenders and waiters serve the crowds from 54 beer halls, drinking bazaars and restaurants whose chief sales are beer.

The entire Exposition is hardly more than a gigantic beer preserve. Many of the best attractions are hidden behind beer halls. Beer and wine exhibits, all out of proportion to the legitimate industries, appear everywhere, in nearly every portion of the great show.

In the car load after car load of stuff daily dealt out by the nearly two thousand waiters and bartenders, no such prodigious torrent of beer has probably ever been on view in the history of the country, save, perhaps, during the Spanish war under the regime of the army canteen.

In the forming of the great Exposition, the St. Louis brewers made an immense contribution to the managers—something like $400,000. This contribution was made with the understanding that the beer interests would have a sort of a right of way in opportunities to get their money back. How faithfully the Fair managers kept their agreement a most casual tour of the grounds reveals. The brewery men are getting their money's worth.

And besides they are all operated on a quasi blind-tiger basis. For when the question of license came up, the noble court was disposed to be accommodating. It was solemnly decided by a St. Louis disciple of Attorney General Griggs that it was not necessary for each of the 54 beer halls on the grounds to take out a license—that if the Exposition simply took out a single blanket license for the entire grounds, it would be unnecessary for the 54 patriots to do likewise.

Between the Fine Arts building and the Boer War exhibit, is another exceedingly instructive educational exhibit. It consists of a model country school house in a little grove—a quaint, neat little building, with a janitor to sweep it out. Only a few feet away and in the same grove, is a mammoth beer hall with great signs displayed extolling the merits of A. B. C. beer. Everybody should take their children around to these two educational exhibits and explain to the little ones the merits of A. B. C. beer.

In the Transportation building another strange phenomenon presents itself. An exhibit is made of a mammoth model brewer's car and beside it stands meekly a model gospel wagon. The gospel wagon appears somewhat ashamed of its company, but it is fastened and cannot get away.

Back of the Manufacturers' building is founded a model city. At one end is a beer garden and at the other is a bucket shop in full operation. Just outside the city limits is located the headquarters of the W. C. T. U. The brewers forgot to chuck in a Y. M. C. A. building.

In the splendid Philippine exhibit, two more beer gardens are located among the Tagals and the Igorotes. The whole reservation is fenced in and it costs 25 cents to get beyond the stockades.

At the rear of the great Agricultural building is a distillery running in full blast with a United States bonded warehouse in the rear.

At the Administration entrance is found an exhibit of modern fire apparatus—Hale's Fire Fighters. These men build a fire of real stuff and then put it out amid the huzzas of the multitude who paid 25 cents a head to have their lives saved from the fire demon. But in order to get into the Great Fire Show, one must walk through a gigantic beer hall four hundred feet long, double decked to make more space for the drinkers.

The Tyrolean Alps is another striking triumph of beer sagacity. It is nothing but a gigantic beer garden where more than two thousand chairs are placed for the use of boozers. In the center of the beer garden is a reproduction of the famous little church of Oberammergau, where the passion play is rendered every ten years. Twice a day the little church is darkened while the lecturer explains the interesting views of the village and pictures of the chief characters of the drama. As the lecturer tells of the touching story of the villagers, the audience can hear the German waiters on the outside slamming the beer schooners on the tables and yelling their orders for ein beer. As you go out of the church, you can wind your way through the drinking crowd or climb over them as you please.

The beer garden in the Irish Village lies betwixt the reproduction of Blarney Castle and the reproduction of the Irish House of Parliament. The former can be reached by walking through the beer garden, but the latter structure is nothing but another gigantic beer hall itself. It is all beer, beer, more beer. Nothing but beer is to be had or seen in the famous Irish House of Parliament.

A similar situation is to be found in the so-called French Village. People have supposed that there was a wine garden to be found in a French village, but it seems to be all a mistake. This French Village is nothing but a beer garden.

If you wish to visit the Cliff Dwellers, you must run the gauntlet of a beer hole.

If you wish to slide down the water toboggan, you must slide down between two enormous beer halls.

If you care to visit the Naval Exhibit on the Pike, you will find it sandwiched in between two gigantic beer gardens.

From the New Voice: To have liquor exhibits in the educational building is certainly a non-American feature.

In the Agricultural building from 20 to 25 per cent of the space, one writer says, is devoted to exhibits of intoxicants.

My enthusiasm for visiting the Fair is dying out.
EDITOR.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE TEMPLE.

The status of the Temple in Chicago at the present time (February 1, 1904) is practically the same as it was in 1898, when at the St. Paul Convention, after a long and exhaustive presentation of both sides of the question, the National W. C. T. U., in convention assembled, voted to discontinue effort for its ownership. This vote stood 285 for and 71 against.

The Temple stands on land owned by Marshall Field, for the rent of which $40,000 has to be paid annually from the receipts of the Temple. It cost one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($1,250,000) to build the Temple. The money to meet this outlay was raised by selling stock to the amount of $600,000 and by borrowing $600,000 from Marshall Field, which last named amount is in the shape of first mortgage bonds. The interest that has to be paid on these mortgage bonds from the receipts of the Temple is 5 per cent semi-annually. These first mortgage bonds are entirely distinct from the Temple trust bonds, which last named were issued by Mrs. Carse for the purpose of securing enough money to pay for one-half of the stock, that is, $300,000 worth of the $600,000 worth of stock before mentioned. The stock purchased by this $300,000, which was received through the sale of the Temple trust bonds, is held in a bank in Chicago as security for the redemption of the Temple trust bonds. Please note there are two lots of bonds—Marshall Field's first mortgage bonds and Mrs. Carse's Temple trust bonds.

Mrs. Carse, President of the Board of Trustees, has recently reported that $85,000 will now complete the payment of the $300,000 Temple trust bonds. If this be so and the $85,000 were secured, it would still be necessary, in order to secure the ownership of the building free from debt, to pay for $300,000 outstanding stock, $600,000 due Marshall Field on the first mortgage bonds and $45,000 indebtedness for back interest on first mortgage bonds, and of course the owners would have to continue to pay the land rental of $40,000 each year.

THE TEMPERANCE CONGRESS.

For the first time in the history of expositions the World's Fair has given prominent recognition to temperance organizations. Under the heading, "The Liquor Traffic," there are three subdivisions. First, "The Regulations of the Liquor Traffic;" second, "Public Management of the Liquor Traffic" and third, "Efforts for Lessening Intemperance." This is a great advance.

A temperance congress commencing October 10 and lasting one week should bring vast crowds of temperance people to St. Louis at that time. Temperance organizations will have charge of the program. The W. C. T. U. will have two days.

Our friends should attend the special congress if possible.

FIELD NOTES.

If you desire membership cards you can secure them of Mrs. Brand at 10 cents per hundred.

The Diamond Medal Contest on Saturday night of the State convention will be held at Columbus, in the City Hall. Admission, 25 cents.

Auburn Union, DeKalb County, has purchased 200 copies of the Reply to the Committee of Fifty. These will be distributed at a teachers' institute to be held there in August and at which Oliver T. Stewart will speak.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley has made 148 addresses and secured 114 new members since State convention. The State Treasurer, besides the work of the office, has spoken 53 times, conducted five Institutes and secured 58 members.

Temperance Rally Days at Lake Maxinkuckee are August 17 and 18. Miss Alice R. Palmer is to lead a conference of workers and speak on the 18th. Mrs. Shedd, of Argos, is preparing for a grand gold medal contest on the evening of the 11th.

A premium will be awarded at the State convention for the best Annual Program and the best County Directory. Will all Unions and Counties which have not already sent a sample program for 1904-05 to the State Corresponding Secretary, do so at once?

Sycamore Union. Mrs. Stanley came as appointed and delivered the premium lecture to which we were entitled for an increase of ten members in one quarter. Her lecture was enjoyed very much by all. We have had an addition of eighteen members this year and a few more in sight.

The Lexington, Ky., Chautauqua Assembly has been largely attended this season. The W. C. T. U. School of Methods is a prominent feature of the Assembly program. Our Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, is the leader. Very prominent workers are assisting.

Miss. Marie Brehm addressed a large and appreciative audience in a union meeting at the United Presbyterian Church, College Corner, June 26. A free-will offering of eighteen dollars and twenty-five cents was received. Five members were also added to the Union, two of these being honorary.

Mrs. Culla Vayhinger has organized a Union at Milan, Ind. This makes the fourth Union Mrs. Vayhinger has organized this year in Ripley County. County officers have not yet been elected, but we are looking forward to the pleasure of welcoming a Ripley County President to our State convention and Executive Committee.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, of Richmond, Vice-President-at-Large of our State, will be available for addresses in Indiana during the time previous to our State convention in October, at Columbus, and later in other States while enroute to the National convention at Philadelphia. This brilliant speaker is a power on the platform.

Bluffton Union did not observe Flower Mission Day until June 17, on account of the scarcity of flowers. Several members of the Union met at the home of the President, Mrs. Dr. Goodin, and sent out 110 bouquets. This Union is doing very good work along this line, for it has a noble and faithful Local Superintendent in the person of Mrs. Stevenson.

Plan now for the offering of gold money prizes for high school essays on a given temperance subject. In this connection let me urge you to consider the Prohibition Inter-Collegiate Association and help the consecrated young men to carry this gospel work into the colleges of Indiana. We do need the influence of many young college men in this temperance work.

Mr. J. George Frederick, President of the Pennsylvania Loyal Temperance Legion, visited Greencastle, addressed the L. T. L. there one evening in Locust St. M. E. Church and on Sunday made short addresses at the two Methodist Sunday Schools. Mr. Frederick is a young man of rare ability, he is a noted short story writer for McClure's, Success and other magazines; he is also a most pleasing speaker.

Hereafter, no White Ribboner will speak of fruit punch, but will label lemonade or other drinks made from fruit, Fruice, a compound of fruit and juice. This name has been adopted by a number of State Unions. Our own Central Executive Committee has sanctioned its use and now, instead of speaking of the punch bowl, let it be called the fruice bowl.—Pennsylvania Bulletin.

At Columbus, in October, the W. C. T. U. Convention will meet and every white ribboner who can do so should plan to attend. Plan to take your son or daughter with you. For one dollar a day arrangements can no doubt be made for their board while there. In no other way can you spend a few dollars on your children that the returns will be a greater pleasure to you and benefit to them.

The Bluffton Union is to be congratulated on having secured Miss Marie C. Brehm for Sunday, June 19. Despite the rain and the confliction with other church services there was a good audience. There was a very good collection and one new member added in the morning. In the evening the house was crowded. At the latter service twenty-three new names for membership and two prohibition votes were secured.

In Plainfield, during the months of July and August, the four churches unite for the Sunday evening service. This year, the four ministers, after arranging for two sermons each, gave the first of the nine evenings to the W. C. T. U., which invited Miss Palmer to fill the pulpit. Miss Palmer spoke to a large audience of members from all the congregations in the evening, after addressing the Friends' meeting in the forenoon.

The Indianapolis News Newsboys' Band furnished the music at a lawn fete given by the Mapleton Union Tuesday evening, July 26, at the home of its President, Mrs. Amanda T. Whitson, 3335 North Meridian street, Indianapolis. Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand gave a reading, Jim and Joe, at the Mapleton M. E. church Sabbath evening, June 24, for the benefit of the Hadley Industrial School. A Mothers' Meeting was held at Mrs. D. McClintock's Friday, July 1.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley recently organized a Union at Clay City, Clay County. This, with the new Brazil Y., gives Clay County three Unions and Mrs. Stanley had the pleasure of organizing the county with the following officers: President, Mrs. Dora Keith; Vice-President, Mrs. Anna Bard; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Ell; Treasurer, Mrs. Anna Menough. The many friends of Mrs. Dora Keith will be glad to welcome her to the State Executive Committee.

August is the month in which Local Unions should elect officers and superintendents for the coming year. County conventions should be held in September without fail.

Jeffersonville Union is making a fine record this year. Last year they paid dues for thirteen members. They now claim a membership of eighty. If the dues are collected, this bids fair to be the banner Union for largest per cent gain in membership. They are carrying on a campaign for the enforcement of the cigarette law. A hundred copies of the law have been tacked up in conspicuous places and a systematic canvass is being made for signatures to a petition asking the proper authorities to enforce the law.

Miss Marie C. Brehm, who always finds a warm welcome in Indiana, recently completed a successful two weeks' tour through the State, speaking at the following places: Valparaiso, Hammond, North Manchester, South Bend, Goshen, Marion, Bluffton, Warren, Fairmount, Elwood, Economy, Richmond, College Corner and Liberty. With few exceptions the audiences were large and many members were added to our ranks. The Unions write enthusiastically of Miss Brehm's good work. From Indiana she went to Ashland, Ky., where she had charge of the W. C. T. U. work at the Ashland Assembly for ten days.

At Swayzee, Margaret Newkirk, Superintendent of Contest Work, has given several successful contests. A Matrons' silver medal contest was given July 3 at the opera house and it was quite a success in every way. There were eight ladies in the class and each one spoke well. Mrs. McElhaney won the medal, her subject being, An Angel in a Saloon. A flag drill was given by the children, which was very pretty. This class will speak at Sycamore next Sunday, July 17. Mrs. Newkirk has also given several other contests and is preparing to have others in the near future, one of which will be a gold. We think this contest work is helping our cause very much.

Bartholomew County Institute was held at Hartsville June 16 and 17, Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer presiding. A good program had been prepared and most excellent music was furnished by the young people. On the evening of the 16th Mrs. Cummins, leader of Contest Work, held a silver medal contest. Mrs. Washington Spangh was the winner. There were eight contestants. The others were each presented with a small medal bearing the pledge on the one side and the profile of Miss Willard on the other. We have received word from the Hadley Home that they appreciated our box very much. These meetings are a source of strength to us and we feel that we can take up the battle with greater zeal. To God be all the praise.

Thirty-three new Unions have been reported since the last State convention. They are as follows: Victory Union, in Allen County; Osgood, Versailles, Morgantown, Trafalgar, Warsaw, Brazil Y., Liberty Center, Bloomfield, New Haven, Batesville, Charlestown, Utica, Henryville, Coloma, LaFayette, Muncie, Waterford, Shippshewanna, North Vernon, Clay City and Milan. Immediately upon the organization of a Union, the names of the officers, with correct addresses, should be sent to the State Corresponding Secretary. Mrs. Brand will then have the record on her books and a package of supplies will be sent to the President of the new Union. If there are any unreported Unions in the State, she would be glad to have them reported at once.

At Jeffersonville, in the First Presbyterian Church, one evening recently, Mrs. Brand gave a reading entitled Jim and Joe. A Jeffersonville paper says:

Jim and Joe, a temperance story, was told in poetry that was touching and pathetic. Those who failed to hear it have much to regret, as the poem is a gem and it was delivered in a manner in thorough harmony with the sentiment. At the conclusion of the services at the First Presbyterian church, Mrs. Brand was presented with a handsome bouquet of white carnations, held together by white ribbons. Dr. Sallie C. Jackson made a brief presentation speech on behalf of the W. C. T. U. In the afternoon a parlor meeting was held at the home of Mrs. G. W. Badger, 729 East Maple street, in honor of Mrs. Brand. She gave a history of the work in the State during the first half of the year, showing a net increase in membership of 300, swelling the total to 4,000, or one member for each saloon in the State, as one of the local members stated. The meeting was enjoyed by all present.

Greensburg Union observed Flower Mission this year by holding two interesting meetings. The first was at the home of one of the members, Mrs. George Montgomery, in the country. Hacks were run and a large attendance and fine program. A brief outline of the history of Flower Mission was read, then followed a medal contest by three little girls and two boys. Fine music was interspersed. The medal was awarded to Florence Hazelrigg, the little Miss who won the musical medal at the mid-year meeting. Cake and ice cream were freely dispensed at the close. Meeting No. 2 was held the following Sabbath at the County Poor Asylum. Gospel services were held by Rev. Oliver Moody, of Taylor University. A sketch of the life of Jennie Casseday and her Flower Mission work was given, when the inmates, twenty-three in number, were invited to the dining room, where the Union had prepared a treat of cake, candy, bananas and ice cream, with a beautiful bouquet for all, at the close. About 150 were in attendance. The Superintendent and wife were very cordial and told how the poor unfortunates looked forward with much pleasure to their Flower Mission day.

At Bluffton, on June 25, in the Wesleyan church, a very strong W. C. T. Union was systematically organized by our County President, Mrs. A. L. Walmer. This Union started with a membership of twenty-three—twenty active and three honoraries. The meeting was full of interest and there is no doubt in the very near future this Union, called the Frances Willard Union, will be in good working order and certainly much good will be accomplished in that vicinity. Our beloved County President gave a very inspiring talk. Nearly all present joined the ranks and those who did not were under conviction. Mrs. Dr. Goodin, ex-County President, who did so much good and lasting work for Wells county last year, was present. The President called the new officers to the altar and imparted to each one her duty. Mrs. Goodin then talked to the members and tried to impress upon them so strongly the very great importance of this great temperance work. At the close, Mrs. Charles Hawker sang a solo, after which the President called the members—in fact, everybody—to come forward and shake hands and express gladness of heart for this new Union. This we all did and the bond of comradeship was strengthened. We felt we could take up the battle for home and land with renewed strength. Mrs. Walmer dismissed with prayer. Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Fouts, Mrs. Sawyer, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Moor and Miss Pearl Kindle, of Bluffton Union, were present.

Hartford City is having a feast of good things. Superintendent of Medal Contest Work has held four very successful contests, with the promise of two more; one a cradle roll contest, which will certainly be interesting, as it will be something out of the ordinary for this place. Mrs. Ritter is in her element when she is training children for the W. C. T. U. work. The Prohibitionists had an all day meeting June 10, with a speech from J. E. Cowgill and talks from local talent that were well worth hearing. Last night Mrs. Balch had a meeting with us at the church and in her quaint, characteristic way, gave us some things to think about. We were much pleased to have our dear sister with us and as we looked upon her we thought these veterans are going to be gathered to their reward by and by and the work must be carried on by some one else. God grant the mantle may fall upon courageous young hearts who will not stop short of complete victory. Mrs. Balch is full of hope and her talk was inspiring. She said, I am expecting a tremendous vote for prohibition next November. And now, next Monday afternoon (July 18), we are to have Hon. F. T. McWhirter, Chairman C. E. Newlin and the charming singer, M. E. Race, to hold a meeting. We shall be sadly disappointed if that does not prove to be a fine meeting. With so many good things on hand, the people are actually beginning to feel we mean what we have been saying—the saloon must go.

Fairmount Union Rally was held July 4; attendance large. The Summer band was greatly appreciated for its good music. Patriotism worthy the children of our forefathers was shown when the band played America and all joined in singing. Miss Ethel Harvey sang A Bow of Ribbon White, with fine effect. A duet by Reta and Frank Trader was enjoyed. A fine contest was held under the direction of Mrs. Ed Hollingsworth. Miss Shugart won first and Mr. Johnson second place. A basket dinner and an hour of delightful social intercourse was enjoyed. The afternoon program opened with band music, followed by a song by the Fairmount quartette, and prayer by the County president, Mrs. Gulie Shugart. The speaker of the afternoon was Hon. F. T. McWhirter. His address was an able one, being a clear presentation of facts, figures and principles, and he held the close attention of the listeners. A collection was taken, to which people responded liberally, and the refreshment stand was well patronized, so that with the generous donations we had already received the committee was able to meet all the expenses and had something left for the treasury. The prizes were awarded as follows: To the superintendent of the largest delegation: First, Will Whybrew, Wesleyan Back Creek; second, Ancil Ratliff, Little Ridge, and Erastus Hasty, Wesleyan Sunday School, who were a tie. To the superintendent who was neither absent nor tardy, C. E. Caffey, Gas City, a book, The Model Superintendent. To the teacher of the infant class singing the best song, Rachel Lewis, Baptist Sunday School, a book. The large crowd was beyond our most sanguine expectations.

IN MEMORIAM.

SISTER WILSON—Hartford City W. C. T. U. has sustained a loss in the death of our dear Sister Wilson. Sister Wilson was one of those pure characters we yet sometimes meet in this sin-cursed world; a lovely Christian woman, possessing that rare trait which some how or other, without our scarcely realizing the fact, wins the heart and we are made to feel in our inmost soul, there is a good woman. Quite and unassuming she was, but firm in the principles of right and truth. So long as her health permitted she was a faithful attendant at the local W. C. T. U. meetings, ever willing to bear her part in the duties of the same, and when she was no longer able to attend she still kept her dues paid. She always wore the little white ribbon bow, thereby evidencing to the world that her mother heart was aroused to the danger of the hour and that her protest was against the legalized saloon. She leaves a husband, two sons and two daughters. May these dear young people follow mother's God. We held the beautiful burial service according to the W. C. T. U. ritual, which was very impressive.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 9.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., SEPTEMBER, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

THE ANNUAL STATE CONVENTION

of the Indiana W. C. T. U. will be held in Columbus, October 21-25. The members of the Convention entitled to vote are the General Officers, Branch Secretaries, Editor MESSAGE, State Superintendents of Departments, Evangelists and Lecturers. From the Local Unions, the President, one delegate at large and one delegate for every twenty paid members. Every Union should send its full quota of delegates to this Harvest Home gathering of the Indiana W. C. T. U. Special invitations should be extended by the Local Unions to ministers, teachers and philanthropists to attend as visiting delegates. Favorable rates at the hotels and boarding houses in Columbus will be granted all visitors.

The chairmen of local committees for the Convention at Columbus are as follows: General Arrangements, Mrs. Mary Bush; Entertainment, Mrs. Irene B. Hawley; Hotels and Boarding, Mrs. Mary Bush; Music, Mrs. Mary Hacker; Reception, Mrs. Emily Keller; Decoration, Mrs. Adriette Schiller; Finance, Mrs. Angelica Jones; Courtesies, Mrs. Mary Donner; Check Room, Mrs. Mary King; Bureau of Information, Mrs. Mary Sims; R. R. Secretary, Mrs. Amanda Merianda; Sunday Service, Mrs. Alice D. Redman; Ushers and Pages, Mrs. Hattie Doeler; Press, Mrs. Calla Handley; Telephone and Telegraph, Miss Carrie Stout; Post Mistress, Mrs. Ella Linson; Cabs, Mrs. Delila Price.

A REQUEST.

Will County and Local Presidents and all White Ribboners who expect to attend the State Convention at Columbus, Indiana, please commit to memory the Crusade Psalm (146th Psalm), so that we can repeat it together in the devotional services? As our National President has said, Every member ought to be able to repeat from memory the Crusade Psalm and our Declaration of Principles. Of course we will sing our beloved State song; so let us refresh our memories and come prepared to give expression to the praise and joy which we feel in our hearts.

HATTIE WRIGHT BRAND,
Chairman Program Committee.

RAILROADS AND TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

There is one general rule regarding temperance on all railroads in the eastern states, which provides that no employee shall take a drink while on duty or come on duty under the effect of liquor.

This rule is in force on the Metropolitan street railway, the Manhattan railway, the Long Island railroad, the New York Central & Hudson River railroad, the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, the Smith Street and DeKalb Avenue line in Brooklyn.

There is a further rule that men who make a practice of taking intoxicating liquor, even when off duty, shall be subject to dismissal. This applies especially to all men who are engaged in the operation of trains.

There are 30,000 railroad workers in Greater New York.

Western railroads are insisting upon total abstinence among employees. If all of the large corporations are going to keep their employees out of saloons on or off duty, thousands of rum shops will have to close. The officials of the Rock Island road hope in this way to reduce the percentage of disasters and to secure a higher standard of efficiency. The use of whisky on the Northwestern is the cause for immediate discharge. The Northern Pacific is very strict, while the Milwaukee delights to have prohibitionists in its employ. The Wabash has recently fallen into line. Men who drink, even while not at work, are not wanted.

A recent Peru, Ind., dispatch says that the temperance rule is being rigidly enforced on the Wabash lines. Superintendent S. E. Cotter and Trainmaster S. Wells, at that point, have thrown a bomb into the ranks of the enginemen and trainmen on the eastern division of the system by discharging one of the most fearless and swiftest running engine men on the line for disobeying the rule of the company pertaining to the use of intoxicants. It is said that the one dismissed was a frequenter of saloons. Fifty or more other men have been summoned before the officials and there is much anxiety among the men, many of whom know that the officials are aware of their wrong doing.

The Wabash company has been striving for years to keep its employees away from the saloons, but the determination among the officials here never was so earnest as at present, and it is likely that quite a number of men will be discharged within the next few days.

The engineer with a bottle in his blouse and a turmoil in his brain is not trusted with the safety of a train. He is recognized as unfit for responsibility.

Public opinion backs up this decision. Men and women and children will not trust their lives to a drunken man at the throttle. It would be next to suicide.

Yet, how many a man, engineer of his own life, as each of us is, thinks that it matters nothing to him or his destiny that he drinks. Many a man deliberately puts a drunkard in charge of his own fortunes and never dreams of danger.

The life whose inspiration comes out of a bottle is never expected to be a success.

THE NICHOLSON LAW.

The liquor men are organizing to prevent the strengthening of the Nicholson Law by the next Legislature, or the passage of any temperance measures. Read W. H. Blodgett's article in this issue of the MESSAGE, and seek to arouse to action the good men of your community who think that if you will let liquor alone it will let you alone. Urge the Unions to hold Gospel Temperance meetings. Ask the ministers to preach temperance sermons. Seek to arouse the Christian people to do aggressive work for Temperance. How? By holding public meetings. By getting temperance literature and hiring boys at ten cents an hour to put a leaflet in every house within such a district—either small districts of ten homes or larger ones of a hundred homes. Suitable literature can be had at very small expense from our Miss Ruby T. Gilbert, at Chicago—full address given elsewhere—or of the National Temperance Society, No. 3 East 14th st., New York, N. Y. Be active! Do something definite for the cause; if nothing more, read Blodgett's article to your neighbors. Explain its meaning in a Christian service where there is opportunity. The liquor men are organizing to prevent all temperance legislation. Our Christian men must consider the danger and must help the temperance forces this year as never before. Talk with them, send them information and continue to wage a ceaseless warfare. It must be done. Our homes must be protected. Our boys must be saved.

Y. W. C. T. U.

On August 10, at 6 p. m., Miss Anna Carr, only daughter of Prof. and Mrs. J. W. Carr, of Anderson, was united in marriage to Prof. E. L. Holton, of Henryville, Ind. At 8 o'clock a large reception was given the bride and groom by the bride's parents; the beautiful home was aglow with summer flowers, and the most beautiful presents were received. Prof. Holton and bride go to their future home in Holton, Kansas, where he will have charge of the public schools as superintendent. The young men are taking our charming girls away, but we believe new Christian temperance homes are established which will help our cause.

Hold your elections, if at all possible, before Sept. 15, so when the fourth quarterly report blanks come in we will have the record for the coming year.

Select your delegates and send the names to your State Y. Secretary, so we can arrange for our Y. conference.

Be much in prayer for a blessing on us, and especially the Leader for the Y's

Please answer every question on the report blanks when you receive them, and be prompt in returning them, thus helping your Secretary.

CLARA M. SEARS,
State Secretary.

A WHITE RIBBON GIRL'S WORK.

Miss Maude Baker, of Indianapolis, whose work as physical culture teacher at Island Park Assembly at Rome City this past season was so highly successful, is the proud possessor of an entire series of medals won in W. C. T. U. contests, and is a graduate of Mary A. Blood's School of Oratory, with a diploma from the contest department of the State of Indiana to help her through this high class institution.

Having the experience of these contests and a year's work in the School of Oratory, Miss Baker came to Rome City as reader and as assistant in the physical culture work on the preceding season's program, and gave such good satisfaction in this capacity that she was called last season to take entire charge, and having graduated in the meantime, she was prepared to do so intelligently and energetically.

To assist her Miss Laura Kindig, of Huntington, Ind., was secured to preside at the piano, and with the inspiration of the music the two or three hours a day devoted to this department seemed all too short, and great enthusiasm was manifested in the work, which this year consisted mainly of drills and special exercises, according to the individual needs of the pupils. Several beautiful public drills were given.

Next year in all probability work with dumb bells and Indian clubs will be added to the work.

Miss Baker is calculated to be a very successful teacher, being of a charming personality with a great enthusiasm for her work and good common sense to temper any suggestion of faddism. She was deservedly one of the most popular workers among the W. C. T. U. corps of helpers, and will be gladly welcomed next year.

TEMPERANCE SECRETARIES OF MISSIONARY SOCIETIES.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of Pittsburgh and Allegheny Presbyteries—one of the largest in the Presbyterian Church—recently appointed a committee to consider the question, "Shall the Missionary Society Have a Temperance Secretary?" In its report the committee, among other things, says:

"After careful consideration of this matter we believe that temperance is not a side issue, but is pertinent to our work. Is it not a preparing of the way of the Lord? A removing of one of the greatest obstacles to the advancement of Christ's kingdom in our land and of that which tends to nullify all our efforts?"

"Our General Assembly's last report on Temperance says: 'Language more explicit, more emphatic or intense can hardly be conceived than the deliverances of our Assembly on this subject. They declare the sale and use of alcoholic stimulants to be contrary to the word of God and inconsistent with the claims of Christian duty, and denounce the liquor traffic as an inexcusable curse to our age and country.' Our General Assembly has had a permanent committee on temperance for years and in the midst of the press of its important business takes time to listen to quite a lengthy report from that committee. Our Presbyteries also have committees on temperance, and we have the Presbyterian Woman's Temperance Association. In view of all these facts showing the attitude of our beloved Church as a whole on this subject, we believe the interest of all our societies should be exerted in favor of total abstinence, the abolition of the liquor traffic and the banishment of social drinking habits and of the use of alcoholic stimulants in the home."

"This Home Missionary Society has 105 auxiliaries and last year contributed more than $17,000 to the cause."

"We understand that about thirty-seven of these Auxiliaries already have Temperance Secretaries, and it is recommended that their action in this matter be approved and that the Presbyterian Society comply with the request of the Synodical Temperance Association and elect a Temperance Secretary to whom these local Secretaries may report; who shall take charge of all petitions and remonstrances along these lines which may come before them from time to time (for example, respecting the sale of intoxicants to natives of Africa and the islands of the seas) who shall have a seat in their councils and whose advice may be most helpful, especially with reference to the work among the city foreigners.—National Advocate."

The thirty-first annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Indiana will meet in the Christian Tabernacle in Columbus, Ind., Oct. 21-25, 1904. The State Executive Committee will meet in the parlors of the Church at 7 o'clock Thursday evening, October 20.

Culla J. Vayhinger,
President Indiana W. C. T. U.

Are you taking subscriptions for the Union Signal? Only $1.00 per year. Every White Ribboner should subscribe for it and read it. Address, with check or money order, Union Signal, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Illinois.

There is a half reproving tone in the newspaper, literary and lecture field world toward American women. They say of us that we are nervous little bodies and live in an extreme nervous strain. There is more than half an admiring note in all this criticism, too, that we accomplish so much. Lately, in the earnest, sweet-voiced prayers that I have heard in the humble country churches, as well as in those more pretentious, in the hundreds of prayers that my opportunities have joined, I catch one key-note sentence that seems an answer to the wonder as to how we bear and do so much. In varying forms the petition runs, but the burden is the same: "Lord, give us strength to do our work;" "Father, we thank Thee for strength to resist the world and its temptations;" "Father, give us strength to sustain us in our times of need." If only heavy laden, sin sick souls would turn aside with us and rest upon the source of all strength, if only the great hurrying, pleasure-seeking world would join our petitions in our quiet time, they would say, as we do who know our women of the W. C. T. U. the best, "There never were such women, never such prayer, never such wonderful answer to prayer, never such dear human sympathy, never such a glorious hope."

CONVENTIONS.

The State W. C. T. U. Convention will meet in Columbus, October 21-25, 1904.

The National W. C. T. U. Convention will meet in Philadelphia, November 29 to December 4, inclusive.

A net gain of 768 members in September in Indiana Unions is necessary to reach the 1,000 advance we so much desire.

The membership for the first three quarters of the year 1902 and 1903 and that of 1903 and 1904 compare as follows:

Membership dues received by State Treasurer as follows:

December, 1902, 663; March, 1903, 1,139; June, 1903, 914.

Counting dues received too late to be counted in June, gives a total gain to date of 232. An unusual number came in early in April, bringing up the total gain at mid-year executive meeting to 297. The loss in June has been a sad disappointment. It arises from the failure to collect dues of old members. The gain in new Unions and membership has been most gratifying. A net gain of 768 in September is required to meet the 1,000 advance we so much covet.

Active, energetic treasurers in the local Unions is the imperative need of our cause. If the dues were faithfully and carefully collected, our membership would be sufficient to demand the respect and fear of the liquor men. If you are an interested White Ribboner, and for any reason your treasurer is prevented from energetically collecting dues, please offer your assistance and collect dues from as many members as possible. If each Union makes a total gain of five members this quarter over the same quarter last year, we will gain the victory—1,000 more members than paid dues last year. Local Presidents, please do help. Urge the collection of dues every day until September 15, when all local treasurers must send in their reports.

EVANGELISTIC SUPERINTENDENTS.

As very few of you have sent me any reports this year, I trust you have been keeping a careful record, and will send a good, full report of the year's work in September. I have answered all letters, so far as I know, that have been written to me asking for help, and I have endeavored to keep in touch with you through the MESSAGE. Fearing some would fail to receive my Report Blanks, I had the questions printed in full in the April MESSAGE, which I hope you have kept for reference. Please answer the questions in the order named, that I may more easily make out my report. I hope none have grown weary in the work, but have kept steadily at it, remembering that in due season we shall reap if we faint not. If you have not received my question blanks and have not preserved the MESSAGE publishing my questions, send to me and I will gladly furnish them. Please report by the 25th of September at the farthest. God bless each one of you and help you to grow in grace and in His knowledge from day to day is my earnest prayer.

Richmond, Ind.

JAIL AND PRISON.

I take this plan through the MESSAGE of informing you that my address is changed from 333 N. Pine st., Indianapolis, to 304 Chestnut st., Richmond. I will send blanks to all the names in my possession, and will you please be prompt and send me your reports? If there are any Unions that have no superintendent of this work and have done any work that will come under this department, will the president or some member please report to me, as the year is drawing to a close and the time so short until we must give our report for the year. I wonder if we can truly say we have done the best we could; if so, then the Lord will bless our efforts. I feel that this is the most important work of the W. C. T. U., because it is through the liquor traffic that many are behind the prison bars. So let us go in and tell them of Jesus and His love, and show them that there is a better way of living.

MRS. ELLEN DAVIS.

ANTI-NARCOTIC.

DEAR SISTERS—I will send report blanks to each County Superintendent the first of August, so there will be ample time in which to send them to your Local Superintendents. I will also send each County Superintendent one of the charts prepared by Mrs. Ingalls, National Superintendent of Narcotics. With the help of this chart any woman can furnish an interesting lecture or chalk talk. I hope a meeting of this kind will be held in every county and reported before the end of the year. If any local superintendent does not receive report blanks, I will gladly send directly to her. In the Saturday evening News, July 16, an article appears, written by Mrs. Julia Work, Superintendent of the Training School of Plymouth, Ind. Boys' Lives Wrecked by the Use of the Cigarette is the heading. The article indorses Juvenile Court Judge Stubbs' opinion that cigarettes are responsible for most of the cases brought before him. She says 75% of the boys committed to her charge are cigarette smokers, and tells of their deplorable condition when coming to her school. In conclusion, she says: What a travesty on civilization, that parents with means and good home surroundings are obliged to confine their children in an institution to save their lives and reason. And yet what an easy matter it would be to change this condition and make a boy's home a safe place for him if every child-saving agency in the land, every woman's club and every individual father and mother, to-day eating their hearts out over their boy's fall, would band together and demand legislation that would wipe out this monster evil that is trading in the bodies and souls of the best and most promising lads in the world. I wish every Narcotic Superintendent in Indiana would send for this edition of the News and read this article. I think it would make us work harder.

PRESS.

In this, my last letter to you this year, I would speak to each of you as though I sat near you and talked to you alone. We are nearing the close of the year in our work, and are you preparing a full report of all the work which you have done and have not already reported? I trust you are. Remember that I am depending on your report to make my report complete for the amount of work done in the State. So please may I have that report not later than September 25? If you have not report blanks I will furnish them if you will send me a card. Are you making a scrapbook to be taken to the State Convention? I am hoping to see many well filled scrap books. Trusting in you for prompt responses to my appeals,

Faithfully yours,

LAURA CAMMAK.

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.

I want to thank the Presidents and Superintendents of our department who have so kindly and promptly replied to my letter sent out with the blanks. Some of you say you have no Superintendents. I'm sure that need not hinder sending a good report, for our department is so much a part of it all. You can hardly hold a Mothers' Meeting, or one in the interest of the L. T. L., or the Evangelistic or Jail and Prison Departments, and many others, without a part or all of it being for Christian Citizenship. It is a blessed work, but a hard one. Pray earnestly, that our people may soon see they make it hard for many to do right by licensing saloons, and when they see that they may have the courage to cease granting any one the privilege of ruining our citizens, body and soul. I hope for full reports and a reply for ever letter sent.

RAILROAD RATES TO COLUMBUS.

A fare of one and one-third for the round trip will be granted to all delegates and visitors going to Columbus to attend the State W. C. T. U. Convention.

This fare is granted upon the certificate plan—in purchasing tickets ask for a certificate. Purchase ticket to Columbus at regular fare and get certificate from ticket agent, which certificate, when signed at the Convention, will entitle the holder to purchase a return ticket at one-third the regular fare. All delegates and visitors going to Columbus are requested to travel via the railroads where expense is about the same as via the interurban lines.

In order to secure reduced railroad rates we must guarantee at least one hundred certificates to be signed at the convention by the special railroad agent. Last year, at Hartford City, we thought for several hours that we would lack three certificates of having the required number, but we were not disappointed. The railroad special agent sent to the convention would not sign one certificate until the full one hundred were in his possession. To some of us the full fare returning would not have been much, but to those of our sisters living at the extreme portions of the State it would have meant several dollars extra. This was all occasioned by the use of the interurban lines. Some of our loyal hearted women explained that while it was but a few cents difference in the round trip to them, they came on the interurban because it was a little more convenient.

This year, dear sisters, if practical, patronize the railroad, so that those of our splendid membership who live on the border lines of other States and never have a State Convention near them may not have to pay full fare. Even at one and one-third fare it costs them many dollars to attend our State Conventions.

All delegates will be entitled to free entertainment for supper, lodging and breakfast; provided that their names and addresses have been received by the chairman of Entertainment as much as two weeks previous to the opening of the Convention. For visitors, reduced rates for boarding have been secured. For information, write to chairman of Hotels and Boarding.

Young men and young women will be interested in the W. C. T. U. according to their knowledge of it. Many such would gladly be visitors at the State W. C. T. U. Convention at Columbus if invited by their mothers. The entire expense of the trip would not be great. Reduced boarding rates will be secured for our visitors attending the Convention. Bring the young people with you. Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be of special interest to them.

The election of officers in the local Union should be held early in September. The delegates to the State Convention should be elected immediately thereafter. A list of the delegates to the Convention, including the full name and address of the President, should be written very plainly and sent immediately to the Chairman of Entertainment at Columbus.

Those who desire to be located near the Convention church should have the list of delegates from their Union sent in early. To send the list of names carefully written means much. Few people who do not make it a business of reading proper names written by careless scribes have any idea how difficult is the task. To make plain letters in each name is absolutely necessary, and to use the prefix Miss or Mrs. saves annoyance in some instances, and is little trouble to the writer.

Temperance newspapers should be in every Christian home.

WHERE DID MR. BOK GET HIS INFORMATION ABOUT PATENT MEDICINES?

In view of the fact that Edward Bok, editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, took occasion to point out to W. C. T. U. women their duty in the matter of patent medicines, it is certainly exceedingly interesting to learn that without the aid of our organization he could not have written his article against the use of patent medicines. Just read this, from a private letter written me in response to inquiries upon this subject to our National Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication, Mrs. M. M. Allen:

"Yes, you may say that Mr. Bok wrote to national headquarters for all literature on patent medicines. The letter was referred to me. I sent him every leaflet which touches the question and a copy of the book, Alcohol a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine, gratis. I also sent him a statement of our work on this line, which he refused to publish. Since his last article he wrote me a copy of the law introduced in the New York State Legislature last March, of which I spoke in the Union Signal of April 4. Some one had sent him the paper. I am very glad he is working against this evil, even if he does not know how to treat us fairly."

Patent medicines are certainly getting an airing as a result of all this. Push this department, dear sisters, for now is the very time while the press and public mind are full of the subject.—White Ribbon Ex.

[The following article appears in the Indianapolis News of August 19 over the signature of W. H. Blodgett:]

SALOON MEN ENTER LEGISLATIVE FIGHT.

Forming to Support Pledged Candidates and Work for Others' Defeat—Attack on Nicholson Law—Effort will be Made to Enlist All of the 5,100 Licensed Retail Dealers in Indiana.

KOKOMO, Ind., August 19.—The meeting of saloon keepers here yesterday afternoon was composed of men in the retail liquor business from all parts of the Ninth congressional district and the purpose was to organize the District Liquor Dealers' Protective League of Indiana. Back of that organization is the purpose to make an effort to repeal the Nicholson law and prevent the passage of laws which, the saloon men say, are inimical to their business. The old Indiana Liquor League has given way to these district leagues, and under the jurisdiction of the district leagues, county leagues are to be formed. With this meeting, the Ninth district was fully organized; the Thirteenth and Eleventh were completed some time ago, and it is announced that organizations are about finished in the Sixth and Tenth districts.

These liquor dealers' protective leagues have a constitution and by-laws, and every meeting is held in secret. No one is admitted to these meetings who does not have a certain kind of badge engraved with his name, and this badge must agree in name and number with a register kept at headquarters in Indianapolis. While there are no signs, grips nor passwords, there is a word by which the members of the leagues know each other.

The preamble of the constitution and bylaws sets out that the object of the league is to preserve the vocation of its members honorably and legally, without fear of their foes, and without favor from the officers of the law; to protect its members from unjust laws, and to repeal all laws harmful to the retail liquor business. Every member of the league is compelled to subscribe to the following pledge:

We pledge our honor mutually to each other to lay aside individual and political preferences and to lend our aid and influence and votes to defeat any and all candidates for office of public trust who are known enemies to the licensed liquor traffic.

There are in Indiana about 5,100 licensed retail liquor dealers, and an effort will be made to get all of them into the liquor leagues. There about 10,000 bar tenders and 12,000 agents, brewery workers, salesmen and others who make their living, directly or indirectly, from the retail liquor traffic, and it is the intention to get all of these in the district leagues, if possible. At the present time the membership in the district leagues is about 1,400. No brewer can join. On the recommendation of five members of a district league, and a majority vote of all the district league members, a brewer may be elected an honorary member of a district league, but he cannot have a voice in the deliberations of the league.

The declaration is made by members of the leagues that two years ago the brewers' organization attempted to buy votes enough in the Legislature to repeal the Nicholson law, but the scheme failed. The Liquor Dealers' Protective League is going to accomplish the same end in another way. The League proposes to elect men to the Legislature that will do its bidding and to fight candidates for the Legislature who will vote to sustain the Nicholson law. As soon as a man is nominated for the Legislature by either party, a history of him is sent to each member of the league, giving his characteristics and explaining how he stands on the Nicholson law. If he is a candidate favorable to the liquor interest he will be supported. If favorable to the Nicholson law, each member of the league every few days gets a card reading:

You are pledged to vote for no known enemy of the trade for Legislature or State honors. Don't forget that pledge.

This is for the purpose of reminding him of the moral obligations he took when he became a member of the league. The Liquor Dealers' Protective League will have a large amount of money at its disposal, and it expects to accomplish a good deal at the polls, and later in the halls of the General Assembly.

MISS JENNIE SMITH, NATIONAL RAILROAD EVANGELIST.

It was recently my privilege to attend a noon service at the Big Four shops with Miss Jennie Smith, our National Railroad Evangelist. We were accompanied by a quartette of good singers, and it was a blessed service. When the whistle blew, the singers, who carried with them a portable organ, began to sing. In a few moments the men began to gather, and from the large crowd it seemed that every man in the shops must have been present. After a short scripture lesson and prayer, Miss Jennie began talking from an improvised platform under a tree, and as seems ever the case with this consecrated woman, the spirit of the Lord was upon her. Never have we seen a more quiet or interested audience than that crowd of toil-stained men, many of whom are earnest Christians. As is her custom, at the close she gave each man a text card. On one side of the card is her name, and she holds in remembrance in her prayers all to whom she gives them. Up to this time she has given out over two million text cards, and wonderful is the work of grace wrought by them. A short time ago she handed a trainman a card, and when he saw the name he took a card from his pocketbook, unwrapped it and told her that she had given it to him twenty years before. It had been his comfort and help all these years. For sixteen years Miss Jennie was a helpless invalid, unable either to sit or stand up, but she was marvelously restored. She lived for years in the town in Ohio in which I was reared, and as a little child I often visited her, for she always won the hearts of the children. One of my earliest recollections is of a card which she gave me on which were the words, Trust in the Lord and do good. If possible, Miss Jennie will attend our State Convention at Columbus, and we know her presence will be a blessing to our lives. H. W. B.

FROM MISS PALMER, STATE TREASURER.

Up to date the total gain of members over last year is 232½. We have ten Unions organized that, as yet, have paid no dues. The remaining sixteen Unions have paid for 140½ members, and six others have had a net gain of 70, leaving only 12 to be distributed throughout all the remainder of the State. The fact is, that while the work is thriving finely in our State at large, some of our good women who paid last year have been careless, and have not come up to their obligation. Many of our Unions are adding new names almost every quarter, but are neglecting to collect from the old ones. Let every loyal woman in our ranks find out, if she does not know, whether she has paid one dollar within twelve months, and if not, please pay at once.

One Union, Franklin, has a good plan. The roll of delinquent members was read, and the members present volunteered for each of them to see one or more of her friends before next meeting and bring her and her dues if possible. This would lessen the work of the treasurer, and usually brings a prompt response. As there were more members present than delinquents, some members will try to get new ones.

READ AND ACT.

Dear co-workers for the home, mothers and the babies, this is my last appeal to you through the MESSAGE for this year. I am sorry to say that up to date I have not received as many reports as I had at this time last year. During December, January and February I sent out blanks to 67 county superintendents for their counties, amounting to 845 blanks. Dear hearts, I feel anxious about those blanks, and wonder, Are they lost? I still hope that they are wandering around over the State, and will eventually find their way back to the State Superintendent in time for her report for the annual report. Remember, I am to give a reward to the Superintendent,—not the county; that would not be right, for some counties have but one, two or three Unions; but to the Superintendent who holds the most Mother's Meetings, and another to the Superintendent of the W. R. C. R. who secures the most members for the W. R. C. R., membership based the same as the W. C. T. U. on the amount of money sent in. My report to the National is made by dues sent to me, not names or numbers. Dear sisters, will you be prompt, plain and accurate, so I will be able to understand to whom the reward will belong? MRS. S. M. STAHL.

THE LAST TRUMPET FOR 1904.

Every county leader can and ought to get the report from all Legions in her county and forward to me by the 20th of September. Where the county is unorganized, let every Local Leader report direct to me. Collect dues without fail and forward 10 cents per member to State W. C. T. U. Treasurer, Miss Alice R. Palmer, marked plainly L. T. L. dues. Remember, Legions paying dues for all pledged members are enrolled for it on Honor Roll; look for it at State W. C. T. U. Convention. Be it little or much that you have done, report it on the blank in a way to count and help to make the work easy all along the line up to the National. Every failure to follow this plan makes the work harder for some one else, and does injustice to yourselves, to your county and to the State. Surely nobody wants to shoulder such a responsibility as that, so don't forget to report fully and on time. Do not forget that the Legion paying $10 dues can have a delegate to the W. C. T. U. State Convention. I received a list of names taking the Crusader Monthly up to August 1, and only 108 come into our State when we ought not to take less than 500. Let us do our very best for Indiana L. T. L. IDA M. MIX.

BRIEF NOTES.

Mrs. Cammack-Gibson is preaching at the South Side Friends Church, Marion, quite frequently.

Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, our able President, who has entered so many open doors this year, presented the temperance cause at a Sabbath school picnic near Seymour, August 13.

Sedalia Union had Mrs. Elizabeth T. Stanley to lecture for them Saturday evening, July 16. The church was tastefully decorated with flowers and also a large attendance. A collection was taken that amounted to $4.90.

Mrs. Ellen Davis, State Superintendent of Jail and Prison Department, has recently returned from California. At Los Angeles she attended the M. E. General Conference and one W. C. T. U. Union with 700 paid members. Thus our workers in that country are pushing ahead and helping to bring the victory.

Have you sent a copy of our annual program to Mrs. Brand? If not, please do so at once, so that they may be ready to place in the hands of the committee which will award the premium at the State Convention.

The Central Committee has ordered advance sheets of the State Superintendent's reports for State Convention. This means that the complete report must be in the hands of the Secretary early—that is ten days or more before State Convention. Let Local and County Superintendents take note, and begin to bind up the sheaves of their labor in good time.

During the past week Mrs. Brand visited four of the new Unions in the southern part of the State. She found them all in good condition, and assisted them in outlining their work for the coming year. Unions have been organized in several counties which were entirely unorganized, and general conditions seem more hopeful in southern counties than ever before.

Franklin has held her annual meeting and elected the following: President, Mrs. Emma Pangburn; Secretary, Mrs. R. L. Crawford; Treasurer, Mrs. A. L. Beam. Departments—Evangelistic and Charities, Mrs. Wm. Fisher; Associate, Mrs. James Robinson; Literature and Press, Mrs. Ollie Byers; Non-Alcoholic Medication, Dr. H. J. Hall; Scientific Temperance, Mrs. Anna Alexander; Contests, Mrs. Beam; Parliamentary Usage, Mrs. Mary Hall; Franchise, Miss Palmer.

Marion Central Union has just sent in an order for 12 copies of the Union Signal for the minister residing in the heart of the city. The Unions on the border will likely do the same thing.

Aurora Union.—The following officers have been elected for the coming year, and the Union is beginning the new year with larger plans and better prospects for systematic work. President, Mrs. Virginia Faulkner; Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Martin; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Dove; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Winkle. Special attention will be given to Sabbath School work, Non-Alcoholic Medication, Scientific Temperance Instruction and Press work.

President of Allen County writes: Mrs. Stanley has just finished a very successful week's work in my county, having given ten lectures, two being premium lectures. I am hoping to earn two more before the State Convention. I went with her to each point. We had fine audiences and good collections, and everybody is delighted with her lectures. We are going to have a temperance rally the first day of September, and she will be with us again. Fort Wayne will have her for a week's work in the autumn.

Nineveh Union, Johnson County, recently organized by Mrs. Hall and Miss Palmer, has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Pearl Woodruff; Vice-president, Mrs. A. J. Forsythe; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Anna Muse; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Rev. Harvey; Treasurer, Miss Lura Forsythe. Superintendents—Literature and Press, Mrs. Will Wheatley; Franchise, Mrs. Muse; Gospel Temperance, Mrs. Cross; Non-Alcoholic Medication, Mrs. Forsythe; Contests, Mrs. Harvey; Parliamentary Usage, Mrs. Woodruff.

Mrs. Maria L. Hunter, Superintendent of Contests, held a silver medal contest at the Presbyterian Church, last month, with a class of eight ladies, each acquitting herself with credit. All honor to the young ladies who generously fall in line to assist in elevating humanity. The only deplorable condition in connection with the contests here is the lack of support by our young men and boys. Seldom, if ever, can they be induced to participate in a contest or any thing of a public nature that has for its object the moral uplift of the community. O! Is there not some way to reach and save the boys for God, for home and Native Land?

Burlington Union held a silver medal contest at the Union Baptist Church on the night of August 5. Crowd large for a country church; nearly $7 taken in at the door. Mr. Lowell Morris won the medal. Dr. Johnson made a spicy little speech in favor of the W. C. T. U. work, then pinned medal on the winner. There was much interest manifested by the audience, with invitation to come again, after being dismissed. Miss Alice Hanson, president, and Mrs. Edith Johnson, secretary, conducted the contest. Our Union will hold another silver medal contest on the night of August 13, at Deer Creek U. B. Church. So the good work is going on; no room for discouragement.

Mrs. Josephine Walmer, President Wells County Union, recited two touching and beautiful poems for the Epworth League at the First M. E. Church, Bluffton, July 31. In the first she portrayed the dedication of a mother's new-born son to God and purity. In the second, the mother's appeal to the saloon-keeper, and the saloon-keeper's reply, that not he alone, but all church members as well, were responsible for his being in the business of ruining boys. One young man, with tears streaming down his cheeks, said: With God's help I'll stand up for Prohibition. Whisky ruined my home. I had a drunken father. I'll never give another vote nor one cent of my money for the business! And so the good work goes on. God is leading; let us all follow.

Mrs. J. S. Crewson writes: Bluffton Union is doing effective work in combatting the evil influences that surround our young people to destroy their influence for good and to lead them away from the church, the home and lives of usefulness. Mrs. D. A. Walmer, our earnest and efficient County President, gave us an interesting and very instructive lecture in the M. E. Church on Sunday evening last, and was greeted by a large and very enthusiastic audience, which gave interest to her appeals for a better life, and generously responded with a large collection for the Hadley Home, a cause of much importance and one near her mother heart. Her message was an uplift for us all, and two new members were added to the local Union.

LaPorte Assembly meeting was held at Pine Lake, August 4th. It was the largest and most interesting meeting the Union has held at this place. Peru, Westville, Michigan City, Waterford and La Porte Unions were represented. The program was good. Rev. J. M. Linden gave a pathetic address; Mrs. Mary Baumgardner read a paper entitled Women in Government; Mrs. R. G. Young recited A Vision of Darkness and Light; Miss Katherine Anderson gave a recitation entitled, A Child's Tear; Miss Marion Young recited a Knot of White Ribbon; also, gave a pantomime of Jesus, Lover of my Soul; Mrs. Clara Van Petten had charge of the singing. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year. President, Mrs. Rosetta Dorland; First Vice-President, Mrs. Seth. Goldring; Second Vice-President, Mrs. F. C. Vorhees; Secretary, Mrs. Mary Hall; Treasurer, Mrs. Seth. Pease.

Trafalgar, Johnson County, is doing good work under the leadership of Mrs. Minglin, the President. Miss Palmer visited them lately, receiving three new active members and the promise of six more.

Broad Ripple Union held its annual June meeting at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Rebecca Hessong, and had a grand all day service. There were several outsiders present and many visitors from other Unions, including Mrs. Garrity (who was the president of our Union when it was first organized), Mrs. Whitson, Mrs. Leck, Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Guyer and others. The good big dinner was enjoyed by all who partook of it. Our Union met at the Door of Hope with the Central Union and distributed flowers, June 9, 1904. Our Christian Citizenship rally at the Broad Ripple Park, July 4, 1904, was pretty well attended. The contest of little girls and one boy was splendid; they all did very fine. Although there was pretty much noise, they were heard very well. Miss Geneva Bates got the silver medal, of which she is very proud. Our Union gave a silver contest at the Christian Church in June, which was considered by all a grand success. Miss Mable Ferguson was the proud winner of the medal. Our July meeting was held at the home of Sister Medsker, where it was decided to hold the August meeting at the park with our President. A delightful time is anticipated. Bro. Orcutt, of the Christian Church, gave a Christian Citizenship sermon, Sunday, July 10, 1904, which was well attended.

Marion County News Items.—Dr. Ellen Rogers, superintendent of the Department of Mothers' Meetings, in Central Union, in Indianapolis, entertained her Union June 17. Mrs. Rogers read a paper called Little Things, which her experience as a physician made unusually interesting and instructive. Two hours were spent in discussing the little things she mentioned. Miss Martha Criley, a devoted kindergarten teacher, gave her experience in dealing with unruly boys, and furnished the musical program. Mrs. Ellen Parsons conducted the devotional exercises. One new member was gained for Central Union.

The most important event in Marion County during July was the lecture given by Mr. Quincy Lee Morrow, at Broad Ripple Park, July 4. This meeting was planned by Mrs. C. Metzler, Superintendent of Christian Citizenship in Broad Ripple Union, and was given under the auspices of Marion County W. C. T. U. Mr. Morrow drew a good crowd of White Ribboners, and more important still, a large crowd of strangers to the speakers' stand. The Park was very noisy, but his voice was plainly heard, and he held the attention of his audience until the close. This new lecture given by Mr. Morrow covers the ground, and no more convincing argument in favor of Prohibition could be given. Mr. Race furnished the musical program. Rev. Criley conducted the devotional exercises.

At the close of the lecture—the 20th Century—given by Mr. Quincy Lee Morrow, at Broad Ripple Park, a Silver Medal Oratorical Contest was given by a class of six, all well prepared. The silver medal was presented Miss Geneva Bates by Mrs. Ada B. Leck, County President. Two little girls recited while the judges were out.

Meridian Union, in Indianapolis, held the regular July meeting at Acton Park, where Mrs. Emma Criley has the W. C. T. U. cottage for the summer.

Mrs. Amanda Whitson, President of Mapleton Union, in Indianapolis, has made arrangements to hold a picnic for the young people's societies, August 1st. Mr. Dietz's beautiful suburban residence, near Fairview Park, has been secured. The County Superintendents of Y., L. T. L. and Anti-Narcotic Departments will give talks upon their departments, and the children will furnish drills, marches and songs.

Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand has returned from Lexington, Ky., where she had charge of the W. C. T. U. School of Methods at the eighteenth annual session of the Kentucky Chautauqua. She gave a lecture each day for ten days. Mrs. Brand was delighted with the arrangements made for her comfort, and is enthusiastic over the progress of the temperance movement in Kentucky.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, Vice-President of Indiana W. C. T. U., gave the prize lecture to which Frances Willard Union in Indianapolis was entitled, Monday, July 25, in Hall Place Methodist Church. Mrs. Stanley spoke in her usual enthusiastic manner, and her lecture was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Florence Smith, of Indianapolis, invited the members of Frances Willard Union to her home, where an all day prayer meeting was held.

The annual convention of Marion County W. C. T. U. will be held in the South Side Baptist Church, Indianapolis, September 20-21. The election of officers will take place at 2 p. m. September 20. The Superintendents will be chosen at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday. Local Unions will elect officers and department superintendents early in September.

Marion County Union was given an hour on the program at the reunion of the old settlers of Marion County held in Broad Ripple Park Saturday, August 7th. A gold medal contest was held. Miss Moates, of Indianapolis, won the medal. Mrs. Ada B. Leck had charge of the class, which consisted of four girls and two boys. Miss Leck was much gratified at receiving an invitation for next year's meeting, as these picnics are very extensively advertised and from 7,000 to 8,000 people always attend.

W. C. T. U. Day at Acton Chautauqua was a success. Mrs. Frances Metz presided. Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, Mr. Felix McWhirter, Prohibition candidate for Governor of Indiana and Miss Culla Vayhinger furnished the program. Rev. Anna Cox, of West Indianapolis, and Mrs. Martha Gipe conducted the devotional exercises.

Mrs. Charlton Edholm, Purity evangelist of Oakland, California, W. C. T. U., lectured under the auspices of Marion County W. C. T. U. at the home of Mrs. Mary Moody, August 4. The greater number of the fifty guests present were not members of the W. C. T. U., but they were full of sympathy and interest. Mrs. Edholm will remain in Indianapolis some time. Her lecture is sure to benefit all who hear it.

When Mapleton Union distributed flowers to the Irvington orphan children on Flower Mission Day the ladies became so much interested in the children that they invited them to be their guests at their annual picnic. The picnic was held August 5th, on Mr. Dietz's lawn, 38th and Charles streets. A short program was given of a nature to interest and instruct the children, Mrs. Metz presenting the work of the L. T. L., and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Moody the work of the Anti-Cigarette League. The Home children were given the liberty of the large grounds and the pear orchard adjoining, where they played and romped till supper time. About a hundred people gathered around the supper, spread on the grass, and invocation was pronounced by Rev. Frank O. Beck, after which all were abundantly served with the good things to eat prepared by the women. Ice cream was donated for the children by Jessup & Antrim, and a special car was furnished for their transportation by the Street Railway Company. We gave a lawn social on Mrs. Amanda Whitson's lawn on the evening of July 26th, at which ice cream and cake were served and candy was sold. The Indianapolis News Boys' Band furnished music. About $27.00 was realized, a part of which went to Hadley Home. A silver medal contest was given July 15th in North Park Christian Church under the direction of Mrs. Handy. The medal was won by Raymond Graham.

The Island Park Assembly, at Rome City, closed its season August 12, the fifth year of the W. C. T. U. work on the regular program. The seed was sown by our dear Mrs. Mary E. Balch, now of Kentucky, and under her care and nurture has grown until, at the present time, sentiment is rapidly growing favorable to temperance and prohibition. There is a literature booth on the grounds, located in a prominent place, where thousands of pages of literature are yearly distributed, and in one of the large cottages, each year, a party of workers gather and carry on the work of the program. Meetings are held every day, and a Loyal Temperance Legion is maintained. Who can measure the harvest of this yearly seed-sowing? This year there were, besides the regular work, three days upon which temperance and prohibition had a public hearing. On political day Hon. Felix T. McWhirter, of Indianapolis, candidate for Governor, I. E. Shaw, of Iowa, M. E. Race and C. E. Newlin, chairman of the Prohibition party, occupied the greater part of the day. On August 4 the W. C. T. U. gave a miscellaneous program at the Auditorium, at which time they presented the work of some of the departments specially, and on August 11, W. C. T. U. day, addresses by the State Presidents of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, Mrs. Anna R. Clark, Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, and Mrs. S. A. Benjamin, respectively, and Miss Anna A. Gordon and Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, our National President and Vice-President-at-large of the W. C. T. U., proved a treat indeed. At the supper hour Hon. E. C. Eckhart, of Auburn, treated the speakers and the W. C. T. U. corps of workers at the Cottage to a steamer ride on the lake, which is a beautiful body of water. This will remain as one of the pleasantest memories of the outing season. A diamond medal contest closed the day very happily. The class was very evenly matched and above the ordinary as to ability, which lent zest to the occasion, and the large Auditorium was packed to the very doors by an enthusiastic audience. Prof. C. M. Parker of New York, Dr. A. W. Lamas of Tennessee and Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens of Maine were the judges, and awarded the honors to Fred. Thurston, of Logansport. The young man is a very promising young orator, who will enter the field this fall as a campaign speaker for the Prohibition party. The class was composed of the following members, with the subjects as follows: Neal M. Hebing, Bay City, Mich., The Remedy, or Constitutional Prohibition; Harker S. Watkins, Detroit, The Drunkard's Defence; Fred. Thurston, Logansport, Ind., The Parting of the Ways; Leonard Natkemper, Terre Haute, The Scourge of the Republic; Dale Cartwright, Portland, Ind., The Court of Last Appeal; Miss M. Mable Craig, Bradner, O., Christian Patriotism; Miss Ada Westerfield, Pradner, O., The Light from the Range. Officers elected to serve for the ensuing year were: President, Mrs. Luella McWhirter, Greencastle; Secretary, Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, Indianapolis; Treasurer, Mrs. Mary E. Everton, Louisville, Ky.; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Anna R. Clark, Ohio, and Mrs. S. A. Benjamin, Michigan. It was with deep regret that the workers have parted from Mrs. Bach, whose efforts have made the work successful at this assembly. She was made an honorary Vice-President for life as a mark of appreciation.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 10.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., OCTOBER, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AROUND EVERY CHURCH.

It's the easiest thing in life to go off a hundred or a thousand miles to some great gathering, and there vote against the sale and use of liquor. It's one of the hardest things in life to speak and act against that sale and use in your own town, where the opponents are to be met on your own streets. Did you ever know a minister to be assailed or denounced on his return home for supporting such resolutions in some great assembly? Did you ever know a minister to attack the drinking trade or usages of his own town and not find himself a storm center? The prophet courage to do the latter is what we want, because it's what the liquor traffic does not want.

If each minister would preach but four times a year on temperance, that would mean 600,000 sermons each year on temperance. Think of what this would mean for temperance reform. Why should it not be?—Exchange

COLLINWOOD WON $1,000,000.

The village of Collinwood, near Cleveland, Ohio, by voting no license won $1,000,000. The Lake Shore road planned to make extensive additions to its machine shops already established there, and knowing how that indulgence in intoxicants decreases the skill of workmen and prevent getting a desired and possible return for wages paid, informed the town authorities that if the vote at the coming election was for no license, the railroad would spend $1,000,000 there, but, if the vote was for license, the money would go elsewhere.

Here is an example for business men everywhere. If business men in all towns would take the position of the directors of the Lake Shore railroad, how quickly would saloons disappear and the liquor question be settled. Too often it is the business men in a town who fasten the rum business upon the people. They seem afraid to unite in an effort to banish the saloon from the town. Some are under the delusion that to close the saloon is to injure trade. Never was there a greater mistake. It has been repeatedly shown that the most prosperous towns are those that have banished the saloons and the least prosperous are the towns that still retain the saloons.—Exchange.

The National Convention will be held this year in Philadelphia during the last week in November, making it convenient for hundreds of delegates and many visitors to go on to Washington to attend the ceremonies of the unveiling of the statue of Miss Frances E. Willard in Statuary Hall of the National Capitol.

PHILADELPHIA AND WASHINGTON.

The National W. C. T. U. Convention will be held in Philadelphia November 29 to December 4, inclusive.

All railroads will grant the same rate, which has not yet been announced. We expect it to be one fare and a third for the round trip upon the certificate plan.

Our Indiana White Ribboners will go via the Big Four to Cincinnati and from there over the Chesapeake & Ohio, via Washington City and the Pennsylvania lines to Philadelphia.

AT WASHINGTON CITY.

Returning, stop over privileges at Washington City not to exceed ten days, will be granted to all persons going in our party. This will enable all those who so desire to attend on the day after the convention, the special services to be held in Washington City by the General Officers regarding the unveiling of the statue of Miss Frances E. Willard, which is being placed by the State of Illinois in Statuary Hall in the National Capitol.

All persons desiring further information regarding the trip, please write to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, Indianapolis, Ind.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

The following invitation and letter has been received from the General Secretary of Pennsylvania:

The Senior Loyal Temperance Legion of Pennsylvania extends to the Legions, W. C. T. U.'s and Y.'s of your State an earnest invitation to attend a Senior L. T. L. Banquet to be given in Philadelphia, Pa., Monday, November twenty-eighth, nineteen hundred and four, from five to eight o'clock P. M.

Elma M. Preston, Gen. Sec.

For the evening of November 28, the day before the formal opening of the National W. C. T. U. Convention, there is being planned quite a notable and unusual affair. The Senior L. T. L. of Pennsylvania has arranged for an immense banquet to be given to all sympathizers of the Legion, from five to eight o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Stevens, as President of the National W. C. T. U., and Miss Gordon, as World's Secretary of the L. T. L., and other National officers will be guests of honor; and a list of toasts and an agreeable and edifying program will be followed out, after a high-class menu shall have been partaken of. Hon. John Wanamaker, Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley Burns, ex-president of the Pennsylvania Seniors, and Mrs. Helen G. Rice, National Secretary, will be among the toast-makers, as well as talented and representative Seniors from many states. A nominal price per plate of fifty cents is fixed and every sympathizer of the Loyal Temperance Legion is extended an invitation to participate in this event. It will be held in a pleasant place near the scene of the other events of that evening.

The State L. T. L. Secretary has the matter in charge and to use Mrs. Preston's own words, "We expect the Hoosier State to come in goodly numbers." Let those who are expecting to go as delegates or visitors and would like to reserve plates at this, one of the best events of the national session, communicate before November 1, with Ida M. Mix, 36 W. Monroe street, Kokomo, Ind.

of the Indiana W. C. T. U. will be held in Columbus, October 21-25. The members of the Convention entitled to vote are the General Officers, Branch Secretaries, Editor MESSAGE, State Superintendents of Departments, Evangelists and Lecturers. From the Local Unions, the President, one Delegate-at-Large and one delegate for every twenty paid members. Every Union should send its full quota of delegates to this Harvest Home gathering of the Indiana W. C. T. U. Special invitations should be extended by the Local Unions to ministers, teachers and philanthropists to attend as visiting delegates. Favorable rates at the hotels and boarding houses in Columbus will be granted all visitors.

The chairmen of local committees for the Convention at Columbus are as follows: General arrangements, Mrs. Mary Bush; entertainment, Mrs. Irene B. Hawley; hotels and boarding, Mrs. Mary Bush; music, Mrs. Mary Hacker; reception, Mrs. Emily Keller; decoration, Mrs. Adriette Schiller; finance, Mrs. Angelica Jones; courtesies, Mrs. Mary Donner; check room, Mrs. Mary King; bureau of information, Mrs. Mary Sims; R. R. secretary, Mrs. Amanda Merianda; Sunday service, Mrs. Alice D. Redman; ushers and pages, Mrs. Hattie Doeler; press, Mrs. Calla Handley; telephone and telegraph, Miss Carrie Stout; postmistress, Mrs. Ella Linson; cabs, Mrs. Delila Price.

RAILROAD RATES TO COLUMBUS.

A fare of one and one-third for the round trip will be granted to all delegates and visitors going to Columbus to attend the State W. C. T. U. Convention.

This fare is granted upon the certificate plan. In purchasing tickets ask for a certificate. Purchase ticket to Columbus at regular fare and get certificate from ticket agent, which certificate, when signed at the Convention, will entitle the holder to purchase a return ticket at one-third the regular fare. All delegates and visitors going to Columbus are requested to travel via the railroads where expense is about the same as via the interurban lines.

In order to secure reduced railroad rates we must guarantee at least one hundred certificates to be signed at the convention by the special railroad agent. Last year, at Hartford City, we thought for several hours that we would lack three certificates of having the required number, but we were not disappointed. The railroad special agent sent to the convention would not sign one certificate until the full one hundred were in his possession. To some of us the full fare returning would not have been much, but to those of our sisters living at the extreme portions of the State, it would have meant several dollars extra. This was all occasioned by the use of the interurban lines. Some of our loyal hearted women explained that while it was but a few cents difference in the round trip to them, they came on the interurban because it was a little more convenient.

This year, dear sisters, if practical, patronize the railroad, so that those of our splendid membership who live on the border lines of other States and never have a State Convention near them, may not have to pay full fare. Even at one and one-third fare it costs them many dollars to attend our State Conventions.

All delegates will be entitled to free entertainment for lodging and breakfast; provided that their names and addresses have been received by the chairman of entertainment as much as two weeks previous to the opening of the convention. For visitors, reduced rates for boarding have been secured. For information, write to Chairman of Hotels and Boarding.

Young men and young women will be interested in the W. C. T. U. according to their knowledge of it. Many such would gladly be visitors at the State W. C. T. U. Convention at Columbus if invited by their mothers. The entire expense of the trip would not be great. Reduced boarding rates will be secured for our visitors attending the convention. Bring the young people with you. Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be of special interest to them.

AT STATE CONVENTION.

The Central Passenger Association requires this year again that a fee of twenty-five cents shall be paid by each holder of a certificate that is signed at the convention.

NEW UNIONS.

The following new Unions have been reported since the August issue of the MESSAGE:

Bluffton, West Side Union, Wells County, organized by Mrs. Josephine Walmer; Bluffton, South Side Union, Wells County, organized by Mrs. Josephine Walmer; Emmaus Union, Wells County, organized by Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley; Kirklin, Clinton County, organized by Mrs. Stanley and Mrs. Emma Saylor; Rising Sun, Ohio County, organized by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger; Nineveh, Johnson County, organized by Miss Alice Palmer.

WILL SPEAK AT ST. LOUIS.

Mrs. Katie Wert Holler, of South Bend, associate national superintendent of Sabbath Observance, has been requested to speak at the international Sunday rest congress to be held in Congress Hall, October 11, 12, 13 and 14, in connection with the universal exposition at St. Louis, Mo.

At this conference the Hon. Joseph B. Foraker, L. L. D., senior United Senator from Ohio, will deliver the opening address. Representatives from every civilized country upon the globe will be present and take part in the exercises. Some of the speakers from abroad are Dr. John Stoecker, court preacher to his majesty, William II; the honorable minister of justice and religion in Spain; the prime minister of the Queen of Holland; Mr. Carlo M. Ferreri, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of Rome, and many other distinguished religious workers.

On this occasion the largest organ ever built will be handled by one of the greatest organists in the world, who has been assigned to this service by the bureau of music. The vocal music, which is to be of an unusually high character, will be in charge of the Hon. H. M. Blossom, president of the Choir Leaders' Association. The congress promises to be one of the most notable gatherings of the kind ever held.—Ex.

MEASURING PARTY.

A "Measuring Party" is given to you—'Tis something novel as well as new. The invitation is with a sack, For use in bringing or sending back Two cents for every foot you're tall. Measure yourself on door or wall. An extra cent for each inch give. And thereby show how high you live. With music and song, recitation and pleasure. We will meet one and all at our "Party of Measure."

The Trevoze L. T. L. made over ten dollars with the above idea. Six boys and girls stood up for the audience to guess their height. A tape measure was given to the person who guessed the nearest. A good program was rendered and a profitable evening enjoyed.—Pennsylvania W. C. T. U. Bulletin.

CULLA J. VAYHINGER,
President Indiana W. C. T. U.

Much as we regret personally not to use some of the lengthy obituaries or eulogies, it is impossible to do so.

If possible arrange to attend the National W. C. T. U. Convention at Philadelphia, Pa., November 29 to December 4. Our party of Indiana people will be congenial and cordial.

Delegates to State Convention will be entertained free for lodging and breakfast, supper not included, as was announced in September Message. The editor made the mistake.

PRO-LIQUOR LITERATURE.

It is said that one of the national liquor associations reports that it expended last year $23,000 for pro-liquor literature, which was distributed throughout the country according to a systematic plan. Millions of pages were mailed directly to voters. This is a part of their campaign of education of the public, by which they hope and expect to hoodwink the latter into entertaining false ideas about alcoholic drinks that will help the sale of the latter. The condition of affairs makes it imperative that every Woman's Christian Temperance Union worker should constitute herself a committee of one to do what she can to counteract the influence of the liquor literature, by distributing constantly, widely and with discrimination, temperance literature. Mrs. Hunt's letter in another column offers various opportunities for securing such literature, of which we are sure all of our workers will be glad to avail themselves.

CONTEST DEPARTMENT.

I have been so very busy of late that I have scarcely had time to let you know how well we are doing. There has been a decided increase in the number of contests held over last year and we hope to have a much greater increase by convention time. In order that you may see what has been done lately I shall give you in figures the number of books and medals sent out the last three months: June, 16 books, 30 silver medals, 5 gold and 2 grand gold; July, 113 books, 34 silver medals, 10 gold medals; August, 83 books, 35 silver medals, 10 gold and 5 grand gold, and 1 diamond. Thus far in September, 20 books, 26 silver, 6 gold and 1 grand gold medals.

Some of the workers have sent in their last reports and others are working right on. Let those who can send in their reports soon, that I may arrange my annual report with as little inconvenience as possible. May God bless you every one and give us the victory, is the earnest prayer of your friend and co-workers,
CORA M. STEELE.

PEACE DEMONSTRATION.

The celebration of the anniversary of the Hague Conference that is to be held the 8th of October in Indianapolis is only one of the many hundred that is to be observed by colleges and societies throughout the whole world. First from the teachings of the Society of Friends to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the heaven is fast leavening the whole lump. It is to be deplored that colleges are establishing military departments, thus fostering the military spirit in students. In our State Agricultural College some twenty young men recently declined to become members of the military, because of the steadfastness to principal and they had to endure the jeers and ridicule of those who should have encouraged and commended their cause. In view of this fact the society decided to endorse their stand and ask the protection and guidance from Him who said: Peace on earth, good will to men.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS.

The principal work of this department the coming year will be to co-operate with the State Board of Health and all who are interested in health reform. The Unions have an excellent opportunity to cultivate harmony in practical work with the various clubs, as the question of pure food appeals to woman, as she is largely responsible for the quality of the food that comes to the table. Petitions asking that societies give them endorsement will be distributed and the names of committees be secured if possible. The W. C. T. U. of England has organized a department called Food Reform. We of Indiana now have an opportunity to show that we are in advance of our younger sisters and should demonstrate it by sending well filled petitions, to be forwarded to the General Assembly by your State Superintendent. By and by, when our chemists accept the teachings of the latest scientific research, by declaring that all food and drink that contains alcohol is a poison, we feel that they will have become our strongest allies. God hasten the day.
MARY A. MOODY.

LAW AND STATISTICS.

Below you will find the result of our investigations that we have been making in the interest of our department for the past year, September 1, 1903, to September 1, 1904, in this (Center) township:

DISBURSEMENTS
Intoxicants.....	$262,270 00
Police protection.....	4,200 00
Jail board.....	898 00
Officers' fees.....	186 00	$267,554 80
RECEIPTS.
Licenses, City.....	$8,000 00
" County.....	3,333 28
Fines.....	259 50	$11,592 78
Loss.....	$255,962 02

On the authority of an old ex-saloon-keeper we have estimated the amount of sales for each saloon, six days in the week, at $25. We pay our police $700 per month, and we have charged one-half, or $350, to the saloon for our police protection. The county license goes to the school fund, but please note that it is over $800 less than the amount paid by our taxpayers for police protection. It costs us forty cents a day to keep our jail prisoners, and of the 549 persons placed in jail last year, 372 were charged with intoxication and spent 2,247 days there for that misdemeanor.

If it costs Kokomo and Center township over $255,000 to support thirty-five saloons, what an appalling sum it must take to maintain the 5,000 saloons of Indiana! Our voters do not seem to think of much but the money question. How I wish we could make them figure on this problem for a little while!

MISS CARRIE STYER,
Kokomo, Ind. Superintendent.

FROM THE GREENCASTLE BANNER.

Monday evening, September 12, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. D. John opened their delightful home to the W. C. T. U., who entertained in honor of Dr. and Mrs. F. T. McWhirter. Dr. McWhirter and family leave their home at "Rosabower" this week for their former residence in Indianapolis. The house was profusely decorated with cut flowers, the parlor being in white, the emblem of purity. A mantel was especially designed for Mrs. McWhirter by Mrs. Hattie Moore and a beautiful pink crepe myrtle bouquet by Mrs. E. T. Chaffee. Asters, nasturtiums, dahlias and vines made the pleasant rooms especially attractive. Although the guests were saddened by the thought of our loss, each vied with the other in making the evening one long to be remembered. Miss Sara Doddridge and Miss Marion Ostrom received the guests at the door. Dr. and Mrs. John, Mrs. Mc-

Whirter, Dr. and Mrs. J. B. DeMotte and Mrs. Charles Webb welcomed the guests in the parlor. They were assisted by an interesting company of young people in dispensing the hospitalities of the occasion. After refreshments the company joined in singing "Blest be the tie" and the president, Mrs. John, gave an inspiring resume of the work of the Union and particularly of the growth of the Union since Mrs. McWhirter came among us; to her she presented a souvenir as a reminder of our appreciation and love. Mrs. McWhirter made a most inspiring and forceful response, impressing upon us the necessity of earnest, continued labor for our cause. Ross Baker gave in exact tune a difficult double stop selection on the violin. The evening closed with the singing of that sad, sweet song, "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

FREE LITERATURE FOR YOUR DEPARTMENT.

OFFER NO. 1.

To every County and Local Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction sending us at one time five new subscriptions to the School Physiology Journal at 50 cents each we will send, postage paid, 50 cents worth of Scientific Temperance Instruction literature, which each Superintendent may select for herself from our list of such literature.

OFFER NO. 2.

To the County Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction sending us the largest number of new subscriptions to the School Physiology Journal at 50 cents each before January 1, 1905, we will send, postage paid, $3.00 worth of Scientific Temperance Instruction literature, which the County Superintendent may select for herself from our list of such literature.

OFFER NO. 3.

To the Local Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction sending us the largest number of new subscriptions to the School Physiology Journal at 50 cents each before January 1, 1905, we will send, postage paid, $1.50 worth of Scientific Temperance Instruction literature, which the Local Superintendent may select for herself from our list of such literature.

A TWO-FOLD ADVANTAGE.

Every Scientific Temperance Instruction worker needs supplies of literature for successfully conducting her work. Our offers above make it possible for you to obtain such supplies without spending a cent for them. At the same time, by our plan, you will be giving your own teachers and temperance workers just the help and information they need by putting the School Physiology Journal into their hands.

ONE WAY TO GET IT.

1. Find out how many teachers and school officials there are in your city, town or district.
2. Estimate the cost of providing each with the School Physiology Journal per year (price in clubs of five or more, 50 cents per subscription.)
3. Go to your business and professional men and others whom you wish to interest. Point out to them what scientific temperance instruction in the public schools has already helped to accomplish in improving health and increasing sobriety and wealth in the nation. Show them department leaflets Nos. 81 and 45, copies of which, with a copy of the School Physiology Journal will be sent for five cents to any one applying for them to the address below.
4. Show them how health and sobriety directly affect business interests.
5. State the amount of money needed to supply each of your local school officials and teachers with the latest and best helps on this subject, as found in the School Physiology Journal.

6. Ask each person visited to contribute his proportion of the whole amount needed. Send in your subscriptions early, so that your teachers can have the September number at the beginning of the school year. Teachers now begin their work with new enthusiasm. Use this opportunity for arousing enthusiasm in teaching temperance physiology. The School Physiology Journal will do this with its outline of topics for the year's work, its carefully developed lessons showing how to present some of the topics in the class-room, its reference material from great scientific authorities and its pictures and illustrative stories. This is practical temperance work. Do it now.
MRS. MARY H. HUNT,
23 Trull st., Boston. National Superintendent S. T. I.

MRS. MARY H. HUNT.

One day last June, while in Berlin, Germany, visiting one of the great museums, my attention was called to some of the relics that had been found in the camp of Napoleon. Among them was a watch. The hands of this watch pointed exactly to 5 o'clock. I do not know whether there is any significance in their pointing to 5 o'clock, but this much I do know, that history tells us that on that memorable day of the battle of Waterloo, at 5 o'clock, not far away from the place where Napoleon had spent the night, Wellington was seen to take out his watch and was heard to say, At 5 o'clock. Blucher was nigh just then; over the hills of the east came the columns of bayonets of the advancing army, and Blucher and his army came. The regiments that Wellington was waiting for and their coming at that very hour saved the morning of the Nineteenth Century from the march of despotism. Had Blucher been later, what history would have followed neither you nor I can tell. He was on time.

The despot of the morning of the Twentieth Century is not a military despotism. It is not even a sentient being. It is a narcotic, chemical poison. It is alcohol and the great question is, Will it Rule as a Despot the Twentieth Century? I prophesy that it will not, for I believe that the recruits will be on time. I can already hear the coming of their steps. The children of the people in the State of New York, who are under the temperance education laws, are being trained and taught that alcohol is a narcotic poison, never a food, always an injury to man when taken as a beverage. The children of eight million people in New York, of seven millions in Pennsylvania, of five millions in Illinois, of four millions in Ohio and of millions of others—these are the recruits—twenty-two millions of recruits—and the question is, Will they be on time? Women of the Christian Temperance Union of the United States, you will answer that question! People sometimes ask, What is the Woman's Christian Temperance Union doing and what has it done anyway? Well, these recruits that are coming will tell what has been done and what will be done.

You all know of the great Anti-Alcohol Congress held in Bremen, Germany, last April, in which I had the privilege of taking an active part. But you can hardly comprehend the importance of that conference or the impression it made upon the people of Europe. At every session the Germans stood leaning up against the wall, every seat filled, and from one, two, ten, twenty and sometimes one hundred men taking part in these scholarly discussions. I said, When did anybody ever see anything like that in America? Here, if we hold an audience with bright stories we think we do very well. What was the testimony there? It was all one way, with one exception. There was one delegate from Prague, Professor Hupig, of the University of Prague. Every time anything was said decisively against beer he would jump up and tell us how good the Bavarian beer is, how delicious and nutritious. One of the greatest and wisest of the German professors on nervous diseases, said: Will the professor demonstrate to us that the Bavarian beer is good? We have proven by our chemical analysis the amount of alcohol in the beer; we have proven by our demonstration the effect of alcohol upon the whole system. If the professor will prove that we are wrong we will gladly admit it; a mere assertion goes for nothing. The professor subsided for a time only to pop up again and again when anything was said against beer.

I was invited to address the Congress on the subject of Scientific Temperance Education in the United States. The reading of my paper has resulted in the receipt of many letters from different parts of the world asking for particulars of our methods and how they could be applied to the conditions in Germany.

When I reached Berlin, in company with Fraulein Hoffman, President of the German W. C. T. U., our first caller was the Countess Bismarck, wife of the son of the great Chancellor. Countess Bismarck said that among the last sentences of the great Chancellor was this, That if Germany could only settle the drink problem, Germany might then be able to settle all her other social problems. Long and earnestly we discussed the temperance problem in Germany.

There was not an hour from the time my foot touched foreign soil that was not given in part to some intercourse, some conference with representatives of the various governments. All of these different countries are eager to get hold of the facts. Europe is seething. I advised the brewers to get out of the business, because all the civilized world to-day is awakening to the fact that alcohol is the greatest enemy to human progress.

When Germany gets her scientific temperance education law (and when the Reichstag meets there will be presented such a law), then the books which I sent to the Empress Victoria of Germany will be ready. Germany made the scientific investigation of the effects of alcohol on the human system; America embodied them in her textbooks and applied them practically and now they will go back again to Germany to be practically applied in her schools; this is the battle of the nations.

The question of the hour is, Shall we be so faithless to our opportunities that our reserves shall not come in on time? If anything is going wrong, if there is not a gain in temperance sentiment in your community, it is because somebody has not done all that he or she might have done to secure the best scientific training for the children in the public schools. If you are doing that, your recruits will come—and they will be on time!

I have said to the great audiences of teachers into whose faces I have been looking, that the child who is born to-day will see the last saloon go; that if you are truly masters you will bring in the recruits and the day will come when there will be no more saloons and breweries and no distilleries in our fair land.—Union Signal.

Lady Carlisle has been re-elected President of the British Woman's Temperance Association. Mrs. Pearsall Smith, on behalf of the Association, presented Lady Henry Somerset with an address which, with the signatures, formed a roll 759 feet long. This was accompanied by a check for over $2,000 for a mission established by Lady Henry in East London.

Y. W. C. T. U.

Richmond has a new Y., the result of a visit and talks of the Y. W. C. T. U. Secretary. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Anna Eves; Corresponding Secretary, Estella Coalter; Recording Secretary, Miss Elsie Shater; Treasurer, Miss Pearl Mitchell. The members held a contest at Boston, to earn their dues. They want to be counted this year. Reports are coming in very nicely and we hope to give a full report of work done at the convention this year.

Goshen Y.'s held a reception at Miss Grace Cunningham's home to plan for the coming year's work. About sixty were present, and the Local Superintendent, Mrs. Fidler, thinks their plan of discontinuing the meetings for the summer months a fine one, as the Y.'s seem rested and ready for work. They will hold their business meeting and elect officers soon.

Frances Willard Y.'s, of Terre Haute, sends report from President, Miss Lula Pond, for coming year. They had charge of the meetings at the jail for the last three months, made eighty-eight sick calls and distributed several thousand pages of literature.

Anderson Y.'s will have the pleasure of a visit from their County President, Mrs. Retta Jones, at their next regular meeting.

Dear girls, please send me the names of your delegates to the State Convention as early as possible so we can plan for our Y. Conference. After receiving the names and being assured of those whom I can depend upon to take a part in the Conference, you will receive a type-written outlined program of the same. Onward to victory! The motto, work, pray and push every department of work; the enemy is only afraid when the army of young people begin to work.

Plan a temperance meeting by the way of a question box at some of your young people's meetings; these have proved a success and interested hundreds of young people the last year in our cause.

With much love and heartfelt thanks to the dear girls who have responded so quickly and so nobly to all our plans we remain prayerfully for your success,

CLARA M. SEARS,
State Y. Secretary.

A NEW DANGER.

In an article contributed to the Chicago Tribune, Dr. William E. Gamble, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City, makes some statements which should cause any person inclined to the use of patent medicines to make a sudden halt in his experiments with such remedies. His statements refer to the extensive use which is being made of wood alcohol as a cheap substitute for common alcohol in patent medicines and other mixtures which require the presence of some preservative element. He says:

"Within the last five years American physicians who limit their practice to diseases of the eye have recognized with increasing frequency cases of complete blindness resulting from the use of a cheap variety of alcohol known as wood alcohol. * * * Formerly its disagreeable odor deterred the debauchee from its use in all but unusual cases. Recently it has been deodorized, and placed upon the market under new and most innocent names. Frontier settlements, where supplies are apt to give out on account of lack of facilities for communication, have furnished more than their share of blind men from this cause. The drug in these cases has usually masqueraded under the form of essence of Jamaica ginger, lemon, peppermint or cinnamon, wood alcohol being used in their manufacture by unscrupulous firms instead of the commonly used grain alcohol, for the reason that it costs but one-third as much. Since it has been successfully deodorized, it has taken the place of the more expensive alcohol in the arts, and will more and more.

"Under the name of Columbian spirits, varnishers use it almost exclusively to cut their shellac. During the last three years three cases of complete and permanent blindness have been observed in this city in varnishers, caused by inhaling the fumes of this drug in a confined atmosphere. One man became completely and permanently blind within three days while varnishing the inside of a beer vat, while his partner became blind in two weeks. * * * Last year three-fourths of a bottle of a widely advertised patent medicine, taken within a few hours in two or three doses by a man in this city, produced complete permanent blindness. From the symptoms, wood alcohol was present in this mixture.

"I am informed by two of our best-known retail druggists that this variety of alcohol has, within the last three or four years, largely displaced grain alcohol in the manufacture of bay rum, witch hazel and other barbers' supplies. It is also used in the compounding of liniments.

"The eyes of men blind from the use of either kind of alcohol have a normal appearance; no redness or swelling is seen nor pain felt. This absence of any appearance of disease of the eyes lulls the victim into a false security, from which he may be aroused only when he is almost blind and cure is rendered impossible. The disease affects the nerve elements of the eye only, the retina and optic nerve."

This knowledge of the terrible danger involved in the use, either internally or externally, of this deadly substance, says Dr. Gamble, is new, and has heretofore been published almost exclusively in special journals devoted to diseases of the eye.—Exchange.

MORMON CHURCH.

What does the Mormon Church claim?
That it is the only true Church on the face of the earth.

That the book of Mormon is superior to the Bible.
That its leaders receive direct revelation from God.

That Adam was God and that he created the world.

What does Mormonism teach?
That the commands of its leaders must be implicitly obeyed.

That every man should have many wives.

What is the having of many wives called?
Polygamy.

Is polygamy allowed in any other States than Utah?

It is against the laws of all States and when Utah was made a State the Mormon leaders promised to give up polygamy.

Did they mean to keep the promise?

Probably not. They have certainly broken it many times since.

What is done with men who marry more than one wife in other States?

They are arrested, tried and imprisoned.

Is not this done in Utah?

Very rarely, for the courts are controlled by Mormons and it is almost impossible to convict a man of any crime that is allowed by the Mormon religion.

What more are the Mormons seeking to do?

To colonize other States, to get converts from all the States and so to make themselves a great political power in this country.

Do they send out missionaries?

Seventeen hundred missionaries are kept at work in this country and three hundred abroad. These men come even into Christian churches and prayer-meetings and Christian homes and try to teach their abominable doctrines.

Where else are the Mormons seeking to get a foothold?

In Mexico, where they have recently bought thousands of acres and to which they have sent 50,000 people the last year.

Can the National Congress make laws for a State?
No, each State makes its own laws, but they must always agree with the National Constitution.

How, then, can anything be done to stop the evils of Mormonism?

Nothing can be done to interfere with the religious beliefs of the Mormons, for in this country every man has the right to believe what he likes.

Can every man do as he likes if he believes it is right?

Not if his actions injure others. A man can not go out in the street and fire off a pistol without paying any attention to where the shot might strike. The law forbids him to put other people in danger.

How is Mormonism dangerous to our country?

Polygamy destroys homes and the homes of our country are its safeguards. A lot of homeless people can never make a safe government under which to live.

How can Congress abolish polygamy since it can not make laws for the States?

It can enact a constitutional amendment forbidding polygamy anywhere in the United States. Then this will be sent to various States and the voters in them will have the chance to vote on it. If two-thirds of the States accept it, it becomes a part of the National Constitution and so a part of the law of the land.

How will that help in Utah?

United States courts can then take the place of Mormon courts and it will be possible to enforce the laws against polygamy.

Will such an amendment be passed?

There will be a very determined effort to secure its passage in the Congress that assembles the first Monday in December. It is very important that such action should be taken this winter, as otherwise the whole thing will be delayed so long that there will be increasing danger from the Mormon power.

How can the people help to secure it?

By signing petitions to Congress and writing letters to congressmen asking them to vote for the constitutional amendment.

What can those who are not voters do?

They can understand the danger, can tell it to others and use all their influence to secure the passage of the amendment through letters from voters and petitions signed by men and women.—Loyal Temperance Legion Helper.

BRIEF NOTES.

The State W. C. T. U. Convention will meet in Columbus, October 21-25, 1904.

The National W. C. T. U. Convention will meet in Philadelphia, November 29 to December 4, inclusive.

The Moores Hill Union met recently at the home of the President, to make grape butter for the Hadley Home School.

Two more new Unions in Wells County; 115 new members in their new Unions; 14 Unions in the county now; Mrs. Josephine Wallmer, President.

Dearborn County has one more Loyal Temperance Legion organized at Aurora.

Broad Ripple officers: President, Mrs. Fannie Kelso; Secretary, Mrs. Matilda White.

Palmer Union officers: President, Rev. Mary Cox, 1512 Fay street, West Indianapolis.

Indianapolis Meridian Union officers: President, Mrs. Mary Sims, 2201 Ashland avenue; Secretary, Mrs. Phoebe Curryer.

Mapleton Union officers: President, Mrs. A. T. Whitson, 3335 N. Meridian street, Indianapolis; Secretary, Mrs. Ella King.

Indianapolis North East Union officers: President, Nina Bigham, 1812 E. Twelfth street; Secretary, Mrs. George Henderson.

Elkhart County officers: President, Mrs. M. A. Tompkins; Vice-President, Mrs. H. Z. Vail; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Cordelia Clark; Recording Secretary, Miss Madge Work; Treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Kauffman.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley attended the Prebble County, Ohio, convention. She will attend the County Convention at Oxford. Later she will speak at Shelbyville, Hartford City, Huntington, LaFayette, Ft. Wayne, and Fowlerton.

Cold Springs, Dearborn County, celebrated their first anniversary this month by holding a picnic and inviting the other Unions in the county. The County President, Mrs. Ella Kroft, and her husband, Rev. Charles Kroft, both made addresses.

Greencastle officers: President, Mrs. J. P. D. John; Vice-President, Mrs. Mary G. Webb; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Florence Martin; Recording Secretary, Mrs. John B. DeMotte; Treasurer, Mrs. Charles Preston; Collecting Treasurer, Mrs. S. C. Prevo.

Rev. Anna H. Shaw will be one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association to be held in Attleboro October 21. It is expected there will also be addresses from one or more of the distinguished foreigners attending the International Peace Congress and a brilliant program.

Miss Jennie Smith has cottage tents pleasantly situated in St. Louis for lodges. Rooms furnished with new iron bedsteads, etc., same as a house, will be heated when cold. Market and LaClede car from union station to state entrance, one square from tents, 1115 Billion avenue. Lodging, 50 cents; she makes this effort for the benefit of her Railroad Work.

Broad Ripple membership is still increasing. Two more names were added at the last meeting, Mrs. Louisa White and daughter, Miss Jessie Lott. It was election of officers and we had a good meeting, laid plans for another year's work, in which we hope to do better than we have in the past year. Our delegates were also elected for the County Convention.

The Phlox Union elected new officers as follows: President, Caroline Shockney; Vice-President, Bessie Fox; Corresponding Secretary, Myrtle Shockney; Treasurer, Arcadia Fellow; Recording Secretary, Rachel A. Fox. We hope to have more and better work done the coming year. May God bless the efforts of the W. C. T. U. all over the land.

Mrs. Trish, better known as Mother Trish, spent a few days at Culver, during her stay. She preached once, and lectured twice. That her work was appreciated was attested by the large and attentive audiences that greeted her on every occasion. Mother Trish possesses remarkable vigor, of both mind and body, for one who has reached her seventy-second milestone, and reared a large family. Her rich German phraseology renders her speech very attractive.

College Corner—Willard Memorial Union held a very successful contest at Springfield M. E. Church on the evening of August 13, it being both a silver and grand gold contest, five contesting for the silver medal, four girls and one boy, Robbie Whiteman winning the medal. For the grand gold medal, there were three contestants, two girls and one boy, Miss Edith Maley being the successful one. The young people all did well, some of them showing marked ability in oratory.

Mother Thompson has lately passed her eighty-eighth birthday. The Highland County W. C. T. U. and the Hillsboro Union united in celebrating the event at the Children's Home, as Mrs. Thompson desired the children to share her birthday gifts. An excellent program was given by the little ones and a touching tribute to Mother Thompson was made by her pastor, the Rev. Dr. Deaton. Many pleasant words were spoken and the event marks another milestone in the life of this beloved crusader.—Exchange.

Mother Trish, as Evangelist for German organization, has lectured in four or five places, giving satisfaction and gaining new members in each place. She has a supply of German literature which, if needed, can be ordered of her at corner of Washington and Center streets, Warsaw, Ind. On account of ill health Mother Trish has not accomplished as much as she desired. The Warsaw Union attribute the organization of their society largely to the prayers that are still spared of the first Union and the crusaders of Warsaw. Their membership now is greatly valued.

The Indianapolis Frances E. Willard Union elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Frances Williams; Vice-President, Mrs. A. B. Leck; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Perrine; Recording Secretary, Dotia Daugherty; Treasurer, Mary Schad. Superintendents—Flower Mission, Mary Leck; Jail and Prison, Mrs. Scott; Temperance Literature, Ella Rose; Sunday School, Nannie Perrine; Press, Dotia Daugherty; Anti-Narcotic, Mrs. Blodgett; Hadley Home, Mrs. Geyer; Medal Contest, Mrs. Blodgett. Assistants—Mesdames Florence Smith, Turner, Willson and Dotia Daugherty.

LaPorte Union at its last business meeting also had a program on Social Purity. The following topics were given and discussed: How to Live a Pure Life, What Can I do to Make the Lives of Others More Pure, Is it my Duty to Tell Others of Their Impurities? Is it as Easy for One Person as Another to Live a Pure Life? The discussion was led by mesdames Baumgardner, West and Bowers. A reading entitled The Heart that Dares not Sing by the Superintendent, Mrs. Seth. Pease, which was obtained through the kindness of the State Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Hattie W. Brand.

Moore's Hill Union held a lawn fete at the home of Mrs. Rynerson on the evening of August 18. A very interesting anti-narcotic program was rendered. There was a good attendance. Ice cream and cake were served, which added a neat sum to the treasury. On September 8 a small gold contest was held. Miss Leach Adams, age 12, received the medal on the recitation The Convict's Soliloquy. Mrs. Brand was with us on September 12 and gave a reading that was highly appreciated. Our newly elected officers are: President, Mrs. A. E. Rynerson; Vice-President, Mrs. L. C. Smith; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Z. J. Kelley; Recording Secretary, Miss Anna Patrick.

Elkhart County W. C. T. U. Convention was held at Elkhart, Thursday and Friday, September 15 and 16. State President, Mrs. Vayhinger, gave a fine lecture to a good audience the first evening. Friday afternoon a silver medal matron's contest was held—5 participated, Mrs. Armstrong receiving the medal. Friday evening a gold medal contest was given. The church was filled, the speaking was excellent. Prof. Thomas awarding the medal to Mrs. George Young. The Professor's closing words, he being a good Republican, were significant. The Republicans have a gold standard and the Democrats have a gold standard. I did not know the standard of the Prohibitionists 'till to-night. Their standard is gold, too, fine gold, 24 karats fine.

Kirklin Union has elected its officers for the coming year as follows: Mrs. Ella Hopp, president; Mrs. D. L. Thompson, vice-president; Miss Blanche Barnett, treasurer; Miss Lelah Mann, secretary. The departments of work and their superintendents are as follows: Superintendent of Mother's Meetings and Purity, Mrs. D. L. Thompson; Superintendent of Sabbath Observance, Mrs. J. Titus; Superintendent Flower Mission, Lelah Mann; Superintendent Medal Contest, Blanche Barnett; Superintendent Press and Literature, Jean Louks. Mrs. Titus presented the Union with a handsome burnt wood mail box, which was placed in the depot. The Union, though young, is steadily growing, and though facing a strong public sentiment, is not discouraged.

Rev. Anna H. Shaw writes from Manchester, England: She, Susan B. Anthony and Miss Lucy Anthony were the guests of Mrs. Nuthall, who has a very large place outside the city. I cannot write you, Miss Shaw says, of the loveliness of the place nor the magnificence of the house. To-morrow there are to be a luncheon and a garden party. From our windows we can see for miles over the country, or from another side see the woods and beautifully laid-out gardens. After leaving Manchester, Miss Shaw and Miss Anthony were to spend two days with the Bright family and then go to Edinburgh. Great attentions were showered upon them while in London and England. Miss Shaw sailed for home on August 13.—Exchange.

Cold Spring Union celebrated its first anniversary Wednesday, August 24, by giving a picnic in Mrs. Sarah Evan's grove. There was a large crowd and many from a distance. The features of the day were speaking, singing and a ball game. Mr. and Mrs. Croft, of Guilford, and Rev. C. T. White, of Dillsboro, were among those who gave interesting talks and Aunt Lucy Smith, of Moores Hill, read a paper which contained many useful thoughts. Several recitations from Moores Hill. This Union was organized in the Cold Spring Baptist Church by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, when at that time was held an all day meeting in the church. We have nine members and one honorary member. We meet once a month. Mrs. Sarah Evans is our President. Have held six contests, three at our own place, one at Elrod, one at Chesterville, one at Moores Hill, which went to help our dear girls at the home.

The Dillsboro Union, accompanied by a number of their friends, about 35 in all, Mrs. C. J. Vayhinger, our beloved State President, of Moores Hill, included, went to Friendship, Ripley County, where a well attended all day meeting was held in the M. E. Church, with Mrs. Vayhinger as leader. In the afternoon a Union of 13 members was organized, 8 active and 5 honorary: President, Mrs. Lena Livingston, Friendship, Indiana; Vice-President, Mrs. Mattie Arford; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Meta Livingston; Treasurer, Mrs. Emma Heitmyer; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Lizzie Livingston; Superintendent of Sunday School Work, Mrs. Edith Goodrich; Associate Superintendent, Mr. Elmer Livingston; Superintendent of Contests, Mrs. Edith Goodrich; Associate Superintendent, Mr. Ed. Goodrich; Superintendent of Press, Mr. Elmer Livingston.

Union County held its annual convention September 15 in the Presbyterian Church at College Corner and elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, Liberty; Vice-President, Mrs. Charles Stivers, Liberty; Secretary, Mrs. H. F. Hanna, College Corner; Treasurer, Mrs. Fred. Hanna, College Corner. Departments—Christian Citizenship, Mrs. Anna Applegate, College Corner; Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Will. Bryson, Liberty; Contest, Miss Sallie Osborn, College Corner; Evangelistic, Mrs. Ida Graham, Liberty; Flower Mission, Mrs. Sarah Harvey, College Corner; Franchise, Mrs. Lila Laird, College Corner; L. T. L., Mrs. Minnie Phares, Liberty; Purity, Miss Sallie Osborn, College Corner; Mercy, Mrs. H. L. Bake, College Corner; Non-Alcoholic Medication, Mrs. Frank Hawley, College Corner; Peace and Arbitration, Miss Lottie Buck, College Corner; Press, Miss Anna Buck, College Corner.

Marion County News Items—Mrs. Carrie Quinn, County Superintendent of Medal Contest Work in Marion County, held a silver medal contest in Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, in Indianapolis, September 9. The contestants were: Bessie Quinn, Mary Hill, Mattie Werner, Hazel McElwaine and Bessie Williams. The medal was won by Hazel McElwaine, who recited New Recruits. Music was furnished by the Alliance quartette.

A gold medal contest was held Tuesday, September 20, the first night of Marion County's annual convention, at the South Street Baptist Church. Mrs. Quinn had planned to give twenty-six contests in Marion County during the year. Only fourteen have been given, but Mrs. Quinn's work is considered a success, as the careful training she has given her classes has raised the standard and made the contests more popular. Four young women from one locality have become members of the W. C. T. U. through the interest awakened by taking part in these contests.

Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand conducted the Marion County convention held in South Street Baptist Church Tuesday and Wednesday, September 20 and 21, Mrs. Ada B. Leck, County President, being too ill to leave her home. A gold medal contest was held the first evening. Mrs. Charlton Edholm lectured at 3 o'clock the second afternoon and Judge Stubbs, of the Indianapolis juvenile court, spoke the second evening upon the influence of the cigarette on boys. Mrs. Thomas Sedgwick acted as musical director at this convention. Mrs. Brand had prepared a new banner in crimson and white, For God and Home and Native Land, the topic. Mrs. Mary Moody, County Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics, displayed a banner upon which the doors closed to cigarette smoking boys are beautifully painted.

Central Union, in Indianapolis, elected the following officers at their first meeting in September: President, Mrs. Gertrude Morrow; Vice-President, Miss Susan Clark; Corresponding and Recording Secretaries, Elizabeth Smith; Treasurer, Mrs. T. Sedgwick. The election of department superintendents was deferred, as Dr. Rachel Swain had consented to give a talk upon the Economy of Heat and Space in Dwelling Houses.

Mrs. Lizzie Heath, Marion County's Superintendent of the Department of Soldiers and Sailors, is collecting and filling the comfort bags made by the local Unions. All sailors on the battleship Indiana will receive one of these bags, which is made of white oil cloth, lined with red flannel and bound with blue tape. There are pockets for a Bible, in which is a pledge card and a personal letter written by a White Ribbon woman, for thread, tape, pincushion, beeswax, buttons (black and white), thread and a needlebook. The battleship bags will not be sent for two months. A comfort bag social has been planned by Mrs. Heath, to be held at some public place. The walls will be decorated with the bags. The proceeds will be used in working this department. E. G. SMITH.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. ELIZABETH COLLINS. Linwood Union mourns the loss by death of Mrs. Elizabeth Collins. She died August 1 of smallpox. She was ever faithful to duty as Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings. She will be missed.

MRS. JENNIE REED, of Shugart Union, Marion, has gone to her reward. Her work on earth ended September 8. Brother Reed and family have the tenderest sympathy of the Shugart W. C. T. U., of which she was a member. In the going away of our friend Shugart Union has lost one of its truest and most devoted friends. She was deprived the past year of being an active worker on account of ill health, but her heart was in the work and she was always ready with her sweet smile and kind words to cheer us on in the cause that lay so constantly on her heart. On her casket, amid the floral tokens, was seen a large white ribbon bow, emblematic of the pure, unselfish white life of our beloved sister and the cause she honored. She will be greatly missed in the Union, in the church and among a large circle of friends.

MR. JACOB S. MUSTARD died at his home in Broad Ripple, August 28, at the age of 84 years. Mr. Mustard was the husband of Mrs. Casanth Mustard, one of our good, faithful members. Mr. Mustard had been sick a long time, but was very patient to the last. He had done much good while here on earth and is now enjoying his reward on high.

Dearest husband, thou hast left us,
And thy loss we deeply feel.
But 'tis God who hath bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. IX. No. 11.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., NOVEMBER, 1904.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

OFFICIAL ROUTE FOR INDIANA DELEGATES AND VISITORS TO THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U. CONVENTION AT PHILADELPHIA.

From Indianapolis to Cincinnati, the Big Four.

From Cincinnati to Washington City, the Chesapeake & Ohio.

From Washington City to Philadelphia, the P., C., C. & St. L.

A rate of one and a third fare for the round trip on the certificate plan is granted to all persons desiring to go. Get certificate when you purchase ticket of local agent. Pay regular fare to Philadelphia and the certificate, when signed at the convention at Philadelphia, will entitle the holder to buy a return trip ticket at one-third regular fare.

The National convention this year opens on Tuesday, November 29, and closes Sunday, December 4, after which delegates and visitors will attend the unveiling of the statue of Miss Willard, in Washington City. By our arrangement of official route for the Indiana delegates and visitors to Philadelphia and return, we will have the privilege of attending the services in Washington City without paying any extra railroad fare. A stop-over privilege, not to exceed ten days, will be granted at Washington City, upon our return there, by depositing our ticket with the railroad agent at Washington City during our stay.

On account of the desire of some of our delegates and visitors to attend the ante-convention conferences and the Senior Loyal Temperance Legion banquet on Monday, November 28, they will leave Indianapolis Friday evening, November 25, at 6:05 p. m., leave Cincinnati at 9:00 p. m., and arrive in Philadelphia Saturday evening, November 26, at 6:52 p. m. A boarding place at reasonable rates has been secured until Monday afternoon, when all voting delegates to the convention will be given entertainment.

Delegates and visitors not caring to attend the ante-convention conferences and the Senior Loyal Temperance Legion banquet on Monday, will leave Indianapolis on Monday, November 28, at 7:35 a. m., and leave Cincinnati at 12:01 noon of same day. Arrive at Philadelphia on Tuesday, November 29, at 10:11 a. m. From the station they will go immediately to the Convention Church, where the President's annual address will be delivered at 11:00 a. m.

All friends of temperance cause are invited to attend this great National Convention of the greatest temperance and philanthropic organization of the world. Also to attend the unveiling of the statue of Miss Frances E. Willard in Statuary Hall in the Nation's Capitol at Washington City, just after the close of the National Convention in Philadelphia. From Indianapolis round trip rate will be about $23.00. Bring your well filled lunch baskets with you, so as to save expense of meals in dining car. Those going on Friday evening can secure sleeper from Indianapolis to Washington City for $4.00, double berth. Two persons in a berth would pay $2.00 each. From Washington City on to Philadelphia the ride would be by daylight and pleasant in day coach.

Those leaving Indianapolis on Monday morning can get sleeper from White Sulphur Springs, Va., probably to Philadelphia, for the same rate.

Visitors attending the Convention can secure rooms with or without board. For information regarding rooms or board, write to Chairman of Committee on Hotels and Boarding for visitors, Miss H. Frances Jones, 812 North 20th street, Philadelphia, Pa.

All persons desiring further information regarding the trip, please write to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, 1013 N. New Jersey street, Indianapolis, Ind.

FROM THE UNION SIGNAL.

Rock River M. E. Conference, in session recently in Chicago, devoted considerable time to the report of the committee on temperance and prohibition. The committee recommended the establishment of endowed coffee houses as a practical counter attraction to saloons. Funds will be solicited for this purpose.

Sir Henry Thompson, M. D., F. R. S., says: "I have no hesitation in attributing a very large proportion of some of the most painful maladies which come under my notice to the ordinary and daily use of fermented drink taken in quantities which are considered moderate."

Miss Willard's birthday, September 28, was observed in many schools, as well as by local Unions. At Dows, Iowa, members of the Union furnished a brief sketch of Miss Willard's life to the teachers of the school in town and those in the surrounding country. These sketches were used as a part of the program, which included temperance songs and recitations. Five of the schools already have Miss Willard's picture and others plan to secure it.

The Illinois grand lodge, Knights of Pythias, in session at Peoria, October 19, voted to allow no saloon keepers or bar tenders seats in the convention. Five delegates from Chicago were ousted under this ruling.

Wm. H. Kensington, a leading Mormon and United States Commissioner at Afton, Wyo., has been arrested on the charge of polygamy. The arrest is the result of an investigation being carried on by secret service men in the employ of the government.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the British Women's Temperance Association, the Countess of Carlisle presiding, it was voted to make a determined effort to secure a reversal by parliament of the Licensing Act of 1904, "which is a fatal obstacle in the way of the people securing the right to suppress the liquor trade in their localities."

A NEW MARSEILLAISE.

Not long ago, as I sat at my desk, there floated up the street the sound of martial music. As the players came nearer I caught the familiar strains of the Marseillaise and instinctively fitting words to music, I found myself repeating over and over the closing words of that triumphal refrain, We March, We March to Victory.

The bugles of our battle against alcohol are beginning to sound their notes of victory. Not that there will not be long, hard fighting yet, but one rampart after another of the alcohol stronghold is being captured. As the citadel is being approached there will be the more desperate resistance and consequently the greater need on our part of vigorous, concentrated effort, yet the victories of the past may well give us renewed courage for future frays.

In a recent course of addresses before teachers' institutes and public audiences, I made the statement that the child is born who will see the last legalized brewery and saloon go from the United States if the temperance people now do their part. A Washington, D. C., liquor paper quoted this, commenting in its headlines, Horrible if True.

Perhaps from their standpoint the day when there will be no saloons in the land, no lives wrecked, no homes ruined, no mothers' hearts broken because of drink, may be horrible to contemplate, but the true patriot, the lover of humanity, longs to speed the day and that is why we hear that ever swelling triumphal refrain, We March, We March to Victory, in the hearts of the consecrated motherhood of our land, a refrain born of faith in God, of conviction of His truth and of loyalty to home and country.

Victories never come by the way of chance. Somewhere back of every one lie careful devising and development of plans and training of forces. What, then, must be our plans for the immediate future if we are to gather still richer fruits of our labors?

Results at home and opinions abroad justify the conclusion that scientific temperance instruction as a part of the study of physiology and hygiene by all public schools is, as the physicians say, an indicated preventative of the malady of intemperance. How old that child will be who sees the last legalized saloon and brewery go from our midst depends upon the performance by the citizens of this republic and especially by you, my comrades, of the duty of the hour. That duty is to watch and guard at every point the best enforcements of the temperance education laws enacted by congress and all the State legislatures. A good school literature on this subject, adapted to the capacities of all classes of pupils, is available. Teachers, as a rule, are ready to do their part when given the necessary means and aid.—Mrs. Mary H. Hunt.

HOW THE BREWERS CONTROL THE SALOONS.

Out in Ohio the liquor business is largely in the hands of the brewers. The money paid by the brewers to one county each year runs close to $750,000. The breweries practically capitalize the saloons of the entire county. At the collection last June the Cleveland & Sandusky Brewing Company paid the county $160,125, taking care of 915 saloonists.

The Cleveland & Sandusky Brewing Company runs eight breweries and its patronage is divided among these; some saloonists have a demand for a brew of one kind, some for other brews.

The next biggest check received by the county was from the Isaac Leisy Brewing Company, for $59,325, being payment for 339 licenses. The Gund Brewing Company paid for 151 licenses, the Diebolt Brewing Company for 139, the Pilsener Brewing Company for 112 and the Pabet Brewing Company for 39. A very few saloonists paid their own Dow tax.—National Advocate.

TO THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

All the General Officers, the Branch Secretaries and the National Evangelists in our State, are voting members of the National convention.

Delegates to the National convention of the W. C. T. U., to be held in Philadelphia, were selected on Monday evening, as follows: Delegate-at-Large, Mrs. Lida Outland, of Upland; alternate, Mrs. Laura Thompson, of Greensburg; delegate, Mrs. Alma Shaw, of Steuben County; alternate, Mrs. M. A. Tompkins, of Elkhart; Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, of Liberty; alternate, Mrs. Stahl, of Hartford City; Mrs. Jennie Badger, of Jeffersonville; alternate, Mrs. May Moser, of Loogootee; Mrs. Carrie Jones, of Terre Haute; alternate, Mrs. Florence Hodler, of Brazil; Mrs. Seth Pease, of LaPorte; alternate, Miss Eliza F. Baker, of LaFayette; Mrs. Ida Mix, of Kokomo; alternate, Mrs. Shueman, of Anderson; Mrs. S. P. Toner, of Martinsville; alternate, Mrs. W. H. Blodgett, of Indianapolis; Mrs. Jennie W. Stephenson, of Gas City; alternate, Mrs. Julia Overman, of Marion; Mrs. Josephine Walmer, of Bluffton; alternate, Mrs. Gertrude Fulton, of Jay County.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.

The fourth Sunday in November of each year has been designated "World's Sunday School Temperance Sunday."

The highest ecclesiastical bodies of nearly all denominations have given recognition to this day. The appointment is also made by the International Sunday School convention through the International Lesson committee, and provision is made for a World's-Sunday School Temperance Lesson.

The drink curse is world wide, and young people in particular should be taught that it is a crime against the nation and a sin against God. It is fitting, therefore, that the subject be presented from both national and personal point of view.

We, therefore, call upon all pastors, Sunday School Superintendents and teachers, all W. C. T. U. workers in Sunday school and all friends of temperance teaching in the Sunday School, to make the observance of World's Sunday School Temperance Sunday a notable occasion. Let it be the great Annual Temperance Field Day for the Sunday schools of the world.

MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS,
Supt. Sunday School Department, World's W. C. T. U.
MRS. STELLA B. IRVINE,
Supt. Sunday School Department, National W. C. T. U.

[For programs, Pledge Cards, Literature and all materials needed for Sunday School Temperance work send to Mrs. Stella B. Irvine, Riverside, California. Sample package, 35 cents.]

KENTUCKY'S ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The Kentucky clans met this year at Mt. Sterling, September 30 to October 5, the attendance being larger than in previous years. The organization of seven counties, twenty-two Unions, one Y. and three Loyal Temperance Legions was reported. The greatest gain in membership was among the honoraries.

Speakers from abroad were Mrs. Leonora M. Lake, of St. Louis, Mrs. Charlton Edholm, of Oakland, Cal. and Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, of Indiana.

The general officers, including Branch secretaries, were all re-elected and Mrs. Mary E. Everton, of Asbury College, Wilmore, was appointed an organizer for the Medal Contest department. Twenty-two departments of the work will be undertaken this year.

A matron's gold medal contest was the special feature of one evening and drew a very large audience. The medal was awarded to Mrs. Mary E. Everton.

The most important item in the Plan of Work for next year is the petitioning of the general assembly to grant women the right to vote at all local option elections.—Union Signal.

The Senior Loyal Temperance Banquet will be held in Philadelphia on evening of November 28, Mr J. Geo. Frederick, Toastmaster. Among the speakers will be Mr. Harry Kendall Bassett, Missouri, Mr. Floyd Starr, Michigan, Miss Anna Gordon, Illinois and Hon. John Wanamaker, Philadelphia.

To Philadelphia and Washington take your son or daughter. Join the Indiana party of White Ribboners at Indianapolis and enjoy the splendid scenery of the Chesapeake & Ohio road as it follows the rivers through the mountains of the Virginias. At Philadelphia visit points of historic interest, and upon the return trip spend several days in the Capitol buildings and visiting the Houses of Congress, which will then be in session. Time spent at the annual convention of the greatest woman's organization of the world and at the Nation's Capitol will be greatly enjoyed by all and a wonderful education for young people.

MEDAL CONTEST DEPARTMENT.

My Dear Co-Workers: This will probably be my last letter to you as Superintendent of the Contest Department, but I want to tell you how I have appreciated your hearty co-operation. I am sure our efforts have not been in vain, for we have striven to do the will of the Lord and to uplift and enlighten humanity. The Lord is blessing the efforts of our dear women who are tirelessly engaged in this noble department, and I want to say right here that I shall remember you in prayer, even when the burden of the work rests upon the shoulders of another. To date, October 15, contests have been held as follows: Silver, 310; gold, 79; grand gold, 15; diamond, 5, and grand diamond, 1. Several are in preparation, however, and we may report a few more at the convention.

WORK AMONG COLORED PEOPLE.

The Alpha Home for Aged Colored Women has now twelve occupants and two matrons. A friend braided six rugs, made a silk pillow, embroidered the letters W. C. T. U. in white silk, gave also a large framed picture and some fruit. We took these gifts and held religious services with the inmates, giving the rugs to them for their own use. Six more rugs are to follow. They were very grateful to be thus remembered.

Flower Mission Day I went alone. The old women were expecting me. The Scripture texts were tied with white ribbon. We repeated them in concert and then I pinned the card on each one, including the matrons. I then told the story of Jennie Casseday's life and work. A bouquet of beautiful roses was given to each one. I then sang "Flowers, Wild-wood Flowers," which I learned when only ten years old. I felt as well repaid by their appreciation as if I sang at the opera. Each had some fresh fruit and we all felt we had spent a profitable hour.

By invitation, I went to a missionary meeting next day, which was held at the Home, to present our work. The old women came in with their scripture cards on them, which called for explanation of our Flower Mission. Some twenty were present and I gave out much literature.

Mrs. Edholm gladly gave me a Sabbath evening service. The meeting was held in the A. M. E. Bethel church. Rev. Townsend, the pastor, aided by announcing the meeting several times. Some 400 were present and gave great attention. Many amens were heard, if she did give them prohibition truth—laying the cause of the evil she represented at the saloon door. A liberal collection was given her and many bought her books. At the door was distributed 150 copies of "Beer and the Body." A contest class of little girls is now ready to win the silver medal. Others are in preparation. Expect in the near future to hold a gold contest, as four young girls now wear the silver medal. I expect to push this work.

SUSAN H. CLARK,
State Superintendent.

GREAT YEAR FOR W. C. T. U. OF WELLS COUNTY.

The annual County Convention held at Poneto, Thursday, September 29, was declared by the older members of the organization to have been the best ever held in the county, and also marked the close of the best year's work the society has done since its organization in the county. During the past year the membership was nearly doubled, 117 members and 10 new Unions having been added, making the present membership 250, instead of 133 on the first of last year. The ten new branches added to the county organization are: Tocsin, Emmaus, Craigville, Prospect, Elhanan, Murray, Liberty Center, Barber's Mills, Frances Willard Union, of Southside, Bluffton, and Christian Hope Union, of Epworth Chapel. The election of officers was conducted by ex-County President Mrs. Dr. Goodin. Mrs. D. T. Smith acted as Recording Secretary. Mrs. D. A. Walmer, who has won distinction as a County President, a worker and speaker, and who has done her work in such a sweet, cheerful, Christian spirit, was unanimously elected for another year. Mrs. Manson Reiff was elected Corresponding Secretary. Mrs. Jennie Linn, of Reiffsburg, was elected Recording Secretary. Mrs. Simon Bickle was re-elected Treasurer, and Mrs. D. A. Studabaker was appointed Vice-President. With such a corps of workers as these who have been elected we are sure much good work will be done, and whether the work in all of its departments during the past year has come up to our expectations or not, let the work be pushed on for higher and better things this year. The program of the convention was carried out in forenoon and afternoon, and the evening services closed with a gold medal contest conducted by Mrs. Reiff, who is County Superintendent of the Medal Contest Department. Though she has had many hindrances she has been very successful and her work satisfactory.

MRS. C. W. HAWKER,
Bluffton, Ind. Wells County Press Sup't.

Huntington County convention was held at Huntington in the First Christian Church. The attendance was large and interest increased at each session. The reports of Superintendents of Departments showed an unusual activity and earnestness in many departments. An appropriation of $1.00 to each of the Department Superintendents was made. This is a movement in advance of most County Unions in the State, as few adopt the plan. Huntington County is fast copying the methods of the State and her conventions are becoming more and more parliamentary.

The Young Woman's Branch was adopted and Miss Katherine Sites, of Roanoke, was made secretary. A comprehensive plan of work was adopted for local unions throughout the county. The very best set of resolutions ever put out in any convention was adopted.

A Gold Medal Contest was held. There were seven speakers, who, with ability, gave selections filled with strong temperance and suffrage sentiments. Every speaker deserved a prize, but the medal could only be given to one. Miss Martha Mason, of Andrews, received the medal. A local paper says this has been one of the most helpful to delegates of any convention yet held, for while the usual literary features were noticeably missing because of a lack of time, still more earnest inquiry was made among workers along the various lines of work and more helpful suggestions than ever before made. The prospect for the coming year is exceedingly bright and conventioners feel greatly encouraged by the increasing work noted.

The program was excellent throughout. The following officers and Superintendents were elected:

President, Mrs. Lou E. Rall, Huntington; Vice-President, Mrs. J. L. Ray, Warren; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Alice Iry, Andrews; Recording Secretary, Miss Martha Mason, Andrews; Treasurer, Mrs. O. W. Whitelock, Huntington; Literature, Master Frank Morrison, Warren; Press, Miss Pearl Rall, Huntington; Jail and Prison, Mrs. F. M. King, Huntington; Evangelistic, Mrs. C. H. Kiracofe, Huntington; Scientific Temperance, Mrs. R. A. Morrison, Huntington; Franchise, Mrs. J. L. Ray, Warren; Medal Contest, Mrs. Alice Iry, Andrews; Parliamentary, Mrs. Lou E. Rall, Huntington; Flower Mission, Mrs. Ralph Myers, Warren; Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. Alice Iry, Andrews; Mercy, Mrs. Alice Mason, Andrews; Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Stout Myers, Warren; Sabbath Observance, Mrs. Laura Penfold, Markle; L. T. L. Secretaries—Mrs. Irene Gard, Warren; Mrs. Frank Myers, Warren.

Mrs. McWhirter was to have been in attendance and to have made the address on the first evening, but, on account of spending days at the bedside of a dying loved one at Greencastle, became confused in the dates and failed to be present. Her work in the Convention was done by others to good advantage, and the evening address was made with great acceptability to the splendid audience by the County President. Huntington County realizes, as never before, the splendid leadership, unswerving devotion and genuine ability of its beloved President, Mrs. Lou E. Roll.

PRIZE BANNER—NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION.

The Prize Banner will be awarded to the State having the largest number of working Superintendents in proportion to the number of Unions in the State. That they are working Superintendents will be decided by two things:

1. The report of at least one department meeting in the year, either public or of the Union, and giving an outline of the program of such meeting to the State Superintendent.

2. The distribution of at least fifty cents' worth of department literature to enlighten the public on the important subject so closely identified with the whole total abstinence reform. Report exactly what literature was used.

MARTHA M. ALLEN,
Oneida, N. Y. Nat. Supt. Non-Alcoholic Medication.

PHILADELPHIA AND WASHINGTON.

The National W. C. T. U. Convention will be held in Philadelphia November 29 to December 4, inclusive.

The official route is via the Big Four to Cincinnati, the Chesapeake and Ohio to Washington City and the Pennsylvania line from Washington City to Philadelphia. The purchaser of a ticket will pay the regular fare from starting point to Philadelphia, and from the local agent secure a certificate, which will be signed at the convention by the railroad secretary. Upon presentation of this certificate at the Philadelphia railroad ticket office a return trip ticket will be issued for one-third the regular fare. The fare from Indianapolis to Philadelphia and return at the rate granted will be about $23.00.

INDIANA W. C. T. U.'S THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The Thirty-first Annual Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Indiana was held in the Christian Tabernacle at Columbus, Ind., October 21 to 25. The attendance was large and the hospitality of the citizens appreciated.

The annual address of the President, Mrs. Vayhinger, was able and eloquent, eliciting unlimited commendation from the people.

The report of the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Brand, was comprehensive and very encouraging, showing a large increase in organized counties and new Unions, with great advancement along many lines of work.

The report of the Treasurer, Rev. Alice R. Palmer, showed a greatly increased paid membership and no indebtedness.

The reports of the department Superintendents were most encouraging, showing a very general increase in activity in all parts of the State in our do-everything policy. An increased total abstinence and prohibition sentiment, caused by the continual agitation carried on aggressively by the W. C. T. U. and to a greater or less degree by other organizations, has made it possible for much far reaching work to be accomplished. With a few exceptions the State Superintendents have been energetically at work all year and great are the results.

Welcome Night was greatly enjoyed, as the program was of unusual interest. After music the audience repeated the 146th Psalm, Mrs. Brand leading. Prayer by Rev. France, pastor of the U. B. Church. Music by the choir. Reading by Miss Maude Baker, of Indianapolis. Song, The Legion's Red, White and Blue, by the children's choir. Welcome addresses by Rev. W. G. Everson and Mrs. Jennie Guffey. Quartet, The White Bordered Flag; words by Miss Lavinia Bailey, music by Mrs. Hattie Brand. Response to addresses of welcome by Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley. Solo, Some Glad Day. Announcements, Miss Alice R. Palmer. Benediction.

With pleasure and pride we listened to the cordial words of welcome and with exultation to our eloquent Mrs. Stanley in her beautiful response.

The Diamond Medal Oratorical Contest on Saturday evening was largely attended. Admission, 25 cents. The contest was in charge of Mrs. Lou E. Rall, who presided. There were eight contestants and the judges had a very hard task to perform in making a decision. The speeches were excellent. Mr. Leonard Nattkemper, of Terre Haute, was awarded the medal and also the diploma issued by the National W. C. T. U. Department of Medal Contests.

Representative members of the W. C. T. U. spoke in several of the churches on Sunday morning and evening.

The President, Mrs. Vayhinger, spoke most acceptably in the convention church on Sunday morning. A great mass meeting was held Sunday afternoon in the M. E. Church, at which a chorus of children's voices was greatly enjoyed. Miss Maude Baker gave a short reading that delighted all.

The address was by Miss Jennie Smith, the Railroad Evangelist, known and loved all over our country. Miss Anna Gordon had been called East on account of some matter pertaining to the statue of Miss Frances E. Willard, soon to be placed in Statuary Hall in the National Capitol, so she could not be present at this meeting, as had been expected; Miss Jennie Smith, by request, told the story of her affliction and the marvelous healing of her body in answer to prayer. For eighteen years she had been an invalid and much of that time was compelled to lie on her cot, after having been treated by prominent physicians in several States. The result of consultations of scores of leading men in the medical profession was to pronounce her case incurable. On a certain night in the hospital in New York city, while eleven consecrated Christians, among them her physician, watched and prayed, she was healed, sat up, then stood up and walked. Scientists have no explanation for such a marvelous healing, it being recognized as divine. The audience listened spell-bound to the wonderful recital of the marvelous power of God by this unassuming little woman.

On Sunday evening a large audience greeted Mrs. Brand in the convention church. With great ability she gave a monologue, Jim and Joe. For one hour and ten minutes the great audience listened with the intensest interest. The stoutest hearts were touched, men and women wept, while there prevailed a deep consciousness concerning the degradation and misery resulting from the licensed saloon.

On Monday evening a large audience assembled in the convention church to hear our beloved Irish sister, the eloquent and forceful Mrs. Lenore M. Lake, of St. Louis, Vice-President of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America.

The President, Mrs. Vayhinger, in a happy little speech, introduced to the audience Mrs. Josephine Walmer, President of Wells County, and told of the great work done in that county this year under her leadership, and then asked her to introduce the speaker of the evening, which she did very beautifully. Mrs. Lake always delights our audiences, and as a white ribboner we are justly proud of her.

It was decided in the convention to make Non-Alcoholic Medication the special work for the year, with the view to securing the enactment of a law that will require a formula of contents to be put on every bottle and package containing patent or proprietary medicine.

The following is the State roster for the year. Our State Treasurer, Rev. Alice R. Palmer, declined to serve another year, so Miss Clara Sears was elected Treasurer:

IN AND ABOUT PHILADELPHIA.

Independence Hall, appropriately so called because the Declaration of Independence was adopted in it on July 4, 1776, was the State House of Colonial Times. Later it was sold by the State of Pennsylvania to the City of Philadelphia for $80,000. The bell which "proclaimed liberty throughout the land and to all the inhabitants thereof" can be seen when you visit the hall.

Prior to 1854 Philadelphia occupied a limited space, as mentioned in January Bulletin. The custom was then to summon the voters on election day by ringing the bell. A walk down Chestnut street from Broad street will be full of interesting sights. Among other historic buildings worthy of note is the United States Government Custom house, built in 1819 for the second United States Bank. It was modeled after the Parthenon at Athens and is said to be one of the finest examples of the Doric order of Architecture in the world. There is a rumor that a new Custom House will be erected on the block bounded by Third, Second, Chestnut and Sanson streets, but it is to be hoped that the present beautiful structure will be preserved.

BLACKFORD COUNTY CONVENTION HELD IN M. E. CHURCH, ROLL, SEPTEMBER 22 TO 23.

Thursday evening Superintendent Lillie Palmer gave a Matrons' Gold Medal Contest. The opening prayer by our County President, Mrs. Stahl, showed strength in thought diction and spiritual power and was animated and inspired. Her constant admonition is to be loyal to God and never attempt to accomplish any work without reading His word and asking His guidance and blessing. There were six solid prohibition recitations; five were contestants. The superiority of all the selections and splendid delivery made the grade run close. Mrs. Nannie Fink won the medal. Mrs. Palmer is an energetic worker and reports twenty contests held the past year. Friday morning a devotional service of benefit to all was opened by Mrs. Stahl and followed by Mrs. Shannon of Montpelier. The temperance ladies are too brave to be daunted by rain (they like water) and despite the rain and clouds the various Unions of Blackford County were well represented and they brought sunshine in their hearts and faces that inspired courage to all.

The business meeting was helpful and in perfect harmony. Conclusions were reached which will be of benefit to the uplifting of our fellow men and the enlargement of the kingdom of God. Blackford County has one hundred and sixty-one paid up members. We dare not ask time to enumerate the many good works done. The excellent record is kept above. These women know self-denial is the first law of discipleship.

The fidelity and christian energy of both Mrs. Stahl and Mrs. Willes, of Hartford City, is too deeply appreciated to allow the votes to be of any uncertain proportions and with Mrs. Stahl as President and Mrs. Willes as Vice-President the coming year promises to be the most successful one Blackford County has known. We look forward with awakened interest for greater activity and a fixed purpose to act with the best interest of temperance in view. Mrs. Stanley, State Vice-President, received a royal welcome Friday afternoon and she immediately went to work as leader and determined a large number of questions of great importance in our Unions. She lectured Friday evening to a full house and although only a woman, she knows how to put essential, political, christian principles in striking phrase. Her familiarity with political questions and her judicial summing up of probabilities and possibilities made the address instructive and convincing. She held the attention of Republicans and Democrats as well as Prohi's by an array of facts as to conditions, causes, effects and needed changes. Some incidents related brought tears to the eyes of rugged men. Her inspiring power is marvelous. She is aggressive and brilliant and in every way demonstrated her fitness for her work. The Cradle Roll Service beautifully portrayed her Christ-like tenderness and solicitudes. The mingled simplicity, love and guardianship suggested the Scripture: "Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for such is the Kingdom of Heaven." The pathos, sympathy and propriety of her prayers and hymns were soul inspiring when we catch the spiritual under-tones of her noble service. A noteworthy feature was the Roll Quartette, which voiced Prohibition with no uncertain sound. The ladies of Roll Union served a royal feast for their visitors and temporal as well as spiritual blessings were in abundance.

All pronounce the convention a decided success and that an excellent record is made. Yet we will not let the splendid achievements of the past lull us into a sense of security. We realize there is an enemy that never sleeps and we must be as alert and wide awake as our enemy (the liquor traffic) if we hope to thwart its designs. Every friend of personal liberty will help us. The Christian element will support our efforts by their ballots. MARY B. DUNLAP.

The Philadelphia County Woman's Christian Temperance Union will entertain during the National Convention the members of the Executive Committee and all duly accredited delegates. The entertainment will commence Monday evening, November 28, and close with breakfast Monday, December 5. It will consist of lodging and breakfast each day, and three meals on the Sabbath. Chairman of committee on hotels and boarding for visitors Miss H. Frances Jones, 812 North 20th st., Philadelphia, Pa.

STATE CONVENTION NOTES.

There were 252 voting delegates present.

Miss Sears held a Y. Conference that was most helpful to the young women.

The Mothers' Meeting, held by Mrs. Stahl, was most interesting and largely attended..

A most interesting meeting was held by Mrs. Scott and others in the county jail on Sunday.

Mrs. Jennie Bates, for years President of Morgan County, but now of Washington City, was present.

Baby Gordon Willard Holler, of South Bend, was made an honorary member of the Convention.

Letters of sympathy were sent to the following: Mrs. Ruth Drusilla Wilson, Mrs. Ada B. Leck, Mrs. Caroline Edgerton, Mrs. Frances Boyer, Mrs. Hazel Works. A letter of greeting was sent to Mrs. Eunice P. Wilson, our former State President.

Mrs. Mix held an L. T. L. conference and urged our women to be more diligent in work for the boys and girls.

Dr. Homer J. Hall and Master Willard Hall, of Franklin, and F. T. McWhirter, of Indianapolis were in attendance on Sunday.

A Gospel Meeting was held by some of our ladies on Sunday evening in the big dining hall, with the Lutheran Church ladies, who served meals.

The Evangelistic Services held every morning during the convention were of unusual interest. The attendance was large and a deep spirituality pervaded the convention.

The department of Non-Alcoholic Medication should be thoroughly studied and literature distributed now, during the early part of the winter, if we will expect favorable legislative action this coming year.

The next State convention will be held in Brazil. The Unions in the western part of the State will no doubt work vigorously during the year for an increased membership and help to make the Brazil convention a great success.

Miss Addie Austin, of Chicago, was present, representing Miss Ruby F. Gilbert's Temperance Publishing House, which was purchased out of the old W. T. P. A. and is endorsed by our national officers and the National Convention.

The Superintendents of Departments will not hold a mid-year meeting this year. The officers of the Board of Superintendents are: President, Mrs. Gertrude Fulton; Secretary, Miss Laura Cammack; Treasurer, Mrs. Julia Overman.

Five complete temperance scrap books were sent in by the superintendents of Marion, Grant and Delaware counties and from Greencastle, some of which will be sent to the National Convention. Some of these books are very large and complete, showing that much space has been given to our work by the newspaper editors.

Never in the history of the State work have the delegates remained in such numbers until the formal adjournment, which was at noon on the fifth day. The entire convention joined hands and made a complete circle from the platform around through the aisles and sang, God be with You Till We Meet Again, Mrs. Wheeler leading. The benediction was pronounced by Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley.

Mrs. Ames, of Boston, who is a prominent worker in National W. C. T. U. circles, and favors a movement for universal peace, repeated the statement made some time ago that the battleship Oregon cost more than Harvard University and all the buildings connected with the institution. A resolution was passed urging purity in municipal government and a better administration of the laws of the State and the nation.

A large picture of Miss Frances E. Willard, beautifully framed, was presented to the Columbus city library by the convention. The committee on purchase and presentation was Mrs. Lou Rall, of Huntington, and Mrs. C. E. Fassnacht, of South Bend. The presentation was made at the last session of the convention by Mrs. Rall to Superintendent Fitzgibbon, of the public schools, who responded in a very appropriate and appreciative manner.

BRIEF NOTES.

Little Elizabeth Willard Riley, of the Greencastle Cradle Roll, has joined the Cradle Roll of Heaven. When baptized she wore a tiny bow of white ribbon and she wore the same little bow as she lay in a bed of flowers.

Mrs. Ada B. Leck, of Indianapolis, for several years President of Marion County, has been very ill. For weeks great anxiety concerning her recovery has been felt by her family and friends. At the present writing she is slowly regaining her health.

The Greencastle L. T. L. membership contest resulted in increasing the total membership to 85. Lenore Webb has done most excellent work and much of the credit of this gain is due her. Notwithstanding she has heavy work in High School she is ever planning and working for the Legion.

Mrs. J. A. Gilmore, of Bloomington, has donated a library of 50 volumes of books to the three graded schools of that city. The library contains valuable treatises on economics, histories and political science and are a great addition to the library now found in the schools.

Mrs. Mary Bowers Dunlop, of Montpelier, writes: I have sent out in five months 5,175 pages of literature, written to 17 ministers, secured 16 signers to the Pure Literature pledge, delivered three speeches, spoke in one contest and reported to four papers. I do all my own work and wait on a mother past 82 years old. I feel my time to work may be short. He says, "Behold, I come quickly."

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Vice-President, writes: I have given 217 addresses in Indiana this year, 11 in Ohio and 5 in Tennessee. I got 166 new members, 42 of whom paid dues when they gave names or at time of first meeting and I trust others have done so. I am asked to go to Lancaster, Penn., for one week enroute to the National and if my mother's health will permit I shall be glad to do this. I go to Morgan County to-morrow for three days, Jay County the 6th, Wabash the 11th, Randolph 14th, Muncie 17th. I shall make no other dates up to the State convention.

Porter County Convention was held September 28 in the U. P. church in Hebron. All the county officers were present and gave very encouraging reports of their work. The church was well filled at the p. m. session with town people, showing interest in the temperance cause. The same officers were unanimously elected to serve another year. Mrs. Frink, our able County President, lectured in the evening to a crowded house on the subject of Woman's Work in the W. C. T. U., as a rescue from vice and intemperance.

The Trafalgar Union gave a silver medal contest at Providence, Saturday evening, Oct. 8, 1904. There were seven contestants. Miss Mabel Feaster received the medal Saturday evening and Miss Sallie Jolliffe, the young lady who won the medal at Trafalgar, Sept. 10, and also the gold medal at Franklin, Sept. 24, gave her selection while the decision of the judges was being made.

Mrs. W. Welling entertained Meridian Union on the afternoon of October 5. Our new President, Mrs. Mary A. Sims, presided. After discussing our winter plans and listening to stirring reports from several of our department Superintendents, Mrs. Currier stepped forward and presented a beautiful souvenir temperance spoon to our much loved Mrs. Martha A. Gipe, who has been chosen to be President of Marion County. A pleasant social hour followed, giving us a delightful opportunity to greet each other after our summer outings.

LaPorte Union held its annual meeting Sept. 15. There was a good attendance and a very interesting meeting. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Seth Pease, Recording Secretary, Mrs. Mary Ball, Treasurer, Mrs. John Harmon. Sept. 22, 10 members of this Union met with the Waterford Union in their tidy little M. E. church, where the county convention was being held. Everything was pleasant and harmonious. Oct. 13 a parlor meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Rachel Bowers, which was profitable and instructive.

Howard County Convention was held at West Middleton, September 29 and 30. Recording Secretary Mrs. Cammack-Gibson gave a fine lecture to a good audience Thursday evening, her subject being, "Five Little Boys in Knee Pants." The young ladies of West Middleton furnished excellent music. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Rosa Hillis; Vice-President, Mrs. Lydia Greenstreet; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Dora Johnson; Recording Secretary, Miss Amanda Turner; Treasurer, Mrs. Ida Mix; Y. Secretary, Miss Blanche Shockney; L. T. L. Secretary, Miss Edith Hillis.

Fredericksburg, Willard Union, met at the home of the President, Mrs. Nannie A. Sieg, Sept. 14, and elected officers for coming year as follows: Mrs. Ella Mitton, President, Mrs. Florence Gresham, Vice-President, Mrs. Willa A. Royse, Secretary, Miss Fleda Royse, Treasurer Departments of work and Superintendent as follows: Sabbath Observance, Mrs. Martha Spigler, Evangelistic, Mrs. Willa A. Royse, Flower Mission, Miss Gertrude Mitton, Sunday School Work, Mrs. M. L. Hancock, Scientific Temperance, Miss Carey Fouts, Non-Alcoholic Medication, Mrs. Ella Mitton, Law and Statistics, Mrs. Anna Dewees, President. Our Union, though small, entered this year with a determination to do better work than the year past. On Sept. 20, the members of the Union at Fredericksburg met at the home of their former President, Mrs. Nannie A. Sieg, to show their appreciation of her work among us and gave her a surprise reception, which consisted of music by the young people and refreshments consisting of iced lemon tea cake and fruits. The evening was enjoyed by both young and old and was indeed a surprise to Mrs. Sieg.

The October meeting of the Indianapolis Mapleton Union was a mothers' meeting and was held at the country home of Mrs. Mary D. Clark. The large double parlors were well filled. Many were there who had never been in a W. C. T. U. meeting and expressed themselves as greatly pleased. The subject of the meeting was Purity, and was well presented by all on the program. Miss Kate Price presented the subject, Formation Better Than Reformation; Rev. Eunice Furnace, The City Dives and Pitfalls for Girls; Mrs. Gipe, County Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings, The Duties of Mothers in Training Their Children. Interesting discussions followed the presentation of each subject. Excellent music and solos were furnished by Mrs. Carmi Williams, Miss Bookwalter and little Miss McElwaine. Light refreshments and a social hour followed. The meeting was thoroughly enjoyed by every one. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ella M. King, 122 East 33d street. Mrs. Anna Buchanan, former police matron of Indianapolis, will present the subject of Jail and Prison Work. Mrs. Frances Potter will present The Door of Hope and Rescue Work. Good music will be furnished.

Marion County News Items.—The Marion County Annual Convention was held in the Southside Baptist Church in Indianapolis, September 20 and 21. Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, Vice-President of the County, presided, as Miss Ada B. Leck, County President, was too ill to attend the convention. Presidents of local Unions and County Department Superintendents gave written reports of their work for the past year. Three Unions reported a gain in membership. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Martha Gipe; Vice-President, Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Nina Brigham; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith; Treasurer, Mrs. Lizzie Heath; Y. Secretary, Mrs. Lillian Sedwick; L. T. L. Secretary, Miss Frances Metz; Central Committee, Mrs. Ada B. Leck; Mrs. Mary Tarlton, Mrs. Alice Baxter, with county officers. The officers of the Board of Department Superintendents are: Mrs. Gertrude Morrow, President; Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, Secretary; Mrs. Frances Metz, Treasurer. Mrs. Charlton Edholm lectured on the "Traffic in Girls and Rescue Mission" during the afternoon of the second day. Her earnestness is very convincing and much favorable sentiment in her work has been created by the lectures she has given in this city. A gold medal oratorical contest was given upon the first night of the convention under the direction of Mrs. Carrie Quinn, County Superintendent of this department. Mrs. Florence Wesner won the medal. The Alliance Quartet furnished the music. Judge Stubbs, of the Indianapolis Juvenile Court, lectured the second evening of the convention. His subject was, The Effect of Cigarette Smoking on Boys. He hopes a stronger law will be passed by the next Legislature. The cigarette smoking boy is the only boy who cannot be reformed. He will lie and is dishonest; his promises of reform are not to be relied upon; moral suasion has no effect upon him. The Judge says that the desolation and abomination predicted by Daniel will surely overtake this country if this influence, which is demoralizing and degenerating over two-thirds of the youth of our land, is not checked. He told of the increase in this habit during the last ten years, and of the lives it has wrecked.

Marion County is planning to bring Mrs. Ida Cole, national lecturer on Narcotics, to Indianapolis and vicinity during November.

The ministers in each church in Indianapolis are to be requested to preach a temperance sermon on World's Temperance Sunday, November 22, and each Sunday-school superintendent will be asked to give a temperance talk and show the pledge cards, asking the children to sign them. E. G. SMITH, 1917 Highland Place.

Dearborn County convention convened at Dillsboro, Sept. 29, 1904, at 10:30 a. m. in the Presbyterian church. Meeting was opened in the usual way by County President, Mrs. C. M. Koreoft, of Homestead. Report of County Treasurer and Corresponding Secretary was read and accepted by convention. Next, report of President in convention with the acceptance of the same. A vote of thanks was tendered our County President. There being several officers absent, the President called for brief reports from different Unions. Mrs. Rynearson, of Moore's Hill, gave an interesting talk, followed by Mrs. R. A. Perlee, of Dillsboro, the theme of her talk being mostly in regard to the Remonstrance which they carried so successfully in the past by which they earned the title of the little fighting band, followed by an interesting talk by Mrs. Sarah Evans, of Cold Springs. The noon hour having arrived, we were dismissed by Rev. C. T. White. A sumptuous dinner was partaken of at the Ginties House. Afternoon session convened at 1:30 p. m. in the M. E. church, County President in the chair. The opening services consisted of devotional exercises conducted by County Evangelist, Mrs. Margaret Stout, of Dillsboro. Following this was the election of officers. President, Mrs. T. Rynearson, Moore's Hill, Corresponding Secretary, Miss L. W. Perlee, Dillsboro, Recording Secretary, Mrs. George Wenke, Lawrenceburg, Treasurer, Mrs. R. A. Perlee, Dillsboro. Mrs. Evans, of Lawrenceburg, was now requested to give report of jail and prison work, of which the most interesting feature was true conversion of five precious souls during the past year in the Lawrenceburg jail, in which meetings are held every Sabbath afternoon. Next followed a talk by Mrs. Rynearson on department work in general. County Press Superintendent, Mrs. Kate P. Libbett gave her report, who finds the Press more favorable to us than in the past and urges all Local Superintendents to be prompt in filling out and returning reports. Afternoon session was then adjourned. The Executive Committee was called for the purpose of electing County Superintendent, which was as follows: L. T. L., Mrs. Jennie Ward, Guilford; Contests, Miss Silvia Sims, Moore's Hill; Non-Narcotic, Miss Blanch Ginties, Dillsboro; Non-Alcoholic Medication, Mrs. F. M. Coffield, Lawrenceburg; Suffrage, Miss Hattie Cottenham, Bright; Press, Mrs. Kate P. Libbett, Dillsboro; Sabbath Observance, Miss L. Liddell Bright; Fair Work, Mrs. E. E. Walker, Dillsboro; Literature, Mrs. Lucy Smith, Moore's Hill; Sunday School, Miss Eva Wenzel, Cold Springs; Scientific Temperance Instruction, Miss Alta Hansell, Guilford; Jail and Prison Work, Mrs. J. M. Evans, Lawrenceburg; Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. C. Ketchum, Moore's Hill; Evangelistic Work, Mrs. J. M. Evans, Lawrenceburg. A gold medal Oratorical Contest was held in the M. E. church in the evening. There were four contestants, Miss Leonie Robinson, Moore's Hill, No. 1; Alfred Smith, Moore's Hill, No. 2; Lucy Ginties, Dillsboro, No. 3; Kate Adams, No. 4, who was awarded the gold medal by the judges and was presented with a few appropriate remarks by County President; dismissed by Rev. F. C. White. County Superintendent of Press, Mrs. Kate P. Libbett, Dillsboro, Ind.

THE DANGERS OF ALCOHOL IN FRANCE.

Posted in every election precinct of France is a placard three by four feet in size, with the above head-line. One delegate to the World's W. C. T. U. convention says, "We found these posters in the entrance halls to public buildings; riding through the streets of Paris we saw them everywhere. Knowing what a commotion would be created in our own country by such an attack upon the liquor traffic, we thought it must have produced a great sensation in France. And it did. It made alcoholism a subject of discussion in every village and hamlet. Men engaged in the liquor traffic brought suits for damages against the government officials who signed the statement, and promptly printed and posted a defence of the use and traffic in liquors."

The "Dangers of Alcohol" were put up by the government under official signature! Translated, we find sentences like the following:

"Alcoholism is the chronic poisoning which results from the habitual use of alcohol, even if the same does not produce drunkenness. It is an error to say that alcohol is necessary to working men who devote themselves to hard labor; that it gives zeal to work or that it repairs the strength. The artificial stimulation which it produces quickly makes a place for nervous depression and weakness. In reality alcohol is useful to no one; it is detrimental to everybody. The man who drinks each day an immoderate quantity of wine, cider or beer becomes just as surely drunken as one who drinks brandy."

"The habit of family drinking leads to family discord, forgetfulness of all social duties, hatred of work; it promotes misery, robbery and crime. Drinking habits in parents injuriously affect their children; if they live beyond the first few months they are in danger of idiocy and epilepsy. For the health of the individual, for the existence of the family, for the future of the country alcoholism is one of the most terrible of scourges." Signed by the Prefect of the Seine, and the Director of the General Administration of Public Aid.

In a private letter G. Mesureur says: "I can truthfully say that the placard has met with grand success on all sides. A great number of public administrations, benevolent societies, mutual benefit societies of all kinds in France, and also of other countries, have written asking about it. The 20,000 copies which were first printed disappeared rapidly and a new edition is being issued."

Think of it, fellow workers! In wine-ridden France such temperance sentiments as these posted all over the country!

To catch the public eye is a means of reaching the public conscience. It is evident the liquor traffic believes this, for who has not had his indignation aroused when riding through the country with "Wilson Whisky—that's all," "Harvard Beer" and like signs to attract the craving created by alcohol?

Keep stirring up sentiment and the time will come when the public will arouse to the issue and wipe out this dreadful curse.

The employment by the National Liquor Dealers' Association of ex U. S. Senator Thurston as their attorney to appear before committees of Congress in behalf of all measures affecting the liquor traffic and the raising of $5,000,000 show that they mean business and are alarmed at the outlook. With them, millions are at stake. The rapid growth of the local option movement in all the Southern States may well cause consternation among the liquor men. In Arkansas during 1902, 53 out of 75 counties, declared against licensing saloons; in Georgia 103 out of 137; in Kentucky out of 119 counties, 47 have entire, and 54 partial prohibition; in Mississippi 65 out of 75; in Tennessee, 84 out of 96; North Carolina prohibits the traffic except in incorporated towns which vote for it. There is not a Southern State in which the anti-liquor tide is not rising.—National Advocate.

THE DARK SIDE OF MORMONISM.

That the agitation on the Mormon question aroused by the protests of the W. C. T. U. and other reform societies against the seating of senator-elect Reed Smoot would be suppressed during the presidential campaign, was a foregone conclusion when the committee adjourned last spring. But this fact did not deter those directly interested in the prosecution of the case from carrying on an independent investigation, which now promises to be productive of much more damaging testimony than that already introduced.

A correspondent who has traveled extensively through Mormon territory in Idaho and Wyoming, writes from Salt Lake City under date of October 11, as follows:

"The condition which I described in my letter from Victor fades into insignificance when compared to the conditions through the South. There the laws of neither God nor man, nor the ordinary rules of cleanliness or decency obtain. Everybody has wives to spare, some to trade, and all have children to burn or waste, as is generally the case. Their killing is not murder and murder not crime and the personal relations of men and women, and often children, are too vile to describe. There is one case where a man has married his own half sister; another, where a man has traded his plural wife for forty beaver skins, from which I judge that she was a fairly valuable article, as also another woman, who was traded for a mule team.

"The whole trip, especially the latter end around Star Valley, Wyoming, was utterly sickening in the evidence unearthed. Much of it, of course, it is absolutely impossible to bring before the Senate Committee, even more of it is impossible for use for platform purposes or even the newspapers. The very safeguard of these people is the grossness and villainess of their actions."

"I cannot conceive of a condition more utterly debasing and more certain to result in utter physical, mental and moral degeneration than that which exists in that neighborhood. The rule of the Mormon priesthood, such as it is, is absolute. I find the State President to be a polygamist and a member of the Senate of the State of Wyoming. I shall do my best to procure his removal from that body. We may not be Warwicks and king makers, but with our little hammers and axes, to say nothing about the more delicate weapon of the pen, we have been able in the past to achieve much in the direction of unmaking some of these members of a hierarchy."

The Senate Committee, which is charged with the prosecution of the Smoot investigation, will hold its next meeting in Salt Lake City, some time after the opening of Congress.—Union Signal.

In an article to the Western Christian Advocate Rev. John Parsons, D. D., of Skagway, Alaska, says: In Treadwell, Alaska, the battle between business and beer is waged. One aspect of the battle is the refusal of the mining company to permit a saloon in Treadwell, and the other is a Young Men's Christian Association, which every man is taxed to support. The plant of the Association, valued at $20,000, was burned down a few weeks ago, but the trustees are getting ready to rebuild. As a business proposition it was found profitable to suppress the saloon and support the Association. This is a straw which tells the way the wind blows.

WHERE INTOXICATING LIQUORS CAN BE SOLD UNDER THE LICENSE.

"All persons holding license issued under the law of the State of Indiana authorizing the sale of spirituous, vinous, malt and other intoxicating liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, shall provide for the sale of such liquors in a room separate from any other business of any kind, and no devices for amusement or music of any kind or character, or partitions of any kind shall be permitted in such room: Provided, That nothing in the provisions of this act shall be construed to forbid the sale of cigars and tobacco in such place of business. And provided further, That if such applicant for license desires to carry on any other or different business, he shall state the same in his application for license, and the same may be granted or refused by the board of commissioners hearing such application, and such permission shall be stated in the license if granted." (R. S. 1901, Sec. 7283b.)

"Any room where spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors are sold by virtue of a license under the laws of the State of Indiana shall be so arranged that the same may be securely closed and locked and admission thereto prevented, and the same shall be securely locked and all persons excluded therefrom on all days and hours upon which the sale of such liquors is prohibited by law."

"It is hereby made unlawful for the proprietor of such place and business herein contemplated of selling intoxicating liquors, to permit any person or persons other than himself and family to go into such room and place where intoxicating liquors are so sold upon such days and hours when the sale of such liquors is prohibited by law. The fact that any person or persons are permitted to be in, or go in or out of such room upon any day or hour when the sales of such liquors are prohibited by law, shall be prima facie evidence of guilt upon trial of a cause charging the proprietor of such room with violating the law in the sale of such liquors upon such days or hours." (R. S. 1901, Sec. 7283c.)

LOCATION OF ROOMS—UNOBSTRUCTED VIEW.

"Any room where intoxicating liquors are sold by virtue of a license issued under the law of the State of Indiana, for the sale of spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors in less quantities than a quart at a time, with permission to drink the same upon the premises, shall be situated upon the ground floor or basement of the building where the same are sold, and in a room fronting the street or highway upon which such building is situated, and said room shall be so arranged, either with window or glass door, as that the whole of said room may be in view from the street or highway, and no blinds, screens or obstructions to the view shall be arranged, erected or placed so as to prevent the entire view of said room from the street or highway upon which the same is situated during such days and hours when the sales of such liquors are prohibited by law. Upon conviction for the violation of this or either of the foregoing sections of this act the defendant shall be fined in any sum not less than $10 nor more than $100, to which may be added imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding ninety days, and in case of the conviction for the second offense, either upon a plea of guilty or conviction upon trial thereof, in any circuit, superior, criminal, justice or police court of Indiana, as a part of the judgment the court may make an order revoking the license of the person convicted, which said judgment shall have the effect to completely annul and set aside such license and all privileges and rights under the same, and upon the third conviction or plea of guilty entered, the court rendering judgment thereon shall annul and set aside such license and all privileges and rights under the same." (R. S. 1901, Sec. 7283d.)

ALCOHOLIC DRINKS—TEACHING EFFECTS OF IN SCHOOLS.

"That the nature of alcoholic drinks and narcotics and their effect on the human system in connection with the subjects of physiology and hygiene, shall be included in the branches to be regularly taught in the common schools of the State and in all educational institutions supported wholly or in part by money received from the State; and it shall be the duty of the boards of education and boards of such educational institutions, the township trustees, the board of school trustees of the several cities and towns in this State, to make provisions for such instruction in the schools and institutions under their jurisdiction and to adopt such methods as shall adapt the same to the capacity of the pupils in the various grades therein, but it shall be deemed a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this section if provision be made for such instruction orally only, and without the use of text-books by the people." R. S. 1901, Sec. 5984a.)

"No certificate shall be granted to any person (on) or after the first day of July, 1895, to teach in the common school or in any educational institution supported as aforesaid who does not pass a satisfactory examination as to the nature of alcoholic drinks and narcotics and their effects upon the human system." (R. S. 1901, Sec. 5984b.)

"Any superintendent or principal of or teacher in any common school or educational institution supported as aforesaid who wilfully refuses or neglects to give the instruction required by this act shall be dismissed from his or her employment." (R. S. 1901, Sec. 5984c.)

KEEPING GAMING HOUSES.

"Whoever keeps a building, room, garden, arbor, booth, shed, tenement, or canal-boat, wharf boat, or other water craft, to be used or occupied for gaming; or knowingly permits the same to be used or occupied for gaming; or whoever, being the owner of any building, room, arbor, garden, booth, shed, tenement, or canal-boat, wharf-boat, or other water craft, rents the same to be used or occupied for gaming—shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars nor less than ten dollars." (R. S. 1901, Sec. 2173.)

Permitting gambling on the grounds of any county fair, agricultural society or joint stock association, organized under the laws of this State, is forbidden. Any officer or officers who shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall upon conviction be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. (R. S. 1901, Sec. 2174.)

KEEPING DEVICES FOR GAMING.

"Whoever keeps or exhibits for gain, or to win or gain money or other property, any gaming table, Jenny Lind table, roulette, shuffle-board, faro or keno bank, nine-pin, or ten-pin alley, wheel of fortune, or any gambling apparatus, device, table or machine of any kind or description, under any denomination or name whatever, or keeps or exhibits any billiard table, bagatelle table, pigeon-hole table, or pool table, for the purpose of betting or gaming, or allows the same to be used for any such purpose, shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars nor less than twenty-five dollars, to which may be added imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months nor less than thirty days." (R. S. 1901, Sec. 2181.)

Local Unions—Now is the time to have Executive Committee meetings to lay broad plans for the year's work. Do not let the holiday season find this work undone. You cannot afford to do that. The enemy will reap a great harvest during our blessed Christmas time. Let us do what we can to thwart him.

Distribute Leaflets—District your town or city, secure the aid of the young people and give a leaflet into every home. Previous to the distribution ask the ministers to preach upon the subject of the leaflet to be distributed on the Sunday following the distribution. The result would be most helpful to the W. C. T. U. in all its branches.

Wear the tiny white bow. If you really mean for your life to be a protest against the saloon wear your little bow so that the stranger who meets you may know of your convictions. Indianapolis women who belong to the W. C. T. U., wear your white ribbon bow or get a tiny little enamel bow. Do not let the sight of a white ribbon be so scarce on our streets and in our church pews.

For consultation regarding the enforcement of laws pertaining to liquor selling, use of slot machines, minors in pool rooms, etc., the W. C. T. U. should invite the ministers and other prominent Christians and business men to meet some evening. Arrange to have this meeting in a prominent home, centrally located, and serve refreshments while the conditions and plans are being discussed. Only good will thus be accomplished.

Are the Liquor laws obeyed in your community? If not, secure a meeting of a few consecrated Christian workers, including the ministers and others who are practical business men, and talk over what can be done, and then proceed to do something. If the men do not help, go ahead and do the work yourselves. Read the liquor laws—read the duties of officers of the law—if necessary, have some of these things printed on hand bills and distributed into every home. See what a stir that will make. Then be ready with your plans for definite action. The taxpayers have a right to demand the enforcement of law by the officers who are paid for such service.

Every Union should this month make out a list of persons to whom some member will apply early in December for the pledge of an annual contribution. Merchants and individuals expect to contribute from one to ten dollars per year to the free kindergartens, orphans' homes, etc. They do so annually. Now is the time to approach them and ask for a contribution to the W. C. T. U. Secure as large donations as possible with which to carry on your work. The men of the United States make the laws which govern us. Through their legislation the saloon has become a part of our financial world. It takes our money, our boys, our men and our women, too. It ruins all and leaves us helpless. To antagonize this monster is our business, to kill its influence our privilege. To that end let us work. We need money. Make constant appeals for money, and when you get it use it wisely and you will continue to receive gifts and the help of influence.

The influence of our splendid State Convention will be felt in every Union whose delegates caught the inspiration of advancement. This year we have set our aim at an increase, over and above all losses, of one thousand new members. To make this gain of paid regular members, besides the honorary members, will mean a gain in every Union. This can be done. Every Union can do aggressive work. To do efficient, good work, the membership of the Union must be loyal to the county, State and National organizations, as well as confident in the ultimate success of our cause. The discouraged woman as to the final outcome is the woman who is not well informed upon the mighty work of the W. C. T. U. Such a woman, although possessed of splendid capabilities, is not suitable for any kind of an office. In a certain town in Indiana such a woman almost wrecked the Union. For several years she urged local temperance work, without W. C. T. U. organization. This sister believed that the W. C. T. U. had then outlived its day of usefulness. The Union workers fell out—the work went to a low tide—just a few of the faithful kept the fires burning—new courage came through the strong faith and prayers of a few—aggressive work was made possible by the energy and sacrifice of a few—the membership increased, and increased, until to-day a large majority of the Christian workers of the entire community are members of that Union.

THE PRESS.

Since it is ours to work together for another year in this very important department, let us enter upon the duties and privileges with a prayer, a hope, a determination to accomplish much during the year, and to do this we must give our best to the cause. One hope of mine is that during this year more papers in the State will be furnished with items, notices, reports, etc., of our work than ever has been known before and to that end I would ask that each County Superintendent see that each Union in her county has a capable, winsome woman as Press Superintendent, and that they shall work together to have our work presented in some form through every paper in that county. Of course this will take time and work and prayer, but it can be done and God will honor the effort and bless the results.

Arrange with as many papers in your county as possible for a column or half a column, which is to be used by you in presenting our work, and dear ones, when that space is granted you, don't fail to use it.

Advertise your meetings well and then after the meeting write a nice report of the same. Tell who the speakers were, the subjects discussed, etc. Watch the MESSAGE and Union Signal for items of interest and use them and in that way let the people know what is being done in other places. Get the people so interested that they will want to join us and be a part of our grand organization. Then let the County and Local Superintendents cooperate in holding Press meetings, one a quarter, or at least two during the year. You will find these meetings not only very interesting, but very helpful and they should be held in every county.

In counties where there is no County Press Superintendent the Local Superintendents can work together and carry on the work very nicely. In such counties I will ask the Superintendents to please send me their names and addresses, so that I may send the blanks to them. And now may I suggest a plan for keeping an account of your work? Take a small note book and on separate pages write the words, Items, Notices, Reports, etc. and each time you send or take an article of any kind to the paper make a note of it and at the end of the quarter it will take but a few minutes to make out your report.

I wish that each Press Superintendent in the State could have seen the beautiful and complete scrap-books which were made by some of our splendid women the past year and taken to the State Convention. Some of them will go to the National Convention. They were the result of much earnest, careful work, but what a splendid way to keep the clippings for future reference. Save your clippings and later on we will determine what we will do with them. The Press Leaflets which will be helpful to you in the work, I will be glad to send to any one who will send their name and address. Our report for last year showed a nice gain over former years and was most encouraging. I will not send out blanks until March, 1905, so please keep a careful record of your work and have a good report at that time. Let us work together, dear ones, in making this a banner year in this most important department. Let us enter every open door and do our best for the cause which is so dear to our hearts.

LAURA G. CAMMACK,
Converse, Ind. State Superintendent.

ANTI-NARCOTICS.

"I want you to know what one city has done and is still doing in our department and then I want you to think seriously, and I believe you will say what one city can do, is possible for another, and if each city in Indiana does as well, the traffic in our boys will soon be under control, if not entirely wiped out." This is taken from a letter written to me by Mrs. A. A. Brookbank, President of a Local Union in Jeffersonville, Indiana. Early in the year the Superintendent of Narcotics called a meeting of the Ministers' Club and Miss Loomis, Superintendent of the Jeffersonville Anti-Cigarette League, to the home of Mrs. Martha Sparks. The object of this meeting was co-operation and the formulation of plans for the enforcement of the tobacco law. Soon after, the Narcotic Superintendent asked the editors of the daily papers to print the tobacco law, also an article upon the effect of tobacco upon growing children. This they kindly consented to do. We cut these articles from the papers, placing them on petition papers, written by the present mayor of our city. After getting signatures, these petitions were given the Prosecuting Attorney and the Commissioners, asking that the tobacco law be enforced. Placards with the law were placed in all the school rooms, Protestant and Catholic, white and colored and in all places where it was thought they might do good; pledges were placed in each school room; 568 children signed the pledge; 130 yards of white ribbon was used to place a bow on each one who signed. One Union prayer meeting was held, the subject being Anti-Narcotics. Last Sunday afternoon, November 14, at the First Presbyterian church, a children's meeting was held preparatory to organizing a League. On Tuesday, September 6, an Anti-Cigarette League was organized with a membership of 63. Three talks were given last year on this subject. This year one of our pastors preached two sermons in the colored church before we organized our League. Superintendent, Mrs. F. Brookbank; Associates, Mrs. Whittaker, Mrs. Waybright, Rev. Butler, Mr. St. Clair. I would add that Mrs. Brookbank says that never was the temperance movement so strong; that 90 new members were gained for the Union with prospects of a good year. Do you think it pays? E. G. SMITH.

FRANCHISE.

When at the Hartford City convention I again accepted the superintendency of the Franchise work of Indiana I did not foresee that I would be called to other fields of endeavor almost as soon as I began to set my plans in motion. I assumed the troubles and labors of associate editor of a morning newspaper daily and as such spent my nights by the electric light chronicling the doings of my town folk, which you can readily see left me little or no time to give to the department—and not the physical strength, nor mental. There is a limit to the amount of work one can press into a given time.

Despite this and my great disappointment at my inability to do the work I had planned, I am glad to note an increase in interest, as reports show more work done this year throughout the State. Petitions sent to the mid-year executive were unfortunately mixed and only those to the Senate distributed and the names of those receiving these were not kept so as to remedy the error. I was greatly disappointed in not being able to secure the entire list of twenty-five subscribers to the Woman's Journal, as by this I had hoped to pay for a Franchise Issue to the MESSAGE. But this is no time for vain regrets. What I wish to do is to say goodbye to the many kindly friends I have made during my incumbency in the superintendency and ask you to renew your courage. I should feel it keenly had I discouraged any, in any way, with the work. It is a glorious cause and one that must win, but a long pull and a strong pull and by all together must be given before it can prevail. Let us not lose heart. You have a new superintendent whose ability and zeal should meet a ready response from you all. Write to her; encourage her. Hoping I may continue in your favor and remembrance. PEARL RALL.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Since our State Convention in June, your Corresponding Secretary, as well as myself, have been sending out letters to every County Secretary in the State and we have had a few replies. If anyone who received one of these letters and did not reply should see this, won't you please write to either Ritta Burnside, 3802 S. Washington street, Marion, or to me at Kokomo, in reply to the questions asked in the letter? I know of no other way in which to come in contact with your Legion other than to write to you. Several have sent in encouraging letters. We need faithful, persistent effort, and with it we can soon have a very strong organization in Indiana. I can not quite give up our graduates. I have some splendid ideas to offer to Senior organizations. And let me say right here that from now on I am at the command of any Legion in the State that I can reach Saturday evening for a Sunday meeting. I will go for my expenses and give you all the help I possibly can. I long to see the Senior work advance in Indiana. Remember that our watchword for this year is organization. We must first perfect our organization. I am delighted to report that of the letters we have received, we find good organization and splendid department work. Be sure to keep your senior and junior reports separated, take two reports each month, so that you can send the senior report to the State. We must have them.

Please write often to Miss Burnside and myself. We want to keep in touch with you and help you in any way we can. EDITH HILLIS,
State President.

MEDAL CONTESTS.

It is easy to pick up the pen laid down by abler and better hands, yet in assuming the duties of State Superintendent of Contest Work we feel that this has fallen to our lot. We are not unmindful of the work of our predecessor, nor shall we ever forget, or cease to hold in sacred memory the work accomplished by

THE MESSAGE.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., DECEMBER, 1904.

Please say to your White Ribboners that Miss Frances E. Willard and her assistant, Miss Gordon, have been, in the past, my very best friends and most deeply interested in the work of our Bands of Mercy, which now number nearly sixty thousand bands, with between two and three million members, whose mottoes are, "Glory to God;" "Peace on Earth;" "Kindness, Justice and Mercy to every living creature."

Yours sincerely,

GEORGE T. ANGELL.

President of the American Humane Education Society, the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the Parent American Band of Mercy, 19 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

A CLARION CALL.

In February, 1887, I prepared an eight-page pamphlet entitled Condensed Information, telling how to form societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals and Bands of Mercy, what to do and how to do it, etc., etc. About twenty thousand copies of this pamphlet have been distributed during the year.

During the summer I was corresponding with Frances E. Willard, president and the leader of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, to endeavor to have them adopt in all their juvenile temperance organizations in the United States our Bands of Mercy. I was invited to address their National Convention at Nashville, Tennessee, but finding I could not go, sent to the convention four thousand copies of the address I had prepared and various other humane publications. The convention advised that Bands of Mercy be formed in all their juvenile organizations, and many have been already formed. I also petitioned the convention to have stricken out of temperance school books all suggestions of experiments on living animals. It was decided that in future editions all such suggestions should be omitted.

A kind invitation, received November 1, 1891, from Frances E. Willard, to attend the World's Congress of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, to be held in Boston from November 13 to 18, and which contains the statement that this powerful organization of two hundred and fifty thousand women had printed in the past year over a hundred millions of pages of temperance literature, led me to investigate and find that our American Humane Education Society, from November 1, 1890, to November 1, 1891, printed about one hundred and nine millions and two hundred and eighty thousand pages of humane literature, and had then printing about eight hundred thousand pages more.

More than a thousand millions of the human race, in every generation, pass through sickness and pain into the great unknown. Millions of them, during every hour of the day and night, are tortured to greater or less extent with mental and physical suffering.

War, pestilence, drunkenness and crime bring agonies which no pencil can paint or pen describe.

The tree of cruelty, like the great Banian tree of India, has, it may be, a thousand trunks.

In the animal world millions die of contagious and other diseases which medical science has thus far failed to discover any means of preventing.

Hundreds of thousands die in transportation on our railroads and ocean steamers.

Hundreds of thousands die of cold and starvation on our great plains.

Millions die in our slaughter houses with unnecessary suffering—often standing and witnessing the slaughter of other animals, knowing as well as human beings that their turn is coming next.

The moanings of hundreds of thousands of cattle are heard every spring when deprived of their offspring.

Millions of beautiful birds are killed and wounded to supply women with ornaments, and to gratify those who find sport in killing.

To hundreds of thousands of horses life is suffering until death gives relief.

It is no fault of ours.

We are brought into this world by no choice of our own.

We must take it as we find it.

But one thing we can do, namely, try to make it happier and better both for our own generation and for those that will follow us; and one thing there is which strikes right at the roots of all cruelty, and that is humane education—humane education in all our schools and Sunday schools and homes.

I say, then, that our remedy against the lawlessness and crime now so rapidly growing in this country lies in the humane—which will be found to include also the moral—education of the children, and that this is also the shortest road to reach the parents.

For lo! the days are hastening on,
By prophet bards foretold,
When with the ever-circling years,
Comes round the age of gold;
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world give back the song
That now the angels sing.

The future historian will tell his readers that the most important discovery of the nineteenth century * * * * * was the discovery of the simple fact that the tap roots of all wars and murders and cruelty and crime could be cut off by simply teaching and leading every child to seize every opportunity to say a kind word or do a kind act that should make some other human being or dumb creature happier. * * * * * that a public sentiment was built up which made the rich kind to the poor, the poor kind to the rich, and all crimes and cruelties infamous, and so in process of time every form of unnecessary human and animal suffering was relieved, and wars, cruelty and crime banished, because every child was taught in all public, private and Sunday schools, and in a hundred thousand free kindergartens, supported at public expense, to make its own life happier by seizing every opportunity to say a kind word or do a kind act that should make happier the lives of others, both human and dumb, and that the highest honors of the state and nation were due to those who did the most to increase the nation's happiness.

One day our cat brought a lovely gray squirrel to the house. As she dropped it in the doorway it fled for refuge and cuddled down in the basket with the kittens. They were asleep and when they awoke they seemed to think the squirrel was another kitten. After a time the cat returned and looked strangely at the squirrel, then sniffed at it for a few moments, and then she cuddled down contentedly and thereafter treated it as one of her own babies. KINSHIP.

[Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.]

I am the voice of the voiceless,
Through me the dumb shall speak,
Till the deaf world's ear be made to hear
The wrongs of the wordless weak.
From street, from cage and from kennel,
From stable and zoo, the wail
Of my tortured kin proclaims the sin
Of the mighty against the frail.

Oh, shame to the praying Churchman
With his unstalled steed at the door,
Where the Winters beat with snow and sleet
Or the Summer sun-rays pour!
And shame on the mothers of mortals
Who have not stooped to teach
Of the sorrow that lies in dear, dumb eyes—
The sorrow that has no speech.

The same Force formed the sparrow
That fashioned Man, the King.
The God of the Whole gave a spark of soul
To furred and to feathered thing.
And I am my brother's keeper,
And I will fight his fight,
And speak the word for beast and bird
Till the world shall set things right.

A BRILLIANT THOUGHT.

There may be more ways than one to kill a cat, but I learned of a novel way to protect that animal from the mischievous youngster the other day.

It happened that I was stopping at a summer boarding house up in the Catskills for a few days, where an old maid boarder had located herself and her three cats for the season. The children in the house, from the youngest to the oldest, had led the three cats such a dance that the felines were justified in wishing during their waking moments that they were dead.

It had kept the old lady on the jump to keep her cats out of the children's hands during the day and to protect them at night they had to be locked up in her room. Thus stood affairs until a few weeks ago the old lady happened to think of a scheme whereby her own and her pets' troubles would be ended. She organized a juvenile society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

It was a thought that entered her head at 1 o'clock in the morning as she lay awake trying to devise a method to relieve the cats from trouble. The next morning every child in the boarding house was corralled in the old lady's room and she instilled into the young hearts love for everything that walked, flew or crawled, including babies.

The children, little comprehending the sport they were sacrificing, or the deep motive of the old lady, all took a pledge to live up to her teachings and not only this, but to get every new boarder's children to join the society, too. For fear the novelty would wear off and the children would forget their pledge, the old lady sent to the city and obtained little badges for the children to wear.

The result is that all the children in the house strut about like miniature policemen; the cats are recovering their composure, besides patches of new fur and the old lady can do her knitting without fear of being disturbed to rescue her pets from all but sudden death.—Herald.

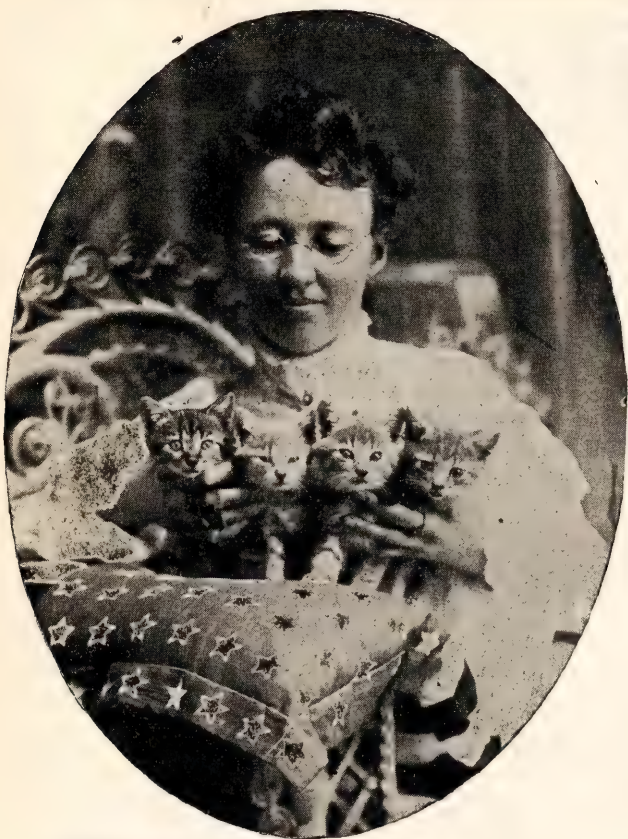

HE PUT UP HIS GUN.

One of our best practical farmers related to us the other day how he came to change his mind about killing birds. He said he formerly took a great deal of pleasure with his gun and dogs. About six months after coming to the Territory he told his wife he would go out and kill a few quail. It was about 4 o'clock; so calling his dogs, he started out on his own farm. He soon shot three quail and his wife, knowing if he got thoroughly interested in the pursuit of game he would be out till long after supper time, persuaded him to come back to the house and they would have supper, when he could go out again. All right, said the farmer, I will dress these and we will have them for supper. His wife remarked on the fullness of the craws of the birds and on opening one it was found full of chinch bugs. Out of curiosity, they counted and found over four hundred dead chinch bugs in the craw of one quail. Said the farmer in relating the circumstance to us: I just cleaned up the gun and have not shot a bird since and if you'll come down to my place of a morning or evening and see the birds coming to my farm you'll think they know their friends.—Hennery (Okla.) Clipper.

HUNTERS' SPORT.

To call it sport does not change the fact that animals hunted to death are just as surely killed as if knocked on the head by the butcher. If the hunter would only stop and think of the pain he is inflicting, his sympathy would disarm his sport. This actually happened during a recent deer-hunt in Tennessee. After the sportsmen had chased the deer for several miles and the hounds were close at its heels, the frightened animal turned suddenly and running up to one of the hunters, tucked its head under his arm as if for protection. No one had the heart to kill the animal and the hunt was abandoned.—The Holy Family.

PERSONAL LETTER.

With many prayers and heart overflowing with love for the women of our peace loving White Ribbon army, I send this little supplement to the MESSAGE out into the great, busy world. It is the child of my heart, born of love, consecrated with prayer, baptized with tears. I have chosen to let others more able than I speak the earnest words its pages reveal. Each contribution has been given by its writer especially for this issue. Many of the names have become familiar household words. All are large brained, brave hearted, loving souls who are devoting the rich talents God has given them to plead the cause of their dumb fellow creatures.

My own convictions on our attitude toward the animal world have been formed through years of observation and experience and strengthen with the years and I firmly believe no one can be truly a Christian who does not reach out protecting hands to every animal that breathes (even the humblest of them all), or who does not esteem their rights even greater than our own, because they are weaker and incapable of speech.

If there be any who long to give aid and sympathy to the cause, I feel moved to ask them to send to me any sum of money, great or small, to help push the humane education out into every nook and corner available. How earnestly our workers pray for funds to carry on the work. Never shall I forget when a dear friend, whose means were limited, pressed into my hand fifty cents to aid the cause and tears of joy welled to my eyes as I realized how God answers prayer.

I ask every White Ribboner to file away this issue of the MESSAGE, to be used sometime during the coming year to provide hints and helps for a Mercy program at one or more regular meetings of the Union.

This is my peaceful "Call to Arms." Let us make this year the greatest, in point of endeavor along the lines of Mercy work, that has yet been experienced in Indiana W. C. T. U.

PRIZES OFFERED THIS YEAR.

To the superintendent securing the most names to the Bird Pledge will be given four copies of "Dickey Downy." To the superintendent securing the most sermons preached on Kindness to Animals will be given one copy of "For Pity's Sake," by Sarah Nelson Carter. For every Band of Mercy of thirty members organized, with name of Band and officers thereto, will be sent Our Dumb Animals for one year and a roll of literature. Will superintendents please send name and address as soon as appointed and write me for instructions and sample literature?

Huntington, Ind.

Lou E. RALL.

Mrs. Lou E. Rall, of Huntington, is our energetic, enthusiastic State Superintendent of Mercy and to her we are indebted for this beautiful supplement. She edited it with an interest and devotion to the Mercy department which is most inspiring. Mrs. Rall, as you see her pictured face with the kittens, shows a rare love for animals. Yes, more; a love for God's creatures. In her home life and elsewhere she demonstrates her love for every living thing. So earnest and winsome is she as a mother that the only child, a young daughter, is in closest sympathy with her in her work and is her helper and constant companion. Mrs. Rall teaches us to rejoice in this beautiful world of sunshine and flowers and singing birds, that we may enter into loving sympathy with all life and help to make the world more beautiful and joyful for each other and for all the creatures by whom we are surrounded, remembering that the Golden Rule of Christ can bring the golden age of man.

THE BIRD PLEDGE.

We, whose names are hereunto affixed, hereby express our disapproval of the practice of wearing the bodies, wings, or feathers of birds as a part of our clothing or headgear, and we call upon all right-minded women to use their influence against it.

SPARE THE BIRDS!

THE SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS.

Oh God! that thou wouldst touch my tongue
With fervor so divine.
That ev'ry heart might feel my words
As they were words of Thine.

O Thou that know'st all human hearts,
Know'st all they have or need,
I pray Thee make them tender,
And give me power to plead!

Thou know'st the little birds, O Lord,
The birds that Thou hast made;
Thou see'st them singing in the sun,
And brooding in the shade.

The bonny, bonny little birds!
It is their hour of need;
They have no power to beg for life;
It is for them I plead.

The human cry to God is still
For mercy, mercy, solely;
The bird sings only, "God be praised,"
And "Holy, holy, holy."

They have no power to cry to us
When pride or fashion slays them
For woman who pretends to love,
And, Judas-like, betrays them—

For woman who will praise the song,
Then bid them slay the singer,
That the wee head or tortured breast
Some added charm may bring her.

Could ye but see the bright wings torn
From birds alive and bleeding,
And note their quivering agony,
I had no need for pleading.

The wingless form flung in the dirt,
Its deathly pain and terror,
Would wake in every woman's heart
A bitter sense of error.

Ten thousand thousand little birds,
In cruel hands a-dying,
Have heard, with breaking mother hearts,
Their hungry nestlings crying.

The bonny, bonny little birds!
It is their hour of need;
They have no power to beg for life;
It is for them I plead.

—Miss Elizabeth Freeland.

PERSONAL WORDS.

Mrs. Nora T. Gause is an Indiana woman and needs but a word of introduction, as she is well known for her years of devoted effort along humane lines of work. Both from the lecture platform and with her pen has she ably advocated the cause of our speechless fellow creatures.

Prominent among Indiana's humane workers is Mrs. Flora T. Neff, sister of Mrs. Nora Gause and the efficient local Superintendent of Logansport W. C. T. U., whose literary productions appear in this issue. She is a writer of poems and other productions of no mean ability, and composes the music to which her poems are set and which she sings with an earnestness and sweetness which wins her hearers to her cause. She has won several of the prizes offered by the Mercy department and barely missed winning the National prize last year, for excellent work. The originality of her plans, the thoroughness of her work and her unabated zeal proclaim her a truly consecrated worker for the cause she so dearly loves.

TURNED OUT TO DIE.

Only a poor old horse, that's all;
Only a worn-out faithful creature,
Blind and changed in every feature;
Who always answered his master's call,
And toiled for him in the days gone by.
The same hard-hearted master, who,
Finding no more for his servant to do,
Now turns him out to die!

Many a heavy load has been drawn
By this poor old horse, but never again
Will he obey the command of whip or rein.
For, here, on the frozen road-side lawn,
Some one will find, some early dawn,
Lying alone all stiff and cold,
Beneath a pitiless wintry sky,
This poor, dilapidated, old,
Deserted horse, turned out to die!

I know he thinks of his cruel fate,
Of the bitter lot which has come at last;
I know he remembers the steady gait
Which was his, though 'twas neither slow nor fast;
For he is sensible, still, amid all his pain,
More sensible far than the brute who spurned him,
And with a fiendish cruelty turned him
Away from the barn and the oats grain,
Turned him away, with never a sigh,
Out on the bleak roadside, to die!

—By Caleb Dunn.

PLAN OF WORK AND AIM OF THE DEPARTMENT OF MERCY.

1. To secure a more widespread knowledge of existing laws against cruelty to children and to animals, and a better enforcement of them.
2. To obtain in Public Schools, Sunday Schools, in Loyal Temperance Legions, Epworth Leagues, Christian Endeavors, etc., the formation of Bands of Mercy.
3. To secure the co-operation of Ministers of the Gospel, by requesting them to preach upon the universal duty of mercy and consideration toward all God's creatures.
4. To endeavor, by the circulation of literature and by such other means as may be deemed best, to develop public sentiment against the unnecessary, cruel and demoralizing practice called Vivisection, with a view to its total abolition.

5. To discourage any practice, custom or fashion which involves the infliction of suffering on any living creature.

6. To work for the general development and promulgation of the humane idea as a means of preventing injustice and oppression, and of hastening the coming of the Golden Age.

MEAT EATING AND ITS RELATION TO THE DRINK HABIT.

There is little doubt in my mind that the habitual use of meat as an article of food is productive of results similar to those which attend the use of liquor and tobacco.

Meat is largely a stimulant. But it has other qualities which make it even more injurious than tobacco or liquor. Meat contains impurities which enter the blood and produce cancer, rheumatism and kindred disorders. It leads to a craving for other stimulants as well.

Dr. Jackson, for forty years at the head of an asylum for drunkards, says:

"It is morally and physically impossible for any man to remain a drunkard who can be induced to forego the use of tobacco, tea, coffee, spicy condiments, common salt, flesh meats and medicinal drugs. If his diet consists of grain, fruits and vegetables simply cooked, he cannot retain an appetite for strong drinks. - The desire dies out of him, and in its stead comes up a disgust. This disgust is as decidedly moral as it is physical. His better nature revolts at the thought of drinking and the power in him to resist is strengthened thereby."

Of course, those who live on the purely animal plane, and who have done so for many years, will not find it so easy to make a radical change in their diet. But when the time comes that they really desire to make a change, and they see the advantages of a pure diet, they will not find it so difficult to gradually introduce fruits, cereals and vegetable products into their daily meals until meat is nearly or quite eliminated.

Children who are brought up on a non-meat diet are healthy and strong, and never have any craving for meat because they have not formed the habit of eating it.

There is one error into which many people fall when they first discard meat, either wholly or in part. That is, they eat too large a proportion of starchy food (bread, potatoes, pastry etc.) and not enough fruit and vegetables or nuts.

For those engaged in manual labor, peas, beans and lentils afford an excellent substitute for meat. The various kinds of nut butter can be used to good advantage, and ground nuts, in various combinations, make a good substitute for meat. Do not forget to make at least one meal a day wholly, or nearly so, of fresh, ripe fruit. And eat plenty of fruit at all times, either fresh or cooked.

Milk, butter, eggs and cheese will be found valuable aids to those who are beginning to eschew meat.

In conclusion, it is needless to say, perhaps, that many of the world's greatest scholars and most spiritually minded men have been non-meat eaters. A non-meat diet is certainly conducive to the the highest physical, mental and spiritual development. Keep the temple of your body pure, and your soul will then be better able to build you into such a being as you desire to become.

WILLIAM E. TOWNE,

The Magazine of Mysteries.

In urging temperance men to investigate the question of food reform, I do so as a total abstainer of ten years' standing whose conviction as to the advisability of such abstinence is unalterably fixed, but also as one who believes that he brings to the notice of his fellow-workers the knowledge of a more effective weapon wherewith to fight the evils that have so cursed our race in the past, and which still threaten it with the direst calamities.

Alcoholism is rightly denounced as a prolific breeder of other vices, but if there exists that which is the begetter of alcoholism, that undeniably is the parent of them all.

"Injudicious and unwholesome diet contributes to predispose the system to inebriety."

The inflammatory nature of flesh-meat is now generally recognized by the medical profession; and the close connection between its use and the drink habit has been unmistakably traced and exposed. Dr. Susanna W. Dodds, in a paper read at an International Congress held in Chicago in 1893, said, "A further objection to a meat diet is its stimulating character. The waste matter that it contains serves as an artificial stimulant, and the individual feels strengthened for the time being, very much as the dram-drinker fancies he is strengthened while the alcohol is in his system and the vital organs are trying to expel it. But as soon as this struggle is over it is followed by a reaction; there is a period of exhaustion, during which the overtaxed organs are taking a rest after the extra labor which they have performed. The habitual use of meat prepares the palate for other and stronger stimulants. . . . Then it is only a step to the use of beer, whisky, brandy, etc. These follow in regular gradation, each seeming to call for the other. But if there has not been a start on this down grade it is easier to hold one's footing. Nature is better able to defend herself. It is, therefore, a common remark that so long as one abstains from the use of meat and seasonings that usually go with it there is no danger of becoming a drunkard."

The truth of this statement is corroborated and accentuated by the experience and testimony of food reformers in general. Abstinence from flesh and the adoption of a diet into which fruit largely enters will so cool and strengthen the feverish and diseased system that the desire for strong drink dies out. Food reformers, as such, do not pledge themselves to teetotal practices, but those few who are not total abstainers are extremely abstemious. When temperance people come to understand that no person can become a drunkard until an appetite for liquor has been created and fixed, and that such appetite always has its beginnings in exciting foods and narcotic or stimulo-narcotic drinks and depressant or tonic drugs, and that no one having become a drunkard can remain such—once he shall have entirely abandoned stimulating food and drugs—the way to success will be open before them."

The importance of this testimony from such an authority cannot be overestimated. It should not be ignored by those whose lives are devoted to the battle against intemperance. Is it true that by a change in diet, and by simple obedience to the laws of hygiene, we can reduce the drink fiend to impotence? If it is true, are we justified in thrusting aside so simple, so efficacious a safeguard, so complete and easy a cure—can we not do something to bring a knowledge of the truth to others? Ought we not to rise to a higher level of self-denial for the sake of the brother who perisheth? "It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak." Thus wrote Paul of Tarsus, and if it is true that bloodless diet can and does cast out the devil of insane desire, should not such a fact secure the earnest attention of drink reformers? If there is any sacrifice involved in abstinence from that which science demonstrates to be unnecessary, unnatural and unwholesome, of what moment is it when compared with the glorious privilege of standing by the apostle's side and for reasons wholly unselfish, saying, "Wherefore, I will eat no meat so long as the world endureth"?

The scientific, moral and religious aspects of food reform should be studied by every person who makes any pretension to be a thinker; and the teetotaler who is ignorant of the basic truths upon which it is founded has not yet learned the elementary requisites for the successful prosecution of his own movement. The practice of flesh-eating is becoming more and more repellant to refined and cultured people, and as it is demonstrated to be a totally unnecessary habit which must inevitably give rise to a wholesale infringement of the law of love and mercy, they are, in ever increasing numbers, declaring it to be morally indefensible, and adopting a diet which is more in accordance with true temperance, as well as with reason, refinement and religious sentiment.

MRS. MARY F. LOVELL, WYNCOLE, PA.

We are pleased to introduce to our readers the kindly face of our beloved World's and National Superintendent of the Mercy Department. She, it was who had created this department of work in our organization with the assistance of Frances Willard, whose personal friend she was. With a tender heart attuned to pity for all God's suffering creatures she has tirelessly worked to ameliorate their condition and through teaching kindness to animals, to endeavor to raise the standard of Christian character and hasten the coming of His Kingdom here upon earth.

When Agassiz, the greatest scientist we ever had in America, fully believed in the immortality of animals, does it not seem foolish for smaller intellects to dispute the immortality of man?

Discourage nest-robbing, boys, among your companions and encourage in its place an intelligent interest in the living birds.

Society—They give drink to every beast of the field.

President—He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle.

Society—He giveth to the beast his food.

President—Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful.

Society—A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast.

President—The merciful man doeth good to his own soul.

Society—What does the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God.

MERCY PLEDGE.

I promise to try to be kind to all living creatures and try to protect them from cruel usage.

MERCY HYMN.

Tune—Home, Sweet Home.

Dear Father in Heaven
We've taken this vow:
To be kind to all creatures,
Dear Lord show us how;
Oh, bless every effort
Unto Thee we pray,
And help us to keep
This pledge day by day.

CHORUS.

Hear us, bless us,
While we pray
And help us to keep
This pledge day by day.

HUMANE EDUCATION.

Many of our women know what humane education can accomplish, what it does for the character of the individual, what kind of evils it seeks to cure; but what we aim for is such interest in every local Union that its aggressive work will promote the active practice of the principles of humaneness and mercy in every household of their communities and as far beyond as possible.

Though the world is growing better, it is impossible to find any community of human beings in which cruelty of some sort does not exist. In some the casual observer—and most observers are very casual—might fail to see wanton torture or neglect, but visits to the home would reveal many an instance of calm indifference to the suffering and of mischievous infliction of it. It is an abnormal mother who does not love her child, but the blind affection of many mothers develops abnormal children. The mother who provides a kitten or a puppy simply to amuse her little ones—who regards the creature only as an animated plaything; who allows it to be mauled into exhausted subjection, or teased until, after astonishing forbearance, it makes such retaliation as it can and earns punishment and dislike—is giving her child training in cruelty, and the element of thoughtlessness in the whole proceeding is also the element of selfishness. Most children, if not watched and restrained, will heedlessly, and quite often unconsciously, inflict suffering on animals. No child, unless he is taught, will even pick up a cat without causing it great discomfort, yet the majority of mothers do not know that a child should not squeeze tightly the fore part of the animal's body while the rest hangs dangling in the air, but that it should be told to hold it with one hand supporting the hind legs. Nevertheless common sense, not to speak of human feeling, should teach every grown person as much as this.

Children should not be left to the belief that their pet animals are merely living playthings, to be tossed about like rubber balls, but should be taught that they have feeling, and likes and dislikes, even as the children themselves have. The mother who, as soon as a cat or a dog is in sight, says to the child, "Be careful how you handle the cat; she might scratch you," or, "Let the dog alone, because he might bite you," is missing her opportunity for good and gentle training, and is developing traits of cruelty and pure selfishness. The child's idea of a cat is of a creature almost sure to scratch, and he believes that an innocent and friendly dog, who comes up to him with wagging tail, is a monster who will bite him without cause. The young, impressionable mind would just as easily have received the lesson that these creatures must be treated gently and kindly because they can feel, just as the child can. That their wants must be carefully anticipated, because they cannot speak, and that gentleness and kindness exercised toward them will beget in them a disposition to be gentle and kind.

The writer recently heard of a woman, who on a cold day, with a storm approaching, was seen to leave something in a field and hurry away. Investigation showed it to be a cat about to give birth to kittens. The poor creature when rescued was very sick, owing to fright and ill treatment. If that heartless woman had been properly trained in her youth, she might have felt a touch of pity for the poor animal mother in her extremity. If she had children of her own what kind of lessons could they learn from her? It is not strange that the streets of our cities are filled with children whose only idea of the way to treat a helpless creature is to torture it, and who are qualifying for lives of crime. It is a shameful fact, moreover, that material for the cruel pastimes of such children is often furnished by people who claim respectability, but whose chosen method of getting rid of superfluous cats and dogs is to take them out and lose them, or who go away on summer vacations abandoning their former pets to starvation and misery. Summer vacations often provide material for the criminal education of the children of the streets.

The remedy is humane education. Introduce it wherever it is possible. The widest field is the public schools and it should be taught in all, as it is already in some, by law. The W. C. T. U. can make things happen; therefore, it can get humane education in the public schools written in all the statute books of the country. Local Unions should help toward this end by the distribution of literature, creation of sentiment by letters to the newspapers, getting sermons preached and by any other means which present themselves. The bills presented to legislatures should be carefully worded and contain a penalty for non-compliance and in order to more easily become laws must be introduced at the beginning of the legislative session and carefully watched. Literature which will help in the work can be obtained by addressing Mrs. Mary F. Lovell, World's and National W. C. T. U. Superintendent of Department of Mercy, Wyncote, Pa.

MRS. MARY OLIVER AYRES ELSTER.

One of the most practical and devoted humane workers that has ever been identified with Indiana's interests was Mrs. Mary Oliver Ayers Elster, who was born in Newark, N. J., Nov. 9, 1842. She was an exceptionally bright child, a constant surprise to her instructors and a wonder to her classmates. At the age of sixteen she was pronounced a successful teacher, first in Champaign, Ills., and then in Chicago, and after her marriage in 1884, in Indianapolis, where she taught both public and private schools until her death, December 26, 1900. Her library comprised the best in literature. She was a rapid and advanced thinker and a ready and fascinating writer. From infancy her great heart always went out to the suffering and lowly. The more helpless the creature, the more it received her pity and attention. Her home finally became shelter for unfortunate animals and November 20, 1896, she founded The Frances Power-Cobbe Refuge, which institution still exists in a meager way at 4515 East Washington street, Indianapolis.

Mrs. N. T. GAUSE.

TO MY DOG.

Noble fellow, faithful friend,
Devoted, kind and true,
In all this wide, wide world, I've found
No one who loves like you.

Faithful dog, rememb'rest thou—
O, lucky day for thee—
When thou a friendless puppy, came
To beg a crust from me?

Then thou wert hungry, foot-sore, cold,
Thy sides were lank, and thin;
But when I saw thy friendly face,
I gladly took thee in.

Now thou art beautiful and plump,
Thy fur is soft and sleek,
A pretty collar's buckled round
Thy noble, glossy neck.

But thou, O, noble, trusty friend,
Repay'st this care of mine
A thousand-fold, for who could spurn
Devotion, such as thine?

I know if thou, in time to come,
Some other friend should find,
Thou wilt not say, of me, harsh words
And sentences unkind.

So they who would our friendship scorn,
My fondness would reprove,
Would better come to thee and learn
True gratitude and love.

ESTHER NELSON KARN.

Esther Nelson Karn, author of Snowflakes and a new book, Violets, now in the hands of the publishers, contributes the above little poem. She is a member of the Western Writers' Association and her poems have elicited very high praise from writers of distinction throughout the country. This talented lady is deeply interested in the humane work and is the superintendent of Mercy in the W. C. T. U. at Ft. Wayne, where she resides.

EVERY KIND WORD YOU SAY TO A DUMB ANIMAL OR BIRD WILL MAKE YOU HAPPIER.

THE PIGGIE SONG.

Oh, I've been out in the country
For to see my Uncle Joe!
I'll tell you all about the sights
And where the piggies grow.
For I found 'em in a holler log
All cuddled down so fine,
But, oh they scatter when they hear my uncle!

For he calls 'em piggie, piggie,
Pig-oo-ey! That-a-way;
'Tis jolly fun to see 'em run
And scramble night and morn,
When Uncle Joseph sings that hymn,
That dream of yellow corn!
But ther's one way over yonder,
He has wandered far away,
In delight he seems to ponder
O'er the Piggie Roundelay;
Now his heart is palpitating,
For a piggie can rejoice,
And his feet are fast vibrating
At the sound of uncle's voice.

Oh, it's jolly in the country
When Aunt Mary sets her hens!
The rooster struts about the walk
And crows upon the fence,
He is such a lazy fellow
And he makes the hens so mad,
They ruffle up their feathers at Aunt Mary.

But she calls 'em chickie, chickie,
Chick-oo-ey! That-a-way;
'Tis jolly fun to see 'em run
And scramble night and morn,
When dear Aunt Mary sings that hymn,
That dream of yellow corn!
There's a guinea in the orchard
And a secret in her breast;
Not a sound of her kit-lacking,
Till she's farther from the nest,
Then in chorus with Aunt Mary
And my uncle on the hill;
And the moo-ing of the cattle,
And the gobler's lusty trill
Is a discord, filled with music;
To the nature-loving ear,
When, e're the morning sun flings forth
His banners bright and clear,
Or at evening when he sinks to rest
Upon his couch of gold,
There's mush and milk for supper in the country!

Some one calls em :-Children, children,
Hurry! Come now, right away!
'Tis jolly fun to see 'em run
And scramble night and morn,
When everybody sings that hymn,
That dream of yellow corn!
There may be a grander chorus
In that land so far away,
But I think there'll be a sighing
For the Piggie Roundelay,
When all hearts are tuned with gladness,
From the inspiration born,
Nature's children all made happy
In their dream of yellow corn!

A PLEA FOR GREATER ACTIVITY.

Among the noblest of the land,
Tho' he may count himself the least,
That man I honor and revere,
Who, without favor, without fear,
In the great city dares to stand
The friend of every helpless beast.

—Longfellow.

After spending the greater portion of eighteen years in humane work, organizing and re-organizing humane societies, addressing public meetings, writing for the press, circulating humane literature, and daily entreating men and women to be kinder to the helpless creatures entrusted to their care, I find myself to-day answering the identical questions of eighteen years ago.

Everywhere I hear a loud call for heroic workers, the same earnest demand for more stringent laws and a better enforcement of those we now have and a universal regret that money does not come readily to hire humane officers to ferret out the cruelties and bring the perpetrators to justice.

But what is everybody's business is nobody's business and the barbarous practices now tolerated in almost every neighborhood must continue until the people are better organized against them and our humane societies duly equipped with authority and means to defend the helpless. It is no easy matter, single-handed, to contend with a cruel man or woman, but in this, as in other reforms, there is strength in union.

True it is, that the thousands of lame, sightless, bony, suffering horses under the lash of heartless men or women, the distressed cattle, the crowded pens of unwatered sheep and hogs, and the roughly handled poultry in every huckster's wagon, at every poultry depot, at every butchering establishment, on every freight train, ought to shame us into activity, and organizations ought to come almost without effort.

We need to forget ourselves in our efforts to better the condition of the dumb animals. Humanity Martin threw a thunderbolt into this old world when in 1824 he announced to the British Parliament that man had been selfishly legislating in his own behalf long enough, and that it was high time the dumb animals had protection.

Henry Bergh, the illustrious founder of humane work in America, electrified our people when in 1866 he began work in New York City.

Now and then preserving efforts rightly directed must bring success, but it behoves each and every one of us who is interested in the promotion of mercy and justice to God's humbler creatures to arise in our might and become an untiring laborer in this great reform.

Public sentiment is slow to mould, but right is might and we cannot doubt that the tons of humane literature that are being yearly sent out from our humane writers, the hundreds of humane societies working so faithfully, will ere long usher in a new era for our devoted friends; a time when life, no matter what its form or expression, will be respected, not for what it has done or will do for man, but because it exists.

This subject has enlisted the highest mentality of the world, the brightest intellects have sanctioned it, the noblest characters have espoused it and the truest hearts have innately embraced it.

THE RELATION OF CRUELTY TO FOOD SUPPLIES.

Extracts from a paper read at the Washington State W. C. T. U. Convention.

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" gallant men rode forth to break a lance for the weak, the poor and the helpless.

Many a young man feels that HE might have been a hero had he lived in the days of Chivalry. But THIS is God's time the more. There is now a hapless multitude whose sufferings might well quicken a new chivalry—the animal creation.

Cattle starving and freezing on the plains, all kinds of live stock bruised, frightened and thirsty during transit on steamer and car, domestic fowls crowded into close, filthy coops, where exercise is impossible, sheep, sick and dying from pneumonia, because too early shorn of their fleeces and left without adequate protection, docked horses, tight check reins, will not this array of helpless suffering arouse some one to break a lance?

The American people have tender hearts, and all that is needed is for some one to turn on the light.

Fear, anger, physical suffering, hunger and thirst produce poisons in the tissues of animals, making their flesh injurious as food. Live stock, crowded together for shipment—kept long hours without food, water and rest—terrorized in the slaughter house—can not make wholesome meat. These abuses entail financial losses, making the roast more expensive. For the sake of health and for the sake of economy every one who uses animal food in any form should look to these matters, from the oyster up.

But these are the lighter reasons. "Open thy mouth for the dumb" in the market place, in the abattoir, in the stock car, yes, and in the barn and on the farm. Society is degraded, civilization is hindered, Christianity is blighted by cruelty to our lowlier brothers.

According to the National Stock Growers' Association, there are forty millions of cattle on the western ranges without provision for food or shelter in winter.

C. K. Whitehead, Secretary of the Colorado State Board of Child and Animal Protection, says, "There is no blacker stain on the civilization of this nation to-day than this. Imagine in December a single animal, already gaunt from cold, hunger and thirst—imagine this wretched creature wandering about on an illimitable plain covered with snow, with nothing to eat, except here and there, buried under the snow, a sparse tuft of dead grass; by day wandering and pawing in the snow, by night lying down upon it, swept by pitiless winds and icy storms—always shivering with cold, always gnawed with hunger, parched with thirst—always searching for something to eat where there is nothing—always staring with dumb, hopeless eyes, blinded, swollen and festering from the sun's glare on the wastes of snow. Imagine that, and imagine yourself enduring one hour of it; multiply that by 24; multiply that by the slow moving days and nights from December to April, if life lasts so long;—then multiply that by forty millions, and you have the statistics of the brute suffering in this one way for one year and every year in this unspeakable trade.

"The owners of these animals are 'our best citizens,' foremost in politics, society, business and religion; warmly clad, eating three square meals a day and sleeping in comfortable beds paid for by the suffering of helpless beasts deliberately put where their owners know they are dying lingering deaths, because enough survive to make a profit."

Horses that have patiently and intelligently carried ore from almost inaccessible heights to a marketable point—carried it with more than human skill and faithfulness—at the close of the season are left shelterless in the mountains through the long, bitter winter. If none of them survive the hardships, well and good. The owners consider it cheaper to buy new ones than to care for their loyal helpers.

These are wrongs that cry to heaven. The people in the churches, the children in Sunday schools and day schools, the women in our Unions, should be taught the rights of animals, the responsibility of MAN towards them. If superior intelligence is ours, by so much the more should we bless the humbler lives.

"The strong should help the weak." Do this, and Knighthood will be again in flower.

Contributed by Emma E. Page, National Lecturer for the Mercy Department, Olympia, Washington.

DOCKING.

The operation is needless, painful and cruel, causing the animal much suffering and depriving it of its only means of defense against flies and insects. In my opinion no language too strong can be employed condemning this cruel operation.—Dr. Samuel K. Johnson, Chief Surgeon New York Veterinary Hospital.

Always kill a wounded bird or other animal as soon as you can. All suffering of any creature, just before it dies, poisons the meat.—Geo. T. Angell.

PUTTING ON CHRIST.

"Putting on Christ!" Boys, what does it mean?
That you gamble, and smoke, and chew,
And swear, and a dozen other things
That you wouldn't want girls to do?
Does it mean that Cruelty lurks within,
That something must suffer and die
For your amusement, the cats and the birds?
Do you rein your horse up high,
And lash it into a milk-white foam,
Until each breath is a piteous moan?
Is this why the tender Savior came?
Is this what it means to you?

"Putting on Christ!" Girls, what does it mean?
That you should be haughty and vain?
Despising the fallen, unfortunate, poor,
Thus helping to multiply pain?
Does it mean that mother-birds, hovering o'er
Their little ones high in the nest,
Shall be slain for you and their corpses worn,
That you may be grandly dressed,
While the birdlets feebly flutter and cry,
And thirst and hunger and finally die?
Is this why the gentle Savior came?
Is this what it means to you?

"Putting on Christ!" Ladies, what does it mean?
That you wouldn't step out of your way,
To ask for a vote on the Temperance side?
Is this your position to-day?
Are you lending a hand in Cruelty's crime?
Did you sanction that murderous pack,
In slaying the seal while her baby cried,
And shed great human tears, and died,
That her coat might warm your back?
Is this why the loving Savior came?
Is this what it means to you?

"Putting on Christ!" Men, what does it mean?
That you ballot the same old way?
Are you asking God to move the saloons,
And then you don't vote as you pray?
Would you rather dismiss all this from your mind,
The one hundred thousand lost,
And care not a whit for those souls adrift,
With none to rescue, or help, or lift,
Because of the ballot you cast?
Is this why the merciful Saviour came?
Is this what it means to you?

"Repentance, Baptism, Newness of life!
What do they mean in this world of strife?
Lessons of mercy and deeds of love
Our 'faith' in the living God to prove;
Which shall say to the politician bold:—
'I barter not in your crime for gold;
I'll vote for the home, nor care for the sneers
Of the whisky-ring, their fleers and jeers
Which Satan has used for so many years,
To further his harvest of bloodshed and tears.

The loving Savior never was born
To tickle the world with priestly form,
With priestly sermon and priestly song,
And licensing or gravest wrong.
"Putting on Christ," dear friends, must stand
For every creature in the land,
And the Christian refusing to work 'gainst sin,
Outside of the church as well as in,
Is a stumbling-block in the way of truth,
And the unbeliever seeking the truth.
Logansport, Ind. MRS. FLORA TRUEBLOOD NEFF.

TWO KINDS OF SPORT.

"'Tis a beautiful morning," a sportsman said,
"The world looks so happy—let's each take a gun,
Go out and kill something for pastime and fun,
And proudest be him who counts the most dead."

They blotted out lives that were happy and good;
Blinded eyes and broke wings that delighted to soar.
They killed for mere pleasure and crippled and tore,
Regardless of aught but the hunger for blood.

"'Tis a beautiful morning," a sportsman cried,
Who carried a kodak instead of a gun,
"The world looks so happy—so golden the sun,
I'll slip to the woods where the wild things hide."

The deer that he "shot" never dreamed of his aim,
The bird that he "caught" went on with her song.
Peace followed his footsteps, not slaughter and wrong,
Yet rich were his "trophies" and varied his "game."

—Calla Harcourt in Good Health.

WHY A DEPARTMENT OF MERCY SHOULD BE FORMED IN EACH STATE, COUNTY AND LOCAL UNION.

Because the use of strong drink develops brutality and cruelty, the systematic teaching of kindness bears a relation to both the preventive and reformatory work of the W. C. T. U.

Because the organization of Bands of Mercy could be carried to much greater extent if there were in each Union a woman who would make it her particular business to secure their formation through the several kinds of educational work.

Because, though humanity is growing better, its real and permanent elevation will be in the degree of the recognition of the rights of the weak.

Because we need a Christianity broadened to the full intent of its Founder. One not restricted to a mere contemplation of God's mercy to us, but inculcating our obligation to show the fullest mercy to all His creatures.

Because the development of the ideals of justice and humanity is essential to the highest character and a child taught through the Band of Mercy to be unselfish and to be considerate of the rights and welfare of every living creature, will be better in all the relations of life. A child so taught will not, when he grows up, be so likely to degrade himself by the use of strong drink or help to injure others by selling it.

As the world advances in civilization the time will surely come when it will not be considered sport to go out and shoot something. Nothing will then be considered sport that means suffering or death to any living creature.

White light includes all the prismatic colors; so the white ribbon stands for all phases of reform.—Frances E. Willard.

Nothing is impossible that is right. Nothing that is right is impractical.—C. N. Howard.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. X. No. 1.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., JANUARY, 1905.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

PROFITS OF WHISKY.

The Wichita (Kas.) Beacon puts much in little thus:

The distiller from the bushel of corn makes four gallons of whisky with the aid of various harmful products and adulterations. These four gallons of whisky retail for $16.40.

The farmer who raises the corn gets from 25 to 50 cents. The United States government through its tax on whisky gets $4.40.

The railroad company gets $1.00.

The manufacturer gets $4.00.

The drayman who hauls the whisky gets 15 cents. The retailer gets $7.

The man who drinks the whisky gets drunk.

His wife gets hunger and sorrow.

His children get rags and insufficient food.

OUR NEEDS.

More personal consecration to God, more conscience about being in our place when the roll is called. More initiative in the doing of what is at hand to be done, without being urged by the president to do what is clearly our duty, if we live up to the last clause of the pledge we have taken.

More system in the meetings of the Local Union. More singing of temperance songs. More sociability in the direction of ministers, teachers, editors and boys. More missionary zeal. This call to do missionary work presupposes an intelligent acquaintance on the part of all our Unions with foundation principles, with all laws, and with the plans of State and National Unions. Every member ought to be able to repeat the pledge from memory at any time, so that she can inform others as to the requirements of membership. More faithfulness in reporting work already done. Remember your work is not finished, no matter how well it is done, until it is reported.

We need breadth of thought and definiteness of action. More faith in God, in each other and in the humanity about us.

More faith, more hope, more love and who shall defeat us?
If God be for us, who can be against us?

—Marie C. Brehm in Union Signal.

THE BATTLESHIP.

Having referred at our late State Convention to the great expense entailed upon our country by its military system and repeated the statement of Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead that one of our large battleships cost more than Harvard University, several members of the Convention asked for a written statement, which I agreed to give in print through the columns of the MESSAGE; and for which I now ask a little space. Mrs. Ames' first statement was challenged, but she looked the matter up, comparing statistics which she obtained, as to the ship, from the naval department, as to buildings, from the secretary of each institution. The figures she obtained are as follows:

Cost of battleship.....	$8,575,000
Land and 94 buildings of Harvard University.....	$5,300,000
Land and buildings of Hampton Institute.....	600,000
Land and buildings of Tuskegee Institute, about.....	600,000
	$6,500,000
Leaving surplus cost of ship....	$75,000

Which would pay for a comfortable home for twenty-five families.

As a further illustration of what a naval battle may cost, take this from a note on the present Japanese war:

A battleship carries four cannon, each of which costs $30,000. The four.....	$120,000
Each gun can fire two shots a minute, each shot costing.....	$400
Four guns cost per minute.....	3,200
Four guns cost in five minutes.....	$16,000
Total.....	$136,000

And this ship might in a minute, by a shot from an enemy's ship, be sent to the bottom of the sea, a lost and worthless wreck. It takes five or six years to build and equip a large ship and very few of them are of any use at anything like their original value, after twelve years. The figures here noted are but the beginning of naval expenses, for there follows the cost of furnishing, manning and mending, which easily runs up into millions more. It is an enormously expensive barbarity. May the women of Indiana be swift to do their part toward turning this vast expenditure of the people's money into nobler channels.

H. LAVINIA BAILY,
Richmond, Ind. State Superintendent.

A PLEA FOR MORE L. T. L. WORK.

At the National Convention in Philadelphia it was more evident than ever before that large numbers of young men and women are taking a deep interest in the reforms which the W. C. T. U. stands for. Not only were there many splendid young women there representing the Y., but there were even more young men of the Senior Loyal Temperance Legion of many States, who felt no hesitation in supporting the work of the national organization through its branch. It was a surprise to many delegates that the Senior Legion had succeeded in raising young men of such obvious earnestness in temperance reform and Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon themselves enthusiastically expressed gratification for the encouragement lent to the temperance cause.

In the platform addresses, in the president's address, in the department reports, in the recommendations, and even in the convention sermon, much emphasis was placed upon the necessity of educating the young, or, in other words, of organizing Loyal Temperance Legions, both Junior and Senior. The great truth—which the liquor organizations are recognizing perhaps more sharply than are we—that the future profits and the future drunkards resulting from the liquor traffic must come from those whose ductile minds and souls are even now in our hands, could not help but be exploited over and over again in this convention of farsighted and earnest temperance workers. And the further truth that the temperance workers of the future who shall take up the arms when we must lay them down and now the boys and girls and young men and women of to-day, ready to take any training we may give them, could also not possibly be overlooked.

Quoting the strong conviction of Frances Willard, oft expressed, that it was the duty of every Union in the land to organize a legion, I desire to impress every Union in Indiana with their responsibility in this direction. It is not as easy a branch of work as some others, but it is by far the richer in rewards, in significance and in effectiveness. With its course of study and graduation and post graduate courses, it provides a training school for young people which has not yet failed and cannot fail to train workers who will prove a mighty right arm in the conflict with the entrenched power of licensed rum-selling. We train young people to-day with solicitous care for all ordinary pursuits of life; why should we not train them as thoroughly for reform work?

To the Unions which are ready to organize, but lack leaders and complain of other hindrances, I would say, that nothing ought to stop you from organizing one. If there is no place to meet publicly, then meet in a home; and if there is no volunteer leader, then let each woman gather a half dozen or more of her own and her neighbors' children about her for an hour and talk to them from the lesson manuals as if they were her own. It is a mistake to assume that the leader must be trained in a complicated system of work; any woman with a love for little ones and a mother's ambition for the future of her race and her country can succeed in planting the seeds of sobriety and purity in the little ones she gathers about her. The State and National officers of the legion are always ready to help and suggest.

And, furthermore, a Union owes it to the older young people of the community to give them an opportunity to belong to a club that holds up the ideals that the W. stands for—the senior L. T. L. It owes a duty to the temperance cause, which it aims to serve, to provide for the future by training young people to understand the facts and principles at issue. The young people in all cases are found ready to learn if approached in the right way, and the results in members for the Union and voters for God's party, wherever the attempt is made, ought to make every Union resolve to lend strong and persistent efforts in this direction at once.

J. GEORGE FREDERICK.

THE THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

In order not to travel on Sunday the Indiana party of White Ribboners left Indianapolis in a special sleeper on Friday evening, November 25. Several Illinois White Ribboners joined us and we had with us Mrs. Vayhinger, our State president and Mrs. Stoddard, president of the Texas W. C. T. U. On Saturday we learned that a sleeper just behind ours contained a detachment of 41 marines in charge of Lieut. Charles Campbell, of Wheeling, W. Va. They were returning to New York from a three years' service in the Philippine Islands. We invited them into our coach for a noontide gospel service.

The program consisted of short talks by Miss Vayhinger, Mrs. Stoddard and Mrs. Brand and a humorous reading by Mrs. Miner, of Illinois, and the singing of America, some gospel hymns, and the Senior L. T. L. song as a solo by Miss Edith Hillis. With earnestness the young men joined in singing the chorus to this song and in the singing of the hymns.

From the train news agent we secured the requisite number of large apples and at the close of the program Mrs. Brand carried the basket and Miss Edith Hillis and Miss Ethel McWhirter distributed them to our guests.

These soldier boys, many of them scarcely out of their teens, lingered for hours and talked with the members of our party. Many were homesick—all had enlisted for four years, some of them had nearly two years yet to serve, others only a few months. Among the number was a nephew of our lamented Mary A. Woodbridge. All seemed to greatly appreciate our invitation. One young man said to Miss Clara Sears, you are the first white woman that I have spoken to in three years. How dreadful it is for our nation to send its youth, the flower of its young manhood, out under such conditions. On Sunday morning we attended service in the Baptist Temple, and heard its famed pastor, Dr. Russell Conwell, deliver an eloquent and inspiring sermon on the dignity of labor, speaking emphatically upon the desirability of woman's activity, socially and politically. Five telephone receivers were so arranged that the services could be heard in as many different places. The hospital, supported by the church, provides a 'phone for each bed, so every patient can hear the service. On Sunday afternoon several of us attended Mr. John Wanamaker's Sunday School of 3,000, saw the marvelous organization of young forces and the bible class numbering 1,600 which Mr. Wanamaker teaches. It is composed of middle aged people.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION

Was held in the great Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, November 28 to December 4. The attendance was unusually large. The Credentials Committee reported the total voting membership of the convention to be 511. Thousands of visitors attended the sessions, which were varied and interesting. Great audiences present every evening. The officers' reports showed that a splendid net increase in membership had been made in all the States and territories. That, never daunted by unfavorable weather or method of transportation, our National President, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens and her loyal Vice-President-at-large, Miss Anna A. Gordon and the National Organizers had gone into many new fields and planted the seed which already begins to bear fruit.

The Superintendents of Departments have been aggressive along some lines. Much definite educational and legislative work has been accomplished through this, the strongest organization of reform forces in the world to-day.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens; Vice-President at large, Miss Anna A. Gordon; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Susanna M. D. Fry; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Clara C. Hoffman; Assistant Recording Secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Preston, Anderson; Treasurer, Mrs. Harriet Wright Brand.

Mrs. Frances Beauchamp, President Kentucky W. C. T. U., was reported as not desiring to serve again, so Mrs. Anderson, the valiant standard bearer of North Dakota, was selected. Mrs. Helen M. Barker felt that, on account of her health, she could not serve again as treasurer and withdrew her name as a candidate. "Such a demonstration of affection and appreciation rarely, if ever, falls to the lot of a retiring officer. From all over the house came word flowers and word jewels to their beloved treasurer."

Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, our faithful and efficient State Corresponding Secretary, was elected as her successor. Two years ago, Mrs. Brand, as Corresponding Secretary, arranged for Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon to spend a week in Indiana. There being no funds at command, Mrs. Brand devised a financial plan and took risk of deficit. She accompanied Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon in their tour of the State. After paying all expenses of the trip, Mrs. Brand turned over $— to the State treasury for further use in organization. Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon were greatly pleased with Mrs. Brand. Her refinement and ability as a speaker, combined with a thorough business training, were unusual qualifications. They said that during all that week of arduous duties, traveling, etc., sometimes visiting two towns in a day and holding two or more meetings at a place, that by previous arrangement every detail was perfected. Evidently, as a result of peculiar fitness, Mrs. Brand has been called to the office of National Treasurer. Thus Indiana is honored in having one of its women chosen for a national office.

SENIOR LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

A banquet was tendered by the Senior Loyal Temperance Legion of Pennsylvania to Mother National on evening of November 28. Covers were laid for 850 guests. This number was increased to over 1,000 by the admission of those who paid entrance to hear the toasts. Even the seats could not be secured. Mr. J. George Frederick, President of Pennsylvania Senior L. T. L., was toastmaster. The excellent menu was furnished by the Battle Creek Pure Food Co.

The following letter was received by Mrs. Luella McWhirter from the President of the Manitoba W. C. T. U.:

DEAR SISTER—I enclose order for forty cents, for which will you kindly send me your State W. C. T. U. paper and a copy of your State report. I sent twenty-five cents last year for the paper, but I do not know, now, to whom, but I got only one copy, but that was so helpful in so many ways that I have wished for more copies of it. The papers may have gone astray in some way, but it does not matter now. If forty cents does not cover report and paper for one year, send it for six months, when I hope to renew.

MRS. E. CHISHOLM,
272 BALMORAL ST.,
Winnipeg, Manitoba. President Manitoba W. C. T. U.

The Greatest National W. C. T. U. Convention was held in Philadelphia, November 29 to December 6. Special Convention numbers of the Union Signal, December 8 to 15. The two copies for 5 cents. Write for these copies. Enclose five cents in postage stamps. Address The Union Signal, Evanston, Ill. Send immediately, before supply is exhausted.

THE ADDRESS OF THE NEW STATE W. C. T. U. TREASURER

Is Miss Clara M. Sears, 222 W. 14th street, Anderson, Ind. We believe it is necessary to have this put in a place where the women will see it, as many complaints came because it was not in a more prominent place in the last issue. Some of the mail is not properly addressed. Miss Sears says, I want to thank the Treasurers who have been so prompt in returning the blanks, also the MESSAGE list. I ask you to bear with me till I can get the subscription list corrected. I believe there are several parties, who are not members, receiving our paper at present. Again, names have been reported to me and in looking over the list their names and addresses are all right. When I think that all the dues from your County Treasurer have been sent in I will send you receipt. By the time this issue reaches you your State Minutes will be in your hands.

PAY WHAT THOU OWEST.

In order to know how to pay what thou owest and to so instruct others, study the subject. Your State Superintendent recommends that each Local Union own as a reference text book, Mr Horn and His Friends, by Rev. Mark Guy Harse. This is published by McDonald & Gill, Boston. Price, seventy cents. Also Money, by Dr. Andrew Murray, of Wellington, South Africa, published by Revell, Chicago. Price, twenty-five cents. You will find a tract of Dr. Josiah Strong, called Money and the Kingdom, which you can get for two cents—one dollar and sixty cents a hundred—from the American Tract Society, 10 E. 23d street, N. Y., of great value for distribution among converts to the Tithing System. Order from Mrs. Flora Miller Morris, Bloomington, Ind., sending one cent each to pay postage, the following: Giving and Giving Up, Mrs. Howe's Black Silk Dress, Questions and Answers About Giving, Ten Ways of Giving. Please appoint a Superintendent of this Department if you have none and report to
ALICE RUTH PALMER,
Franklin, Ind. State Superintendent.

FLOWER MISSION.

I realize very keenly that I have been called to fill the place of one, about whom we cannot speak too highly with reference to her successfulness as State Superintendent of Flower Mission work. However, after the women have been trained by such a leader I feel confident that for the sake of the good work, if for no other reason, they will not cease their energetic efforts.

It seems to me the work in this department is the sweetest and easiest work in all the different departments of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Remember our Heavenly Master said, "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye do it unto me;" so let us consider our day's work incomplete without some kind word, some helpful service or a sweet flower has been left to cheer one in need.

Let us endeavor to have Indiana again, next year, stand at the head not only in pledge signing but in her Flower Mission report. Let us be more careful about visiting our institutions and leaving some token bearing one verse of scripture, for kind work never falls unheeded, as our Leader and Master is ever watchful.

Remember, too, the weary clerk, as he day by day tolls behind the counter. I know that a kind word, a dainty dish, or a pretty flower often would find a response if only we would think to do this. Let us be more careful this year to serve the needy and distressed and to attend to their wants, especially to remember the sick.

God, from his abundance, has promised to bless us this year if we but ask. So let us start out with a fervent prayer that we may accomplish much in this department, not for honor to ourselves, but to Him and that we may lead others to Christ.

In order that our work may be properly reported let us each keep our own reports and see that they are sent to our County Superintendents that I may receive them, thus obtaining a complete account of the work done. The blanks will be sent to the different Superintendents in due time, that I may get my reports in by March, then again in September. I feel that two reports a year are sufficient in this department.

I do most sincerely trust that our women will feel free to write to me concerning this work, for I will gladly answer all letters and send all literature that I can.

Martinsville, Ind.

PURITY AND MOTHERS' MEETINGS.

I have secured quite a supply of literature from which you can glean many good suggestions and ideas for your Purity and Mothers' Meetings. I am anxious to share them with you and will send a package to every Superintendent who will apply with stamps to pay postage.

Dear sisters, ours is a great department. Shall we not commence early to sow the seed and ask God to so bless the labor of our hands that this coming year may be fraught with better results than any previous year? Remember, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Let us work as though the success of this great reformation depended upon what we do, then let us pray and trust our Heavenly Father as though it all depended on God. I will also furnish some Purity pledges to those who desire them and will use them.

Hartford City, Ind.

MRS. S. M. STAHL,
State Superintendent.

DEAR EVANGELISTS AND SUPERINTENDENTS—That you may be assured of my remembrance of you, I send you a loving New Year's greeting. I wish I could take each one of you by the hand and spend a few hours with you in prayer and consultation as to the best methods of increasing the efficiency of our department work. If my strength holds out and my loved ones keep well, I will be engaged in revival work until some time in February. I earnestly ask to be remembered in your prayers, that I may be used of God in the salvation of souls and the upbuilding of believers in the most Holy Faith. I want to be as helpful to you as I possibly can. I will endeavor to promptly answer all letters and to give you any suggestions that you may need in the prosecution of your work so far as I am able to do. Last year, at the Cincinnati convention, our World's and National Superintendent, Miss E. W. Greenwood, together with the National Evangelists present, arranged a program for a two days' Evangelistic Institute. This was printed in Miss Greenwood's Recommendations for 1904, which I have sent to many of you. I have a few more copies, which I will gladly furnish you upon your request. As soon as her Recommendations for 1905 are out you can obtain them by sending to her at 294 Stuyvesant avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Also she will gladly furnish you a copy of the 1904 Recommendations. Please either get them of her, or me, that you may know what our special work will be for this year and may have the helpful suggestions it contains. I have given out all the copies of the Plan of Work arranged by myself for our State work and I have hardly deemed it necessary to have another leaflet printed, as I can send you frequent messages through our State paper. I will gladly receive any suggestions from you which will make our department more helpful. I hope you are keeping a faithful record of the work you are doing and report to me in March and September. Read the following list of questions and I earnestly ask that you may answer them in the order printed, that I may more easily make out my report for the State and national. My heart goes out to you in sisterly love and fellowship and I pray that this may be the best year of your lives; first, in your own spiritual growth and development and second, in the work accomplished for the Master. The questions appended will indicate the lines of work. I hope you can arrange for W. C. T. U. Evangelistic institutes, using the program printed as nearly as possible.

EVANGELISTIC REPORTS.

The following questions will be asked each State Superintendent at the end of the year: Did you seek to secure religious and moral teaching in your schools and with what result?.....Have you held W. C. T. U. Evangelistic Institutes?.....How many temperance addresses have been given before conventions or regular meetings of Christian Endeavor and Epworth League Societies?.....Did you as State Evangelistic Superintendent secure an issue of your State paper in the interests of the Evangelistic Department?.....What work has been done in almshouses?.....

LIST OF QUESTIONS.

Number of evangelical meetings?.....How many in churches?.....How many in prisons and jails?.....How many in penitentiaries?.....How many in halls?.....How many in cottages?.....How many Mothers' Meetings?.....How many in school houses?.....How many on ships or in forts?.....How many out-door services?.....How many visits made by Union?.....How many conversions?.....How many Bible readings in Union?.....How many signatures to pledge?.....How many pages temperance literature distributed?.....Only figures can be given in the Annual Report, hence such States as summarize have honorable mention.

ANTI-NARCOTIC PLAN OF WORK, 1904-5.

I am afraid my plan of work will be like William J. Bryan's silver speeches; nothing but a reiteration of the same subject. I still believe in the power of petition. In the report of the Legislative Committee of the International Reform Bureau, is this sentence: The Berean's Legislative Committee is glad to report, to the credit of Congress and for the encouragement and rebuke of good citizens, that in the eight years of the Berean's history no moral measure has failed to pass, for which public opinion has adequately expressed itself in petitions, letters, telegrams and living deputations, nor has Congress failed to defeat any immoral measure, against which, by the same means, adequate popular protest has been made. Among the Berean's plans for 1904-5 are two measures of the greatest interest to workers in the Anti Narcotics Department. The first is a world movement to constrain England to release China from treaty compulsion to tolerate the opium traffic. England has 2,973,500 acres in India given over to the cultivation of opium and the 600,000,000 human beings in Asia are exposed to the evil of the opium traffic as legalized by the British. The third measure is a National Anti-Cigarette law. Can we not help in this work by securing signatures from all organized bodies of men and women and from individual voters?

Mrs. Stevens, National W. C. T. U.'s President, has this recommendation in her annual address and message: That the various States shall work for a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of cigarettes; also, for a law prohibiting the sale to minors of tobacco in any form. Judge Stubbs, of the Indianapolis Juvenile Court, promises that a very strong law will be presented to the State Legislature this winter. Now is the time to begin work. State what you want on your petition, both National and State. Get your signatures and I will send them to the proper persons, or send them to me for the proper form of petition and send them yourselves. In the meantime do not neglect the children; form Leagues whenever possible and do ask every child you meet to sign the Anti-Cigarette Pledge card. These cards are only 10 cents per 100, so can be used freely with little expense. I think you cannot begin to pledge children too young. A mother said to me recently, my husband has never smoked, but my son, who is almost a baby, is continually buying sugar pipes and cigars. He will pretend to smoke a pencil or anything else that has the least resemblance to a cigar. If the little boys are told of the danger in tobacco, in a way easy to comprehend and a pledge card given them, even if mother has to sign it for them, they will understand that it is a promise and it will surely prove a restraint and safeguard when he enters school, where the cigarette habit is often contracted during the first year. So I say, pledge the babies. I would also ask all persons, whether Superintendents in this department or not, to report work done to me. I will send blank reports to any person wishing them.

Mrs. E. G. SMITH,
1917 Highland Place, Indianapolis. State Superintendent.

FRANCHISE.

I hope every Corresponding Secretary of a Union having a Superintendent of Christian Citizenship has sent her name to the new Superintendent, so that you may help her to do much more than we did last year.

One more favor, dear Secretaries. While you have your pen in hand, please send me the name and address of every Superintendent of franchise. I hope to receive a long list of them in a few days, for surely women must be interested in this department. Tell me of good papers read in your Unions and of helpful literature you have used; and of anything that will help us to make this a good year for woman's cause.

LAURA M. THOMPSON,
Greensburg. State Superintendent.

Premiums offered in the Medal Contest Department for the year. To the local W. C. T. U. sending in the largest amount of money from a contest held for the benefit of the Hadley Industrial School, during the quarter ending March 15, 1905, I will give a small gold medal, value $5.00. To the county superintendent holding the greatest number of contests during the year, W. C. T. U. silver medal will be given. To the local superintendent holding the greatest number of contests, I will give ten contest books.

Marion, Ind. Superintendent.

THE CHURCH AND THE SALOON POWER.

The saloon is the chief and most audacious law-breaker of the age. It is the arch destroyer of all that is dear to man. It is sleepless, restless, insatiable, mighty. There is but one power in the land that is stronger, and that is the Church. If the saloon is to be overthrown the Church must overthrow it. Will she? The question is one of purpose, not ability. She can do whatsoever she will in this all-important work. The service which the Church has already rendered in antagonism to the saloon is not, by any means, to be disparaged. On the contrary, it is to be acknowledged as well nigh invaluable. More than all other agents, she has rescued perishing inebriates, and softened the hearts of those who were forcing their brothers down to drunkards' graves.

She, more than anything, or more than anybody else, has created the sentiment which rules dramsellers out of respectable society, and places drunkard-making in the list of crimes. Nearly all of her denominations have cried aloud against the drink traffic, and have denounced it in unmeasured terms; and some of these denominations have so legislated that none of their members can lawfully buy, sell or use as a beverage the deadly liquid. All honor to the Church for her warfare against the saloon! We give to her great credit and thankful praise. Unquestionably she has been, and still is, in the van. Nevertheless, we are persuaded that, before she can fully accomplish the great mission to which we believe God has called her, she must take a much longer step in advance and strike far heavier blows.—Bishop Fitzgerald.

HADLEY INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

REPORT ON THE $1,000 FUND.

Reported to last MESSAGE.....$369.38
Received from Anna A. Eberly, Boswell..... 1.00
" " Emma Bosler, Indianapolis..... 1.00
Total.....$371.38

These two are the only ones who have contributed to this fund since reporting to the State Convention. But since that time Jeffersonville Union has sent $5. Benton County W. C. T. U. sent $10 and Coloma Union $6.55, which was the proceeds of a contest and Mrs. Helen Sherfey sent a thank offering of $10 (and we are glad her heart is so large) and all of this has been applied on the coal bill. Many thanks are due these persons for their timely help for Hadley School. We are very anxious that the credit of Hadley School be good, but to be so, we must meet all bills promptly, but we cannot do this without the needed funds and there are several Unions that did not contribute last year to the support of the school, while others made an extra effort to do more than their part, which was very much appreciated.

Hadley Industrial School belongs to every W. C. T. U. woman in Indiana and we would ask those who did not remember their obligations toward the school last year to jot it down in their note books and lay aside for the purpose according as the Lord has propered them. We have gained much the last year, still there is a hard pull before we are out of debt. We have lately sent $100 to be credited for the Ridgeway note and we are very sorry that we cannot pay this all off, but cannot unless funds come in faster than at present.

The Big Four R. R. hauled 42 tons of coal for us free and promised to bring another load free if ordered. This is quite a help financially to the school. The pantry shelves are filled with canned fruit and several bushels of potatoes are stored away and we have plenty of corn to feed the stock for the year and with every White Ribboner doing her part toward the support of the school this year I am sure Hadley Industrial School would be on a good financial basis. Our girls are getting along well in the public school. They are in good health and seem very happy and contented.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

FRANKLIN, IND., November, 5, 1904.

We have carefully examined the within report and find it correct as submitted by the treasurer, Miss Alice Ruth Palmer. Yours very truly,
A. A. ALEXANDER, O. C. DUNN,
Vice President. Cashier Citizens National Bank.

BRIEF NOTES.

The Elkhart County Press Superintendent, on the evening of December 9, held a musical, literary, temperance and religious entertainment at Nappanee, receiving a free will offering at the door for the benefit of her department and the local Union, netting $3.00.

The Frances E. Willard Union was entertained at the home of the President, Mrs. W. M. Williams, December 13. Readings of interest and talks, a recitation, The Martyred Mother, by Mrs. Llewellyn. The silk quilt, pieced by the Union for the benefit of Hadley School, was disposed of, the amount realized being $29.25. The quilt was presented to the Secretary, Dotia Daugherty.

Wabash County Union met in annual convention Thursday, October 6. Had a very profitable, earnest session. Mrs. Stanley arrived in the afternoon and gave a short talk. In the evening she gave a fine address to a full house and it was very much appreciated. The following evening, Farmer's Union had her for an address. We hear very enthusiastic reports from it.

Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer, as organizer, has finished the following amount of work in ten days' time: Towns visited, 5; miles traveled, 335; lectures, 5; sermons, 3; parlor meetings, 6; teachers' county associations addressed, 2; high schools addressed, 3; addresses in graded schools, 11; Y. P. S. C. E., 1; unions organized, 1; new members gained, 36.

The Lebanon Union held a five days' bargain sale under the direction of Local Treasurer Mrs. Mary D. Hendricks. The sale consisted of some new articles, such as comforters, aprons, etc., in connection with second-hand garments. The sale closed with a market of home made bread, pies, cakes, fruit, etc. Over $25 was added to the treasury. In each package sold was placed several pages of the best W. C. T. U. leaflets.

Mrs. Walmer, President Wells County, writes: Mrs. S. Stanley just finished giving Wells County seven premium lectures to which she was entitled for quarter ending September 15. Made a gain of twenty-three women and fifteen men and turned $18 into county treasury. Wells County is entitled to six more premium lectures for quarter ending December 15. This will make fifteen premium lectures since June 15. Every Local Union in county except three. We now have eighteen Unions, I presume you know. Two new ones since State Convention and two reorganized. What's the matter with Wells County? Every new Union organized since I was County President, twelve, has had a premium lecture.

Mooreville. Our women, with the exception of a few, are middle aged and I know the W. C. T. U. women are the most busy in the world, nevertheless, we have done some work. Early in the year a thank offering was held, which resulted in much good, financially and otherwise. We have had Elizabeth Stanley with us three times and the last time, October 2, she had a crowded house, which looks hopeful, with a collection of eight dollars. We have held our meetings regularly. Observed Flower Mission with success. The following are our officers, recently elected: President, Eliza Harvey; Vice-President, Viola Harvey; Recording Secretary, Alice Burk; assistant, Martha J. Sumner; Treasurer, Sarah Keller.

LaPorte. Our delegate returned from the national convention, held at Philadelphia, full of cheer and good tidings. Following are some of the interesting reports: That the great work of temperance reform is progressing all over the nation and that nearly every report of the department work exceeded that of last year; that the entire debt was erased from our beloved organ, the Union Signal, and that it now wholly belongs to the W. C. T. U. of the nation; the Crusader Monthly is also free from encumbrance; several hundred dollars were realized over and above the indebtedness; also a large sum was received for life membership and with the new old officers already in the harness, which was surely refitted and repolished during this grand and helpful convention, much more will be accomplished and reported by next year when our dear sisters will meet in California, where they have the promise assured them of all the sunshine and flowers that they may desire. The delegate, in speaking of the newly elected Treasurer, said this is our own sweet Hattie and all seemed so glad. Another pleasing report was that of our State being on the program on benefit night, having made a gain of over five hundred members during the past year. The delegates were allowed seats on the platform and with a neat little speech from their President, repeated the State motto and sang a verse of the State song. They presented their President, Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, with a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. In regard to hospitality, our delegate thinks the ladies of Philadelphia cannot be surpassed.

Lawrence County. Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer spent eight days, in November, speaking to between seven and eight hundred school children in Bedford, Mitchell and Heltonville. At Heltonville she organized a new Union, with Mrs. Carrie Bennett, President; Mrs. V. T. Alexander, Vice-President; Mrs. John Williams, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Emma Fairbion, Recording Secretary; Mrs. N. H. Roberts, Treasurer; Mrs. Dr. Woolery, Superintendent Non-Alcoholic Medication; Mrs. G. M. Norman, Superintendent Contests; Mrs. Homer Ragsdale, L. T. L. Secretary. At Bedford she gave a very interesting lecture on the W. C. T. U. work in Africa and at an afternoon meeting she spoke on Non-Alcoholic Medication, L. T. L. Mothers' Meetings and their work in solving the liquor problem. The Lawrence County Teachers' Association being in session at Bedford, one hour was given to an address on the subject of L. T. L. and one hundred and fifty copies of the Reply to the Committee of Fifty were distributed to the teachers present. One day was given to Mitchell, where two meetings were held, and much interest displayed by good sized audiences. Miss Palmer secured quite a number of new members to the two Unions which were already organized and added one new organization to the county's forces. She will always retain a loving place in the hearts of the White Ribbon women of Lawrence County and we hope she will come this way again soon.

Spencer Union. Miss Alice Palmer of Franklin and our W. C. T. U. Missionary was with us from Saturday to Monday, November 26 to 28. She met the Spencer Union and gave them some instruction as to the work and how to work, which we appreciated very much. On Sunday morning at 10 a. m. she talked to the Presbyterian Sunday-school on the World's Temperance Lesson. She made it so applicable to this day and age that any one who wanted the Light could see it. At 10:20 a. m. she addressed the people gathered at the M. E. church; then in the evening of the same day we had a Union meeting of all the church at the Christian churches, where was a large congregation to listen to the true gospel of temperance by Miss Palmer. She has no uncertain sound. If she could cast the ballot, she would not cast it with the party that would legalize the liquor traffic, as many of our Christian voters do. We believe she was the woman sent of God to this place at that special time, the World's Temperance Sunday. She sowed good seed and according to the word of God it will bring forth an abundant harvest. Many have said she is fine.

A Short Sketch of what the women of the Elkhart Central Union has been doing. First, two of our members were married. Miss Cordelia Clark married Mr. Sudborough and Miss Madge Work (our Press Superintendent) was married October 26 to Mr. Orville Kemp, a young merchant of this city and a clean Prohibitionist. We bespeak for them a bright future. Work in Purity in Literature and Art; had one very interesting meeting at Mrs. Davis'. Rev. O. V. Wheeler gave a fine address on Purity in Literature and Art, followed by Mesdames Vail, Davis and Cunningham, of Goshen and Rev. Tompkins of Elkhart. The Superintendent has given out three thousand pages of literature. Two meetings have been held in interest of Sabbath Observance and Total Abstinence; pledges presented to three Sunday-schools; gave out 1,500 pages literature and instead of observing World's Temperance Sunday we had fifteen sermons preached the Sunday before election, thinking we might influence some ballots for our Prohibition candidate for governor, which I am sure we did. The work seems to move so slow; so hard to get Superintendents not only in our own county, but in the State as well, that are willing to take up the work and especially do I find it so in Literature and Art. It seems to me God gives us time for less important things. I wonder if he would not give us time for this work? Won't some one volunteer to try it and receive the blessing?

R. C. TRAVIS,
State Superintendent.

Marion County News Items—In speaking of State Jubilee night, the latest issue of the Union Signal says, a new word has been coined which will properly express the spirit of exaltation which abounds on that night. It is uphistedness. We in Marion County are glad the word was coined, as it expresses our feeling, when we think that this county has the honor of being the home of the newly elected National Treasurer, Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, called by most of the women in the County, our Hattie Brand. It surely shows great appreciation of Mrs. Brand's hard work and constant study, when such an honor came to her unsolicited. Central Union in Indianapolis, of which Mrs. Brand is a member, planned a home-coming reception for her December 16, but Mrs. Brand was called to Evanston. The reception will be given whenever she makes her appearance and will probably be made a County function.

Mrs. Mary Moody, well known over the State as an earnest temperance worker, also probably the most loved woman in Marion County, is very ill with typhoid fever. Mrs. Moody has done good work in nearly every department carried by the W. C. T. U. in the last twenty years and her assistance and advice to new workers was invaluable. Mrs. Moody had planned a winter of hard legislative work, being much interested in the petition for a State laboratory and also in a stronger tobacco law.

Meridian Union in Indianapolis, Mrs. Mary Sims, President, is doing splendid work this year. In October a reception was given the members of the Y. Branch, organized by this Union years ago. Most of the girls are now mothers of families, who realized their need of the help of the W. C. T. U. in their efforts to raise good citizens and so reunited with Meridian Union. At the November meeting eight new members were secured and in December four more united with this Union. Meridian Union has planned to hold several public meetings during the year. The first will be held in College Avenue Baptist Church, when Judge Stubbs will lecture on cigarettes. The second will be a Frances Willard memorial service held in Central Christian Church the second Sunday in February. A third meeting will be held in United Brethren Church. This will be a Prohibition meeting and will commemorate Neal Dow.

Mrs. Martha Gipe, president of Marion County, also superintendent of the Department of Mothers' Meetings and Purity, was invited by the Union in Bridgeport, Ind., to conduct a Mothers' Meeting. The church in which this meeting was held was filled. Eight new members were added to the Union and others expressed their intention of uniting with the W. C. T. U. in their efforts for the betterment of the human race.

Mrs. Gipe also conducted a Mothers' Meeting in Central Union in Indianapolis in November. She spoke of the freedom in the manners of our young people in public places and urged mothers to watch their girls and boys more closely. Mrs. McWhirter, president of this Union, led the conversation. Members of four Unions were present on this occasion.

A year's subscription to the Union Signal was given by the National Superintendent of Press Work to the Marion County Press Superintendent for the best scrap book prepared during the past year, although the book had attended two previous conventions in Indiana and was much soiled. The press in Indianapolis has dealt very generously with temperance people during the past year and the clippings filled a 57 page book.

Rev. Charles Criley and wife presented Central Union with fifty testaments for use in the comfort bags, made and filled in Central Union. Mrs. Frances Williams and Mrs. Florence Smith donated the testaments used by Frances Willard Union for the same purpose.

IN MEMORIAM.

SUSAN THOMPSON—New London, Howard County, Union has been made sad by the removal of Aunt Susan Thompson, one of their most faithful, loyal, loving members. She became a member of this Union in March, 1880, and has always been ready to do her part in everything. She loved the Sabbath day and the burden of her heart of late has been the desecration of this day.

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

The speakers were Mr. Frederick Alden Mills, of New York, Miss Maude Rice, of Pennsylvania; Mr. Floyd Starr, of Michigan, Miss Edith Hillis, of Indiana, Mr. Harry Kendall Bassett, of Wisconsin and Rev. Charles Wesley Burns, of Pennsylvania. These young people were fine speakers and won laurels for their cause. Our own Miss Edith Hillis brought honor to herself and to Indiana. Miss Anna Gordon responded to the toast "Our Host" and was given an ovation. Mrs. Rice, National Secretary of the L. T. L. branch, spoke enthusiastically of the work and development of the L. T. L. Mrs. Stevens closed with a benediction.

Y. W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Clara Parrish Wright, General Secretary of the Young Woman's Branch not being present, her time on the program was given to State Y. Secretaries. Twelve of these young women spoke of their work in about as many minutes—it was a most significant feature of the program. Our Miss Clara Sears, so many years State Y. Secretary of Indiana, spoke beautifully of our work and workers.

GAINS IN MEMBERSHIP.

Nine States were on the honor roll, having made a net gain of 500 or more members: Ohio, 2,013; Illinois, 1,255; Pennsylvania, 1,034; Nebraska, 765; Indiana, 618; Kansas, 609; New York, 606; Maine, 519; Southern California, 515.

Twenty-four other States report good gains; some well up to the requisite 500; West Washington made a gain of 392.

By change of Constitution the Vice-Presidents at large of States were made members of the National Convention. Mrs. Stella B. Irvine, National Superintendent of Sunday School Department, offered the following resolutions, which were adopted:

Resolved, That this Convention hereby expresses thanks to Sunday School Lesson writers and publishers of Sunday School literature for the manner in which they are augmenting our efforts for temperance work in the Sunday Schools and also that we express thanks to Mr. Marion Lawrence, International General Secretary, Dr. John Potts, chairman of the International Sunday School Lesson Committee and to all international and State field workers who are presenting practical methods of Sunday School temperance work.

Resolved, That we petition the International Sunday School Convention, to be held in Toronto, 1905, to endorse the movement for a temperance department in State and county Sunday school associations, and urge that other practical lines of Sunday school temperance work be considered.

NATIONAL CONVENTION ITEMS.

Indiana's delegation was full with exception of our State Recording Secretary, Mrs. Gibson and State Y. Secretary, Miss LaDrew, Mrs. Mary H. Hiley Hall as National Superintendent and Mrs. Elizabeth Houghton as National Evangelist. The personnel of the Convention has never been excelled. All of our own white ribboners whose names are familiar in the national temperance work were present.

On Welcome Night our State President, Mrs. Vayhinger, made one of the responses. The Union Signal in speaking of her address said, "delighted the audience with a masterly address given in a voice that was in perfect harmony with her magnificent physique."

Indiana was one of the nine States on Jubilee Night for having made a net increase in membership of 500 members. The program was arranged by the nine State Presidents. It consisted in allotting eight minutes time to each of the nine States to use as they severally desired. Indiana's President spoke briefly and introduced Mrs. Stanley as our brilliant State lecturer. Mrs. Brand as head of organization and Mrs. Walmer as President of the county, having organized the most Unions—each one of these spoke briefly and to the point. The Indiana song was sung; after which, for the delegation, Mrs. W. H. Blodgett of Indianapolis presented Mrs. Vayhinger with a bouquet of chrysanthemums. Every State President received some token from her delegation.

Mrs. Brand was made a member of the Resolutions Standing Committee at the Cincinnati Convention; served during this year and at this Convention. Mrs. McWhirter was elected President of the W. C. T. U. National Press Association for this year.

Dr. Baily of the Spiceland Sanitarium and General B. A. Richardson, of Indianapolis, dropped in at the National Convention, where they commented as follows:

"General, you will scarcely find assembled for any other purpose, so fine looking and intelligent a company of women, will you?"

"I was just thinking, doctor, that the cause which is supported and championed by such a company of noble and earnest women, must certainly prosper and eventually prevail."

DEPARTMENT HONORS TO INDIANA.

The medal contest banner was awarded to Indiana.

The Flower Mission Department gave Indiana place of honor for having secured greatest number of signatures to total abstinence pledges, 814.

The Non-Alcoholic Department classed Indiana as one of the foremost States in all phases of work. Our Superintendent, Mrs. A. T. Whitson, energetic and aggressive, has annually contributed a supplement to the Message on the department.

Miss Laura Cammack, our State Superintendent of Press Department received honorable mention for excellent work by Mrs. Horning, National Superintendent.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, of Indianapolis, Press Superintendent of Marion County, was awarded the prize for the best scrap book made in the nation.

THE UNION SIGNAL AND THE CRUSADER MONTHLY.

By action of the last Convention the Union Signal and the Crusader Monthly became, for the first time, the property of the National W. C. T. U. The entire unpaid amount of the purchase price, about $3,000, was contributed by members and friends during the Convention. The Crusader Monthly was made entirely free from debt and a generous amount donated to its management. Besides all this, nearly $250 was given to President Stevens toward the philanthropy fund of the Union Signal.

MRS. STEVENS' ADDRESS.

The annual address of President Stevens was statesmanlike, comprehensive and replete with facts which made it most interesting. It will be given in full in the National Annual Report, price 15 cents; to be had of the National Treasurer, National W. C. T. U., Rest Cottage, Evanston. A copy should be in the hands of every W. C. T. U. worker.

GUESTS INTRODUCED TO THE CONVENTION.

Rev. Dr. R. H. Conwell pastor of the Baptist Temple; Mrs. Blankenburg, of the National American Woman Suffrage Association; Miss H. E. Dunhill, of India; Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, Ph. D., Washington, D. INDIANAPOLIS, IND., FEBRUARY, 1905.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION.

It is gratifying to note the general interest manifested by the present session of the Indiana Legislature in relation to the liquor laws. It now seems probable that the ninth section of the Nicholson law will be amended in spite of the urgent protest of the Indianapolis News and of the liquor men. An effort is being made, under the strong and commendable recommendation of Governor Hanly, to have the remonstrance stand for two years against all applicants and as it should be, have remonstrances directed against the business instead of primarily against individuals engaged in selling liquor. Such a change is in harmony with the spirit of our government and of fairness, both to the liquor dealer and to his opposition. No law should be so constructed that the weight of opposition to an evil shall be made possible only by singling out here and there the individual and centering fire upon him without being able to reach the business in which such one is engaged. Such now is the provision of the Nicholson bill and it will be, doubtless, and ought to be amended. It is also probable that the territory over which a remonstrance may be circulated will be extended. An effort is being made to include counties, townships or wards. Such an enlargement ought to meet with no opposition. However, in view of the hostility of the Indianapolis News and other liquor sympathizers and liquor interests, it is well for every good citizen to write at once to the members of the Legislature, commending the amendments proposed and urging upon them speedy action. Later the session becomes crowded and it will be more difficult to succeed. Please write a letter or postal card to-day, addressed to your member, care State House, Indianapolis. It is important. Now is your opportunity.

PETERSBURG MERCHANTS' BILL.

The report of the Public Morals Committee on Senator Morgan's Bill to make the jail sentence in the penalty for selling cigarettes and tobacco to minors optional instead of compulsory, as it now is, was approved in the Senate, January 17.

When the bill came before the committee, the Senator and an attorney from his neighboring county, explained the facts behind the bill to the committee. The facts were, that a number of dealers in one of Senator Milburn's neighboring cities, had been indicted for selling tobacco to minors and while willing to pay the fine imposed, they were not willing to suffer the jail sentence.

I ask every W. C. T. U. woman in Senator Morgan's district to insist that three influential citizens and that Presidents of organizations write to their Senator immediately, protesting against this most pernicious bill. The work should be done at once.

Singing—Rock of Ages.
Invitation to new members.
Benediction.

March first is the birthday of our beloved National President, Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens and it is Union Signal Red Letter Day. From every union new subscriptions should be sent in during the time intervening between February 17 and March 1. The former is Miss Willard's heavenly birthday and should be celebrated in every Union and mentioned in some definite manner in every White Ribbon home. If possible, every temperance family should have the pictured face of Miss Willard upon the wall. Her face is, through the influence of our Unions, being placed in the beautiful art glass windows in some of our new churches and hangs upon the walls of city libraries and high schools. Seven or eight dollars spent in getting a picture and having it framed and presented to a library or school would certainly be appreciated. Copies of the "Beautiful Life of Frances E. Willard" and "A Great Mother" should be in W. C. T. U. homes and in all public libraries.

Mr. William Whitson died suddenly of paralysis on January 8, at his home on North Meridian street, in Indianapolis. His grief stricken wife, our Mrs. Amanda T. Whitson, was a former State Treasurer and is now our most excellent State Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication. She, at this time, has the sympathy of thousands of white ribboners in this and other States. During the first year that the MESSAGE was published, there being no fund for its support, the State Officers edited it and Mrs. Whitson, then State Treasurer, kept the subscription list and wrote the wrappers for mailing. Each month the papers were printed and delivered in turn to the residences of one of the three State officers living in Indianapolis (Messdames Whitson, Balch and McWhirter), there to be folded and wrapped by the State Officers. At such times the cordial welcome the MESSAGE and the workers received from Mr. Whitson in his beautiful home and to his bountiful table will ever be appreciatively remembered. During that year, to save expense, the large mail bags containing the MESSAGE were delivered to the post office by Mr. Whitson or Mr. Balch, each having a horse and buggy. Mr. Whitson was a successful Christian business man of incorruptible integrity. He was unselfishly devoted to his splendid wife. Her opinions, desires and pleasures were always kindly respected and she had his cordial co operation in her temperance work. His magnanimity to her found a generous response in her heart and life. By the death of Mr. Whitson the MESSAGE has lost a true friend and the W. C. T. U. a loyal supporter and brother.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER.

We are already in the second quarter. The first quarter seemed very short because the National Convention came so late. I trust we are really settled down to hard work now, ready for the "long pull, strong pull and pull altogether," which will bring us up to our plan of work. By your efforts in the Local Unions, Indiana won honors at the National this year. If we reach the standard set for this year, we will maintain these honors. We had the pleasure of being on Benefit night, with eight other States of the Nation and our share of the collection was $10.87. We were very proud to bear this to our State treasury, but doubly glad that we had made the gain to our blessed cause, of women who would help in this battle of home against saloon. As we sat in the L. T. L. banquet hall and heard our Edith respond to one of the toasts in her own sweet, yet convincing manner, we were glad we came from Indiana. And now, dear hearts, will you not co-operate with her and our untiring L. T. L. Secretary, Mrs. Ida Mix, in pushing the work this year as never before? The hope of the temperance reform is in the boys and girls. Let us get them ready to strike the blow which will lay low our enemy and theirs.

I wish I might say something to emphasize the importance of the Non-Alcoholic Medication department. Will you not appoint a Superintendent at once and put her in communication with the State Superintendent, so that some effective work can be done on this line?

I hope we may this year enter and organize in every county in the State. There are friends of our cause in every town and village, if we can only find them. Will you not help to find these and write me of them and I will try to plan for a meeting and organization?

May the dear Father strengthen our love for the work and deepen our conviction that we are to help bring the victory by enlisting others and by persistent work to spread the truth. Write me of your plans and work and if I can be of any service to you I will be glad to serve you. CULLA J. VAYHINGER.

FROM MRS. RALL.

When this letter comes to you in the February MESSAGE the time will not be far distant when I shall lay down my work for the Indiana W. C. T. U. and leave for Los Angeles, California, where I expect to make my future home.

It is with a feeling of real sorrow that I relinquish the work in its many departments and especially in that of my own beloved department of Mercy, of which I have been the head since its inception over twelve years ago.

I have learned to love the White Ribbon women of Indiana and to sever relations and go so far away to take up new duties and make new friends is no easy task.

I can only trust that others more efficient may fill my place and that those now appointed to do the work for the coming year may endeavor more earnestly than ever to carry out the plan I have made for this year, for the prizes I offered in the Mercy Supplement for December. I will give, at the close of the year or otherwise just as they are offered, and I think one will take my place who will endeavor just as earnestly to advance the cause. Her name will be announced later and I bespeak for my successor the same kindly treatment that has always been accorded me.

I have some extra copies of the Mercy Supplement, which I will be glad to send out to those who can use them to advantage if a dime is sent for postage. It would be well to hand a copy to the ministers of your town. By all means have one Mercy Meeting on your yearly programs, and many helpful hints and helps can be found in the Supplement. I have literature now which I will send out in bundles to any sending 10, 25 or 50 cents, according to amount needed, and remember I send it much cheaper than you can obtain it elsewhere, as I only keep enough to pay a trifle over postage and not the amount it costs me.

Let me urge the dear sisters to take up the work with vigor this year, that such an impetus may be gained as will carry us busily on at Our Father's business through the entire year. Send for the Bird Pledge and try to get every member of your own Union to sign it and then try outside the Union. Ask all your ministers to preach on Kindness to Dumb Animals and if anyone promises to do so send me his name and address and I will send him some helpful literature.

Make earnest effort to take up Band of Mercy work, either as individual societies or in other societies and where practicable have the work introduced into public schools. Oh, what a field we have among children who love animals, to instill into their tender hearts principles of kindness that shall influence their every relation of life for good! Let us not ignore this wonderful opportunity to implant the seeds of kindness and hasten the day when "none shall hurt nor destroy in all His holy mountain."

"He prayeth best who loveth best
All things, both great and small,
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loves them all."

And now praying God's blessing on all of Indiana's White Ribbon Host and that they may go on in the future, as in the past, to new victories for God and home and every land, I bid you all a loving good-by.

LOU E. RALL,
Sunnyside, Huntington, Ind. State Superintendent.

The Executive Committee is called to meet in its mid-year session at Mulberry, Clinton County, on April 4 and 5, 1905. It is important that all members be present.

Send to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, 1013 N. New Jersey st., Indianapolis, for Total Abstinence Pledge Cards, 25 cents per hundred. W. C. T. U. Membership Pledge Cards, 25 cents per hundred. Flower Mission Scripture Text Cards, 25 cents per hundred. Cards of Condolence, 10 cents each or $1.00 per hundred. These cards contain tender messages suitable for use during the season when flowers are scarce. With the white ribbon bow attached they make an appropriate remembrance.

A WORD TO CONTEST WORKERS.

The National Superintendent writes me thus: "I simply will not report a contest where there has been a violation of rules." Now, dear co workers, if we want our State to hold the National Banner (now in my possession) for another year, we must observe the following rules:

1. The competing class must consist of not less than six, or more than eight.
2. The selection recited by the winner of a medal cannot be repeated in competing for another medal.
3. Selections must not be compiled, but spoken in their entirety, unless special permission be granted by the State Superintendent.
4. In selecting a class, special care must be taken to select those of as nearly the same age and ability as possible.

A contest should never be held with fewer than six speakers, though it is better to proceed with five rather than disappoint those who are prepared and an expectant audience; in such cases, however, the permission of the State Superintendent must first be secured.

Medals awarded in a class composed of fewer than five members do not make the winner eligible to compete in a class for a higher grade medal.

These are not my rules, dear sisters, but those sent out by the National Superintendent with the imperative injunction to see that they are enforced in Indiana.

JULIA OVERMAN,
Superintendent.

By action of the State Convention the President appointed Mrs. Ella Kroft, Whiteland, Ind., to have charge of the Memorial Services at the Convention of 1905, and requests that the names of those who pass away this year be sent to her, with such notices as will help her in the service.

FEBRUARY, 1905.

The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union has established an organization fund as a memorial to the memory of the greatest organizer, our dear departed leader, Miss Frances E. Willard. Each year every Union is asked to contribute the sum of two dollars toward this fund for the National and to give at least one dollar to our State Treasurer for work in Indiana. We hope that no Union in Indiana will fail to thus help to build a monument of eternal good through the missionary work of this fund.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. X. No. 3.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., FEBRUARY, 1905—EXTRA. SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

EXTRA EDITION—On account of great need of united effort to secure the passage of Parks' Anti-Cigarette Bill in the Indiana House of Representatives.

THE PARKS' PROHIBITORY CIGARETTE BILL PASSED THE SENATE.

PRESSURE MUST BE BROUGHT TO BEAR ON OUR REPRESENTATIVES IN THE HOUSE TO CAUSE THEM TO DEMAND A REPORT OF THIS BILL BY THE COMMITTEE HAVING IT IN CHARGE. IN ORDER THAT IT MAY BECOME A LAW IT MUST BE READ THREE TIMES BEFORE THE HOUSE, RECEIVE A MAJORITY VOTE AND BE SIGNED BY GOVERNOR HANLY.

To kill the bill, great efforts will be made to keep the committee having it in charge from reporting, and thus prevent any chance for a vote on the bill. To DELAY ACTION is the tactics of the enemy. A copy of petition form is given in another column. Copy this petition form with type writer, if convenient; if not, have it PLAINLY WRITTEN on one end of a sheet of legal cap paper, secure as MANY AS TWENTY-FIVE voters' names, or more if you can, and put into an envelope and plainly address it to the Representative from your county. With it send a letter from some voter in your household.

If this bill becomes a law it will be the result of the energetic, persistent efforts of the friends of boys.

THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS is reported to have the largest circulation of any newspaper in Indiana. In its editorial columns it is unfavorable to the passage of the Parks' Anti-Cigarette bill. Such influence against the bill can only be offset by members of the House hearing directly from many constituents.

On the first page of the Indianapolis News of the issue of February 4 the following news report appeared:

SAYS TRUST WILL STOP CIGARETTE PROHIBITION.

SENATE'S ACTION WILL MAKE LOBBY COME A-RUNNING.

MR. DESCHLER'S DECLARATION.

That Senator Parks' anti-cigarette bill will not pass the House because the tobacco trust will look after the members, is the statement of Louis G. Deschler, Indianapolis tobacco dealer.

Mr. Deschler was seen at the English Hotel, and was asked if he knew that the Senate had passed a bill that would absolutely prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes and cigarette papers.

"No," said Mr. Deschler, "I hadn't heard a word of it."

"The bill went through with only seven Senators voting against it," he was told.

"It's a joke, then," Mr. Deschler said. "It'll never go through. Somebody has tried to pass a bill like that through every Legislature in the last few years, but it never got that far before."

"Nobody expected the Senate to pass the bill, but it has done it," it was remarked.

"But the bill won't pass," insisted the tobacco man. "The trust won't stand for it. There are too many cigarettes sold in the State. There's a world of business in cigarettes in Indiana. The House won't pass the bill. The trust will buy 'em off. The trust knows of it by this time, and will have somebody here by to-morrow."

MRS. ELIZABETH SMITH, State Superintendent Anti-Narcotics, 1917 Highland Place, Indianapolis, Indiana.

FORM OF PETITION.

To the Hon. _____

(Here write name of your Representative.)

We, the undersigned, earnestly petition you to use your influence to promote the passage, in the House, of the Parks' Anti-Cigarette Bill, without amendment, known as Senate Bill No. 51, which prohibits the sale or gift of cigarettes or cigarette paper and provides that a fine of from $25.00 to $50.00 be collected for the first offense and from $100.00 to $500.00 and a maximum imprisonment of six months added, at the discretion of the court, for the second offense.

Names and addresses of voters: _____

WILL COME IN A HURRY.

Mr. Deschler said, that so far as he knew, the trust—the American Tobacco Company—had no one on the ground to lobby for it, but had said that it wouldn't take long to get people here. The company formerly had an office and several local representatives in the State Life building, but discontinued the office some time ago. Mr. Deschler said that he did not know of any local attorneys who represented the trust.

Three of the largest selling brands of cigarettes that are consumed in the State are put out by the American Tobacco Company. Of these three brands alone the American Tobacco Company has thousands of boxes on the shelves of tobacco dealers in the State, and has spent thousands more in advertising them. Mr. Deschler sells millions of these cigarettes in a year. The nearest office of the trust is in Chicago, and it is from this substation that, according to Mr. Deschler, the envoys of the trust are to sally forth to look after the members of the Indiana House.

One man who has been frequenting the legislative halls is known to be close to the cigarette manufacturing interests, and that is former Senator Baker, of Marion, known as "Cigarette Baker." He is a persistent lobbyist for the cigarette interests, but seems to have slipped up on the present case. He was seen in the Senate chamber a few hours before the bill passed.

BAKER WOULD NOT BELIEVE IT.

Representative Keyes, of Vermilion and Vigo, met former Senator Baker, of Marion, who is looking after the interests of the tobacco trust, at the Denison last night and told him that the Parks' cigarette bill had been passed by the Senate.

"Oh, I guess not," responded Baker. "I am keeping pretty close watch on that. It won't get away from me."

"Well, it has got away from you," replied Keyes, "and the Senate has passed it all right."

"You are mistaken. What you say can not be true, for I am looking after that bill personally."

"All right. I just thought I would tell you that you are up against it."

Later Mr. Keyes was told by Lieutenant-Governor Miller that the bill had passed, and when he ran across Baker again he told him what Mr. Miller had said.

"Oh, pshaw," said Baker. "Mr. Miller has some other bill in his mind. I just talked to one of the Senators, and he said he had heard nothing of it."

It was to-day before Baker found out in truth that the measure he was fighting so vigorously had been adopted by the upper House, and then—well, talk about gymnastics, Baker had them all beaten.

The bill reached the House to-day, but was not handed down for assignment to committee.

LETTERS AND TELEGRAMS from men who voted for your Representative asking him to urge the passage of the Parks' anti-cigarette bill bring results otherwise unattainable.

SISTERS, LET NOTHING prevent you from attending promptly to this matter.

IT IS NOT ENOUGH to ask your Representative to vote for this Parks' anti-cigarette bill. Unless a determined effort is made by the Representatives the influence of the Tobacco Trust will keep the bill from ever being brought before the House of Representatives for a vote.

TWO THINGS THAT EVERY WHITE RIBBONER IN INDIANA IS NOW URGED TO DO.

1. Get four prominent voters, if possible, those who voted for your representative, to write a letter or telegraph him, to immediately urge the passage of the Parks' Anti-Cigarette Bill.

2. To get at least twenty-five prominent voters to sign the Anti-Cigarette petition, with which you will enclose a letter from a voter, then address to your representative to the State House, Indianapolis, and see that it is promptly mailed.

(From Indianapolis Morning Star.)

PARKS' ANTI-CIGARETTE BILL PASSES THE SENATE.

A discussion that assumed surprisingly serious proportions was provoked yesterday afternoon on Senate Bill No. 51—Senator Parks' Anti-Cigarette Bill—and to the surprise of many, the bill was passed, only seven Senators voting against it, namely, Barcus, Durre, Kittenger, Milburn, Powell, Singer and Sticler. Senators Ulrey, Mock, Garland, Roche, and Moore of Putnam, spoke for the bill, and Senators Durre, Kittenger, Milburn and Hugg against it. The essential section of the bill is as follows:

That it shall be unlawful for any person, by himself, clerk, servant, employe or agent, directly or indirectly, upon any pretense or by any device, to manufacture, sell, exchange, barter, dispose of or give away, or keep for sale, any cigarettes, cigarette paper, or cigarette wrappers, or any paper made or prepared for the purpose of being filled with tobacco for smoking; or keep or own, or be in any way concerned, engaged or employed in owning or keeping any such cigarettes, cigarette paper or wrappers, and any person in violation of the same shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall, for the first offense pay a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $50 and cost of prosecution, and stand committed to the county jail until such costs are paid; and for the second and each subsequent offense he shall pay, upon conviction thereof, a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500 and the costs of prosecution, or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed six months; Provided, that the provisions hereof shall not apply to the sales of jobbers doing an interstate business with customers outside the State.

COUNTY PRESIDENTS IN INDIANA.

I am very anxious that the Anti-Narcotic Department should be a part of the work of every organized county in Indiana. Educators from every part of the United States condemn the use of the cigarette. Judges of juvenile courts find there is no help for the boy who has become addicted to the habit. We, as mothers, should use every means within our power to combat this evil. A call is issued in this extra edition of the MESSAGE that needs no explanation from me. Will you ask your local Union to work, and work at once, in securing signatures to the petition for this most necessary law? I ask you to work not only for the benefit of other children, but for the safeguarding of your own. This work, when accomplished, will not only affect the children of this generation, but will tell on the class of men following us. Think what the manhood of the future means when 80 per cent of our boys are smoking the deadly cigarette.

E. G. SMITH,

THE ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW of Tennessee has stood the test of the Supreme Court of Tennessee and also of the United States Supreme Court. If the Parks' anti-cigarette bill is passed it will give to Indiana the same kind of a law. For such a law it will pay us to work. Every person who reads this MESSAGE EXTRA should get at least four voters each to write a personal letter to his Representative in the House urging him to secure, if possible, a favorable report of the bill by the committee and his strongest influence for the passage of the bill.

"HIS WORKS DO FOLLOW HIM."

A memorial meeting for Dr. N. S. Davis was held in Powers' Theater, Chicago, on the afternoon of Sunday, October 24. Many noted men were present—preachers, doctors and laymen—and the very large audience listened with sympathetic interest to the eulogies of this good man, whose whole life was given to the work of aiding suffering humanity.

Commenting on this meeting and on the proposition to make such meeting of annual recurrence, a correspondent to the Chicago Chronicle says:

Not many Sundays before death Dr. Davis was seen at his house by the writer. In the course of the interview he spoke of his uniform advocacy of, not temperance, but entire abstinence from the use of intoxicating liquors. Though dead, let him still speak.

"I have this one consolation among others, now that I have but a few months, or more likely a few days to live, that I have never caused any man to become a drunkard. In no case since I commenced the practice of medicine have I prescribed beer, wine or any kind of liquor. On the contrary, whenever patients were in the habit of drinking more or less, I have refused to treat them until they had given me their pledge that they would abstain strictly so long as they were in my care." After a moment's pause he added: "If every doctor who has been fifty years in the practice could honestly say the same there would now be thousands fewer drunkards and correspondingly less misery in the world."

He was asked if it was not commonly the case with physicians that they prescribe liquor when a stimulant is needed.

"I shouldn't state it so strongly as that," he replied, "for there are cases where any intelligent physician knows that some other stimulant were better. But I will confess that probably a large majority of physicians some time in their practice recommend whisky. Sometimes this may be done with no lasting evil consequence, but what doctor can surely say when that may be? There is the case of a man who has what is correctly enough called 'circular insanity' and is a periodical drinker; he may nearly have cured himself by the aid of his will, but he takes some ailment and goes to a physician, who, besides giving him a pill or a powder, advises him to 'keep up his strength' by taking a drink once or twice a day. What is the result? Why, he is back where he was before he attempted to reform himself. Another man may not have acquired the drink habit, but after he has been dosed for a time by his doctor with whisky he is in the vice's snare. For this reason I have always refused to give my patients liquor of any kind. Hence I am guiltless of causing any person's ruin, moral and physical."

The foregoing was enough to recall to his interviewer more than one address for temperance reform which he in former days heard from Dr. Davis' lips.

Perhaps the most convincing of these was delivered before the Father Mathew Temperance and Benevolent Society. Summarized, his description of three classes of drinkers is the following: The first is composed of those who have acquired an appetite which is well nigh uncontrollable, although they may consider it as such and often talk of their ability to control themselves.

The second is the fashionable class, and in this are nearly all the women who become victims of the drink habit.

The third class are laborers who are much exposed to cold in winter and to the heat in summer. They have the false notion that liquor is necessary to keep them in health and strength.

Having described the three classes, he proceeds to show the effect of liquor on the human system. In thirty minutes after taking it, it has passed into the blood and gone into the lungs. The texture of the cell is so affected that the entrance of oxygen from the air breathed is so much retarded and the gaseous poisons are by so much retained. A single drink will do this, and cause a lessening of 25 per cent in the quantity of pure air utilized. How can this be, one will ask, when a single drink will make a man lively and sociable? But let him take another drink, and he begins to talk as if his tongue was thick. If he takes still another, he will not be able to talk or walk at all. After another he will be as stupid as a log and all the sound that can be got out of him is a grunt. Why is the effect so different at the various stages of inebriation? It is because, when only one drink has been taken, the alcohol not only went to the lungs, but entered the left side of the heart, and went with the blood through the great artery all over the system. The blood thus disturbed went to the brain and irritated it. It excited the man for the time being. People imagine then that it does them good, that it warms them. But the fact is that they are just as cold as they were before, only they are not so conscious of the cold. It is the unconsciousness of pain produced by the drinking of liquor that causes so many persons who have the drink habit to get their hands or feet frozen in winter. Four-fifths of the persons frozen in winter are drinkers. A total abstinence man rarely has frozen, because he is always able to feel the cold, and so will be induced in some way to warm himself.

Signing of the temperance pledge is a feature of the work of the Father Mathew societies, and Dr. Davis in this discourse alluded to the objection often made to taking the pledge, that it is to part with the signer's freedom. On this head he was eloquent. "Freedom," he said, "is possessed only by the man who is sure of his faculties and has the power to control himself. He alone is his own master." He ended by saying: "Drinking lessens the power of working, either with the hand or brain."

MONEY.

Local Treasurers should always take a collection. Never ask for a penny collection. According to your faith, so be it unto you. Have faith for an increasingly large collection at each Local Union meeting. At all public and evening meetings, take a collection after a rousing speech has been made telling of the moneyed power of the Liquor Traffic and our need of money for agitation and for educational purposes.

Secure the gentlemen for members. They will help by their influence, their moral support and by their dollars. Be sure and secure their services for your annual program.

One way a Union can secure money is to decide to make a silk quilt and when finished to have it displayed and sold at a parlor meeting to which many people are invited, a nice, short program rendered and refreshments served—the meeting to be held in April, before evenings get warm. To do this appoint committee to decide, during recess of the Union meeting, the size and number of blocks and if sheet cotton will be used on lining. When these facts are announced, then begin at that meeting to secure pledges for making blocks and for securing others friendly to the cause to make blocks. Appoint a time when all must be brought to the Unions. Then a time for a quilting, which in this instance will mean sewing blocks together, lining and binding.

An Easter Sale, planned for now and worked for would be both pleasant and profitable. Tiny live chicks are always salable in cities. Many inexpensive little articles can be made that would sell readily. Such a sale will bring in a nice sum of money to the Union that will appoint a committee to secure space in a book store, or some other, besides a dry goods store, where sale may be held the week before Easter. Then ask the girls and young women to solicit articles from everybody who is a friend to the W. C. T. U., of course taking money when offered.

For sales people, select popular young women and young men to act as cashiers in the evening. Continue sale two days and nights, with certain people for certain times. Use as many young people as possible. Some substantial W. C. T. U. woman or two to be present, but not to sell goods. Get merchant, to allow window space for decorations. Use Miss Willard's picture. Announce the sale in newspapers at least two months ahead, so as to pre-empt the time. Afterwards advertise well in the newspapers. Be economical of printer's ink in advertising and you fail financially.

Princess Henry of Battenburg has opened a Church of England Temperance Society sale of work at Bromley in aid of prison missions.

In Malaysia Good Templary has just been planted by the institution of the "Good Hope of Malaya" Lodge at Kuala Lumpur Selangor. Mr. A. H. Lloyd, who is in charge at the prison, was the instituting officer.

The Scottish Temperance League has had a grand celebration of its jubilee, including Sunday services and Monday conversation, in the great St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow, and a civic reception by the Town Council of Falkirk, where the League originated fifty years ago.

The 34th National Anniversary of Good Templary in England has been celebrated at Birmingham, where the Order was planted by Joseph Malins in 1868, since which time it has administered its pledge to 1,500,000 persons over 15 years of age, and to 500,000 young children. In England there are 2,200 adult and juvenile branches meeting weekly, with 120,000 members, and as many more in the rest of the United Kingdom.

Three million song birds are killed each year for the purpose of adorning women's hats with their plumage.

The extremes of prison accommodations are reached in the Nebraska State Prison, where in each cell is an electric light, hot and cold running water, and in the southern stockade prison, where there are no comforts.

Mrs. W. H. C. Keough, a member of the Chicago Board of Education, is making a vigorous campaign in that city against the sale of dime novels to children.

At the National Convention held in Portland a committee consisting of Miss Anna A. Gordon, Mrs. Marion H. Dunham and Mrs. A. E. Carman were appointed to compile and publish a song book suitable for use in the oratorical and musical contests. This book is now ready and we hope it will be used by all Unions and other Temperance organizations holding contests. Musical Contests are very popular in connection with oratorical contests. "Music and oratory are the twin forces which, rightly developed and guided, will weaken every vice and strengthen every virtue among the people." The book was compiled by Anna A. Gordon and needs no other words of commendation than the selections are the very best obtainable. Many selections are especially fine, and any of them well worth the value of the book. In consulting several of the State Superintendents of the contest department it was thought best that all orders should be sent directly to the National Superintendent. We hope this book will be used extensively and want your orders either by the dozen or single copies. Prices: Cloth .35 cents each or $3.60 per dozen, express not prepaid. Limp muslin, wire stitched, 30 cents each or $3.00 per dozen, express not prepaid.

MRS. ADELIA E. CARMAN,
National Superintendent.

The mid-year Executive Committee Meeting will be held at Mulberry, Clinton County, April 4 and 5.

Vincennes Union held its first meeting for 1905 at the home of Mrs. Fowler on North 8th st. Mrs. Partridge, Superintendent of Jail and County Home, reported a good meeting held at the Home January 1. Rev. St. Clair and Rev. Robison conducted the service, while a dozen or more friends of the institution assisted in the singing. At the conclusion of the service a treat was given the inmates, consisting of apples, oranges and candy. This came as a surprise, and was greatly appreciated. Services are held at the Home once a month. Miss Maggie McWhirter, Evangelistic Superintendent, reported a service held at the Orphans' Home on January 1. Mrs. Gilkie presented the life of Christ, from birth to manhood, in a pleasing and instructive manner to the children. A jail service is held every Sabbath, with good results. The prisoners were given a treat on Christmas day.

Bluffton W. C. T. U. held a Press meeting in connection with the regular meeting, Friday, December 16, led by the County Press Superintendent, Mrs. Chas. Hauker. The devotionals were led by Mrs. D. E. Studebaker. The program included songs. A beautiful recitation by Mrs. Fred. McBride was much enjoyed by every one present. A paper was then read entitled, The Press, the Pulpit and the Petticoat, by Mrs. D. T. Smith, who always delights her hearers and did not fail on this occasion. As a White Ribboner we are justly proud of her. Prayers were offered by Mrs. Sarah Gettle. Mrs. W. W. McBride and our dear local President, Mr. Dr. Goodin. There were thirty present, and all seemed pleased with the meeting. Our County President, Mrs. D. O. Walmer, brought back to Wells County almost, if not a complete, report of the great National Convention of the W. C. T. U. at Philadelphia; it was so inspiring and real. Many of us who heard it felt as though we ourselves had been there. Mrs. Walmer gave her report in the M. E. Church on Sunday evening, December 25. She will give her report at all the churches in the city. Mrs. Walmer's report shows she gave all her time and very much thought to the affairs of the Convention, and Wells County has been benefited and helped by her being the delegate.

1. How make our scientific temperance instruction laws more effective?
 2. If the army canteen is good for the soldier boy, why is not the saloon good for the boy at home?
 3. How can a union of temperance forces be secured?
 4. Our work at summer assemblies.
 5. The foregoings of the day illustrated.
- The foregoing can be used in an open parliament the first meeting if desired.

Here again is our Institute Program. It seems such a little thing to have behind it so much earnest and prayerful thought, of State and National workers. Yet crude and imperfect as the arrangement may be by your Superintendent it is an evolution of things we now need to consider, which have been coming to us through more than a quarter of a century of consecrated effort, along the lines of our great work for humanity.

The correspondence of County Presidents (sometimes by their Secretaries) has been unusually satisfactory and in many cases prompt. Every letter and card has been an inspiration for prompt and full reply, but such was impossible in the midst of getting out the work for the year and as much of it did not call for a definite reply, I am sure you will pardon me for answering in this general way and especially will you do this when you receive the kind and helpful letters which will come to you from the Section Leaders.

A few of you say you have not received a copy of our last State report. For this send 15 cents to State Treasurer, Miss Clara M. Sears, Anderson, Ind. When you get it, read carefully the Institute Plan of Work on page 59, and also the rest of Indiana's Plan of Work, on the pages just preceding and make your plans well, for organizing a W., a Y., or an L. T. L., or for adding 10 or more paid members at or immediately following the Institute and thus build up your ranks and secure a premium lecture.

Wednesday of each week is the day for organization, unless railroad connection prevents the Leader remaining. Keep her busy.

A few other things you will want to keep in mind:

1. Form your contest class on time and to make it also a great financial success send 35 cents for 200 tickets and envelopes to our new State Superintendent of Contests, Mrs. Julia Overman, 1802 South Branson street, Marion, Ind. Send to her also for books and medals and expect from her a strong co-operation to make this and all contests a success. Some County Presidents are now holding contests to create sentiment and replenish their treasuries.

2. Come to the Institute prepared to renew your subscription to the Union Signal, American Motherhood, etc., or to take them if you do not already read them. The National is especially desirous that we should be loyal to our periodicals and to our personal need of them.

3. Correspond with your Section Leader in regard to evening services, Sunday services, or any matter pertaining to the success of your Institute.

4. Fill your program and advertise thoroughly. Ask your Leader for testimonials and advertise her just as faithfully as if she came to you from another State, or across the water, for indeed you have preferred your own State workers. Two of them are regularly ordained ministers, in addition to the official recognition given by the W. C. T. U. One of them is a State and National Evangelist. One a State officer and a platform orator of recognized national ability. The other leaves her desk and comes to you to fill a vacancy and to help you and she believes that with your co-operation she can. Just as I was ready to make the schedule for the counties, I received a letter from our dear State President, Mrs. Vayhinger, saying that she had gotten up from a sick bed just long enough to write me. She would be unable to go out in Institute work this year. This will be a disappointment to some counties, whose membership have never met our State President, and to others, no doubt, who would be glad to meet her again. But all with a beautiful spirit of loyalty to our work have said in effect and some of them in words, We will welcome whatever Leader comes to us; any of them can teach us much. As a County President, I am convinced that our Institutes will be just what we make them, or that we will get out of them, in results either tangible or unseen, all that we put into them of thought and prayer and hard, well directed work.

For one, two and three years, New York, Ohio and Illinois have been writing me that they were following closely Indiana's Institute plan. Their victories, both State and National, have been great. Let us in turn emulate their painstaking efforts. Illinois, both last year and the year before, spent over $2,000.00 in Institute work, and for months kept 22 workers in the field. Ohio, had a gain of over 2,000 members and was first on benefit night. New York has advanced from one hour's Institute work at each county convention to an Institute Session in almost every county in the State. Indiana has made a good beginning for 1905. Let us with one accord keep the work going.

MARY HADLEY HALL,
Supt. National and Indiana W. C. T. U. Institutes.

Mrs. Culla Vayhinger organized a Union, with 80 members, at Madison, on January 4.

Ask your minister to preach a sermon during February on the life of Miss Frances E. Willard.

The Madison County Institute will be held in Elwood March 28-29. The Local Union has already made preparations for entertaining it and we look forward to a successful meeting. Our Local Union is steadily growing under the leadership of our President, Mrs. Adair, and we will soon have enough new members to get our free lecture. At our last meeting the Union voted to present to the Carnegie Public Library a life size picture of Frances E. Willard and the Story of her Life. A committee will present them at the next meeting of the Board. We are so glad to welcome into our Union Mrs. Henrietta Wilkes, attorney at law and daughter of our beloved Mother Trish.

ITINERARY OF STATE LECTURER, ELIZABETH T. STANLEY.

When I last wrote you I was starting to Lancaster, Pa., for one week's work preceding the National and to my great delight found the Pennsylvania women just as aggressive and enthusiastic as my own dear sisters of Indiana. Pennsylvania gained 1033 new members last year, as against 618 gained in Indiana, and they only pay fifty cents dues and each woman takes the State paper if she so desires, but they like our Indiana plan much better than their own and are endeavoring to bring their State up to it. While in Lancaster I visited the grave of Thaddeus Stevens, because, when I was a baby they called him a crank. Now, they build a monument to his memory and hang his portrait on the walls of every school room and in almost every home of the State. It has always been the way of the world to extol dead reformers and crucify living ones. I addressed seven audiences under direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Griest, the efficient State Treasurer of Pennsylvania and when I reached Philadelphia I was invited to address the only juvenile church in the world. I found 500 boys and girls organized into a real church under a young man as pastor. The requirements for membership are a triple total abstinence pledge and a promise to attend church and support it with free will offerings. I also spent one Sabbath in the State Penitentiary, located in the heart of Philadelphia. I found 1,103 men and 23 women in the prison; 18 of the 23 were colored women. The warden gave me the annual report of the Institution, which shows that the saloon is back of a majority of their guests. Since my return to Indiana I have visited Blackford County; had one enthusiastic meeting in Hartford City. Thence to Delaware and Wells; in the latter county, giving seven addresses to enthusiastic audiences and securing 23 active and 11 honorary members. Mrs. Walmer has the people in Wells County so completely under her control that they simply feel slighted if she fails to invite them to join the Union. One man said to me "The W. C. T. U. is the most popular club in town." Sisters, let us make it the most popular, effective and helpful organization in the State. Why not write your Representatives and Senators just now and tell them the women of Indiana expect them to vote for Guir's amendment to the Nicholson law and a little bouquet to Governor Hanly, just now, seems eminently fitting. All our Governors say good things as they retire from office, but he is the only Executive Indiana has had for many years who dared suggest a righteous measure at the beginning of his term and I, for one, propose to ask him to be an honorary member of the W. C. T. U. I mean thus to honor him. Last week I spent four days in Ohio in a local option campaign. The ballots were counted out thus: The women could not be counted and the men voted the saloon in by just three votes. Oh, shame on the State that dares to handcuff its mothers and "fling its citizens to fight or die into the teeth of a traffic with heart of iron and fangs of brass." Push the equal suffrage work as never before, far more than ever. I am convinced that we can never win until armed with the spotless ballot of a free people. Woman stands side by side with her brother man in the solution of problems that so vitally affect her home.

L. T. L. SECRETARIES AND SENIOR LEGIONERS.

But a little more than a third of this year is now left to us to bring to completion the work of the Senior L. T. L. Shall we not all make the Loyal Temperance Legion the first thing in our lives for these remaining months and make them count for the Senior Legion in Indiana?

I count the trip to Philadelphia as the greatest privilege of the year to me. I have come back to Indiana filled with enthusiasm and zeal, and my sight has been cleared until I can see wonderful possibilities for us in Indiana, and that before our next State Convention, providing every Legioner catches the inspiration of the National and works with a will.

I have greater faith in the Senior Legioners of our own State than ever before. I wish you might all have been with me in that great National Convention and have met the Seniors of other States; then you, too, would have felt the thrill of new ambitions and the proud satisfaction of being a member of the Senior Loyal Temperance Legion.

Indiana is one of the foremost States in plans for work. We fall short only in organization. Our plans were in advance of many—behind none. We had many reasons to be proud of the Old Hoosier State in that great Convention.

I believe that no one can accomplish so much of good with so little of time and means as the Legioner. But, we must have consecration to the work. We must put it first in our lives and make everything bend to it. This is what I ask of you for the next few months. Why not have a State Convention that will have the spirit of the great National? We can easily do that very thing. I am loaded with new plans, new enthusiasm, new zeal and new ambitions.

In the first place, I want to disabuse your minds of the thought, if any of you have it, that only graduates can be members of our Senior Legions. Any one over the age of twelve years can belong to our Legion. Membership in the State organization can be had only upon the possession of a diploma, and all officers in all Legions must be signers of the triple pledge. However, let us make greater effort to enlist all our friends in the Senior Legion, thus increasing the membership, the dues, and, in time, the graduates, for few will come into the Senior meetings who will not, sooner or later, desire the diploma.

Again, let us be very careful about the payment of dues this year. We need funds for the State work. We are trying to boom the work on an almost empty treasury. Why not have each Legion hold one pay entertainment and turn the proceeds over to the State treasurer? Why not do this before our next State Convention? Be sure that every Legioner's dues are paid by the 15th of June, 1905, into the State treasury. Only by the payment of dues are you entitled to a seat as delegate in the convention, even though you hold a diploma. Then, we need the dues for the successful carrying on of the State work. If the Legioner does not pay his own dues, then let the Legion hold some sort of entertainment—a Medal Contest is always good—and from the receipts pay dues for each pledged member.

This leads me to another plan: Among the prizes offered this year, one is for the County with the largest delegation at the State Convention. Once again, call upon your resources and raise the money with which to pay the expenses of all your Legioners to the Convention, provided they cannot pay their own. See to it that no one stays away because of the expense. Let us make it our endeavor to take every paid-up graduate to the Convention and as many visitors as we can. Let us plan largely and we will reap largely.

We have new Senior report blanks. I will send one of each kind to you soon, that you may know just what reports you will be expected to send in by June 15. To better separate the work, I suggest that, where possible, the Senior Legion meet by itself. An evening meeting will be quite satisfactory in many places where the Seniors are old enough for this. Make out a program for a year in advance (six months if you prefer), and see to it that the social and literary sides of your meetings are entertaining and made drawing cards. Make your Senior the most enjoyable, as well as profitable, hour of the entire week. Do not neglect the lessons nor the required readings from the Crusader, neither slight the department work, but add something to make every meeting so interesting that every member will want to be there. For instance:

First week of the month, hold your business meeting—reports, required readings from the Crusader and any other business that may come before you. Second meeting, a discussion of some important and interesting topic of Local or National affairs, or some questions that present themselves to the Legioners about the work. Third meeting, take some one of our departments of work, possibly having some prominent man or woman of your home town to address you upon the subject. Fourth meeting, a social and literary evening and a parlor meeting. These programs should be made to meet local needs. These evening meetings, with some such program, are proving very successful in other States and I believe would be profitable for us. I have a program filled in, which I will be glad to send to any one upon request.

In addition to the prizes always offered, we have this year the following: To the Legion sending the largest subscription list for the Crusader Monthly to our State Agent, Mrs. Monta Cooper, Wabash, R. R. No. 11, from the first of February until the State Convention, she will give a set of six books belonging to the Seal Course. To the Legion having the best program made from the 1905 Convention to the 1906 Convention, another book from the Seal Course. To the Legion sending in the fullest reports, another one of these books. This does not mean merely the largest reports, but those who send reports of all departments and have their blanks well filled in; also, this will mean that all reports are in the hands of the State officers by June 15. Another prize will be given to the Legion paying dues for all pledged members, and one for the County with the largest delegation regularly seated in the Convention. Remember, this is only for Senior Legions.

Our National benevolences for the year are: The extension fund, the Willard memorial organization fund, L. T. L. room in Willard Temperance Hospital. I recommend that we follow National plans as nearly as possible. It was also voted at the National to inaugurate a contest in every State for a National song and rallying cry, these to be submitted to the State Convention and the one judged to be the best to be sent to the National, a committee to decide which State sent the best song and cry—these to become National. In the song the tune and the words may both be original, or only the words. Let Indiana have several to present at our State Convention.

Once again, I remind you that our time is short and we must improve every moment. Indiana ought and will have the greatest State Convention on record in 1905 if we will but put ourselves into the work and put everything else second to our Senior Legion from this time until the Convention. I believe we will do it.

EDITH HILLIS,
State President.

Kokomo, Ind.

Marion County News Items—The first conference of the Department Superintendents of Marion County in 1905 was held Thursday, January 12, in the Second Presbyterian church. County officers, with one exception, Board officers and fifteen Department Superintendents were present, also visitors. Mrs. Lillian Sedwick, Board President, in her address, spoke of the value of each branch of W. C. T. U. departmental work; her address was both interesting and instructive and was filled with the same Christian hope and courage so noticeable in her gifted sister's public addresses. Mrs. Martha Gipe, President of Marion County, spoke of the motherly relation existing between the County President and the Local Unions. She urged Local Presidents to cultivate the same feeling in their Local Unions and advised them to call the Department Workers together often for conference, that intelligent work might be accomplished. Mrs. Lillian Sedwick, Y. Secretary and Mrs. Frances Metz, Secretary of L. T. L., both spoke of the imperative need of work in these branches and of its importance to future generations. Miss Susan Clark, State and County Superintendent in Colored Work, will institute a pledge signing campaign in Colored Sunday Schools this year. Miss Maud Baker spoke of the necessity of living a simple life if good health was desired and gave a physical culture drill. The subject What Do the Report Blanks Mean to the Organization and to the Industrial Worker? was ably handled by Mrs. Nina Brigham, County Corresponding Secretary. During the afternoon session, Mrs. Luella McWhirter conducted a Parliamentary Drill; she also gave an extempore speech in her indignation and the manner in which Scientific Temperance was taught in the Public Schools in Indiana. The plan of work given by the Superintendents was practical and much useful information was brought out in the discussion following each plan. Mrs. Amanda Whitson had asked that she be given thirty minutes in which to present the Non-Alcoholic Medication Department, as it was to receive special attention in each State during this year. Mrs. Whitson's recent bereavement made it impossible for her to carry out her plans. At the request of Mrs. Sedwick, Mrs. McWhirter read Mrs. M. M. Allen's address given before the National Convention and recently published in the Union Signal. Resolutions of sympathy were sent from the Conference to Mrs. Whitson in her great trouble.

Central Union in Indianapolis will hold four evening meetings during the year. The first was an Echo meeting from the National Convention, held in December. The second will be a Frances Willard memorial service, February 15, at the residence of Dr. Hawley, 1011 North New Jersey street.

Miss Susan Clark, State and County Superintendent of Work Among Colored People talked of her life long interest in this people and of their wonderful advancement in the last forty years. Mrs. Frances Potter gave a brief talk upon the necessity of a manual training school for homeless and friendless girls. Mrs. Amanda Whitson, State Superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication, told of the plan adopted in Mapleton Union, of which she is the President. She said: One business and one social meeting is held in this Union monthly. As soon as the necessary business is transacted, the study of this department is taken up, Mrs. M. M. Allen's book, Alcohol a Dangerous and Unnecessary Medicine, being used as a text book. Mrs. Whitson presided at the tea table, assisted by Misses Ethel and Susie McWhirter.

Mrs. Culla Vayhinger will spend one week in Marion County, beginning February 27. The County will ask for two days of Mrs. Vayhinger's time; the remainder will be spent in Local Unions. A great awakening is expected among temperance people as a result of this visit.

Mrs. Mary Moody, of Indianapolis, has so much improved in health that she will soon be at home to her friends.

A meeting will be held January 19 at the home of Mrs. Frances Potter by the members of Central Union. Mrs. Sallie Lemen will read a paper upon the Life and Character of Dr. Nathaniel Davis. The department of Non-Alcoholic Medication will be discussed by members of the Union. Mrs. Potter will talk upon Rescue Work. Mrs. Thomas Sedwick will lead the devotional exercises. Miss Susie McWhirter, Miss Laura Potter and Miss Miriam Frieze will preside at the tea table. E. G. SMITH.

A BILL FOR AN ACT TO REGULATE, AND IN CERTAIN CASES TO PROHIBIT, THE MANUFACTURE, SALE, KEEPING, KEEPING FOR SALE, OWNING, OR GIVING AWAY OF CIGARETTES, CIGARETTE PAPER, CIGARETTE WRAPPERS AND OTHER SUBSTITUTES FOR THE SAME; PROVIDING PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATION THEREOF, AND REPEALING ALL LAWS IN CONFLICT THEREWITH.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That it shall be unlawful for any person, by himself, clerk, servant, employe or agent, directly or indirectly, upon any pretense or by any device, to manufacture, sell, exchange, barter, dispose of or give away, or keep for sale, any cigarettes, cigarette paper or cigarette wrappers, or any paper made or prepared for the purpose of being filled with tobacco for smoking, or keep or own, or be in any way concerned, engaged or employed in owning or keeping any such cigarettes, cigarette paper or wrappers, and any person for violation of the same shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall for the first offense pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars and cost of prosecution, and stand committed to the county jail until such costs are paid, and for the second and each subsequent offense he shall pay, upon conviction thereof, a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and the costs of prosecution, or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed six months: Provided, That the provisions hereof shall not apply to the sales of jobbers doing an interstate business with customers outside the State.

SECTION 2. All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

VICTORY!

The passage of the Anti-Cigarette Bill by this Legislature was indeed a great victory. From many members of the House of Representatives we learn that they felt the influence of their constituents. In one instance even a cigarette smoker voted for the measure because he said he knew that his constituents wanted him to. How did these men know what their constituents wanted? By the letters received from them and by their names sent in on petitions.

About 6,400 persons were reached by the MESSAGE Extra. Of these, hundreds began active work and great has been the result of their efforts united with those of educators and some earnest legislators.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF MISS WILLARD.

Frances E. Willard was of New England ancestry. She was born in Churchville, N. Y., in 1839, reared in Wisconsin and educated in Illinois at the Northwestern University of Evanston, the largest suburb of Chicago. Here was the family home for well-nigh forty years, and here, beginning in the public schools, Miss Willard, by what she liked to call "honest hard work," achieved the position of dean of the woman's department of the University, and professor of rhetoric in a faculty otherwise composed of men, nearly all of whom had been graduated from European universities. She herself studied abroad two years or more, from 1868 to 1870; French, German, Italian history and the fine arts being the subjects to which her attention was devoted. It was her expectation to be a literary woman in connection with her work as a college professor. She was perhaps more celebrated for her method of school government than for any other one thing at this time. She organized what amounted to a senate and house of representatives of the young women in the college and practically placed their government in their own hands. This method worked so well for the good order of the institution and for the development of a high standard of honor in the young women, that it has since been introduced in many colleges and public schools.

In 1862 Miss Willard wrote her first book, "Nineteen Beautiful Years," which was published by Harper & Brothers, and with an introduction by the poet Whittier. It has been translated into several languages. She also wrote, "How to Win," a book for girls; "Woman and Temperance," a history of the W. C. T. U.; "A Classic Town," a history of the beautiful university town of Evanston; "A Young Woman Journalist," intended to inspire young women to take up a profession in which Miss Willard herself had been engaged for many years. "Glimpses of Fifty Years," her autobiography, of which 50,000 copies have been sold, was written in 1889 by request of the National W. C. T. U. "A Great Mother" is perhaps her best book, containing, as it does, the theory and practice of bringing up children according to her mother's plan, and Madam Willard was in the estimation of every one who knew her, a truly "Great Mother." Miss Willard's handbook for the World's white ribboners, entitled "Do Everything," is packed full of hints and helps for local workers. She also wrote, "Women in the Pulpit," "How I Learned to Ride the Bicycle" and "Occupations for Women."

In 1883 Miss Willard and Miss Gordon made a temperance organizing trip, visiting each of the fifty states and territories of the United States, traveling 30,000 miles or more, from Puget Sound to the Gulf of Mexico, such a trip as has never been made by man or woman in any cause, so far as we know. In the same year Miss Willard founded the W. C. T. U., of which she became president and which has made the white ribbon society known in every English-speaking country of the globe.

In 1892 Miss Willard and Miss Gordon went to England by invitation of Lady Henry Somerset, their devoted friend, and who then led the movement in Great Britain. Here they helped to develop white ribbon methods and to edit the English white ribbon paper. Editions of Miss Willard's books were brought out, thus making her known to the reading public in the mother country. A great reception was tendered her in Exeter Hall, participated in by fifty philanthropic societies of London, with such speakers as Canon Wilberforce, Lady Henry Somerset, Mrs. Ormiston Chant, William T. Stead, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, Rev. Mark Guy Pearce and several members of Parliament.

They returned to America from this visit in the summer of 1894, Lady Henry Somerset coming with them. The winter of 1894-95 was spent mostly in Boston. In March, 1895, they again went to England. Miss Willard and Miss Gordon came back in time for the National W. C. T. U. Convention held that year in Baltimore. April, 1896, Miss Willard made her last voyage to England, accompanied by Miss Gordon, and it was in the autumn of this year that she and Lady Henry did their notable work for the Armenian refugees at Marseilles, and her interest in their welfare never waned. She reached her native land late in October, 1896, spent the following winter in Castile, N. Y., and the last summer of her life was spent mostly in New England.

Miss Willard presided over the World's W. C. T. U. Convention in Toronto, in October, 1897. Her address as president of that Convention was pronounced to be one of the finest, most powerful and eloquent that she had ever delivered. A few days later she presided over the National Convention at Buffalo, N. Y. The weeks intervening between this convention and her translation, February 17, 1898, were spent in Chicago, Evanston, Ill., Wisconsin and New York City.

Miss Willard originated the Polygot Petition for the prohibition of the liquor traffic and the opium trade, which with several million names and attestations of great societies was presented to the President of the United States in February, 1895, and in London before an audience of ten thousand people in June, 1895.

In April, 1898, I presented the petition to the Dominion of Canada at a great meeting in Ottawa arranged by the Canadian W. C. T. U., when it was received on behalf of the Canadian Government by the Premier Wilfred Laurier. Miss Willard's active interest on behalf of social purity, labor reform and woman suffrage was in consistent accord with her belief in the "do everything" policy of dealing with the great problem of the day.

In 1894 the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred upon Miss Willard by the Ohio Wesleyan University.

HOW SHE CAME INTO THE WORK.

Miss Willard has repeatedly said to me that, when the Crusade came, she read of it daily in the Chicago Post, edited by her brother Oliver, and she, as well as her mother, became absorbingly interested in it; more so than in anything which they had ever read, except abolition and the anti-slavery war.

The winter of 1874 was a time of heart break to Miss Willard on account of the difficulties at Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., and she resigned the presidency of the woman's college and her professorship in the university in June of that year. Attractive positions as the head of education institutions were offered her, but she felt more and more drawn toward the women of the Crusade. She was not in Chautauqua when the preliminary committee was formed, but was at that time in Maine, consulting with Neal Dow, and in Boston consulting with Dr. Dio Lewis. Meantime she wrote to Bishop Simpson, who had been a greatly honored friend of her family for years; also to Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, whom she and her mother admired more than any other woman they knew; and to other leaders, as well as to her own family, friends and relatives—not one of whom sent her a favorable reply except Mrs. Livermore, who encouraged her greatly and told her by all means to follow her leadings.

But Miss Willard's resolution to join the Crusade movement was taken independently. One morning in August, 1874, there came to her a letter, from Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, who had led the Crusade movement in Chicago during the winter, asking her if she would come to Chicago and act as president of the local W. C. T. U. They were a weak band of middle-aged women, without financial resources, and Mrs. Rounds wrote Miss Willard that they could offer her no salary. On the same day that this letter reached her at Cambridge, Mass., Miss Willard received a definite offer from the principal of a ladies' school in New York City, near Central Park, offering her $2,500 a year if she would act as preceptress, teaching as little or as much as she pleased, but exercising a helpful influence over the young ladies and among the patrons. She was entirely without income, and had not laid up a penny, as those who knew her do not need to be told; her mother was advancing in years, and Miss Willard was her only support; the Crusade movement had passed away, and there seemed to be a lull in the work; yet so profound was the impression that God called her to the work of the W. C. T. U. that she at once wrote to New York, declining Dr. Van Norman's offer, and to Mrs. Rounds, accepting the position as president of the W. C. T. U. of Chicago, upon the duties of which she entered a few weeks later.

It was indeed well for the world that Frances Willard thus decided. No woman has ever done so much to lift humanity heavenward. The one woman of the centuries! Best beloved, God crowned.

MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS,
President National W. C. T. U.

THE FRANCES E. WILLARD STATUE

Was presented by the State of Illinois to the National Congress on February 17. Each State is entitled to place two statues in Statuary Hall in the National Capitol. Illinois legislature, recognizing Miss Willard as its most illustrious deceased citizen, appropriated $9,000 for the placing of her statue in Statuary Hall. The exercises connected with the acceptance of the statue by Congress were auspicious and impressive in both the Senate and in the House.

The statue is of Carrara marble, a little more than life size, and represents Miss Willard standing in an easy, graceful position. The right arm is slightly extended, the hand resting upon a reading desk; the left arm is at her side, with a few pages of manuscript in the hand. The pose of the head is very lifelike, as Miss Willard appeared when looking out upon an audience. The face is strong and spiritual.

The pedestal is of Vermont marble and bears the

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

I am ambitious that Indiana merits some of the prizes to be given at the National Convention and knowing as you do that we only obtain what we strive for I want to urge that we be up and doing, for the year is far spent. If you have no army post-ships, soldiers' home, or any of these things near you, do personal work where opportunity affords, distribute literature on the canteen question and other like subjects, that the people may become acquainted with them, use your pledge cards, prepare comfort bags. County executives, I appeal to you. Where we have no Superintendent in this department will you not appoint one at once, that they may push the local work, for this is where our reports must come from. Should it be impossible to appoint Superintendents I ask that Presidents keep account of the work done and report to me at the close of the year. I beg of you to assist me to be instrumental in helping some mother's boys to a better life in Christ's name. Finally, dear sisters, let us do our very best and leave the results with Him who doeth all things well and both we and our efforts will be blessed. Following you will find a list of questions on our report blanks:

1. Number of meetings held.
2. Comfort bags sent.
3. Papers sent.
4. Amount of literature distributed.
5. Pledges signed.
6. Letters written.
7. Christian Temperance Unions formed.
8. Conversions reported.
9. Bibles and Testaments given away.
10. Memorial days observed.
11. Number of honorary members among these men.
12. Money expended.

Please report all new County Superintendents to me as early as convenient.

MRS. LIZZIE HEATH,
Indianapolis, Ind. State Superintendent.

JAIL AND PRISON DEPARTMENT.

With Christ in my mind, the most important work of the W. C. T. U. is that of jail and prison. Important, because every prisoner, whether white or black, has a soul that will either be saved or lost. So few people are willing to minister unto them. I pray that this may be the best year of our lives and that we may go forward in the work of the Master with more zeal and energy than we have ever had and to this end I pray that we may tarry at Jerusalem until we be endued with power from on high and be filled with the blessed Holy Spirit, that we may not work in vain, but we will see results from our labors as workers. I hope we can realize that we have had some victories and in the years to come we may be able to lift up many of our fallen brothers and sisters, for indeed they are our brothers and sisters by creation and it is our duty to help them become adapted into the family of Christ. I trust that I may have your prayers and hearty co-operation, that we may make this a glorious year and that we may see many precious souls born into the kingdom such as shall be eternally saved. I will send blanks in March and September to all the names that I can find in the State Minutes and the names that I already have, but if there is a county or Union that I miss, will some one please write to me and I will send blanks. Please report promptly all work done in this line in March and September. I thank all the dear sisters for promptness in the past and am expecting even greater work done this year.

Richmond, Ind. MRS. ELLEN DAVIS,
State Superintendent.

FRANCHISE.

I thank you who have so promptly answered my letters and ask others not to wait to hear from me, but to write and tell me of your plans and what you have been able to accomplish. I need your help. Did you notice we had a speech given in the legislature in favor of giving women the ballot? Your Superintendent promptly sent a letter of thanks and received a very kind reply. The Senator thinks Indiana is ready to take that step and only conservatism hinders it. I also telephoned a friend in Indianapolis asking her to send flowers to his desk, with thanks for his courage for speaking for us. The Indianapolis Star said it was sent by the W. C. T. U. I was sorry they made it appear I had acted as State President. I intended it for our department, but since I have been so severely criticised, perhaps, you will not want to have to share that. I will gladly bear it and more, too, if that will help to hasten the time when the ballot, our best home protection weapon, be given women. Some of our own criticise me, because the Senator did not vote for the Temperance measure. Mother Willard said, Praise them for the good they do and I believe she was right.

DEPARTMENT OF MEDAL CONTEST.

NATIONAL BANNER.

The following conditions will be observed in awarding the National Banner: 1—Observance of rules. 2—High grade contests held 3—Greatest increase over last year.

TO STATE SUPERINTENDENTS.

To the State holding the largest per cent. increase over the preceding year, 100 recitation books. To the State Superintendent who reports the largest number of contests in proportion to membership, a gold medal. To the State Superintendent whose report shows the largest average receipts from contests held, 100 books.

LOCAL PRIZES.

The the Local Superintendent who holds the largest increase in number of contests over last year, a gold medal. To the Local Superintendent who holds the largest number of contests, The Beautiful Life of Francis E. Willard —A. E. Carmen.

Dear Co-Workers, you will see by the above the conditions upon which the National Banner will be awarded next year, also list of prizes offered by the National Superintendent. We must gradually work up to a better observance of the contest rules in Indiana if we hope to retain the Banner. I am endeavoring to do this as a County and Local worker. But where every effort has been made to have a full class and at the last moment a part of them fail you, I should proceed with my contest and you have my consent to do so.

JULIA OVERMAN,
State Superintendent.

FOR SUPERINTENDENTS OF MOTHERS' MEETINGS.

In reply to several letters saying, have you any new plans? I say nothing especially new but much more of the old, educate, educate. Remember ignorance is not innocence. On the other hand, it may be the very means by which innocence is changed to guilt. If we would keep our children pure let us begin by training them in the best ways. All women should be invited to the Mothers' Meetings. At some of your Mothers' Meetings have questions for discussion, such as How early shall we begin to train our children? How can we best teach purity in the home? Anything which helps to teach purity, to uplift humanity, to mold character and thereby make purer lives, better homes and nobler men and women is our legitimate work. In the January MESSAGE I said that every Superintendent who applied, with stamps for postage, I would send a package of literature. Twenty have applied, some with and some without stamps, but every one got a package. From the Directory in the Annual Report I got the name and address of twenty-eight County Superintendents of Mothers' Meetings and I have sent each one blanks and literature. Will all County Superintendents who have not received blanks please send to me at once, for you know, dear hearts, I can not send to you without your name and address? I have Purity Pledges at one-half cent a piece or 100 for 25 cents. Cradle Roll Pledges the same. Remember the enemy is after the children and you can not begin too early to teach temperance and purity.

Hartford City. MRS. S. M. STAHL,
State Superintendent.

PLEA FOR LEGIONS.

I want to make another plea to the childless Unions in our State. According to the directory in our last State Minutes we have 263 Unions; eighteen of these reported work done last year for the children. Seventy-five counties are doing W. C. T. U. work and only ten reported work in the Children's Branch. Miss Willard said: "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is organized mother-love." Are you sure you are doing the most important work in your Union? Here are the children placed in our hands, the responsibility is ours, our future organization depends upon them. What will it be? Are we true to the command of God? "That they may teach their children." Will He hold us guiltless if we leave this undone? I hope you have all read our State President's letter in February's MESSAGE and noticed this, Indiana is one of the foremost States in plans for work. We fall short only in organization. Our plans are in advance of many, behind none. This is one of the many things she found out at the National Convention. I know we have one of the best Presidents in the Nation. Won't you please study her plans and push the work this year? Good plans and a good President helps, but will not do the work over the State. After all, it falls back on us at home in the local work. By the time you receive this letter you will have received the blanks, with a copy of the Constitution and general plans of work. Where there is no County L. T. L. Secretary named in the Directory I have mailed to the County W. C. T. U. President a blank for each Union. Report all work done in your County from the 15th of September, 1904 to the 15th of March, 1905 (unless you have already reported for the first quarter) through the County L. T. L. Secretary where you have one, if not send direct to me by the 25th of March, then at the W. C. T. U. Institute have the subject thoroughly discussed and plan for this work to be taken up in each Union right away. The Institute Leaders have each had the plans sent to them and will be prepared to give you the information on this branch of our work.

IDA M. MIX,
Kokomo, Ind. General Secretary L. T. L. Branch.

PLANS OF WORK FOR ANTI-NARCOTIC DEPARTMENT SUPERINTENDENTS.

There are two thoughts I wish to impress upon the Superintendents of this Department. One is to influence, so far as possible, the press and writers of books to believe that it is not necessary to always picture the man with a cigar or cigarette in his mouth. Our Department will make especial efforts this year to abolish the pictorial cigarette smoker. The other thought is, that in many places in the United States women are using ribbons, which have tied cigar boxes or tobacco sacks, for sofa pillows. Word comes to me that in many homes these sofa pillows are found. Let us pass the word along the line that it is not becoming in a W. C. T. U. woman to have her home decorated with anything that has been used by the tobacco traffic. Will you preach this gospel in your State? Get it into your city papers and as many other publications as possible.

MRS. E. B. INGALLS,
National Superintendent.

I wish to thank the Indiana women for their response to the call for help in the Anti-Cigarette work. Not only Superintendents in this Department, but Union Presidents and Anti-Cigarette League members have assisted in this work. I feel very much like writing a personal letter of thanks to each League white ribboner, but time and postage will prevent me from doing so. The bill was before the House for second reading Friday, February 17th, and successfully passed to third reading and I hope by the time the MESSAGE is received we may all thank God that it is an Indiana law. Word comes from Mrs. H. W. Brandt, National Treasurer, that there is every prospect of the same law being adopted in the State of Illinois. Let the mothers of this land have courage yet a little longer.

MRS. ELIZABETH SMITH,
State Superintendent.

Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer has been blessed in organizing as follows in Daviess County, where for several years we have had no Union. At Montgomery, Mrs. Mary Leonard, President. They took up Evangelistic work, including Sunday Schools and Systematic and Proportionate giving and as they had no woman to take it, Mr. John Leonard, an honorary member, consented to work for all three of these departments. Superintendent of Contests is Mrs. Lawrence Weimer and of Non-Alcoholic Medication and Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Lillie Coyle. Organized at Odon with twelve active members. President, Mrs. Dr. Anderson; Secretary, Miss Abbie Bails, Elvora, R. R. I. Several Departments of work were chosen and the State Superintendents of these have been informed as to the addresses of the local ladies appointed to lead them. The Union at Washington was reorganized with thirty-five members. Miss Palmer spoke Sabbath morning at the United Brethren church; met the ladies in the afternoon at the Baptist church, where all felt very strongly the guiding hand of God in the prayers and testimony that were given by some the good sisters; addressed a large audience in the evening at the First Christian church. Monday afternoon she met the Ladies' Monday Club at the Library and afterwards Officers and Superintendents were elected for W. C. T. U. to serve till September. A beautiful new house of worship is being erected by the United Brethren people at Odon and Miss Palmer has been invited to return for a week of Gospel meeting after its dedication. She says, I am believing and I trust you will all join with me in prayer for this, that at that time two other Unions may be organized in Daviess County.

following inscription: "Ah! it is women who have given the costliest hostages to fortune. Out into the battle of life they have sent their best beloved, with fearful odds against them. Oh, by the dangers they have dared; by the hours of patient watching over beds where helpless children lay; by the incense of ten thousand prayers wafted from their gentle lips to Heaven, I charge you give them power to protect along life's treacherous highway those whom they have so loved."—Frances E. Willard.

PRESENTED BY THE STATE OF ILLINOIS,
FEBRUARY XVII, MCMV.

By request of Miss Gordon, on Saturday, February 18, the school children of Washington marched under protective escort to the Capitol Building and through Statuary Hall, where each child placed a flower near the statue. The flowers were generously contributed by the District of Columbia W. C. T. U. Of the National Woman's Temperance Union, many of the leading officers and members were in Washington to attend the exercises and in the evening of February 17, held a National Commemorative Meeting in the Metropolitan M. E. Church, with a varied and interesting program, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens presiding.

MRS. STANLEY'S NOTE-BOOK.

Since my last letter I have addressed ten audiences, received more letters than ever before in one month asking for dates later, two days were spent in Ohio, two in my own County, three days in Wells County, where, during zero weather, I found Mrs. Wolmer's Loyal Home Guards just as enthusiastic and determined as ever. You will be glad to know that she is organizing her young people and children up there and even the saloon men see the handwriting on the wall. I attended one Farmers' Institute and one Prohibition Convention and everywhere I have urged voters to sign the petition in favor of the Parks Anti-Cigarette bill and protest against Sunday baseball and demand an equal suffrage amendment to our Constitution. In to day's mail I got three letters from legislators who faithfully promise to stand by us in all these righteous measures. Now sisters, please write to your Representatives to-day and get influential voters to do the same, for they write me that they have not heard from you. I go to Elkhart and South Bend. I am soon to meet you at Mid-year Executive. I want to give you a little song here. Memorize it, so we may sing it for Mrs. Saylor's hosts at Mulberry.

DON'T LET THE WOMEN VOTE.

These Temperance Cranks do all they can
To keep their cause afloat,
But I have no fears of what they may do,
So long as the women don't vote.

CHORUS.

Don't let the women vote,
Don't let the women vote—
We'll lose the battle as sure as you live,
If they let the women vote.

Just let the women speak and pray,
By that they'll do no harm,
But when they talk of letting them vote,
My soul takes on alarm.

CHORUS.

Don't let the women vote,
Don't let the women vote,
The whiskey traffic is gone for sure,
When they let the women vote.

If we get those Probi cranks to throw
That suffrage plank away,
And drop the W. C. T. U.
'Twill be a merry day.

CHORUS.

Don't let the women vote,
Don't let the women vote,
We fear not God—we fear not man,
But we fear a woman's vote.

ELIZABETH T. STANLEY.

AN APPEAL FOR HADLEY SCHOOL.

LA PORTE, IND., February 10, 1905.

Mrs. M. E. H. Chandler, Mooresville, Ind.

MRS. CHANDLER—In a very short time now Mrs. Ridgway will have been dead one year and the executor will have to file his annual report. Can you not make another payment on the note due the estate? If you can, it will help our report and will save you interest.

Respectfully,

F. R. LIDDELL.

DEAR SISTERS—I send you this letter, so that you may all see just how badly we are in need of funds. We do not understand why the Unions have been so slow this year to send contributions. I do not mean to say that we have not heard from any, for we have and we want to thank them for being so prompt; but some have failed so far to comply with the plan of work (See Annual Minutes, 1904, pages 85, 147 and 155, Article 6, Section 4.)

It is true the Home never was in better shape for provisions, clothing and nice bedding. It is nice and clean and in very fair repair, so we as a Managing Board think this is just the time to hustle and save every cent we can to apply on our debt.

The Ridgeway note is $500.00 with interest. We owe our help about $100.00; grocery bill, $32.00; Luther Hadley, for services, $40.00. Also several small bills aggregating in all, I should judge, about $800.00.

Now, dear sisters, let each of us feel that this is my school and that it rests with me to raise this money and I am sure we will soon be able to pay the money back which our dear departed sister Ridgway was kind enough to loan us to help on with the good work which is being done by the Indiana W. C. T. U.

We as a Board find some very hard places to get over and this is one of them, but with God's help, a little patience and your very much needed support we will be able to go to our next State Convention making a glad noise, crying "Out of debt, Out of debt," for the first time since the existence of our Industrial School.

Hoping you will read this article in your next local meeting, also give it careful thought and speedy attention, we are your humble servants.

LIZZIE C. HANN,
President.
MARY HADLEY HALL,
285 E. Jefferson St., Franklin, Ind.
MATTIE E. CHANDLER,
Mooresville, Ind., R. R.

Having seen Mrs. Cowan's name in Treasurer's report of Hadley Industrial School for Girls as drawing Superintendent's salary and as she was one of the unsuitable ones, I wish to say that Mrs. Cowan did not apply for a position at Hadley. At suggestion of a member of the Board that she go there for an outing, with the permission of the Board she went. When she arrived there the Superintendent had resigned and she was asked to assist in the work there. She went in August, 1903, and stayed until April, 1904, for, as she wrote to a friend in Indianapolis, who had expected her to mother her young lady daughters while the mother had a much needed outing—it is easier to go to Hadley than it is to get away.

About the middle of November she was left there to act as Superintendent against her protest that she could not and would not do it. The Board promised a new Superintendent in a few weeks, but although they did the best they could, found no one until about the middle of April, when Miss Mattie Leslie was secured—a person very suitable for the position, as is also Miss Hadley, who assists her.

Having been a teacher for a score of years, Mrs. Cowan had very good discipline, was a good correspondent, could keep the books, could and did teach in the absence and during sickness of teacher and helped the girls in their school work, besides superintending the affairs of the institution in a creditable manner, but being nearly seventy years of age and physically weak, she could not do the work that necessarily comes upon the Superintendent where so little help was kept. The State W. C. T. U. she considers were fortunate in getting the consent of the present Board of Managers to take charge of the Institution for another year. None but those who have been there know how onerous the duties of the Board are.

MOORE AMENDMENT TO THE NICHOLSON LAW.

After the acts of the present Legislature are distributed to every county in the State and a receipt from the clerk of every county has reached the State house, this law will be in effect. By this amendment remonstrances may be circulated against the liquor business (including all liquor dealers) in an entire township or ward. This will be a relief, and moreover the remonstrance, if successful, stands for two years against all applicants for license in such township or ward. In view of the pressure of the people of all parties, and especially of temperance advocates, this bill is not surprising, but the least that could have been done. The people are ready for the burden to be laid on the saloon keepers to obtain a majority of the voters' names on a petition. In fact the State now, as heretofore, assumes that every voter stands continually committed to the saloon license for whoever may apply. Many people believe that the State should assume that voters are opposed to the liquor business and throw the burden of proving the contrary on the liquor dealers. As the law now stands our sons, when they come to the age of twenty-one, are lined up for the liquor business, no difference if members of the church or what their expressed views may be, unless they sign remonstrances and suffer the indignity of having to write in black and white their signatures to a protest. This is true of every voter, and many good men will never be satisfied thus to be counted for the liquor dealer.

MEMBERS HAVE REMOVED AS FOLLOWS:

Mrs. Leonard Snyder from Versailles to Rushville, Indiana; Mrs. Wm. Benham and Mrs. F. M. Gelvin from Versailles to Crothersville, Indiana; Mrs. Lucy Howenstein from North Manchester to Urbana, Indiana; Mrs. Robert Mathis from Bedford, Indiana to 608 Fourteenth Street, San Diego, California; Mrs. Belle Gaskill, Susan Sliger, Flora Sliger and Ada Hunt from Bluffton to Liberty Center, Indiana; Mrs. Hattie Lipkey from Bluffton to Markle, Indiana; Mrs. Mary Schooley from Bluffton to Keystone, Indiana; Miss Blanche Campbell from Bluffton to Montpelier, Indiana; Mrs. Sarah Cotton and Mrs. M. J. Cotton from Bluffton to Ossian, Indiana; Mrs. Alonzo Cloud from Liberty, Indiana, to Richmond, of Earlham College; Mrs. Hatty Brady from Liberty to College Corner, Ohio; Mrs. W. E. Donaldson from Montpelier to Homeworth, Ohio; Mrs. Eliza Atkinson from Monrovia to Mooresville; Mrs. Flora Wyncoop from Brazil to Terre Haute, Indiana; Mrs. Lillian Todd from Warsaw to Argos, Indiana.

The Anti-Cigarette Bill is signed by Governor Hanly and is now a law. Iowa has almost the same law and it has been declared constitutional by the Supreme Court of Iowa and recently the Supreme Court of the United States has rendered the same decision. Everywhere friends of the measure should urge its enforcement. Ask ministers, Sunday-School Superintendents and public speakers to urge its enforcement. Also through the press urge its enforcement.

BRIEF NOTES.

Get subscriptions for the Union Signal.

Secure a gentleman for a member of your Union before the next meeting.

If your Union is large, help your Treasurer to collect the dues. Be sure and give a receipt for same, because it is good business to do so.

Maybe your Local President is not entirely competent. Help her and encourage her. In the meetings insist upon parliamentary usage and early adjournment, so the visitors will come again.

Under the Adams local option law the saloon has been driven out of every one of the 5,500 towns in Tennessee, except sixteen, and now exists in only twelve out of the ninety-six counties in the State.

Batesville Union celebrated their first anniversary with a carefully prepared program and a Willard Memorial offering. The meeting occurring on February 22d, was also a Washington birthday celebration.

Mrs. Gard, of Warren, says the Union is on the alert. They have two petitions on file. They asked for 25 names to Parks' Anti Cigarette petition and got nearly 75, with 5 inquiries after petition went to the Representative.

Bluffton Union observed February 10 as Frances Willard Memorial Day at the beautiful home of Mrs. Theo. Ellingham. Attendance good; everyone present seemed to be interested in the exercises; one new member was added.

Mrs. M. L. Hobbs, so many years the faithful President of Dubois County, has been bereft of her life companion and at this meeting is very ill at the old home. Mr. Hobbs died in January. For two years he had been an invalid. He was always so kind to temperance workers—generously encouraged and helped his wife in her work.

Frances Willard Union of Bluffton hopes to make a gain of five by March 15. Mrs. Wolmer, County President, spoke ably on Temperance at the Wesleyan church, January 9 and also of her trip to Philadelphia. We are very proud of her as County President and the wonderful work she has done through our Lord. We are greatly encouraged.

Mrs. Lou E. Roll, of Huntington, met with the Bluffton Union recently, in a parlor meeting and social at the lovely home of Mrs. H. D. Cook. Mrs. Roll presented the Department of Mercy in a very pleasing and interesting manner, which delighted and instructed us. We regret that she leaves Indiana. Our loss California's gain. Two new members were secured.

The Executive Committee and Superintendent of Howard County met at Kokomo, December 13, in an all day session. The attendance was good and the plan of work for the year as outlined by the State was taken up and it was voted to follow it as closely as possible. The afternoon session was devoted to Superintendent's Department. Howard County has gained one new Union this year. An effort will be made to secure 100 new members for the county this year.

Bedford—The subject for our first Mothers' Meeting in 1905 was Non-Alcoholic Medication and fifty women listened to many valuable truths on that much needed Department of our Women's Christian Temperance Union. A discussion followed, in which several gave their experience, proving the truth that patients do recover without alcohol, even after being given up to die. On January 27th an Oratorical Contest for silver medal was given and the audience was delighted with selections given. Master Bennie Brown was awarded the medal.

Franklin College and High School invited Judge Stubbs of the Juvenile Court of Indianapolis to deliver his famous lecture on The Evils of Cigarette Smoking in the College Chapel last week. The W. C. T. U. were given seats on the platform. Judge Stubbs spoke most forcibly to an audience of near a thousand. Johnson County's State Senator and Representative have been on the right side of all reform bills presented this year. The County W. C. T. U. Institute is to be held at Franklin, March 9, and 10. There will be a Gold Medal Contest. Mrs. Stanley will be present and a good time is anticipated.

The Indianapolis Frances E. Willard Union observed its sixth anniversary at the home of Mrs. E. E. Smith at 2805 Kenwood avenue. Opening song, Anniversary Hymn; prayer, Mrs. L. E. Scott; address, Mrs. McWhirter; solo, Lead, Kindly Light, Miss Jessie Anderson. Rev. Wood, of Hyde Park church and the County President, Mrs. Gipe, were present and spoke very encouragingly of the work. Recitation, I Vote as I Pray, Earl Rich. Closing hymn, Rock of Ages. A social hour was enjoyed while refreshments were being served. Three new members were received.

Ripley County Institute will be held at Milan on April 10 and 11. The County Union is making plans for a successful Institute. Rev Alice Ruth Palmer is to be the leader.

Bedford has just closed their Second contest for new members with an increase of thirty-eight. Mrs. Ed. Johnson and Mrs. Hayden Walls were the two captains who led the temperance hosts. January 26th, Mrs. Walls gracefully acknowledged defeat by throwing the doors of her handsome home open to all of the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and their husbands. A delightful program was given, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, followed by a review of the year's work just closed and plans for the future. Refreshments were served to more than one hundred.

Union organized by Sycamore Union—Officers: President, Mrs. Jane Miller, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 1; Vice-President, Mrs. Annie Vorris, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 3; Secretary, Mrs. T. H. Allen, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 1; Treasurer, Mrs. Minnie Moore, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 1; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Meck Melton, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 1. Superintendents: Flower Mission, Mrs. Minnie Moore, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 1; Literature, Miss Hattie Stewart, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 3; Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. Dr. Buroker, Greentown, Ind., R. R. 1; Press, Mrs. T. H. Allen, Greentown, R. R. 1.

On the Afternoon and evening of February 8 Mrs. Tompkins entertained the W. C. T. U. of Elkhart. A large company was gathered at 3 o'clock p. m. After the opening exercises the Mormon Smoot case was called up and discussed. The women were in favor of writing letters of disapproval to our National Senators and Representatives. A ten minutes' parliamentary drill was indulged in and then Mrs. Rawley took the floor and gave a very interesting report of our National Convention at Philadelphia. A five o'clock substantial supper was served, which drew a crowd and netted quite a full purse. This was the second tea at Mrs. Tompkins this year.

A large audience gathered in College avenue Baptist church, Indianapolis, Sunday afternoon, January 29, in response to a call made by Meridian Union for a public meeting. Judge Stubbs, of our Juvenile Court, spoke on the Evils of Cigarette Smoking. Judge Lindsey, of the Juvenile Court of Denver, told in a rousing speech of his experience with boys. In Colorado, the law holds the parents of truant boys responsible and punishes them as well as the boys. Meridian Union has planned for five public meetings, to be held in different churches. We also expect to give our State President, Mrs. Vayhinger, a warm welcome while in our city, in March.

The Sycamore Union is in a flourishing condition with thirty paid members. Some work done in Anti-Narcotic Department, had the Tobacco Law placed in public schools, furnished the teachers with some literature and secured the teachers to talk on Narcotics for their opening exercises one morning out of each week for the rest of the term. Have also secured a number of speakers to give Gospel Temperance talks to our young people, which are to be given in form of a lecture course. On Saturday evening, January 29, Mrs. Mix, our delegate to the National Convention and Mrs. Edith Hillis, of Kokomo, were with us. Mrs. Mix gave a very interesting report of the Convention and Mrs. Hillis in her delightful manner gave us a view of the trip, which was highly appreciated by the audience.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Haughton writes: Will you please add Benton County to my list of counties for May 18 and 19; unless Mrs. H. Hall has given it some other leader? She spoke to me about it, but I do not think I gave her a positive answer. I wrote to her yesterday and said I would send word to you to put it in my schedule, unless she had otherwise ordered. I am now on my fifth revival meeting since the middle of November and God has blessed the work and given us souls at every point. I do not know just how long I will continue here, but we are laboring and praying for a great harvest of souls. Please add this to my list of counties. The leader greatly desires that the Presidents of organized counties will inform her as soon as possible where the Institutes will be held and send her copy of the program as soon as made out and that unorganized counties will confer with her as soon as possible.

Hartford City is battling for the home and the destruction of the American Saloon by carrying out the principles for which we were organized, to educate and agitate. As a means of education we have placed Miss Willard's picture in our High School and five ward buildings and in our new Carnegie Library, also a complete set of Miss Willard's books and on the first of January, 1905, we placed in our library for the reading public the Union Signal, Patriot Phalanx and the MESSAGE. We sent a vote of thanks to the Mayor of Tipton for his stand for law enforcement. The President got the endorsement of societies aggregating 400 women, ministers and physicians to an Anti-Spit petition, which she and Mrs. Geo. L. Bonham presented to the City Council, November 8, begging that as a sanitary measure they pass an ordinance prohibiting spitting on the sidewalks, with an appropriate penalty attached for its violation. December 15 we had a splendid report of our National Convention by Mrs. Stanley. December 3 we had a W. C. T. U. Prohibition address by one of God's noblemen, Rev. Aaron Worth.

The 14th Anniversary of the Deer Creek Union held February 7th, in the West Branch church, was truly a red letter day to W. C. T. U. An all day session was held and early in the morning the people began to arrive from every direction for miles around until very soon room in the church was at a premium. Press reporters, several ministers and many members from six of the neighboring Unions were in attendance, all ready to join in the discussion of the many up to date problems of the day. Mrs. Eunice P. Wilson, Ex-County and State President, of Fairmount, most acceptably filled a part of the forenoon with a splendid address, the embodiment of which was in close touch with recent events, the outlook for the future, etc. Her wonderful ability and sincerity of purpose was greatly appreciated. Many good things were brought to the front. Among them was a request formulated and ordered sent immediately to our legislators to use their utmost power in enacting more stringent laws pertaining to the liquor traffic. In the afternoon the Rev. Enis Harvey, pastor of the Friends Church at Fairmount, made a splendid speech on The Problems of the Twentieth Century. He said: "First evangelize and civilize, procure righteous legislation by electing officers that will do their duty and many of the problems would already be solved." Impromptu speeches were made, the same conducted by Mrs. Rena P. Smith, also many other good things of merit, together with two new members (Mr. and Mrs. Eli McCracken) will serve to stimulate to greater efforts until the greatest wish of the white ribbon hosts is realized—the annihilation of the liquor traffic.

Huntington local Union closed the year's program on December 28 with an "at home" to which over two hundred and fifty guests outside of the Union were invited, each member being allowed just so many invitations. Although the weather was exceedingly inclement, there was a large representation present and the afternoon passed most pleasantly, the church being bright and gay with American flags and holly, and warm and attractive. Mrs. Josephine Walmer, of Bluffton, the National delegate to Philadelphia this fall from the group in which this county is, was the honor guest, and gave an account of the incidents of her trip and sojourn in the Quaker City and the great Convention. The address was bright and witty, and her charming personality captured her audience. A yuletide letter from Mrs. Emily Newcomb, formerly the local president, but now visiting in Sonora, New Mexico, was read, and Mrs. Lou Rall, County President, made a few remarks of farewell in view of her intended departure for California. In the receiving line with Mrs. Walmer were Mrs. Lou Rall, Mrs. A. R. Kiracofe, Vice-President of the County, and Mrs. M. J. McNaughton, the Local President. During the social hour that followed, Miss Otha Smith, of Huntington, and Miss Hattie Gordon, of Defiance, Ohio, treated the company to a continuous flow of music so conducive to sociability. Dainty refreshments were served, and sprigs of holly, tied with the white ribbon, made most fitting favors. Copies of the minutes of the State Convention were presented to the ministers present and to the officers and Superintendents of the local Union. It was a late hour when the guests departed, many expressing a desire to unite with the society at no distant date, marking the close of a most successful social affair and of an equally successful year's work.

The Anderson Union and Y. W. C. T. U., on February 6, gave a Hadley Industrial School entertainment. Mrs. Melvin Jameson, representing the Matron and answering the questions asked her and her assistants, Mrs. Schuyler and Miss Jones. The entertainment was fine. The Freewill offering amounted to $3.67. The evening was cold. Had it been pleasant many more would have responded to the invitations, which had a picture of Hadley on the left hand corner of the paper. We urge the Local Unions to try this pretty and novel plan to raise funds for the school. The petitions, as requested by the extra supplement, have been looked after in many places and some of the representatives have said if the women keep on we will have to rent an extra room to hold our mail. We are still receiving letters and cards from those whom we supposed were getting their MESSAGE. All we ask, dear women, is a little time. Very often, the day after we return the proof sheets to the printer, your word comes saying, we do not get our paper. I have no way to remedy this until the next month. By the time the March MESSAGE reaches you I will have mailed the second quarter's report blanks and let me say to you, an earnest canvas must be made. We only sent dues for 873, when it ought to have been 925 to have corresponded with that of a year ago. Let us keep up our membership in Indiana and add new ones. We want to be one of the banner States next year. To the Y. Unions, as your former Secretary, please let me urge you to send in a large amount of dues this quarter. Dear girls, I love all of you and pray much that God will bless you. Miss LaDrew will be glad, I am sure, to hear from you. Pay dues.

CLARA M. SEARS,
State Treasurer.

Marion County News—There are many new plans to benefit the Union workers in Marion County this year. In Meridian Union four meetings will be held during the winter months. Those already held have been unusually successful in regard to both the program and the attendance. New annual leaflets have been ordered. Each member will receive a leaflet at the February meeting, which she will study in preparation for the catechism and quiz, at the following meeting. Every local Union following this plan will be surprised at the amount of study required and the intelligent interest it awakens. Nothing could be more educational for new members. It is the purpose of the members of this Union to make this a year of special study of W. C. T. U. literature. They will also distribute temperance literature, when it will be read and studied by persons not yet interested in our work. Mrs. Mary Sims is President of this Union.

Broad Ripple Union, Mrs. Louise Kelso, President, held a well attended meeting in January with Mrs. Burgess. The anniversary meeting was held with the President, February 8.

To those members of the W. C. T. U. who do not take the Union Signal, the fact that Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, editor of the Indiana paper, the MESSAGE, was made President of the National W. C. T. U. Editor's Association at the National Convention, recently held in Philadelphia, will be news, but not a surprise. The MESSAGE is considered one of the best State W. C. T. U. papers published.

Marion County Institute will be held March 23 to 24. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Vice-President, leader. A good program, following close by the one prepared by Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall in the February MESSAGE, has been arranged. Mrs. Stanley's lecture on The National Outlook will be in evening of March 23. A Gold Medal Oratorical Contest will be given on the second evening under the direction of Miss Maud Baker, County Medal Contest Superintendent. Much is expected at this time, as Mrs. Vayhinger, State President, will visit Indianapolis and vicinity February 27, spending one week in the various Unions. The visit of two women with so much ability as orators, united to such sweet, Christian characters, will surely create a great increase in temperance sentiment in this locality.

Marion County will give an informal reception to Mrs. Vayhinger, March 4, in the beautiful home of Mrs. Martha Gipe, President of the county.

Central Union, of which Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter is President, held a very delightful meeting February 2d, in the home of Dr. Ellen Rogers, Local Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings. Miss Maud Baker, founder of the Indianapolis School of Expression and Physical Culture, furnished the literary program by reading a paper on What Physical Culture Means. A short, physical culture drill followed, in which most of those present participated. Miss Baker, who is Superintendent of Health and Heredity and Physical Culture will be glad to give lessons to classes organized by W. C. T. U. in any part of the State at very much less than her usual terms. The women must belong to the W. C. T. U. in order to take advantage of her offer. For information, address Miss Maud Baker, 1210 Ashland avenue, Indianapolis, Ind. The Department Superintendents in Central Union have been supplied with note books with pencil attached, in which they are expected to keep an account of their work. These reports will be called for at each Union meeting. Envelopes also given to each Superintendent, in which she is expected to keep clippings relative to all departments carried by the W. C. T. U. An exchange of these clippings will be made at each meeting, each Superintendent receiving those articles pertaining to her work. In this way, scrap books, containing much valuable information, will be formed.

The Frances Willard Memorial Service held by Central Union in the home of Mrs. Dr. Hawley, was one long to be remembered. The devotional service was impressive. Indiana's State song was sung as a solo by Miss Lillian Sedwick and Mrs. Carrie Quinn. Miss Maud Baker read a review of Bennie Babcock's book, An Uncrowned Queen, in a most beautiful manner. This most beautiful review was written by Mrs. E. G. Smith.—Editor.

Mrs. Hawley, late of Columbus, Ind., spoke of her sorrow in leaving her home Union and of the manner in which she had been made welcome by the temperance women in Indianapolis. She then spoke of Frances Willard's spotless life, which even the enemies of our cause never dared to defame; then read an original poem, In Memoriam, 1839, Frances Willard 1898, which should be in the hands of every W. C. T. U. woman in Indiana. A recitation was then given by Miss Eva Smith. Among those present were Mrs. Johnson, mother of our beloved State President, Mrs. Gipe, President of Marion County, Mrs. Williams, President of Frances Willard Union and others, among whom were a large number of young people, who assisted in serving the refreshments during the social hour. An endeavor will be made to have the original poem by Mrs. K. D. Hawley published in the issue of the Patriot Phalanx appearing February 26-28, so that any woman wishing a copy can secure one by writing to the Phalanx Publishing House, Indianapolis.

IN MEMORIAM.

From Wabash County have been called to their heavenly home on December 21, Mrs. Nellie Baker, of North Manchester Union, for so many years our very efficient County President. Only eternity will reveal the good work she did. We feel that her loss is irreparable.

Early in January Mrs. Mary Risser, of Wabash Union, was taken at the ripe age of 87 and the sweet little boy from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Macy, aged only 5. Thus the old and the young must go.

From Farmer's Union, Mrs. Hattie Unger on January 14, was called to her rest in the prime of womanhood, a true mother and an earnest worker.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. X. No. 5.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., APRIL, 1905.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

MISS PEARL RALL.

Miss Pearl Rall, of Huntington, daughter of Mrs. Lou Rall, State Superintendent of Mercy Department, after completing a course of study in the law offices of Spencer & Branyan and Judge C. W. Watkins, of Huntington, and at the Indianapolis College of Law, from which institution Miss Rall graduated and received her degree of L. L. B. and diploma, in June, 1902, she returned to Huntington and was admitted to the practice at the bar of that district circuit court, but did not take up the active practice because of ill health. On March 9, 1905, she appeared in the supreme, appellate and federal courts of Indiana and upon motion by Judge Watkins, was admitted to the practice in these. The latter court is the United States court. Miss Rall has the distinction of being the first woman admitted to practice in these courts. This high honor won by Miss Rall is most gratifying to her friends, who regard her as a young woman of rare ability and energy. Probably few men have ever been admitted at an earlier age to practice in the higher courts. Miss Rall has greatly aided the W. C. T. U. locally and in the county as an efficient worker as Press Superintendent and Reporter. In the State she has served most acceptably as State Superintendent of Franchise. The moving of the family to Los Angeles, Cal., is a great loss to Indiana W. C. T. U. To take out two such workers as Mrs. Lou Rall and her daughter means much to our State, but will no doubt be a great gain to the work in California.

VICTORY FOR SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

Through the columns of the MESSAGE I wish to thank those who so kindly assisted in the recent contest against the Ruick Bill, which was intended to repeal our present law against Sunday baseball.

On February 17, this bill was passed to engrossment in the house by a vote of 52 to 2 and it seemed that it was the purpose to rush it through both branches of the Legislature, so that the friends of Sabbath Observance would have no opportunity to protest, but letters and cards were hastily written to workers in all parts of the State and a flood of messages and petitions were sent to both senators and representatives urging that they vote against the bill. The governor was also petitioned to veto the measure if passed. The results of these letters and petitions had the desired effect and our hearts were rejoiced when on February 24 the bill was killed by a vote of 48 to 44. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, our talented Vice-President, secured and sent in 400 signatures from her own county.

South Bend.

KATIE WERT HOLLER,
State Superintendent.

NOTICE.

A diamond medal contest will be held at the Mid-Year Executive Conference at Mulberry, Clinton County, April 4. All temperance people in the near vicinity are cordially invited to attend and bring a friend. Our County Presidents living near will please announce. Admission, 25 cents.

WEEK OF PRAYER.

The annual World's Week of Prayer for the Lord's Day will be held the week following Easter week, April 30 to May 7, inclusive. We trust that every Union in the State will observe this week of prayer. Request your pastors and Sunday school superintendents to hold special seasons of prayer at this time in behalf of our Lord's Day. We would ask, too, that from the family altar petitions be sent up to God for the preservation of His holy day and that at the fire-side the children be taught the blessings and benefits of a proper observance of the Christian Sabbath.

KATIE WERT HOLLER.

HISTORY OF THE RECENT ANTI-CIGARETTE LEGISLATION.

During the legislative session held in 1903 Senator Parks, of LaPorte, introduced a similar bill to that which has now become a law. It was defeated by a large majority, ex-State Senator A. B. Baker, representative of the tobacco lobby, said to be the strongest and most wealthy lobby in the State, helping in its defeat.

In the following April Indianapolis established a Juvenile Court, with Judge Stubbs as its chief officer. The Judge found that reform measures usually successful with children, even those of degenerate parents, were ineffective with the cigarette smoking boy. He found that 80 per cent of the children brought before him were victims of this habit to a greater or less degree, and decided that the use of the cigarette was responsible for much of the increase in criminal practices among children. In the fall of 1903 a meeting was called by the Judge and his associates and a protective association was formed, its object being the enforcement of the Indiana tobacco law. The Indianapolis Local Council of Women was appealed to for moral support, lectures were given, literature distributed and the press was freely used in spreading information of the results which the violation of this law was producing among Indiana's future citizens, and the relation of crime and the cigarette habit was told in the columns and editorials of all the city papers.

A wave of reform seemed in progress, when it was discovered that the prosecuting attorney had feelings of so very sensitive a nature on this subject that it was not deemed expedient to bring one of the thousands of cases (brought before the Juvenile Court) of law violations before him.

However, the agitation never ceased and conditions did not improve. Judge Stubbs, in lecturing before the Marion County W. C. T. U. Convention, said that a bill would be brought before the State Legislature prohibiting the manufacture or sale of cigarettes and making the offense punishable by a jail sentence. This was done and every effort was made to secure its passage.

Judge Lindsley, of the Denver Juvenile Court, a fearless man and a practical worker, came to Indianapolis in February and delivered lectures in company with Judge Stubbs, who is an authority on this subject and whose lectures are considered classics by his associates.

The Parks anti-cigarette bill passed the Senate by a vote of 35 to 7, much to the astonishment of the tobacco dealers and the tobacco lobby, headed by "Cigarette" Baker.

Just before the Legislature convened the State Superintendent of the Anti-Narcotic Department wrote Judge Stubbs offering the assistance of the Indiana W. C. T. U. in any plan he might suggest. She received a courteous reply, in which she was told that the Senators were very sensitive about such co-operation, but he would mention the matter to Senator Parks. No information as to the Senator's views was ever received by the State Superintendent, who immediately had petition heads printed and sent them, with instructions to Anti-Narcotic Superintendents, all over the State.

After the passage of the bill by the Senate, its enemies made threats of bribery and predicted that the bill would never pass the House, saying it was passed by the Senate as a joke. So great was the opposition that it was thought best by the State W. C. T. U. officers, at the solicitation of the editor of the MESSAGE, our State paper, that an extra edition be sent out. This was done, the extra containing a copy of the Parks bill and extracts from the papers containing threats from tobacco dealers and users. It also told of the dangers the bill must face during its passage through the House and gave the form of petition to be used. Every reader was urged to secure signatures to these petitions, also letters from prominent voters, and to send letters and petitions to the Representative from her district. So well did the womanhood of Indiana respond to this call that the members of the House were deluged with petitions, the Vice-President of the State securing 300. The boys in the Anti-Cigarette Leagues gave their assistance in the good work.

After the bill had passed the House the Senator who had introduced it told the MESSAGE editor that they had been much puzzled to know where all the pressure came from until they heard of the little paper's extra edition.

Two other bills were introduced relative to cigarettes. One known as the Petersburg merchants' bill, presented by Senator Milburn, eliminating the jail sentence from the former Indiana law, making it optional with the judge. It was explained by the Senator that three prominent citizens in his district had, by the efforts of W. C. T. U. members, been given jail sentences for violating the tobacco law, and while they were perfectly willing to pay their fines, they did not wish to go to jail. This bill passed the Senate and reached the second reading in the House. The other bill made the cigarette law prohibitory to boys, but not to men over twenty-one.

FRANCES E. WILLARD,

Too much praise cannot be given the promoters of this bill. Every paper in Indianapolis was opposed to it, the Indianapolis News, the paper having the largest circulation in the State, being its most active enemy. Interviews with men who were opposed to and ridiculed the bill were published; letters were published from prominent literary men, the popularity of whose works make them the idols of the hour, ridiculing the measure and every effort was made to enlist public sentiment against it. It passed each reading with small majorities, amid amendments of all kinds and discussions as to its constitutionality, until the climax was reached at its last appearance, when Representative Baker, in voting aye, waved an envelope containing a bribe of $100 which had been handed him by "Cigarette" Baker, asserting that other members had received similar envelopes. The vote was immediately taken and resulted in 72 to 7 in favor of the bill. Before the bill received the Governor's signature, its friends were very anxious, as its constitutionality was doubted, but our only anxiety now is concerning its enforcement. A similar law is in force in Iowa and Tennessee. In both States it has stood the test of the States' highest courts and also of the supreme court of the United States.

Encouraged by the passage of the bill, National Field Secretary Dr. W. A. Shaw, of the American Anti-Cigarette League, has organized an Indiana State League, with Prof. R. A. Ogg, of Kokomo, Chairman; Rev. Ross Parish, D. D., of Logansport, Vice-Chairman; H. G. Walker, of Kokomo, Field Secretary and Judge Stubbs, of Indianapolis, Treasurer. It is the earnest wish of the Indiana W. C. T. U. that these men will work with great courage and if their feelings are naturally sensitive that they will control them sufficiently to accept any assistance we can give them.

MRS. ELIZABETH G. SMITH,
State Supt. of Anti-Narcotic Dept.

SUPPLIES.

Flower Mission text cards, W. C. T. U. membership cards and envelopes and Total Abstinence pledge cards, per hundred, 25 cents; fifty for 15 cents. Send to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, 1013 North New Jersey street, Indianapolis.

The State Executive Conference will be held on April 4 and 5 at Mulberry, Clinton County. The opening meeting will be on Tuesday at two o'clock in the afternoon and closing after the Wednesday afternoon service. The members are urged to be present. Mrs. Levi Herr, of Mulberry, Chairman of Entertainment, should receive the names of all those who desire entertainment and time each person will arrive.

All material intended for publication must be in the hands of the editor before the 17th of the month.

MISS ANNA GORDON,
Vice-President-at-Large, National W. C. T. U.

No other department of our work is more educational than that of Non-Alcoholic Medication. Its teaching must be understood and practiced in order to secure advanced living and thinking.

At all Sunday services where the W. C. T. U. furnishes programs, it is now the universal custom for the regular church collection to be taken, then at the close of the W. C. T. U. speaker's address, to take a collection for the Union; this to be done by the regular church ushers.

FOR THE TREASURY.

If Mrs. Tilbury, of Missouri, could set a hen and earn $5.00 for prohibition, many W. C. T. U. women and girls can set a hen and earn $5.00 for W. C. T. U. educational purposes. We cannot hope for victory until a great educational work is done and thereby we gain the membership and influence that will enable us to win the victory.

By educational work, I mean that every Union should hold at least one evening meeting in a home quarterly—in the home because of the social feature. Every Union should have at least four public meetings a year; if possible, to have an excellent speaker each time. If all the State speakers have been heard and others are desired, for information regarding national speakers, write to our National Secretary, Mrs. Susanna M. D. Fry, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill.

Each year a Union is supposed to have a plan for special educational work. This is well. Whatever the greatest need of the community, that is the thing to work for. To accomplish results, secure at least three different kinds of literature on the subject and then systematically distribute one kind thoroughly from house to house. Have a special meeting on that subject and so on, until some definite work is accomplished. It can be done. Distribute the National Annual Leaflet to the educated people of the community. Secure subscriptions to the Union Signal. To accomplish the larger results, it requires money for purchase of supplies and sustaining of the work. Set a W. C. T. U. hen and earn $5.00, more or less, for the treasury.

PEACE AND ARBITRATION.

Our thirty-first annual report is a great improvement. The programs, the county and local directory and the directory of department superintendents are all very helpful and will, it is to be hoped, be continued. Superintendents are reported, I believe, for thirty-seven counties. Of these, only seven have reported names of Superintendents for the Department of Peace and Arbitration. To these and to a few more that I know of and to the County Presidents not reporting Superintendents of Peace, I have just sent out a circular letter and programs, with report, from which I hope to hear from time to time.

It does seem—as the daily papers bring us the harrowing tidings from the far east of carnage and cruelties, of terrible determination on the part of each nation to fight it out to the bitter end and of suffering too horrible to be dwelt upon—it does seem that the Christian women of the world ought to be heard in protest against the continuance of the war. At least I do hope that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will faithfully agitate the theme of Peace and Arbitration and that Indiana will not be behind in the matter of holding meetings and scattering literature on the subject. I am always glad to get a letter from a W. C. T. U. sister asking for literature or for information which I can supply. With a small expenditure in this line we may scatter seeds that will hasten in the kingdom of good will. The enemy is sowing tares of militarism at a cost of millions of money and thousands of human lives. Let us oppose to this our mite of protest and our earnest prayers for peace—universal peace. This only is true victory.

Richmond, Ind.

H. LAVINIA BAILY,
State Superintendent.

MERCY DEPARTMENT.

I find in the program printed in the Minutes that the Departments of Peace and Arbitration and Mercy have been combined, to which I have no objection whatever if a part of it had represented the Mercy work, but as it does not, I send herewith two programs, which I hope will be used by as many Unions as possible, especially by all those having a Mercy Superintendent. All those who use this should report the same to the State Superintendent of Mercy when making yearly report.

Your present Superintendent will resign her position at the Mid-Year Executive meeting and recommend another to take her place who will strive just as earnestly to urge the work forward, and I hope that every local and county superintendent will write to her as soon as her name is announced through the MESSAGE and endeavor in every way to advance the cause of kindness and mercy to all God's speechless animals. I shall ever pray God's blessing to rest on every worker in the ranks of the White Ribbon army.

PROGRAM NO. 1.

Devotional.
Responsive reading found in Mercy Supplement.
Repeat Mercy Pledge and sing Mercy hymn.
Roll Call, answered by gems of poetry relating to kindness to animals, or other quotations from prominent writers relating to animal life.
Paper—What are the Birds Worth?
Discussion.
Recitation—Spare the Birds. (See Mercy Supplement.)
Secure signers to the Bird Pledge.
Song—Scatter Sunshine.
Adjournment.

PROGRAM NO. 2.

Devotional—50th Psalm.
Singing Band of Mercy Hymn:
(Tune—America, or other P. M.)
O, sweet Humanity,
Lifting, from sea to sea,
Protecting hands
And voices winged with prayer
Lord of the earth and air,
Of sea and caverns there,
Breathe Thy commands!
Where toil dumb laborers
For gain and ease not theirs,
Stay Thou the blow!
And where Thy cattle moan,
Famished and fevered grown,
O, teach man's heart of stone
Pity to know!
—Mrs. Fairchild, of Chicago.

Roll Call, answered with short stories illustrating faithfulness of animals
Paper—Woman's Responsibility to Our Speechless Friends, the Animals.
Discussion.
Recitation—Kinship, by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.
(See Mercy Supplement.) Lou E. RALL,
State Superintendent.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

We have only two County Superintendents in the Department of Soldiers and Sailors and I desire very much to make a nice scrap-book for the State by the close of the year and will be grateful to any that will assist me by saving clippings on this subject and send to me not later than August 15.

MRS. LIZZIE HEATH,
310 E. Walnut st., Indianapolis. State Superintendent.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

Some things the Sabbath Observance Department would like to see accomplished this year:

1. Have a Superintendent for every county.
2. Have a Superintendent for every Local Union.
3. Work in harmony with other organizations. In union there is strength.
4. Request Unions to make offerings for literature. Leaflets have had an important part in most reforms. In this work they should be freely circulated at factory gates on Saturday evenings, that the men may be reminded that the next day is a holy day and not a holiday; at the postoffice on Sunday mornings; at the churches, the Sunday schools and the L. T. L.'s; from house to house and at all public gatherings.
5. Ask pastors to preach upon this subject. Most ministers will gladly comply with your request.
6. Furnish your editors with short, up-to-date items on the Sabbath question. The importance of the public press as an educator should never be forgotten.
7. Ask the co-operation of the young people's societies of the various churches. Also present the subject at the mid-week prayer meeting.
8. A systematic crusade for Sabbath observance pledge signing should be inaugurated in every community.

9. Circulate petitions for a Sunday rest law.

10. Petition the postoffice department to close local postoffices on Sunday. They are kept open or closed as the public desires. Have Christian workers circulate petitions asking that they be closed. If possible, secure the help and leadership of the ministers and then get the names of leading business men to head these petitions. A form of petition may be secured from your State Superintendent or on page 71, Appendix B, of the Sabbath Manual.

11. Educate the people not to patronize places of business on Sunday and urge the merchants to agree among themselves not to keep open on that day.

12. To make the home life interesting, pleasant and profitable on the Sabbath day will bring its reward. Leaflet No. 16, Sabbath Sunshine in the Home, offers some excellent suggestions.

KATIE WERT HOLLER,
State Superintendent.

The Indianapolis Central Union has issued an elaborate annual program. This was made possible by an advertisement being secured which paid for 200 copies of the book. The advertisement is of the Physio-Medical College of Indiana, located at Indianapolis. It is reasonable and most fitting that this School of Medicine should thus co-operate with the W. C. T. U., inasmuch as in all its practice it discards the use of alcohol and all other narcotics as medicines.

THE PRESS.

In her circular letter, our National Press Superintendent gives the following helpful suggestions:

Give to the press all of your news. Keep the papers in touch with your Unions and posted on the work and doings of your Union. Have at least one parlor meeting this year in the interests of the Press Department, inviting as special guests the newspaper people of the city or town; make it an enjoyable occasion and get the editors to add to the enjoyment by giving short addresses or papers.

She urges the keeping of a careful record of all work done and more columns maintained than last year. She also urges the saving of the clippings in some way and thinks the scrap-book the better way. She offers a year's subscription to the Union Signal again this year for the best scrap-book put in her hands at the next National convention. Let us bring the prize to Indiana again, sisters. We can, for we have. For the best scrap-book taken to the next State convention, I will give as a reward one year's subscription to the Union Signal. Keep a careful record of all that you are doing and I hope to be able to send out the blank reports soon and will as soon as I receive them.

If the County Press Superintendents will kindly send me the names and addresses of their local Superintendents, I will be glad and am anxious to send them press literature which will be helpful to them in the work. When a new one is appointed, please send me her name. Perhaps I can assist her in some way.
LAURA G. CAMMACK,
Converse, Ind. State Superintendent.

HADLEY INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Six or seven Unions have lately sent offerings of from $1.35 to $5.00, and Miss Cora Ashcroft, a member of Anderson Y., has sent $10.00, for which we are very thankful. There are about 270 Unions in Indiana and since State convention only three have held contests according to the constitution and but seventeen sent offerings for the support of Hadley Industrial School. The school belongs to the 270, but these 20 Unions are the only ones contributing in five months!

What is your duty towards Hadley Industrial School? A small offering from each Union would pay all bills and put us out of debt. See the February MESSAGE and again read the appeal for Hadley. Besides the $800, we are needing supplies for the house, such as table linen, granite ware, a patent churn, rag carpet rugs, a horse and buggy, etc. We have been obliged to order about forty dollars' worth of new fence, but no money in the treasury to pay for it. We wish to express our thanks for all favors and gifts to the school. On behalf of Managing Board,

LIZZIE C. HANN,
President.

When the preachers speak the word the church will fall in line, and when the church seriously attacks the liquor traffic the battle will be won.

ITINERARY OF STATE LECTURER.

The train over the Vandalia was more than an hour late when we reached South Bend, February 18, but I found dear Mrs. Fassnacht at the station. We were driven to the beautiful home of Mrs. Paxton, where, to my great surprise and delight, I found about one hundred invited guests to receive me. This is part of a tired heart's reward here, to know that loyal hearts place their own true hands underneath each burden we strive to bear, and, oh, how often we find these burdens borne so bravely and cheerfully by the local workers that we forget there is any sacrifice at all in the service.

Our meetings there were full of hope. The cause is popular. I was entertained in the splendid home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Campbell. That, with the reception by the W. C. T. U. and the churches, gave me many blessed memories of South Bend.

The evening at Elkhart was also most enjoyable. Our dear Mrs. Travis had been quite sick, but was able to go to the church for the first time in many months. One thing impressed me, the meeting was held in a conservative Presbyterian church and I found them just as aggressive and determined as the Methodist congregation I had met in the morning. I felt truly,

"The earth is sweeping heavenward's way,
Though burdened with its sorrow,
And where the vanguard fights to-day
The rear will camp to-morrow."

On Monday evening I spoke for the Y. of Richmond, and March 9 and 10 was spent with Mrs. Hall's veterans at Franklin. Their Institute was a decided success. The paper by Dr. Terhune on A Pure Food Law was worth the entire cost of the Institute. An able discussion of Patent Medicines by Franklin physicians was enjoyed by all. Many new members are added to the Union each day.

Sunday night I was requested by my own pastor to fill his pulpit at the First Presbyterian Church at Liberty. As a surprise for me, my own loyal Union worked up a union service, and Liberty has not had such another audience at a W. C. T. U. meeting in her history.

I have twenty-seven new members to report since my last. But, sisters, to get new names is not enough. We must hold the old ones, and to do this let us set every woman to work. I go to Indianapolis next.

ELIZABETH T. STANLEY.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Much interest is being manifested at the present time in the Loyal Temperance Legion work all over our State. I have been in correspondence with several Legions who are reporting splendid work and every few days Mrs. Mix and myself are hearing of some place desiring a Legion where none has been heretofore. These things are encouraging. A call has come from Moore's Hill for an organizer for a Senior Legion. The Bedford Legion has a class which will graduate about April 1 and in Kokomo a new Senior has been organized with about twenty members. This Legion is known as the Anna A. Gordon Senior and meets every Monday evening. It is divided into two classes, one studying volume 1 of the Manuals preparatory to graduation and the other the civil government manuals of the Seal course. The meetings are made lively and interesting and the attendance is splendid, as is also the interest. The Sunday Morning Legion is known as the Ida M. Mix Legion, they desiring to bear the name of our beloved State Secretary.

It is time we were thinking and planning for our State convention. From present indications, the convention will be held July 27 and 28 at Acton Park Assembly. The Assembly has very graciously invited us to hold our convention there, providing for us entertainment during the convention time. This is a splendid opportunity, a central place and pleasant surroundings, together with the fact that we are to have the best convention Indiana has ever had. I want to urge upon you the necessity of beginning now to plan to be at the convention and to see that your reports are in the hands of the proper officers by June 15, so that you will get your just deserts in the convention. You will hear from the Treasurer soon regarding the payment of dues. Watch each Message for items concerning the convention.

Indiana is expecting to have a real treat in the visit of Herbert C. Shattuck, President of New York, who, if present plans carry out, will be in our State for one week during July. Mr. Shattuck is a bright, energetic young man, a splendid speaker and a successful worker and will be warmly welcomed in our State. We are hoping he may also be in our convention. Also Miss Wintringer, editor of the Crusader Monthly, will very likely be in our convention and we are sure to receive great inspiration from her. Let us be earnestly at work to bring up our work in each local Legion and if there should be any one who sees this who does not get the Crusader, I urge upon you to subscribe at once, as we must have it to keep properly in touch with the work. The price, 25 cents a year, is so small that none of us can afford to be without it. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel more determinedly than ever and we shall succeed beyond our highest hopes.

Kokomo, Ind.

EDITH HILLIS.

BRIEF NOTES.

Mrs. Gulie E. Shugart, Grant County's beloved President, organized a new Union, March 1, at Maple Run, with twelve regular and three honorary members.

With Mrs. Laura Wert-Axtell as President and Mrs. Mabel Jeffries-Locke for Secretary, Colfax Union is reviving and new members are added nearly every meeting.

Muncie Union mourns the loss of a beloved member, Miss Margie Collins, aged 19 years, who has been called home. She was much interested in the temperance work.

Elkhart Union held a Frances E. Willard memorial service in the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Stanley made a fine address; new members received and a good collection.

Mrs. Etta Peters, Grant County's Evangelist, and Mrs. Ida Cunningham, Secretary of the Loyal Temperance Legion Branch, have almost completed a tour of the local Unions in the county.

Monrovia Union worked hard to help secure the passage of the anti-cigarette law, and has written the United States Senator asking his influence toward unseating Reed Smoot, Senator from Utah.

Mrs. Thomas Sedwick entertained members of Central Union in her home, 1420 South Harlan street, March 10. Sandwiches, pickles and coffee were served. The evening was much enjoyed.

Mrs. S. M. Stahl, of Hartford City, organized a Union of nine members at Ingalls. By invitation of the Methodist pastor, Rev. J. W. Berba, she spoke twice in his church with great acceptance to pastor and people.

Bluffton—Frances Willard Union met with Mrs. Ratliff, Mrs. McFadden presiding. After an interesting business meeting Mrs. McFadden spoke on Our Mercy Work. Reading by Myrtle Millington. Several ministers present.

Chapin Park Union has raised for the Frances Willard Hospital, in Chicago, half enough money to furnish a room and has invited the other Unions to make up the amount, so that St. Joseph County may have a room in the hospital.

Friends of Mrs. Ada B. Leck, State Superintendent of Fairs and Open Air Meetings and formerly President of Marion County W. C. T. U., will regret that her health is not improving and that it is again impossible for her to receive the visits of her friends.

St. Joseph County—The South Bend Tribune, of February 20, said of Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley: She presented her thoughts in a clear, clever and very convincing manner and in such a fascinating way as to not only delight, but to enthuse her auditors as well.

The Clara Sears Y., of Richmond, had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley at a meeting held on March 6. There are now over twenty members and they are writing a serial story entitled the Sunny Side Y. Each member writes a chapter in turn.

In the death of Mr. Hobbs, of Ireland, DuBois County, our temperance cause has lost a valued friend and worker. He was ever ready and anxious to help his dear, good wife in whatever W. C. T. U. work she planned. Thus our friends are passing over and our hearts are sad.

Members of Central Union had two very pleasant surprises at their last meeting. The first was the presence of Mrs. Mary Moody, who has been confined to her room since last November and the other a loving letter from Mrs. Hattie W. Brand, in which was a generous donation for the treasury of Central Union.

Hartford City has had the pleasure of having Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, our State President, for two premium lectures. It was an inspiration to hear her. The people were well pleased. I heard the Christian minister say that it was the finest exposition he ever heard on that subject. We were delighted to have such a sweet spirited, noble hearted woman in our homes. We secured five new members and expect to have another premium lecture before the fall convention.

Crown Point Union held a very interesting Frances E. Willard memorial service February 17. A very impressive review of Miss Willard's life was given by Rev. T. H. Ball. In memoriam, by Ella Warner; Frances E. Willard's Message to the Womanhood of the Age, by Mrs. Gibbs; solo, Love and Do, Mrs. Vilmer.

Rev. Alice Ruth Palmer organized a Union at Sheridan, March 10, with Mrs. Rev. Hopkins as President and Mrs. Laura Owens as Vice-President. They will come into the State in June with twenty charter members. Miss Palmer spoke to a full house there at the Friends' Church. All Christian denominations of the city were represented.

Mrs. Toner writes: Morgan County Institute will be held at Morgantown, May 17 and 18. Date was changed on account of bad roads. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, Leader. The County Union is making plans for a successful Institute. Mrs. Vayhinger spent the 21st and 22d of March in Morgan County. She is an inspiration to all White Ribboners.

Normal City Union, Muncie, observed Frances Willard memorial at the M. E. Church on Sunday evening. Mr. C. J. Everson, pastor, gave a most tender tribute to Miss Willard's loving, lovely Christian life. The President, Mrs. Ella Bond, gave an original poem, affectionately dedicated to the members of the Union. We had a full house and an excellent collection.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley addressed the people at the morning services in the Presbyterian church at College Corner, January 29, on the subject, Thou Hast Not Dealt So with Any People. In the afternoon at the same place she gave her report of the national convention to an appreciative audience. Both services were greatly enjoyed. Collection at the morning service, $5.36.

Prohibition Rally Day was observed by Meridian Union, Mrs. Simms, President, March 19, by services in the United Brethren Church at 10:30 A. M. Mrs. E. G. Cornelius conducted the devotional exercises and a sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. Spurgeon Parker. Also in the Irvington M. E. church, where Mrs. M. W. Bond conducted the devotional services and the pastor, Rev. W. G. Clinton, preached the sermon.

Indianapolis Frances Willard Union held a commemorative meeting for Frances E. Willard at the home of Mrs. William Blodgett, February 14. Mrs. McWhirter gave a most excellent address on the early part of her life. Mrs. Scott and others gave short talks. A duette by Mrs. Wert and Miss Blodgett; a recitation, Marie Wilson; solo, Earl Oldridge; recitation, Eva Smith; a social hour while refreshments were served.

Grant County Executive held a special meeting in Carnegie Hall, Marion, to arrange the program for the annual Institute, which will occur at Jonesboro March 30-31. On the first evening of the Institute, Mrs. Julia Overman, State Superintendent of Medal Contests, will conduct a Matrons' Diamond Medal Contest, with a musical contest in connection. Mrs. Elizabeth Houghton, Institute Leader, will deliver a lecture on the second evening.

Warren Union observed Frances Willard Memorial Day and in the evening Mrs. Josephine Walmer, of Bluffton, gave her report of the National Convention. Surely we have a perfect right to say that it cannot be excelled. As a W. C. T. U. member she is an organizer; as a Christian she is a consecrated woman. May we have more such W. C. T. U. women. She pinned on ten ribbons and we had a gain of seven members, and some good seed sown that will bring forth fruit in time.

The Union Signal, issue March 9, contains letters from W. C. T. U. Presidents of twenty-one States, giving the status of temperance legislation. The information contained therein is what every W. C. T. U. worker in Indiana needs. If you are not a subscriber, send 5 cents for this copy of the Union Signal. Read it and get your husband to read it and then give to your pastor to read; afterwards, give it to a good lawyer to read. Send to the Union Signal, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill.

Union memorial service was held in the U. B. Church on Sunday evening, February 19, in honor of Miss Willard. Three pastors gave addresses on the subjects mentioned in the MESSAGE. The fourth took Miss Willard as a patriot. They all did honor to their subject and to themselves. The choirs of the different churches united in the music. A quartet of young men rendered Ashamed of Jesus in a very impressive manner. The church was packed and the offering was very creditable.

Elkhart Central Union was elegantly entertained, one evening recently, at the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Steward. Washington and Frances Willard were the themes that engrossed the attention of a large gathering of old and young people. Mrs. Carrie Nation sold hatchets and gathered a fine sum of money therefrom. These were red hatchets with white ribbon W. C. T. U. bows tied on, white hatchets with red spots, silver hatchets and gold ones. The stars and stripes floated above, while the young people gave instrumental music, songs and recitations. Three ministers made short speeches and a Michigan woman told of the great L. T. L. banquet at Philadelphia. The evening was spent in delightful enjoyment. Delicate refreshments were served.

MRS. MARY H. HUNT,
Superintendent Scientific Education, National W. C. T. U.

South Bend—Chapin Park Union observed the Frances Willard Day. There was a good attendance and a fine program was given. Talks on her earlier life, home and environments, on her leadership, strength and power as an organizer, were given and extracts were read from the last number of the Union Signal, which were well received. There were also several good musical numbers given. The afternoon was well spent and Frances Willard seemed nearer than ever. Surely she is not dead, but still lives.

Syracuse Union was recently organized by Mrs. Louisa B. Arlen, of Kosciusko County. President, Mrs. Louisa B. Arlen; Vice-President, Mrs. Ida Given; Corresponding and Recording Secretary, Mrs. Jennie Weaver; Treasurer, Mrs. Alice B. Dolan; Superintendents—Press, Mrs. Pearl Darr; Literature, Mrs. Ella McPherson; Sabbath Observance, Mrs. Mary Bailly; Flower Mission, Mrs. Geo. Weyricks; Mothers' Meetings and Medal Contests, to be supplied; Parliamentary Law, Mrs. L. B. Arlen. Thirty members and an L. T. L.

Princeton Union. On receipt of our MESSAGE SPECIAL some of us went right out that day through snow and slush with the anti-cigarette petition and had the twenty-five voters' names and the promise of letters to send the next morning. We held a public Willard memorial service, at which there was excellent music and an address by the superintendent of our city schools. The collection for the memorial fund amounted to more than was asked for. We received four new members. A Union Signal social was held on March 20, Neal Dow's birthday. On the 2d of March we packed a barrel for the Hadley School. We are hoping for opportunity to organize new Unions in the neighboring villages.

Broad Ripple January meeting was held at Mrs. Burchess' and was well attended. Our February meeting was held at the home of our President, Mrs. Kelso, and was well attended, but the weather was very bad. It was our seventeenth anniversary day. The different Superintendents of Departments gave their reports for as long and as far back as the departments had been carried. A most delightful lunch was served, which had been prepared by our President. Frances E. Willard memorial services were held Sunday, February 26, at the Broad Ripple Christian church.

Miss Alice Ruth Palmer has organized six Unions since our State convention in October. By appointments, made under direction of the committee of the Friends' Western Yearly Meeting for the Suppression of the Liquor Traffic, Miss Palmer has been speaking to large audiences every day for a fortnight. We welcome all new Unions and new members. We hope that the Ingalls Union will be aggressive. Mrs. Julia A. Trish, of Warsaw, is our State Superintendent of Work Among Foreign Speaking People. She has literature in great quantities and is anxious to help local Superintendents. Many Unions should carry on this work.

Mrs. Ethel Bair, County Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction in Public Schools, secured a place on the program of the County Teachers' Institute in November for Physiology and Scientific Temperance and Mrs. Nicely, Superintendent for Central Union, very ably presented the subject. Mrs. Bair, with local Superintendents, has attended the February Institutes of the township teachers and secured a place on the programs of their March Institutes, to be presented by one of their own members. The South Bend schools are doing better in this subject than for many years and the county teachers seem already interested.

The regular meeting of Meridian Union on March 8, was opened by repeating the pledge and singing the temperance doxology. After the business Mrs. Julia Goodheart, long connected with the Board of Children's Guardians, read an instructive paper, In the City's By-Ways, in which she gave personal experiences. Our Union is preparing to organize an L. T. L. at the Children's Guardians' Home. Judge Stubbs also spoke to us of the law just passed by the Legislature, which provides for the punishment of any adult who in any way contributes to the wrong doing of a child. Our attendance is fine and we are adding to our membership each month.

Marion County gave the State President an opportunity to meet in a personal and social way the women of the W. C. T. U. and other friends, at a reception given in the beautiful home of the President of the county, Mrs. Martha Gipe. The rooms were decorated with spring flowers; young ladies from the different Unions presided at the tea table and in the dining room, where orange ice and white cake, emblematic colors, were served. The flowers in this room were daffodils. Mrs. Gipe was assisted by the Presidents of local Unions and the County officers. Mrs. Vayhinger was entertained by her sister, Mrs. Thomas Sedwick, during her stay in Indianapolis.

The visit of Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, State President of the W. C. T. U., was much enjoyed by Marion County women. One new Union was organized. It will be called the Culla Vayhinger Union, in her honor. The Sunday meetings, held in the First Baptist church in the morning, under the auspices of the Central Union and in Howard Place M. E. Church in the evening, by Northeast Union, were largely attended and much enjoyed. Cordial invitations were given Mrs. Vayhinger by the pastors of both churches to visit them again. Seventeen new members were added to Northeast Union at this service. Nearly all Unions in the county have an increased membership as a result of Mrs. Vayhinger's visit.

Central Union held a Sabbath Observance meeting, March 16, in the home of Mrs. W. D. Cooper. Mrs. Sperry led the devotional exercises. Rev. Joshua Stansfield, an honorary member of this Union, spoke on the subject, The Liquor Traffic an Enemy to Sabbath Observance. Rev. Wm. Criley's subject was, How We Shall Spend the Sabbath. Mrs. Brumleigh, of the Door of Hope, gave a statistical report of the work done in the Home in the last six months and asked the members of Central Union to visit the institution. Miss Lucretia Hobart, Superintendent in Central Union of the Hadley School, gave a very interesting talk of the school's past and of what was hoped for in the near future. Miss Irene Bowman and the Misses Reynolds furnished vocal and instrumental music. Miss Maud Baker gave a recitation in her own charming manner.

Oxford Union observed Frances E. Willard Memorial Day on Sunday and had a very interesting meeting and a much larger crowd than last year. The pastors and musicians of the town assisted. Solos were sung from the Temperance Songster and the choir furnished two temperance songs. The Presbyterian minister's wife gave the biography of Miss Willard. She is not a member, but was much interested in her subject and she pleased the audience very much. One new member was secured, which makes four for us this quarter and five since the State convention. Our County President, Mrs. Amanda Smith, made the collection speech, telling in a few well chosen words the story of The Living Monument We Build. Mrs. Lily M. Petree gave Frances E. Willard's Message to the Womanhood of the Age. The people here seem to be waking up to the aim of the W. C. T. U. and we thank God and take courage.

Liberty Center Union is much encouraged and is doing some work for the cause it represents. On December 19, we had with us Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, who gave us a most excellent address and every one who heard it was much benefited and I am sure our people would greatly enjoy hearing her again. January 2, we had with us Mrs. S. M. Stahl, who conducted a very successful Mothers' Meeting in the afternoon and five gave their names for membership and in the evening she delivered a lecture to a good size audience, which was much appreciated by all who heard it. January 17, Mrs. D. A. Walmer, our beloved County President, gave her report of the National convention to a very appreciative audience, after which membership was solicited and twelve names were secured, of which nine were honorary members. We are endeavoring to faithfully sow the seed and God will surely give the harvest in due season.

The newly organized W. C. T. U. of Syracuse had the pleasure of the services of Rev. M. A. Tompkins, of Elkhart, recently, on Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday evening at the U. B. Church she discussed the departments of the work, emphasizing Mothers' Meetings, L. T. L. work, Scientific Temperance Instruction, etc. A Frances E. Willard memorial service was held at the M. E. Church on Sunday afternoon. Appropriate music was furnished by the choir, of which the most impressive was the song composed to commemorate the last words of Miss Willard, How Beautiful to be with God. Mrs. Tompkins spoke to a large and appreciative audience on Frances E. Willard as an Educator, Organizer and Reformer. Her remarks were entertaining and enlightening and were well received. On Sunday evening at the U. B. Church she preached on Faith. Her services were a great inspiration and encouragement to the local work here.

Tippecanoe County. There have been two new Unions organized in Tippecanoe County through the work of Miss Eliza Baker, the County President, and Mrs. Sarah Edgerton. These offsprings of the LaFayette Union are called the Monon Union and the Edgerton Union. In the fall a contest to secure new members was engaged in and as many of the new members reside in West LaFayette, they decided to form a new Union and to call it the Edgerton Union. A reception in honor of the new members was given at the home of Mrs. C. C. Robinson. At the last business meeting of the LaFayette Union, $25.00 was donated towards the equipment of a bath room in the Hadley Home for Girls and a letter has been received acknowledging the receipt of the money. This money is the result of a rummage sale. A box of flowers was recently sent by Tippecanoe County to Governor Hanly in appreciation of his attitude towards pending temperance legislation and a very kind letter in reply was received from him.

Chapin Park Union (South Bend) recently gave a delightful musical and literary entertainment at the home of Mrs. Fassnacht. Although it was a cold night, the spacious rooms were well filled and all enjoyed an excellent program, each number receiving a hearty encore. A paper, The Greatest Trust of All, was read by Mrs. Priscilla Beyrer. The central thought was that the child entrusted by God to the care of parent, teacher and the church was the greatest trust—that these three factors should combine for the moral, physical and intellectual growth of the child. A request has been made to have this paper published. Rev. Rice, of the Christian Church, spoke on the advanced work of the W. C. T. U. and the Frances Willard Temperance Hospital at Chicago, with which the W. C. T. U. is so well acquainted. The entertainment was given to raise funds toward furnishing a room in the hospital, feeling that this is one of the very best educational forces, proving to the world that alcohol in any form is absolutely unnecessary in medical or surgical cases. About $30 was received. The room, when furnished, will be named the St. Joseph County W. C. T. U. room.

Allen County Institute was held in the M. E. church, Monroeville, March 13-14. Mrs. Mary Hadley-Hall, Leader. Much interest was manifested. After the necessary routine of business for the organization of the Institute was completed, the program, as given in the MESSAGE, was carried out with few variations. The evening address was delivered by Mrs. Hall to a large and attentive audience. Though the weather was very unfavorable, on Tuesday the ladies marshalled their forces and took up their work with renewed zeal. A delegation from Crescent Union was present, also several from Hoagland. Greetings were received from Ft. Wayne Union. A goodly number of gentlemen were present during the entire session. Dinner was served in the church parlors by the ladies. Very interesting papers were read. Subscriptions were received for the Union Signal, American Mother and Crusader Monthly. Many new members were added to the roll. A Loyal Temperance Legion of twenty-two members was received. The last evening, a silver medal contest was held. Miss Hallie Hume received the medal. Music was furnished by the Eureka quartette. A solo by Miss Kittie Ireland was enjoyed. The auditorium was filled to overflowing, making it necessary to open the doors to the lecture room. Many stood through the entire service. A generous collection was received from the appreciative audience.

IN MEMORIAM.

ELNORA CRAFT—Our beloved sister, Elnora Craft, of Hartford City, departed this life January 7, to join the angels on the other shore. At the age of 14 years she was converted and joined the M. E. Church and has had a rich Christian experience. At all times the burden of her life was to see the cause of Christ advanced. We shall miss her.

MRS. KATE T. A. STRAW—Resolutions by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Tippecanoe County, Ind.: Resolved, That since it has been the will of our Heavenly Father to remove from among us a faithful and earnest worker of our Union, Mrs. Kate T. A. Straw, that we shall ever endeavor to cherish her in our memories and keep forever fresh in our minds her deep interest and excellent work as County Corresponding Secretary, which office she held until her death.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family and to the MESSAGE for publication.

MISS ELIZA BAKER,
President.
MRS. W. P. JESTER,
MRS. J. H. MARQUIS,
Committee.

MRS. MARY RHODES—During the absence of both President and Vice-President, on account of sickness, the members of Northeast Union performed the burial services for their deceased sister, Mrs. Mary Rhodes, sister Sarah Henderson tying the bow of white ribbon around the casket, as instructed by the W. C. T. U. funeral ritual. Sister Rhodes departed this life February 24. She has gone from us, but our loss is her gain. She has left the blessed assurance that she was going home to receive her crown. We shall miss her in our meetings, but hope to meet in a better world where there will be no more parting and no more tears.

CICERO QUINN—On February 26, Cicero Quinn died of pneumonia after a very short illness. The loving sympathy of women in Marion and other counties, where Mrs. Quinn is known as a tireless W. C. T. U. worker, goes out to her in her time of trouble. Four children are left fatherless by the death of Mr. Quinn.

MRS. IDA COPPER—Died Sunday, March 5, after having been an invalid for eighteen months. She was the daughter of a temperance worker and lecturer. At the time of her first sickness she held the position of Recording Secretary in Marion County and Treasurer of Central Union, where she had served as Union President the preceding two years. Rev. William Criley, Mrs. McWhirter and Mrs. Gipe conducted the funeral services. Her husband and a young son survive her.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. X. No. 6.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., MAY, 1905.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

Miss Mary Woodard, the newly elected State Corresponding Secretary, is a member of the Society of Friends, a graduate of Earlham College, a public speaker of ability and has a rare winsome personality. For years she has been in educational work and comes to us with valuable experience.

The Mid-Year Convention was held in the beautiful town of Mulberry, in Clinton County, a place easily accessible from many parts of the State.

Miss Mary E. Woodard, of Fountain City, was elected State Corresponding Secretary to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Harriet Brand, resigned on account of having been elected National Treasurer.

By Mrs. Brand's election it seemed that Indiana's loss was irreparable, but in the election of Miss Woodard we are most fortunate and feel assured that we shall have the co-operation so loyally given in the past to Mrs. Brand.

The Oratorical Contest work was represented by the State Superintendent, Mrs. Julia Overman. About two hundred contests have been held since the State Convention. The aim of the Superintendent is that Indiana shall hold seven hundred this year. To do this the Unions will have to be more active during the next six months. On Saturday evening of the State Convention a diamond medal contest will be held by our State Superintendent.

Mrs. Lou E. Rall, so many years State Superintendent of Mercy, sent in her resignation because of the removal of the family to Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Flora T. Neff, of Logansport, was elected to fill Mrs. Rall's unexpired term.

Mrs. Walmer, President of Wells County, has organized eight new Unions since the State Convention. At Dana, the net proceeds of the oratorical contest held during the Institute were $35.00.

Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall moved that the County Presidents urge their Unions to hold constitutional contests for Hadley Industrial School.

Mrs. Stanley received a premium of fifty books last year from the National Superintendent for holding the best oratorical contest with largest receipts.

The Treasurer gave an itemized report. A gain of 298 members made in the first six months.

On motion of Mrs. Hall the memorial fund of $2.00 was directed sent to the National through the County and State Treasuries.

The committee directed all premium lectures won by the Unions to be given by the order of the Treasurer, as she alone is able to compare the present quarter's gain with the corresponding quarter of last year, and sometimes not sufficient dues have reached the State Treasury to warrant the lecture.

ISLAND PARK ASSEMBLY JULY 19 TO AUG. 11.

The W. C. T. U. will be in evidence during the entire session with the following workers in charge: Literature Booth—Mrs. Mary E. Balch, Louisville. Kindergartner—Miss Ruth Ransom, Chicago.

Pianist—Miss Laura Kindig, Huntington. Physical Culture and Elocution—Miss Maud Baker, Indianapolis.

Loyal Temperance Legion—Mrs. M. E. Evertson, Indianapolis.

Mothers' Meetings—Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, State President, and Mrs. F. T. McWhirter.

W. C. T. U. DAYS AUGUST 8 AND 9.

Aug. 8, 2 P. M.—Miscellaneous program in charge of departments.

Aug. 9, forenoon—W. C. T. U. Conference and address by Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, State President.

Afternoon—Lecture by Mrs. Florence D. Richards, of Ohio, National Lecturer.

Evening—Diamond medal contest by class of young men from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

The Loyal Temperance Legion in Indiana has good news for you. It is growing! It has grown in the past six months into a healthy organization and consequently its needs have grown. The Legion as a State organization has never appealed to you for financial assistance, but now we must have funds to carry on the work. No doubt you have noticed the growth and progress made in the States all about us, and the way it is opening up in Indiana for a regular campaign in L. T. L. work, but we must have people in the field. You all know how absolutely necessary has been the field worker to the spread of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and the same thing is true in the work of the Legion, and to do this we must have funds. I can appeal to you only through individuals, and this I will do in a very short time. I know you are all interested in the work of the Loyal Temperance Legion and that you will help what you can, and I appeal to every mother heart for some assistance at this time. The Legion is loyal to the mother Union and looks to it at all times for counsel and guidance, and we now feel that you are the ones to whom we must look for the financial aid we so sorely need. Send me any amount you can, and I assure you Mrs. Mix and I will use our very best judgment, together with that of some of the State W. C. T. U. officers, in its expenditure, that we may get the very largest possible results.

EDITH HILLIS.

As it is nearing the time for us to look after our financial affairs, I wish to impress upon each Legioner that their dues should be in my hands by the first of June, so that I may have plenty of time to prepare for the Convention. Our President has been urging all through the year that each Legion pay the dues for every pledged member, whether they pay their own or not, and I also think this would be a good idea, as it would give our State a better standing. This can be done by holding special entertainments or a pay social if there is not sufficient money in the treasury. I also want to remind you of Article 8 of our Constitution, which reads as follows: "The annual Convention shall be composed of the General Officers, the State Branch Secretary, County and Local Branch Secretaries and ALL PAID UP GRADUATES in attendance."

The beautiful banner which is awarded to the Legion paying the most dues will be brought to the Convention again this year, and we must not allow our Legion to keep it all the time, so every one must put forth their very best efforts to secure the largest possible number of paid members, and thus stand a good chance of securing this banner for the coming year. Again urging you to push things and to have your dues in on time, I remain yours,

NATHAN LENFESTY.

FLOWER MISSION.

This season should remind us more than ever of our duty to our suffering neighbor, as nature was never more interesting than at the present time. Let us improve the time by planting flowers, preparing for good work during the summer months.

The observance of the birthday anniversary of our dear sister, Jennie Casseday, is approaching, so let us prepare for the celebration thereof.

I wish to emphasize the importance of visiting the different State institutions upon this day. The observance of Flower Mission Day is certainly looked forward to with great pleasure by the inmates of these places, so let us give them cause to rejoice on June 9.

A very nice program is shown in the annual minutes. I would suggest using this on this day. Then, if possible, prepare a dainty luncheon, that we may feed bodies, as well as souls, with good things.

The Report blanks will be sent out soon, but I shall not expect them returned until September 15. I know that formerly the reports were sent out quarterly, but after consulting several different authorities and considering everything, I decided to send them but once.

Let us then be very careful in keeping reports. The questions below give us some idea of what work is expected in the Flower Mission department, but of course all missionary work is considered.

1. No. bouquets with Scripture texts distributed. No. text-cards tied with white ribbon.
2. No. baskets of food. Garments provided for the needy.
3. No. of delicacies furnished, such as jellies, fruits, lemonades, etc.
4. No. sick taken out riding or for an outing. Visits to the sick.
5. No. scrap books provided for the children's ward in hospitals or County infirmaries.
6. No. fans covered with Scripture texts distributed. Pictures tacked on sick people's walls.

7. No. rocking chairs or hammocks loaned or given.

8. No. hours spent in reading to the sick. Hours spent caring for the sick.

9. No. converted through the Mission.

10. No. signed pledge through the Mission.

I now have a supply of text cards on hand and will be glad to furnish them to you at 25 cents a hundred.

Remember that every dainty and bouquet must bear a card with it, or else it might not be considered in our report.

PROHIBITORY LAWS.

Kansas—44 counties without a pauper; 25 counties no poorhouses; 37 counties have not a single occupant in jails; 37 counties not a criminal case on court docket. Of the 27,000,000 people in the Southern states 17,000,000 are living under absolute prohibition.

Maine—There is not a single brewery or distillery in the state; there is not as much liquor in 50 illegal places in Maine as in one well equipped saloon in a license state; Maine has $103.75 per capita deposited in its savings banks; Illinois has only $20.75 per capita deposited; Ohio has only $11.58 deposited per capita. In the entire state of Maine there were, fifty years ago, five savings institutions, and the whole savings in five institutions amounted to less than $90,000, while to-day, after fifty years of prohibition, we have 57 savings banks in our State, 22 building and loan associations; 37 trust companies with aggregate deposits of more than $113,000,000—the savings of the people under prohibition, and there is no other thing that it can be attributed to."—Sheriff Pearson in Wisconsin Motor.

Texas—The legislature has adopted a resolution petitioning the United States Congress to amend the interstate commerce laws as to give to States the right of jurisdiction over interstate shipments of liquor coming into the various States. By the passage of the Hepburn-Doliver bill this will be accomplished.

Mississippi—William E. Curtis, writing from Jackson, Miss., to the Chicago Record Herald, says: "The prohibition movement is quite vigorous, but is confined to local elections. The prohibitionists are now paying their attentions to the members of the legislature, with a view of securing a general statutory provision and a constitutional amendment prohibiting liquor traffic entirely. Under the leadership of Bishop Gallaway, of the Methodist Church, and Dr. W. T. Lowrey, of the Baptist Church, who are perhaps the two strongest men in the state and represent the two strongest religious denominations, all but thirteen of the seventy-six counties in Mississippi now prohibit the sale of liquor and forbid people to give it away. The remaining thirteen counties have license regulations. It costs $1,000 to start a saloon anywhere in Mississippi, and in some counties the license fee is $1,500. There are no saloons in Jackson, the capital, and people tell me that it is impossible for any one to get a drink of liquor there unless a person belongs to the Elks or some other social club. Private families are in the habit of getting liquor in demijohns by express from New Orleans as they need it, and on the days preceding holidays the "jug trains," as they are called, are well patronized. The few saloon-keepers in the state have a compact organization and employ shrewd attorneys, who were able to defeat the efforts to secure a general prohibition law at the last legislature. The temperance element will renew the fight at the next session, and in case it succeeds will follow up the victory by demanding a constitutional amendment. I am told that the only places in Mississippi where whisky is sold are Vicksburg, Natchez, Greenville, Canton, Biloxi, Gulfport and the small winter resorts along the gulf coast. The town of Canton is the only station on the main line of the Illinois Central Railroad between New Orleans and Memphis at which liquor is sold."

THE UNION SIGNAL.

Price, $1.00 a year. Are you listening to the voice of Mother National? You ought to be. There is something important said every week. If you did not send in your subscription in March; send it now. Sample copies and premium announcement free. Address, The Union Signal, Evanston, Illinois. Now is the time to subscribe." P. S.—Don't forget the Crusader Monthly for the young people. Price, 25 cents a year. Sample copies and premium announcement free. Address, The Crusader Monthly, Evanston, Ill.

Mrs. Caroline M. Bayless, of Mulberry, by her minister called Saint Caroline, died April 13, after one day's illness, at the age of 80 years. She was a charter member of the local W. C. T. U. and always wore her white ribbon. She was the mother of our dear Mrs. Hattie Steckel. During the Mid-Year Executive Conference, so recently held in Mulberry, Mrs. Bayless entertained Mrs. Stahl and Mrs. Walmer.

ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW.

The enforcement of this law must be demanded over the State. In localities where it is not enforced our temperance people must seek the cause and immediately secure the remedy. This law is the result of much effort, and now its enforcement will depend upon the requirements of the communities. The newspapers are the greatest means of communication. Publish the law. Every Union should get a tactful, well-informed person to keep the subject before the people through the papers. Do not think this a matter of little importance—it is of the utmost importance, and right now is the time.

TOOLS NECESSARY FOR W. C. T. U. MEMBERS.

The Annual Report of Indiana, to be had for 15 cents of Miss Clara M. Sears, Anderson, Ind.

The Annual Leaflet, to be secured from the National Treasurer, Mrs. Harriet W. Brand—75 cents per hundred.

The Official Organ of the National W. C. T. U., The Union Signal, Evanston, Ill.—price $1.00, paid in advance.

Flower Mission Day, June 9, should be observed by every Union, at the poor farm or jail; at the closing hours of a factory, at car barns and wherever the short Gospel service and the button-hole bouquets with Scripture cards attached will be appreciated.

Hold Public Meetings if you expect your community to be interested in the W. C. T. U. Hold a Patent Medicine meeting. Get prominent physicians who do not use alcohol in their practice to take part in the program. For such a meeting it may be best to arrange to make it a parlor meeting. Have a short program—not to exceed an hour including the music. Serve refreshments. Invite the popular high school boys and girls to assist in serving.

ITINERARY OF STATE LECTURER.

Another month nearer the goal, and I pause to give you a word of good cheer from the field. Since my last I spent the 23d and 24th at Indianapolis at the splendid Institute so ably planned by the efficient leaders of Marion County W. C. T. U. Ten new members were added to the Union and the subscription list to the Union Signal received eleven names the past month.

The 25th and 26th was spent in LaFayette. On the evening of the first day we had a great meeting at the Soldiers' Home. They expect to organize a Union there later. On the Sabbath we had the women of LaFayette in a mass meeting, while our noble Governor, J. Frank Hanley, addressed the men. At the evening service in West LaFayette several new names were added to the Union—14 in the city. Miss Baker may not be physically strong but she brings things to pass anyway, and with such loyal supporters as the Robinsons and others of the first families of the city our cause will be protected there until victory comes.

The 27th found me in Otterbein. The high school there suspended one hour and the superintendent brought all the pupils to the church. The house was crowded and two hundred children took our triple pledge. The evening service, a mass meeting, brought out a fine audience. The people of Benton County are in earnest about the saloon fight. They got the citizens out for a demonstration in one of their remonstrance contests and had over one hundred carriages in the procession. They are going to close all their saloons soon.

I went to Kirklin on the evening of the 3d and had one good audience in the Presbyterian Church.

The 4th and 5th were spent at Mulberry at Mid-Year Meeting. All the reports were gratifying except the one telling how many Unions had failed to give their contest for Hadley School. Now, sisters, since we must depend on this for a working fund for Hadley let us all try once more to gladden the hearts of our brave workers out there by sending a donation now and have our contest as soon as possible.

I went to Oxford on the 6th. Held one parlor meeting with their loyal little leader, Mrs. Amanda Smith; addressed a mass meeting at the church; secured several new members; spent the following day with the city school, and about one hundred pupils took the pledge.

On the 7th I went to Boswell. They have a small but most enthusiastic Union. They send the Union Signal to all the pastors in the town, and sent $5 for Hadley School.

On the 8th I attended Mrs. Hall's Institute at Elwood. The Madison County women were very busy that day but I shall never forget the splendid noon-day reception at the City Hall. God bless them and add strength to their victorious army.

The 9th found me with Mrs. Stevenson, the matchless Corresponding Secretary of Grant County.

Gas City Union took advantage of the Portland Conference and while the preacher was away they had two meetings in the M. E. Church and got eight new members.

In the afternoon I attended a baby contest in Marion. It was the most enjoyable contest I ever attended. All of the class were under six years old. A little boy of five won the medal. Sisters, try this plan. Get the babies and the mothers will come and the fathers will follow by and by.

W. C. T. U. INSTITUTES.

In compliance with your request for a brief account of the institute work, I submit the following, expecting the reporters to give a fuller account later.

Franklin is first on the schedule and on March 9 and 10 was held good, all-round sessions, ably conducted by State Vice-President Mrs. Elizabeth T. Stanley, as Leader in Section 3. The meetings were full of interest from first to last. The presentation and discussion of pure food laws, patent medicines, franchise, etc., were participated in by the Institute Leader and leading citizens of Franklin and Whiteland. At the first evening meeting Mrs. Stanley gave At the Mercy of the State, with excellent effect. Many were deeply touched, and may we not hope, convinced that they should work for righteous laws. A gold medal contest, supplemented by good music, was the program for the second evening. Members were added to our ranks, subscriptions secured for our periodicals and the temperance cause in Johnson County greatly strengthened.

Monroeville Institute opened March 13, with Mrs. Florence Barnhart, County President, presiding, and Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall as Leader. The attendance and interest increased throughout the sessions. At the closing meeting standing room in the vestibule and aisle was at a premium in the commodious M. E. Church until the lecture room was opened. The public schools were visited and later an L. T. L. was organized with 22 pledged members, under the able leadership of Mrs. Delong. Twenty-three adult members were added to our ranks. About one-fourth of these were young men who had recently joined the church and seemed quite ready to embrace the temperance gospel also. Their great interest was evident when on the second day of the Institute they brought their dues and solicited their comrades to belong. It is needless to say that their efforts were rewarded. Able papers were read by the delegation from Fort Wayne, as well as by the local workers. Much of the success of this enthusiastic and fruitful Institute is due to the careful planning of the County President, Mrs. Barnhart.

Warren, Huntington County, under the able leadership of Mrs. Lou E. Rall, County President, was out in full force at the very first meeting of the Institute. Words of welcome by the Local President, Mrs. Irene Gard, were most cordial and were responded to by the Institute Leader, Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall. The program was well carried out. The double contest (musical and oratorical) on the last evening was greeted by an enthusiastic audience, and a ten cent admission brought a $32.00 house, with a number of complimentary. One honorary and five active members were added. Twenty six subscriptions were taken for our periodicals and a Loyal Temperance Legion composed of thirty eager boys and girls was organized. The earnest workers in charge, together with the children, were pleased to call this Legion Willard Hall Legion, for the little boy in Franklin who had been praying for the success of the work. It is fortunate in having as its leader Mrs. Ella Morrison. Resolutions were passed expressing great regret that Huntington County is soon to lose the efficient and most acceptable services of their President, Mrs. Lou E. Rall, who is soon to remove to Los Angeles, Cal. Her able and loyal Vice-President, Mrs. Kirakoff, of Huntington, was made President.

MARY HADLEY HALL.

COUNTY INSTITUTES.

Marshall County Institute was held at Bremen, Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall leader. The program, as published in the MESSAGE, was carried out with few changes. A lecture by Mrs. Hall, subject, The Gospel of Health, illustrated by charts, was appreciated by a large audience. Tuesday evening's program consisted of a lecture, music and recitations. The music was furnished by the United Brethren choir.

Wabash County W. C. T. U. Institute was held at Friends' Church, in Wabash; Leader, Mrs. Culla Vayhinger. Good attendance and a very interesting program. Paper on Anti-cigarettes, by Mrs. Sarah Haup, also paper on Non-alcoholic Medication, by Dr. Emma Holloway, were very interesting and an interesting discussion followed. Excellent lecture in evening by Mrs. Vayhinger.

Whitley County Institute was conducted in Columbia City, Mrs. Elizabeth Haughton leader. An excellent union temperance service was held on Sabbath evening in the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Haughton delivering the address. She also gave an address on Monday evening, and on Tuesday evening a class of six participated in a gold medal contest, the medal being awarded to Mrs. Shafer, of Columbia City. The contest netted the Union $24.

The Wells County Institute was held in Bluffton, and was one of the best Institutes ever held in Wells County. At the very beginning much interest was shown Mrs. Walmer, our beloved president, at her post of duty at the commencement of the sessions and continued faithful to the very last. Miss Alice Ruth Palmer was our leader. Such a sweet, pleasant woman, and every one seemed to enjoy her presence with us. Miss Palmer is educated, talented and a Godly woman.

Dearborn County Institute, held in Aurora, was a very interesting and successful meeting. Each Union in the county was represented, and the program prepared for County Institutes was carried out almost in its entirety. There were quite a number of visitors at the day sessions, while large and interested audiences attended the evening meetings. Six new members were gained for Aurora Union. A delegation from Rising Sun Union attended one afternoon and one evening. The press gave excellent reports and manifested much interest in our work.

Howard County Institute was held in the Baptist Church, Kokomo, Miss Alice Ruth Palmer leader. Every Local Union in County was represented and much interest manifested. Dinner was served in W. C. T. U. hall by the ladies. Very interesting papers were read. Miss Retta Snyder gave a recitation, which was enjoyed by all. Monday evening Miss Palmer addressed a large and attentive audience and a generous collection was received. An anthem by the Baptist Choir was enjoyed. Subscriptions were received for the Union Signal and American Mother.

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

LOS ANGELES, OCTOBER 25 TO NOVEMBER 2, 1905.

Notwithstanding the great travel of health and pleasure seekers to this beautiful land of flowers and sunshine at this season of the year, during which our convention is to be held, a one lowest first-class fare has been secured for the round trip. From Indianapolis and vicinity to Los Angeles and San Francisco and returning, without going north of San Francisco, the fare direct will be about $66.50, with only $12.50 additional to those who desire to go north from San Francisco to Portland, Oregon, a distance of 1,192 miles, either over the Shasta route or by ocean steamer. From Portland to Salt Lake City, covering 965 miles of travel, along the great Columbia river and across the State of Idaho. While this $12.50 side trip to Portland is optional, the small additional expense should be an inducement to see this wonderful country.

The Indiana delegates and visitors will go as a party in a special sleeper, leaving Indianapolis, October 18, making a short stop at Colorado Springs and spending Sunday, October 22, at Salt Lake City, arriving at Los Angeles in time to take some of the many interesting side trips before the opening of the convention. That country is now covered with a network of interurban lines.

The Indiana party will go via the following lines: From Indianapolis, the Big Four to St. Louis; Missouri Pacific to Colorado Springs and Pueblo; Denver & Rio Grande to Salt Lake City; San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railway to Los Angeles. This last named road crosses an entirely new section of country and shortens by twenty-four hours the journey from here to Los Angeles. From Los Angeles, after the close of the convention, return either by the coast or valley line of the Southern Pacific road to San Francisco, where several days will be spent in this metropolis of the Pacific coast. From San Francisco those who make the northern California and Oregon trip will go north to Portland over the Southern Pacific road, and from Portland southeastward over the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company line and Oregon Short Line to Salt Lake City. From San Francisco those who do not make the northern California and Oregon trip will go directly eastward to Salt Lake City over that branch of the Southern Pacific road. From Salt Lake City over the Denver & Rio Grande to Denver; Missouri Pacific to Kansas City; Chicago & Great Western to Chicago and the Big Four from Chicago to Indianapolis.

Stop-over privileges will be granted without extra expense at Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and all points west of Denver. Members of our party will no doubt desire to make many stops at points in the West. Free chair cars on the Missouri Pacific and Chicago & Great Western from Denver to Chicago. All tickets are good to return from any point west of Denver or from Denver as late as November 30. Sleeper rates from Indianapolis to Los Angeles, including the stops at Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City, at which places we will use the sleeper instead of a hotel, will be $8.50 for a berth—two people in a berth costing each $4.25.

All who join our party are requested to bring lunch, and those who have them, to bring an alcohol burner. Small tables and other conveniences are provided in the car, so that we may enjoy the journey most thoroughly. Arrange to make this trip yourself and invite your friends to join our party.

For information concerning the trip and for sleeper reservations, apply to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, 1013 North New Jersey street, Indianapolis, Ind.

BRIEF NOTES.

Red Key Union presented $5.00 to the Frances Willard memorial fund.

Liberty, Union County, held a mass meeting in an effort to prohibit a new saloon near the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Dora Keith's friends will be rejoiced to know that she has successfully passed through a very severe surgical operation at St. Vincent's Hospital, Indianapolis, and returned to her home at Brazil.

Mrs. Wylie, member of Seymour Union, secured twenty-eight signatures, out of thirty employees in factory, to Anti-Cigarette petition.

Notice—Membership pledge cards and membership pledge envelopes, each 25 cents per hundred; Flower Mission text cards, 15 cents per hundred. Send to Mrs. L. F. McWhirter, 1013 N. New Jersey street, Indianapolis.

In the death of Mr. F. H. Ingalls, husband of our National Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union has lost a steadfast friend and brother. We extend sympathy to the dear wife so sorely bereaved.

Seymour Union held Frances Willard Memorial Service on March 22, owing to local attractions in February. Program of readings, papers, music and addresses proved very enjoyable. Three new members were added to roll.

Lord's Day Week is appointed from April 30 to May 7, including two Sundays. This is a propitious time for the concentration of that prayer and effort for the protection of our Sabbath—just when the floodgates of desecration are opening.

Brazil Union is enthusiastically at work. Every detail of arrangements will be completed for the splendid entertainment of the State Convention next fall. Thirty-one gentlemen have recently given their names and dollars for honorary membership in the Union. Brazil's very best citizens are members of the Union and most loyally supporting the work.

On April 8 Miss Palmer met the Lawrenceburg Union in a parlor meeting and did some house-to-house visiting. On Sunday she spoke in the M. E. Church in the morning and in the German M. E. Church in the afternoon. In the evening she assisted in the Mission Chapel. Miss Palmer is an earnest worker and greatly endeared herself to the women of our Unions.

Miami County Institute was held at Amboy, in the M. E. Church, with Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall as leader. On the first evening Mrs. Hall gave a very instructive chart lecture, which was listened to by a good audience, many of the students of the high school and children from the public school being present. As there are but two organized Unions in Miami County, the Institute attendance was not very large, but a lively interest was manifested by those present, and the reports from Superintendents show that there has been much energetic work done along several lines. The departments of Medal Contest, Petition and Legislation and Anti-Narcotics have been especially active. Amboy Union alone has, in the last six months, given eight medal contests and sent out twenty-nine personal letters and petitions on subjects of moral reform to the proper authorities. By previous arrangement the State program was condensed into one day's meeting, but it was carried out with so much energy that nearly every subject was discussed. The services of Mrs. Hall were much appreciated and Miami County will be glad to welcome her again.

Benton County Executive met in the home of the County President and completed all arrangements for a County Institute to be held in Boswell, May 18-19, with Mrs. Haughton as leader. Also made arrangements to have Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, State President, come to the County in the near future.

Mrs. Hall again lectured and a number of our boys and girls recited beautiful temperance pieces. The Auditorium was filled to overflowing, so we had to open the lecture room. A generous collection was received. A large delegation from Bourbon and Nappanee was present Tuesday and helped to carry out the program. Twenty-four subscriptions were taken for the American Mother, Union Signal and Crusader Monthly, and six new members were added to our roll.

Jefferson Union held a temperance rally at Fickle in their beautiful county church Sunday afternoon, March 12. The President, Mrs. Ada Vansickle, presided, and almost all the members assisted in making the program both entertaining and helpful to the large and attentive audience. Recitations, original papers, readings and music constituted the program. The pastor, Rev. McClain, made a stirring speech in favor of the W. C. T. U. and prohibition. The County President presided over the work of the W. C. T. U. The pledge was circulated and quite a number of signatures were secured.

Resolutions—We, the members of the W. C. T. U. of Huntington County, in Institute at the First Christian Church of Warren, do hereby Resolve, That, in view of the resignation of County President Lou E. Rall, whose removal to Los Angeles, Cal., will take place in the near future, express our appreciation of her untiring zeal and earnest effort in the advancement of the temperance cause; and Resolved, That we sincerely trust that she will receive a warm welcome in her future home and that she will find many friends and a field of usefulness.

MRS. MAUD MYERS,
MRS. MARY RAY,
MRS. IRENE GARD,
Committee.

Tippecanoe County. The ladies and friends of the Unions of Tippecanoe County had the pleasure of listening to two addresses given by Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley. She addressed a mass meeting on March 27 in the First Baptist Church at LaFayette, taking as her subject the Sermon on the Mount as applied to LaFayette. Miss Eliza Baker, the County President, had charge of the meeting, and solos were sung by W. E. M. Hackleman, of Indianapolis, and Professor E. E. Trucksess, of West LaFayette. On the same evening Mrs. Stanley addressed a large audience at the West Side Baptist Church. Her subject was, The Coming Victory.

Fountain City Union is taking on new life and activity this year. On receipt of the MESSAGE extra a meeting was called and a committee appointed to circulate the anti-cigarette petition. Roswell Huff, the ten year old son of our Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Dr. Huff, secured fifty-seven signatures to the petition. On March 9 we held a Frances Willard memorial meeting. An interesting program was rendered, after which light refreshments were served. Five new members were secured. On April 5 a Sabbath Observance meeting was held. All the ministers in town were invited and a conference was held as to what we can do to promote a better observance of the Lord's Day in our community. It was decided to hold a mass meeting on the subject on May 7, following the week of prayer, in order, if possible, to cause an arrest of thought.

Greencastle Union recently held an evening meeting at Renwood, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Renick. Senator Moore, author of the Moore temperance bill, spoke on Recent Indiana Legislation. He interested and instructed us and gave us great hope, says the President, Mrs. J. P. D. John. Especially are the Greencastle people rejoiced because of an act of the Legislature which empowers a town council to describe the area within which the liquor traffic shall be confined. Thus suburban saloons can be restricted. Greencastle council will immediately be petitioned to pass such an ordinance. More than seventy-five people were present at this meeting. The City Attorney, Mr. Peck, and Mr. J. O. Cammack, of the City Council, were among the number. Mr. Cammack is an honorary member. Refreshments were served by the young people.

Bloomington honored Representative Ira C. Batman by a meeting of the citizens at the Kirkwood Avenue Christian Church to welcome him home. In appreciation of his services in the recent campaign against saloons in Bloomington, his support of the Parks anti-cigarette bill, now a law, and the successful Batman school-book bill, the W. C. T. U. and Good Citizens' League grasped this opportunity to give him a right good welcome. Mrs. Beck, President of the W. C. T. U. presided and spoke for the Women of Bloomington. Mayor Malott spoke for the City, Rev. Whitman for the Good Citizens' League, Dr. W. L. Bryan for the University, Prof. J. K. Beck for the Boys and Girls, Hon. H. A. Lee for the Bar, Messrs. Bradfute and Cravens for the Press, Rev. T. J. Clark for the Churches, Commissioner Davis for the County, and S. C. Dodds for the Business Men. Mr. Batman responded by giving The Legislature as I Saw It. Then the Doxology was sung and Rev. Neubauer pronounced the Benediction. Many citizens of Bloomington and Monroe County were present.

Peru Union held a reception at the Y. M. C. A. building on the evening of March 17. The room was beautifully decorated with palms and carnations. The national colors were prominent and Frances Willard's picture, framed in white ribbon, added beauty and meaning to the scene. Singing of America, followed by prayer by the Rev. Nyce, of the Presbyterian Church, after which Mrs. Gouser, of Kokomo, sang a beautiful solo, and this was followed by the Y. M. C. A. quartette. Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, State President, more than pleased the audience, many of whom were standing during the entire program. The closing number was a solo—If I Were a Voice—by Mrs. Gouser. A general social time was enjoyed and new interest awakened in the members of the Union, and their numbers were increased by several new names.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley's address at Oxford on Christian Citizenship was fine. She presented the work effectively. The next morning a woman came to the door of the County President and gave her dollar and said she wanted to be a member and help the good work along. Mrs. Stanley and the County President and County Superintendent of Scientific Temperance instruction visited Oxford high school and gave three very interesting and helpful talks. In the afternoon a parlor meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Amanda Smith, at which she spoke on Department work. Much interest and enthusiasm was manifested. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Stanley was presented with a souvenir china cup and saucer with the Christian Church and Oxford high school buildings painted on them.

Kate Lee Union is increasing in interest and numbers. Very nearly all the different departments of work are being taken up. Very enthusiastic are the meetings being held at the hospitable homes of the members. Twelve new members were added to the Union last month, at the lecture given at this place by Mrs. Vayhinger. Words of praise and commendation were heard from those present, and it is hoped that that forcible and earnest appeal may bring forth much fruit in the temperance harvest. The last of the month a reception was given the new members by the President, Mrs. Alma Foster, at her pleasant country home, one-half mile out of town. Very nearly all of the Union were present; also, a number of invited guests. The evening was delightfully spent in literary contests, music and social conversation. A dainty repast was served. At a late hour the guests departed for their homes, voting Mrs. Foster and the charming daughter of the house, Miss Kathrine, ideal entertainers.

Salom Union held an excellent Frances E. Willard memorial meeting in February. The hostesses, Mrs. E. W. Menaugh and her daughter, had their elegant parlors appropriately decorated for the occasion. The exercises consisted of appropriate songs, recitations, papers, short talks and presenting of souvenirs. Miss Gertrude Menaugh very efficiently presided at the piano. Among the songs was a vocal solo, Mother's Bow of Ribbon White, by Miss Blanche Wilson. Light refreshments were served. The talk of filling Indiana's remaining vacant place in Statuary Hall with a statue of the late Gen. Lew Wallace arouses in some of our minds the thought that, as the male portion of our population is already represented in this hall, and as General Wallace himself said that he owed all that he was to his step mother, Mrs. Zerelda G. Wallace, and as she was a woman of most noble character and of national fame, would it not be consistent for the Legislature of Indiana to honor the State by naming Mrs. Zerelda G. Wallace as our other chosen representative for U. S. Statuary Hall?

Boswell—In October we suffered the loss of one of our best and truest members, Miss Alice Hash, who was called home. We greatly miss her, yet the influence of the devoted Christian life she led will always be an inspiration to those who knew her, and to our work. February 19 we held a Willard Memorial, with a splendid attendance. Three fine addresses by our ministers on Miss Willard—as an Organizer, Rev. Rogers; as a Reformer, Rev. McCloud; an Educator, Rev. Leonard. The singers of the town added to the success of the meeting with special and appropriate music. A good collection received, of which we sent our $2 Memorial offering. At a recent meeting we voted to send the Union Signal to our four ministers; also sent $5.00 to Hadley Home. Our Superintendents are doing some good work. We fine a member 5 cents who appears at a meeting without her White Ribbon on. April 6 Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley was with us and delivered one of the finest addresses ever heard in our town. Two new members were added, making nine new members since January and 24 paid members in all.

Mapleton Union, Indianapolis, of which Mrs. Amanda Whitson is President, celebrated its twelfth anniversary, February 22, in the home of Mrs. D. McClintock, 3430 North Illinois street. Dr. House read a paper on Non-Alcoholic Medication. Mr. and Mrs. Felix McWhirter spoke on topics of interest to temperance people, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Six new members were added to Mapleton Union at the meeting. This Union entertained Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, Indiana State President, in the home of Mrs. Thompson, North Capitol avenue. Mrs. Vayhinger talked in her forceful and convincing manner. Seven women joined Mapleton Union at this meeting. At the regular meeting of Mapleton Union, held in the home of Mrs. Alpha Bailly, Sabbath Observance was the subject discussed. Mrs. J. Morgan, Superintendent of Sabbath Observance in Marion County, read a paper, Rev. Wood, of Hyde Park M. E. Church, talked of Sabbath amusements and Rev. Tinsley, of Mapleton M. E. church, spoke of the Liquor Traffic, an Enemy to Sabbath Observance. Two became members at this meeting.

Marion County Notes—Mrs. Ada B. Leck, State Superintendent of Fairs and Open Air Meetings, sends greetings to her sisters in this department of work and prays them to excuse her seeming neglect of her duty. Mrs. Leck was taken sick early in September of last year, and while she has hoped each week to be able to again take up the work in this department, if in no other, but she has been disappointed again and again, as she has only been able to rise from her bed for short intervals during this long period of time. She asks you to forgive her for accepting the responsibility to continue and forward this work, so dear to her heart, and to pray for her recovery, if it is God's will.

The semi annual Convention and annual Institute of the Marion County W. C. T. U. was held in the United Brethren church in Indianapolis on March 23 and 24. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, Vice-President in Indiana, acted as Institute Leader. The morning session of the first day was devoted to county work, all county officers being present and Mrs. Martha Gipe, President of the county, presiding. The six months plan of work was read by the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Nina Brigham, and it was found that the plan had been closely followed. It was decided by the convention that more work is done and more interest taken by the local Unions when a definite plan of work is prepared by the county. The local Presidents told of work done and of future plans. Though there has been much sickness during the winter, a great increase in membership has been secured and many public meetings have been held. Great attention was given to the observance of World's Temperance Sunday and Frances Willard Memorial Day and also to the anti-cigarette work. Temperance literature is being studied by our women as never before, as it has been distributed in large quantities.

Marion County has reason to be encouraged in the last six months. The visit of Mrs. Vayhinger, State President, was of great benefit to the county, as every one who heard her talk received new enthusiasm, not only in the temperance work, but in all lines of Christian endeavor. The new Union, her namesake, organized during her visit, has a most energetic and capable corps of officers and superintendents. They are gaining rapidly in membership and have plans that would do credit to the older Unions.

During the Institute fifteen departments were introduced and discussed. The question box proved most valuable, the questions asked showing thought and the answers given by Mrs. Stanley being very helpful. Mrs. Stanley delivered her lecture—The National Outlook—on the first evening of the Institute to an appreciative audience. A musical and literary entertainment was given on the second evening under the supervision of Miss Maud Baker, Medal Contest Superintendent in Marion County.

Among the many enjoyable events of the Institute was the address of Mr. Felix M. Whirter, which Mrs. Stanley pronounced the most scholarly and able he had ever given. Songs by the Rev. Sherman and wife and by Miss Ada Wheeler, a talk by Mrs. Sylvester Johnson, probably the oldest honorary member of the W. C. T. U. in the State, addresses by Rev. Sherman, Mrs. Desfette, Mrs. Brumleigh, of the Door of Hope, Mrs. Logan, former Police Matron in Indianapolis, and others, during the discussion of Mothers' Meetings and Purity, introduced by Mrs. Martha Gipe, Superintendent of this department.

Mrs. Stanley gave several recitations in her own inimitable manner during the Institute. Three little children were consecrated to the W. C. T. U. work by Mrs. Stanley, her prayer for the little ones being most beautiful. Although a feeling of sadness prevailed, owing to the absence of so many of the loved and familiar faces seen in former years, who were unable to attend on account of sickness or removal, the Institute was considered the best ever held in Marion County.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. VIRGINIA KERN—Resolutions by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of South Kokomo, Howard County Resolved, That since it has been the will of our heavenly Father to remove from amongst us a faithful and earnest worker of our Union, Mrs. Virginia Kern, we shall ever endeavor to cherish her in our memories and keep forever fresh in our minds her deep interest in the temperance work. Sister Kern departed this life March 30. She has gone from us, but our loss is her gain. Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family and to the MESSAGE for publication.

MRS. HENRIETTA ARNOLD,
President.
MRS. ROBBINS,
MRS. GWINN,
Committee.

MRS. GEORGE HODSON, a charter member of Chapin Park (South Bend) W. C. T. U., died recently of pneumonia after an illness of only one week. Mrs. Hodson was an earnest and sincere Christian and her prayers have always been an inspiration to us. The department of Sabbath Observance has lost one of its staunchest friends. Quiet and unassuming, she has left an influence for good that will ever be felt. Our heartiest sympathies are with the bereaved husband and children. Mrs. Hodson was 69 years old and her years were spent in useful labor for her Master.

ALICE LEAVELL—In loving remembrance of Alice Leavell, the only baby of the Redkey Union, and daughter of Mrs. Millie Leavell, Superintendent of Medal Contest Work.

MRS. SARAH JELLISON, of Redkey, passed from earth's labors to a heavenly reward on March 17. Mrs. Jellison was a faithful worker. She was Superintendent of Flower Mission Work for a number of years and not only faithfully performed each duty pertaining to that office, but kept the M. E. Church, of which she was a member, rich in floral offerings.

HE NEVER BLAMED THE BOOZE.

He took a bottle up to bed,
Drank whisky hot each night;
Drank cocktails in the morning,
But never could get tight.
He shivered in the evening,
And always had the blues
Until he took a bowl or two—
But he never blamed the booze.

His joints were full of rheumatiz;
His appetite was slack;
He had pains between the shoulders;
Chills ran down his back.
He suffered with insomnia;
At night he couldn't snooze.
He said it was the climate—
But he never blamed the booze.

His constitution was run down
(It was overwork, he said);
His legs were swelled each
morning,
And he often had swelled
head.
He tackled beer, wine, whisky,
And if they didn't fuse
He blamed it on dyspepsia—
But he never blamed the booze.

He claimed he hardly slept at night,
And always had bad dreams;
He claimed he often lay awake
Till early sunrise beams.
He thought it was malaria—
Alas! 'twas but a ruse.
He blamed it on most everything—
But he never blamed the
booze.

His liver needed scraping,
And his kidneys had the gout;
He swallowed lots of bitters,
Till at last he cleaned them out.
His legs were swelled with dropsy,
Till he had to cut his shoes;
He blamed it on the doctor—
But he never blamed the booze.

Then he had the tremens,
And he tackled rats and snakes;
First he had the fever,
Then he had the shakes.
At last he had a funeral,
And, to give him his just dues,
The epitaph carved for him was—
"He never blamed the booze."

GOVERNOR HANLY.

Commendation of Governor Hanly's attitude toward law enforcement by Peru Union is appreciated by chief executive of our commonwealth.

Resolved, that we, the W. C. T. U. of Peru, at a regular monthly meeting, hereby second our admiration of his excellency, Governor Hanly, for the manly and fearless manner he has shown in regard to his suggestions of such wholesome laws to be enacted and for his integrity and official actions, especially in reference to the laws relating to the morality of the commonwealth.

The resolution was forwarded to the governor's office and a reply was received in a day or so, reading as follows:

Executive Dept., State of Indiana,
May 4, 1905.

MY DEAR MRS. BARKER—Permit me to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 2d inst., together with a copy of the resolution of the W. C. T. U. organization of Peru, commending the course of the administration relative to the enforcement of the law throughout the state and to assure you of my grateful appreciation. If I were compelled to choose between the support of those who insist upon the right to violate the law and the good will of the christian womanhood of Indiana, I should not hesitate in the choice.

Please convey something of my gratitude to the members of your order and say to them for me that they can aid me greatly by cultivating public sentiment that will give support to the enforcement of the law in their own good city of Peru.

Sincerely yours,
J. FRANK HANLY.

Y. W. C. T. U.

On May 2 the Treasurer, Miss Sears, went to Plainfield, held a parlor meeting and organized a Y. Union with eleven members. Mrs. John Harvey was elected President and Miss Osie Hadley Treasurer. With the talent represented by the young women who have taken up the work we believe it will be one of the strongest Unions in the State. An evening meeting was held in the Methodist Church, and with special music was an enjoyable event.

The last report we had of our Y. W. C. T. U. Secretary was that she is ill in Canada with relatives. We hope she will soon be able to look after our Y. work.

Anderson Y. W. C. T. U. is growing in numbers all the time. At the last meeting a young man joined. The programs have been so helpful.

ITINERARY OF STATE LECTURER.

Our Institute at College Corner was a decided success, in that the continuous downpour of rain failed to upset our plans. The program was carried out in detail, even to the contest on the last evening. A cradle roll class of 20 members was formed for contest work, and an older class of 14 is now drilling for the June rally.

The Wayne County leaders are sick, consequently the Institute there is postponed. April 28 and 29 found me in Dana, at the home of our beloved Mrs. Rose Pearce. We had a representative audience in the opera house to hear At the Mercy of the State, and on Sabbath morning at the mass meeting many were turned away for want of standing room. Verily our cause is popular there and must eventually win.

I spent eight days of this month in Boone County, with our devoted co-worker, Mary D. Hendricks. If the work in Boone County does not succeed, it is surely no fault of hers. Indeed, she lives for our blessed cause and has a loyal following among the young people, who are helping her push the contest work in her county. We are now in the midst of the Institute at Lebanon and will report results later.

ELIZABETH T. STANLEY.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE INDIANA LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

The eleventh annual State Convention of the Indiana Loyal Temperance Legion is called to meet at

EDITH HILLIS,
State President L. T. L.

Acton Park, Indiana, July 27 and 28, in response to a very cordial invitation extended by the Acton Park Assembly Association.

Acton Park is reached from Indianapolis over a trolley line and members of the reception committee will be at both the Union Station and the Interurban Terminal Station to meet all delegations and see that they are properly transferred to the Acton line. In order to assist this committee, let every one wear the colors—white, gold and purple.

To assist the gate-keeper at the Assembly grounds in knowing just who is entitled to free entrance to the grounds, each delegation is requested to bring with them a letter signed by the local L. T. L. Superintendent certifying that they are members of the convention. To properly seat the convention and at the same time save expense to the State, each delegation is requested to bring its own bannerette, bearing name of county, town and legion. It is also desired that No. 4 Senior Edition of the song book be used, and all Legions using this book will please bring them.

Do not forget that only paid-up graduates are voting delegates (though all Seniors are most welcome and urged to be present), and that the 25 cents dues must be in the hands of Nathan Lefstey, of Marion, by June 25th at the latest. Do not be content until you have paid dues for every pledged member.

In addition to the regular banner, the prizes offered are these: To the Legion sending the largest subscription list for Crusader Monthly from February 1 to convention time, to State agent, Mrs. Monta Cooper, R. R. 11, Wabash, a set of six Seal Course books; to the Legion having the best program prepared from June 15, 1905, to June 15, 1906, a book; to the Legion sending in to Superintendents by June 25, 1905, the fullest reports, a book. A prize will also be given to the Legion paying dues for all pledged members and for the county with the largest delegation regularly seated in the convention.

Have your Seniors in this convention if you have to hold pay entertainments and socials to do so. This convention will far exceed in program, numbers and visitors anything Indiana has ever held. Mr. Herbert C. Shattuck, President of the New York Loyal Temperance Legion, will be with us and the cottagers of Acton Park will be visitors, and in return for our free entertainment at an Assembly we must give the very best program, with the greatest enthusiasm. July 27 and 28 will see the gathering at Acton Park of the enthusiastic, inspiring Loyal Temperance Legioners of Indiana. You cannot afford to miss it. Come with our mottoes and rally cry on your lips, and come to blend your earnestness and enthusiasm with that of every other Legioner. Then will we shout, Tremble, King Alcohol, we have grown up I want to acknowledge through the columns of the MESSAGE the receipt of the following gifts for the Loyal Temperance Legion organization fund. In behalf of the State Legion I want to thank every one who so kindly responded to the appeal made for assistance. The need is great and all help timely. Up to and including May 18 the following have been received: Miss Laura Cammack, 50 cents; Frances E. Willard Union, Richmond, $1; Burlington Union, $2; Mrs. Mae Moser, Loogootee, $1; Mrs. Matilda Hanswald, Galena, $1.

Loyal Temperance Legions organized this year are: Heltonville, Mrs. Homar Ragsdale, leader; Organizer, Miss Palmer; Syracuse, Mrs. Jennie Weaver, leader; Monroeville, Mrs. Rose Wybourn, leader; organizer, Mrs. Hall; Nora, Mrs. R. Hessong, leader; Brazil, Miss Maude King Hicks, leader; Fairmount, Hadley Legion, Mrs. Dora Whitley, leader; LaFayette, Mrs. Olive Shook, leader; Evansville, Central Legion, organized in February with eleven members, in six weeks increased membership to forty-two, Mrs. Goward, leader; Elwood, F. E. Willard Senior, 20 members, Mrs. Adair leader; Warren, Willard Hall Legion, 30 members, organizer, Mrs. Hall; Moores Hill, Senior, organizer, Miss Edith Hillis; Moores Hill, Junior, organizer, Miss Edith Hillis; Keystone, 32 members, organizer Mrs. Josephine Walmer.

EDITH HILLIS,
President Indiana Loyal Temperance Legion.

A NEW PICTURE OF MRS. HUNT.

In response to the many requests that have come for a large picture of Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, World and National Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction, suitable for framing, to hang in school rooms, we take pleasure in announcing that arrangements have been made with one of the leading firms in the country by which we can send such a picture, 18 by 22½ inches inside measurement, securely packed and postpaid, for the low price of $1.00.

In style it is what is known as an artotype, and is similar to the large pictures of statesmen and poets or to those found in schools and public buildings. It is a reproduction of the fine photograph of Mrs. Hunt which appeared on the first page of the December School Physiology Journal. We hope every Union in the State will take advantage of this opportunity of placing one of these excellent pictures of our beloved leader of Scientific Temperance in their own schools. For picture send to Scientific Temperance Headquarters, 23 Trull street, Boston, Mass.

LEIPSIC, OHIO.

By special request Mrs. Richards gave an account of the changes in Leipsic since the town has been dry. She began by saying that two years ago, on Feb. 2, the sun of righteousness arose in Leipsic and the old groundhog saloon went out of sight, never to return, we believe. There has been good law enforcement. Thirty-three hundred dollars was raised, to be paid in when called for for the prosecution of law-breakers. In two years $67 have been used.

When the law went into effect all the saloon-keepers left town but one. He kept open to sell soft drinks. Enough men were hired to sit one hour apiece each day in his place to see that nothing but soft drinks were sold. He staid one month. There is not a vacant room in Leipsic. Instead of saloons in the best corner rooms, one is now occupied by a meat market, another by a grocery, and one that had two bars and employed four bartenders now has a large shoe store that employs six extra clerks on Saturday nights.

Taxes are much lower now. The debt of $5,000 has been paid. A new town hall has been built and $5,333 is now in the treasury. There are now two banks in Leipsic, instead of one, as before. The first month the deposits were $465 more than the same month the preceding year, and last December the old bank received in deposits $1,787 more than the preceding December. One clothing firm testified to selling $1,000 more in October, 1904, than it ever sold in one month before. The school books for poor children used to cost the town from $50 to $200 a year. The first year of prohibition the town paid $3 for school books and the second $1.50.

When the town went dry Leipsic postoffice was in the third class. The second year it was put in the second class and now ranks as a first-class office.

A large glass factory was recently located in Leipsic, although Findlay offered $25,000 more.

Mrs. Richards closed by giving a pathetic description of a visit to a former drunkard's home. Instead of poverty and sorrow, there was peace and plenty and happiness. New carpets, an organ, full coal bin and flour barrel were silent advocates of no saloons in Leipsic.

Mrs. Richards has kindly consented to prepare these facts for publication.—Ohio Messenger.

CONVENTIONS.

Loyal Temperance Legion of Indiana,
Acton Park, July 27 and 28.

Indiana Woman's Christian Temperance
Union, Brazil, October 6-9.

National W. C. T. U., Los Angeles, Cal.,
October 25 to November 2.

Island Park Assembly, July 19 to August
11. W. C. T. U. days, August 8 and 9.

Flower Mission Day, June 9.

The Loyal Temperance Legion State Convention, to be held July 27 and 28 at Acton Park, should be attended by the young people in your homes. It occurs at a date when many will be able to attend. See that the way is made clear for your own and other young people to attend. Miss Hillis, State President, is a young college girl of fine ability and very attractive personality. The ex-president, Mr. James Gipe, is a young man of splendid characteristics. He is a college man. These young people and their corps of State officers and superintendents will be an inspiration to all Legioners and to the young people who attend as visitors. Acton Park is on a trolley line a few miles out from Indianapolis.

By action of the State Central Committee the editor the MESSAGE is restricted hereafter from using any lengthy report from a union or from using lengthy memorials. This prevents use of resolutions of sympathy or condolence. The MESSAGE is not very large and the editor not only counts lines, but words. Often an item is worked over several times in order to make it occupy a certain number of lines. Thus each word counts as it does in a telegram. All articles sent should be signed. Just now on the editors desk are a set of resolutions and an item unsigned. Space is not much of an item to the editors of news columns in daily and weekly papers. Please do not write up an event for your local paper giving details and then send clippings for the editor of the MESSAGE to use or rewrite. The important features she may not quite understand as though she had been present. Important facts, attendance and general effect are the main points in writing a report of a meeting.

TO LOS ANGELES.

The Indiana party will go via the following lines: From Indianapolis, the Big Four to St. Louis; Missouri Pacific to Colorado Springs and Pueblo; Denver & Rio Grande to Salt Lake City; San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railway to Los Angeles. This last named road crosses an entirely new section of country and shortens by twenty-four hours the journey from here to Los Angeles. From Los Angeles, after the close of the convention, return either by the coast or valley line of the Southern Pacific road to San Francisco, where several days will be spent in this metropolis of the Pacific coast. From San Francisco those who make the northern California and Oregon trip will go north to Portland over the Southern Pacific road, and from Portland southeastward over the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company line and Oregon Short Line to Salt Lake City. From San Francisco those who do not make the northern California and Oregon trip will go directly eastward to Salt Lake City over that branch of the Southern Pacific road. From Salt Lake City over the Denver & Rio Grande to Denver; Missouri Pacific to Kansas City; Chicago & Great Western to Chicago, and the Big Four from Chicago to Indianapolis.

The round trip fare will be about $66.50 from Indianapolis. A delightful trip north from San Francisco to Portland, Oregon, and returning across Idaho to Ogden, will cost $12.50 extra, but is optional.

Our party will leave Indianapolis October 18 in a special sleeper, and by invitation will spend one day with the National party at Colorado Springs and Sunday at Salt Lake City, arriving at Los Angeles in time to take some of the many interesting side trips before the opening of the convention. The sleeper rate through from Indianapolis to Los Angeles, two people in a berth, will be $4.25 for each person. The sleeper will be used as our hotel at Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City.

Returning, the tickets include stop-over privileges all through the western country. The fare granted is one regular fare for the round trip and is low for that date. The heavy travel to Southern California begins about November 1, and no reduced rate is granted after that time.

For further information apply to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, State Superintendent of Transportation, 1013 North New Jersey street, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE FLOWER MISSION.

Just when and where the first Flower Mission existed we shall never know. Probably ever since the time of the Garden of Eden some one has been comforted and some one has been cheered by the flowers. More than seven hundred years before Christ, Isaiah used the garden and its buds and blossoms as types of righteousness and joy, gladness and praise. "Consider the lilies of the field" has, through the ages since Christ uttered the words, been a balm and an inspiration to many a life. Some one has said: "To consider the lilies with Christ is to feel the bounty

MISS HAZEL TONER,
State Superintendent Flower Mission.

and beauty of His love and to find His spirit in them." In considering this one flower we are taught to consider all flowers and are led to the love and admiration of all nature.

Many years ago in England the Baroness Burdett-Coutts and the Earl of Shaftesbury, two of the world's great philanthropists, became interested in one of the first organized Flower Missions. With their help the wealth of country flowers was conveyed to London and distributed in the hospitals and tenements of that large city. The first recorded Flower Mission in the United States was in about 1869. A young woman living in a suburb of Boston carried some flowers from her home to the city and gave them to the children on the streets. Seeing the pleasure with which these were received, it occurred to her that an organization might be formed whereby the beautiful blossoms of the country could be distributed throughout the city. After consultation with some of the leading clergymen, a church was opened for the purpose and the Boston Flower Mission was begun. It was probably an account of the work of this young girl that was written in 1877 for the New York Observer. Was it not a part of God's great plan that a copy of this paper should fall into the hands of that patient sufferer in the far-away city of Louisville, Kentucky?

A few years before Jennie Casseday had been a happy-hearted girl, but an accident compelled her to spend the remainder of her life a shut-in. In spite of her intense suffering her soul was filled with a desire to help others. Quickly she embraced the Flower Mission idea, knowing from experience how much joy the silent, fragrant messengers had brought to her. She could not gather, neither could she distribute the flowers, but she had that rare gift, the ability to inspire and guide others. Through her influence the Louisville Flower Mission was successfully organized.

In 1882 the National Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in Louisville. Miss Willard was a guest at Miss Casseday's home, and during the visit asked the flower missionary to tell her of this work. Always ready to see the connection of a good movement with the temperance cause, Miss Willard instantly became interested and in a few months the Flower Mission Department was adopted, with Miss Casseday as Superintendent. For more than ten years she lived to lead this work, and what a wonderful monument she has made! Everywhere, all over the world wherever our Union exists, this beautiful department is established. Miss Willard said Miss Casseday's life was an example that "from the most difficult conditions we can wring out the most celestial success; from the alembic of pain distill the choicest character; from loneliness and contradiction be lifted to high companionship and sweet serenity."

Though the Flower Mission work has become a part of the churches and young people's societies and has been adopted to some extent in other organizations, in no other association does it exist in the systematized form and to the extent that it does in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. While it doubtless began with the gift of a flower, the plans and purposes for it have grown. Its loving thought of friendly sympathy is at home equally among the rich and the poor. It gives the necessities of life to those who are without them and the delicacies to the sick. It gives comfort and cheer to those who mourn and hope to those who have wandered astray. It helps window boxes and gardens and the cultivation of vacant lots, with seeds and plants. It aids the schools and settlements by supplying nature-material for their work. It urges gardening as an employment in the institutions. It plants trees and vines. It gives drives to invalids and outings to those who live all the year in the cities. And over and above all, it distributes the little bouquets and text cards to the weary, the wayward and the suffering; in fact, wherever there is opportunity. Do we not all need the cheer, the encouragement and the inspiration of the flowers?

The influence of flowers over all ages and classes of society is well known. Whole families have been lifted to higher, cleaner living through the gift of a plant. Jacob Riis, in one of his books on the "other half" of New York, says: "I have seen an armful of daisies keep the peace of a block better than a policeman with his club. Whenever a garden is put in a tenement block it does the duty of a dozen police clubs. In proportion as it spreads, the neighborhood takes on a more orderly character. As the green dies out of the landscape the police find more to do. The change of Tompkins Square from a sand lot to a beautiful park put an end for good and all to the bread-or-blood riots of which it used to be the scene."

When Miss Willard said at the World's W. C. T. U. Convention in London that the reason the white ribbons had come together was because "they would increase and steadily help in the evolution of the common joy," she particularly touched the keynote of the work with the flowers. With God's lovelight in their beauty,

Which brings the heart good cheer, they are especially fitted to dispel the darkness of sin and sorrow and substitute the true joy and gladness.

We know that our cause cannot be wholly triumphant until the desire for the true joy is implanted in the hearts of individuals, and the Flower Mission helps to give the longing for the pure, temperate and noble life which the soul needs. When this desire becomes universal and is carried out, not only in daily life, but in the customs of society and the laws of the lands, then the world will become a beautiful and happy place.—Ethel Austin Shrigley, National Superintendent, in Union Signal.

In the last month the following Unions have sent offerings for the support of the school: Shugart, Morgantown, Kokomo, Kokomo L. T. L., Honey Creek (Terre Haute), Fairmount, Normal City, Six Mile, Boswell, Greencastle, North Manchester, Brazil, Petersburg, Goshen, Muncie, Culver, College Corner, Cold Springs, Middlebury. Churubusco and Oxford have also sent to the contest fund. LaFayette Union contributed $25 for bath room equipment, which is very much needed. If all Unions not having contributed to the support of Hadley Industrial School would do as well as these, we could go to convention next October out of debt. MATTIE E. H. CHANDLER.

THE COMING INTERNATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ALLIANCE AGAINST ALCOHOL.

Abraham Lincoln said: "How nobly distinguished that people who shall have planted and nurtured to maturity the political and moral freedom of their species from slavery and drunkenness." His Emancipation Proclamation, sealed in blood, wiped the blot of human chattel slavery from our national escutcheon, but the slavery of alcohol still exists. Nevertheless, in this country we have planted and are nurturing to maturity a preventive system of education which we have reason to hope and believe will eventuate in what Lincoln called moral freedom from drunkenness. That system is the progressive, compulsory study of temperance physiology graded to the comprehension of all pupils in all the public schools in the United States.

Other nations seeing the effect of this study upon the manipulative skill, productive efficiency and progress of our people, are seeking to reproduce the same in their own countries. Professor Justus Gaule, of Zurich, Switzerland, in a recently published article entitled Muscles or Nerves, says: "It is characteristic of the American workman that he has become a nerve-man. America pays her workmen more because as nerve men they give back more. In a rivalry between the old and new world on the basis of present ability to produce, the old world would have to go under. How shall this danger be averted? First of all, by combating that which makes the nervous system incapable of further development—alcoholism. The alcohol-free atmosphere of America is a result of the instruction in the public schools concerning the influence of alcohol. The Americans, by this instruction concerning alcohol, have done their country a greater service than they think. Such instruction cannot be imparted without a foundation in physiology, giving the idea that human life is based on definite laws. The transition from muscle-man to nerve-man begins with this instruction in earliest years. In order to accomplish this transition, we in Europe must broaden the instruction in our common schools by intelligent study concerning the powers of the human organism and the dangers which threaten it from alcohol."

A Royal Committee on Physical Deterioration in England, reporting July, 1904, to the British Parliament, said: "The committee believes that more may be done to check the degeneration resulting from drink by bringing home to men and women the fatal effects of alcohol on physical efficiency, than by expatiating on the moral wickedness of drinking."

In harmony with this belief, upwards of 15,000 physicians, practically the entire medical profession of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, have signed a petition for the compulsory study of hygiene and temperance, like that required in America, in all the public schools of the United Kingdom. A London paper says of this petition: "The response was very striking. Eight thousand signatures were received by return of post and had to be conveyed to the receiving office by a special staff of postmen. Others rapidly followed."

A committee of 31 of these physicians, after studying this form of school work in the countries that to some extent have adopted this American educational idea, made out a syllabus of graded topics and methods of instruction in hygiene and temperance, which they have just sent to every local school board in Great Britain and Ireland, recommending its immediate adoption. Nearly all the members of this English committee which has sent out this petition and syllabus are university professors, representing the universities of Edinburgh, Glasgow, Manchester, Birmingham, Cambridge, London, Liverpool, Dublin, etc. One is the editor of the British Medical Journal. Among them are Sir Thomas Barlow, Sir Lauder Brunton, Sir Victor Horsley, Sir William MacEwen, Sir Henry Thompson, Professor G. Sims Woodhead, and others as distinguished.

Certainly it is interesting to us as Americans to notice the frank avowal that in all this the learned and philanthropic abroad are following our example. They seem to be aware that when eighty millions of people, by their senators and representatives in the National Congress and in the legislatures of all our 45 States, enact compulsory temperance instruction laws they are moved by an intelligent apprehension of the facts in the case. Indeed, the very title page of their syllabus directly acknowledges their indebtedness to that distinguished countrywoman of ours who, with her able corps of lieutenants in every State, and aided by the organized thousands of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and in constant communication with the most eminent scientific authorities in the world, has successfully led this great providential movement for the prevention of intemperance. That title reads as follows:

"Suggested Courses of Teaching in Hygiene and Temperance for Boys and Girls in the Public Elementary Schools of the United Kingdom."

"Issued by the Committee of the Medical Profession in the United Kingdom, constituted to promote the teaching of Hygiene and Temperance, Chairman, Sir William Broadbent."

"Based upon the scheme prepared by Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, for use in the schools of the United States of America."

An English Associated Press correspondent for American papers, commenting upon this, says: "This movement in England is one of the many indications that John Bull is trying hard to catch up with Uncle Sam."

All nations are welcome to catch up with us in this achievement. We have blazed this educational way for freedom from slavery to alcohol at no small cost, and to no one is this interest more indebted than to Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, head of the department of scientific temperance instruction and investigation, for her thoughtful and heroic leadership. This scheme of study has grown up gradually from protracted and exhaustive research and consultations respecting the unhygienic and other causes that lead people to drink, the scientific discoveries of hygienic truths, including those relating to the nature and effects of alcoholic drinks and other narcotics, and these pedagogical principles which determine how and where these truths can be so taught to all the children of to-day as to shape the national life of tomorrow. This movement holds in its grasp many millions of our youth and has such regard for detail as is calculated to reach every child and to save every child for a future of intelligent sobriety. As Americans we are grateful that the scholars of Great Britain have recognized the sound learning and deep insight into the educational methods essential to save a nation from alcoholic demoralization which have marked this great movement and have paid such a tribute to our endeavors by recommending for the public schools of the United Kingdom the scheme of study prepared for the schools of America.

King Edward VII is said to be advocating an Anglo-American alliance. Here is a step toward such a combination for warfare of an educational sort against the greatest foe of the English-speaking race. The signs of the times point to Germany joining us also, thus forming a triple alliance. Meantime, it behooves our American boards of education and teachers to more than keep step if we are still to lead in this world movement for the emancipation of the race from the slavery of alcohol.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK.

In view of the facts that intemperance is a blighting and ruining curse which impedes the progress of the kingdom of Christ, and that the liquor problem will be solved by the children of the rising and coming generations, we earnestly ask that you will cooperate in the movement to make the Sunday School a mighty factor in the temperance reform. To this end we recommend:

1. Supplemental Temperance Lessons. In connection with the Quarterly Temperance Lesson let a few moments be given to the study of temperance from an ethical and scientific standpoint. An excellent course of supplemental lessons is now prepared for the Primary, Junior, Intermediate and Senior grades.

2. Pledge Signing. Circulate the temperance pledge on every temperance Sunday. Keep a record of pledge signers. Form and display a Sunday School or patriotic temperance pledge chain. Emphasize the duty of total abstinence.

3. Temperance Department. International Sunday School leaders recommend that every Sunday School adopt the Temperance Department. Elect a Superintendent or Temperance Secretary, who will have charge of all the temperance work of the Sunday School. Secure plans of work and suggestions now in print and sent out by the Sunday School Temperance Bureau.

4. The Sunday School Temperance Army. Every Sunday School should be organized as a temperance society. The Sunday School Temperance Army is a new and effective plan. The Sunday School Union of the M. E. Church recommends the White Shield League.

5. Teach Patriotism and Christian Citizenship. In accordance with the recommendation of the International Sunday School Association, let the subject of Patriotism and Christian Citizenship be combined with that of Temperance. Observe the Sunday just previous to the Fourth of July as Patriotic Sunday. Observe the fourth Sunday of November as World's Temperance Sunday.

6. Provide Temperance Helps for your Sunday School. For information and all kinds of temperance helps for Sunday School workers, including literature, pledge cards, etc., send to the Sunday School Temperance Bureau, 115 Walnut street, Riverside, California.

MRS. LIDA OUTLAND,
State Superintendent.

COUNTY INSTITUTES.

DeKalb County Institute met at Butler. The county was fairly represented and had a very instructive and enthusiastic meeting. Members were added to the W. C. T. U. and subscriptions taken for temperance papers. The influence of the meeting will be far-reaching.

Delaware County Institute was held in the M. E. Church at Albany, with Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall as Leader. We had a very helpful two days' Institute. All the Unions of the county except one were represented. The two ministers of the town were present at all the sessions and both took an active part in the discussions. They also enlisted as honorary members. The evening session was largely attended. A very pleasant feature of the program was the songs given by a quartette of young men and one of older men. The press gave excellent reports of our work.

Lawrence County Institute met in Bedford, March 13 and 14, Mrs. Isabel Goodacre, Leader. After the necessary routine of business for the organization of the Institute was completed, the program, as given in the MESSAGE, was carried out with few variations. Mrs. Lizzie Holcomb, Vice-President, presided. The evening address was made by Mrs. Goodacre to a large and attentive audience. Two of the three Unions in the county were represented by delegates, who took up the program work with considerable zeal. The L. T. L. added to the interest by their songs, mottoes and rally cries. The last evening a silver medal contest was held, Master Carl Malott winning the prize. The receipts from the contest more than paid the expenses of the Institute.

Ripley County Institute was held in the Milan M. E. Church. Leader, Miss Alice R. Palmer, and Mrs. Newman, County President, presiding. Milan, Batesville and Friendship Unions were represented. Rev. Mr. Cordrey and Evangelist Smith helped by their presence and suggestions. The suggestive program was carried out and interesting discussions showed enthusiasm. The lecture of Miss Palmer was instructive and interesting.

Washington County Institute, held in the Baptist Church, Salem, was a success throughout. On the first evening Miss Palmer gave an interesting and highly appreciated lecture on The Remorse of Reuben. On the second evening was held an open parliament, at which the Young People's Anti-Cigarette League ably discussed the cigarette and tobacco questions and the anti-cigarette and tobacco laws and their enforcement. Several equally important questions were discussed and four excellent vocal solos were rendered. A unanimous vote of thanks was given the local press for so generously publishing notices of the Institute and freely giving space for the lengthy program. There was also given a vote of appreciation of Miss Palmer's leadership. All felt that she was the right woman in the right place. Several of our pastors and other good men had to rush around with remonstrances during the Institute, so that they did not get to attend much, but they gained the victory. The Institute gave an hour to prayer for the success of the remonstrators, and one pastor thought these prayers were surely effective, for he got three to one of all he asked to sign.

Madison County Institute was held at Elwood. From the Elwood Call-Leader we quote: The convention was a decided success, and the local members, who planned well and capably managed the affair, were complimented by the many visitors from the surrounding cities and the state officers present. The convention closed last night, all the programs for the sessions having been carried out in full and all the papers and discussions having been very interesting. Last night, at the Christian Church, was the the musical and oratorical contest, but owing to the fact that one of the principal members of the Presbyterian organization was ill, the quartette could not appear. The M. E. quartette appeared, rendered the selections in a pleasing manner and was awarded the prize, there being no competition. The honor was well deserved, however, for the music was excellent. The oratorical contest followed and although some of the favorite speakers of the city, who were expected to be present, failed to appear, the class was filled and the recitations were very pleasing. Miss Cora Iseley was awarded a handsome medal. The institute was in every way a success.

Vermillion County Institute was held at Dana, with Mrs. Isabel Goodacre as Leader. The meetings were held in the Baptist Church, and opened with a general conference of leaders and workers which proved to be very helpful to all. The noon hour lunch, of which about 60 partook, was served in the building. The Institute program, as published in the MESSAGE, was followed with very slight alteration. It is not possible to make mention here of all the excellent papers which were read and talks given. We can only say the members surprised each other by the able manner in which they handled the subjects under discussion. Revs. Matthews, G. W. Pearce and Weddell were present throughout the Institute, and showed their interest and sympathy with our cause by their helpful words. The High School was visited by twenty-one White Ribboners, and an excellent talk was given by our leader, who took as her text the words, Ponder the Path of thy Feet. The Contest held at the Opera House at night was attended by about 400 persons, and was voted by all as a great success. Receipts $35.00, which paid all expenses of our Institute and put a handsome balance in our treasury. Three new members gained. We feel that Institutes pay in all ways, and intend, if possible, to hold one each year in the future. Mrs. Stanley is to be with us April 29 and 30, when we are expecting great things.

St. Joseph County Institute was held in the First M. E. Church of South Bend, and proved a very interesting and profitable meeting. Encouraging reports were made by the County Superintendents and helpful talks were given and papers read. The suffrage question was discussed by men and women outside the W. C. T. U., and both sides of the question were ably presented, the speakers being among the ablest in the city. The cigarette law and the cause of home and foreign missions were also ably presented by members of other societies. A medal contest was held, with high school girls as contestants. High school boys acted as ushers. The contest was conducted by Mrs. Ethel Bair and was one of the most interesting features of the Institute. The medal was awarded to Miss Irene Potter. The Institute Leader, Mrs. Elizabeth Haughton, won the hearts of South Bend people. She gave an excellent address at the First Baptist Church on Sunday morning and at the First Presbyterian Church in the evening. Monday morning she addressed the students at the South Bend Commercial College, and Wednesday evening the High School students. Before leaving the county Mrs. Haughton assisted the County President, Mrs. Fassnacht, in organizing a Union at Mt. Pleasant, which will doubtless be a power for good in that community.

Elkhart County Institute was held at Syracuse, and was very efficiently led by Mrs. E. M. Haughton, of Richmond, assisted by the County President, Mrs. M. A. Tompkins. The new Union at Syracuse acquitted itself with honor. The President is Mrs. Rev. Henry Arlen. The crowning feature of the Institute was the silver medal contest given by the L. T. L. of Syracuse. There were seven contestants, the winner being Master Wurley Rohm.

Jay County Institute, held at Balbec, was a grand success. All five Unions in Jay County were well represented. A lecture by the leader, Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall, was given the first evening and a Silver Medal Contest the second evening. There was a crowded house at both of these meetings. A good interest was shown in all lines of work presented. Six ministers and one doctor attended the day sessions, and one and all declared themselves in perfect unity with our principles and plans. Subscriptions were taken for the Union Signal, American Motherhood and Crusader Monthly—64 subscriptions in all, 22 being for the Crusader Monthly. Seven members were received. The services of Mrs. Hall were much appreciated and she has many warm friends at this place.

Grant County Institute was a grand success. The leadership and company of Mrs. Haughton were appreciated by all. Every session was large and attentive. Eighteen Unions were represented. The timely suggestions and witty little speeches of our beloved County President and other county officers, as well as State Secretary Gibson, did much to keep the interest in W. C. T. U. work at white heat during the two days and evenings. The program was well carried out. Ministers and educators all seemed willing to lend a hand toward making the convention all that we had so devoutly hoped for weeks before it convened. The diamond medal contest conducted by State Superintendent Overman, in connection with a musical contest, was sufficient to crowd the large M. E. Church to its full capacity. We were entertained by the Jonesboro Union. Although few in numbers, they know how to bring things to pass. Imagine my feelings when the local President, Mrs. Bradford, came to me at the dinner hour and gave me the honor of leading the audience to the large dining room in the basement, where one hundred guests were seated at once and served with chicken pie, besides cake and other good things. Think of it! And then the little Union went on seeing that everybody was comfortably located, so that we might hear the good things of the afternoon, just as though they had done nothing out of the ordinary. When we parted I feel sure that every one felt thankful for the great spiritual uplift we received, more confidence in the aim of our organization, a deeper hatred for the saloon business and a real desire that Mrs. Haughton might come again soon and stay longer.

BRIEF NOTES.

Mrs. Vayhinger addressed the Centenary Epworth League of Greensburg. There was a crowded house and great enthusiasm.

Mrs. Bertha S. Cory, Pennville, desires information regarding the easy and effectual way of teaching the effect of alcohol in medicines, especially as a County Superintendent.

Union County's semi-annual convention met in the Methodist Church, College Corner. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, with her usual enthusiasm, conducted the Institute. A silver medal contest was held the evening of the 21st. Miss Opal Smith won the silver medal.

Madison Union, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, President, held a reception recently. There was a fine program. Prof. Billings, of the High School, read an excellent paper and there were recitations and good music. A large number of the representative people of the city were present.

Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, our State President, gave the last lecture in the Stone City's Christian Lecture Course, on A Misspent Tract. A good sized audience paid close attention to a very instructive, as well as entertaining, address. Mrs. Vayhinger made many new friends and will be warmly welcomed should she visit Bedford again.

Farmers Union, Wabash County, held a Sabbath Observance meeting at the home of Miss Malott. A most interesting Bible reading was inspiring and helpful. The discussions were animated; one new member was received. By request, Rev. C. S. Smith, pastor of the Wesleyan Church, preached an able sermon on Sabbath Observance, the following Sunday evening, to an appreciative audience.

Presidents of W. C. T. U. Summer Assembly Unions: Please let us have the dates and programs of work planned, that we may advertise as extensively as possible. All information in regard to any camp meeting or chautauqua in Indiana gladly received. We desire to have our speakers and methods of work represented wherever possible.

ALICE RUTH PALMER.

From Aurora, Miss Palmer writes: We are having a fine Institute under the guidance of Mrs. Rynerson. The Presbyterian Church was filled last night to hear An Appeal for our Future Citizens. Five new members were added. As the guest of Mrs. Judge McMullen, I am particularly happy. She was the first W. C. T. U. woman of Indiana to invite me to work in her county, sixteen years ago. It is a delightful renewal of a long and confidential friendship.

At South Bend, Mrs. Mary P. Bugbee will place a drinking fountain in Leeper Park as a memorial to her devoted husband, Mr. Almond P. Bugbee. He was the Neal Dow of Indiana in appearance, character and foresight.

The W. C. T. U.'s of South Bend have contributed $100 to furnish a room in the Frances E. Willard Hospital in Chicago. It is a large, airy room and the three beds were occupied almost as soon as the room was furnished. It will be called the South Bend W. C. T. U. room.

Howard County. Mrs. S. M. Stahl, of Hartford City, spent one week in Howard County, doing good work. She secured forty-eight new members for the county. Her personal work with the women is so effective that few can resist her. Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, State President, addressed the people Sunday afternoon, March 19, at the Friends Church, Kokomo. In the evening she spoke at Grace M. E. Church. Both services were greatly enjoyed.

Moore's Hill Union sent a delegation of nine to the Ripley County Institute April 18. Our County Evangelistic Superintendent, Mrs. J. M. Evans, will be with us at our regular meeting, April 20, going to Dillsboro the same evening for a gospel temperance meeting. We are looking forward with much interest to having Miss Edith Hillis for a meeting April 26, when we hope to organize both a Senior and Junior L. T. L.

LaFayette Central Union held a very interesting meeting with Mrs. W. W. C. Brown on April 14. Two new members were received with a very pretty ceremony. On Wednesday afternoon we met with Mrs. T. L. Webb to finish some quilts for the Hadley Industrial School. The Evangelistic and Flower Mission Superintendents are doing good work. Our President, Mrs. Seney, secured quite a number of names on the anti-cigarette petition sent out in the MESSAGE.

South Bend. The Colfax Avenue Union held a mothers' meeting and thimble at the beautiful new home of Mrs. O. A. Jeffries. A fine musical and literary program was presented, which was followed by a social hour, at which time refreshments were served. Fifty-five ladies were present. A silver offering of over ten dollars was taken, which will go towards furnishing a room in the new Frances Willard Hospital, to be known as the South Bend room, as it will be furnished complete by the local Unions of South Bend.

Bedford Union held Willard Memorial service in the First Baptist Church, Mrs. Ida Wyhoff making a very efficient leader. Mrs. Ruth Rainbolt took Miss Willard as an organizer, Mrs. Hattie McDonald as an educator and Mrs. Ed Johnson as a reformer. They each gave us useful lessons in the beautiful life of our great leader, who, though gone on before, is still a great inspiration to the white ribbon women. Mrs. Effie Cosner sang "How Beautiful to be with God," in a very impressive manner. The L. T. L. gave their mottoes, rallying cry and sang a temperance song, which was highly appreciated by the audience.

We bring you a very urgent request that you appoint a Union Signal representative in your Union and send us her full name and postoffice address. We will at once send her material, so that she can intelligently look after the Union Signal's interests in your community. The Union Signal is absolutely indispensable to the well equipped W. C. T. U. worker, and the local representative plan is the best way yet devised for placing the paper in the hands of as many of our women as possible. Surely there is some one in your Union who will be glad to do this vital service for the W. C. T. U. Please let us hear from every local President, and do it now. Address the Union Signal, Evanston Ill.

Pennville Union, at the request of the young people, began the contest work. Three silver medal contests have been held since March 20, two in the M. E. Church, with good attendance; receipts, $18. The Pennville orchestra is good. As a free-offering, the orchestra gave all the music for both contests. One dollar's worth each of Mercy and Non-Alcoholic literature was distributed. Rev. Williams, of the Friends' Church, extends an invitation for the next contest to be held in his church, in the country. A contest was recently held for the benefit of Hadley School. A gold medal contest will soon be held. Temperance sentiment is growing very rapidly through this section, the contest work, we believe, being the direct cause.

Do you know that one day early in March we received 400 subscriptions? Pleased? Of course we were and we have kept on being pleased at the goodly number of subscriptions coming in each day. Do you know what it will mean if we can report 40,000 subscribers at the National convention next fall? It will mean Success with a big S. It will mean improvements in the paper, and best of all, it will mean that there will be almost twice as many Union Signal readers as now—twice as many workers better informed, and hence more enthusiastic and more efficient than they possibly could be without the Union Signal. Is it too high a mark—40,000 before National convention? We think not. It is less than one to five of our N. W. C. T. U. membership. Then let us begin now. Write us that you will help toward the 40,000. Send for sample copies. Address the Union Signal, Evanston, Ill.

Winamac Union has received eight members since September. At that time decided to pray, every time we passed a saloon, for its removal. In November we held a public prayer service, then a Willard Memorial, the large M. E. Church filled to the brim, a fine program and good collection. Then came the Institute and since then two union temperance services planned by the ministers. Next week our friends, the Alliance, have four meetings and the next week we will hold a contest and our brothers are working for a remonstrance, so our prayers are being answered speedily. Winamac entertained the Pulaski County Institute, Mrs. Mary H. Hall, leader. She was a great inspiration to us. We followed the program as given and so learned many things. Mrs. Hall visited the schools and many scholars attended her lecture. The medal contest was fine. Marjorie Hathaway won the medal. The young people furnished good music. Our ministers and teachers were interested and helpful. Editors gave us space for program and kindly reports, so encouraged, we go forward.

It is a long silence we have had and I suppose even our anti-suffrage friends would admit that we have not been out of our proper sphere, during the time, for, no doubt, we have all had a round of house-cleaning. Now we are ready to begin in earnest in preparing ourselves to lend a hand to Uncle Sam when he begins his house-cleaning and gives us the opportunity. Have you held an equal suffrage meeting in your Union? If so, write me about it, please. Did you notice the program for the franchise meeting in August, given in the State minutes by our committee? It is not too early to get your best women studying and writing for that. If it is to be a success, we who are interested will have to make it so. Be sure and have a good supply of literature to distribute. Better send Mrs. Gilbert ten cents for samples, so you can select your most suitable leaflets. Watch for opportunities to do work for our department at the summer assemblies. That will be a time to get our literature into many homes. Let us be ready for the work and by faithful, persistent effort much good may be accomplished.

LAURA M. THOMSON.

Franchise Department.

Marion County News Items—The young people's meeting held by Central Union, May 5, was an entire success. Mr. James Gipe, son of Mrs. Martha Gipe, president of Marion County, furnished the principal address of the evening. This young man has been a life long member of the Loyal Temperance Legion and told of the necessity of such teaching as the Legion gives in the schools and colleges of this country. He spoke of the reform law enacted by the recent legislature and paid a glowing tribute to Indiana's Governor. Miss Ethel McWhirter, superintendent of Non-Alcoholic Medication in Central Union, presented her department in a very able manner. She was assisted by Mrs. Amanda Whitson, Miss Violet Ferrin, Miss Haughton and Miss Irene Bowman. Mr. Felix McWhirter spoke to the young people by request. The Misses Reynolds and Miss Irene Bowman were the soloists of the evening, the music being much enjoyed. The young people of the Union served refreshments during the social hour. It was felt that the pride the W. C. T. U. in Marion County feels in her young people was well bestowed.

During her visit to Indianapolis while convalescing, Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand visited her home Union. She spoke of her love for Indiana women and urged them to give as much of their time and thought as possible to the Mormon question. At this meeting a letter from Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis was read, telling how necessary work was in Indiana along this line, on account of the indifferent attitude of Senator Beveridge. At a recent meeting in Central Union, Mrs. McWhirter, the president, gave a very vivid word picture of Mormon women's condition and said it took only three generations to degenerate and take all shame in their condition from them. Senator Kern's speech was distributed.

Much interest is being taken in Marion County, in preparation for Flower Mission Day. Most of the large institutions will be visited by different unions and bouquets and text cards, tied with white ribbon, given the inmates. Good programs are also being prepared for these meetings.

Palmer Union, in West Indianapolis, Rev. Mary Cox, president, will soon be prepared to open a settlement house in a part of that suburb, where there are over 700 children and no Sunday Schools and churches. This will add another to the long list of reforms originated by the W. C. T. U. of Marion County. The salary of the first police matron was paid by Meridian Union in Indianapolis for some time. The Door of Hope and the Rescue Mission are also the work of that Union.

Much literature in all departments of work is being distributed in this county. A rummage sale was held during the month of May by the County and Local Unions, to raise funds for the Loyal Temperance Legion work in the county.

IN MEMORIAM.

EMMA L. HORDEN—Greenboro Union mourns the death of its beloved President, Mrs. Emma L. Horden. Her going home is a serious loss to our work.

DAVID D. TAYLOR—Hartford City Union has lost a faithful honorary member, Mr. David D. Taylor. The family receives the sympathy of white ribbons.

MARTHA TALMAGE, of LaPorte Union, died May 3. The family and relatives have the tenderest sympathies of the W. C. T. U.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. X. No. 8.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., JULY, 1905.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

THE ORATORICAL CONTEST SYSTEM OF THE INTER-COLLEGIATE PROHIBITION ASSOCIATION.

July 28, at Ocean Grove, will be held the Eastern Inter-State contest of the Inter Collegiate Prohibition Association.

The winning college orators from seven States will participate. It is a part of the most extensive system of college oratorical contests ever put in operation. All the orations are original and upon some subject relating to the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

The preliminary contests have been held during the winter and spring.

First, there is a contest in each college, in which members of the Prohibition League take part. The winner of the college contest goes to a State inter-collegiate contest in which from four to ten colleges and universities are represented.

State contests are being held in twenty States this year. Following the State meetings there are three Inter-State contests, an Eastern to be held at Ocean Grove, a Central to be held at Lincoln, Neb., and a Western to be held in connection with the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Oregon, during temperance week there in September.

The final honors are secured in the grand national contest held every second year, in which the winners of the Inter-State contests for two years compete. Last year the National was held at Indianapolis. Over 800 orations were delivered preliminary to it. Indicative of the quality of the orations was the fact that the six orators were interrupted over seventy times with applause.

The contests are valuable because there is nothing which gives one a better knowledge of the question than the preparation necessary in writing a good oration, and many college students are coming to recognize that there is nothing which develops a higher quality of oratory than the championship of a great cause. Some of the very ablest men in the colleges have entered the prohibition contests. The large attendance which usually greets the contests makes them an important educative agency.

The Eastern contest, to be held at Ocean Grove, promises to be the best ever held in this section. The States which will be represented are New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Association has active Prohibition leagues in over two-thirds of the colleges of the twenty States in which it is organized. These leagues meet regularly once in two weeks and make a systematic and comprehensive study of the Prohibition question.

As a result of the study, many students are not only becoming informed and interested, but are consecrating their lives to the cause and preparing to take an active and aggressive part in the overthrow of the liquor traffic.—Exchange.

ISLAND PARK AT ROME CITY.

The Western Chautauqua Assembly will open July 19 and close August 11. On Sunday, August 6, will be held a great temperance mass meeting, in charge of our veteran, Aaron Worth, followed by Temperance and W. C. T. U. Days, August 8 and 9.

Beginning July 19 and continuing until the Assembly closes, the W. C. T. U. Department workers will have charge as follows: Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. Vayhinger, State President, and Mrs. McWhirter; Elocution, oratory and physical culture, Miss Maud Baker; Kindergarten, Miss Ruth Ransom; Loyal Temperance Legion, Mrs. Mary Evelyn Evertson; Literature Booth, Mrs. Mary E. Balch; Pianist, Miss Laura Kindig.

These workers will live at the W. C. T. U. cottage; for 25 cents a day and night the W. C. T. U. women can room in the cottage. We shall expect the Local Unions to announce this and do what they can toward securing the attendance of the temperance people, especially on Temperance Days.

Every year we are anxious to secure prominent places on Chautauqua Assembly programs. This year the Island Park management gives us much prominence and furnishes us a cottage, rent free, for use of our workers and our meetings. They put our workers on for their regular Assembly work. It is of course expected that our temperance people will make it a point to be present. For information concerning board, etc., write to the Secretary, Mr. J. Frank Snyder, LaGrange, Ind.

The Brewers' Journal, New York and Chicago, for May 1, has this editorial warning to its constituents: "In '84 about one-twentieth part of Chicago was Prohibition territory. In 1904 nearly one-half of the city was Prohibition or local option. There are besides 600 towns and cities in Illinois having no saloons. There is certainly food for reflection in this for the brewers of Illinois."

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Another word about the Eleventh State Convention of the Indiana Loyal Temperance Legion and other L. T. L. news.

If any Legions have as yet failed to send in reports to Department Superintendents or their dues to the Treasurer, please do not let this matter go longer. Attend to it now. Here is the list of Superintendents: Anti-Gambling, Dale Wolf, Marion; Mercy, Anna Stockton, W. Lincoln st., Kokomo; Flower Mission, Korilla Samse, N. Smith st., Kokomo; Sabbath Observance, Ida M. Cunningham, 1104 Delphi ave., Marion; Literature and Agent Crusader Monthly, Monta Cooper, Route 11, Wabash; Anti-Narcotics, Fred Carter, Westfield. These reports are for year ending June 15, 1905.

Mrs. Frances Metz, 917 N. Illinois st., Indianapolis, Ind., desires the names of all who will attend State Convention at Acton Park, July 27-28, sent to her not later than July 10. Please do not delay this matter. It is important that she have them by that date.

New Legions since last MESSAGE—Lebanon, Utica, and in Grant County, Griffin Union, Oakridge Union and Oak Chapel Union. Morgan County reports three Legions ready to organize.

If any one has failed to return the filled-in Corresponding Secretary's blank to Ritta Burnside, this must be done at once to have your report read at Convention. This blank, as the others, covers the entire year's work. Since the June MESSAGE I have received the following amounts from the ones named for the L. T. L. Organization fund:

Marion Central Union.....	$3.00
Peru Union.....	2.00
Plainfield Union.....	1.00
Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall.....	.25
Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger.....	2.00
Morgantown Union.....	1.00
Mrs. Harriet W. Brand.....	10.00
Miss Mary Woodward.....	1.00
Huntington Union.....	3.00
Marion County Union.....	5.00
Mrs. Gullie Shugart.....	1.00
Bedford Union.....	4.05

I voice the sentiments of the L. T. L. workers when I say that we feel very grateful, indeed, for all amounts received, and that we can venture a little further with each letter that comes bringing with it a little offering. We will try to make it do the most possible good.

Kokomo, Ind.

EDITH HILLIS.

SOUTH BEND.

The Almond P. Bugbee Memorial Fountain, presented by Mrs. Bugbee to Leeper Park, was dedicated June 17. It is given by the devoted wife and accepted in memory of one of South Bend's best citizens, our dearly beloved Mr. Bugbee, the Neal Dow of our temperance work in Northern Indiana. The fountain is both handsome and artistic.

The dedication was under the auspices of the County W. C. T. U., the venerable Almond P. Bugbee having been an honorary member thereof. Mrs. Kathryn Wert Holler, Associate National Superintendent of Sabbath Observance and a close friend of Mrs. Bugbee, had charge. The program was as follows:

Music.....	Male Quartet
Prayer.....	Rev. M. H. Appleby
Address—Desirability of Beautifying the City with Memorials.....	Wm. McInerney
Music.....	Male Quartet
Address—Mr. Bugbee as a Pioneer.....	Mayor Fogarty
Presentation of the Fountain.....	Mrs. Alex. Staples
Acceptance—Mrs. C. Fassnacht, President of the Central W. C. T. U.
Song—America.....	Audience
Benediction.....	Dr. H. W. Johnson

Touching and beautiful were the tributes paid to the memory of Mr. Bugbee, and appreciative indeed were the expressions regarding the appropriate memorial to such a life and character.

WISCONSIN CITIES WITHOUT BAR-ROOMS.

Six hundred and forty-five towns, villages and cities in Wisconsin are without saloons, according to the report to Halford Erickson, compiler of the Wisconsin Blue Book. The last Legislature passed a law requiring all towns, villages and cities in the State to report the exact conditions with regard to license. There are 1,454 towns, villages and cities in the State, 14,430 of which reported; 798 of these have saloons, 632 voted no license, and in 13 license was refused by the board. This is very gratifying information to the temperance forces, who had estimated only 300 dry. The figures are from the new Blue Book which is now in press.

HOW THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC ROBS LABORING MEN.

In $100 worth of boots and shoes $20.71 is labor. In $100 worth of furniture $23.77 is labor. In $100 worth of hardware $24.17 is labor. In $100 worth of clothing $17.12 is labor. In $100 worth of cotton goods $16.91 is labor. In $100 of men's furnishings $18.34 is labor. In $100 worth of worsted $13.55 is labor. In $100 worth of woolen goods $12.86 is labor. In $100 worth of liquor you buy $1.23 is labor.

One dollar and twenty-three cents as against $12.86, $13.55, $18.34, $16.91, $17.42, $20.71, $23.77, $25.17! What an object lesson!

In the above goods, in each $800 lot is $147.73 labor employed.

For one year, 30 cents a day for drinks will make $109.50. Call it $100. If eight laboring men spend $800 for furniture, hardware, boots and shoes, clothing and other good things, they and their families are made happy, but $147.43 goes to labor. Thus business is stimulated, labor is in demand and wages are likely to rise.

If the $800 is spent in the saloon, only $9.84 goes for labor. The man and his family get no benefit. He is made weaker for his work. He is less pleasant and affable in his home. Comforts are not there. Wife is not cheerful. Children do not love the home. He is more likely to lose his job. Everything is against him.

Suppose 100 laboring men in a town, spending 30 cents a day in saloons, quit the saloons and spend the money for clothing, houses, furniture and good things, how quickly would the town put on a new face. New stores and new factories would be needed. The saloon is the greatest pauperizer. Close it, and as by an electric torch the poor houses would close also.—Exchange.

Scientific men, and especially political economists are opening their eyes to the drink problem as never before. For whether viewed as to the volume of the liquids manufactured or the amount of money involved or the pauperism, vice and crime produced, or the increase of the taxes caused by the wastes and burdens of the traffic, the closer they look at the fruits of this evil tree the clearer they are beginning to see that no one thing has so much to do with the true economy of government or so hinders the true prosperity of a people or is so manifestly the barbarism of civilization, as the liquor traffic.

In the political arena the agitation has become intense as never before during the history of our society, and awakened largely by our agencies. In the year we began only two State Legislatures had occasion to consider the liquor question, but last year the Legislature of every State that was in session had this problem up and had to face the question in some one of its myriad forms. Forty years ago Congress was silent upon temperance matters; to-day both Senate and House have a number of such measures before them in various degrees of progress.

Then the liquor interests were practically unorganized, but to-day, driven by the force of an aroused public sentiment, they have their national, State and municipal organizations, besides trade guilds, which hold those of one ilk or one locality in even closer relations.—The National Advocate.

TO BRAZIL IN OCTOBER.

The State Convention will be most royally entertained by the Brazil Union, October 6 to 9. Every Union should plan to send its full quota of delegates.

The Convention will be held in the splendid new Methodist Church. Every preparation possible for success of the Convention is being made by the church and Sunday School people as well as our own W. C. T. U. friends.

Your Superintendent of Systematic and Proportionate Giving wishes to acknowledge in the MESSAGE gifts to her department as follows: Leaflets, 8,000 pages, worth $3.50, from Esther Tuttle Pritchard, Kokomo; leaflets, 100 pages, "Nevertheless, What Saith the Scriptures?" R. E. O'Bryne, Oxford, Ohio; cash, 50 cents, Lotta Pierce, Williamsport. Now, I want $50 in cash. The department is growing wonderfully in its possibilities. ALICE R. PALMER.

The liquor traffic costs every year more than our whole civil service, our army, our navy, our congress, including the river and harbor and the pension bills, our wasteful local governments and all national, state, county and local debts, besides all the schools in the country. In fact, this country pays more for liquor than for every function of every kind of government. How is a question of this size to be put aside with a sneer?—Exchange.

JULY, 1905.

All material intended for publication must be in the hands of the editor by the 15th of the month.

State W. C. T. U. Convention, Brazil, October 6 to 9.

National W. C. T. U. Convention, Los Angeles, Cal., October 27 to November 1.

Loyal Temperance Legion State Convention, Acton Park, July 27 and 28.

Temperance Days: Island Park Assembly, August 8 and 9; Acton Park Assembly, July 26; Bethany Park Assembly, July 25.

Mrs. L. M. Stevens and Miss Anna A. Gordon, our National President and Vice president, have been out on the Pacific coast and to Los Angeles perfecting plans regarding the National Convention in October.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, one of the foremost women of the age in reform work, has passed away. Her mental activity was most remarkable at a ripe old age. She was prominent in the Anti-slavery movement with Garrison, Lovejoy and others. Later she was prominently identified with Woman's Suffrage and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Few women have ever wielded such an influence in the parlor, with the pen and on the platform, as our great hearted White Ribboner, Mrs. Mary A. Livermore.

To be a member of the W. C. T. U. means something. It is not an organization of pleasure-seekers, serving as a refuge from the dull routine of worry and cares of woman's life, but it is a wide field of labor, embracing every means whereby human souls may be lifted to a higher plane of thought and action. Then we would instill into every mind the great necessity of intelligent co-operation of all Christian people to forward the progress of the White Ribbon army, which is gaining steadily, gaining a foothold wherever the sound of its footsteps is heard. To be a useful member, capable of doing satisfactory work, requires something more than a willingness to do the work. It is true in all professions that a knowledge of the business be acquired before success is assured. So let the thought mature in your hearts that we must familiarize ourselves with every line of work and the various departments originating therefrom. Give the Annual Leaflet a thorough investigation, thereby acquainting yourselves with the history as well as principles of the order.

To wear the badge should signify more than a membership in the Union. It is she who wears it that should honor its emblematic significance.

These are thoughts that should occupy the quiet hour when our minds' forces should be concentrated on the preparation for noble, practical and intelligent work.

PEACE AND ARBITRATION.

May I say through the MESSAGE that the Messenger of Peace is now to be issued from Richmond, Ind., and copies of the June number will be sent to many of our W. C. T. U. constituency, and it is hoped that many of them will become subscribers and consequently more intelligent and earnest workers for Peace. If women be not earnest in effort to drive out the powers of evil and woo the holier influences of love and purity and truth, how can we hope for the speedy coming of the Kingdom of God? But there are many tokens of better things and some of these will be noted in the June Messenger of Peace. Don't fail to read it.

H. LAVINIA BAILY,
Superintendent.

ANTI-NARCOTIC DEPARTMENT.

I will send copies of the new Anti-Cigarette Law to each County Superintendent of this Department; also, to County Presidents where there is no Narcotic Superintendent. The value of the law has been badly crippled by the decision of Judges, but we can work on the same old lines and hope that the Superior Court will render a more just decision. If any County President or Superintendent does not receive a copy of the law before August 1, I would be greatly obliged if they would notify me, as I have had much trouble with second-class mail this year; also, I would consider it a great favor if all women securing signatures to petitions to the Cigarette Bill would report the work done to me. I would like to send a complete report of the splendid work done by Indiana women to our National Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics, Mrs. Ingalls.

MRS. E. G. SMITH,
1917 Highland Place, Indianapolis. State Superintendent.

LOS ANGELES.

National W. C. T. U. Convention delegates and visitors from Indianapolis, Ind., will go in a party, having a sleeper from Indianapolis at their disposal. Now is the time to save money and plan to make this delightful trip to Colorado Springs, Salt Lake City, one day each, and on to Los Angeles, spending a week there; returning via San Francisco, where a week or so can be spent. Returning direct from San Francisco, the round trip rate will be about $66.50 railroad fare. A trip from San Francisco north to Portland, Oregon—about 1,200 miles—can be included for $12.50 extra.

The party going in the sleeper from Indianapolis will use the sleeper at Colorado Springs and at Salt Lake City as a hotel. The cost of the sleeper will be $8.50 for two persons in a berth through from Indianapolis to Los Angeles.

Going so late in the autumn, we consider the railroad rates very favorable. The heavy traffic to Southern California begins about that time. Fifteen thousand strangers go every winter to Los Angeles, the sunny land of flowers.

For further information address Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, 1013 N. New Jersey st., Indianapolis, Ind.

DEAR LOCAL PRESIDENT:—

What! Another letter from the Union Signal? Certainly. We want to thank you for sending so promptly the name and address of your local Union Signal representative, for which we asked last month. But you didn't send it? Haven't even appointed the representative yet?

Well, eight of your sister presidents in Indiana have done so, and we shall expect to hear from you next, and very soon.

Have you realized what a splendid paper our representatives have to offer? (And you know how low the price is, too, only one dollar.) We must not take space even to name the special features, but if you have been reading the paper you are surely ready to give us your enthusiastic co-operation in our effort to place all this wealth of good things in the hands of every W. C. T. U. member and every friend of temperance.

Address The Union Signal, Evanston, Illinois.

FOR MERCY'S SAKE.

Since the departure of our good Shepherdess I doubt not many of you feel alone and forsaken; but remember always that ours is the most unselfish of all work, because dumb creatures can neither remunerate us nor sing our praises; that we can best show our love and appreciation of Mrs. Rall by faithful performance of duty to God's helpless ones, and that some new Superintendent of Mercy assumes her new duties with mighty fear, and she needs your earnest support and sympathy.

I shall ask for your best thought all along the line; send your reports to me promptly, and do not miss even the smallest of good work done.

Let us all attend the State Convention without fail and acquaint ourselves with each other. The prizes offered this year by Miss Rall are as follows: To the Superintendent securing the most names to the Bird Pledge will be given four copies of Dickey Downey. To the Superintendent securing the most sermons preached on Kindness to Animals will be given one copy of For Pity's Sake. For every Band of Mercy of thirty members organized, with name of Band and officers thereto, will be sent Our Dumb Animals for one year and a roll of literature. To all of this beautiful list I will add a surprise prize for the largest sum of money made by Mercy contests.

Let us all renew ourselves and do honor to her who labored so faithfully for twelve long years in Mercy's name. Write to me often.

MRS. FLORA TRUEBLOOD NEFF.

SEEK TO BREAK WILL.

From a Union County paper we get the following facts: A large number of relatives of Henry M. Davis, who died in this county in March last, leaving a will disposing of his property, have brought suit against the executor and the beneficiaries to break the will.

The defendants named are Warren Gardner, executor of the will, the Indiana Yearly Meeting of Friends and W. C. T. U. Hadley Industrial School for Girls, beneficiaries under the will.

He gave to one heir the nominal sum of $25, to the Hadley Industrial School for Girls he gave $3,000 and the residue of his estate he bequeathed to the Indiana Yearly Meeting of Friends.

The deceased was never married and the suit is brought by distant relatives, about fourth cousins.

This bequest was secured by our State Vice-president and State Lecturer, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley.

A LETTER TO MRS. CHANDLER.

MATTIE E. H. CHANDLER,
Treasurer of Hadley Industrial School.

BEER AS MADE TO-DAY.

I was talking with a very eminent physician who practices very largely in a town where there are many Germans. He said that the kidneys of the Germans who drank beer were universally bad. I asked why it was. He said it was caused by poison in the beer. "Why, then, do you not call attention to it?" I asked. Said he, "I don't want to go out of business."

About twenty years ago beer was made from hops, but some new methods of manufacture have been invented and introduced, and the business has largely gone into other hands. They can by these new processes make cheaper beer. The effect has been to ruin the price of hop lands.

I know hop lands in Washington that sold as high as $300 an acre, but after this change took place they went down to $10 an acre. The hop lands in California went down to a merely nominal price, and the same is true of the hop lands in New York. Hop lands generally depreciated. What was the reason? Because the demand for hops had ceased.

Good beer is not brewed now. They manufacture it; they can start the process in the morning and have the beer ready by night. Formerly it took time, hops, etc., to make beer, but now they make it at a very small cost. It used to be possible to get good beer that was made of hops and brewed in the ordinary way. Such beer made a wholesome drink, and people who drank it lived long. It was splendid as a food. It made the Germans perfectly healthy and strong. But if a man drinks beer now and sticks to it he will find, in spite of the standards they have made, that his health will be gone. No man can be healthy and drink the beer that is manufactured today. Why not have beer analyzed? When this bureau was established the Agricultural Department did give a statement showing the ingredients of beer, but they do not now publish such statements. I went to the Department and asked why they did not publish them. "We cannot do so," they said.—Senator Stewart, Nevada, Congressional Record, Feb. 9, 1905.

ITINERARY OF STATE LECTURER.

When I last wrote you I was in Lebanon, in the midst of institute work, and I am glad to report that a healthy Loyal Legion was organized during the Institute. Several new members were secured in the county. The city schools took a very active interest in the work and at least 100 took our triple pledge.

On the evening of the 17th I went to Martinsville, where I was received with open arms into the home of our own Mrs. Toner. The daughters were home from school and we all drove over to Mahalasville for the evening service. Here two young women joined our party for the Institute at Morgantown, and the 18th and 19th were crowded full of good things. The hours spent in the home of Brother and Sister Boldrey will never be forgotten. How it cheers us to find so many young people falling into line! It means victory. Mrs. Canaday had an unique contest in the evening—a voters' class, composed of two teachers, two farmers, one physician and one mechanic. The house was crowded. Nine new members were secured. Mrs. Toner declared that Morgantown could entertain a State convention without taxing its hospitality. Let other Unions copy their zeal and they will have similar results.

The 20th and 21st were spent in Grant County. Two fine audiences in Marion and one service held at Maple Run, brought out the Prohibition forces of the county. The W. C. T. U. is popular all over the county, but I think the success they have is made up like success everywhere else—one third inspiration and two thirds perspiration. Try it, sisters, and see. The 23rd was memorial day at Concord and the patriotic people gave us the privilege of speaking on our department of Peace and Arbitration. On Decoration Day we went to Fairview in the forenoon and to Albany in the afternoon. As usual, it rained. I always feel that nature weeps with us on that day in sympathy for our losses and in grief at "man's inhumanity to man" that causes us yet to slaughter our sons on fields of blood.

In the evening we had a fine audience for a W. C. T. U. rally. We were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Stafford. Long may they live to carry forward the white banner of Prohibition.

June 4 was memorial day for the Odd Fellows at Lewisville. The meeting was in the Opera House. There I met the most enthusiastic workers I met anywhere—men who believe in and practice the golden rule. The 9th was Flower Mission Day in the County Infirmary of Union county. My own loyal women secured livery rigs and drove out in a body. That is my own Union and I never say much about the Liberty Union, but it is the salt of the earth just the same. Remember Anna D. Davis belonged to this Union and gave over $1,500 to Hadley School. Now Henry M. Davis dies and leaves Hadley School $3,000. He, too, was a member of Liberty Union; and about $2,000 more, of which I will tell you later.

The 15th was spent in Jay County, the afternoon with the Portland Union at the home of Mrs. Fulton. They got three new members. Mrs. Haynes, the new President, brings things to pass. They have about twenty new members.

The evening at Balbec was a real blessing to me. I was tired and there is no better place on earth to rest than in the home of our dear Mrs. Elmondson. I was pleased to find here a new Union with loyal young people in line.

I fear I am making my letter too long. I am now in Elwood; met with the L. T. L. last night and had two services to-day. The mercury stands at 90 degrees in the shade, yet the enemy of our homes is still afield and we cannot afford to take a vacation.

Push the contest work, sisters, and help the L. T. L. just now before their convention. No Union can die that supports an active Legion. God bless you every one.

ELIZABETH T. STANLEY.

Women vote for local officers in Great Britain, but not for members of Parliament.

SOME PERNICIOUS MEDICINES.

Of wide interest are the results of analyses of various medicinal preparations recently made by the State of Massachusetts, through its analytical chemist, Albert E. Leach. These are published in The Pharmaceutical Journal and condensed in The Lancet (London), which rather unkindly heads its article "American Quack Nostrums." It should be noted that the disclosures in question are due to an American chemist, who has warned the American public against certain noxious preparations. Presumably the British public is still allowed to consume its nostrums in blissful ignorance. Says The Lancet:

"In one case a five-dollar package consisted of two bottles of liquid, yielding respectively 41.1 and 28.2 per cent of alcohol by volume, together with a small bottle of pills containing nux vomica and coated with a very thin layer of gold foil. In another case twelve powders in a box and sold for $1 were found to contain ammonium chloride and milk sugar, but were free from gold and alkaloids which were stated to be present. Many 'tonics' and 'bitters' are sold in the United States for a similar purpose, bearing various attractive recommendations, a few of which are here quoted: 'purely vegetable, recommended for inebriates,' this liquor contained no less than 41.6 per cent of alcohol; 'entirely free from alcoholic stimulant' yielded 25.6 per cent of alcohol; 'sulfur bitters, contains no alcohol,' this preparation actually contained 29.5 per cent, but was free from sulfur; 'a non-intoxicating stimulant; whisky without its sting,' gave 28.2 per cent. of alcohol, and 'liquid beef tonic, recommended for treatment of alcoholic habit,' contained 26.5 per cent of alcohol. Next to this class of fraud comes the class of diabetical flours or wheat gluten. Of 11 samples examined starch was present in all, the lowest yield being 10 per cent, two others under 20 per cent, two between 50 and 60 per cent and six between 60 and 70 per cent. One sample containing 59 per cent of starch was described by the proprietor as 'protein in its purest form.' The prices of these flours varied from 11 to 50 cents per pound. Taking cigarettes next, the—brand of Medicated Cinnamon Cigarettes, purporting to contain no tobacco, were actually found to contain a large proportion, together with cassia and other aromatic herbs. * * The report contains a list of hair restorers, some of them well known in this country, giving the amount of lead present. In the 12 articles analyzed the percentage varied from .3 to 2.32. Nine toilet preparations were found to contain mercuric chlorid or some other poisonous salt of mercury in proportions varying from 1 to 15 grains per ounce. In one case a six ounce bottle contained no less than 47 grains of corrosive sublimate. Some of these preparations have already found a ready market in this country and doubtless others will follow in due course. The advertising managers of many of our most widely circulated newspapers and magazines will accord them a cordial reception, with the result that the public, with simple faith in what they read, will buy them as eagerly as they have in the past. It is surely time that some official control was exercised over this growing evil."

"Patent medicines are poisoning people throughout America to-day. Babies who cry are fed laudanum under the name of syrup. Women are led to injure themselves for life by reading in the papers about the meaning of backache. Young men and boys are robbed and contaminated by vicious criminals who lure them to their dens through seductive advertisements."—Kemble, in Collier's Weekly.

COUNTY INSTITUTES.

Blackford County Institute was held in Mill Grove M. E. Church and was opened Tuesday evening with a matrons' silver medal contest. There were seven contestants. The Roll quartette furnished excellent music. Wednesday morning the Institute was called to order by the County President, Mrs. Stahl, who gave a report of her work done in the county and at some other places, which showed that she had not been idle. Mrs. Shannon's report of the Montpelier Union showed it to be in a good condition and advancing. Mrs. Bugh, of Fairview, reported that Union alive and hopeful. Mrs. Winslow, of the Mill Grove Union, reported the Union small, but doing some work and not discouraged. Mrs. Stahl next reported the Hartford City Union, and all who read the papers know that the W. C. T. U. of Hartford City is alive and working. Review of work led by the County President and followed by the local President. Bible reading and noontide prayer by Mrs. Winslow was full of power and touched all hearts. An excellent dinner was served in the church to all present by the Mill Grove Union. Mrs. Dunlap being absent, her subject, The Women of the Past Century, was discussed by the Institute. Mrs. Stahl was called on and spoke of many of our noble women and their good work, encouraging us to go on doing the little things, for they, too, count in the end. Next came the subject, Would the Ballot in the Hands of Women Tend to Purity and Reform in Government? by Mrs. Pond, and the argument was very strong in favor of the affirmative. The history and meaning of our badge, why and when you wear it, brought out many beautiful things about the little bow, and it was unanimously decided that we wear it all the time and everywhere. Mothers' meetings and purity were discussed by the Institute. Mrs. J. W. Cain's paper, If the Army Canteen is Good for the Soldier Boy,

Why is not the Saloon Good for the Boy at Home? was a splendid argument and was read by Mrs. Lena Sample. One excellent thought was that many of our boys go out of the home pure and free from the drink and tobacco habits and by the canteen have been led to believe that it is a respectable, legitimate business, because Uncle Sam says so. Rev. Watkins was introduced to the Institute and gave a brief but pointed address. The evening entertainment was good. Rev. Watkins favored us with stereopticon views. Solos and recitations were enjoyed. The recitations and illustrations brought out the facts of the terrible curse and made them appear real, and real they are, for some one witnesses just such scenes every day some where in this beautiful America of ours.

BRIEF NOTES.

Avon Union, with friends and children, spent June 9 with our Hadley Home children. The day and dinner were very pleasant; a program of recitations and music was much enjoyed.

Cold Spring Union observed June 9 by visiting the Dearborn County Infirmary, carrying bouquets for all inmates and some for the officers' tables. One of the inmates from Sparta township said the thing he missed most was religious service. Everything about the institution was clean and well kept. The Union will hold its annual picnic this year.

Columbus Union observed Flower Mission Day. We drove in carriages to the County Poor Asylum and found the inmates assembled in the large hall. After a Gospel service we distributed our little gifts, which were greatly appreciated. In the city we visited a number of the sick and cheered them with bright blossoms.

Miss Alice R. Palmer says: I have a few pamphlets by Esther Pritchard, the best leaflet ever prepared on the subject for workers and some of Marx "Money and the Kingdom" by Dr. Josiah Strong, which I will send out for postage. Two cents each to the Superintendent of the Department of Systematic and Proportionate Giving and others interested.

Seymour Union met in May with Mrs. W. F. Pfaffenberger, and was most enjoyable. After devotional exercises and business, the Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings presented program of readings; discussion of questions of vital interest to the home; good music and the social converse that always pleasantly closes these sessions. A good attendance and two new members added to list.

Huntington County W. C. T. U. and friends are great admirers of our Vice-president, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, and none more so than Huntington Union, which some time ago ordered of a Huntington County photographer over a dozen photographs of Mrs. Stanley, taken while with the Unions there, and these were eagerly purchased by members of the local Union and many more called for. This is certainly a novel way of honoring a friend.

Greencastle—Mrs. Vayhinger, State President, filled a premium lecture date for Greencastle Union on the evening of June 1, in Locust Street M. E. Church. A large and representative audience was delighted with the splendid address. This Union is doing a great work along educational lines in this old classic town—the seat of De Pauw University. The results will be felt in every avenue of life in hundreds of communities in this and other States.

Mrs. Willemar, President Steuben County writes: Field Agent John B. Hann, for the Patriot Phalanx, visited our place the past week, and with only a day among us raised the number of subscribers from three to twenty-six, the new ones being members of our W. C. T. U. The minds and hearts of our best citizens are anxious for righteousness and truth, and we hope all voters will soon be united, when a blow can be dealt effectually against our common enemy, the saloon.

Decoration Day was observed by Huntington Union going in a body to the cemetery and decorating the graves of departed members with flowers and a sprig of evergreen tied with the white ribbon, as in the burial ritual ceremony. Those remembered were Mrs. Cyrena Cox, Mrs. John Mangus, Mrs. Samuel Moore, Mrs. A. B. Crull, Mrs. Mohler, Mrs. James Ewing, Mrs. Daniel Shanks, Mrs. Lizzie Shaffer, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Samuel McCaughey, Mrs. Isabella Saylor and Judge Saylor, and Mrs. Laura Fisher.

Burlington Union held a gold medal contest at Deer Creek U. B. Church on May 27. Interest good; crowd not so large as it has been at other times; took in $6.75 at the door. Two contestants failed to be there, so we had but four speakers. Miss Lucile Mercer was the winner. All did well. Music excellent. The Union sent $10 to the Hadley Home. If every Union would do thus, the burden would soon lift. God bless the school and every officer and all concerned.

Bloomington Union, or rather a part of said organization, began a series of silver medal contests last month in a new country school house, University Park. Held first contest April 4, net, $5.35; second May 11, net, $6.00. The interest the children take is remunerative enough. We shall hold six silver medal contests and feel there will be an awakening not dreamed of. Proceeds of these contests go to meeting table for school and one-half to Bloomington W. C. T. U. Mrs. McCurdy will hold a married woman contest in our city this month for the Hadley Home.

Greensburg—The bargain sale netted the Union over $80.00. The membership contest resulted in an increase of thirty-five new members. A large number are young men and young women. A reception was given at the home of the beloved President, Mrs. Laura Thomson.

Jay County White Ribboners were wonderfully encouraged by the services of the State President, Mrs. Vayhinger, for two days and two nights. Red Key, June 8, she addressed a Woman's meeting in the afternoon and a mass meeting in the evening. Portland, June 9, Mrs. Sumner Haynes entertained representative ladies of the town, in honor of Mrs. Vayhinger, at her beautiful home. In the evening Mrs. Vayhinger addressed a very attentive audience in the new Presbyterian Church, after which about twenty new members were added to the county.

Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, State President, lectured Saturday evening and Sunday morning in the M. E. Church in Brookville, Sunday evening and Monday afternoon in M. E. Church at Bath, Tuesday afternoon and night at Fairfield; gained 26 new White Ribboners. The most impressive service was at the close of the Monday afternoon meeting at Bath, where Mrs. Vayhinger pinned the white ribbon on six little children, making them members of the W. C. T. U. Cradle Roll. The scene was one not soon to be forgotten. She won the hearts of all who heard her and if Franklin County is ever fortunate enough to obtain her services again a royal welcome awaits her.

The Sunday School Times, 1031 Walnut st., Philadelphia, Pa., has some excellent temperance helps—leaflets of attractive make up and convenient size—just such as are needed by every Sunday School worker who is interested in temperance. Send for samples or packages of the following: A Boy in the Bible and Another Boy, a temperance service in song and story, by Zillah Foster Stevens. Wanted—An Answer: What the Temperance Problem Means in a City Ward where the Public Good Requires Ninety-Six Saloons, by Liberty Hayward. Making Every Scholar a Temperance Worker, by Mary and Margaret W. Leitch. Cigarettes: A Perilous Intemperance, by Zillah Foster Stevens. This leaflet gives list of doors closed against cigarette users.

Edgerton Union, La Fayette, held a very interesting and well attended quarterly meeting at the home of Mrs. Everette Minton. A splendid program was given. The Superintendents of the various departments gave reports, and they were of a most gratifying nature. The reports gave the number of visits to the sick, number of cards and letters written in the interest of the work, number telephone calls, visits to jail, bouquets given, press notices, pages of literature and numerous statistics pertaining to the work. This also being Flower Mission day, the jail was visited and each inmate remembered with a button hole bouquet; three beautiful bouquets were left for the table and many sick received bouquets from the Union. Meeting are always well attended and very interesting.

Bedford Union and the L. T. L. held a picnic in the beautiful grove surrounding the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Malott, May 31, thus celebrating the eighty-eighth birthday of the dear mother, Mrs. Rogers, one of the pioneer White Ribbon workers, of whom we are so justly proud. Eighty-six partook of the bountiful dinner spread upon the grass under the magnificent sugar trees, leaves of which rustled in joy of the first summer day of a new year for our dear co-worker, Mrs. Rogers. In the afternoon a Matrons' Contest was given, at which Mrs. Maud Holcomb Lockwood was awarded the silver medal amid much applause. The Legion sang a song, gave their pledge, mottoes and rally cry. Masters Carl Malott (wearing a silver medal) and Donald Stalker entertained the audience with excellent recitations. A White Ribbon pin was presented to Mrs. Rogers as a slight token of our love and appreciation.

Huntington Union has on hand a large supply of Burial Rituals, which they had printed on recommendation of the State organization and offer them for sale to Unions at much lower prices than could be procured in small quantities. The ritual was carefully prepared by a selected committee from the Union, with special reference to our Christian relations one with the other and as a tender tribute of love to comrades of the White Ribbon Host who have passed on to the spirit realm. Upon one occasion on which it was used in the Huntington Union, friends and relatives of the promoted loved one expressed the opinion that it was the most beautiful and touching ceremony they had ever witnessed. Any Unions desiring these can apply to the local Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. W. L. Stout, Salamonie ave. Prices as follows: 50 cents per 100 copies, 35 cents per 50 copies, 25 cents per 25 copies; sample copies, 1 cent.

Miss Palmer considers the liquor traffic the problem of the nation, for the liquor question embraces all other great questions. She gave her splendid lecture recently at Bluffton to a large and attentive audience. One of the leading features at each session was the music. Mothers' Meetings and Purity were also discussed by Miss Palmer, who presented some very beautiful thoughts on this subject. A solo by Miss Beulah Garrett was beautifully rendered. The patent medicine question was also discussed by the leader in a very able and instructive manner. A recitation by little Miss Deboy delighted her hearers. After general discussion, Would the Ballot in the hands of Woman Tend to Purify and Reform the Government, it was decided in the affirmative. An excellent paper, entitled The White Ribbon Badge as a Teacher, by Mrs. D. T. Smith, was highly appreciated. A number of new members were added to the Unions and new subscriptions for the Union Signal and other papers taken. Miss Palmer urged everybody to take the very best temperance papers in the State. Keep in touch and posted on this great movement. The Institute was well attended, and all who did not hear Miss Palmer in her interesting talks and lectures missed a treat. Our County Superintendent, Mrs. Walmer, read a very appropriate poem entitled Don't Let the Women Vote. Everybody seemed encouraged with the work done in the last year and eager to press forward to greater and higher things. The closing feature was the gold medal contest, which was a decided success in every particular. Miss Lenora Deboy, of Keystone, won the gold medal. The receipts of the contest were over $15.00.

Elkhart Union has an increase of twelve new members since October. At a recent meeting much interest was manifested and the attendance large. Mrs. Travis was present and presided after being shut in for three months. Mrs. Charles Holler, of South Bend, Associate National Superintendent of Sabbath Observance, made a very interesting address on that subject, the physical need of which was shown by scientific facts, illustrated by charts. Dr. Haegles, a foremost authority on hygiene, was quoted as declaring that when a man is earnestly at work he breathes from one to two cubic inches of air less at every breath than when at rest, and his night's sleep restores only five-sixths of the oxygen that is drawn from his reserve during working hours; therefore he should rest the seventh day to fully regain all that has been lost by imperfect breathing during the work of the week. The spiritual need, of course, was emphasized. Mrs. Holler has an ample fund of information on her department, and is greatly appreciated for her excellent plans and work. The following resolution was passed: We endorse and express our admiration of Gov. Hanly in demanding the enforcement of the laws spread upon the statutes, and we ask the continued co-operation of the officials, also the citizens, and especially do we commend the press in its efforts towards the observance of law for the betterment of our city. Mrs. Cotton, President of the South Bend Union, spoke earnestly on Purity. Flower Mission Work was presented. During the social hour supper was served; later twenty-five bouquets were taken to the sick.

Mrs. Lou E. Rall and daughter, Miss Pearl, were most happily remembered by the Huntington Union with a farewell reception at their pretty home, Sunnyside, at Huntington, on May 16. There were over fifty guests, composed of the members of the Union and several of the ministers and editors and their wives. Although rain prevented many from being present, those of the W. C. T. U. circle who were in attendance enjoyed an evening of rare pleasure. Those in the receiving line, besides the guests of honor, were Mrs. Emily Newcomb and the officers of the local Union, Mrs. M. J. McNaghten, Mrs. J. M. Barker, Mrs. O. Whitelock, Mrs. W. L. Stout and Mrs. John Campbell. Greetings having been exchanged, the company gathered in a group in the parlors and a surprise was given the departing friends, Rev. Mary L. Strickland presenting Mrs. Rall with a handsome cuckoo clock as a token from the Union, to hourly and half-hourly call to mind her Huntington sisters when in her new home. To Miss Rall was given a handsome book, The Courtship of Miles Standish, illustrated by Christy, Miss Ulmer, a teacher in the city schools and a Y, making the presentation speech. These tokens will serve, in days to come, to recall many happy relations and incidents, and will be highly prized. Although the parting has long been looked forward to, as the time of departure draws near it is with a feeling of regret upon the part of all that the close ties are severed. Ere this report reaches the readers of the MESSAGE the friends will be on their way to the Golden Gate, stopping in Chicago and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for a visit of several weeks en route. An informal program was given during the evening, with musical selections by Misses Ruby Walmer and Laura Kindig, and Charles Strickland, and readings by Mrs. H. A. Smith and Misses Ulmer and Mason. Dainty refreshments were served and much sociability prevailed.

Marion County News Items.—Mrs. William Blodgett, of Frances Willard Union, in Indianapolis, gave a trolley party to the Boys' Industrial School at Plainfield, Ind., in honor of Miss Ethel McWhirter, a June bride, and Mrs. K. Henry of Chicago, with Mrs. Lamb. Mr. Wiley, of the Institution, showed the party through the various school rooms and work rooms and explained the conditions existing in the Institution. He spoke of the need of a home for truant boys who are now sent to Plainfield, saying it was almost an impossibility to keep them from the boys who had been sent there as the result of some criminal action committed by them. The party, consisting of the Narcissus Club and White Ribboners, were impressed, when looking at the 592 boys at Plainfield, with the importance of temperance work, it being well known that most of this deplorable crime in children is brought about by intemperance in the home.

Flower Mission Day was observed by all Unions in Marion County, each Union visiting one or more public institutions. Four clergymen assisted Palmer Union—Rev. Mary Cox, President—at the Women's State Prison and Industrial School for Girls. This Union also gave a musical and literary entertainment, upon the evening of June 9, in the Harley Gibbs Settlement House in North Indianapolis.

Broad Ripple Union celebrated the day in the beautiful country home of Mrs. Rebecca Hessong, of Nora, Ind. Many State and County workers were invited, and a very pleasant and profitable day was spent. This Union, of which Mrs. Fannie Kelso is President, is changing not only sentiment but conditions in regard to temperate living in this village.

Strawberry Day.—Miss Lucretia Hobart entertained members of her Union—Central of Indianapolis—in her home south of Indianapolis. The home and its surroundings are not only beautiful in themselves, but are filled with beautiful associations for Miss Hobart, this having been the home planted in the wilderness by her father. The picnic dinner was served under the wide-spreading boughs of an apple tree. Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, a member of the Union, also National Treasurer, and Mrs. Cordelia Jewett, Managing Editor of the Union Signal, were the speakers of the day and the guests of honor. During the afternoon meeting Mrs. Brand gave a graphic description of the National Headquarters, filled with mementoes and memories of Frances Willard, and spoke of the loving welcome waiting there for all White Ribbon travelers. Mrs. Jewett talked of the Union Signal, and emphasized the fact that without Local Unions and local workers neither the Union Signal or National Headquarters could be sustained. Both Mrs. Jewett and Mrs. Brand spoke of the work of the organization through its different departments. Mrs. McWhirter, President of the Union, presided. A great number of the honorary members of the Union were present; also a number of Miss Hobart's neighbors. Miss McWhirter and Miss Baker were introduced, Central Union being very proud of the June brides who will so soon leave the home union and the home city. Miss Baker gave a recitation entitled Good Bye, God Bless You. Miss Hobart has invited the Union to a Strawberry Day, to be held next year in her home. Mrs. Jewett and Mrs. Brand remarked that the only thing that would keep them away was the lack of an invitation. They are expected as guests of honor in June, 1906. The Cotter's Ode to Bean Creek, written by Miss Hobart's father in 1821, describing the hardships and pleasures of his forest life, was read by Miss Hobart. It has been printed in the Patriot-Phalanx, and will be found in the June 13th issue, on the page devoted to White Ribbon work.

Mrs. Martha Gipe, President of Marion County W. C. T. U., will spend the summer months at Acton Park Hotel, as the guest of her son, Mr. James Gipe, who will have control of the hotel for the summer.

The W. C. T. U. in Marion County has been asked to co-operate with the Prohibitionists in celebrating July 4 in a reasonable manner. Mrs. Carrie Quin is preparing a class for an Oratorical Contest to be given at that time.

Miss Maud Baker, daughter of Dr. J. J. and Mrs. Baker, will be married June 21 to Mr. Albert C. Cathcart, of Peru, Ind., and will reside in that city.

Miss Ethel Tyree McWhirter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix McWhirter, will be married, June 28, to Mr. John Parker Wise. Her future home will be Metuchen Park, New Jersey. A reception was given at the home of Mrs. Mary Moody, by Central Union, to these beautiful and talented young women; also to Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Criley, Mrs. Sarah Steele and Mrs. J. F. Brown, who are leaving the city for permanent residence elsewhere. The silver bow of white ribbon was given each departing member, the brides being requested to wear the little gift for the first time upon their wedding day. The complete works of Shakespeare, in seven volumes, were also presented Miss Baker and Miss McWhirter from the Union. Miss Rosa Brown made the presentation speech. A very enjoyable evening was spent by the guests.

A very interesting program has been prepared by Mapleton Union—Mrs. Amanda Whitson President—for July 7. Papers will be read on the following subjects: The Result of the Enfranchisement of Women, Mrs. Chas. Tinsley; Why Temperance Teaching in the Sunday Schools? Mrs. Wm. King; Purity Teaching in the Public School, Miss Kate Price. Recitations, organ and vocal solos will fill the program.

Mrs. Nina Brigham, Corresponding Secretary in Marion County, also President of the Northeast Union, will spend the summer months with her mother, who is mourning the loss of her life's companion.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. RUBIE SPRAGUE.—Trafalgar Union mourns the death of their beloved member, Mrs. Rubie Sprague. Her going home is a serious loss to our work. The family and relatives have the tenderest sympathy of the W. C. T. U.

MRS. JENNIE BADGER, of Jeffersonville, died May 31. She was an earnest, devoted White Ribboner, a faithful, true wife and mother, a consecrated, Christian woman. She was foremost in securing names of nearly every school boy in the city to the anti-cigarette pledge. As Secretary of Clark County W. C. T. U. she was efficient and pains-taking. Mrs. Badger was a delegate to the National Convention last fall at Philadelphia.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. X. No. 9.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., AUGUST, 1905.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

COCA-COLA.

We are told that the drinking of coca cola becomes a habit; that the exhilaration produced by the drinking causes unsuspecting persons to drink again and again until the habit is formed. Coca-cola fiends cannot be content without it.

KENTUCKY.

One distillery company in Kentucky turns out every seven days 1,200 barrels of sweet mash whiskey. The output for a year would be 62,400 barrels. The cost of all this to the manufacturers may be fairly estimated at $374,400, and they receive from the wholesaler a profit of from $1 to $2 per barrel. The Government comes in for a nice little rake off, but the fellow who has to pay it all, including transportation charges, Government and local license fees, salary of barkeeper and rent of buildings, is the man before the bar, and for these 62,400 barrels of booze he lets go of $24,761,678 and then goes home and beats his wife because supper isn't ready.

NEVADA.—VETO IN BEHALF OF SALOONS.

The government is helping the people of Nevada by digging a canal to irrigate their land.

The work is hindered by saloonkeepers, who sell liquor to the men employed on the canal.

At the request of the Department of Justice the State Legislature passed a bill prohibiting the sale of liquor within five miles of any place or camp where government work was in progress in the State.

The Governor vetoed the bill.

The progress of the work, the physical, moral and financial welfare of the men engaged in it, the influence of the Legislature and the Federal Government counted for less with the Governor (Sparks is his name) than the interests of the saloonkeepers.

We trust the people of Nevada will not have to suffer the afflictions of a pro-saloon Governor longer than till the next election.

FLOWER MISSION.

I am confident the dear sisters will join with me in thanksgiving when they know of all the good work done in Morgan County on Flower Mission Day.

The women in Martinsville systematically divided the town and canvassed the same, leaving with each unfortunate some flowers, with the dear words of the Master on one card. The County Infirmary was visited by about thirty women. After a very interesting program was given, refreshments of ice cream and cake were passed to the inmates. The County Jail was not forgotten, as there usually one of our best meetings is held. In all over one hundred bouquets were distributed in the different sanitariums and among the shut-ins of the town, besides several fancy palatable dishes.

I am sure in other counties women were doing just as much, so God will surely bless the organization which is interested in doing such missionary work.

HAZEL K. TONER,
State Superintendent.

MORAL REFORM ACTIVITIES.

At Washington, D. C., Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, of the International Reform Bureau, is taking advantage of the approaching settlement between Russia and Japan to bring about a revision of the opium treaty between Great Britain and China. A big petition from reformers all over the country is being prepared for presentation to President Roosevelt, urging him to take the initiative in delivering the Chinese from opium by treaty in the final adjustment of the relation of China to the powers. This is part of the general purpose of the Reform Bureau to secure a general treaty among all civilized nations to prohibit the sale of intoxicants and opium among the uncivilized races of the world.

Preparations are also being made to push a number of bills in Congress designed to completely separate the Federal and State governments in the regulation of the liquor traffic. The principal measure is known as the Hepburn Interstate Liquor bill. It subjects liquor shipped from another State into prohibition or no-license territory in original packages to local authority as soon as it crosses the State line. Another bill on the docket requires internal revenue collectors to furnish certified copies of federal tax receipts to any one requesting it.

The Prohibition and No-license laws of the States are greatly weakened by Federal interference in the form of the internal revenue tax and the rulings of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Liquor may be manufactured in a Prohibition State, shipped to a city just across the State line, put up in original packages and reshipped to consumers living in the State where it was made. This is a rank evasion of the prohibitory laws, and to a large extent nullifies prohibition. The Interstate Commerce Commission holds that such original packages are not subject to the State authorities until they reach the consumer.

A blow is struck at this ruling in the Hepburn bill by making the packages subject to local authority as soon as they cross the State line coming into a prohibition or no-license territory. The law requiring the collectors to give a certified list of the names of parties holding internal revenue receipts in prohibition or no-license territory would aid the people in locating persons who sell illegally. In such cases the federal government would become a witness against the dive-keeper who is violating the State law. As managed at present the internal revenue system and the Interstate Commerce Commission are helping in the violation of State laws designed to prohibit the sale of intoxicants. The passage of these measures would be a great step forward in temperance reforms.—Union Signal.

A DANGEROUS DRUG—SIR FREDERICK TREVES ON THE PHYSICAL EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL—"IT IS AN ABSOLUTE FALLACY TO REGARD ALCOHOL AS OF VALUE."

At a largely attended meeting held May 4th in the great hall of the Church House, Westminster, London, by the Women's Union of the Church of England Temperance Society, the speaker was Sir Frederick Treves, Bart, G. C. V. O., C. B., LL. D., F. R. S. C., Sergeant-Surgeon in Ordinary to the King. Perhaps no other medical man stands higher in the estimation of the English public. It was he who so successfully operated on His Majesty King Edward some time ago. He served with the army in South Africa, has written numerous books and is a member of the Advisory Board of the Army Medical services and of the Army Hospitals Committee. In an address, which has in abbreviated form excited the greatest interest and attention throughout the country, he said:

I do not propose to trouble you with any detailed accounts of the effects of excessive drinking, and the lamentable diseases that follow from it. The train of physical wreckage that lies in its wake is, unfortunately, a matter of only too common knowledge. I should like, rather, to occupy your time for ten minutes in dealing with the effect of alcohol on the body—not in any particular dose, but in any dose, because, of course, there is always an excuse that it is very difficult to find where temperance ends and intemperance begins, and what should be the precise boundary line between these two lines of conduct.

ALCOHOL DISTINCTLY A POISON.

The point with regard to alcohol is simple enough. It is, of course, distinctly a poison, and it is a poison which, like other poisons, has certain uses; but the limitations of the use of alcohol should be as strict as the limitations of the use of any other kind of poison. Moreover, it is a curiously insidious poison, in that it produces effects which seem to have only one antidote—alcohol again. This applies to another drug equally as insidious, and that is morphia, or opium. Unfortunately, the term poison is by no means an exaggerated one, when it is realized that with alcohol as drunk by the majority of the poorer classes there is mixed a virulent poison in the form of fusil oil.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.

There is no disguising the fact that alcohol is year by year less used by the medical profession. It is said that it has a certain position as a medicine, and no one will dispute that; but looking back over hospital drugs for the past twenty-five years, there is no question that the use of alcohol is emphatically diminishing.

LIQUOR A FALSE APPETIZER.

Let us take two or three points—and remember that I am only speaking of the very moderate use of alcohol. In the first place, some people say, "It is a most excellent appetizer. There can be no possible harm in just a little before a meal. It is, as the French say, an 'aperitif appetizer,' and helps digestion." What are the facts? First of all, no appetite needs to be artificially stimulated. If the appetite wants food, it clamors for it; if there is no appetite, there is no need for food. Therefore, there is no need, supposing the belief was true, to use anything that will stimulate the appetite. So on that ground I do not think there is much to be made out for its use.

WEAKENS INSTEAD OF STRENGTHENS.

Then it is said that it is strengthening, and that it gives great working power. We hear a great deal of this in the advocacy of British beef and beer. That sounds very well, but let us view the facts. Alcohol, curiously enough, modifies certain constituents of the blood in the nourishment of the body. The process that underlies the building up of the human frame is very much modified. The output of carbonic acid is very much lessened, with the result that the drinker at once becomes ill-nourished—obviously so. No man dreams of going into training and taking alcohol. He must reach the acme of physical perfection, and that must be without alcohol.

MOMENTARY NATURE OF STIMULATING EFFECT.

It has a somewhat stimulating effect, and that is the unfortunate part of it. The effect, however, lasts only for a moment, and after it has passed away the capacity for work falls enormously. It does this: It brings up the reserve forces of the body and throws them into action, with the result that when there are used up there is nothing to fall back upon. Its effect is precisely like a general throwing the bulk of his army into the fray and then bringing up, as fast as he can, all of his reserves and throwing them in also. The immediate effect may be impressive, but the inevitable result is obvious.

WHO FELL OUT ON THE WAY TO LADYSMITH.

As a work producer it is exceedingly extravagant, and like all other extravagant measures, leads to a physical bankruptcy. It is also curious that troops cannot work or march on alcohol. I was, as you know, with the relief column that moved on to Ladysmith, and, of course, it was an extremely trying time by reason of the hot weather. In that enormous column of 30,000 the first who dropped out were not the tall men, or the short men, or the big men, or the little men—they were the drinkers, and they dropped out as clearly as if they had been labeled with a big letter on their backs.

EFFECTS ON CIRCULATION AND NERVOUS SYSTEM.

With regard to the circulation. Of course, it produces an increased heart beat, a fuller pulse and redder skins; but the moment the effect has passed off, the action of the heart is absolutely and emphatically weakened. Consequently the temporary effect is produced at an enormous cost. Then there is its action on the central nervous system. Here its action is that of poison. It first stimulates the nervous system and then depresses it, and, as with other poisons which act upon this part of the body, the higher centers go first. They become a little dull—a little less quick and acute. It is very trifling, but there it is; so that the man who does his work on alcohol—even a very moderate amount—is not at his best.

LIQUOR DRINKING INCONSISTENT WITH GOOD WORK.

Alcohol is certainly inconsistent with what might be called fine work. It is absolutely inconsistent with a surgeon's work and with anything that requires a quick, acute and alert judgment. I am very much struck with the fact that very many professional men who work hard all day have discontinued the use of stimulants in the middle of the day. Why? For no other reason, probably in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, than that they find they cannot work after it. The fact speaks more for this broad point than any amount of abstract arguments.

ALCOHOL DOES NOT "KEEP OUT THE COLD."

The last point is this. "Oh, it is an excellent thing when you are cold. If you are going into the cold air you ought to take a little 'nip' of something. It does keep out the cold!" This argument is used so often that even medical men begin to believe it. I, myself, answer with a quotation from, perhaps, the best authority on this subject, that alcohol lowers the temperature by increased loss of heat and to some extent by lessened oxidation, while the power of the body to resist cold is much reduced by it. That answers this particular argument, which I can assure you is one of the most potent circumstances under which alcohol is used in this country.

TO BE FIT YOUNG MEN MUST NOT TAKE IT.

There is a great desire on the part of all young men to be fit. A young man cannot possibly be fit if he takes alcohol. By no possibility can he want it. That anyone young or healthy should want alcohol is simply preposterous. They might just as well want strychnine. Thus the argument for the young man is: You want to be a man, and you want to be fit. You cannot get fit on alcohol.

THE SURGEON'S GREATEST DREAD.

In conclusion, let me add one little testimony. Having spent the greater part of my life in operating, I can assure you that there are some patients that I don't mind operating upon and some that I do; but the person of all others that I dread to see enter the operating theatre is the drinker. He is the most dangerous feature in connection with the surgical life. The great surgeon, Sir James Paget, said: Of all people I surgically dread it is the secret drinker.

That alcohol is of value is, therefore, an absolute fallacy, and can be proved scientifically in a moment.—National Advocate.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

The State Convention, held at Acton Park, we are assured, will be a great success. The president, Miss Edith Hillis, and the General L. T. L. Secretary, Mrs. Ida Mix, are women of deep consecration and fine ability. Next month it will be our pleasure to give our readers a full account of the convention.

CIGARETTES.

The law against the sale and giving away of cigarettes has been of great benefit in lessening the use of this form of poison. It will require vigilance, however to insure further good results. The U. S. mail is being employed in sending paper broadcast, with advice to the receiver of such mail to use the paper, thus advising an example which will lead others to violation of the law. The homes of the people are invaded by such packages, which may fall into the hands of boys and of men who would be otherwise protected from temptation. There should be a general agitation and petition to the Congress to exclude cigarettes and cigarette paper from the U. S. mail when directed to any State where the law prohibits the sale of such commodities. The government should not be a party to the distribution of any article of commerce which the State prohibits. Our senators and congressman of the lower house would certainly give a fair hearing to an effort by the people to exclude cigarettes and cigarette papers from the mails.

W. C. T. U. PICNICS.

An outing into the woods at this season of the year is especially enjoyed by every lover of out door life. Arrange to take the young people for an outing. Take them for a hay-ride. If too many for one wagon, get two. Invite the young ladies and ask them to invite the young men, or vice-versa, each young lady taking supper for two. The W. C. T. U. to furnish the hay wagons for the young people, the matrons and their husbands going out in buggies. Give the young people a good time and do not preach to them. It will count for much for the cause during the winter season, when you have meetings. Try it.

INTERNATIONAL ORATORICAL CONTEST AT OCEAN GROVE.

The winning college prohibition orators from seven States spoke at the eastern inter state contest of the Inter collegiate Prohibition Association, held at Ocean Grove, July 28. The young men who participated were from New York, Syracuse University; Pennsylvania, Susquehanna University; Michigan, Adrian College; Indiana, Taylor University; Kentucky, Kentucky University; Tennessee, Vanderbilt University, Nashville.

Each orator has already won two contests, first one in his college in which different students entered, and then an inter-collegiate contest in his own State, in which the winning orators from the colleges participate.

All of the orations are original and upon some subject relating to the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

The officers of the National Inter collegiate Prohibition Association who will be present will be Mr. D. Leigh Colvin, president, and Mr. A. C. Millican, financial secretary.

SUPERINTENDENTS OF DEPARTMENTS.

Each year by death or removal our Unions and our Counties are bereft of excellent workers. Sometimes for months the vacancies are unfilled. This clogs the machinery of the organization. Our plan of organization is so complete and continuous that one vacancy affects the work materially.

In every county there are bright, competent women. Be considering the needs of our work in local, county and State departments, and at the proper time have appointments made.

Some people will count for something wherever you put them—on committees or as superintendents or officers—others talk well, make good and helpful suggestions in conversations or in open meetings, but can not be depended on. If such a woman is given important responsibility, the work is undone and the cause suffers.

This is not only true in the W. C. T. U.; it is true in all organizations. If the individual lacks in energetic determination and executive ability that "brings things to pass," it is a moral or mental deformity. Such a one should not be given the responsibility and honor of office holding in the W. C. T. U.

Consecrated Christian workers, who have ability, tact, energy and determination, are needed in every phase of temperance work. For such officers and superintendents, make selections that will be a credit to the cause and that will honor our God in service.

ISLAND PARK, ROME CITY, IND., TRI-STATE W. C. T. U. DAY, AUGUST 9.

Bring well filled lunch baskets and spend the day. It will be of a great interest to your young people. Bring at least one young person with you. Great day. A feast of temperance truths from orators of ability. Excellent music by the band and temperance singers. Come! We need the presence of all the temperance people in northeastern Indiana. The presence of each person will help us to open wider the assembly doors for temperance work next year. Please help us by the influence of your presence.

PURITY AND MOTHERS' MEETINGS AND WHITE RIBBON CRADLE ROLL.

You who are occupying the important position of Superintendent of Purity and Mothers' Meetings, need I speak to you to stir up your pure minds in way of remembrance that we are now quite well advanced in the last quarter of this year and that the report of your State Superintendent at our home gathering at Brazil will depend altogether on what you report her? I have sent blanks and literature to every local superintendent whose name and address I could get. I will be glad to get a fine report from every Union in the State. Let me have your reports, whether they be much or little. Remember, dear sisters, that time spent with the mothers for the mothers and babies is time well spent. If we want to reform this world, begin at the beginning.

I will again give a premium at the State convention to the Superintendent who holds the most mothers' meetings and to the Superintendent of the W. R. C. R. who reports the most children enrolled, based on amount of dues sent in. Now, as our State President says to us, let me say to you—a long pull, a strong pull, pull all together. No balking. Let us round up the year's work in the name of Jesus and to His glory and for the good of humanity. Please let me hear from you and have your reports on time.

MRS. S. M. STAHL.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS.

As you are doubtless all familiar with the fact that our last General Assembly appropriated $9,000 for the establishment of an analytical laboratory for the purpose of detecting food adulterations, now it is up to the women of the State to avail themselves of the privilege of forwarding various kinds of food, either through the kindness of the County representative of the State Board of Health or direct to the Secretary, Dr. John N. Hurty, State House, Indianapolis, Ind.

Let us emphasize the importance of this work on our friends, thus showing our appreciation of our legislators along this special line. It is said that no State has a better pure food law than ours, and very few as complete and far reaching. Now that the pure food law is in operation, we will be enabled to devote more time to the next most important work of our department, viz: the incorporating of manual training into the curriculum of the schools.

Foreign countries are far in advance of us in this respect, but it is comforting to know that our leading educators are advocating more and more every year the training of the young while in school to do house work properly, to promote better cooking and advance the benefits of pure food, economical marketing, personal hygiene and thorough sanitation throughout the household.

MARY A. MOODY.

PARLIAMENTARY LAW.

The report blanks of Parliamentary Law have been sent to each and every County Superintendent of that department, so far as I have been able to find them by diligent search. In cases of counties not having a Superintendent they have been sent to the President, hoping and asking her to gather up the reports from each local Union and forward to me not later than September 15. The report blank is meant to include the whole year's work. Please also appoint a County Superintendent of Parliamentary Law and report her name and address to me when you return the answered report blank, so that the State Parliamentary work may go forward.

MRS. M. A. TOMPKINS.

NON-ALCOHOLIC MEDICATION.

The annual blanks have just been mailed to the local and county superintendents and to local presidents where a superintendent has not been reported to me. Magnificent work has been done throughout the State by many Unions and Counties. Doubtless every Union has done more or less. A full report from each Union, be it ever so great or ever so small, will possibly gain for Indiana, at the National Convention, the beautiful banner offered by our National Superintendent to the State sending in the best report. The National Superintendent writes me, saying: "Remember, the Banner is for the State sending best report in proportion to the number of local Unions on the following points:

1. Number of local Unions in State holding a meeting on this department this year.
2. Number of local Unions distributing at least 50 cents' worth of literature in this department.
3. Local Presidents acting as Superintendents and pushing the work should be counted.

In view of the fact that never before has this subject been so greatly agitated and never before have the people been so free to listen and accept the truth in regard to the use of non-alcoholic medicines, can any Union afford to not hold at least one or more meetings? If you have not already done so can you not yet, in the time before your report blank is filled and returned to the Superintendent, hold one meeting and distribute the 50 cents' worth of Literature?

The National Superintendent has just sent to my address some literature for the Unions, for postage only. Please note the amount of postage on package, and enclose the amount to me when you send your report, which must be in my hands by September 15 to insure its appearance in the printed reports. It requires but a few minutes to fill out and mail the report. It means much to me in making out the final report to the National Superintendent. Every Union should report through the County Superintendent, if active; if not, send direct to the State Superintendent.

Again, let me urge you to be prompt in sending the report by the 15th of September. I pray you, do not neglect it, and the blessing will not only be yours, but the State's and the Nation's and the World's. "Be ye faithful in little things and I will make you ruler over more." AMANDA T. WHITSON, State Superintendent Non-Alcoholic Medication. 3335 N. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind.

National purity conference will convene at LaCrosse, Wis., October 17, 18 and 19, 1905. The present situation, as it pertains to the cause of purity, will be discussed and plans formulated for an aggressive united forward movement. The conference was called by the several leading purity organizations of this country. A general invitation is extended to purity workers to attend and take part in its deliberations.

B. S. STEADWELL,
Chairman of Committee.

LaCrosse, Wis.

FROM STATE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

We are fast approaching another harvest home. Only a few short weeks remain to us, in which to carry out the plans with which we began the year. We have all missed the guiding hand and the helpful suggestions of our dear Mrs. Brand, but as our noble workers leave us one by one, let each of us who remain assume a little more responsibility, close up the ranks and press forward.

As you know, our plan for the year is a gain of 1,200, but our Treasurer's books show a decrease of 400 members when compared with the third quarter of last year. Many of you have been making earnest efforts to carry out this plan, but in other places there is a decrease, probably from a failure to collect the dues from those already members. Now, shall we not, in the next few weeks, make a thorough canvass for recruits for our white ribbon army? There is an inspiration and a power in numbers and the mere fact of a large membership in our organization, will, more than anything else, give us influence with government officials and in the halls of legislation.

Let each member, as she reads this, resolve to secure at least one new member before the close of this quarter and thus double our influence as well as our membership. What a time of rejoicing this would give us at our State convention!

As our State convention comes early in October, it will be necessary for reports to be sent in very promptly this quarter. Will the Local Corresponding Secretaries please take note of this, for the County secretary must depend on the local reports in order to make her report to the state? A number of local unions failed to report last quarter. No matter how little you may have done, fill out your blank and send it in on time. Remember the little done by each local Union helps to swell the grand total accomplished by the State. The following unions were organized during last quarter:

Adams County, Geneva Union, Mrs. Rosa Hanna, president.

DuBois County, Ireland Union, Mrs. Margaret Bean, President.

Hillsboro, reorganized, Mrs. M. L. Hobbs, president.

Duff, Mrs. Jennie Lemmon, president.

Ripley County, Holton Union, Mrs. Rheta McHenry, President. MARY E. WOODARD.

INVITATION TO ISLAND PARK, ROME CITY, IND.

Isle of beauty, isle of rest,
O'er the smiling skies of blue,
How through nature thou art blest,
How each comer loveth you.
Sighing breezes kiss the trees,
Mirrored in Sylvan Lake;
How we love such scenes as these,
As we of thy joys partake.
Rippling fountain, blooming flowers,
Music floating in the air
Only pleasure fill the hours
On this island bright and fair.
Would you pass the summer day,
Free from care that leaves its mark,
Just arrange to come this way—
Come and rest at Island Park.

—A. Parker.

August 9 is Tri-State W. C. T. U. day for Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, at Island Park. We shall expect our temperance people from all about the northeastern part of the State to rally to our support by their presence on that day. Our State President, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, and Mrs. Richards, of Ohio, will be with us. Indiana temperance people are proud of Mrs. Vayhinger as a convincing speaker. Mrs. Richards has a national reputation as an eloquent speaker. She is a Methodist. Her Ohio conference sent her as a lay delegate to the General Conference held in Los Angeles, Cal., an honor bestowed upon only ten women in the history of the M. E. Church.

At night the Diamond Medal oratorical contest will be a sentiment maker. The speakers will be from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. Bring young people with you if you desire that they should be definitely for the W. C. T. U. and interested in aggressive temperance work. A limited number of W. C. T. U. women can be accommodated for beds at the W. C. T. U. cottage by bringing pillows, sheets and bed covers. They can prepare their own suppers and breakfasts at the cottage. Excellent drinking water, good boating, good fishing, congenial comradeship. Bring your young people. Bring your lunch basket well filled and spend at least two days, August 8 and 9, at Island Park, Rome City.

FROM THE STATE PRESIDENT.

As we are coming to the close of another year's work, I am wondering how your Union has prospered this year. Have you had the presence of the Great Leader? That presence, with hard work on your part, brings a successful year. The present quarter finds us with a loss in membership, when compared with corresponding quarters last year. I cannot think this our true condition, but that it comes from failure to collect dues from old members who should have paid in these quarters. We should feel chagrined if in the state, our organization, which has been so helpful in making these possible, should suffer a loss in members. Will you see that the Treasurer collects all dues before September 15?

I am asking each Local President to make a thank offering, for successes of the year, of three new members, enrolling them and collecting their dues by September 1. Will you do this? If each will do it our offering will amount to more than 600 members to the organization. Are you helping to hold the National Contest Banner in the State by pushing the contest work? Will you join us in daily prayer that the convention at Brazil, October 6 to 9, may be spirit led, that it may be a blessing to our hostesses and the work at large? I am enclosing a Review of the Temple Question, which I hope you will read carefully, as it contains information which we need. Please write me, as I long to hear from each Local President.

CULLA J. VAYHINGER.

FROM OUR STATE TREASURER.

DEAR TREASURERS—I know you will all work and help to collect the dues for the fourth quarter. We did not receive as many dues the third quarter as we did the corresponding quarter last year. Now, unless the Local and County Treasurers all work together Indiana's record for membership will decrease. Each County and Local Treasurer will have received a letter before this issue comes out. One thing I desire to impress upon each is the importance of sending in the reports by September 20. Our State convention coming so early, it will be necessary for the bank books to be balanced before we can close the year's work. Send to me not later than September 20, please.

CLARA M. SEARS,
Treasurer.

The State Convention will be held early this fall. All dues should be promptly collected. Our unions have gained in membership, still the lack of collecting dues and sending to County and State Treasurer, shows a deficit so far this year in membership. Dear sisters, this will not be satisfactory to us and will not be inspiring to others. Collect dues! Collect dues! Each of us is represented in the State membership by the few cents dues we pay. Please help your Treasurer to collect the dues. If she is not a wise, tactful woman, eager to receive help, you certainly are justifiable in offering to take her out in your buggy one or two mornings, so she can collect dues. The morning is the best time, because the members are more likely to be at home. Presidents of the unions should now call for Treasurer's reports of the number of paid-up members so far this year and then plan for energetic efforts toward the collection of more dues. The young ladies will often help if asked. Begin to-day to plan for collection of dues.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Mrs. Ida Mix writes: Two new Legions organized. One, the Aunt Martha Hadley Legion, at Hadley home, organized by Mrs. Hann, June 26, with 18 paid members. Mrs. Ella Hadley, leader. The other is at Bright, Dearborn County, organized by Miss Jennie Ward, with 15 members. Mrs. Siefferman, leader. Keep on praying for the young people's work in our State. We hope much good will be done by Mr. Shattuck's visit.

WHERE WOMEN HAVE EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

In Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho women have equal suffrage with men.

Women can vote on school and municipal matters in Kansas.

In the following States women have school suffrage: Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Oregon, Massachusetts, New York, Vermont, Illinois, Connecticut, Nevada, Wisconsin, Washington, Arizona, Montana, New Jersey, North Dakota, South Dakota and Ohio.

Montana and Iowa permit women to vote on the issuing of municipal bonds.

Women taxpayers in Louisiana may vote on questions of public expenditure.

Equal suffrage with men has been defeated in Kansas, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Oregon and Washington.

Many resorts and towns are holding Chautauques this season. Wherever there is an assembly program our W. C. T. U. should seek a place on the program for next year. Now is the time. Ask for at least one full day and immediately begin to arrange for securing speakers and musicians. The editor of the MESSAGE did not receive the announcement of the W. C. T. U. program for any Chautauqua Assembly in the State, except Island Park, Rome City, in time to publish it in the July MESSAGE. Incidentally we learn there is to be a nice program at Lake Maxinkuckee.

The business world of the future will be composed of total abstainers. Confirmation of this fact has been given over and over again by railroads and large corporations. The latest, however, is a total abstinence pledge which is being insisted upon by the Wyoming Light Company, of Wilkesbarre. Under the heading of A Powerful Temperance Motive, the Philadelphia Bulletin comments on this move as follows: When the linemen in the employ of the Wyoming Light Company received their pay envelopes at Wilkesbarre on Saturday night, each man found along with his money a printed pledge to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquor while off and on duty, which he was requested to sign, which it is stated, that the workman, in consideration of the good wages they receive, will sign promptly and cheerfully. This Wilkesbarre requirement is not an exception, but is fast becoming the rule enforced by all corporations engaged in commerce, transportation and manufacturing industries. Steam and electricity are the motive powers of the present industrial world, and in unskillful or unsteady hands are as perilous to life and property as they are powerful. Hence, no railway, telegraph, telephone or factory manager is willing to entrust the management of costly equipment and the protection of hundreds of human lives to brains that are befuddled and nerves that are shattered by indulgence in drink.

The American people are doubtless growing more temperate than their ancestors were, but the most powerful influence in this direction is the imperative necessity of clear brains and steady nerves in the handling of the powerful machinery of modern civilization. Preachers, temperance lecturers, hygienic instructions in the schools, all have their influence in the direction of abstinence, it is true, but all these combined failed to be one-half as powerful as the necessity which is being forced upon the great army of industrial employes to keep sober in order to obtain employment.

Throughout the centuries the drink shop has been the ante-chamber to the workhouse, the chapel of ease to the asylum, the recruiting station for the hospital, the rendezvous for the gambler, the gathering ground for the jail.—John Burns.

BRIEF NOTES.

Bethany Park. A great day will be enjoyed by our temperance and W. C. T. U. people this year at Bethany Park. We regret that we go to press too early to publish the report.

Burlington Union held a silver medal contest in the M. E. Church at Bald Hill, Carroll County. Receipts, $13.50. Much interest was exhibited by the lively cheering. Miss Robinson won the medal. Two more contests are on hand. A gold medal contest to be held at Cutler, Carroll County, in the near future; date not fixed.

Brazil will entertain most hospitably the W. C. T. U. State Convention, Oct. 6 to 9. Every union should send its full quota of delegates. Each union is entitled to the following number of delegates—the President, one delegate at large, one delegate for every twenty paid members. It is an inspiration to every member who attends the convention. Be sure and arrange to send your delegates and to pay their expenses.

A Loyal Temperance Legion was organized at Bright, July 2, by Miss Jennie Ward, Dearborn County, Secretary L. T. L. Leader, Mrs. Emma Siefferman; Assistant, Mrs. Kate Henderson.

Mrs. Mary E. Woodard, of Fountain City, Ind., our new Corresponding Secretary, needs a file of this year's MESSAGE. If you can send her one or two copies, do so. By many sending, she will get a complete file, for which she will be most thankful.

Burlington Union held an L. T. L. Silver Medal Contest at the Christian Church. Had a good audience. Thirteen dollars and fifty cents door fee admittance. Miss Bulah Campbell won the medal. Mrs. Alice Hanson, our President, is pushing the contest work bravely, with the help of Mrs. Edith Johnson, Corresponding and Recording Secretary.

Bedford Union has just held its second gold medal contest in the last month, under the supervision of our efficient Superintendent, Mrs. Della Morgan, and Mrs. Emma Ramsey, Assistant. At the first contest Zeno Bailey was awarded the medal and Mabel Erwin at the second. We have four persons in our city who have been awarded gold medals.

Greencastle W. C. T. U. program, July 18, 1905, 2:30 p. m., Loyal Temperance Legion Day: Hostess, Mrs. Nannie Marquis. Devotional Exercises, Miss Evelyn Riley; General Survey of the Organization, Mrs. Sara Doddridge; History of the Local Chapter, Mrs. Dr. Etta Walker; Reading, Miss Veda Stevens, of India; Temperance Notes in Honolulu, Mrs. Marian Ostrom, recently in Hawaii; Violin Solo, Miss Rosa Marquis.

LaPorte held their assembly meeting at the Pine Lake Chautauqua, July 6. An interesting program was given. Dr. J. O. Ward, of Peru, delivered the chief address. His subject was Beer Drinking. It was full of truth and statistics. It interested every one present. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. H. H. Smith; First Vice-President, Mrs. K. C. Dorland; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Dr. J. O. Ward; Secretary, Mrs. M. L. Hall; Treasurer, Mrs. Seth Tease.

The Spiceland Sanitarium, at Spiceland, Henry County, Ind., is owned and under the personal management of our temperance friends and co-laborers, Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Bailly. In this beautifully located sanitarium, with our dear Mrs. Bailly, State Superintendent of Peace and Arbitration in charge, our white ribboners and their friends find rest and gain renewed energy and strength. The spring water is invigorating, the treatment beneficial, the surroundings and guests most congenial; only the best element of intelligent patronage is encouraged. The rates are reasonable.

Jay County W. C. T. U. annual picnic, July 4 at Red Key, was in every way a success. Good music by chorus, glee club and band. Good speaking by Elder M. W. Harkings, J. D. Bills and others. A grand Gold Medal contest was held in the evening in the large and beautiful M. E. Church, which was filled with an appreciative audience. The class was composed of four girls and two boys of splendid ability, Miss Alma Leavell winning the medal on selection, The Final Voice. The verdict was unanimous. Miss Peacock was a close second.

Bedford celebrated Flower Mission Day by holding a meeting in the parlor of the Presbyterian Church, which was beautifully decorated with cut flowers. The members (fifty in number) came with many cut flowers, with Scripture cards attached and our dear badge, the little bow of ribbon white, sent to the hospitals, sick and shut-in of our city. The daily newspapers were also remembered by our excellent Superintendent, Mrs. Chas. Carter. Sunday following we visited the poor asylum, where a program was rendered and flowers and confectionery given to the inmates under the direction of Mrs. Wm. Holcomb. At our usual Sunday service in the jail the L. T. L. distributed flowers and sang songs.

Boston Union, Allen County, has been doing excellent work, six silver and one gold medal contest within the year, held by Mrs. Carrie Martin, assisted by the president, Mrs. Flora Barnhart. A remonstrance circulated in May prevented three applicants from getting license. Two saloons still remain in the township. The subject of a sane Fourth of July was discussed and it was decided to have a picnic in Mr. Riley's beautiful grove near town, which he kindly donated for that purpose. The program was fine. Rev. Kuhn, of the Lutheran Church, delivered a very able address, followed by Rev. Sawyer, of Ft. Wayne. He is a forcible and convincing speaker. He held the audience in rapt attention. Rev. G. W. Martin, of the M. E. Church, having been attending a funeral, came late, but his brief remarks were greatly appreciated. The excellent recitations, especially that of Miss Bessie Fields, were much appreciated. Good music by the choir and band was interspersed in the program and enjoyed by everybody. After all expenses were paid the W. C. T. U. had a neat little balance in the treasury, yet they valued far more the addition of members and the uplifting influence, which makes for a worthier citizenship, a truer patriotism.

IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. OLMA HADLEY REEVE, a member of Plainfield Union and President of Hendricks County W. C. T. U., was called home July 10. Her family and relatives have the tenderest sympathy of the W. C. T. U.

THE STATE CONVENTION

Will be held at Brazil, October 6, 7, 8 and 9. Great preparations are being made by the Brazil white ribboners and their friends to make this the best convention possible.

Consider that Brazil is not surrounded by unions, there being but one union in adjacent counties, except Vigo. Representative citizens are helping at Brazil. Pray that God will guide us in arrangements and plans for this convention. Every union in the State should send its full quota of delegates and pay their expenses. All County Presidents should attend at the expense of the county. All those whose expenses are paid should go in time for first meeting and remain until the close of the convention.

Mrs. Dora Keith, Clay County's beloved President, has been ill for many months, but is slowly improving. She is very hopeful regarding a great convention, splendidly entertained. The President of Brazil Union, Mrs. Ella C. Falls, is busy with great-hearted plans for the comfort, pleasure and profit of all. The chairwoman of the Entertainment Committee is Mrs. Florence Hadley and her assistant is Mrs. Anna Bard.

The delegates will be met at the trains and taken to convention church, unless they prefer to take a cab and go to their place of entertainment assigned on card and be ready for the evening's entertainment. Every delegate's name must be sent to the Chairwoman of Entertainment as early as September 25.

All County Presidents are members of the Convention. Each Local Union is entitled to the following number of delegates: The President, one delegate-at-large and one delegate for every 20 paid members. The County and Local Presidents can not be represented by others. The delegates should be elected in the union and then alternates elected, so if the delegate can not go, the alternate can go. The Local Secretary is expected to send the full list of delegates from the union to the Chairwoman of the Entertainment Committee and send it promptly. If for any reason she does not, the president of the union should attend to it.

The Chairwoman of Entertainment receives the lists, then she sends to each delegate a card giving the name and address of her hostess during the convention. Free lodging and breakfast will be given to each delegate. In case a delegate is prevented from going she must give her card of assignment to her alternate in time for her to arrange to go.

Herewith is a list of Chairwomen of Committees for the convention:

General Chairwoman, Mrs. Helen Sherfey; Entertainment, Mrs. Florence Hadley—Assistant, Mrs. Anna Bard; Lunch and Hotel Rates, Mrs. Orpha James; Sunday Services, Mrs. Mary Sampson; Railroads, Mrs. S. Payne; Press, Mrs. Zellar; Music, Mrs. Ida DeArmy; Finance, Mrs. Minnie Vanbibber; Ushers and Pages, Mrs. Maud King Hicks; Decoration, Mrs. Lizzie Crooks; Courtesies, Mrs. Elizabeth Ell; Bureau of Information, Mrs. Anna Menough; Checkroom, Miss Ruth Hanniwalt; Telegraph and Telephone, Mrs. Mollie O'Neal; Postmistress, Mrs. Ella Williamson; Reception at Trains, Mrs. Maggie Englehart; Cabs, Mrs. Annie Clingerman.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION STATE CONVENTION.

The eleventh annual convention of the Loyal Temperance Legion, an enthusiastic body of young people, was held at Acton Park, July 27 and 28. The program, consisting of many helpful and practical addresses, papers, songs, recitations, reports, etc., was carried out as printed, with but few exceptions. Mrs. Vayhinger, State President of the W. C. T. U., gave the graduating address to a class of forty-two which had been duly examined upon the regular L. T. L. diploma course of study. This class consisted of four from Wabash County, six from Lawrence County, twenty from Grant County, two from Clinton County, three from Howard County and seven from Putnam County. Sixteen post-graduate certificates were given. Seven to Grant County and nine to Howard County; eighteen Junior Certificates, seventeen to Grant County and one to Lawrence County.

The Legioners were disappointed because of the fact that Miss Wintringer, editor of the Crusader Monthly, was unable to be present, owing to sickness, and that Mrs. Metz was prevented from being at all the sessions for the same reason. Miss Addie A. Austin, of Chicago, represented the W. C. T. U. publishing house with temperance literature and took subscriptions for the L. T. L. paper, the Crusader Monthly, securing five hundred new subscribers from Indiana.

In her clear, forceful and pleasing manner, Mrs. Vayhinger gave an inspiring appeal for untiring patience and love, necessary for the accomplishment of effective work. It was full of hopefulness, emphasizing the importance and usefulness of a life broadened by education and training against intemperance.

Mr. Herbert C. Shattuck, who for five years has been president of the New York L. T. L., and is now traveling in the interests of the Legion, spoke on The Power of the Individual. He is a young man of rare ability, greatly interested in the cause and having a keen insight into spiritual things. He spoke of the influence of high ideals and noble living, to be gained from association with the young people of the Legion.

Mr. James C. Gipe, former State President, in his interesting and encouraging address on The Legion a Character Builder, paid beautiful tribute to Frances Willard, President Roosevelt, Governor Hanly and Mr. Shattuck. He also spoke of the inspiration the Legion had been to him in the formation of his own life and character.

Miss Edith Hillis, the President, in the annual address gave an outline of the entire work, showing what had been done and what still greater possibilities were before us. She took up each department separately and in her kind but firm way showed us what must be done, giving her reasons back of it all. That indescribable charm, due to her strong, sweet personality, her earnestness in the cause she so much loves and her joy in the hope of final victory, won all the Legioners to her immediately. Her beautiful words followed many from the convention, lifting them to higher ideals and nobler living. As a slight expression of their love and admiration for her they unanimously elected her as their State President for the fifth time.

Mrs. Brown, of Bedford, read a helpful paper on How We Do It, and also Helen Cain, of Kokomo, on Some Things an Aggressive Legion Can Do. Interesting recitations were given by Glen Saylor, of Frankfort; Will McKinley, of Bedford, and Clayton Mulford, of Moores Hill. Harry Walsh was valedictorian of the graduating class. Greetings were exchanged between Miss Wintringer and Mrs. Rice and the Illinois State Convention.

A cordial greeting was given the Legioners by Dr. Dashiell, president of the Acton Park Association and encouraging words of God-speed by Dr. Robinson, also of Acton Park. At the close of the Convention The handsome banner was awarded the South Marion Legion, which had the largest number of graduates. The West Marion Legion also received a set of books for having the largest number of paid dues. The election, which occurred Friday morning, resulted as follows:

President, Miss Edith Hillis, Kokomo; Vice-President, Mr. James Mix, Kokomo; Corresponding Secretary, Ritta Burnside, Marion; Recording Secretary, Erma D. Smith, Marion; Treasurer, Nathan Lenfesty, Marion; Musical Director, Estella Gard, Marion; State Organizer, Mrs. Ida Mix, Kokomo.

Superintendents of Departments—Work Among Colored People, Fred. Carter, Westfield; Parliamentary Usage, Edith Hillis, Kokomo; Medal Contests, Mollie McKiver, Marion; Temperance Literature, Monta Cooper, Wabash; The Press, Hattie Stockton, Kokomo; Narcotics, Harvey Miller, Kokomo; Anti-Gambling, Harry Walsh, Bedford; Systematic Giving, Mary Shamon, Marion; Junior L. T. L., Ethel Jones, Marion; Mercy, Rachael Dashiell, Moores Hill; Sabbath Observance, Ida M. Cunningham, Marion; Flower Mission, DeEtte Walker, Greencastle; Agent and Reporter for Crusader Monthly, Josephine Metivier, Indianapolis.

Under the direction of Mr. Shattuck, the Alumni Association was organized with the following officers: President, Harriet Stockton, Kokomo; Vice-President, Harry Walsh, Bedford; Corresponding Secretary, Josephine Metivier, Indianapolis; Recording Secretary, Gratia Bolen, Marion; Treasurer, Mrs. Ida Mix, Kokomo. A fine set of resolutions was adopted and three new departments organized, viz: Systematic Giving, The Press and Junior L. T. L.—Written by Miss DeEtte C. Walker, of Greencastle.

1905 W. C. T. U. NATIONAL CONVENTION WILL BE HELD AT LOS ANGELES, CAL., OCTOBER 25 TO NOVEMBER 2.

Notwithstanding the great travel of health and pleasure seekers to Southern California last of October and November, a one way lowest first-class fare has been secured for the round trip.

From Indianapolis and vicinity to Los Angeles and San Francisco and return, without going north of San Francisco, the fare will be about $66.50, with only $12.50 additional to those who desire to go north from San Francisco to Portland, Oregon, a distance of 1,192 miles, either over the beautiful Shasta route or by ocean steamer. From Portland to Salt Lake City, covering 965 miles of travel along the great Columbia river and across the State of Idaho. While this $12.50 side trip to Portland is optional, the small additional expense will be an inducement to see this wonderful country.

The Indiana delegates and visitors will go as a party in a special sleeper, leaving Indianapolis October 18, making a short stop at Colorado Springs, and spending Sunday, October 22, at Salt Lake City, arriving in Los Angeles in time to take some of the many interesting side trips before the opening of the convention.

The Indiana party will go via the following lines: From Indianapolis, the Big Four to St. Louis; Missouri Pacific to Colorado Springs and Pueblo; Denver and Rio Grande to Salt Lake City; San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railway to Los Angeles. This last named road crosses an entirely new section of country and shortens by twenty-four hours the journey from here to Los Angeles. From Los Angeles, returning via the Coast and Valley line of the Southern Pacific road to San Francisco, where several days will be spent in this metropolis of the Pacific coast. From San Francisco those who may take the Northern California and Oregon trip will go north to Portland over the Southern Pacific road, and from Portland southeastward over the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. line and Oregon Short Line to Salt Lake City. From San Francisco those who do not make the Northern California and Oregon trip will go directly eastward to Salt Lake City over that branch of the Southern Pacific road. From Salt Lake City the Denver and Rio Grande to Denver, Missouri Pacific to Kansas City, Chicago and Great Western to Chicago, and the Big Four from Chicago to Indianapolis. Stop over privileges granted without extra expense at Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and all points west of Denver. Members of our party will no doubt desire to make many stops at points in the West. Free chair cars on the Missouri Pacific and Chicago and Great Western from Denver to Chicago. All tickets are good to return from any point west of Denver or from Denver as late as November 30.

Our sleeper rate from Indianapolis to Los Angeles, including the stops at Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City (where we will use the sleeper instead of a hotel) will be $8.50 for a berth; two people in a berth, costing each $4.50.

All who join our party are requested to bring lunch and those who have them, to bring an alcohol burner; small tables and other conveniences are provided in the car, so that we may enjoy the journey most thoroughly. Arrange to make this trip yourself and invite your friends to join our party.

For further information concerning the trip, and for sleeper reservation, write to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, 2312 College avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

HADLEY SCHOOL.

Let us rejoice together, dear white ribboners. I am only too glad to give you this little word of encouragement. One of our first plans was to get our school free of debt and we have worked along that line with all the zeal possible and we are going to ask just this one more little effort on your part to help us carry out our plans.

Now if every Union which has not held a contest would give us $3.00, or if every Union in the State would send us $1.00 each, we could more than pay all we owe. As we now stand, we are $186.85 in debt on the Ridgeway note and owe a small sum to our present help, but if we can have this one more effort on the part of our loyal sisters we can go to the State Convention with glad hearts.

In this work, as in all other work, we have had some who have become discouraged, but praise the Lord for the faithful. They are going to see us anchored safe on dry land, for it is in sight. There are better days for the Hadley School. Things are shaping up so that we will have an institution that we will all be proud of, and I am sure that you will want to come in on this, the last call, and help a little. I wish I could see and have a talk with every reader of the MESSAGE. I know I could make you understand how hard we have worked and how anxious we have been for the future of the School and you would see the need of this last effort before our convention. The time is short and whatever you do you must do quickly. I am sure you will feel just as badly as we if you let the time pass and neglect to raise this small sum and we will have to start in another year in debt.

Let each one of us say that this can be raised and paid. Then let us see to it that we never again go in debt unless we know just where the money is coming from with which to repay it.

Hoping to hear a word of encouragement from every union in the State, backed up with a little cash, I am yours for the Hadley Industrial School out of debt, then filled with worthy girls. LIZZIE C. HANN.

SEPTEMBER, 1905.

All material intended for publication must be in the hands of the editor by the 15th of the month.

State W. C. T. U. Convention, Brazil, October 6 to 9. Brazil is situated on the Vandalia R. R., west of Indianapolis, between Greencastle and Terre Haute.

National W. C. T. U. Convention, Los Angeles, Cal., October 27 to November 1.

Invite your ministers to attend the Brazil Convention. Invite the teachers to attend the Brazil Convention.

Pray earnestly that this may be a great convention in interest and members; especially that the power of God may be manifested in the progress and influence.

Visitors can secure hotel and boarding rates by applying to chairwoman of that committee—see convention list of Brazil ladies who serve as chairwomen of committees.

The Brazil Convention will close one day sooner than former State conventions. Business will begin promptly Friday morning and every delegate is expected to be in her place at opening roll call.

Delegates, go to Brazil with a God bless you for every other delegate; let there be sweetest comradeship. We need deepest conviction, entire consecration and complete concentration of intellectual powers in order to accomplish the great work of the convention.

Delegates and visitors to the State W. C. T. U. Convention should arrive at Brazil on Thursday afternoon early enough for the great reception to be given at night by Superintendent Carpenter and the officers and teachers of the fourth largest Sunday School in Methodism in the world.

County Presidents, please bring with you to Brazil a complete directory of your county. Have it plainly and carefully written—type-written is best. Names and addresses of county officers and superintendents; names of Local Unions, with names and addresses of their officers.

To Brazil it means great work, loyal service and unlimited energy to entertain so large a convention. What they most desire is that a great spiritual wave may sweep their county as the result of this convention of Godly women. May God help each person in attendance to be wise and strong! Every delegate should come praying for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

Sunday, October 8, 2:15 P. M.—To the delegates of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the State of Indiana: Welcome to our Sunday school services. Special program will be prepared for the day. Short talks from visiting delegates. Miss Emily Squier will recite, and a beautiful souvenir program, appropriate for the day and occasion, will be presented to each delegate and member of the school attending.

All delegates to the State Convention are expected to arrive in Brazil on the afternoon of October 5. A great reception will be tendered the delegates and visitors in the auditorium of the First M. E. Church on that evening by Mr. W. E. Carpenter, Superintendent of the Sunday School, and his co-laborers. This Sunday School is the fourth largest in Methodism in the whole world—numbers 2,247. Every white ribboner should plan to be present.

Thursday evening, October 5, 7:30 P. M., the officers and teachers of the First Methodist Sunday School, of Brazil, Indiana, will tender a reception to the visiting delegates of the State Convention and to the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in the auditorium of the church, at which time Miss Emily Squier, of Indianapolis, will give a recital on Temperance and Prohibition, interspersed with instrumental and vocal music. Admission by tickets.

Parents, if you desire that your young people become interested in temperance work, reflect upon conditions. Perhaps in your community you have only a small minority of outspoken Prohibitionists and W. C. T. U. members. Your young people are associating with those who sometimes ridicule the earnestness or enthusiasm of the minority, or if not, they pity and shake their heads, saying, "It can never be done." If you will take the young son or daughter with you to the State or National W. C. T. U. Convention, where things are said and done by most interesting people, the results will be satisfactory to you. Young people catch the spirit and enthusiasm of our conventions. Invite friends with sons or daughters, scarcely in their teens, to attend the Conventions at Brazil and Los Angeles. Boarding rates are always made reasonable to convention visitors. The short time out of school will be giving an opportunity for better things than a few days' text-book learning.

SUPERINTENDENTS.

Every person who is honored by being made a superintendent of a department in any union or county organization of the W. C. T. U. should send her report containing facts and figures to her next higher superintendent promptly. This will be done by some persons without being urged; others always are late. Why is it that women of ability, women of splendid education and opportunity, will attend to other things before they attend to the little details which in the aggregate amount to so much?

PRESS REPORTERS.

Appoint the young women to write for the local papers and for the MESSAGE and Union Signal. It will be fine training for them; usually young people are quick to learn. To be able to write well and concisely an item for the paper is something of which to be proud. Read in this issue the report of the Loyal Temperance Legion Convention, written by De Ette Walker, a Miss of about 16 years of age. Victory will come to our cause when we have the intelligent, energetic efforts of the young people, such as are enlisted in our Loyal Temperance Legion.

ANTI-NARCOTIC DEPARTMENT.

Mrs. Ingalls, National Superintendent of this Department, has requested that all State reports be sent her before October 1, as the National Convention will be held early and her books will therefore be closed earlier than usual. I would be very glad to receive reports of the work I know has been done during this year. Other States are expecting to see a good report from a start when so much has been accomplished. If their expectations are not realized they will naturally think the W. C. T. U. has no assistance, which is not the truth, as we all know. Please send report of all work done. I would advise mothers, whose homes are being contaminated by packages of cigarette paper sent to husbands and sons through the United States mail, to find who manufactures the brand of tobacco advertised on these papers, then write to this firm, forbidding them to send such articles into the home in the future. It would be well to have proof that this letter had been written.

MRS. ELIZABETH SMITH,
1917 Highland Place, Indianapolis. State Sup't.

FRANCHISE DEPARTMENT.

Please hurry your reports in as soon as possible, that they may be forwarded to our National Superintendent, whose home is now in Denver. My recreation trip has hindered me from getting the blanks off early as I hoped, but if I fail to reach any of you, please fill this out and add anything else that will be helpful. State workers and lecturers will please report any work for our department.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK.

In view of the fact that intemperance is a blighting and ruining curse which impedes the progress of the Kingdom of Christ and that the liquor problem will be solved by the rising and coming generations, we earnestly ask that you will co-operate in the movement to make the Sunday School a weighty factor in the temperance reform. To this end we recommend: Supplemental Temperance Lessons. In connection with the quarterly temperance lesson, let a few moments be given to the study of temperance from an ethical and scientific standpoint. An excellent course of supplemental lessons is now prepared for the Primary, Junior, Intermediate and Senior Grades.

Pledge Signing. Circulate the temperance pledge on every temperance Sunday. Keep a record of pledge signers. Form and display a Sunday School or patriotic temperance pledge chain. Emphasize the duty of total abstinence.

Temperance Department. International Sunday School leaders recommend that every Sunday School adopt the Temperance department. Elect a superintendent or secretary who will have charge of all the temperance work of the Sunday School. Secure plans of work and suggestions now in print and sent out by the Sunday School Temperance Bureau.

The Sunday School Temperance Army. Every Sunday School should be organized as a temperance society. The Sunday School Temperance Army is a new and effective plan. The Sunday School Union of the M. E. Church recommends the White Shield League.

Teach patriotism and christian citizenship. In accordance with the recommendation of the International Sunday School Association, let the subject of patriotism and christian citizenship be combined with that of temperance. Observe the Sunday first previous to the Fourth of July as Patriotic Sunday. Observe the fourth Sunday of November as World's Temperance Sunday.

Provide temperance helps for your Sunday School. For information and all kinds of temperance helps for Sunday workers, including pledge cards (except the red, white and blue pledge cards, which I keep on hand at Upland, Ind.) etc., send to the Sunday School Temperance Bureau, 115 Walnut street, Riverside, California.

LIDA OUTLAND,
Upland, Ind. State Superintendent.
Don't forget that the 17th of September is the last Temperance Sunday of this W. C. T. U. year. Report immediately thereafter, that it may go in with this year's work.

THE PRESS.

In sending out my blank reports for the last half of the year, I did so with the earnest desire and prayer that they might each one be returned to me, not later than September 15, well filled, and that my report at the State convention may show a decided gain over last year's work in this very important department. Please see to it, dear sisters, that the reports are mailed to me in good time, for I must have them to complete my report ready to send to our Recording Secretary several days before the time for State convention.

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.

MY DEAR COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS—Ere this message reaches you I hope to have in your hands the report blanks, but right now is the time to begin to think of the work you have done up to this time and the work you expect to do before the State Convention. I hope you have had sermons and lectures, delivered contests, held out-door meetings on this topic and in many ways brought this department before the people. Christian Citizenship stands for loyalty to Christ and the flag, for the enforcement of law and for everything that goes to make a righteous nation. Where there is no superintendent of this department in counties, I will send report blank to county president of same and hope, dear sister, to get report of much work done in your county in this department. In closing, I again urge report, so we may come up to the State Convention feeling we have not been idlers.

GERTRUDE FULTON,
Portland, Ind. State Superintendent.

ITINERARY OF STATE LECTURER.

DEAR SISTERS—When I last wrote you I was in Ohio trying to help our folks over there defeat Governor Herrick and put a clean prohibition governor at the head of that great State. July 3, I visited the new Union at Oakridge, Grant County, where men and women are never too busy to plan a prohibition rally. July 4, in Bluffton, our own Mrs. Walmer met me and drove me to the grove near by, where Wells County citizens had gathered for a glorious celebration. Rev. Shouse gave a thrilling patriotic address. The young people rendered some fine prohibition songs and recitations and I did my best to convince the people that we can never win our fight for home protection and law enforcement until women are armed with the ballot. Wells County hopes to have 500 W. C. T. U. women at the close of this year. No woman in our ranks has done more for her county than Josephine Walmer has done for Wells County and her people appreciate her efforts. July 12 we had an L. T. L. Cradle Roll Contest in Liberty, with a class of 15 babies under 6 years old. The church was crowded to the street. On Saturday, July 22, we held our annual County Oratorical Contest and Temperance Rally. Every public school in the county was represented by one speaker selected from each township. Col. George W. Bain was with us also and we gave the County a meeting that would be creditable for a National Convention. I feel that the contest work should be our major work next year, for we have no other department that brings such speedy results. July 24, at Bethany Park, Dr. and Mrs. Hall planned one of the greatest prohibition rallies ever held in the State. Revs. Crim, Orcutt, Harkins, Allen and Croft, and a score of other able ministers were present and our champions, Felix T. McWhirter and Dr. Hall, were both at their best and the Loughs are a whole crowd by themselves and our new corresponding secretary, Miss Mary Woodard, of Earlham, was there and made a fine speech and conducted a Gold Medal Contest. Carrie Nation was there and I don't know what to tell you of her. You must hear her for yourself. She stands alone in her peculiar methods and yet I do believe she is unreservedly in God's hands, to be used as a great smasher of vice and iniquity. I have more faith in men than she and I believe she has more faith in God than any of us. I go to Bloomington to deliver three lectures for Friends of Indiana Yearly Meeting. They endorse our principles and when I meet you at the State Convention I trust that I may have a favorable report from the funds left in my County for Hadley Industrial School.

ELIZABETH T. STANLEY.

P.S. I lost my sketch book this month and write this as it occurs to me. If I have left out any Union visited, it is only a defect of memory. I expect to spend two weeks of August with my dear old mother in the mountains of eastern Tennessee.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

As you will see by the report in this issue of the MESSAGE, Indiana's eleventh annual convention of the Loyal Temperance Legion was very successful and has already resulted in increased earnestness for the work. It was the universal opinion of the executive committee that we should have a printed report of this convention, that those not in attendance and that you, dear mothers in this cause, should know what we are doing. The matter was left with a committee composed of the general officers, myself chairman, and now I come to you for some assistance. It will cost us more dollars than we have in sight to have this report printed and we must have the report. I appeal to you for advertising for the pages of this book. The copies of this report will be in the homes of your city and your county, and your own local dealers will receive as much benefit from advertising in our report as in some of the local papers. Full particulars regarding charges may be secured from me. Do not let this matter slip, thinking some one else will respond, as you know everybody's business is nobody's business and the need is so great. Won't you please respond promptly and liberally? Visit your merchants, hotel proprietors and any one else you may choose and ask them for an advertisement for this purpose. This is for you, dear sister, who may read these lines. We must keep our work before the people, and whom can we help to better advantage than our young people, for to them you must look for the future of our work. Please let me hear from you soon.

Since last report I have received in money—Fairmount Union, $5.00; Guilford Union and Bright Union, $6.00; Columbus Union, $2.00, and Bloomington Union, $2.00. The Legioners at the Convention all joined me in appreciation of these donations. They have made possible advance work we never could have undertaken without them. If any one sees this and cares to add to this fund, it will be very gratefully received.

EDITH HILLIS,
President Ind. L. T. L.

TRI-STATE W. C. T. U. ASSEMBLY, ISLAND PARK, IND.

The W. C. T. U. department work was carried on during the entire Chautauqua Assembly of three weeks at Island Park. The work was a part of the Chautauqua course and was in charge of Mrs. McWhirter, President. The Department Superintendents in charge as follows: Mothers' Meetings, Mrs. McWhirter and Mrs. Vayhinger; Literature Booth, Mrs. Mary E. Balch, Louisville, Ky.; Kindergarten, Miss Ruth Ransome, Chicago; Physical Culture and Expression, Mrs. Maude Baker Cathcart, Peru, Ind.; Oratorical Contests, Mrs. Mary Evelyn Evertson, Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky.; Pianist and Press Reporter, Miss Laura Kindig, Huntington, Ind.

Seven Mothers' Meetings held at W. C. T. U. cottage, with splendid attendance and interest.

Literature Booth open every day except Sunday. Many thousands of pages of literature sold and given away; 246 visitors registered.

The Kindergarten was held twenty mornings in Chautauqua hall. Great interest; grown up visitors every day.

Physical Culture classes held every day, except Sunday, in Physical Culture hall.

A class of representative young people was secured and trained for an oratorical contest.

The entire corps of workers lived at the W. C. T. U. cottage. All were busily occupied in the mornings and many times in the afternoon. When the work was done the time was spent attending the attractions furnished by the Assembly in the auditorium, or in rowing, bathing or fishing in the beautiful sylvan lake.

The Assembly program this year was excellent. During the past year the Assembly came under the control of the National Association of Local Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with a local board of management with Dr. Stemen, of Ft. Wayne, as President, and the popular Assemblyman, Rev. J. F. Snyder, of La Grange, continued as Secretary.

Free Assembly tickets were given to all our workers.

On the last Sunday afternoon a temperance rally was announced, with Rev. Aaron Worth, speaker. He could not be present and the management pressed into service Mr. F. T. McWhirter, who was on the grounds. He made a good address, after a most excellent opening speech by Mrs. Vayhinger. Audience large.

The W. C. T. U. had charge of the program of one afternoon and one entire day. The afternoon program was a practical illustration of the work of three departments, as conducted during the Chautauqua.

Mrs. McWhirter, the President, explained the plan of organization and the far-reaching influence of the department work, then in detail spoke of the Oratorical Contest department and introduced Mrs. Evertson, who came upon the platform with a class of six contestants for a silver medal. Mr. Alden Gil liam, of West Virginia, a student of Taylor University, won the medal. In his "thank-you" speech he pledged his life effort against the liquor traffic as Mrs. Evertson and her class left the platform.

W. DALE CARTWRIGHT,
Winner of the Diamond Medal.

The President spoke of the Physical Culture department and said that W. C. T. U. women never grow old; regardless of years, they were young in heart and interest.

Mrs. Maud Baker Cathcart then came upon the platform with a class of girls, who gave a "white ribbon" drill, greatly to the delight of all. Miss Ransome came with her entire kindergarten, carrying well filled flower baskets, the girls wearing gay colored "Kate Greenway" paper bonnets. Amidst great applause they were seated and showed their temperance training by recitations and songs. Their games were interesting. The kindergarten and her pupils were much praised, the entire afternoon program lasting one hour and a half. After the closing prayer by Prof. J. F. Kinsey many were the words of surprise and commendation from the great audience. One of the most prominent men on the grounds said, "this is an eye-opener to me."

The all day program began the next morning at 9:30 o'clock, with a largely attended conference, and lasted until 11:00, when Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, our State President, made an eloquent, logical and convincing address.

At 2:30 p. m. a great audience assembled to hear the platform queen, Mrs. Florence D. Richards, National W. C. T. U. Lecturer, and for more than one hour the people sat listening to this splendid speaker.

At 8:00 the auditorium was packed to hear the Oratorical Contest for a diamond medal. Six young men speakers had been advertised to speak—two each from three States: Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. One Indiana man failed to arrive. Mrs. E. L. Calkins, President of Michigan W. C. T. U., honored us by her presence and loyalty. She made a short address, in which she entertainingly and forcefully presented facts and measured our responsibility, greatly to the interest and delight of the vast audience.

The contestants were all fine looking young men—one was a little man, aged 14, who held his own quite well. All speeches were excellent; intense interest prevailed; 5,000 people in the audience. The medal was awarded to Mr. W. Dale Cartwright, of Portland, Ind. The judges were—Mr. M. L. Wilkinson, Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. W. M. Gardner, Sturgis, Mich., and Mr. Than Stockbridge, La Grange, Ind. The contestants were, Michigan—Mr. Irwin S. Hanna, Mr. Lester G. Albertson; Ohio—Mr. Merle Waggoner, Mr. Charles W. Terrell; Indiana—Mr. W. Dale Cartwright.

When the speakers were introduced by name, each was greeted with great applause, especially Mr. Hanna, of Michigan, who received an ovation. Some of these Prohibition orators will no doubt, in another decade or two, represent our cause in the legislative halls of the State and nation.

The attendance of our temperance people was most gratifying. Our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eckhart, were prevented from coming, so they sent us a bank note of nice proportions to help in our expenses. The officers and members of the Assembly Board were much pleased with our work and strong words of commendation were heard everywhere.

STATE SUPERINTENDENTS.

It has been decided by the program committee for the State Convention to hear our report at the same time as last year, Saturday morning. I want to suggest that every superintendent of a State department be present at that time and have your report so condensed as to give in the allotted time given each one (10 minutes.) Let us work to make this the most interesting session of the convention.

GERTRUDE FULTON,
President of Board of State Superintendents.

BRIEF NOTES.

Bluffton Frances Willard Union gave an ice cream social in the park. They sold ten gallons of ice cream and cleared $7.50. They had to turn people away because no more ice cream could be bought in town.

Mrs. D. A. Walmer, President of Wells County, gave a short talk in our Bluffton Union. Every member was much pleased with her talk and invited her back. We have gained one new member and have the promise of two more.

Notice to Indiana Legioners: Any one desiring a picture of the Acton Park Convention, please send ten cents, coin or stamps, to Miss Monta Cooper, Wabash, Ind.

Keystone Union held a Gold Medal contest, with eight contestants—Winner, Miss Maggie Wooten. Door receipts, $20.10.

On July 12, while attending a W. C. T. U. meeting, Mrs. Alice Stout, of Oak Chapel Union, a charter member and Secretary, was stricken with heart-failure and died in a few minutes—a noble woman and loved by all who knew her. She left a husband and one son and a host of friends to mourn her departure.

The Carmel Union met recently at the home of Mrs. Mary Kemp. Mrs. Drucilla Wilson read a paper urging united Christian effort and reliance on the promises of God, found in the Bible. The paper was much appreciated. Refreshments were served on the lawn and an hour spent in social enjoyment.

For County Conventions—For sale, to help in securing new members—W. C. T. U. membership pledge cards, membership pledge envelopes and flower mission text cards, at 15 cents per hundred. Apply to Mrs. McWhirter, 2312 College avenue, Indianapolis.

Mrs. Unger, of Wabash County, writes: Farmers' Union met with our Flower Mission Superintendent, Mrs. Sallie Ridenour, August 9. Mrs. Herst read a paper on Flower Missions, Mrs. Malotte told us what Miss Willard defined as our part of the Flower Mission work and Mrs. Cooper read a paper on Woman's Suffrage. Interesting discussions followed the reading of the papers. Mrs. Cooper gave a report of the L. T. L. Convention, which was interesting and encouraging. After adjournment, splendid refreshments were served.

Burlington Union held a Gold Medal contest at Sharon, in Baptist Church; receipts, $6.60. Mr. Mark James won the medal. This Union also held a Gold Medal contest at Cutler; receipts, $11.20. Miss Lucy Tapp won the medal. Interest good at both places. Our Union is in a prospering condition. At our last meeting we made our President, Mrs. Alice Hanson, a life member. We have two or three Silver Medal contests on hand, to be held in the near future—dates not made yet.

Elkhart and Goshen Unions held a meeting, August 1, at Island Park, Elkhart, with a good program. Goshen responded to the address of welcome and furnished an interesting paper on Franchise. Mrs. Kate W. Holler, of South Bend, made an excellent short address on The Relation of the Drink Habit to Sabbath Observance. Rev. Denham spoke on Purity in the Home. His address was well received. This being Red-Letter Day—birthday of Mother Wallace and Lady Henry Somerset—appropriate mention was made. At the close of the program a sumptuous basket dinner was enjoyed.

The Indianapolis Frances Willard Union held a memorial service for their former president, Mrs. Ada B. Leck, August 8, in the home of Mrs. Getman. Mrs. E. G. Cornelius opened the meeting with prayer and then gave a comforting talk to the members, who had so loved Mrs. Leck and who feel her loss so greatly. She spoke of the sweetness and beauty of her life and character and of her great value to the work. Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, State Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics, spoke of Mrs. Leck's love for the Union and of the comfort, love and loyalty it meant to her during her illness. Her vacant chair was decorated with lilies and white ribbon. Every member present gave a short tribute to Mrs. Leck's memory and pledged anew their consecration to the cause so dear to the heart of their loved president.

Warren Union is actively at work. The Franchise subject has been given special attention. In order to help with the suppression of the liquor business, this Union is educating its members along civic lines.

To Los Angeles—Take some young person with you. It is a wonderful thing for a young person to make a trip nearly across the continent and to attend a great National Convention of the best informed women on civic and governmental affairs in the whole world. To be in an audience of from four to five thousand people and listen to the representative speakers of America, both men and women, on all lines of philanthropy and reform, means much. No young person with soul can have experiences of this kind for about a week without deepest impressions. To witness the zeal, understand the sacrifice and to feel the most intense enthusiasm manifested for the home against the saloon at such a convention will leave an impression upon a young mind that can never be explained.

Maxinkuckee Assembly—W. C. T. U. Day.—The weather was perfect at this delightful summer resort. The management, as usual, was kind and generous. There were present members from various parts of the State. Mrs. Isabel Goodacre, of Flora, Ind., presided. Excellent papers were read by Mrs. Caroline Fassnacht and Mrs. Jennie Sharpless, of South Bend, and Mrs. Dora Parker, of Culver. Miss Mass, of Flora, sang Some Glad Day. Prof. Huston very generously assisted in the music. Twenty joined the Union. Mrs. Parker, treasurer, reported $19.00 paid on the tent which the Assembly Union has bought. The officers elected for the coming year were: President, Mrs. I. Goodacre, Flora, Ind.; Vice-President, Mrs. Jennie Sharpless, South Bend; Secretary, Mrs. A. R. Shedd, Argos; Treasurer, Mrs. Dora Parker, Culver. We hope next year to do great things at Maxinkuckee.

The Benton County W. C. T. U. met in the M. E. Church at Boswell, Mrs. Amanda Smith, County President, in the chair. The first service was a meeting of prayer and testimony—Leader, Mrs. Haughton, State Evangelist. Praise service by Mrs. Petree, of Oxford. Address of welcome, Mrs. E. L. Smith. How to gain members and subscriptions to our periodicals, Mrs. Amanda Smith, followed by an earnest appeal for the support of our papers by Mrs. Anna Eberly, of Boswell. A carefully prepared paper by Mrs. Wann, of Oxford, was read: Subject—How can the young people in High Schools and Colleges be enlisted in the Temperance Reform? Discussion, led by Mrs. Barnes, of Boswell. Discussion on cigarette and tobacco laws of Indiana, led by Mrs. Haughton. History and meaning of your badge, by Mrs. Mosher, of Otterbein, enlisted much interest. Mothers' meetings and purity were discussed with animation. Would the ballot in the hands of women tend to purify and reform in government? was ably presented by Rev. McCloud. Scientific Temperance Instruction, by Mrs. Petree. The first evening Mrs. Elizabeth Haughton made the address to a good audience; the second evening Mrs. E. L. Smith held a Silver Medal contest, with seven contestants. Miss Phoebe Gwinn, of Oxford, won the medal. Special music by the Boswell choir and a solo by Dona Robbins, of Oxford, were much liked. The consecration meeting was led by Miss Phoebe Kolb, of Oxford, County Evangelistic Superintendent.

Marion County News Items—On the evening of June 28, in Indianapolis, one of the most brilliant weddings of the season was solemnized. Miss Ethel Tyree McWhirter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix McWhirter, and Mr. John Parker Wise were married in the Central Avenue Methodist Church, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Worth M. Tippy. The altar was banked with palms and ferns. Miss Myrl Shelborne presided at the organ, giving a program of wedding music as the guests assembled. Mrs. Dwight Ritter sang Because God Made You Mine just before the wedding march announced the coming of the bridal party. The ushers, Felix T. McWhirter, Jr., Foster Shirley, Albert Preston, of Greencastle, and Albert Harry McFarlan, of Connersville, marched down the south aisle and the bridesmaids marched down the north aisle and met them at the altar. The bridesmaids were Miss Susie McWhirter, Miss Minnie McWhirter, of Morristown, Tenn., Miss Alma John, of Greencastle, and Miss Daisy Haughton, of Vincennes, who were gowned in pink and carried pink sweet peas. Miss Luella McWhirter, gowned in pink and white net and carrying pink and white sweet peas, walked alone and was followed by the children, William Van Arsdal, Jr., and Helen Tippy, who carried baskets of sweet peas, which they scattered before the bride and Master Chester Miller, of Chicago, who carried the wedding ring in a long stemmed calla lily. The bride was with her father. She was very beautiful in white chiffon, with veil. Her only ornaments were a diamond locket, the wedding gift, and a bouquet of white valley lilies. She was met at the altar by Mr. Wise and his best man, Mr. Russell Wise, of Denver, Col.

Mr. and Mrs. Wise are graduates of DePauw and many college friends were guests at the wedding and the reception which followed in the home, which was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and sweet peas. Many guests from other States were present and the white ribbon was very prominent. The wedding gifts were very beautiful and filled one room.

After their trip to the lakes and down the Hudson river, Mr. and Mrs. Wise are now at home in Metchen Park, New Jersey. Mr. Wise has just graduated from Columbia Law School, of New York, where he held the position of private secretary to the Dean. A letter from the bride to Central Union, of which she was a loved member, tells of her happiness in her new home and of her intention to join the nearest W. C. T. U., also of her determination to keep as long as she lives her little bow of white ribbon, given her by Central Union to wear upon her wedding gown. Prayers for the happiness of this dear girl are filled not only with love for herself, but for her mother, who has served so long and so faithfully in W. C. T. U. ranks.

Marion County W. C. T. U. united with the Prohibition Alliance in observing the Fourth of July in a reasonable manner at Acton Park. A gold medal oratorical contest was given under the auspices of Miss Carrie Quinn. Rev. Stone, of the English Lutheran Church, in Indianapolis, gave the principal address. He was followed by Hon. Charles Lemon and others. The day was much enjoyed by the large crowd present.

Last August, Mapleton Union, in Indianapolis, of which Mrs. Amanda Whitson is president, gave a Children's Day picnic in the beautiful home of Mr. Deitz. The Cigarette Leagues and L. T. L. of Marion County were invited. Other guests were the officers and children from the Board of Children's Guardians in Irvington. The happiness of these unfortunate children was perfect and very pathetic. This year the hostess for Children's Day will be Mrs. Mary Clark, Forty-Eighth St. and Central Ave., and the Union has invited the children from the Orphan's Home to enjoy the afternoon with them. A splendid program has been prepared and a very pleasant and profitable day is expected.

Frances Willard Union, Indianapolis, held an ice cream social, Friday, July 21, in the home of Mrs. William Blodgett, the proceeds of which will be given to Hadley Industrial School. The program consisted of instrumental and vocal solos, recitations and a talk by Mrs. L. E. Scott, a crusader, who is still actively engaged in W. C. T. U. department work. Mrs. Scott is Marion County's Superintendent of Jail and Prison Work. Many have been saved through her influence. Mrs. Scott is very anxious that more work for the reformation of unfortunate girls and women should be done by our organization in the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sedwick are rejoicing in the birth of a little daughter, Ruth Johnson Sedwick. Miss Ruth is expecting to visit the State W. C. T. U. Convention, where she will be formally admitted to the ranks of the W. C. T. U. by her aunt, Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, our beloved State President.

North-East Union, Mrs. Nina Bingham, President, held a Mother's Meeting in the home of Mrs. Cora Arnold, July 14. Mrs. Taylor presided in the absence of the president. Mrs. L. D. B. Cowan, County Superintendent of Purity in Literature and Art, read the State law in regard to obscene and pernicious literature and pictures. The discussion which followed was of much benefit to the mothers present. This Union is very proud of the three crusaders in its ranks and receives much help from their experience. E. G. SMITH.

Mapleton Union, in Indianapolis, held the annual Children's Day picnic in the home of Mrs. Mary Clark, Forty-Eighth St. and Central Ave. Children from Mapleton, North Park Methodist and Christian Sunday Schools gave a musical and literary program, which was much appreciated. Rev. W. Tinsley led the devotional exercises and spoke of his interest in temperance. Mrs. E. G. Smith, State Superintendent of Narcotics, read a paper on the Cigarette Habit; an animated discussion of this habit and the lack of law enforcement followed. Much indignation was expressed by women present who had received packages of cigarette paper by mail, addressed to husbands and sons. Mrs. Frances Metz, County L. T. L. Secretary, spoke at length on the object and work of the L. T. L. and urged the young people present to enter this work. The plan to entertain the children from the Orphan's Home was frustrated, as the Home was in scarlet fever quarantine. Cream and cake had been provided for the children and much regret was expressed that they were deprived of a day in this beautiful country home. Mrs. Amanda Whitson, President of this Union, has expressed her intention to resign, as she will spend the fall and winter months in California. The members are much depressed over the outlook, as Mrs. Whitson's ability is appreciated and she is also very dearly loved by her co-workers in the Union. The County and State will join Mapleton Union in this feeling of regret.

Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, National Treasurer, came to Indianapolis, July 26, to attend the funeral of her loved friend, Mrs. Ada B. Leck. She assisted Rev. Charles Smith in the ceremonies. Her sympathy and assistance was much appreciated by the bereaved family. Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, State President, through delay of mail, was unable to be present.

W. C. T. U. Day, July 26, at Acton Park Assembly, did not have the attendance expected, though a good program was given both afternoon and evening, most W. C. T. U. women in the county desiring to pay their last respects to their friend and co-worker, Mrs. Leck, who was laid to rest on that day. New officers for the coming year were elected and plans for the improvement of the cottage were discussed during the morning session. The Conservatory of Music furnished a musical program in the evening at the solicitation of Mrs. Frances Metz, Board President.

The L. T. L. Convention, held in Acton Park, July 27 and 28, was considered a success. The annual address of the President, Miss Edith Hillis, would have been creditable in a woman three times her age and experience. Mrs. H. W. Brand, Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, Miss Adide Austin and Mr. Shattack, L. T. L. President, from New York, were guests of honor and were given all privileges of the convention except that of voting.

North-East Union, in Indianapolis, held an open air meeting in Spades Park in August. Mrs. Sarah Taylor, Vice-President, presided in the absence of the President, Mrs. Nina Bingham. Mrs. Mary Moody and other county officers were asked to take part in the program.

Palmer Union, in West Indianapolis, Rev. Mary Cox, President, was invited to the country home of Miss Lula MacCain, former President, Friday, August 11. The members of this Union are making a great effort to establish a settlement house in the factory district of this suburb and have every prospect of success.

Frances Willard Union held a Mothers' Meeting in the home of Mrs. Helfer, August 15. Mrs. L. E. Scott was the principal speaker. It is the practice of this Union to hold the Mothers' Meetings apart from the regular meetings of the Union. Socials are also given by this Union in the homes of members once each month. The finances of the Union are so much increased by this means that many acts of charity can be accomplished, which are impossible for other Unions.

Mrs. Martha Gipe, County President, who has spent the summer months at Acton Park Hotel, as the guest of her son, has returned to the city.

Election of officers and superintendents of departments, also of delegates to State and county conventions, will be held in all Unions in Marion County early in September.

The August meeting in Central Union was considered a very pleasant and profitable session, although the president, Mrs. Luella McWhirter, and Vice-President, Miss Susan Clark, were missed. A letter from Mrs. McWhirter, describing the life led in W. C. T. U. cottage at Island Park, Rome City, was read. Many residents of Indianapolis in former years are living there. Mrs. Mary Balch, loved by every member of Central Union, where she was formerly a member, Mrs. Evertson, former President of Marion County W. C. T. U. and Mrs. Maud Baker Cathcart, being among the number. Letters were also read from the brides who left the Union and the city in June, Mrs. Ethel McWhirter Wise and Mrs. Maud Baker Cathcart, telling of their happiness in their new homes and of their intention to join the local unions in their vicinity. Miss Josephine Metevier gave a character sketch of Zerelda Wallace. This paper was of unusual interest to those members who had worked with and loved this remarkable woman. Mrs. Wallace was a charter member of Central Union. The pledges written by her and inscribed in the minutes of 1875 are still in the possession of this Union. Mrs. Irene Hawley spoke of Franchise for Women and of its necessity if reform measures are to be successful. Mrs. L. D. B. Cowan and Mrs. Frances Boyer had prepared splendid papers relating to the departments of Purity in Literature and Art, and Literature. Mrs. Frances Potter, former Union President, presided, and led the devotional exercises, assisted by Mrs. Bonsib. The solo by Mrs. Minnie McWhirter, of Tennessee, was much enjoyed. Refreshments were served during the social hour by the young ladies of the Union. E. G. SMITH.

Mrs. Ada B. Leck died on July 24, after a long illness, at her beautiful home in Capitol ave., Indianapolis. Her devoted husband, Mr. Robert Leck, these sons and the beautiful young daughter survive her. Mrs. Leck was for many years President of Marion County W. C. T. U. She organized several unions and helped many weak unions. She organized the Frances E. Willard Union, in the vicinity of her own home, and served as President from the time of its organization, in 1899, until obliged to give up local and county work, one year ago, on account of failing health. At time of death Mrs. Leck was Associate Superintendent of the Department of Fairs and Open Air Meetings in the National W. C. T. U., a position she has held for many years, also serving as Superintendent of the same department in our State Union. Mrs. Leck was prominent in many charitable, educational and reform organizations, being one of the charter members of the Girls' Industrial School of Indianapolis and an active member of the Local Council of Women. She was an earnest member of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Leck was a very beautiful woman, with a winsome, dignified personality and singularly free from unkind criticism. The family will miss her, Frances Willard Union will miss her counsel and loving thoughtfulness—she will be missed in the councils of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in county, State and nation. Our sympathy is extended to the family. The young daughter is an earnest white ribboner, a member of Frances Willard Union.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. X. No. 11.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., OCTOBER, 1905.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

"You can't serve the Lord and chase after the Devil at the same time" is the explanation given by W. A. Skidmore, when he turns the subway tavern in New York into an ordinary saloon. Bishop Henry C. Potter, of the Protestant Episcopal church, was present at the dedication of this subway tavern in August, 1904. In the bar-room he made a speech in which he declared "This is the greatest social movement New York has ever known" and after the speech, led the crowd in singing, Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

This subway tavern experiment contemplated legislation, as soon as it could be shown that the new style of saloon could be made a financial success, compelling all holders of liquor licenses to provide the distinctive features of the subway tavern, food, soft drinks, games and a reading room, thus making over the whole saloon system. Now comes the passing of the scheme. For months any competent observer has known that the venture was a financial failure, though the managers professed to be making "big money." Now it transpires that in thirteen months the concern has lost $15,000.

The New York Sun says editorially: "Of course the talk about the liquor saloon being the poor man's club is nonsense. It is no more his club than is his grocery. He goes to it to get a drink and not for moral and intellectual improvement, and not for converse on high subjects. If he lingers too long after he has had his drink he is an unwelcome interloper, who is likely to be put out rather violently. If he does not buy any drink he is not wanted at all. The reason for the existence of the place is that it caters to the human appetite for stimulants, and to attract custom it provides the accessories which the experience of centuries has shown to be provocative.

"As to the matter of the selling of liquors deleterious not merely in themselves as stimulants, but also because of injurious adulterations, there is much nonsense spoken and written. Tests of the liquor sold in saloons of the district in which this religious rumshop was started as a reformatory influence have shown that generally it is no more injurious to the drinker than that sold in more elegant quarters of the town. The trouble is in drinking too much of the stuff, whether in Fifth avenue or Mulberry street. Relatively to the population, it may be observed, there are more liquor licenses in the Fifth avenue district, in the Tenderloin, than in the district of the east side south of Fourteenth street; and there is more drunkenness. Why was not the religious rumshop established in the Fifth avenue region as a rich man's club."

"The notion that under any circumstances or with any sort of surroundings a rumshop can be made other than it is, a place in which to get a drink and wholly removed from the possibility of any religious association and influence, provoked only amusement among people accustomed to such places, however seriously it may have appealed to the fancy of sentimental and whimsical philanthropists."

INDIANA'S SONG.

TUNE—"ANNIE LAURIE."

Indiana's heard the bugle,
O, army tried and true!
She is marching, she is coming,
To pledge her faith anew;
To pledge her vows anew,
To win or die with you!
You may count on Indiana
Till stars fade from the blue.

You may count on Indiana!
Her "Y's" are in the van!
They are loyal, brave and bonnie;
Go vanquish them, who can!
Go vanquish them, who can!
Her "Y's" are in the van.
O, they're loyal, brave and bonnie!
The "Y's" are in the van.

You may count on Indiana!
Her children are a-field!
Yes, the "L. T. L.'s" are coming;
Their clarion call has pealed;
Their clarion call has pealed;
Not one brigade will yield.
Oh, the "L. T. L.'s" are coming;
The children are a-field.

FRANCES E. WILLARD SAID:

I would not fail to point you toward a wide-armed cross upon a lonely hillside while I repeat his words, who said, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." Christ is the magnet of humanity, and she has found the best vocation and the highest, who brings most souls diseased, within the healing power of His immortal gospel.

THE RUM TRAFFIC.

First and foremost, as always, is the fact that the sale of liquor results detrimentally to the community, individually and collectively.

A few men are prospered financially by the licensed sale of liquor, but the vast majority are made poorer by it, and thousands are subjected by it to extreme hardship and misery.

There is not a single sound argument, moral or material, that can be advanced in favor of the sale of liquor.

Many good citizens vote "Yes" year after year on the assumption that the sale of liquor cannot be stopped by a "No" vote, and that it is better to have the business "regulated" under license.

Many others vote "Yes" because of the money the sale of licenses brings into the city treasury.

Neither of these reasons justifies the infliction upon the community of the evils of the rum traffic.

There has never been any honest attempt to regulate the liquor traffic under license.

A computation of the extra burden of expense entailed upon the city by the rum traffic through the police and pauper departments would show that the city pays out more than it receives on account of it.

Add to what the city pays in extra police and pauper appropriations the amounts expended by the churches and charitable institutions and by individuals in caring for the victims of the pauper-breeding traffic and the amount received from liquor licenses appears only a drop in the bucket in comparison.

Then the loss of income to many families entailed by drunkenness which results in the loss of time or the loss of jobs must be taken into consideration.

Account is rarely taken by the average voter of the greatest evil of all; the hardship, misery and suffering the rum traffic entails upon the wives and children of its victims.

Homes are blasted and families are broken up by the rum traffic.

Children are deprived of education and of opportunity to prepare for success in the struggle of life by the rum traffic.

The rum traffic has been responsible for more hardship, misery, suffering and death than all the wars in which the country has been engaged.

Out of each war has come good, but out of the rum traffic has come nothing but evil.—The National Advocate.

IN KANSAS.

To show how prohibition in Kansas has reduced the consumption of liquors, we give the following from the report of the U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue:

"The population of Kansas in round numbers is 1,500,000; that of Nebraska 1,100,000; of Missouri, 3,200,000.

"The total amount of taxes paid to the United States government for the manufacture and sale of intoxicants in each of these States was as follows: In Kansas, $115,483; in Nebraska, $2,776,908; in Missouri, $5,576,945. Or, for each person in Kansas, $0.077; in Nebraska, $2.52½; in Missouri, $1.74; for each person. To put it in other words, license Nebraska uses 33 times as much liquor per capita, and Missouri 22 times as much as prohibition Kansas.—Exchange.

Our Indiana party en route to Los Angeles will leave Indianapolis in a special sleeper the night of October 17. The party consists of representative white ribboners and temperance people. We have room for some more. Let me know immediately if you desire me to reserve a sleeper berth for you. LUELLA F. McWHIRTER, 2312 College ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

1905 W. C. T. U. NATIONAL CONVENTION WILL BE HELD AT LOS ANGELES, CAL., OCTOBER 25 TO NOVEMBER 2.

Notwithstanding the great travel of health and pleasure seekers to Southern California last of October and November, a one way lowest first-class fare has been secured for the round trip.

From Indianapolis and vicinity to Los Angeles and San Francisco and return, without going north of San Francisco, the fare will be about $66.50, with only $12.50 additional to those who desire to go north from San Francisco to Portland, Oregon, a distance of 1,192 miles, either over the beautiful Shasta route or by ocean steamer. From Portland to Salt Lake City, covering 965 miles of travel along the great Columbia river and across the State of Idaho. While this $12.50 side trip to Portland is optional, the small additional expense will be an inducement to see this wonderful country.

The Indiana delegates and visitors will go as a party in a special sleeper, leaving Indianapolis October 18, making a short stop at Colorado Springs, and spending Sunday, October 22, at Salt Lake City, arriving in Los Angeles in time to take some of the many interesting side trips before the opening of the convention.

The Indiana party will go via the following lines: From Indianapolis, the Big Four to St. Louis; Missouri Pacific to Colorado Springs and Pueblo; Denver and Rio Grande to Salt Lake City; San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railway to Los Angeles. This last named road crosses an entirely new section of country and shortens by twenty four hours the journey from here to Los Angeles. From Los Angeles, returning via the Coast and Valley line of the Southern Pacific road to San Francisco, where several days will be spent in this metropolis of the Pacific coast. From San Francisco those who may take the Northern California and Oregon trip will go north to Portland over the Southern Pacific road, and from Portland southeastward over the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. line and Oregon Short Line to Salt Lake City. From San Francisco those who do not make the Northern California and Oregon trip will go directly eastward to Salt Lake City over that branch of the Southern Pacific road. From Salt Lake City the Denver and Rio Grande to Denver, Missouri Pacific to Kansas City, Chicago and Great Western to Chicago, and the Big Four from Chicago to Indianapolis. Stop-over privileges granted without extra expense at Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and all points west of Denver. Members of our party will no doubt desire to make many stops at points in the West. Free chair cars on the Missouri Pacific and Chicago and Great Western from Denver to Chicago. All tickets are good to return from any point west of Denver or from Denver as late as November 30.

Our sleeper rate from Indianapolis to Los Angeles, including the stops at Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City (where we will use the sleeper instead of a hotel) will be $8.50 for a berth; two people in a berth costing each $4.25.

All who join our party are requested to bring lunch and those who have them, to bring an alcohol burner; small tables and other conveniences are provided in the car, so that we may enjoy the journey most thoroughly. Arrange to make this trip yourself and invite your friends to join our party.

For further information concerning the trip, and for sleeper reservation, write to Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, 2312 College avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

"INFERNAL" REVENUE GROWS.

One hundred and eighty-six millions was the aggregate paid into the national treasury for protection and sanction of the drink traffic during the year ending June, 1905, according to the preliminary report of Commissioner Yerkes just made public. This is an increase over 1904 of $1,425,591. The revenue from whisky and other spirits was $135,958,513; from beer and other fermented liquors, $50,360,553. In addition to these figures the revenue from cigars and tobacco was $45,659,910, an increase of $1,004,101 over 1904.—Exchange.

At Indianapolis tickets can be purchased at the office of the Pennsylvania lines, corner of Illinois and Washington streets, or at the Union Station. Be sure and get a certificate with your ticket.

The regular fare from Indianapolis to Brazil is $1.71. When certificate is vided at the convention, it will entitle the holder to buy return trip ticket for one-third the regular fare.

Invite your ministers to attend the Brazil Convention. Invite the teachers to attend the Brazil Convention.

Visitors can secure hotel and boarding rates by applying to chairwoman of that committee—see convention list of Brazil ladies who serve as chairwomen of committees.

County Presidents, please bring with you to Brazil a complete directory of your county. Have it plainly and carefully written—type-written is best. Name and addresses of county officers and superintendents; names of Local Unions, with names and addresses of their officers.

Sunday, October 8, 2:15 P. M.—To the delegates of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the State of Indiana: Welcome to our Sunday School services. Special program will be prepared for the day. Short talks from visiting delegates. Miss Emily Squier will recite, and a beautiful souvenir program, appropriate for the day and occasion, will be presented to each delegate and member of the school attending.

All delegates to the State Convention are expected to arrive in Brazil on the afternoon of October 5. A great reception will be tendered the delegates and visitors in the auditorium of the First M. E. Church on that evening by Mr. W. E. Carpenter, Superintendent of the Sunday School, and his co-laborers. This Sunday School is the fourth largest in Methodism in the whole world—numbers 2,247. Every white ribboner should plan to be present.

Thursday evening, October 5, 7:30 P. M., the officers and teachers of the First Methodist Sunday School, of Brazil, Indiana, will tender a reception to the visiting delegates of the State Convention and to the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in the auditorium of the church, at which time Miss Emily Squier, of Indianapolis, will give a recital on Temperance and Prohibition, interspersed with instrumental and vocal music. Admission by tickets.

Parents, if you desire that your young people become interested in temperance work, reflect upon conditions. Perhaps in your community you have only a small minority of outspoken Prohibitionists and W.

C. T. U. members. Your young people are associating with those who sometimes ridicule the earnestness or enthusiasm of the minority, or if not, they pity and shake their heads, saying, "It can never be done." If you will take the young son or daughter with you to the State or National W. C. T. U. Convention, where things are said and done by most interesting people, the results will be satisfactory to you. Young people catch the spirit and enthusiasm of our conventions. Invite friends with sons and daughters, scarcely in their teens, to attend the Conventions at Brazil and Los Angeles. Boarding rates are always made reasonable to convention visitors. The short time out of school will be giving an opportunity for better things than a few days' text-book learning.

Invite your minister, your husband and some teacher to spend Saturday and Sunday in the State convention. Write to Mrs. Orpha James for hotel information and engage board. This will be a great convention. Those will be great days. To visit a Sunday School of more than 2,000 members, with such a Superintendent as Mr. W. E. Carpenter, is well worth the trip to Brazil.

RAILROAD RATES.

For tickets costing not less than 75 cents to the state convention, will be one and one-third regular fare for the round trip, granted upon the certificate plan. Purchaser buys one ticket at regular fare from any point and gets a certificate. This certificate, signed at the convention, entitles the holder to a one-third regular fare for the return trip.

Because some of our delegates must come a very long distance, this reduction means much to them and their unions. Every person whose railroad expense, upon this basis, will be about the same as the inter-urban, is asked to use the railroad, so that we may have one hundred certificates. If less than that number we can not secure any reduction.

Brazil has but one interurban and that runs into it from Terre Haute on the west. All delegates from northeast, east, southeast and from Indianapolis and vicinity can reach Brazil only via the Vandalia R. R.

A fee of twenty-five cents will be charged by the railroad agent at the State Convention for each certificate vided.

PEACE.

The whole civilized world rejoices at the declaration of peace between Japan and Russia. The Russians are the hardest drinking of all European people. The Japanese are a sober, industrious, energetic people.

While the Russian officers and crews may have been sober on board ship and in action, it is plain that if the time which should have been devoted to study had not been spent in dissipation, the little sober, studious, Japanese would not have had the advantage. They gained their wonderful victories by their splendid strategy and ability. The world to-day accords the greatest honor to their leaders and appreciate the Japanese as a great nation.

OUR GIRLS.

Anna Hammer, who used to marshal the Pennsylvania hosts of the W. C. T. U. as their president, was spending a few days with me in my Catskill cottage. All W. C. T. U. women who come to Twilight Park climb the mountain to the eagle's nest, where their beloved Frances Willard spent a summer or so, before her home flitting. Coming down from that cottage we met a lady and gentlemen, on a stroll to find points of interest. They asked us the way to Squirrel Inn. We told them; and added that we had just come from there, having been up to Frances Willard's cottage, which was near the Inn.

"O!" said the lady, in a warm, rich voice, I want to see that." "Do you belong to our W. C. T. U?" asked Mrs. Hammer. "No; but my mother did."

As we went on our way, those words, "No; but my mother did," set us talking and we said to each other that we hear that quite too often. We have not enough bright, young hearts and heads in our ranks. Every temperance mother's daughter ought to be trained to love the work as her own and not in that semi-useless, sentimental way, "Because my mother did."

Our girls outnumber us. Training them to take our places, we fill and increase our ranks as they are thinned by time. It is far easier to interest and hold girls, than any others. Older women are often stuck as full of prejudices and whims as a busy woman's pincushion is of pins. These girls are full of vim and life and they can usually make anything go that they take hold of. They will be the women of affairs to-morrow, with far broader opportunities than their mothers dreamed possible.

We will lose the battle of to-morrow if we fail to drill the soldiers of to-day.

God has used young women gloriously; witness Esther, Mary and hundreds of others whose record is on high.

We can get them to work for our cause if we will go at it with a will, instead of wasting our time over the tweedledum and tweedledee of far less important matters. While we two mused, the fire burned, and we lifted our hearts in prayer, that all the young women of the land might feel the touch of power and hear the word of authority, and wheel into line, shaming our old poky ways by their lovely lively, earnestness.—Jennie Fowler-Willing, New York.

FROM MISS EDITH HILLIS, STATE PRESIDENT LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Indiana's eleventh convention of the Loyal Temperance Legion was small, but enthusiastic and earnest. We pledged ourselves to greater endeavor for the coming year, and we feel sure you will join us in this effort.

Indiana has pledged 500 subscriptions to the Crusader Monthly, to be secured before October 1st. Send to the Crusader Monthly, Evanston, Ill., for sample copies. Put these in the hands of your children and legioners and see results. For the very small sum of 25 cents a year, the Crusader should be in thousands of Indiana homes. In how many will you help place it? This paper is better with each succeeding issue and we in the work can not afford to be without it. How many of the 500 will you help us secure?

Also the report of our eleventh annual convention is to be printed and ought to be read by and in the homes of every W. C. T. U. woman. Providing we arrange to sell these reports for ten cents or less per copy, how many will you pledge for your city. Go before your unions with the Crusader pledge and this for the printed reports and present the matter to them very earnestly, urging the necessity of these things upon them, then let me hear from you soon as possible.

Now is the time for us to begin our reports for next year. Put your legioners to work. That is the way to interest and hold them. Send them to the sick with bouquets and accompanying scripture texts; send them out with literature; have them recite in medal contests and have them watchful for chances to show mercy to dumb animals; in fact, use them in every department and keep close count of everything done for the next year's report.

Now is the time to begin raising funds to send delegates to Kokomo next June. We want a large convention and will gladly entertain all you can send. We want you to catch the convention enthusiasm and earnestness.

At the national convention, there is to be a contest between States for a national L. T. L. song and rally cry. This necessitates a contest in every State first, and the plan is as follows: The song may be both words and music original, or only words. Any local legioner may write a song and cry and send same to Mrs. Mix before the State W. C. T. U. convention in October. Those received from all locals will go to State W. C. T. U. convention and a contest will there be held, the song and cry receiving the first place to be sent to the National for Indiana's entry in the national contest, and those adjudged best at the national become national song and cry. How much of a contest shall we have at Brazil in October? That rests with each local. Let us hear from you.

At our convention, Mrs. Mix was made State Organizer, and it is her wish to place a worker in every county in the State having a W. C. T. U. organization, at some time during the year. So, you will probably hear from her regarding this, and as this is just the kind of work Indiana must have, please be ready to follow out her plans when sent. Ohio was organized and held its first convention the week before Indiana's convention and as many counties represented as had Indiana. Do you see the situation? Let us all work together this year and make it one of very marked growth.

Kokomo, Ind.

The Battleship Kansas, the largest war vessel ever built in the East, was launched, August 13, at Camden, N. J. The launching was witnessed by Gov. Hock, of Kansas, whose daughter, Miss Anna Hock, acted as sponsor for the ship. With the Governor was a party of thirty Kansans. The vessel named for Prohibition Kansas was christened with spring water procured from Old John Brown's Springs in Kansas. Governor Hock suggested this, and he made the announcement, after the launching, that the christening bottle contained only water.

Every woman who pays her annual membership dues in a local W. C. T. U. in Indiana should receive the MESSAGE. The local treasurer makes out and sends the names and addresses, with the State dues, to the State Treasurer, Miss Clara Sears, of Anderson. If a member does not receive the MESSAGE she should make inquiry of the local treasurer, whose duty it is to make out and send the complete list of names to Miss Sears, and in case some member does not receive her paper, to notify the State Treasurer. Miss Sears is a pains-taking, loyal, hard working officer, whose duties are perplexing. Great efforts are being made to get the MESSAGE subscription list perfected.

Each local treasurer should carefully make out the lists of members, with addresses. The spelling of proper names can not be guessed at—they must be plainly written in order to be correctly printed. To send a name in as Mrs. Mary Brown, last September, and to send the same person's name in as Mrs. Robert Brown, this September, although the other address is the same, causes confusion. The State Treasurer cannot be expected to know that these two names belong to the same person. Send names the same way each year. Write plainly. If you cannot do so, get an eight year grade boy or girl to write the list. Boys and girls usually write plainly. Type-written lists, of course, are good.

CANTEEN AT FORT SHERIDAN.

A recent write-up in the Chicago Record Herald shows anxiety concerning awful results of the abolition of the canteen. From the Defender we quote:

The story does not amount to much, but the paper puts it up in big shape, with a picture five columns wide, and it doubtless makes a great impression.

Of course the officers were ready to talk canteen. That seems to be a part of the military duty now. And the commanding colonel readily told the reporter:

"Under the old law the officer in charge of the canteen refused a man liquor if he showed the least sign of intoxication. And if liquor was sold to the applicants under any circumstances it was not stuff that drives men crazy. In other words, we had the drinking question reined in, but now we are absolutely without power."

There are plenty of men who, like the writer of these lines, have seen drunken soldiers wallow in their vomit in the canteen at Fort Sheridan in canteen days; but what does the colonel care for that, or what the Record-Herald?

The reporter says that he found 13 saloons in Highwood, the village near the fort, but gives a "full list" of only 12. Evidently more than the list was "full." This, in a village of 1,700 people that is the only license town for miles around, is not very remarkable; nor, when it is remembered that there were 9 saloons there when the canteen went out of business, four and a half years ago, and that the license fee has been reduced by one-fourth and the number of soldiers in the fort more than doubled, is the increase in number of the saloons anything to hang a very big story upon?

Still less comfort did the reporter get from the saloonkeepers, whom he quotes as saying that pay days are sometimes so dull now that they do not notice them as they pass, and that they favor the canteen as making better times for the saloons. The mayor of the town, a saloonkeeper, appears in the article as saying:

"All in all, I rather favor the canteen, as it meant better business for the Highwood saloons than under the existing arrangement."

The story ends up with a suggestion worth looking after:

"No liquor is supposed to be sold within Fort Sheridan reservation, and technically it is not. The reporter, however, obtained hard cider of the vinegary variety—the kind that tumbles a man over after eight or ten drinks—in a place opposite the main buildings within the grounds. An intoxicated man of thick speech and blinking eyes gave the proper 'tip' when asked if one could obtain a drink without walking out of the grounds."

Suggestions that the canteen law is being evaded by such means as this are growing frequent.

DRINKING IN THE ARMY.

For some weeks back the press of the country has contained daily reports of the sickening and disgusting drinking bouts of army officers and their wives, brought to light in the divorce trials of Captain Taggart.

In the light of these reports we can understand the activity of certain army officers, and the wives of army officers, for the re-establishment of beer saloons at the camps.

Without fear of contradiction we affirm as a maxim that positions of great public trust, positions involving the safety of life and property, require men of the highest trustworthiness, and an absolute requisite to this is the habit of perfect sobriety.

The great railroad corporations of every country have come to recognize the justice and wisdom of this, as is evidenced by the requirements they impose on their employees.

By the great railroads of the United States total abstinence is required of their employees. What these railroad companies say to their employees in substance is: "You can drink if you will. Whether you drink or not is for you to determine. But you cannot drink and work for us." The ground upon which these railway companies act is that the traveling public and property owners have a right to the best possible protection.

Does not the same reasoning apply with equal fitness and force to those who are in the employ of the American people as officers and soldiers? There can be but one answer.

The duty of the army is to defend the country and protect its interests. Can drunken soldiers or officers with maudlin brains be depended on for this? How emphatic the answer which history and the verdict of the best and ablest observers give to this question.

Why should not the American people demand of their servants what railroad companies demand of their employees? Why risk the influence of drink when all men know that it renders those who take it aggressive and reckless, and leads to untold mischief?

The National Temperance Society, in its annual report of 1881, said: "The effective way to stop drunkenness in the army, as elsewhere, is to stop drinking; and the way at least greatly to lessen drinking among soldiers and officers is to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in connection with the army supply stations or in the vicinity of the army. Abstinence from intoxicating liquors might, and ought to be, prescribed by Congress, in accordance with its constitutional authority, as a rule and regulation of the military and naval as well as of the civil service."—National Advocate.

EVILS OF THE CIGARETTE.

In the presence of their Superintendent, during a meeting Saturday, approximately 450 of the 500 boys detained at the Plainfield Reformatory confessed that the use of cigarettes had been a great factor in bringing about their incarceration. Dr. A. W. Shaw, of the Trinity Congregational Church, at Indianapolis, and at the head of the American Anti-Cigarette League, had been invited to talk to the boys on Character Building. During the progress of his address he paused and put the question directly to his hearers—How many of you boys before me were addicted to the use of cigarettes and how many of you believe that the habit is in a large measure responsible for your present condition?

"Fully 90 per cent of the boys raised their hands," said Dr. Shaw, "and that is a conservative estimate. I might in all truth say that 97 per cent acknowledged the use and consequences of cigarette smoking, but I am inclined to make the estimate a low one. If Judge Alford and Judge Whallon, of Indianapolis, could have witnessed the incident and could also go with me among the schools of the State they might agree with the Supreme Court of the United States in their view of the cigarette law."

The above incident is considered one of the strongest proofs of the righteousness of the Indiana anti-cigarette law and it is believed will have a new influence in spurring up the officers of the State in the enforcement of the law as it is upon the statute books.—Exchange.

MICHIGAN'S PLAN FOR FIELD WORK.

The State hires the field workers.

Field workers must send in a monthly report of the number of days in the field; also, itemized account of traveling expenses.

Days consumed by travel only not to be counted in.

Dates that fail not to be counted.

There must be at least five consecutive dates and at points not widely separated.

Each Local union employing a State field worker shall pay said field worker $1.50 and give her the collection and her entertainment.

Field workers are to visit unorganized points for collection only.

Field worker is to give receipt to Local union for money received.

Field worker reports all money received in her monthly report.

If the amount received is not sufficient to pay field worker's salary and traveling expenses, State to meet the deficit.

If the amount received exceeds salary and traveling expenses, the surplus to be turned over to the State.

E. L. C.

TESTIMONY FROM THE BENCH.

Judge McAuley, of Kansas City, in committing a "plain drunk," gave utterance to the following: "If I had my way I would not only close every saloon in the county Sunday and week days, but I would stop the sale of intoxicating liquor in any shape or for any purpose whatever. I would make it a crime to manufacture the stuff. This may be far reaching, but the sentiment is justified by the sights and experiences in this courtroom. Ninety-five per cent of the cases tried here are the direct results of whisky; the other 5 per cent includes morphine and cocaine fiends and a few petty grievances that come before me for adjustment."

The woes that arise from the use of whisky, the ruined men and women, the broken families, the griefs and tears all aired in this courtroom are enough to turn gray the hair on a buffalo robe."—Exchange.

A ROYAL SUCCESS.

That Cabbage Patch social event given by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. was an unqualified success in every respect. The beautiful lawn of J. M. Halstead, and the street as well, was packed with people. The yard was beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns and the Cabbage Patch was something rich and rare. Denominational garden was very interesting and the description given by Lovey Mary of the beauties of the garden was well worth the fee asked. Too much cannot be said in praise of the excellent music furnished by the Brazil concert band, as a constant strain of music was heard throughout the evening. The merry-go-round was kept busy by the little folks and the dainties were all first-class. This is only the beginning of the many social events to be given by the ladies, as the State Convention is to be held here in October and they are taking this plan as one of the means of raising funds to defray the expenses of the Convention.—Brazil Newspaper.

MAGISTRATE JOSEPH POOL SAYS:

I do not believe from my observation that drink is due to poverty. There is nothing in the hopelessness of poverty which drives men, even married men, to drink. No; it is the other way—poverty and abandonment are due to drink.

In the vast majority of cases in the police courts the wives that are abandoned have children, often five and six or more. The evidence in many of these cases is enough to bring tears to any judge's eyes. Wives, forsaken by their husbands, struggle along, trying to support themselves and their little ones, while their worthless husbands loaf. Finally, we see the pale-faced wives in court, appealing to justice as a last resort.

"THE LOS ANGELES IDEA."

The Los Angeles idea, as the new plan of handling the saloon problem is called, will be watched with interest everywhere.

The "idea" is this: It is proposed to have a private company buy all the saloons, now numbering 200, and reduce the number to 75, with a view to eliminating as many of the evils of the traffic as possible. The promoters offer to pay $180,000, or $2,400 a saloon. They will pay to the city all profits over $200,000, to be used on municipal improvements, and the same license fees as at present.

We are not sure yet that we will have the advance sheets of the superintendent's reports printed for the State Convention, yet we trust every superintendent's report will be forwarded to the Recording Secretary ten days before the State Convention and that the superintendent will keep a duplicate of her report and bring it with her to the State Convention, that she may not be inconvenienced if the printer fails to receive her report or they are not printed.

MATTIE CAMMACK-GIBSON,
Recording Secretary.

New Hampshire. The Frank Jones Brewing Company has been fined $700 for putting salicylic acid in ale, and another concern has been fined for putting it in beer. Think of it! In the beverage which made Portsmouth so famous! In the beverage which many people drink when they don't dare to drink water.

Greencastle.—To redeem the pledge of sixty subscriptions to the Crusader Monthly made at the L. T. L. convention and secure as many more as possible, the Loyal Temperance Legion of Greencastle was divided into two companies, under the leadership of Miss Marian Ostrom and Miss Eva Wright, as captains. Enthusiastic meetings were held and a vigorous campaign was on for more than two weeks. On Sunday, September 10, the result of the contest was announced. Although the rain was pouring down, about fifty people were present. The funds were counted by Dr. Hoagland and Mr. Huestis, showing that Miss Ostrom had twenty-seven dollars and Miss Wright nineteen dollars, or one hundred and eighty-four subscribers. Think how much that means for temperance! Since the close of the contest enough more subscriptions have been received to swell the list to two hundred.

The defeated side gave a social in honor of the visitors. This was held Friday evening at the beautiful home of Mrs. S. A. Hays. Right well did the committee perform its duties. Aside from the games and refreshments a short program was given, consisting of a piano solo by Miss Lee Greta Ayres, vocal solo by Miss Lydia Williams, a delightful talk by Rev. Sonnie, pastor of the Presbyterian church, a recitation by Wade Hollingshead and song, Saloons Must Go, by a chorus of girls.

An incident. During the contest a trio of little girls, Lillian Hays, Hazel Vermilion and Julia Jean Nelson, in a pony cart, were often seen driving hither and thither intent on subscriptions. They secured thirty-one.

PROHIBITION IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The Philadelphia North American is authority for the statement that the coming session of Congress will be compelled to face the liquor question in a somewhat unexpected form. Judge A. R. Webber, of the Fourteenth Ohio district, proposes to introduce a bill making the sale of liquor illegal in the District of Columbia. Judge Webber is an ardent hater of the saloon and believes that he can accomplish more for its overthrow in this way than in any other. We bid Judge Webber God speed in his efforts.

The government of the District of Columbia is entirely in the hands of Congress. The people of the District have nothing whatever to say about it.

This being the case, the responsibility for the liquor traffic in the District of Columbia is not on the people of the district, but on Congress and on the President, who is the agent of Congress, for the execution of the law of the District.

How the law is enforced may be seen from the following statements, which, as far as we know, have never been denied: Within one block of the post-office there are 39 speak-easies, and adjoining the White House grounds there are 13 open gateways to perdition, while between the White House and the postoffice in the city of Washington there are 102 speak-easies.

Thus, to the nation's shame and disgrace, the business of rum selling is permitted to go right on in godless defiance of all law and decency.

While such things are permitted to go on at the nation's capital, is it any wonder that lawlessness and anarchy are found in the towns and cities of all the States?—Exchange.

Mrs. Harriet Wright Brand, our National Treasurer and a loved member of our Indianapolis Central Union, will attend our State convention.

The husbands of some of our delegates to the Brazil convention will spend Sunday at the convention and no doubt greatly enjoy the entire services.

A large number of berths have already been engaged in the Indiana sleeper going to Los Angeles. From present indications two sleepers will be necessary to accommodate the Indiana delegates and visitors.

Miss Lillie La Drew, our Y. W. C. T. U. State Secretary, was married on September 1 to Mr. Mosley, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Mosley is connected with the soldiers' and sailors' branch of the Y. M. C. A. We wish these young people much happiness and feel honored that the white ribbon home just established in Brooklyn will be presided over by a beautiful Indiana Y.

BEER AND BABIES.

Beer is bad for babies.

Beer is neither a food nor a stimulant.

Alcohol is poison; beer is diluted alcohol.

The most that has ever been claimed for alcohol as a food is that it is capable of being converted into heat and fat. But it is worthy of note that these claims have been made by chemists and physicians paid for their opinion by the manufacturers of alcoholic beverages. And even they have had to admit that but a very limited quantity of alcohol could be appropriated by the system.

Besides alcohol there is nothing of value in beer. There is more food value in a teaspoonful of milk than there is in a gallon of beer. There is no poison in milk. There is enough poison in a gallon of beer to kill fifty-one infants.

Beer contains from 3 to 5 per cent of alcohol, or from two to three teaspoonfuls of alcohol in each glass of beer.

Three drops of alcohol, which is equivalent to one teaspoonful of beer, or six to eight drops of whisky or brandy, will make a week old infant drunk. That is why some mothers and nurses give crying babies whisky or brandy. It seems to cure the colic. But it only makes them so drunk they go in to a stupid sleep.

What mother would like to see her son brought home from the corner saloon, or her daughter from the dance hall, in a drunken stupor? Yet how often will a mother deliberately make the infant at her breast drunk to prevent it from crying.

Are not beer and other alcoholics in moderation stimulants? That is an exploded theory. Does not alcohol stimulate the heart to quicker beats? No. It irritates it to a more rapid action in the system's effort to eliminate the poison. Does it not stimulate digestion? No. It inflames the stomach and congests the liver. Does it not stimulate the mind? No. It makes the intellect stupid and dull.—Exchange.

BRIEF NOTES.

Crothersville has a W. C. T. U., organized by Mrs. Goodace. A Young Woman's Branch has been organized also. Some of the excellent people of Crothersville are exultant over this victory.

The Open Door. A charming pocket magazine for train, trolley or anywhere. Quarterly. Twenty-five cents a year. Send for it. Jennie Fowler-Willing, editor and publisher, 112 West 88th street, New York City, N. Y.

At Mitchell a very successful silver medal contest was held in the M. E. Church. Seven girls composed the class and each did exceedingly well. Miss Brownie Harn won the medal, her recitation being Our National Curse. An audience of our very best people were in attendance and were delighted with the entertainment. $17 was realized above expenses and much enthusiasm is manifested as results. New life has taken hold of the union. Another contest is being planned for the near future. This union is one year old, but feels very tottery. This contest has awakened up a host of people and we hope to press on in our work.

Temperance and prohibition sentiment in Whiteland, Ind., is increasing. During the last few months the White Shield League, in the M. E. Sunday School, has been organized with over one hundred total abstainers as members, and a Prohibition Alliance has been organized in the town with forty-four shares. On July 26 a number of ladies, representing the different churches, met in the M. E. Church with Mrs. Hadley Hall, our beloved County President, who gave a short address and after thorough explanation of the work organized a W. C. T. U. of twenty-nine members, with officers as follows: President, Mrs. Ella Kroft; Recording Secretary, Miss Vivian Tracy; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Jennie Fisher; Treasurer, Miss Versal Parkhurst.

The Union Signal offers something good every week; correspondence from "our far-flung battle line" in this and other lands; strong articles on timely topics; stirring temperance stories; practical hints for temperance workers; in short, the Union Signal speaks the messages of Mother National, and should reach every white ribboner and every friend of our cause. Yes, you need the Union Signal all the year around. But you will want a number of extra copies of the convention numbers, November 16 and 23. (Price, five cents for the two copies.) These will contain the full report of the National Convention, including the President's Annual Address. You can find nothing better with which to answer the question, What is the W. C. T. U. Doing? than this report of a year of splendid achievement. Please send orders early. Address, The Union Signal, Evanston, Ill.

Dearborn County secured Mrs. Mattie Cammack Gibson, State Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction, for Sunday, August 20, with the Dillsboro Union and she spoke three times to interested audiences. On Monday and Tuesday, August 21 and 22, Mrs. Gibson delivered most excellent addresses on scientific temperance to the teachers of Dearborn County, assembled in their annual institute in educational hall in the court house in Lawrenceburg. Each teacher was presented with a copy of the Reply, the temperance program and the temperance law. Mrs. Gibson and all members of the W. C. T. U. who were present, were shown every possible attention and courtesy by Mr. S. K. Gold, County Superintendent of Public Schools, and the teachers. Also on the evening of August 21, Mrs. Gibson delivered a fine lecture to a very attentive audience in the Methodist church in Lawrenceburg.

The Kate Lee Union, of Deputy, met on the beech grove camp ground one afternoon of the revival services, held there, August, 1905, and was addressed by Mrs. Culla Vayhinger. It was a masterful, earnest and touching appeal to the fathers and mothers to give their hearty co-operation in every way possible for the uplifting of both man and womankind. The great responsibility of every individual was clearly shown by the interrogatory text, II Samuel, 18-29, Is the Young Man Absalom Safe. It was a splendid address, and was listened to from first to last with absorbing interest. Good music was rendered by singers from Deputy. A beautiful solo by Miss Lella Reynolds, of Indianapolis Central Union, with her harp accompaniment, her sweet voice and face lending inspiration. A fine duet was rendered by Mrs. Della Dixon and Mrs. Clara Robertson. Miss Jennie Smith, the railroad evangelist, gave a very interesting and instructive account of the work done by the W. C. T. U. among the seamen, miners, railroaders, etc. Seven new members were added to the membership at this place, on September 7. Kate Lee Union elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Alma Foster; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Sarah Robertson; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Anna Robertson; Treasurer, Mrs. Nora Short. During the summer months good programs have been enjoyed. Twenty-seven boys and girls joined the band of mercy in charge of Miss Minnie Hartwell.

Blackford County convention was held at Hartford City. Mrs. S. M. Stahl, president, in the chair. In her annual address Mrs. Stahl said: "Ninety per cent of all children who sign the total abstinence pledge keep it, while 90 per cent of men who sign break the pledge. Our hope is the children." Department work showed activity. Dr. Elma Townsend, of Hartford City, was called to the platform and gave her most excellent lecture "Making of Tomorrow." At the close of the lecture a motion was put and carried by a unanimous vote to secure its publication in our local paper, showing certainly how much it was appreciated by those who were privileged to hear it. An open parliament was held, each member giving testimony as "Why I wear the White Ribbon." The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. S. M. Stahl; Vice-President, Mrs. Bugh; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Hudson; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Shaoun; Treasurer, Mrs. Slater. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Lecturer, delivered a splendid address in the evening. The inspiration from this and the songs of the Rolland Hartford City quartettes will no doubt add renewed energy to the temperance workers present.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, State Lecturer, made four addresses recently in Spencer to splendid audiences, speaking in the court house yard on Saturday night, at the Presbyterian Church at the Sunday school hour and at the Methodist Church at 10:30 A. M., again in the court house yard at 3:30 P. M. and at the Christian Church on Sunday evening. The Baptist Sunday school attended the Presbyterian school to hear Mrs. Stanley. Mrs. R. McClaren, President of the Spencer Union, presided at the various meetings. Good music by union choir. Of Mrs. Stanley's addresses from a Spencer paper we quote: Mrs. Stanley presents the temperance question in a manner that appeals to the reason and conscience of her hearers. She commended the work of the citizens of Spencer in closing the saloons and paid a handsome compliment to the prosecuting attorney and deputy for their efforts in enforcing the law. She advocates constant effort to enforce the laws. The closing of the saloons is only a partial victory. The effort should be constant to the end that they remain closed and that violations of the law cease. In the afternoon Mrs. Stanley spoke from the text "He hath not dealt so with any nation;" reviewing the wonderful resources and advancement of the country, pointing to its religious and educational institutions, in all of which we take pride and of which we are wont to boast. But the saloon is also an institution of our civilization and the power exerted by it neutralizes and destroys much of the results attained by school, college and church. She urged all to take a stand against the liquor traffic, and press on to final and complete victory, which can come only with the extermination of the traffic. The evening lecture was directed to the church member who has allowed non-professors of religion to outdo him in the fight against the liquor traffic. There are many orders in the State that exclude saloon keepers from membership and which exert an influence on the side of temperance. "What do ye more than others?" was the question asked of the church member. Mrs. Stanley is generally admitted to be the best woman speaker that has addressed a Spencer audience in recent years and her effort here is regarded as being helpful to the temperance cause.

Marion County News Items—Central Union, of Indianapolis, held a Silver Medal Oratorical Contest in Broad Ripple Park, August 26. The eight contestants were well prepared and the contest was popular, many standing till the close of the last recitation. The occasion was the annual old settlers' picnic, and the crowd attending was between four and five thousand. Mrs. Rebecca Hessong, President of Broad Ripple Union, presided in the absence of Mrs. Luella McWhirter, President of Central Union.

Most Unions in Marion County have elected the officers for the coming temperance year; many changes have been made, owing to poor health of former officers and removals from the city. Mrs. Luella McWhirter, who has served Central Union as President during the past year, could not accept the responsibility for the coming year, so Mrs. Rosa Brown was elected to fill that position.

Rev. Mary Cox, former president of Palmer Union, has left the city to fill another pulpit; her successor in the West Indianapolis Friends Church has been appointed her successor in Palmer Union.

The Annual Convention in Marion County will be held, September 26 and 27, in the Furnas Place M. E. Church, in Indianapolis. Rev. Wm. Shaw, State Superintendent of the Anti Cigarette League, will lecture on the first evening his subject being My Boy and Your Girl. Rev. Foster Stone will speak on the Mormon menace the afternoon of the second day.

Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter gave a parliamentary drill, during the election of officers in Frances Willard Union, which was much appreciated by the members. Mrs. Frances Williams was again made president. Mrs. Cora Shadd, who has filled the treasurer's office in this union since it was organized, was obliged to resign, as her health is so poor that her friends are very anxious. Mrs. Shadd was considered the best board treasurer in Marion County.

CONVENTION NUMBER.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

My Beloved Comrades:

We meet today in our thirty-second annual convention to recount our victories, review and find the reason for any defeat which we may have suffered and plan our work for another year. We gratefully acknowledge the presence of God, our Father, and give Him the glory for the successes which have come to us since last we met. His promise, "Lo, I am with you alway," has been again verified. He has not allowed one honest effort made for the advancement of His kingdom to be lost, and although the battle in which we are engaged is not over, the open dram shops have not all been closed, the double standard of purity has not given place to the single standard in all the hearts and homes of our State, the golden rule of Christ has not everywhere taken the place of the rule of selfishness and injustice, yet as we read the history of the work that has been accomplished toward the prohibition of the liquor traffic in the past year, we can see with the eye of faith in the not far distant future Indiana with "a school house on every hilltop and no saloon in the valley," taking her place alongside Maine and Kansas under the white banner of Prohibition. This has been a year of reaping, as well as seed sowing. For many years faithful men and women have held aloft the flag on which has been inscribed "Total abstinence for the individual and legal prohibition for the traffic," never lowering it, even in the darkest times of severest criticism. Believing that a man never rises higher than his ideals, and that a Christian nation has no right to lower a standard which God himself has planted, they have time after time rescued this banner from the hordes and vandals of the liquor traffic and planted it upon the churches, school-houses and homes of our land.

To no one organization belongs all the credit for the work accomplished in the past year, but much is due to the fact that the temperance forces presented an almost solid front to the enemy. All differences as to methods of work were laid aside and ammunition was used on the common foe and not on our friends. United effort is always productive of the best results. Since we last met, a new Governor has taken his seat as the chief executive of the State, and we have found that the words of that great and wise man, "when the righteous are in authority the people rejoice," are true today as they were more than twenty-five centuries ago. I was never so proud that I am a Hoosier as I am today, and I desire to express my esteem and admiration for Governor Frank Hanly, a man who has the courage of his convictions, who has given the political machine to understand that their recommendation of a man for office bears no weight unless that man is competent to fill the office and a total abstainer, a man who is brave enough to use the power vested in him as Governor to bring law violators to justice and to demand the resignation of a man who has proven himself unworthy the trust of the people; a man who "cares more for the approval of the Christian mothers of the State than he does for the votes of law violators and saloon-keepers." Happy the father and mother who gives such a son to the world! Great the Christ whose spirit in the hearts of men will make them pure and true in any walk of life! When Governor Hanly announced his policy on entering upon the duties of his office, it brought courage to the hearts of the temperance people of the State, and as a result of their activities we have a very fair local option law upon our statute books. These laws are all that we desire, and yet they are the school masters that are leading us up to prohibition. Our Governor does not stand alone among the Governors of the nation in his good work. Governors Folk of Missouri, Hoch of Kansas, and LaFollette of Wisconsin are each doing the same work in his respective State.

This is a joyous occasion to me, because I see before me tonight faces which have been before my mind's eye all during the year, but now for a few days we are to see face to face, and yet there is a feeling of sadness as we miss the faces which have become familiar in this gathering, but will be with us no more. The union here on earth has lost some valuable members this year, but the heavenly union has gained them.

"With arms outstretched, the angel said: Welcome to heaven's home, sweet home," and though the workers are called to their reward, yet the work must go on, so my only ambition for this convention is that it may be led of the Holy Spirit and a real Pentecost to our organization.

The last time we met together the cloud of war hung over the Orient. The roll of the drum called husbands and fathers from their homes to follow their country's flag to death or victory. The cry of weeping wives and children was heard as the cruel hand of war tore their loved ones from them to return them no more. But as we meet today the white dove of peace has spread her wings over Japan and Russia. The clash of arms has ceased and given place to the sounds of labor. We are glad that our own President has been the moving spirit in these peace negotiations. May this be but the precursor of the day when swords shall be beaten into plow-shares and spears into pruning hooks, and nations shall learn war no more; when the honor of any nation which will not submit its differences to arbitration shall be so seriously affected that war will be impossible.

"Civilization is the triumph of reason. Every war is a recrudescence to barbarism." Frances Willard said, "We all believe that one of the choicest fruits of Christianity will be the growth of a bond of brotherhood and sisterhood so close among our nations, and races and peoples, that we shall become truly kindred each to the other, and that great word, 'Humanity,' like a rolling wave of the ocean of God's love, shall wash out from the sands of time the words 'Caste,' 'Greed,' 'Sex' and even that good word 'Patriotism,' because we shall feel that the whole world is our country and all men are kin."

EDUCATIONAL.

When Pilot asked the question, "What is truth?" he only re-echoed a question hoary with age and one which has engaged the minds of men from earliest time. As early as 600 B. C. we find Thales, one of the Seven Wise Men of Greece, an astronomer, mathematician and philosopher, groping in darkness, trying by reasoning to find out the first principles and maker of the universe. After blindly searching nature he died, still asking the question "What is truth?" Then came Pythagoras, who tried to discover laws governing not only the universe, but to apply them to society and the State, but it remained for Socrates, the reformer, reprover and critic, to enter the realm of ethical philosophy and discover some of the great truths that have stood through all ages. The truth of the immortality of the soul had existed before the age of Socrates, but it remained for him to discover it and leave it to the world. From his day the discovery of truth went forward with leaps and bounds. When Plato says, "Goodness is co-eternal with God," we are reminded of Him who, coming later, said, "I am the way, the truth and the life," and as this old philosopher unfolds some of the truths of creation, we wonder whether he had not in some way gathered them from the teachings of Moses. Plato applied some of the great ethical truths to the state, but it remained for Aristotle to unravel many of the mysteries pertaining to the family, society and the state so that after more than two thousand years he still stands without a rival in the field of philosophy. Some of his views are worthy a Christian statesman. "The end of the state," says Aristotle, "is the virtue and happiness of all the citizens. The first and great end of legislation should be the virtuous character and conduct of its citizens. Politicians, however, look more to what is expedient," he says, "than to what is good and beautiful; more to war than to peace. Their object is to enlarge territory rather than to render the state just and wise. This is a mistaken policy. Whatever is not at the same time just is impolitic." "The virtue of a state consists not in the bravery of its citizens in war exclusively, but in their justice, moderation and wisdom." We are reminded in this teaching of that other wise but inspired man who said, "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." Is it not the same gretna truth which our Supreme Court promulgates when it says, "No Legislature can bargain

Held at Brazil was largely attended, there being a very large number of visitors from different parts of the State, besides the 257 voting delegates. The Brazil people were in every sense hospitable. Never in the history of the Indiana W. C. T. U. has there been such enthusiastic interest taken in the local arrange-ments by the citizens and church officers as for this Brazil Convention. Splendid local arrange-ments were made by the W. C. T. U.

The Convention was held in the splendid new M. E. Church, which is very commodious and beautiful. It contains forty rooms, including convenient toilet rooms. The auditorium is large, with splendid acoustic properties.

On Thursday evening a reception to the dele-gates was given in the auditorium of the church by Superintendent W. E. Carpenter, the officers and teachers and the Sunday School. The largest audience ever assembled in the great Brazil M. E. Church was present in honor of the W. C. T. U. An elaborate program was arranged, Superintendant Carpenter presiding. Rev. Greene, the pastor, made a most cordial address of wel-come, responded to by President Vayhinger, fol-lowed by a recital by little Emily Squier. Ex-cellent musical selections were rendered by the Sunday School orchestra. Admission was by ticket. About 2,200 tickets were taken at the door, many being turned away for lack of room.

The State officers' reports showed marked in-crease in our work all over the State. Aggres-siveness of our leaders has pre-empted new fields. The Superintendents of Departments in their reports have this year showed an increased activity regarding the prohibition of liquor traf-fic.

The business of the convention was transac-ted with great ability by the presiding officer, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, and the body of dele-gates. The evening meetings were largely at-tended, as many as 2,000 people being present every evening.

On Friday evening the welcome addresses were by Rev. J. F. Stitt for the churches, Mayor Shattuck for the city and Mrs. Dora Keith for the W. C. T. U. Response was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley. Following was the annual address of our State President, Mrs. Vayhinger, which was able and comprehensive and delivered in a masterful manner.

The immense audience showed its apprecia-tion by continued applause.

The Diamond Medal Contest on Saturday evening drew out an audience that taxed the capacity of the great auditorium of the church. On account of the rule of the church that no ad-mission could be taken at the door, and the ne-cessity for at least one hundred dollars to meet the expenses of the contest, Superintendent Car-penter assured the committee in charge that the Brazil audience on the night of the contest would give one hundred dollars. To this end he had enthusiastically announced the need of the com-mittee until the free-will offering at the doors that night amounted to $141.00, the largest amount ever received on contest night at the State Convention.

Our evangelists and speakers spoke in the churches on Sunday morning and Sunday even-ing. On Sunday afternoon at 2:15 was held the regular Sunday School service, at the close of which short speeches were made by Emily Squier, Mrs. Vayhinger and Mrs. McWhirter. For this service a most elaborate and beautiful sou-venir program was given by the Sunday School to every person present. On the front page of this program was a large bouquet of flowers. Out of the blossoms appeared the faces of the State workers and the Local and County Presidents.

The mass meeting was held at 3:30 in the af-ternoon, addressed by Miss Edith Hillis, State President of the Loyal Temperance Legion. Mr. Will Evans represented the Greencastle L. T. L. and delivered "The Court of Last Appeal."

The convention closed at noon on Monday, having finished the business in one day and a half, less time than usual. The universal ex-pression of the delegates was that this had been the greatest convention in the history of the In-diana W. C. T. U.

BRAZIL CONVENTION NOTES.

By the Courtesy of Mayor Schattuck, an auto-mobile ride was given the delegates on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. This was accomplished by the kindness of the livery men and the cit-izens of Brazil.

Grant County has eighteen active Press Su-perintendents who keep our work before the pub-lic.

Marion County delegation had five young girls as delegates.

Brazil Convention will ever be remembered for its deeply spiritual atmosphere.

Miss Carrie Bard was persistent, faithful and helpful during all the days of the Convention.

Miss Elizabeth Sherfy, the beautiful daughter of our Mrs. Helen Sherfy, was the ever present, helpful worker and page in the Convention.

Mrs. Haughton occupied the evangelist hour on Friday and spoke from the text, "Love One An- other." She gave a most excellent exhortation to Christian love and courtesy.

The Secretary called roll and 54 ex-officio members of the Convention responded. There was fully three hundred delegates and visiting delegates at the opening session of the Conven-tion.

The Convention opened by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." Mrs. Gulia Shugart read the beautiful love chapter, I Cor. 13, and Mrs. Sallie Edgerton voiced the prayer of the Con-vention.

The Ante-Executive Committee, which met at 2 p. m. on Thursday, October 5, was very large and marked by many new faces of County Presi-dents. Much interest was taken in all the dis-cussions.

The Brazil Times requested that the Conven-tion furnish a report of the proceedings for pub-lication. Mrs. Jennie Stephenson was appointed reporter and was highly complimented on her work for the paper.

Hadley Industrial School, President, Mrs. John B. Hann, Indianapolis, Ind.; Custodian of Funds, Mrs. Lida Outland, Upland, Grant County, Ind. The Custodian of the school reported that the entire debt was paid.

Loving Greetings were received from Mother Trish, with instructions to read Deut. 31: 6, 7, 8; Mrs. Eunice Wilson, Miss Alice Palmer and Mrs. Hattie Brand. The Convention instructed the Corresponding Secretary to return greetings.

Mrs. Luella McWhirter spoke of work done on the Message, our State paper, which she was pleased to call "our letter to the women," and kindly urged the women to send in their articles by the 15th of the month, that they might ap-pear in the next month's issue.

Miss Sears gave the report of the Y's, which, for lack of an active Secretary, have suffered loss. However, many young women are co-op-erating with the W's. A large number of young lady delegates attended the Convention and will-ingly and cheerfully served the Convention in different capacities.

The Convention recommended that each Un-ion should double its membership, and that each Union should make a free-will offering of not less than one dollar and fifty cents for a State Organization Fund, the money to be sent to the State Treasurer as early as possible, that the field work may be begun at once.

Miss Edith Hillis, President of the State L. T. L., made an excellent address on Sabbath af-ternoon at the Young People's Mass Meeting. She is earnest and enthusiastic in her work, and pos-sesses the ability to inspire in others an interest in her cause. She made an earnest appeal to the W. C. T. U. to help push the work of the L. T. L. throughout the State.

LETTERS TO TREASURERS.

Dear Co-Workers:

No doubt many have wondered why they did not receive their monthly letter, The Message. We learned a few days ago, through a friend at Indianapolis, that the former printer, Mr. Ratti, would not put out the November issue, as the paper was in the future to be printed in Ander-son, where the Business Manager could look after the work personally. By December 1st you will receive the first quarterly blanks for this year, and I have one special request to make of Local Treasurers: Should your Union have mem-bers living in other towns, or where they re-ceive their mail, will you be kind enough, please, instead of mixing up postoffice addresses, place all for Bluffton under that head R. F. D., and some other town under another head? It takes too long to pick them out.

The Minutes will possibly be in your hands by the time you receive this paper; if not, in a very short time. We think them very helpful and pretty. If the Directory is not what it ought to be, remember the Recording Secretary and myself have done our best in the absence of the Corresponding Secretary, whom you all know was a delegate to the National Convention.

Be prompt with your reports. My books must close by the 26th of a quarter, December, March, June and September, and when I receive dues after this time, they have to be placed on the following quarter. I thank you for your help the past year, and as I am to serve you another, will do my best with much prayer for strength to serve you as I ought. Pray for me.

Send list of members who do not receive their Message, and immediate attention will be given to each. Lovingly,

CLARA M. SEARS,
State Treasurer.

away the public health and morals. The people themselves cannot do it, much less their servants. Government is organized with a view to their preservation and cannot divest itself of the power to provide for them." Surely truth is eternal and is the same whether discovered by Thales, Aristotle or given through inspiration by God himself. All of these great truths governing man in his relation to his fellowman, the State and his Maker are co-eternal with God and exist because God is God. They may be beclouded with superstition and ignorance until they are not recognizable as in the days of the inquisition, or may be mis-interpreted, twisted and subverted from their proper setting, as in the days of slavery, or covered up with the rubbish of so-called "scientific investigation," as were the truths concerning the nature and effect of alcoholic liquors upon the human system concerning the nature and effect of alcoholic liquors upon the human system. But though "truth may be forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne, yet that scaffold sways the future, and behind the dim unknown standeth God within the shadaow of keeping watch above His own."

The great question through the ages has been, What is truth? Which is error? This question was so important that it gave rise to the different schools of philosophy, both ancient and modern, and through these years of discussion, as philosophers and teachers have been coming nearer the coveted goal, it seemed that the transition was unsettling the beliefs of the masses, and so would prove disastrous. But the love of truth has been implanted in intelligent beings by an Alwise Maker, and there is an inherent longing for that truth within mankind which will not be satisfied with error, and so with every advance step which has been taken mankind has settled upon higher ground and waited for the next move forward. Some Christian teachers have been afraid that scientific investigation might disclose some truth which would unsettle the faith of man in God and form a chasm between science and religion which could not be bridged. But wherever science has discovered a truth, and established it by scientific investigation, it has been found that centuries before, God had stated that truth in His revealed Word. There can be no war in the realm of truth, because truth, wherever found, has the same author.

The truth has always existed that alcohol is a poison to the human body, and God has been trying to teach that truth to man, both by inspired word and by the display of its previous effect upon the human system. But for centuries man has been led about by so-called scientific investigators—"blind leaders of the blind"—until we have fallen into the pit of a vitiated appetite and today find ourselves confronted with a question of such mammoth proportions that it will require both God and man working in harmony to solve it. But the truth has at last been set free and science, experience and religion are found to co-incide exactly. When God said, "Woe to the man who drinks strong drink," science and medicine tried to prove that it was only large quantities which were harmful, but the truth of God has been again vindicated and even the smallest quantity proven harmful. God says, "Woe to the man who is mighty to mix strong drinks," and no word of science, society or friends will save the mixer of wine, whether it be man or woman, in the home, the club or the saloon, from this curse. God has said, "Woe to him who justifies the wicked for a reward." For many years men said the way to deal with the liquor traffic is to justify the saloon-keeper in his business, allow him to carry it on, if he will pay for the privilege. But the truth of God has dawned upon the Christian women and men of the country that the man who justifies the saloon-keeper in his business rests under the woe pronounced by God, and that the only way to deal with the business is to prohibit it.

Not only our own country is awakening to these truths, but Germany, which has been the steady friends of the brewer for generations, has accepted them, and "harmless beer" has been found to be the poison three which has scattered its deadly fruit broadcast to the ruin of the German people. France has been lying in error for centuries, thinking wine a harmless drink, until she is threatened with extermination because of the habits of her people. Her educators and statesmen have demanded that restraining ordinances be passed that will limit the sale and consumption of spirituous liquors. One of these proposed measures abolishes the credit system, making a sale on credit illegal, hence the debt non-collectible. If a measure like this were passed in Indiana, it would save many families from destitution and change many Saturday nights from drunken debauches to happy hours with the wife and children at home. This eternal, transforming truth must be brought to the people. How is it to be done?

I know of no better channel through which this truth is to be carried than our own organization.

First—Carry it through our literature.

We have each one been enjoying the monthly visits of our State paper, The Message, and as the years go by we realize more and more that we builded better than we knew when each member was made a subscriber to the paper. It is the circular letter which goes on its mission of love and helpfulness each month out from the desk of our devoted editor, with the best work of her fertile brain. Let us help to make it what it should be by sending her report of the good work we are doing, remembering we have small space in which to tell the good news, and so we must take the advice of the editor who says—

When you've a story you wish to tell,
Say it quickly and say it well;
Don't talk an hour when fifteen minutes
Will tell the tale and all that's in it.

Once on a time I was asked to report
A meeting where speeches were not very short;
Where motions were many, particulars long,
And the spare time filled with music and song.

And I sat down and wrote every word that was said;
Told who made the motion and who seconded;
Who voted "yes" and who voted "no;"
Who played the piano, who sang a solo.

I wrote it all out, though it took me all night,
From the close of the meeting to broad daylight.
I was proud of the job—vain, too, I ween—
Such a full report is seldom seen.

To the editor's sanctum I tripped with zest,
And laid my production upon his desk.
He looked, he grinned, he shook his head:
"Six pages of foolscap! Too long," he said.

"'Twould take three columns to print all this,
So many adjectives are amiss.
Just tell your story and tell it pat;
No paper on earth will print all that.

"No use to publish what none will read;
Just news, plain news, is the public's need.
Now, write it over, leave out detail,
And send it in by tomorrow's mail."

I groaned, but did as the editor bade;
Left out the adjectives, just as he said;
Condensed remarks until, when done,
One page of folscap held the sum.

'Twas sent by the early morning mail,
And the editor printed it without fail;
Just half a column, crisp and clear—
A good report of our meeting there.

Now, if you wish to see in print
Good temperance items, take this hint:
If you make it lively, prompt and short,
They'll be ready to publish what you report.

So when you've a story you wish to tell,
Say it quickly and say it well;
Don't take an hour when fifteen minutes
Will tell the tale and all that's in it.

Every white ribboner who really feels the burden of the work is grieved at times when she sees a woman who puts on the ribbon today and tomorrow takes it off. This, I believe, is never true of a woman who, after she has joined the organization, begins to study something of its great work. The women who get discouraged and drop out are the ones who never get a broader view of the work than is furnished by the work of the local union. There is nothing which gives us this breadth of view as does the Union Signal and Crusader Monthly. I wish I might be given some magic words that would make each woman see the need of taking these papers. I have asked women to take them whose tables at the time contained an Indianapolis daily, two local dailies, three or four magazines and a church paper, and received the reply, "I have more than I have time to read now." Well, they had more than they could read, but I am just as sure that they had some very unprofitable reading. May God help us this year to give up, if necessary, some of these unprofitable papers and magazines and take these two papers, which will be real food for us in the temperance work.

Secondly—Spread the truth by the use of the public press. It has been said that "The press is the university of the people." It remains for you to put into this university curriculum some scientific temperance instruction.

Thirdly—Through public meetings. Never allow your community to have any excuse for saying, "What is the W. C. T. U. doing, any way?" Come before them so often with our principles and lines of work that they will know what is being done. There were more temperance meetings held on the last Fourth of July than ever before in the history of our work. This National holiday is surely a most opportune time for the promulgation of the truths which, when they are worked "out into the customs of society and the laws of our land," will assure our prosperity.

We read with pleasure the report of the ceremonies marking the dedication of the Bugbee Memorial Fountains, which was presented through the St. Joseph County W. C. T. U. to the city of South Bend by Mrs. Bugbee in honor of her distinguished husband. As an honorary member of our organization for many years, it was very fitting that "He, being dead, yet speaketh," through the cup of cold water given in the name of Christ, shall never be without its reward. This may be the instrument in the hands of God of continuing the work in which Mr. Bugbee was so much interested.

Fourthly—Spread the truth by doing more temperance work in the Sunday Schools.

In the discussion which followed the suggestion to eliminate the temperance lessons from our course of Sunday School lessons, one of the reasons given was, that it was teaching the same thing over each quarter and that the average teacher could not make the lessons interesting to her scholars. It is the "line upon line and precept upon precept" hidden away in the heart of the boy or girl that proves a safeguard in time of temptation. These are the anchors which, when the storms of temptation are threatening the destruction of manhood or womanhood, may be cast out and bring peace and safety again to the troubled bark. This lack of information on the part of the teacher may be remedied by the W. C. T. U. furnishing her some of the facts which she must have if she is helpful to her class. Each quarterly lesson should be an opportunity for presenting the pledge to each class.

In speaking of the things which led her into the temperance work, Miss Willard said that the Family Pledge Roll, framed and hanging upon the wall in the family sitting room, was a constant reminder to her of the needs of the work. I wonder if every Christian home had its family pledge roll upon the wall if we would not have more Frances Willards in the work.

Our Summer Assembly work in the State is becoming more important each year, and is one of the channels through which to carry the truth. Some of the best assemblies of the State are open to our work, and our workers are given a place upon the program with perfect freedom to speak their convictions on this great subject. This gives an opportunity to present the work to representative audiences of all Christian denominations and political faiths. I trust this coming year may find the W. C. T. U. on every assembly program in the State. The Medal Contest work has here, as everywhere else, proven a valuable help.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Our work among the children and young people is along the line of least resistance. I have never yet found a community where it is impossible to gather the children for instruction in an L. T. L. The children are there and ready, but the teacher is not there and not ready. To meet this demand the normal grade and the standing committee on L. T. L. work was proposed by the National Secretary, and where it has been adopted it has proven a great success. When we remember that statistics tell us that 90 per cent. of the boys and girls who take the total abstinence pledge and are taught along this line keep the pledge, and 90 per cent. of the men who reform and take the pledge break it, is it not strange that there is a union in the State without a Loyal Temperance Legion? I wish each woman would here "purpose in her heart" that she will have a Legion and then settle these other questions.

ANTI-GAMBLING.

I believe this to be one of the most important subjects before our women today. I am glad our Senior L. T. L. has adopted it as a department of their work. Until within the last half century gambling in the form of lotteries and raffles was a very common practice throughout the State and even in many churches. The last fifty years have seen a marked change in sentiment concerning these things. Very few churches now "rob the rich to pay the poor," and the common lottery has had the ban of law placed upon it. Gambling now appears in a new garb and under a fresh alias. The New York Supreme Court says, "When it is determined by chance, what or how much he who pays money shall have for it, it is a lottery." "A lottery is a scheme to distribute or obtain anything of value by chance." With these rulings before us, what of some of the schemes practiced by merchants in order to increase trade? This spirit of gambling, obtaining something for nothing, or much for little, is in the air—in the hearts of men, women and children. I trust you dear sisters will study these schemes carefully and prayerfully before you lend your support to them. Give your merchants to understand that your trade cannot be bought at the cost of your principles. These things seem small, and yet it is the small things that initiate our boys and girls into vice. Let us stand for a "fair exchange," "money's worth" and "value received."

The Standard Dictionary defines gambling as "playing a game of chance for stakes," and defines a stake as "something wagered or risked on a game." Again it says, "Gambling is pretending to buy or sell depending upon chance variations on prices for gain." Now some of our churches have not a very clear vision of the real essence of gambling. Every church member, whether he be Protestant or Catholic, clearly understands that the young man who sits at the card table in the saloon or in the gambling hell and plays to win the stakes, in greenbacks, piled on the table before him, is gambling; but when a woman, shame to say it, a mother often of sons and daughters, sits at the progressive euchre table with other women of her social set or members of her own club, in the parlor of a sister church member, perchance, and plays cards, when the stakes is cut-glass, China or embroidery work, instead of greenbacks, the preacher is too often silent about gambling, and the deacons and elders keep mum, but all join in wondering why the young people are not coming into the church and being saved.

The church brands the man who follows the horse races and bets on the pace of an animal as a gambler, but the man who "buys and sells grain or stocks, depending upon chance variations of price for gain," is often elected Sunday School Superintendent or steward of the church. The boy sees these inconsistencies and is led into scepticism and ridicule of the most holy and sacred things of God, not that the Word of God is at fault, but that those who bear the name Christian, and who should exemplify the life of Christ, are denying the power of godliness in their lives by following the ways of the world, when the Word of God teaches us that "denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world, looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us that He might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

I realize that when I speak against this popular amusement, as it is called, I am treading on dangerous ground. But, dear sisters, I would not be true to you, to my little white badge, nor to my Savior, if I did not use this occasion to call your attention to what I consider to be one element in the miasmatic poisoning that is settling down upon our churches and paralyzing them. As our great organization has ever marched in the van guard in the attacks upon these evils, let us not be slow in using our influence against this one.

Some of our unions have done good work this year in looking after the gambling devices upon the fair grounds and calling the attention of the officers to the fact that these were in violation of the State law, and I want to recommend this work to the unions when near the grounds where fairs are held. The Osgood Union, in Ripley County, deserves much credit for their work and will give their plan to any Union desiring to do this work.

Governor Hanly is to be commended for his effort to suppress gambling at Indiana's Monte Carlo, French Lick, and should have the hearty support of every law-abiding Hoosier in his efforts to cleanse this Stygian pool, whose stench makes us an offense to all our neighbors. How long will we tolerate in our borders such a place as this, where all law is wantonly trampled under the feet of gamblers and saloon-keepers, and then the broken thing is thrown back into the face of our State executive with the taunt, "You can't enforce it?" These places are the breeders of anarchy and are more dangerous to a republican form of government than the low dive where criminals cringe and cower for fear the iron hand of law will fall upon them.

LEGISLATION.

During the past year much work has been done in this department, as there were many bills presented, both at Washington and Indianapolis, in which we were vitally interested. Thousands of letters pressing the claims of our boys and girls to protection from the twin monsters, nicotine and alcohol, were sent to Congress and the State Legislature through the efforts of our organization. These were potent for good and prove that the postoffice can be made an effective lobby and one accessible to all Christian men and women. I desire to thank each of you, my sisters, for your hearty response to my appeals for help in this line of work. I have received many letters from business men and ministers commending us for our work this year, and I pass them on to you, for it was your faithfulness which called them forth. There is much remains to be done, so may I take this opportunity to offer a few suggestions for another year?

The investigation of Mormonism, its teachings and practices, has disclosed to the American people a viper, hidden under the cloak of religion, which has fastened itself over the heart of fair Columbia, only awaiting an opportunity to sting to death the fairest goddess of the nations and to erect over her grave the Mormon hierarchy. When God said "they twain shall be one," He gave to the world the integral blood drop upon which rests the family, and upon the family depends the rise or fall of this republic. Anything which strikes at the sanctity of marriage or the unity of the family is a foe worthy the steel of our beloved organization. This Mormonism surely does. The apathy of the Christian Church concerning this evil I believe to be due to the fact that the members have never taken time to inform themselves along this line. I want to recommend that each Union hold one public meeting in the year, in which the truth brought out at the late investigation shall be given to the public.

I trust you will not relax your vigilance in the canteen discussion, remembering that "Eternal vigilance is the prince of liberty" from this evil as well as from all others. Our foe is working and waiting an opportune time to strike. "Forewarned is forearmed," so let us keep our State ready at a moment's notice to bring her power to bear at Washington in support of the Anti-Canteen Law.

The destiny of the people of Indian and Oklahoma Territories has not as yet been settled. I trust they may not miss coming in under prohibition because we have not done our whole duty.

Wilbur Grafts says, "When Christ came, it was not contemporaneous, but consecutive polygamy, that is, easy divorce, which needed and called forth his reiteration of the Edenic law, that a person once married can never marry again unless death, or the death of marriage by the mortal wound of adultery, has come to one of the wedded pair. Only one tate, New York, has adopted this law of Christ giving absolute divorce with permission to marry again, for the one cause only, and that to the innocent party." Had Indiana such a law as this some of us would not have to suffer the humiliation of having men in office who have broken these sacred ties only to marry in a few weeks their partner in crime. In defense of one of the most sacred ordinances of God, and one of the most important to the State, let us study this year the laws relating to marriage and divorce and work for the establishment of the law given by Jesus Christ himself. We will never have anything better, along any line, until some one becomes dissatisfied with what we have.

At the last session of our Legislature Representative Mountz of DeKalb County presented a bill which would require the manufacturers of patent medicines to place the formulas on the bottles or packages. As soon as we heard of it we offered our help and received a most gracious reply from Mr. Mountz. We sent literature for use in the Legislature, but the bill was killed in the committee. We are assured that it will come up at the next session, and there is much we can do before that time to prepare the way for its passage. The late decision rendered by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue seriously affects a number of these patent medicines composed largely of distilled liquors. He decides that the manufacturers of these medicines must take out licenses as liquor dealers, and that druggists and others handling them will have to pay the usual retail liquor dealer's license.

This decision will help to prepare the hearts of the people for the truth. Give time this year in your Local Unions to the study of patent medicines and their ingredients and use the press and the platform to bring this information to the public.

I have been asked the question by our women, "Shall we carry remonstrances and help to enforce the new temperance law?" If that seems to be the work at hand in your locality, I would say circulate the remonstrance, but as you do it take occasion to show the fathers the injustice of a law which allows educated Christian mothers, who must bear the sons who feed the gin mill if it runs and pay taxes to help keep up the jails and poor houses, to spend their time from home and children carrying a remonstrance which the mother is not permitted to sign, but she must go to the most ignorant, degraded man who has neither honor, home nor boys and there be humiliated by begging him upon her knees to affix his signature or allow her to do so, and he make his mark, because he happens he happens to be a male and twenty-one years of age, and she has not that honor. Shame on a law which turns loose upon our boys such hell-hounds as the saloons and then ties mother's hands and gives her no weapon with which to beat them back. She must stand and see her boy torn asunder unless she can persuade a majority of the male citizens twenty-one years of age to come to the rescue.

FORWARD.

My dear sisters, some of you have passed the Great Divide in life and are going down the western slope of the mountain. The last rays of setting sun touch hair grown silvery in the work of abolishing the saloon; the eye is losing sight of earthly things only to catch new glimpses of the heavenly vision which is dawning for you. The hand is not so strong for battle as it was in earlier years, but strength has given way to tenderness of touch which has power to draw lost men and women into the kingdom. When you enlisted in the White Ribbon Army, it was for victory or until the Great Commander should give you an honorable discharge from our earthly ranks by calling you into the heavenly. You have worn our little badge over hearts true and faithful since the Crusade, through years of unpopularity and criticism. The work has been hard, but you have remained true to the truth which God gave you, and as liberal Boaz commanded his men to do for faithful Ruth, so God has let fall some stalks of golden grain that you might have the joy of gathering them. Your lives of service have inspired us of a younger generation to take up the work which you in time must law down, and we pledge you that we will never allow our colors to be trailed in the dust of selfishness and indifference, but will obey the command given by Paul, "Bear hardness as a good soldier for Jesus Christ."

"Just where you stand in the conflict,
There is your place;
Just where you think you are useless,
Hide not your face.
God placed you there for a purpose,
Whatever it be;
Think He has chosen you for it —
Work loyally.
Gird on your armor; be faithful
At toil or rest,
Whichever it be, never doubting
God's way is best.
Out in the fight or on picket,
Stand firm and true;
This is the work that your Master
Gives you to do."

May each of us today catch the vision of victory perched upon the banners of a holy, consecrated, advancing army of men and women, from all churches, all parties, and all walks of life, with one leader, the "Wonderful Counsellor, the Mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." May our faith in our Great Captain be so great this year that when He says "Go forward," we will go, trusting Him to roll away the Red Sea of difficulty, or to close the mouths of the lions which seem to be in our pathway, remembering He has said "For He shall give His angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways."

CULLA J. VANHINGER.

ORGANIZATION.

During the year thirty-three new Unions have been organized as follows:

Wells County—Seven; organized by Mrs. Walmer.
Grant County—Two; organized by Mrs. Shugart.
Jefferson County—Two; organized by Mrs. Vayhinger.
Adams County—Two; organized by Mrs. Walmer.
Ripley County—One; organized by Miss Palmer.
Dubois County—Four; organized by Mrs. Kate Lee.
Tippecanoe County—Two; organized by Miss Elizabeth Parker.
Lawrence County—One; organized by Miss Palmer.
Jay County—One; organized by Mrs. Walmer.
Hamilton County—Four; organized by Mrs. Vayhinger.
Hamilton County—One; organized by Miss Palmer.
Franklin County—One; organized by Mrs. Vayhinger.
Kosciusko County—One.
Bartholomew County—One; organized by Mrs. Stanley.
Vanderburg County—One; organized by Mrs. Stanley.
Jackson County—Two; organized by Mrs. Goodacre.
Hamilton, Jackson and Dubois Counties have all come into the list of organized counties.

FIELD WORK.

Only three National workers, Mrs. Brand, Mrs. Florence Richards, and Miss Jennie Smith, have been in the State this year, but Mrs. Vayhinger and Mrs. Stanley have worked indefatigably to make up the deficiencies.

REPORTING.

Much emphasis was laid on the matter of reporting. While the important thing is to do the work, having done it, it is an inspiration to other counties to hear of your success.

Sixteen counties have reported every quarter, but some others have not been heard from during the year. The following is gleaned from the reports:

Fifty County Conventions reported, but many more have been held. Mass meetings reported, 133; regular meetings, 2,020; subscriptions to Union Signal, 518; signatures to the pledge, 3,063; money spent for literature, $192.86.

Now, dear Local Corresponding Secretaries, the foregoing, I am sure, is far below the amount of work done during the year, but your State Secretary can report only what is reported to her. Will you not the coming year report promptly and fully? Let this be your motto: "I do magnify my office."

MARY E. WOODARD,
Corresponding Secretary.

LOS ANGELES.

The Indiana party left Indianapolis at midnight, October 17th, in a special sleeper enroute for Los Angeles to attend the National W. C. T. U. convention.

The party was large—full list of names given elsewhere in The Message—everybody was happy and brought good cheer and over filled lunch baskets. The young ladies of the party and Master Henry Morse added greatly to the pleasure of the trip. Their first service was in passing the Indiana badges, these were pinned on every member of the party and on the Pullman conductor and porter.

Printed copies of some of our White Ribbon song leaflets were distributed on the first day and used every day during the trip; especially was "Some Glad Day" and "Woman's Cause Shall Win" made familiar to all, both in sentiment and words.

At Colorado Springs one day and night was spent and a part of a day at Salt Lake City, arriving at Los Angeles at nine o'clock on the morning of October 24th. The days were happily spent in viewing the scenery, sending of souvenir post-cards, the writting of letters, getting out of the coach at one of the stations up in the mountains or out on the wide expanse of desert where ranchers, miners and cattlemen were to be seen occasionally. The preparation and eating of three meals a day was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Sherfey loaned her alcohol stove, Mrs. Vayhinger divided her butter and pickles with those less fortunate. Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall shared her nice fresh eggs with those who would cook them on the shares. Mrs. Falls made good tea; Mr. and Mrs. Wilhite always had a daintily prepared meal, and had a table cloth; all had tables but before the journey was finished some used papers instead of table cloths. Grant county good things were in evidence in the baskets of Mrs. Newkirk, Mrs. Carr and Miss Carr and Miss Iva Cogshall, Mrs. Winslow, Miss Winslow, Miss Overmyer and Mr. John W. Harvey. Miss Mary Woodard and Miss Laura Cammack divided fried chicken with those who did not ask too many questions concerning their early rising. Mrs. M. A. Tompkins shared her fruit and her genial good nature with all. Mrs. Bugbee and Mrs. Lee took a walk at Colorado Springs and found their way back to our sleeper. Elizabeth Sherfey and Susie McWhirter were well supplied with souvenir cards at Salt Lake City. Mrs. Ramsey and Miss Daggy would rather travel with us than any other way. My! but we were glad to find them at Pueblo. At the close of every day a Gospel Temperance meeting was held, the program of which would have been greatly appreciated by our best church audiences.

The morning of our arrival at Los Angeles all of our party was up early to see the orange groves and tropical vegetation. At Pomona, out a few miles from Los Angeles, great arm-loads of the finest roses were sent into one coach by White Ribbon friends, with them came a card from H. Heathman and wife of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

We arrived in Los Angeles all in fine spirits, our welcome at the station was extended by the reception committee, one of whom was a former Greencastle White Ribboner, and by representatives of the press. A photograph by the Los Angeles Herald artist was taken of our party, just beside our coach as we landed. The picture appeared in the Herald next morning, it was at the top of the first page and four columns wide, the faces were so good that although there were so many of us they were easily recognized. A full list of names accompanied the picture. The result of the appearance of this picture and list of names of the Indiana party being given brought to many of our Indiana people letters, calls and invitations from former friends, now residing in Los Angeles and vicinity.

Headquarters of the Indiana W. C. T. U. was at the Palmyra Hotel, one square from the convention church. The three days before the opening day of the convention were spent in sight-seeing by the delegates while the executive was in session. On Wednesday evening a reception to the delegates and visitors was given at the Chamber of Commerce. A committee of fifty prominent gentlemen wearing white ribbon badges extended a cordial welcome as they came, to the hundreds of people representing all States in the Union.

A beautiful address of welcome was delivered by President Koepfli of the chamber of com-

The Los Angeles Union has a paid membership of more than one thousand regular members besides several hundred honorary members.

The meetings are held in the First M. E. church every Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. The weekly church bulletin announces the W. C. T. U. meeting just the same as it announces its own services.

In Los Angeles there is a Federation of W. C. T. U. Unions numbering twenty-three of which the Los Angeles Union is one.

LEGISLATION AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Excerpts from an Address by Mrs. Margaret Dye
Ellis Before the National W. C. T. U. Convention, Los Angeles, California,

October 31, 1905.

One of the first things we tried to do upon taking up the work in Washington was to get liquor out of the Capitol restaurants; one on the Senate side, and one on the House side. Here liquors of all kinds were served whenever called for. Bills to do away with this state of things were presented from time to time, but failed to come to a successful ending. However, about a year and a half ago, when the Immigration bill was pending in the House, and amendment after amendment was being presented, Hon. Charles K. Landis of Indiana held one in his hand which read, "That the sale of alcoholic liquors shall be prohibited in the Capitol building at Washington, D. C.," and followed this by another reading, "That the sale of alcoholic liquors in immigration stations be prohibited." Somehow—no one can tell just how it came to pass—when the Immigration bill passed the House, those two amendments were still there.

Then the bill went to the Senate. When the many amendments were being considered, the one prohibiting the sale of liquor in the Capitol building provoked instant and curious attention. What had that to do with immigration? It was not germane to the subject, and instantly senators were on their feet seeking light and moving to have this strange amendment withdrawn; but Senator Berry, of Arkansas, who had been a Confederate general in the civil war, arose and said: "This amendment shall receive my vote. It has been placed here with an object; and here I shall stay, if my vote can help make it stay!" And sure enough when that bill passed the Senate the sale of alcoholic liquors stopped in the Capitol building at Washington, D. C., as well as at the ports of entry!

How vigorously the anti-canteen fight was waged you all know. It was no one agency, no one organization, which brought this to pass, but a combined effort of the Anti-Saloon League, with its brave legislative superintendent, Rev. E. C. Dinwiddle; the Reform Bureau, with Rev. W. F. Crafts; the National Temperance Society, and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, with the churches standing shoulder to shoulder, and the arousalment of public sentiment protesting and demanding that the government of the United States should deal as fairly with its soldiers as great corporations deal with their employees by protecting them from the power of the liquor traffic. When by act of Congress beer was excluded from the canteen, we at once entered an appeal for an appropriation to provide amusement halls for the men in the ranks; and, as a result of these continuous appeals, $1,800,000 has been appropriated by Congress for post exchange buildings and reception halls at army posts; and we shall continue to ask until every post under the jurisdiction of the United States shall be suitably equipped with a place where the soldier can find diversion and recreation without the debasing influences of a liquor saloon.

That there will be a strong effort, made to have the law repealed at the coming session of congress is a forgone conclusion. Army officers have reported great and serious inroads upon the discipline and morale of the army because beer has been removed might it not be because many of these officers freely use liquor in their clubs and the men in the ranks know this, and in turn complain that they are not fairly dealt with? An effort is being made in many states to secure, through their legislatures, a limit law, prohibiting the sale of liquor within one, two or three miles (five miles is better still of any army post.

Officers are appealing to the war department for a repeal of the law as a preventive of the low dives which spring up outside army posts and prove so harmful to the men. These opinions and reports are echoed, and re-echoed in brewers' journals, whisky weeklies, military sheets, and the press generally, until good people who are opposed to the sale of liquor in the abstract, and would not for the world have a saloon next to their own dwelling, no, nor on the corner of their street, think it best for our soldiers to have it placed before them with the protection and endorsement of the United States government. The revelations recently made in a notorious divorce scandal, were the true inwardness of army life among certain officers was proclaimed on the housetops, shows that drinking bouts among officers and their wives are among the diversions of army life. * * * It is no wonder the men complain; but the contention that low dives have sprung up since the closing of the army saloon is not true. They have always been there and have flourished because of their location, for the man who starts with beer, ends on whisky; and the more men drinking beer, the more patronage for stronger drinks. As an instance, when the beer was taken out of the army, there were nine low dives adjacent to Fort Thomas, Ky., now there are seven. At Fort Meyers, Va., just across the Potomac river bridge from Washington, where a number of these vile places which the soldiers were compelled to pass every time they went over to the city, and some of the men, knowing they were a constant menace, started a petition among themselves, with the result that Judge Nicol of Alexandria county, Va., refused every one of the eleven applications for license, thus closing all of the dives in proximity to the post.

Congressman Littlefield and Mr. Dinwiddle have just returned from a trip abroad, where they have been studying the liquor problem in the armies of England, France and Germany, for without doubt we shall have a renewal of the canteen fight this winter. But to my mind one of the greatest object lessons of all time has been the clean, wholesome lives of Japanese soldiers, who, almost to a man, are total abstainers; while the Russians are notorious users of alcoholics.

Under the dome of the Capitol has come another victory, for, after long years of hiding its evil head, the Mormon monster has been brought forth and exposed to the gaze of the world. In one of the State Committee rooms day after day, week after week, has the probing been going on. To be sure, a representative of the Mormon priesthood, Apostle Reed Smoot of Utah, occupies the exalted position of Senator of the United States; but if the women of the United States have any influence in the matter Reed Smoot will be returned to his home in Provo, Utah, as a private citizen.

And statehood, what had the W. C. T. U. to do with this question? Why should temperance women be especially interested in the movements of Congress concerning statehood? That we could or should have a special interest never dawned upon us until our Seattle Convention four years ago, when the president of Indian

FOR FIELD WORK IN INDIANA.

Every Union is asked to contribute not less than one dollar and fifty cents for Field Work this year. The contribution to be made to our State Treasurer, Miss Clara Sears, 222 W. 14th St., Anderson, Ind. With our efficient corps of State officers in Indiana, we will be able to accomplish much by going into places calling for help, if the Unions will all contribute toward this fund. Now is the time to send this annual offering, so that early in the year the work may be planned and a campaign inaugurated. This State will not be won for temperance and prohibition, until all people who are interested will lend a hand.

If your Union does not have the money in the treasury, go to some earnest christian men and women and lay the case before them, tell them of our need, of the power and strong organization of the liquor men, and there are few towns where the W. C. T. U. women could not secure many dollars for this great cause in one afternoon.

Of course whatever a Union sends will be greatly appreciated. Work and pray for this plan, send as large a contribution to this Field Work as you can and victories will be won for our homes against the liquor traffic before another year.

Individual contributions to the Field Fund will be especially appreciated. This liquor warfare is coming to be a hand to hand fight. Every temperance man and woman can help by contributing. There are many who will do so. As faith I can see the faces of some blessed women who will consider it a privilege to contribute toward this Field Fund.

NO ALCOHOL IN MEDICINE.

The Physio-Medical School of Medicine seeks to restore the normal functions by assisting nature in eliminating the toxic element which produces disease. To do this agents are used which have for their inherent properties those elements which increase the normal resistive functions of the cell. This has been the fundamental principle of Physio-medication from its inception; hence agents which have not this property, but instead, a death-dealing effect, are not only discarded, but their use condemned. Many of the so-called medicines not only attack the living cell of which the body is a symmetrical aggregate, depriving them of this vitality, obliterating their functional value and rendering them obnoxious to the human economy, but as Alcohol, tobacco, morphine, cocaine, etc., create in the system an insatiable appetite for their toxic effect, the awful results with which we are all too familiar. Physio-medicalism proudly boasts of having no such results laid at her door.

Because of this faith in such a practice of medicine J. L. Johnston, of Los Angeles, Calif., paid $68,000 for the old Northwestern University site, more recently The Indianapolis Orphans Home on College Avenue, Indianapolis, and has presented it to the Physio-Medical College of Indiana, where four years' course is open to students. Officers of the faculty are C. N. Harold, M. D., dean; C. L. Bedford, M. D., secretary.

OFFICIAL.

My Dear Sisters:—State and National Conventions are now over and we are writing the record of another year. Many letters have come to me giving plans for work which has been already begun, telling of new members coming into our Unions, new organizations started and many other encouraging things. Surely the year is starting well. The fact that we have the largest membership we have ever had in the State of Indiana should encourage us to double it this year. We must have the National Star Spangled Banner next year, which is given for the greatest gain in membership, not for the sake of the banner, but for the sake of the women.

Many calls are coming from counties having only one Union, some no Union at all, asking for a worker under our new organization plan. If every woman will do her duty this year we will have a Union in every county in the State, and many banner counties having six Unions with at least ten paid members in each Union. Dear heart if you have a friend in town which has no Union, will you not work on her and try to get her interested in the work so she will plan for an organization. Talk to your pastor, get him to help you. If the principles of our beloved organization are right, they are worth working for. Let's show the liquor power of Indiana that there is another power at work in the State, coupled to the dynamos of God by the two links faith and works, which will never cease plying its battering rams until their bulwarks which surround the licensed saloon of the State are razed to the ground. Let each woman build on the work next to her, in her adjoining community or county. Keep in touch with the State officers by writing often to them with information about new fields ready to enter for organization.

Miss Woodard has 500 copies of the Union Signal convention members, which she wishes to place in your hands at 5 cents each. Send your names and addresses, with your money to her and she will see that you get the papers with the report of the National Convention. We have a new secretary or Y work this year, and I feel sure that she will put the same zeal into the organization of Y's that she puts into everything else, and our work will move off grandly. Write Mrs. Josephine Wallmer, Bluffton, concerning the work.

Our dear, untiring L. T. L. secretary, Mrs. Ida Mix must have your help for our Legion work. Plan to organize a Legion and write her for help. Pray unceasingly for the baptism of the spirit upon each woman in the work.

Yours,
CULLA J. VAYHINGER.

Dear Co-workers: The first quarter of the new W. C. T. U. year is almost gone, and we are hoping that the reports will show much activity on the part of our women throughout the State. Every local Union must have caught something of the spirit of enthusiasm and good cheer which prevailed all the sessions of our State Convention, and which your delegates must have carried home to you. Those of us who were privileged to attend our great National gathering in Los Angeles, have come back full of enthusiasm for our cause, and with a determination that our beloved State shall forge to the front. Indiana stood third this year in gain in membership. Now dear sisters, shall we not place Indiana first next year? Our plan of work for 1905-'06 says we will try to double our membership this year. This is not too high an aim. Let every woman now a member win one woman to our cause and the thing is done. Many Unions over the State are already hard at it. What about yours? There should be several copies of the State Report in every Union and a careful study should be made of the plan of work. Decide early in the year what part you will attempt to carry out and work to that end.

Every superintendent of a department should read the report of the State Superintendent of her department.

The State reports may be obtained from your State treasurer, Miss Clara Sears, or from your State corresponding secretary.

The programs for local Unions given in the report will be very helpful and if carried out will add much to the interest of your meetings. If each local Union would prepare an interesting program and hold a meeting in some town or neighborhood where there is no W. C. T. U. it will do much to prepare the way for an organizer.

There is a wonderful opening in Indiana at this time for W. C. T. U. work. We must make the most of it. Let our rally cry for the year be "Five thousand new members."

Yours in the service,
MARY E. WOODARD.

To the State Superintendents.

"Make a chain for the land is full of bloody crimes."

The desire and purpose of the State superintendents is to make this claim so strong and far-reaching that our influence and efforts may be more effective than ever.

At the State convention the Board named Mrs.

Smith of Indianapolis, Mrs. Lida Outland of Up-land and myself, a committee to formulate plans for this body. We therefore request each State superintendent to please send to this committee at once any suggestions or plans she may have for her department.

At our next State convention we hope to have each State superintendent hold a conference for her county and local workers and all others who care to attend such conferences, to be held at a uniform time. We would suggest that, as far as possible, each State superintendent secure a bannerette with the name of her department on it, so that persons can more readily locate where each especial conference is being held. Bannerettes can be secured for 25 cents and probably less.

Yours for service,
KATHRYN WERT HOLLER,
Pres. Board of Superintendents.

South Bend.

THE NOVEMBER MESSAGE.

By action of the State Convention the printing of The Message was changed from Indianapolis to Anderson, the home of the State Treasurer who has the entire business management of the paper, including the charge of the entire subscription list.

Because of the plan of the editor, Mrs. McWhirter to attend the National Convention at Los Angeles, October 27th to November 2d, it was decided to have the Indianapolis printer, Mr. Joseph Ratti to print the November Message. When consulted regarding this matter, Mr. Ratti was displeased at the decision of the convention regarding the change of printers, but the editor understood that he would print the November issue. Much copy for The Message was sent to him by the editor with instructions to include a two-page supplement. The editor journeyed Westward, attended the convention and returned to Indianapolis after an absence of five weeks. Great indeed was her surprise and consternation to know that Mr. Ratti had not printed the paper. After waiting for days, the friend who had kindly consented to read the proof for the editor sent for it and Mr. Ratti said he had not printed The Message and did not intend to do so. Then it was that information concerning the conditions was communicated to Miss Clara Sears, the State treasurer. The editor, the State president and State corresponding secretary all being gone to California. Miss Sears immediately arranged with the Anderson Herald Co., to put out The Message. Such "copy" as had been forwarded by Mr. Ratti to Miss Sears, she used with a copy of the State president's address and published the November issue of The Message.

To make up the form to get out the first issue of any publication requires much care and painstaking. Besides this Miss Sears had to read and correct 5,500 names and addresses of the subscribers. This great task could only be accomplished by our dear faithful Miss Sears by the kindness and help of the Anderson Herald Co.

For the love and loyalty of Miss Sears and the kindness of the Anderson Herald Co. the editor is deeply appreciative.

LEGISLATION AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Territory stood before us and with great earnestness said: "Tell us what to do. We are in danger. The women of the country must help us!" and then we looked into the subject, and found, that, for seventy years, this government had, in treaty after treaty, covenanted in the most solemn manner with the five civilized tribes of Indian Territory that liquor should never be sold in their midst "while the grass should grow, or the water flow;" and now politicians, fearing a change of politics in the national councils if two many states were admitted, decreed that geographically Oklahoma and Indian Territory should become one, never for an instance taking into consideration the promises made concerning liquor; and that, if Oklahoma and Indian Territory are merged into one, it will mean free liquor for the new state.

We are in this battle to win; and we shall keep at this, too, until by act of Congress the question is settled, and set right. The liquor power is equally determined. They have money, political power, votes, and influence, while we have no money, no votes, and not much influence, but a wonderful power of stick-to-itiveness and faith in God. As David went forth to combat the giant of Gath with a few small pebbles from the brook, but with faith in the God of Israel, so we go forth conquering and to conquer.

MARION COUNTY.

At a call meeting of the county superintendents it was deemed advisable to divide the twenty-five departments into four sections, each section with its chairman, secretary and treasurer, to hold conference in January, March, June and August. In this way getting the subject of temperance before the public oftener than in the past.

NATIONAL CONVENTION NOTES.

President Stevens' address was able, forceful and comprehensive. Every temperance worker should have a copy for reference and help. Send five cents to Miss Ruby I. Gilbert, 137 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., with request to send you a copy of the address and ask for free catalogue of publications.

There were more than five hundred voting delegates in the convention. The Treasurer's report showed a balance in the National Treasury of $2,223.62 after all bills were paid. Indiana is justly very proud of the ability of Mrs. Harriet W. Brand the treasurer. She belongs to Indiana. Nine States made a gain of 500 or more members since the convention of 1904. They were, Ohio, 1,103; Michigan, 881; Indiana, 808; Northern California, 583; New York, 550; Nebraska, 531; Illinois, 511; Florida, 507; Wisconsin, 504. Ohio won the National Star Spangled Banner.

In Los Angeles many of the churches opened their pulpits for the W. C. T. U. speakers on Sunday. Generous indeed were the free will offerings at these services. At the First M. E. church in the morning after an address by Mrs. Ella Thatcher the offering for the W. C. T. U. was $61.00 and in the same church in the evening after an address by Mrs. Clara Hoffman the offering was $64.00.

The Medal Contest banner was awarded to Kentucky. The W. C. T. U. Institute Banner went to Ohio.

Miss Laura Cammack, superintendent of press department of Indiana was awarded a prize for excellent work done in her department.

For State Jubilee Night the presidents of the nine states making a gain of 500 or over in membership arranged the program. Each state had seven minutes, this time was used at discretion of State President, some took all of the time others spoke briefly and introduced some of their workers. Nearly every State delegation stood and sang their State song at the conclusion of their president's address. Indiana did well. Only one other State has a president who can sing as well as our Mrs. Vayhinger, she led, and our Indiana people sang:

"Indiana's heard the bugle
O, army tried and true,
You may count on Indiana
Till the stars fade from the blue."

Every State President received a token of appreciation and love from her delegation. Our delegation gave Mrs. Vayhinger a beautiful Japanese tea set.

...Mrs. Harriet W. Brand, our loved National Treasurer, who belongs to Indiana, was remembered at this time also, the Indiana delegation presented her with a beautiful green leather pillow cover upon which was the California flower—the Poinsettia.

The Pasadena Day was greatly enjoyed. The day after the close of the convention the delegates and visitors accepted an invitation of the Pasadena Union. All went out on an interurban line from Los Angeles. At Pasadena the hundreds of white ribbons were met with buggies, carriages and automobiles and taken for a drive over the beautiful city where Prohibition prohibits. After the drive all were taken to Woodman's Hall where 600 were received by the local committee. Guests were all seated and each guest was handed a lunch box containing a dainty and delicious lunch of sandwiches, salad, meats, grapes, raisins, fresh figs and nuts. Hot coffee and lemonade served to all. After the lunch an informal reception followed. Many of the visitors went to Mt. Love. Nearly one hundred accepted the invitation of the local committee to rest at the hotel Maryland during the afternoon. Ten rooms and two parlors had been provided for their comfort. Each room had a bath room attached. During the afternoon tea and wafers were served to the guests and an invitation accepted to dine that evening from the proprietor, who although too ill to dine with the ladies desired that they should be his guests. The hotel rates were $1.50 per meal.

At Santa Monica Mrs. Helen Eaton and Dr. Sarah Morris entertained the white ribboners most hospitably at luncheon, after which there were speeches by the national officers and others.

At Whittier the white ribboners marched from the interurban station to the M. E. church between double rows of L. T. L. boys and girls, who presented each delegate with a beautiful flower. In the church the service opened with a welcome song by the L. T. L. The mayor said Whittier people are proud that we have no saloons, and although if we do not have any saloon revenue the population is rapidly increasing. Greetings were extended by the president of the W. C. T. U., the pastors of the churches of the W. C. T. U., the pastors of the churches and the president of the Friends College. Miss Marie Brehm, of Illinois, presided and introduced state presidents and national speakers. Informal speech making was the order of the day, after which all the delegates were invited to the Friends church where a good substantial lunch was served with many kinds of fruit. A ride about the city was planned and the hospitality of the Whittier W. C. T. U. day closed with an informal reception at Hotel Greenleaf.

At Santa Barbara as our train came into the station white ribboners were waiting to greet us; an elaborate luncheon was served in the Presbyterian church, 150 plates were laid. Many kinds of fruit being served. Delightful after-dinner speeches were made and a general good time was enjoyed. Here it was our privilege to meet Mrs. J. W. Wright of Jonesboro, Ind., who is spending the winter there. Many beautiful roses were given to us by these dear white ribbon sisters.

Responsibility for the Saloon in Local Option States.

Although the ultimate products of the American saloon are crime, poverty, misery and madness, only the ballots of a majority of the voters can close that saloon. Hence the supreme importance of that majority being educated as to the evil nature and effects of the drinks the saloon has to sell, as these facts are shown by modern science.

Scientific Temperance Instruction, which is compulsory in all the public schools of this country, is the only instrumentality by which we can acquaint the majority with these facts, and it can be done only when the study of temperance physiology is thoroughly pursued in the lower as well as in the more advanced grades; for school statistics show that the average attendance in this country is only about five years of 200 school days each. The community, therefore, that carelessly allows this study to be neglected or to put into the upper grades only, omitting it in the primary and fourth and fifth years, is providing a temperance education for only a minority of the future voters who will be helplessly voted down on the saloon question by the untaught majority.

Three things are essential to a thorough enforcement of a temperance educational law:

1. The adoption of the school board of a course of study like the International which shows the progressive topics that should be taught each year, beginning with the first primary.

2. An oral lesson book in the hands of primary teachers as a guide in giving oral instruction on this subject to the pupils in the three primary years; an indorsed primer in temperance physiology to be studied by fourth year children; a more advanced indorsed text-book on this subject for fifth and sixth year pupils; a still more advanced one for seventh and eighth year pupils; and an indorsed high school physiology for pupils in the first year of the high school. Three, or at most four, lessons per week for ten weeks each year with the above helps will insure a no-saloon majority of coming voters in the next essential is met, which is:

3. The School Physiology Journal in the hands of the teacher in each grade as a guide and help in teaching this vital subject. To provide the first two essentials, the International Course of Study, and an oral lesson book for primary teachers with well graded indorsed text-books for pupils' use above the primary, we must depend upon the action of the school board; but supplying the teachers with the third essential, the School Physiology Journal is entirely within the power of each local Union. Every such Union that wishes to do its part to hasten the day of non-saloon will immediately, if it has not already, send to 23 Trull street, Boston, Mass., for the Journals for their teachers.

Do you say, "We are doing other temperance work?"

That is right, if you have attended first to these three essentials, but if not, you are neglecting work for that majority whose ballots alone can close the saloon.

Two young Royal Legioners said, "In a few years we shall be members of the legislature, and then you'll see!"

But these well trained Legioners will be in the hopeless minority voted down by the saloon majority if the temperance people neglect Scientific Temperance Instruction to favor Loyal Temperance Legion work, for the latter reaches only a few thousand children, while the public schools of the State reach more than a million and a half, the majority of the future voters on the saloon question. A thousand citizens are outvoted by a million every me.

I repeat what I have said before, "The child is born who will see the last legalized saloon, brewery and distillery go from our land," and he will not be very old either when that glad day comes, if we now remember to do our first work first. But every neglect on our part to secure the foregoing three essentials in the public schools of our communities is putting off the day of no-saloon.

Every local option State that has a good scientific temperance instruction law has in its own hands the instrumental ties for closing its saloons. If its saloons are not closed, whose fault is it?

MAY H. HUNT.

W. C. T. U. INSTITUTES.

At the last State convention held at Brazil, I was appointed to succeed Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall as State Superintendent of Institute Work.

In taking up the work, which our dear sister, after so many years of faithful and untiring service, lays down; I feel that as I only have the loving help and co-operation of the dear women all over the State, I can hope to make any measure of success.

To many of you I am not a stranger. During the six years in which I have been associated with Mrs. Hall as an institute leader and worker, it has been my joy and privilege to meet many of you in your homes, to enjoy your hospitality, and to come very close to your warm loving hearts. Because I know how true hearted and loyal you are to every department of our work, I feel sure that you will, all of you, "hold up my hands" and by the help of our Heavenly Father, do your best to make the Institute Season of 1906 one of the best our beloved State has ever known. Let our motto for this year be "An Institute in Every County."

Let the White Ribboners who live in counties that are not organized, try to make plane for an Institute at some point, and thus start the good work.

The schedules of dates and leaders will be published in the January Message, also farther information regarding this work. Dear County president will you not write me at once telling me that your county will fall in line and also giving me any other information which may be helpful. Eight hundred new members reported at one State convention. These all need instruction in plans and methods. Shall we not give it them by means of this department.

Depending upon your prayers and practical help, I am, yours to serve,

ROSE PEARCE,

II. Tim. 11,15.

16. Do you support a Loyal Temperance Legion?
17. In what line of work have you had the greatest success?
18. Does each paid member receive "The Message?"

LOS ANGELES.

merse. Our National President Mrs. Lillian M. K. Stevens responded. Followed by short able addresses by Mrs. Katherine L. Stephenson, of Boston and Mrs. Clara Hoffman, of Missouri. There were several short speeches by prominent people after which social introductions and greetings were enjoyed.

On Thursday eve a reception was tendered the National Officers and delegates by the W. C. T. U. in the beautiful auditorium and parlors in the Temperance Temple which is owned by the W. C. T. U.

On Friday, October 27th the greatest convention of the National W. C. T. U. convened in the First Congregational church and continued in session until November 1st. The church had the very largest auditorium in Los Angeles and at every meeting the seating capacity was taxed, hundreds of people standing. Overflow meetings were held during the day time and in the evening. Every evening hundreds were unable to gain admission. The decorations were beautiful, especially was the profusion of flowers enjoyed a narrow high pan made in shape of the platform encircling the platform. This was kept filled with flowers each day and they were changed, cysanthemums, cornations, roses or scarlet geraniums, in such profusion that we could scarcely realize the truth of our own eyes.

The hospitality of the Los Angeles people, the courtesy and generosity of the press were only excelled by the magnificent climate.

FIELD NEWS

The Madison W. C. T. U. called Judge Geo. W. Stubbs, judge of the Marion county Juvenile Court, for an address on the "Relation of the Cigarette to Juvenile Crime." The Judge speaks with authority upon his chosen subject. A few days later the mayor of the city issued an order to arrest any one found smoking a cigarette. The women have pledged more than six hundred boys and girls in the Sunday Schools.

Poseyville, Posey county, has a new W. C. T. U. with twenty-five members, with Mrs. Alice Montgomery as president.

Kendallville was organized with thirty-four members by Mrs. F. B. Perkins, who was chosen president of the new Union. She comes to us from Ohio and is a valuable addition to our cause in Indiana.

Dr. Martha Kellar, president of LaFayette Union sends out their program and membership cards, and the Union is building up under her wise leadership. Many new members are being added.

Frankfort is planning for a visit from Mrs. Vayhinger, hoping to build up the work and organize some new Unions.

Mrs. Vayhinger says: Many calls come from over the State asking for organizations. Let the Unions send in their offerings for the organization fund so that the work may be carried on.

Mrs. Luella McWhirter was invited to speak to the great Los Angeles W. C. T. U. the Thursday following the convention in Los Angeles. She addressed a magnificent audience of representative women and they declared it one of the finest addresses to which they had ever listened.

Ramsey and Miss Cordie Daggy, Bedford.

The Carmel Union held a public meeting on the evening of October 22d, at the Friends' church, Carmel. A literary program, consisting of music, original papers, recitation and short speeches, entertained a large and attentive audience. The pastors of the different churches encouraged and commended the work of the W. C. T. U. in five-minute speeches.

At Lawrenceburg a number of young boys and girls met at the home of Mrs. G. E. Wencke, Sunday afternoon, October 29th, where they, with the help of Mrs. Jennie Ward, of Guilford, organized a Loyal Temperance Legion, electing the following officers: president, Carl Wencke; vice-president, Lessie Kepper; corresponding secretary, Mabel Howlin; recording secretary, Ruth Dame; treasurer, Charley Cole.

The Legion will meet every other week in the future.

Grant County. Soon after State convention an all-day meeting of officers and superintendents was held in Library Hall, Marion. Mrs. Gulie J. Shugart, presided. Plans were laid for the work of the new year. Money was appropriated to carry on the work of the different departments.

Deer Creek Union held an entertainment, November 12th, to raise its part of the State organization fund. A free-will offering was secured amounting to a little more than five dollars. Since the State convention this Union has sent fifteen dollars to the Hadley School. The contest superintendents are busy. Grant county has set out for one hundred new members this year.

The Trafalgar W. C. T. U. met at the home of Rev. Rose, November 1st. Rev. Krauf and wife of Whiteland were present and helped to reorganize the Union. Eleven members were present and a fine meeting was reported.

The Editorial Association of the National W. C. T. U. held a meeting in connection with the banquet at Hotel Livingston on Saturday night. The adoption of a constitution and by-laws was of special interest. Editors and business managers of National and State papers only being eligible to membership. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Mrs. Luella F. McWhirter, Indiana; vice president, Mrs. Jennie M. Kemp, Illinois; secretary, Mrs. Nellie H. Hutchins, New York; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian T. Burt, Ohio.

MARION COUNTY.

Broad Ripple Union have planned for eight meetings on World's Temperance Sunday in each of the eight churches. They expect to reorganize their L. T. L. and to meet Friday evenings in the High School building. Their next W. C. T. U. meeting will be December 13th, with Mrs. Lyda Heady.

Indianapolis North East Union, October 10th, lost one of their members, Mrs. Moler, who will be greatly missed from their meetings. The W. C. T. U. burial service was used and was very impressive. Twelve members participating in the service.

November 9th the Board of County Superintendents held a very successful conference in the Universalist church—an all-day meeting. There were twenty of the superintendents present with their plans of work for the coming year. These plans will appear in the Phalans, copies of which can be procured from your local president.

Meridian W. C. T. U. held a Mothers' meeting with Mrs. Beckett in her beautiful new home—November 8th, their regular meeting. A paper was read by Mrs. Gipe which was very instructive.

For One Hundred Members.—Warren held a very interesting meeting at which the State convention was reported by those who attended. Much interest was manifested. Two Mothers' meetings of unusual interest held. Arrangements are made for an Anti-Narcotic meeting to be held. Other red letter days will be observed. Attendance the best in our history. Gaining in membership, expect to have one hundred members before next State convention.

Elwood—A parlör meeting was held with Mrs. Julia A. Mills, three new members were received and an excellent report of the State convention was given by Miss Cora F. Iesley. There were several musical numbers by Rev. and Mrs. Frank Kreiger and Miss Blanche Kitchen. A touching tribute by the president, Mrs. Adair, relative to the departure of Mrs. Krieger and response by that lady was much appreciated. During the social hour dainty refreshments were served.

The South Kokomo W. C. T. U. women gave a matrons' contest in the Christian church, October 27th and it was a grand success in every particular.

Mrs. Vayhinger organized a new Union at Dupont, Jefferson county, on November 24th, with twenty active and four honorary members. Mrs. Grace Hopple Dryden is the new president.

Rev. M. O. Robbins, pastor of the M. E. church at Blocher, Scott county, is arranging a meeting at that place early in the year for the organization of a W. C. T. U.

Allen County convention at Monroeville, the president, Mrs. Flora Barnhart, presiding. Mrs. J. F. Kinsey president of the Willard Union of Ft. Wayne reported that Willard Union had more than doubled its membership during the year and was in a prosperous condition. Boston Union reported an increased membership and an active busy year. Holding six silver and one gold medal contests, one parlör meeting, one institute, one mass meeting, and one patriotic picnic, circulated one petition, also a remonstrance, and are planning more aggressive work. Dinner was served in the church parlors by Boston Union. Several interesting papers were read, Revs. Kuhn, Powers, and Eagy made short addresses which were very encouraging. The kindly face and helpful interest of Rev. G. W. Martin was missed, he being absent holding a meeting. The evening was occupied by a gold medal contest. The contestants were five young ladies. Miss Myrtle Martin receiving the medal. A quartette of gentlemen furnished the music. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. J. F. Kinsey, 521 W. Third street, Ft. Wayne; vice-president, Mrs. J. C. DeLong, Monroeville; corresponding secretary, Mrs. N. H. Bloom, Ft. Wayne; recording secretary, Miss Ida McIntosh, Hoagland; treasurer, Mrs. Emily McIntosh, Hoagland.

THE MORMON'S CHILD.

[Published by request Local Program Committee.]

Into a happy household,
Where one wife's loving sway
Over the heart of her husband,
Made sunshine all the day;
Came the sweetest expectation,
That can thrill a woman's life,
The holy pain of the mother
To crown the joy of the wife.

But a serpent was creeping, creeping,
Ready with deadly fangs,
To sting the soul of the mother
With worse than child-birth pangs;
For the lecherous faith of the Mormon,
Was wrapping its poisonous fold,
Round the heart she had trusted fully,
And counted as pure as gold.
Her fountain of tears seem frozen,
Her power of feeling dead;
And the winter of woe soon whitened
The gold on the girlish head.

At length came her hour of travail
And the wan lips faintly smiled,
On the gift from heaven so precious,
Her innocent little child.
But strangely old its visage,
And strangely sad its eyes,
Beneath whose beautiful fringes,
The shadow of suffering lies.

While ever, and ever, and ever,
Tears silently fall o'er their brim,
Upbraiding the father's desertion,
Pleading for love from him.
The mother bends over the cradle,
To watch her babe as it sleeps,
But even in infant slumber,
The little one constantly weeps.

Not with moaning or outcry,
But gentle as summer rain,
Trickle, sleeping or waking,
Those pitiful drops of pain;
Till its life is dissolved in weeping,
And the soul of the mother is torn
With a second travail of sorrow,
As her child to the grave is borne.
Oh! Mothers with babies in your bosoms;
Oh! maidens whose lives are a song!
How long will ye suffer your sisters
To faint 'neath this burden of wrong?

Mrs. E. B. Inga's National Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics reported that the best work done in the Nation this year was done in Indiana by the passage of the anti-cigarette law. Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, our efficient and untiring State Superintendent headed the campaign and victory is ours.

The White Ribbon Special was the combined members of special sleepers filled with delegates and visitors from the Eastern and Northern States that met at Chicago and went through to the Los Angeles Convention in two sections. With them were the Loyal Temperance Legioners in a special sleeper.

Indianapolis Central Union has sent a letter to the Indianapolis Ministerial meeting requesting the ministers to preach on the evils of card playing for prizes. Mrs. Frances Boyer, for years the loved and successful president of Clinton county is the newly elected president of Indianapolis Central Union. Four of the general officers of the Union are young women including the assistant treasurer. The recording secretary Miss Helen Potter is a Wellesly graduate of the class of 1905. This Union will hold a rummage sale the second week in January, contributions are desired from every member. For information apply to Mrs. Mary A. Moody, new phone 2847.

Mrs. Sarah Thomas County Press Superintendent of Grant County, sent a very pretty and well made scrap book to the State Convention, made of clippings from Grant County papers. The book was taken to the National Convention at Los Angeles.

IN MEMORIAM.

Edmund P. Potter, husband of Mrs. Ellen L. Potter, ex-president of Pulaski county, W. C. T. U., died of cancer at his home in Oak, October 23d. His grief stricken wife merits the sympathy of all White Ribboners for the tender untiring care she gave him in his long sickness. He was a royal man, his friends were legion, a true christian, a genuine prohibitionist, and loved to work for the cause. He and his noble wife rode over the country holding meetings, and distributing literature. By his death the prohibition cause, the W. C. T. U. and the M. E. church have all lost a true friend.

TOBACCO SMOKING.

I believe it almost impossible to induce a confirmed smoker to give up the habit, and I speak in this respect from personal experience. I myself in early life was not a smoker. I went through all the arduous work of a medical student by being present at operations in large hospitals, in studying anatomy, in the dissecting and post-mortum rooms, and in the fever hospitals, and I never smoked, though I went through my work with great facility. Later on I learned to smoke, and continued to do so for many years. The whole of that time I was dyspeptic from smoking. I at length resolved to give it up. It was hard work to do so, but I eventually succeeded, and I have never been more thankful than for the day it was accomplished. I gave up wine, beer, and every other alcoholic drink with infinitely less trouble than smoking. It is very difficult to abandon this pernicious habit of smoking. Inveterate smokers are those who commence to smoke early in life. Smoking is, to a certain extent, connected with drinking. Persons who smoke experience a faintness, followed by a nausea, which alcoholic drinks often allay. On this point I can speak from personal experience. I should have been led into the fields of total abstinence five years before I was, had it not been for the smoking habit I had contracted. Whatever we may say about the effects of tobacco smoking in adults, there can be no doubt as to its effects on the young. In them it always produces a state of functional disease which is unquestionably, and of serious character. It stops the proper working of the digestive powers. If it were a fact that all young men and young women were to smoke, and continued the habit until they were fathers and mothers, their offspring would be so stunted and little as to be thoroughly incapable of carrying out the duties required by our generation. We can not praise our mothers too much for the fact that they have not become smokers.—The late Sir B. W. Richardson, M.D., R.R.S.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.

During the winter months much interest will be manifested in public W. C. T. U. meetings. For such meetings engage some one of our splendid speakers. Then set about to arrange every detail for such meetings and announce and advertise. Personal invitations, house to house visits brings excellent results. The young mothers and others will be thus interested when the printed account will not be heeded. Thoroughly arrange for excellent music, stringed and violin especially, then advertise and the people will attend. Arrange for a campaign of members, regular and honorary and you will get them.

Immediately following the address have the collection taken by prominent and influential people. During this time let there be quiet so that the responsibility to give will be felt.

To entertain the State speaker, meet her with conveyance at the station, take her to her place of entertainment and immediately to her room, let it be distinctly understood that she needs rest and the quiet of her room far more than anything else, to prepare herself for a strong mental effort, such as our temperance speakers make who speak extempore, never using a manuscript.

While on visit with the kind family who entertains is delightful to the speaker it prevents her from doing her very best on the platform. After an address she should be taken to her place of entertainment and sent to her room without stopping for a visit with the family. Seldom can our speakers get their nerves quieted after an address until a very late hour any way, sometime not until the wee small hours of the morning. Under such circumstances it is a great favor to them to be allowed to sleep in the morning rather than to eat breakfast, then later an orange or apple and a cup of cocoa and some crackers would be all sufficient.

The fact is this, there is only so much enthusiasm and nervous power in each person, if the speaker uses up nervous energy in the social circle she can not be the great power you desire on the platform.

The Condition of Maine and Ohio affords a most instructive contrast, Ohio, with its 10,000 saloons, and the Pine Tree State without any licensed saloon since 1846. The population of Maine is 661,086, that of Ohio five and a half times as great—namely, 3,672,316; but, on the other hand, the people of Maine have an aggregate savings bank deposit one and a half times larger than that of Ohio—namely, $55,397,590, as against $34,606,213, a per capita sum in the case of Maine of $80.77, in the case of Ohio of $9.42.

CONSUMPTION OF LIQUORS.

The constant repetition of the statement that the consumption of whiskey is shown to be on the decrease by government reports, appearing in the daily papers and popular journals, makes ready access to the exact facts desirable. The following table gives the consumption per capita of both beer and spirits for nine years past. The figures are taken from the official reports in the Statistical Abstract:

Year	Per capita Consumption in gallons.
	Spirits	Beer
1896	1.01	15.38
1897	1.02	14.94
1898	1.12	15.96.....
1899	1.18	15.28
1900	1.25	16.01
1901	1.31	16.20
1902	1.36	17.49
1903	1.46	18.04
1904	1.48	18.28

The only ground for the report, given out by the government official and spread broadcast by the papers, that use of whiskey is decreasing, is the fact that, in the fiscal year just closed, a small decrease is reported—about one half of one per cent.—in the amount of domestic spirits that paid tax. The total figures for consumption are not yet available. Of native beer the country drank last year more than 38,000,000 gallons more than ever before in our history.—Exchange.

In Kansas.—To show how Prohibition has reduced the consumption of liquors, we give the following from the report of the U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue:

The population of Kansas in round numbers is 1,500,000; that of Nebraska, 1,100,000; of Missouri, 3,200,000.

The total amount of taxes paid to the United States government for the manufacture and sale of intoxicants in each of these States was as follows: In Kansas, $2,776,908; In Missouri, $5,576,945. Or for each person in Kansas, $0.077; in Nebraska, $2.52½; in Missouri, $1.74 for each person. To put in other words, licensed Nebraska uses 33 times as much liquor per capita, and Missouri 22 times as much as prohibition Kansas.—Exchange.

FROM THE UNION SIGNAL.

By Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis, superintendent Legislation National W. C. T. U., Washington, D. C.

Bills to the number of 5,633 were introduced during the first four days of Congress. One bill presented December 13 by Hon. R. Wayne Parker of New Jersey, asked that Congress restore the sale of fermented, malt beverages and light wines to soldiers on army transports and in post exchanges, under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of War.

This is the same bill—offered by the same man—that brought the question before Congress in the last session. Mr. Parker represents the seventh congressional district of New Jersey, the home district of your correspondent and her family, and he is supposed to represent us and our interests. By the help of our women, and the blessing of God, we will frustrate his plan.

Letters and telegrams should be sent to the members of the House Committee on military affairs. Last year such a flood of letters and telegrams poured in on the committee, that the chairman, Hon. J. A. T. Hull of Iowa, gave notice that no action would be taken on the part of his committee for a restoration of liquor in the army at that session. Let the call be so insistent and so overwhelming this year, that similar action on the part of the committee will be taken.

CIGARETTE SMOKERS.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Many examples may be produced of men who are in good health and full possession of all their faculties, despite the habit of smoking, it is almost impossible to produce a boy of fourteen years of age who has smoked cigarettes for one, two or three years who is not showing visible effects, mentally, physically or morally, and usually all three.

The boy who begins at eight or ten years of age to smoke is almost invariably stunted in his growth.

If by inheritance he pushes up to a goodly health, he pays the penalty in some other way.

One lad of fifteen who had attained the height of five feet ten inches, while continually smoking cigarettes, died at sixteen with a growth on the liver, from which nicotine was extracted.

The boy was personally known to me, and on his death bed he made an urgent plea that his family and friends would do all in their power to persuade other boys from the pernicious habit which proved his death.

Still another youth at one time in my family circle, suffered from loss of memory, and from a severe cough, which he assured me was an inheritance.

An extreme pallor he said was due to the condition of his bronchial organs; his father also argued with me that the boy inherited this trouble.

Yet three weeks' abstinence from cigarettes caused the cough to disappear and the color to mantle the boy's cheeks, and produced a noticeable strengthening of the memory.

An affection of the heart, liver trouble and lung weakness, with all sorts of nervous and digestive disorders, are caused by cigarettes.

A stalwart young man in his early twenties assured a friend that he had smoked since he was a lad without injury.

Yet, in less than an hour he confessed that he could not sleep, and his hand trembled so that a glass of water was endangered if he attempted to lift it to his lips.

He believed this a nervous tendency due to an "artistic temperament."

Alas, for the follies and sins perpetrated in the name of the artistic temperament!

When a man has attained the age of 25 he may be considered fully developed physically, and if he chooses to commit follies in diet or otherwise it is a matter which his family, his conscience and his good sense must decide.

But there ought to be stringent laws passed and enforced to protect the boys of our land from becoming victims to cigarettes.

The purely common sense side of the subject should be presented to them by parents and teachers, and the understanding ought to be made with them that if they abstain until they are of age the matter will be left to their own discretion afterward.

But persuade them by all means possible (and if persuasion fails, force them) to avoid the destructive habit during the years they are growing toward manhood.

It is the manly boy who can refuse to form the habit.

Any loafer can form it.—Los Angeles Examiner.

Of the 105 Counties in Kansas only twenty-one have any paupers. Twenty-five counties have no poor-houses, twenty-five have their jails absolutely empty, and thirty-seven have no criminal cases on their dockets. How can this be? The Prohibitory law against the sale of liquor is the answer.—Ottawa Guardian.

Albert Leiber visits the President. On the 11th of November, President Roosevelt received a petition signed by sixty-one of the largest brewing concerns in the United States asking that the proposed prohibition stipulation for the admission of Indian Territory be statehood along with Oklahoma be modified so as not to include ale and beer. It was presented by Albert Lieber, of Indianapolis, representing the United States Brewers' Association.

In their petition the brewers say that "beer is today the principal factor in turning the United States into the leading temperance nation of the world."

The Pullman Palace Car Company has promulgated a rule forbidding the sale of liquor to passengers not occupying seats in buffet cars. Sunday card playing has never been permitted in Pullman cars.

Worlds W. C. T. U. Convention, 1906, Boston, Mass., October 17-23. National W. C. T. U. Convention 1906, Hartford, Conn., October 26-31.

The season's Greetings to all the Message readers.

Early in January began to collect dues.
Invite christian men and women to attend your meetings.

Seek new members wherever you go, this blessed W. C. T. U. will be a help to them.

Annual Programs are absolutely essential to the best interests of the Union. January is a good time to have one made.

At the National Convention held at Philadelphia, J. G. Dailey and his beautiful daughter sang some good temperance songs that were enthusiastically received by the thousands who listened.

While looking through a little catalogue of music published by Mr. Dailey and knowing the demand for good temperance music the editor decided to tell the Message readers to send for a catalogue of Mr. Dailey's sacred and temperance music. Address J. G. Dailey, 6628 Woodland avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

The State Board of Health will send free to any one upon application, circulars which tell about the prevention of consumption, diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid fever and smallpox and also a sick room card which gives directions for the management of sick rooms.

The Board hopes by these educational methods to induce the people to practically apply the ounce of prevention which is worth the pound of cure. We all believe and accept the ounce of prevention principle, but only few are sufficiently practical to make it a part of daily life. For copies of these circulars write to J. N. Hurty, M. D. Secretary State Board of Health, Indianapolis, Indiana.

At Indianapolis, on February 6th, the first Tuesday of the month, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon the entire program for the local Council of Women will be in the hands of the W. C. T. U., State and National speakers and every White Ribboner who lives within forty miles of Indianapolis on an interurban car line is urged to be present at this meeting. The State officers and many superintendents of departments will be present. We expect that the principal addresses will be made by our loved National Treasurer Mrs. Harriet Wright Brand, and our dear State President Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger.

Arrange to come to Indianapolis at this time. The local council meeting is held in the Propyleum on North street, just opposite the blind asylum. From the interurban station take any car to Washington street and transfer to Pennsylvania street car and get off at North street. The Propyleum is near the corner of North and Pennsylvania streets.

White Ribboners do you realize that the Bible is not read or taught generally in the public schools of this country?

School children are made familiar with the lives and writers of the world's writers of history, poetry and romance with the exception of Biblical writers.

In teaching English literature, Shakespeare and Browning are used in colleges and schools, while it is an accepted truth that from a literary standpoint the writers of the Bible excel all others.

If our young people are to respect the Bible and its teachings and to seek information therefrom, according to our present plan of education, the Bible must be read and studied in the colleges and schools. During this year every W. C. T. U. in Indiana should have some person competent person to read a paper on this subject. It should also be considered by the county convention program committee.

JUBILEE NIGHT.

Jubilee Night at the National Convention is one of greatest interest and enthusiasm. The program is arranged by the presidents of the States that have made a net gain in membership of 500 or over. The free-will offering on that evening is divided equally between the States represented. At our recent Indiana Convention we voted that the county making a net gain of one hundred members be given a place on the program on Jubilee Night at the State Convention, and receive an equal share with other counties of the free-will offering.

County presidents employ a field worker and begin immediately to work for an increase of one hundred new members. To do this urge your local Unions to hold open meetings in the evenings at the homes of the members. To invite the young men and young women to attend. A good short program, followed by a musical hour at which time very simple refreshments are served will create an interest.

Agitation and Education will be necessary before we can rid Indiana of the saloon business. There is great opportunity now for our State officers to send out Field Workers into the unorganized counties if they had the funds.

A prominent man in our State says if the W. C. T. U. would put $1,000 into Field Work this year it would be the best investment possible.

Our Unions and our membership can do this. Early in the year let every earnest woman who has something especially to be thankful for, send as many dollars as she can, to our beloved treasurer, Miss Clara Sears, Anderson, Ind., for State Organization Fund. Ten dollars would enable our officers to accomplish much definite work, thus a Field Worker could be secured for several days. Think what such a woman can do in one day in some communities where we have a very weak Union or no Union at all and then multiply that by three or four times.

Many can and surely will respond to this plea by sending some amount, from one to ten dollars. Each Union is asked for not less than one dollar and a half.

Dear White Ribboners please help our State officers by making it possible for them to send out workers. You can not go, but you can help make it possible for some one else to go.

Many busy women who are not members of our organization will contribute toward this fund if consulted, others who are paying members but who on account of age, or being otherwise engaged will help if asked. One thousand such women in Indiana will each contribute one dollar if asked.

We all feel this liquor curse, and the christian women everywhere know that great unselfish work alone will be required to arouse the people to a sense of the situation so that they will demand legislation for the protection of our homes, our schools, and state against the liquor traffic.

OFFICIAL.

My Dear County Reader:—By reading the plan of work in the Annual Report you will see that the counties making a gain of one hundred over and above all losses, are to appear on Benefit Night at the State Convention. This gives weak and strong counties the same opportunity to have a place on the platform. At the National Convention, Benefit Night, when the States gaining 500 appear, is one of the greatest nights. It can be made so in our State convention. I trust each county president will purpose in her heart as she reads this that her county shall be on, and get right at the work of organization and pushing the campaign for membership. Some of the State organizers are ready to go into the field. Mrs. Retta Jones and Mrs. I. M. Stahl have just written me that they are ready for work. Do not delay until other duties call our women and they can not give the time. Write Miss Woodard at once what you want and what you will do for organization. Yours for the work,

PLAN OF WORK.

Our aim is to double our membership before September 15, 1906.

Red Letter Days.

We recommend that every local Union observe at least two Red Letter Days during the year; that on these days guests be invited, the social features be made prominent, and a special offering be made to increase our membership.

Special Meetings

We recommend that local Unions hold a series of temperance meetings, such as contests, musicals, readings, lectures and such other interesting features as may be desired by those who have the work in hand, continuing the meetings throughout a week or ten days and thereby gain members and strengthen the work.

Scientific Temperance Instruction.

We urge our Unions to see that the provisions of the Scientific Temperance Instruction law are complied with in all schools.

Copies of this law should be in the library of every Union, and every member should be thoroughly familiar with its requirements. We urge also, that a copy of the School Physiology Journal be placed in the hands of every public school teacher.

Medal Contests.

We urge continued activity in medal contest work. Each Union should hold not less than three.

Pledge Signing.

We urge all Unions to secure as many signatures to the pledge as possible.

Sabbath Observance.

We urge our Unions to take a firm stand against the forces that are undermining our Christian Sabbath, and that they hold public meetings in which every possible means may be used to cause an arrest of thought on the subject of Sabbath desecration.

Non-Alcoholic Medication.

We recommend that each Union make a special study of the subject of Non-Alcoholic Medication and that at least two meetings during the year be devoted to this subject.

Organization.

We urge all poorly organized counties to begin at once to try to bring their organization up to the standard of at least six unions, with not fewer than ten paid members in each Union, with a county organization.

Organization Fund.

We request each Union to send $1.50 to the State Treasurer for an organization fund to be used in weak and unorganized counties.

Premiums—Local Gains.

Any Union making a gain of ten paid members over the number paid in the corresponding quarter of the past year shall have a State Speaker by paying her care fare only. Any union making a gain of twenty paid members over the number paid in the corresponding quarter of last year shall have a State Speaker free.

New Unions in sending dues for ten charter members in the quarter in which they were organized shall have a State Speaker by paying care fare only.

County Gains.

The county organizing the largest number of Unions shall have a State Speaker free; provided, however, that at least three new Unions be organized, and provided further that no county having six or more Unions shall be allowed to compete.

Each county making a net gain of 100 members shall be given a place on the program on Benefit Night at the State Convention and receive an equal share with other counties of the free will offering.

THE PRESS.

Dear Press Superintendents:—In the name of the most important department of the W. C. T. U., I greet you and do so with the hope strong in my heart that this year may be the best in the history of press work.

Upon returning from the National Convention which was held in Los Angeles, Calif., I found some inquiries on my desk from some newly appointed press superintendents to whom I shall be glad to send leaflets and all the help I can. No doubt there are many who would be glad for leaflets, and I will send to all who will send me their names and addresses.

If each corresponding secretary would kindly send me the name and address of the press superintendent for her Union, it will not only be a great kindness to me, but a help to the cause, and will they please do this?

If there is a Union which has no press superintendent, could one be appointed at the next meeting, and let it be a tactful energetic woman who will push the work. No Union can afford to be without a press superintendent and our women of Indiana are realizing this truth, more and more.

Indiana was honored again this year in receiving the prize for the best scrap work which was taken to the National Convention. Mrs. Sarah Thomas of Grant county made the book, which also took the prize at the State Convention.

Mrs. Thomas is county press superintendent in one of the best counties in Indiana, and has the support of eighteen local press superintendents.

The people of Grant county know what the W. C. T. U. is doing, for they read of it in the daily and weekly papers.

To the woman who will send me the greatest number of lines which she has furnished to the newspapers during the coming year, I will give a copy of the splendid book, "A Young Woman Journalist," by Frances Willard and Isabelle Somerset. The clippings to be sent pasted on strips of muslin and sent to me not later than September 25, 1906.

And dear workers, please don't forget to keep an account of your work so that you can report to me all work done, in June and September.

Yours for advancement,

LAURA CAMMACK,

Converse, Ind.

State Supt. Press Dept.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

Dear Co-Workers:—A happy New Year to each one of you and may success be yours throughout the year 1906. May I request of those county presidents who have not already done so, to have a superintendent for this department appointed so that I may send her helps and supplies. Mrs. Krofts, of Johnson county was the first to appoint superintendents for her Unions and to send in names, we trust others will do likewise.

There is no better way to educate the great reading public than to bring the need of a better observance of the Sabbath to its attention than by a liberal distribution of our literature. Public sentiment for Sabbath observance is what we need and we must work to create the same. No law relative to Sabbath observance can be enforced without public sentiment behind it. Create this sentiment by public meetings, sermons and the liberal use of the press. Request young people's societies, W. C. T. U.'s missionary societies, Ladies Aid's clubs, etc., to appoint committees to visit city officials and urge them to enforce the Sunday laws. Request pastors to take a vote on "Sunday closing" in their various churches and report the result of the same to the mayor. Tremendous pressure can be brought to bear upon city officials in this way. This plan is practical. Try it.

Yours with all good wishes,

KATIE WERT HOLLER,

South Bend.

State Supt.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Mrs. Ida M. Mix, General Secretary.

Special work for 1906, as planned at the conference at Los Angeles.

1st. To increase the Crusader monthly subscription list to 25,000 subscribers by October 12, 1906.

2d. To raise the fund of $600 for the support of an L. T. L. missionary in Japan.

3d. L. T. L. representatives to the World's W. C. T. U. Convention in October, 1906.

4th. Thirty L. T. L. delegates to the National W. C. T. U. Convention in 1906.

5th. A paid Junior worker in one hundred cities of the United States.

Let Indiana do her share to perfect this plan. Six sets of books, handsomely bound from the L. T. L. Post Graduate courses (value not to exceed $25) will be given to the State making the greatest percentage of gain in subscriptions to The Crusader Monthly from October 14, 1905 to October 12, 1906, provided that the State has at the latter date 1000 or more subscribers.

Now we need these books, go to work and let us get them, we had 666 subscribers in October 1905, standing No. 7 on the list.

For this $600 fund for missionary in Japan let each Legion contribute something, sending the money to our State President Miss Edith Hillus, Kokomo.

To have a delegate to the National Convention we must pay $50.00 dues into the National Treasury. Let us work for more dues this year.

Our State L. T. L. Minutes did not sell as readily as we had hoped they would, rather than keep them over, Miss Hillus and I decided to send them out. We have mailed one to each State W. C. T. U. officer and superintendent. If you have a copy hand this to some one interested in our branch of work. The rest we divided up, sending to county L. T. L. secretaries and Legions. Now if you can not get the regular price—10 cents for them—realize what you can from the number sent you and send to me to apply on the printer's bill.

Yours in the work,

IDA M. MIX.

State General Secretary L. T. L.

FROM THE UNION SIGNAL.

Hon. A. A. Wiley, Alabama.

Send your communications to the member representing your State. Petitions from voters are especially effective.

At one of the army posts, where, by the order of the court the eleven saloons outside had recently been closed, an officer ordered a corporal to take a squad of men and visit a nearby place, where, it was said, liquor was being surreptitiously sold, and to purchase and drink. As obedience is the first requisite of the army this young man, a member of the Christian Temperance Union, took his men, bought the liquor, and drank with them. Later he appeared before the court, and through his testimony the place was closed. In consequence the soldiers who accompanied this corporal scorned him for having broken his pledge, and the men in the barracks who wanted this "speak easy" to remain have since made life exceedingly uncomfortable for him, and he himself feels in his heart that he has not broken his pledge. I have cited this case to show what serious provocations and difficulties lie in the way of soldiers who are trying to be temperate men.

One of the frequent arguments used for the restoration of the sale of beer in the army is, that the company fund has been so much less than the men are deprived of many luxuries they had heretofore been able to procure, such as milk, butter, poultry and variety of vegetables. I learn that the post exchange receipts at various points are hundreds of dollars annually, in some cases exceeding the amount received during the sale of beer, and in consequence, the men have a larger sum than formerly to put into the "mess-fund."

Hearing on Statehood Bill.

A delegation of 138 men from Oklahoma, and a few delegates from Indian Territory are in Washington looking after the interests of statehood. Two hearings were granted by the House committee on territories; one December 13, lasting from 2:00 o'clock until 5:30 p. m., and adjourned hearing December 15, commencing at 10:30 a. m., with a noon recess, and continuing from 2:30 until 6:00 p. m. The one great prevailing idea in the minds of the majority of the delegation is statehood, and if prohibition is not a hindrance to the consummation of their hopes, why then prohibition; but statehood first, is their demand. It is not often that a committee respond so cordially as did the members of this committee, with Hon. E. L. Hamilton of Michigan as chairman. Eleven members sat the entire session yesterday, paying the closest attention, as one after another pressed the case. There were perhaps one hundred men present, occupying every available spot in the committee room. During the first day your correspondent was the only woman present, but Mrs. Clinton Smith later joined her is holding the fort for women.

Rev. E. C. Dinwiddle of the Anti-Saloon League, in charge of the forces contending for prohibition, made a very exhaustive argument at the opening session. E. C. Jones of Oklahoma, led the other side. The interest was intense. Several Indians, some full blooded, and others half bloods, spoke, the members plying them with questions, evidently trying to ascertain what the Indians themselves want in the case. "Chief" or "General" Porter, of the Creek Nation, made an unusually fine impression. He is a well preserved man of 65, tall, straight, and dignified. He declared that the people of his nation desire separate statehood; that they want to have their own state government, and not to be merged into another state. "Why," said the General, they want the opportunity to come to Congress just as you have come, and I shouldn't mind coming as a Senator, either." This remark was greeted with a volley of "So you should!" and a round of applause. General Porter was very emphatic, as well as the delegates from Indian Territory, with two exceptions, concerning the necessity of prohibition absolute for the safety of the Indian.

Rev. E. C. Murrow of Atoka, I. T., who for forty-nine years with his "blessed wife," has been laboring as a missionary in the territory, appeared like one of the prophets of old, as he stood before that committee and pleaded for the rights of the Red Man; that the government which has been so recreant in its pledges with the Indian, should not brush aside as of no account this last opportunity to protect those with whom it had entered into treaty relations for protection against the liquor traffic. Mr. Murrow told how the Cherokees, when living in Tennessee nearly one hundred years ago, agreed among themselves to appeal to Congress to help them overthrow the power strong drink was getting over their people, and how one of their number rode on his pony from Tennessee to the City of Washington bearing this appeal. The quiet of the room as Mr. Murrow concluded, was thrilling, as with hand uplifted he exclaimed: "Do not break faith with the Indian; God will hold this Congress to account for a fulfillment of its pledge."

Hon. A. P. Murphy, M. C., of the sixteenth congressional district of Missouri, a young attorney for the Creek Nation, whose term of office expires March 4, 1906, and who has just now entered Congress, made a most telling speech for prohibition statehood. He told of the overtures of the brewers to win him to their side, and read a telegram just received from the head of the brewing interest in Oklahoma, urging him to vote against prohibition on this bill. For a young man to so array himself against one of the strongest forces in the political world when he has just entered the world, is an act of bravery, and his constituents should see to it that his bravery does not cost him his position in the Congress, where such fearless men are needed.

FIELD NEWS

Local Unions please send in Field Items telling of your work since the State Convention. Send before January 15th in time for the February issue of The Message.

Miss Mary Woodard, Fountain City, Ind., our State corresponding secretary is a woman of rare sweet christian culture. She is very anxious to extend the work of our organization. Write to her and consult with her concerning the needs of your community.

The Union at Trafalgar, Johnson county, elected Mrs. Chas. Rose president. Mrs. Rose is the wife of the Methodist minister, and will be an efficient president. Mrs. Ella Kroft, the county president, will organize a Union at Stone's crossing in a few weeks.

Mrs. I. S. Wade writes Mrs. Vayhinger of the Union at Poseyville "It is composed of twenty-seven of the best christian women of the place and women who are interested in the work. It is one of your best plants." Mrs. Lon Rogers is the president.

Versailles Union observed the World's Temperance Sabbath by having the little folks render a short program consisting of songs and recitations. They also supplied the entire school with the White Shield Pledge cards and badges. Several temperance mottoes were hanging on the walls, the word "temperance" in large letter back of the speaker's stand, all of which were significant of the day. Then the pastor, Rev. Williams gave to a good sized audience a rousing temperance sermon, bringing in several little amusing incidents of his Kentucky life.

South Kokomo W. C. T. U. held a very interesting platform meeting at the Courtland Avenue Friends church on December 13th. There was represented eleven different departments by the various superintendents and Mrs. Mix, county president presented the department of Scientific Temperance Instruction in a very pleasing manner. Fine music was furnished by a quartett by two girls and solo by a boy.

Pleasing declamations by two girls and Mrs. Turner ended the evening's entertainment.

Fountain City Union, Wayne county, is having a membership contest. Nine new W's and three honoraries have been secured since the State Convention. The final report will be given in March, after which the defeated side will entertain the victors in honor of the new members. We doubled our membership last year and will try to double it again this year. We heartily recommend the membership contest to other Unions as an excellent means of awakening interest in our work.

Indianapolis Frances Willard Union entertained at the home of Mrs. Frances Williams, 1334 N. Illinois street. Mrs. L. W. Gray, vice president of this Union gave reminiscences of a trip she made in Europe. Mrs. Gray digressed from the threadbare tales we so often hear, and gave us an unique, witty and original account of every day life in the East that was enjoyed by all who heard her.

An admission of ten cents was charged and netted the Union quite a neat little sum.

Indiana Plan for organization. The State employs the Field Workers. Field Workers must send in monthly reports of number of days in the field, also itemized account of traveling expenses. Days consumed by travel only, not to be counted in.

Dates that fail not to be counted. There must be at least five consecutive dates and at points not widely separated. Each local Union employing a State Field Worker shall pay said Field Worker $1.50 a day and give her the collection and her entertainment. This money shall be turned into the Organization Fund.

The State Field Worker shall receive $1.00 per day and her traveling expenses.

Field Workers shall visit unorganized points for collection only.

Field Workers is to give receipt to the local Union for money received, and report all money received in her monthly report, if the amount is not sufficient to pay Field Worker's salary and traveling expenses, the deficit to be paid by the State. If the amount received by the Field Worker exceeds amount of salary and traveling expenses the surplus to be turned over to the State organization.

The Following appeared as an editorial in the Los Angeles Express the day after the opening of the National Convention:

A Temperate City.

The zealous temperance workers who have journeyed hither from States far away can not fail to feel that it is good for them to be here.

Los Angeles comes nearer to be an ideal city in respect to temperance than any other large city in the United States. It may properly be called, in fact, a temperance city. There are comparatively few saloons in Los Angeles, and there are no such saloon adjuncts as concert halls and dance houses. Sunday is observed here by absolute closing in all liquor places, and in short, the the recognized evils of the liquor traffic are minimized here as compared with conditions in other American cities.

But Los Angeles, nevertheless, is ripe for still further progress on lines of temperance reform, and it extends a cordial hand to all earnest workers in that cause. The local branch of the W. C. T. U. commands the respect and support of all classes of the community. That organization is doing a splendid work for the cause and all citizens are proud of its achievements therein. This public feeling toward the local W. C. T. U. assured a warm public welcome to the visitors from abroad, a feeling that will be evident until the departing hour.

The reception tendered to the visiting members of the W. C. T. U. by the Chamber of Commerce, on behalf of the city, expressed the sentiment of the whole community.

Kendallville.—From a local newspaper we quote:

"The mass meeting of children held in the Church of Christ Sunday afternoon was a very enthusiastic and interesting occasion. The meeting was held under the direction of Mrs. F. B. Perkins, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and as result of it a Loyal Temperance Legion is to be organized in the city. The meeting was very largely attended, the spacious church being filled. A most entertaining program was rendered. An especially interesting illustrated talk was given by Mrs. Isbell, and there were excellent musical numbers and other pleasing pleasing. It was indeed a splendid meeting."

The result of this meeting is now reported to us. A very large Loyal Temperance Legion was organized by Mrs. Perkins with Mrs. Thomas Singrey superintendent.

On December 28th Mrs. Perkins will address the county Sunday School Association on "How to Teach Temperance in the Sunday School."

Local Union programs are usually too long. Every public meeting, whether in the parlor or in the church should be limited to one hour and fifteen minutes. Of course, this singer and that reader would be enjoyed but invite the singer this time and the reader next time. The speaker should have thirty or forty minutes. Whispered preliminaries are very undignified and belittling to our cause.

Have program previously arranged, if at the very time appointed to begin the presiding officer finds that the one to conduct opening exercises is not present ask the audience to rise and sing "Coronation" after which to remain standing while Rev. — or Mrs. — will lead in prayer.

Then go on with the program without apology or seeming annoyance. Close the meeting promptly after an invitation has been extended for new members.

Never wait for a tardy person, it is not just to the audience that has assembled on time.

A free-will offering for our cause is always proper. The pittance that many people give occasionally in a public collection basket is all they give during the year for the support of temperance.

It is well to ask largely for our work rather than to assume an apologetic attitude and ask little or nothing.

If every local Union in the State will hold three Open meetings before next summer, many Unions will double their membership and do effective work against the liquor business.

The Bloomington Union has fitted a room in the Bloomington new hospital, costing $50.00. Secured five new members since October. All departments seem to be ready for their new year's work. What we want is State Superintendent to send blanks which was not done last year.

The following committee appointed at the Mothers Meeting of this Union submitted resolutions which were adopted by the Union and published:

The committee, Mesdames Wm. Johnson, C. B. Heath and W. H. Clark.

"Believing our own example in many instances to be the greatest barrier to our work, we feel bound to watch daily our thoughts, our wills, our temper, our gestures, our manners, and the neatness of our dress. We will crucify self. Our motto shall be 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.'"

"Every member of this association shall be held as securely bound to pray daily for her children, and with them as often as circumstances will permit. She shall restrain them from every course that naturally lead to selfishness, pride, vanity, worldly mindedness and unbelief. She shall endeavor to retain their confidence."

"When any member is removed by death, particular attention shall be paid to her children. It is recommended that those in our employ be particularly remembered at the throne of grace. As mother we shall strive to remember that charity suffereth long and is kind."

The Greencastle L. T. L. recently held at a Loan Exhibit, the receipts of which were $21.00. In the exhibit twenty-two countries were represented. The largest exhibit was from Japan. Besides being very interesting this exhibit was very instructive, especially in showing where our christian missionaries have opened the way for the entrance of representatives of many nations. The energetic efforts of the Legioners and their splendid ability was a surprise to the citizens of that classic town.

LA PORTE UNION.

As our treasury was very low at the close of the year our new treasurer, Miss Mary Holland, suggested a ten cent lunch which all favored and each gave a helping hand, making enough to get a supply of dishes that we much needed. Having some money left to replenish the treasury. We also gave a fifteen cent dinner on election day.

THE UNION SIGNAL.

The official organ of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is The Union Signal, subscription price one dollar per year.

Every official of our local Unions should be a regular careful reader of this paper. It has an able corps of editors with Mrs. Cornelia L. Jewett editor-in-chief.

Information is the basis of all intelligent enthusiasm. To be a representative of our great organization means much in the church circle, and the social world. Our membership should be well informed upon all lines of reform work, considered a part of our organization. To do this it is absolutely necessary to read our National paper, The Union Signal. Send your subscription for it addressed to The Union Signal, National Headquarters W. C. T. U., Evanston, Ill.

HADLEY INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Just a little reminder. Have you forgotten us? If so, I send you this little message to tell you that we are still here, and we get hungry and cold just as in former years.

When the Board met at the School they ordered some very necessary improvements. We have been patching and mending and doing without for the last three years so that we might get out of debt, and we have been blessed in so doing, and I hope the Unions over the State will each one feel that this article is written for it. I would like to write each one a letter but time forbids, but we trust that we may soon hear of something being done for the school. Hold your contests or have thank offerings. It is money we need. We must have 40 rods of new fence, a new pump for the well, two new cistern pumps, a conveyance of some kind, a new laundry stove, cooking utensils, and a grape arbor (the old one has fallen flat to the ground). The chicken house needs repairs also.

These, dear sisters, are the things that need immediate attention and I trust that you will respond promptly. It is hard work as well as discouraging for our superintendent and matron to try to keep our home in good order without water and the necessary things to work with.

Some one will say they helped last year. So you did, and you will be blessed for so doing, but do not desert us now just as we are ready to live and can spend all you can send us for improvements and not for outstanding debt.

The girls are all well and in school and we are looking forward to a merry Christmas. Can not you send some little remembrances to gladden their hearts and make them feel that they have friends? He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and that which he hath given will he pay him again. He will pay him again.

All Christmas donations should be sent to Miss Mattie Leslie, Hadley Home, Hadley, Ind.

All cash donations should be sent to Miss Clara Sears, 222 West Fourteenth street, Anderson, Ind.

LIZZIE C. HANN, President.
2430 Broadway, Indianapolis, Ind.

IN MEMORIAM.

Elkhart Union has sustained a great loss by the death of our beloved sister, Mrs. Emma Troxel. She was an enthusiastic, earnest worker whose life was consecrated to the cause of temperance.

Aunt Mary Ellis, of Phlox Union, has passed on to her Heavenly home. Uncle James is sad and lonely. They had lived together 62 years.

Our Union has lost a valuable member, our cause a staunch friend and the community a splendid citizen in the truest sense of the word. Our loss has been her gain.

The W. C. T. U.'s of LaPorte county are mourning the loss of a dear sister and co-worker, Mrs. R. G. Young. She having filled nearly every sphere in the organization. She was much interested and ever ready to help in all good work. Her pastor Rev. O. S. Kiplinger speaks in high commendation of her as a friend and church worker.

VOL. XI. No. 3.

ANDERSON, IND., FEBRUARY, 1906.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR.

TENNESSEE.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 6.—There are 1,848 cities, towns and villages in the State of Tennessee.

Of these, 1,835, all but 13, are living under laws prohibiting the traffic in intoxicating liquors.

Of the 2,020,616 people in the State, 1,732,737 are living under prohibitory laws.

Eighty-five per cent of the total population of the State, therefore, lives under Prohibition.

Traffic Cornered in Thirteen License Cities.

The licensed liquor traffic has been driven to the following thirteen town and cities, where it is making its last stand for life:

	Pouplation
Chattanooga	30,154
Clarksville	9,431
Columbia	6,052
Bristol	5,271
Jackson	14,511
Knoxville	32,637
La Follette	366
Memphis	102,320
Mt. Pleasant	2,007
Nashville	80,865
Rocky Springs	28
Winchester	1,338
Rockwood	2,899

The Democratic leaders of today, who a decade ago fought Prohibition with all their strength, are now traveling about the State, each claiming to be the "original Prohibitionist."

Temperance Campaign for United States Senate.

The campaign for United States Senator is now full on with two leading Democrats in the field, the present incumbent E. W. Carmack and ex-Governor "Bob" Taylor of fiddling" renown. And strangely, the chief issue is the record of the contestants on the question of which has done the most for Prohibition.

Senator Carmack launched his campaign first, and in his opening address at Nashville a few weeks ago, he unreservedly defied the saloon. In part he said.

Carmack Astounds Former Friends.

"There is a question involved in what is known as the Hepburn-Dolliver bill. The bill simply proposes that when intoxicating liquors are brought from one State into another they shall become subject to the police laws of that State. I favor, and from the beginning have favored the passage of that bill. I favor it as a Democrat, believing that every State should be supreme in the exercise of its proper police powers within its own borders. I favor it also because it gives to every State the right to regulate and restrain the liquor traffic in accordance with its own judgment of the public needs. It is not my purpose tonight to deal with the liquor question except as it comes within the sphere of my duties as a Senator.

"But I can not help saying that the activity of the saloon in politics is a question of interest to every man who holds or seeks a public office. So far as I am concerned I am weary of the condition of things where the man whose business it is to make the laws must hold his office by consent of the man whose business it is to break the laws. I am weary of the insolent and dictatorial spirit which so largely prevades the saloon business of this State; its open alliance to sell whiskey in violation of law; that the license to run saloons carries with it the license to run a gambling house and flaunt its black banner in the very face of innocence, purity and public decency. It seems that I have given moral offense to some of these gentlemen because I have publicly said that the man who runs a saloon has no more right to violate the law than the man who runs a barber shop.

"One of my competitors' chief lieutenants not long since said to a friend of mine that I would surely be defeated because the saloons of the State were solidly arrayed against me. I only wish to remark that if they accomplish that result they will at the same time give me plenty to do to keep from brooding over my defeat. If they defeat me for the Senate it shall be my next ambition to be handed down to history as the last man who was ever defeated for office by the saloon power of Tennessee."

Where Carmack Used to Stand.

In 1887, when the Constitutional Amendment campaign was raging in the State, Mr. Carmack was editor of the Nashville Banner, and the most powerful opponent of Prohibition with which the enemies of the saloon had to contend. Carmack was then a drinking man. Later he became editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal. There he continued his draughts on the bottle and also his attacks on Prohibition.

But of recent years he has thrown his lot with the Prohibitionists and cut out drink. This stirring utterance is therefore in harmony with his recent record. On account of Mr. Carmack's support of anti-liquor measures in Congress, the influence of the Anti-Saloon League of the State is being thrown to him, though it had not formally endorsed his candidacy.

Ex-Governor "Bob" Taylor Startles Liquor Men.

Then it was up to Mr. Taylor to show himself to be a better enemy of the saloon than Mr. Carmack. He too made the opening address of his campaign at Nashville and was introduced to the audience by James A. Tate. There he attacked Carmack's temperance record, saying:

"During my administration we began the greatest temperance movement of Tennessee. The original four-mile law banished whiskey only from communities which had incorporated institutions of learning, and we amended that law and made it apply to every school house in the State, whether there was a school in session or not, or whether the same was incorporated or not. This was the best temperance measure ever inaugurated except universal Prohibition itself, but we did not stop there. The bill submitting a constitutional amendment to the people prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors anywhere within our borders, was passed by the Legislature of the State, and I signed it as Governor, but where was the senior Senator from Tennessee in those strenuous days when the temperance cause was weak and unpopular, and it required courage to advocate it and give it the sanction of the representatives of the people? Where was the giant of the weaver's beam? Let the record speak again. In the preceding Legislature of which he was a member, he was hurling his spear at the proposed amendment and voting against the cause of Prohibition. But he did not pause there. In 1887, when the amendment banishing the saloon power from the State was submitted to the people for their ratification or rejection, he was on the stump denouncing it as an infringement upon the rights of citizenship and an encroachment upon personal liberty. But still he did not pause there. After he and his associates had pinned the measure to the wall which would have forever settled the temperance question in Tennessee, when I was struggling for a second nomination for Governor in 1888, the leading whiskey men rose up against me, remembering that I had signed the bill which was aimed at their destruction, and in the front rank of their battle line was found E. W. Carmack.

"Fellow citizens, in conformity of my record in the past and in harmony with my conscience, I am now in favor of all the temperance laws on the statute books, and thank God I have never lifted my hand against one of them. I am in favor of enforcing these laws and of such government aid as will enable the States to enforce whatever prohibition laws they have enacted or may enact in the future, looking to this end. I am unqualifiedly in favor of the Hepburn-Dolliver bill, now pending in the Senate of the United States. With this record I go to the country; with these convictions I appeal to the people. I propose to stand by my guns, and if I could get the ear of the leader of the Anti-Saloon League in Tennessee, I would say to him, 'You have no right to organize that league against a man whose record is with you and in the interest of a man whose record is against you.' I rejoice to see the men who have so bitterly fought my view of this question in the past now falling into line with me, but I am not willing to see new converts ride into office upon a cause which they have fought all their lives. I am a candidate upon my record, and if the people shall transfer the distinguished Senator's mantle to my shoulders and send him into the exile of private life, crowned with the distinction of having been the last martyr of the whiskey traffic, I would bid him Godspeed as he goes forth with his weaver's beam to smite his old friends, the saloon power, between his blood shot eyes."

Prohibition State's Dominant Issue.

Since then there has been a cat and dog fight between the two men, each attacking the other's Prohibition record. Carmack shows that Taylor did not even vote for the amendment, leaving town but a few days before election.

A similar situation exists as to the Democratic aspirants for the governorship. These men are, John I. Cox, the present incumbent, General M. R. Patterson, and Judge John B. Bond.

Each of these gentlemen are likewise going up and down the State publicly questioning the temperance record of each of the others, and parading his own hostility to the saloon. As a matter of fact, there is not a candidate now aspiring to the U. S. Senate or any other State office in Tenn. who is not publicly denouncing the saloon and classing himself with prohibitionists. Each is also advocating the present demands of the Prohibition leaders, which are:

"A bill to amend the four-mile law by striking out 5,000 and inserting 150,000 instead.

"The Hepburn-Dolliver bill by Congress as an amendment to the Interstate Commerce Law, prohibiting the shipping of intoxicants into prohibition territory from one State into another.

"A bill by the legislature prohibiting the shipping of intoxicants within the State of Tennessee into communities where it is unlawful to sell the intoxicants, and requiring all packages containing intoxicants, shipped within the boundry of the State, to be plainly marked on the package, in a conspicuous place, with the word 'Alcohol,' requiring also in the same manner on the package the name of the consignor and consignee, and a clause making all parties, including common carriers and express companies, responsible for the violation of this law by making them particeps criminis in the transaction.

"A bill giving wards in cities of over 50,000 inhabitants the privilege of voting saloons out. A bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicants within a thousand feet of any church, school house, institute of learning, or private residence in any town or city."

The Anti-Saloon League has formally endorsed the candidacy of Judge Bond as against any other gubernatorial aspirants now in the field.

Tennessee Topography and Politics.

An attempt to study the reasons for existing conditions leads to many interesting facts.

Tennessee is a long narrow strip, stretching like a bologna sausage from the Alleghany Mountains of the East to the Mississippi on the West. Before the war, the eastern end of the State was a "Whig" country. During the war it sided with the North. Since the war it has been "Republican."

The western half sided with the South and has always been Democratic. And as this section contains the largest cities, Democracy dominates the State.

So Republicanism in the East and Democracy in the West are merely hereditary conditions which afflict the two sections.

Originally the principal occupation of the Republican section was making moonshine whiskey and killing U. S. deputy marshals. But this industry declined, and, in 1887, this section actually carried for the prohibitory amendment. The Democratic end, however, voted so overwhelmingly for whiskey that the State was lost.

Off and on the Republican party in the State has passed a more or less incoherent temperance resolution, apparently looking for light.

Democrats Defeated Prohibition.

The Democratic party called on the legislature to submit the constitutional amendment to the people, and then promptly defeated the same amendment by Democratic votes.

Then, after the party had been mobbed by the people and compelled to pass the Adams law, the party officially endorsed the measure.

The situation has finally reached a point where, as the Nashville American says:

"The candidate for official position in Tennessee who does not sing a clear note on the liquor question may as well begin to gather his baggage for a journey up "Salt River."

The politicians of both old parties, therefore, are now busy jumping up and down on their former friends, the rumsellers.

Law Defiance of Saloon Roused the People.

Probably no one thing has done more to exasperate the people against the saloon than the tendency of the liquor sellers to ignore all laws regarding their traffic. Senator Carmack's ferocious indictment of the traffic in this respect voices the general sentiment of the people.

A glimpse of the "joint" situation in the Democratic end of the State illustrates the situation.

For revenue purposes, the government has divided the State into two sections: the Western or Democratic end with a collector at Nashville, and the Eastern or Republican end with a collector at Bristol.

"Joints" in License Cities.

The following table gives the number of saloons and the number of federal retail liquor dealers' tax receipts in the six licensed towns and cities in the western end of the State in the Nashville district. The table shows the number of tax receipts in excess of the number of licensed saloons, which is the usual way of computing the number of "joints:"

The Heavenly Birthday of Frances E. Willard will be generally observed by the Unions all over the State.

In every instance let the program be good and not over one hour and fifteen minutes in length.

Invite only the very ablest people to take part on the program, people of ability and influence.

Let every Union send two dollars as a gift to the National Organization Fund. This is the only monument that is being builded to the blessed memory of our dear departed leader, Miss Willard. Send the money by check or money order to Mrs. Harriet W. Brand, National Treasurer, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill.

Feb. 6th is the date that the White Ribboners and their friends are most cordially invited to come to Indianapolis and attend the meeting of the Local Council of Women at the Propyleaum, near corner of North street and Pennsylvania street. Time 2:30 o'clock.

Program—W. C. T. U. Day.

Speakers, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, Ind. State President and Mrs. Harriet W. Brand, Treasurer of the National W. C. T. U.

Marion County White Ribboners secured this great privilege and will pay all of the expenses. They are expected to especially invite their neighbors and friends to attend.

All the Unions situated on the interurban lines or within easy access of Indianapolis for fifty miles around are expected to send good delegations.

Dear Sisters:—Our State Treasurer's books for last quarter show a net gain in membership of 102 over the corresponding quarter of last year, with fifteen counties not heard from. This is an encouraging beginning, but we hope for a much better showing this quarter.

Since my report at the State Convention the following new Unions have reported to me:

Wright's Corner, Dearborn county, organized by Mrs. Rynerson.

Lucy Thurman Union, Indianapolis, organized by Miss Susan Clark.

Poseyville Union, Posey county, organized by the members.

Kendallville Union, Noble county, organized by Mrs. F. B. Perkins.

Dupont, Jefferson county, organized by Mrs. Vayhinger.

Maple St. Union, Grant county, organized by Mrs. Gulia Shugart.

Hamilton, Steuben county, organized by Mrs. Stanley.

Frances Willard Union, Lafayette, organized by Miss Eliza Baker.

Brazil Union, colored, Clay county, organized by Mrs. Dora Keith.

Lily LaDrew "Y" Terre Haute, was organized last year by Miss LaDrew, but was only recently reported to the State Corresponding Secretary.

A larger number of counties than usual sent in their quarterly reports, and many of them are very encouraging.

Greencastle reports 140 members, the largest Union in the State. They have been active in remonstrance and law enforcement work.

Greensburg reports 105 members, and good work in several departments.

Bloomington has held a successful matron's contest and is rejoicing that they have a majority of the voters names on a remonstrance.

PURITY AND MOTHERS MEETINGS.

I regret that I have been unable to send out report blanks, ere this, but unavoidable circumstances have prevented. I hope soon to be home and ready to serve you any way I can in this war for the home vs. the saloon. In the meantime I trust our great reform work has been adopted in every local Union in the State with a noble, entergetic consecrated leader who will see that our Department is represented at every opportunity, and more will make opportunities for the better protection of mothers, babies, and the betterment of humanity. Remember "the seed we sow is bound to grow." Some one has said, "if we want to reform this world, begin at the cradle." Rev. J. A. Wood says "the cradle should be a subject of greatest awe than the coffin."

Hold Mothers Meetings scatter literature, start a circulating library, arouse the motherhood of this Nation by sending out light and truth in regard to responsibility as well as opportunity of motherhood. Be sure to keep a complete record of all meetings held, all literature distributed and report same to me. A splendid way to arouse an interest is to hold a baby contest with the children of the W. R. C. R. Hartford City Superintendent has captured thereward, the last two years (refer to annual report) for the largest number of children enrolled in the W. R. C. R. with dues paid.

Who will take the lead for 1906? Every appeal for help will respond to the very best of my ability. Dear hearts let us by faith and works make this year better than any previous year.

Every Superintendent that applies to me for literature with stamps for postage will receive a package of same.

Yours for service,

Hartford City. MRS. S. M. STAHL.

CONTEST WORK.

How many contests are you to hold during the year 1906? With the incoming of the new year there also comes fresh opportunities for service and each opportunity is a duty. Miss Willard used to say, "Enter every open door" and surely the door to constant work stands wide open at the beginning of this year and bids you enter and cultivate this marvelous fertile field. The State plan anticipates three contests in each Union during the convention year. How many of the three have you thus far held? Would you like to have us help you? We will gladly do so. Send for our new contest book No. 10, full of bright, strong specimens of temperance oratory from the pens of our best writers and speakers, and go to work. We will be glad to forward any one or all of the contest books to you at the rate of ten cents a copy.

Let us hear from you today. Do not put this matter off but do it now. Start out this afternoon to organize a class and we will be glad to help you in any way possible.

Address Julia Overman, 1802 S. Bronson street Marion, Ind.

MERCY DEPARTMENT.

I am glad to tell you that the Mercy work goes right on, despite official change or other untoward disturbance. Once converted by humane work means always converted and our chief trouble lies only in numbers. Can not we have more help in this vast field of philanthropy? There are yet Christian people who deny the propriety or justness of animal rights, who doubt their sensitive-ness to pain, who are dead to everything pertaining to the lower animal kingdom, save mere selfish gain.

I would appeal to housewives, aye, to all who would wear the simple badge of humanity: "Please do not buy fowls dressed with heads on." Why? Because birds slain by this so-called "bleeding process" are invariably plucked alive, a barbaric cruelty we should gladly put aside forever. Chicken pickers are not surgeons. They are generally drunken, coarse and brutal. They do not wait for the fowls to die but begin plucking as soon as the knife is used. Can you imagine anything more agonizing?

I am offering surprise prizes for this year for most humane sermons, most money made from Mercy contests, and greatest number of subscriptions taken for "Our Fellow Creatures," published at 1128 West Lake street, Chicago, or "Our Dumb Animals," edited and published at 19 Milk street, Boston. Send to me for literature.

I do hope that each and every Union will try hard for these prizes. Ministers like to preach "Kindness to Animals" sermons; children like Mercy contests, and everybody enjoys these humane publications. Will you not please enter the race?

TO THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS.

"Make a chain for the land is full of bloody crimes."

The desire and purpose of the State Superintendents, is to make this chain so strong and far reaching that our influence and efforts may be more effective than ever.

At the State Convention the Board named Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, of Indianapolis; Mrs. Lida Outland, of Upland, and myself a committee to formulate plans for this body. We therefore request each County Superintendent to please send to this committee at once any suggestions or plans she may have for her department.

At our next State Convention we hope to have each County Superintendent hold a conference for her local workers, and all others who care to attend. Such conference to be held at a uniform time. We would also suggest that as far as possible each County Superintendent secure a bannerette with the name of her department on it so that persons can more readily locate where each special conference is being held. Bannerettes can be secured for 25 cents, and probably less.

Yours for service,

KATIE WERT HOLLER,

President Board of Superintendents, South Bend, Ind.

OFFICIAL.

Vincennes Union employs a city missionary who is doing excellent work, and they expect to organize the county in the spring.

Princeton reports six lectures last quarter and an increase in both members and interest. They also report 300 signatures to the pledge.

The new Unions in Jackson county, Brownstown and Crothersville are both active in several departments.

All the Unions in Parke county report contests. Oxford has carried on a successful campaign for new members.

Otterbein "has done great things since last quarter, but the members are too modest to tell about it."

Columbia City observed "World's Temperance Sunday" and secured a large number of signatures to the pledge.

Several Unions in Wells county have held successful contests.

West Side Union, Evansville, is taking a course in Bible study with the life of Frances Willard. Garrett has closed saloons on Sunday.

The new Union in Brazil with eight members reports five subscribers to The Union Signal.

Mitchell Union is meeting with success in contest work and Mothers' Meetings.

A number of Grant county Unions report contest work.

Fowlerton held a "fine all-day anniversary meeting."

Brazil Union succeeded in suppressing the more objectionable features of an indecent play. They report 58 W's and 42 honoraries.

North Vernon report, "We keep the depots supplied with good literature, have W. C. T. U. notes in the county papers each week, have had pledge signing in all the Sunday Schools, and will organize an L. T. L."

Huntington Union supplies the ministers, ten in number, with the convention numbers of the Union Signal.

There are only a few of the good things reported by our Unions, and very much has been done that has not been reported, and who will dare attempt to measure the results of all these efforts?

Inquiries have been made as to what is meant by "Red Letter Day." For reply let me say that a list of Memorial or Red Letter Days may be found on page four of the State Minutes, and the Model Program gives excellent suggestion for the observance of those days.

In reporting subscriptions to Message and Union Signal, report only new subscribers during the quarter.

I hope at the end of this quarter to have some good things to tell about those counties which were too busy at the close of last quarter to report.

The outlook is hopeful, dear sisters, "let us go up and possess the land for we are well able to overcome it."

Yours for service,

MARY E. WOODARD.

EVANGELISTIC.

The new year has dawned upon us with its many blessings and opportunities for service. Are we ready for its duties and responsibilities? Let us renew our consecration and wait upon the master for a fresh anointing for service. I feel deeply impressed that we are not emphasizing our department as we ought to do. We are strong for all other work as we are strong spiritually. "To be spiritually minded is life, but to be carnally minded is death." I want each Evangelistic Superintendent to have a copy of Miss Greenwood's new leaflet for 1906. It contains eight pages of very helpful suggestions, and no Superintendent can afford to be without it, I sent for enough copies to supply the county Superintendents and will send them out as soon as possible. Will the county Superintendents please supply the local Superintendents. The leaflet can be obtained for a very little cost, $1.00 for 100 copies; perhaps two cents per copy when a sample number is sent for. Send to Miss Ida A. Craft, 294 Steyvesant avenue, Brooklyn, N. N. In sending out my blanks in the fall I sent enough to many of the counties for two reports. I will only ask for one report this year in September. If any Superintendent has failed to receive the blanks please let me know and I will promptly send them. If I have failed to answer any letters for information, I am not aware of it (except two some time ago. I was waiting for Miss Greenwood's leaflet to come out at that time and they were delayed, upon receiving the leaflets I looked for the letters but failed to find them. I do not remember the names of the two referred to, but I ask pardon for seeming neglect and will be most happy to send the leaflets if the parties will write again. I want to be as helpful as possible and will endeavor to hold myself in readiness for calls for service in Gospel temperance meetings whenever and wherever they can be arranged for. Please carefully study Miss Greenwood's plans and work along the lines she suggests. Remember that work in almshouses is especially under the Evangelistic Department. I regret that my plank does not contain the works, please in making out your report not to omit "Work in almshouses." I am sure we could do more and better work this year than any previous year. Wishing each one a happy and successful year, and in sisterly love, I am yours for better service,

ELIZABETH M. HAUGHTON.

National Superintendent of Christian Citizenship requests that February 22d and July 4th be especially observed for Christian Citizenship. Now is the time to make definite arrangements for the February work and to plan for an excellent program and a great crowd on July 4th. For literature etc., address the National Superintendent, Mrs. Mary J. Telford, McMinnville, Tenn.

A LETTER.

Dear Sisters:—The season is close upon us when we must plan and work for our Institutes. Being a new superintendent of this department how earnestly I am hoping and praying that the Institutes of 1906 may be among the best that have ever been held in Indiana.

Again let us remind you, that only as each County President and her constituency take hold of this work and strive to make it a success, can my hopes be realized?

You will read the Plan in the State Minutes (a copy of which is doubtless in your possession), therefore I need not dwell upon that. I would wish to urge the holding of a Medal Contest on one evening, both on account of its educational value and as a means of raising funds to meet the Institute expenses. Some of our stronger counties feel that they do not need the Institutes, and I do not dispute that fact, but Sisters—I am going to ask you if you will not all fall in line this year, keeping to the dates as scheduled, thus making it possible for our Leaders to do their work without loss of time and unnecessary expense in traveling. Let this be your great missionary effort for the weaker and the unorganized counties.

I would like to say much about this, but space forbids, and I will only say, that the Institute season should be and can be, if we are united in effort, the greatest membership campaign of the year. Shall we make it such?

County Presidents are earnestly requested to send names of towns in which the institutes are to be held, to the State Superintendent, and the Section Leader, at an early date, so that sample copies of the Union Signal, and other papers may be sent for free distribution.

It will be noticed, there is a break in the schedule from March 3rd to April 9th. This is to give the County Presidents an opportunity to attend the Mid Year meeting on April 4 and 5.

A few additional hints:

Good music, including some special Temperance songs, would be appreciated. Send special invitations to ministers, editors, and teachers. Serve a lunch at the meeting place, inviting those whom you wish to reach. Invite your friends and neighbors to attend. Plan for a long subscription list to the Union Signal, and other papers. Advertise your Institute early, late, and widely in your county papers, and urge members from all Unions to attend. Place your speaker on Sunday, where the most good can be accomplished, and remember this is not always in the largest city, or church. With confidence in your united effort, and great expectations from the same, I am,

Yours lovingly,

ROSE PEARCE,

State Superintendent Institutes, Cayuga, Ind.,

ACTION OF RELIGIOUS BODIES.

In line with the action of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Lutheran and other religious bodies, the Baptist Ministers' Conference of New York City and vicinity, the Central New York Baptist Pastors' Conference and the Philadelphia Baptist Ministers' Conference have each appointed the Rev. Harvey Wood, field secretary of the National Temperance Society, to represent them and the Baptist denomination in Washington, D. C., to watch all legislation bearing upon the Temperance Question, to oppose the repeal of the Anti-Canteen Bill and to promote the cause of temperance throughout the country.

COPY OF DEED TO HADLEY FARM.

THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH that Addison Hadley and Martha Jane Hadley, husband and wife, of Hendricks County, State of Indiana, jointly, in consideration and for the purpose of aiding and protecting and educating the class of persons hereinafter named, hereby convey and warrant to Mrs. Mary E. Haggart, Miss Lodie E. Reed, Miss Mary G. Hay, Mrs. Josephine R. Nichols, Mrs. Lena N. Beck, Mrs. Alice Vining Hastings, Miss Mary Hadley, Mrs. Caroline Hodgins and Mrs. Caroline Edgerton, trustees for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Indiana, which persons are now the duly selected trustees of said organization, and to their successors who may be duly and regularly selected hereafter by said organization, of which Mary E. Haggart is now president, the following described real estate, in Hendricks County, State of Indiana, to-wit: The west half of the northwest quarter of section twenty-four (24) in township fifteen (15), north, in range two (2) west. Also the north thirty (30) acres of the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section twenty-four (24), township fifteen (15) north, in range two (2) west; in all one hundred and ten (110) acres more or less.

The above described real estate is hereby conveyed and accepted to be used as a home and Industrial School for needy and indignant girls, at such limitation of age as may be determined by the trustees, not to exceed twenty-four (24) years of age, who may reside in the State of Indiana. Said Institution to be known and designated as The Indiana Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Hadley Industrial School For Girls.

The purposes and intentions of the grantors in this case are to aid in the establishment of a home and school where the persons hereinbefore described may have the advantage of moral training and Christian and Temperance instruction, and a literary and industrial education in such pursuits as will enable them to be self-supporting, that they may thereby be prepared for useful lives, and that the cause of humanity and the religion as taught by our Saviour Jesus Christ may be promoted in the world.

In harmony with the foregoing purposes, the following conditions must be regarded and observed by the grantees herein and their successors:

1s—That under no circumstances or pretenses shall said real estate or the rents or profits thereof be used for any other purposes than those specified herein.

2d—That no intoxicating liquors, narcotics nor tobacco, nor anything that may be intended for, or are to be used for hilarious or stupefying effect upon the brain or body, shall be produced, sold or used upon the premises, except for experimental or mechanical purposes.

3d—No military school instruction or drill or military parade or display shall be permitted upon said real estate.

4th—That no persons shall be employed or permitted to reside upon or board or lodge upon said real estate, who is guilty of profane swearing or using obscene, vulgar or vile language, or is of a disreputable character.

5th—That no religion shall be preached, read, taught or expounded or in any way encouraged or permitted upon said premises other than the Christian Religion as taught and understood by the followers and servants of our Lord Jesus Christ, as generally understood and taught at this day by Protestant Churches, nor shall any person be employed in any capacity upon said premises who does not accept and believe the essential truths of Christianity.

6th—There shall be a general assembly for all the officers, inmates and employees, except such as may be excused because of sickness, once each day, at which time a portion of the Holy Bible shall be read and followed by an appropriate and reasonable religious service.

7th—Every officer, inmate and employee, and every other person or persons shall attend a school at some hour each Sabbath for instruction in the Scriptures, and any one who can attend such school and refuses so to do, shall be dismissed from employment or official position, except in the case of a pupil upon the promise of a parent, guardian, matron, or the pupil not to repeat such disobedience, and an apology for such conduct.

8th—That no style of dress on or about the premises that is injurious to the health of body or mind shall be worn.

And last but not least, all questions of right and wrong, moral and immoral, just and unjust, and differences of opinion, together with any and all questions that may ever come up, shall be judged and settled by the spirit and teachings as laid down in the teachings of Christ in what is known as the Sermon on the Mount, as it appears in the Gospel of St. Matthew, fifth, sixth and seventh chapters in the New Testament, as it is now printed in most common use among Christian denominations.

In event that the said organization the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Indiana, by ceasing to exist, or the death in whole or any part of the Trustees as aforesaid, and the provisions herein made for the selection of trustees shall fail, then the court of Hendricks County, Indiana, having jurisdiction of probate business shall select the same number of persons, distinguished for religious character and capacity for such work as herein contemplated, and who shall be fully identified and in full harmony with the purposes, provisions and work contemplated by the provisions of this deed as Trustee, and fill all vacancies in said number that may occur, so that said institution and its work may be perpetuated.

If pupils should apply for admission by parent or guardian who are able and willing to pay for their education and expenses, they may be admitted subject to the terms and conditions herein expressed, if the said trustees so determine, but not to the inconvenience of the class herein first named.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the said Addison Hadley and Martha Jane Hadley, his wife, have hereunto set their hands and seals, this, the twenty-eighth day of October, eighteen hundred and ninety.

ADDISON HADLEY,
MARTHA JANE HADLEY.

State of Indiana, ss,

Hendricks County:

Personally appeared before me, William A. Regan, notary public, in and for said county and State, Addison Hadley and Martha Jane Hadley, his wife, and acknowledged the execution of the annexed deed to be their voluntary act and deed.

Witness my hand and official seal this 28th day of October, 1890.

WILLIAM A. REGAN,
Notary Public.

WHISKEY AND MEDICINE.

A new ruling of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue extends the special tax imposed upon manufacturers of spirits and upon retail liquor dealers to those who manufacture and those who sell to the public, alcohol compounds purporting to be remedies for diseases and containing, in addition to the distilled spirits, only substances which are not of a character to impart any medical quality to the compound. This will probably not diminish the use of favorite tipples which masquerade as sovereign remedies, but will add materially to the Government revenues and place the disguised whiskey in its proper relation to the taxing power. The consumer pays that tax eventually. The heavy federal excise tax had no perceptible effect upon the bibulous habits of the public. The price of a tipple has remained about the same wherever the whiskey tax has been.

The Government is not a reformatory institution. In taxing the whiskey concealed under seductive labels promising health, long life and cheerfulness to the afflicted, the government is only looking for more revenue. It is surprising that the ingenious taxgatherers have for so many years treated a palpable evasion with so much leniency. The legitimate use of alcohol in medical preparations is not touched by the new ruling. If the drugs contained with the whiskey or other alcoholic liquor are of such a character, or are used in sufficient quantities to give a medical quality to the liquor "other than which it may inherently possess," the compound is not included in the ruling.—Exchange.

A TERRIBLE INDICTMENT.

Slowly the nation is becoming to realize that the trade which provides the country with $140,000,000 a year by way of revenue is costing the local ratepayer almost as many millions in rectifying the disastrous results of that trade or maintaining its social wreckage. It is not merely in workhouses and asylums that the result of the drink curse are seen. They can be found in every prison in enormous proportions; they are self evident in imbecile asylums; they are overwhelmingly apparent in the ranks of the unemployed. They are largely responsible for the mass of suffering humanity found in our hospitals; they, in company with the results of vice—a first cousin of drink—are responsible for much filthy disease and death of young children; they mean murder of thousands of young children every year by overlaying; they bring in their train, filthy habits, dirty homes, suicide, and murder, and they entail the employment of an army of judges, magistrates, police officers, the cost of which is well-nigh incalculable. We desire to point out that so long as drink is responsible for half the crimes, three fourths of the pauperism, and at least a quarter of the launty of this country, it is the business of the taxpayer to do all that is humanly possible to strike at the root of the evil, the burden of which is increasing every year and promising to crush the sober taxpayer in his enforced tax of supporting his drunken brother. If this evil does not demand redress, we do not know one that does! And until it is redressed all the proposals dealing with various phases of pauperism are like so much beating of the air.—Exchange.

IN MEMORIAM.

In the death of Mrs. Caroline Mendenhall which occurred on January 4th, an irretrievable loss has been sustained, not only by the Deer Creek Local W. C. T. U., but more than 500 White Ribboners of Grant County is conscious of the fact that a great force in the department of Mother's Meetings has gone.

Carrie Mendenhall was endowed with a far reaching mission as to the possibilities of a mother's influence, and with her depth of thought and strength of character she was eminently fitted for her department both in the local and the county.

In her own union, not only the Mother's Department is left vacant but also the Vice President's chair, and in her home an invalid husband will miss the loving sympathy and christian fortitude that characterized her life. Her greatest wish was to live for him who never makes a mistake, and now she has heard the words well done, "Enter into the joys of Thy Lord."

WHISKEY NOT GOOD FOR GRIP.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Jan. 12.—At a meeting of the Bartholomew County Medical Society, last night, Dr. E. U. Wood read a paper on "Grip," and which he said that neither quinine nor whiskey was good medicine to be used either before or during an attack of the grippe. The physicians who attended the meeting agreed with him, and hereafter the people who take whiskey for the grippe will be committing the same sin in the eyes of the local medical profession as if they had actually fallen from the water wagon.—Indianapolis News.

TENNESSEE.

Cities	Saloons	Tax Receipts	Joints
Nashville	205	307	102
Memphis	615	907	292
Jackson	20?	37	17
Columbia	14	14	00
Mt. Pleasant	2?	2?	00
Clarksville	20	31	11
Total	876	1298	422

On a personal examination of the records of the Collector of Internal Revenue here, I find that there are in force in this Nashville district at this time, 1,388 of these Federal tax receipts, 1,289 of which are shown in the above table to be in the license cities, leaving only 90 for the entire Prohibition section of the revenue district. 400 Per Cent more "Joints" Under License Than Prohibition.

In other words, while there are 422 "joints" in the six licensed places of this revenue district, there are but 92 in all the Prohibition towns, cities and villages.

There are thus nearly five times as many "joints" in the six licensed places as in all the hundreds of Prohibition towns and cities combined.

As I write these lines the sun is approaching its meridian, and the dome of the capitol on its high hill sweeps its shadow across the buildings on the north. Each day, this shadow sweeps over 36 of these unlicensed speakeasies or joints within two blocks of the State House grounds. Democratic Nashville permits it.

In the capitol city of the State there are, according to the records, more speakeasies than in all the hundreds of Prohibition towns and cities on the western half of the State combined.

In the single licensed city of Memphis there are more than three times as many speakeasies as in all the combined, Prohibition towns and cities of the western half of the State.

Here is a chance for some jackanape to write an article for the outlook, telling how Prohibition breeds "speakeasies" and "hypocrisy" in Tennessee.

The Bloomington matron's contest, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., was well attended.

The opening address by Mrs. Kitson gave a general idea of the scope of work covered by the W. C. T. U. and a brief history of the Hadley Industrial School. The contestants, without an exception, rendered their pieces well and in a forcible manner. The judges awarded the silver medal to Mrs. O. N. Siebenthal, President of the local Union.

The Four-Mile Law.

The Supreme Court of Tennessee has decided that any law requiring any sort of referendum is unconstitutional, so the State has and can have no local option legislation. The people have gotten around this peculiarity, however, in a curious way.

In 1877, at the solicitation of an Episcopal school, the University of the South, at Sewanee, the legislature passed an act prohibiting the sale of liquor within four miles of any incorporated institution of learning, provided the institution was outside of an incorporated town. This was the original "Four-Mile Law."

Numerous towns at once began taking advantage of this law by simply incorporating their schools, thus driving the liquor shops out everywhere.

In 1887, this law was extended to apply to any school house outside of a town not incorporated.

The Prohibition Party's Great Work.

During the "eighties" and the "nineties," the Prohibition party prophets went up and down the State, stirring up the people against the saloon. They were a thorn in the side of the old party policies and a constant source of apprehension to the traffic. The Prohibition party plowed and harrowed the ground for the present abundant crop of woe for the liquor dealers. It is conceded that it was the work of Prohibition party agitators that forced the constitutional amendment campaign of 1887, and finally forced the radical extensions of the "Four-Mile Law" in recent years.

In 1899 the legislature extended the provisions of the "Four-Mile Law" to towns of 2,000 inhabitants or less that should "hereinafter be incorporated." Then followed a stampede of towns surrendering their charters so as to be "hereinafter incorporated."

The Adams Law.

In 1903, the legislature extended the provisions of the "Four-Mile Law" to towns of 5,000 which should be "hereinafter incorporated." This is known as the "Adams Law," and is but another amendment to original "Four-Mile Law." Within a few months forty more towns surrendered their charters so as to be "hereinafter incorporated" and so came under the provisions of the law.

Every town in the State, save five, under 5,000 population, has now driven out the saloon.

In 1896, State Local Option League was formed to work for local option legislation, but the generally conceded fact that under Tennessee laws such legislation was unconstitutional, rendered its work ineffective. A few years later the Local Option League was succeeded by the Anti-Saloon League which, instead of working for local option sought the extension of the "Four-Mile Law," now known as the "Adams Law," with much success. The League can scarcely be called a League in this State, but is rather a self constructed executive committee, working under the leadership of Rev. Edgar E. Folk, editor of the Baptist Reflector of this city. The League, however, being chiefly made up of the Democratic preachers, has the ear of the Democratic party leaders and is doing heroic work in whipping into line the Democratic whiskey strongholds of the western part of the State.—Exchange.

SOUTH CAROLINA AFTER QUACK MEDICINES.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 2.—The State constabulary has taken up the bogus patent medicine crusade and are out after the quack nostrums with a sharp stick, especially those which contain alcohol in appreciable amounts.

The following is an official circular letter directed against the various well-known patent medicines sold in this State:

"To Division Chief Constables and Members of the Constabulary Force: I am handing you below a list of patent medicines and other goods which are being sold in this State, and which have been analyzed by the State chemist. From this report I find they are strongly alcoholic, and under the law of South Carolina can not be handled except as provided by that law. Reputable licensed druggists are permitted to dispose of them upon prescriptions, but not otherwise, and you are hereby authorized to make seizure of same whenever found when you can satisfy yourselves that they are being used as a beverage.

"Sections 555, 574, 575 and 606, of the dispensary law, will amply post you, and from them you will observe that druggists can not legally sell these goods except upon prescription from a practicing physician, and it can be given only to bona fide patients.

BILLS IN CONGRESS.

While the Fifty-first Congress, 1890-1891, was a record breaking year so far as temperance legislation was concerned, the Fifty-ninth Congress is likely to even surpass that in the attention given to measures involved in the temperance reform, and it is to be hoped will surpass it in the temperance legislation enacted.

At the request of the National Temperance Society the following bills have been introduced in the Senate by Mr. Gallinger:

A Commission of Inquiry Bill. Providing for the appointment by the President of a commission on the alcoholic liquor traffic. (This is known as Senate Bill 42.) It shall be the duty of the commission to investigate the liquor traffic, its relation to revenue and taxation, as well as its economic, criminal, moral and specific aspects, including pauperism, crime, social vice, the public health; and shall also inquire as to the practical results of license and prohibitory legislation for the prevention of intemperance in the several States.

Senate Bill 808. Providing that the Federal Government shall not grant liquor tax receipts to persons residing in prohibitory territory, State or local. The Government ought to encourage obedience of law instead of violation of law.

Copies of these bills may be had by writing to the clerk of the document room, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

The National Temperance Society has also had introduced the following bills:

(a) A bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in the District of Columbia.

(b) An amendment to the Federal Constitution. The adaption by Congress of a resolution submitting to the several States an amendment to the Federal Constitution which, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States, will prohibit henceforth the manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of all alcoholic liquors as a beverage in the United States and in every place subject to their jurisdiction.

In 1875 Hon. H. W. Blair, on behalf of the National Temperance Society, offered in the House of Representative a joint resolution to thus amend the Constitution of the United States, and in the Fifty-first Congress the prohibitory amendment to the Federal Constitution formulated by the National Temperance Society was favorably reported in both the Senate and House of Representatives, though too late in the session to be acted up by either body. Let the friends of temperance in every State petition Congress to pass such an amendment now.

(c) Proprietary Medicines. The Legislative Committee has also in preparation a national bill with reference to the manufacture and sale of proprietary medicines.

In addition to these bills the National Temperance Society is co-operating with other temperance and reform organizations in efforts to secure the passage of Congress of:

(1) The Hepburn-Dolliver Interstate Liquor Bill. Providing that liquor shipped from one State to another shall be subject to the law of the State into which it is shipped as soon as it crosses the State line.

(2) The McCumber-Sperry Bill. To prohibit rum selling in all buildings owned by the Federal Government.

(3) The 21 years' prohibition of the liquor traffic as a condition of Statehood for the Indian Territory.—National Advocate.

FIELD NEWS

AN INVITATION.

To all our friends though far or near,
We crave your kind attention;
So please lend us now your ear
While we a subject mention.
The W. C. T. U. will hold
On a day not distant far,
If we have been correctly told,
A "Handkerchief Bazaar."
So this, then is our plea in brief
To help our enterprise.
You each shall send a handkerchief
Of any kind or size.
To be without a handkerchief
You know is quite distressing
From every state let one be sent,
'Twill surely be a blessing.

The Bright Union held a Silver Medal Contest the second one for this year, in the Christian church, on January 11th. The attendance was large. Mrs. Lettie Siefferman won the medal. The contestants were all young married ladies. We expect to hold our second public meeting for this year on February 17th.

Mrs. Gullie E. Shugart, Grant county's President, called a special meeting of the County Central Committee to select a woman to take the place of the late Mrs. Caroline Mendenhall as superintendent of Mothers Meetings. Mrs. Eunice P. Wilson was chosen to fill the unexpired term.

What Bloomington W. C. T. U. has done last quarter:

Six new members.
Held five meetings.
Rummage sale netted $23.37.
Contest for Hadley Home netted $12.00.
Blanket remonstrance against thirteen saloons and gained large majority—soon have college town with no saloons.
Furnished room in Bloomington New Hospital, $50.00.
Sent $1.50 for Organization Fund.
Bought ten annual Minutes.
Sent State Treasurer $21.00.
This is indeed a live Union and with the help of our State officers we do want a county organization.

Bloomington Union held one oratorical contest for Hadley School on December 30, and sent the Treasurer $12.00.

The Princeton W. C. T. U. with one exception held two meetings each month, also, one executive meeting a month. At the last quarterly meeting, December 13, 1905, there were reports from Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer and from many Superintendents of Departments. Superintendent of Literature reported that 300 had signed the pledge at the gospel temperance meeting held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., when six temperance lectures were given by Dr. Gieser, pastor of the C. P. church in November. About 200 pledge cards and 800 pages of literature were given to the Sunday School of the city for use in Temperance Sabbath. Other literature has been given and loaned in quantities.

The Superintendent of Scientific Temperance Instruction has visited the city schools and found some work was being done along that line.

In September the County Orphans Home was visited by a delegation of members of the Union and the leaders of the Sunday School class of little girls, there was a program by the orphans, and a treat was left for them. A representative was sent to the conference of the State Board of Charities and Corrections. Also a delegate to the Anti-Saloon League convention. The Press Superintendent stated she had tried to keep our work before the people, through the city papers.

The State Superintendent of Institutes offers as a prize, a W. C. T. U. bow pin of white enamel on sterling silver to each of four successful competitors who write papers on the subjects given below, under the following conditions:

Paper not to be longer than would take eight minutes to read, and paper must reach me not later than February 24th.

The judges will be women acquainted with these subjects, and the prize papers may be read at all Institutes held in the State.

The names of the winners will receive mention in The Message, and, if space permits, the papers may be published later.

4th The Patriotism of Women. Is it worthy of expression at the ballot box?

MRS. ROSE PEARCE,

Cayuga, Ind.

Marshall County: The Christian church of Plymouth, Rev. Sheppard, pastor, was very generously donated for a meeting of the W. C. T. U., called by the county President, Mrs. A. R. Shedd, Thursday, January 11, at 2:00 p. m.

A good audience of interested and enthusiastic women and several brothers responded to the call.

The Rev. Clever, of the U. B. church, rendered valuable assistance.

The Union was re-organized with the following officers:

President, Mrs. Anna Dickinson; vice-president, Mrs. Eva Cullison; Cor. Sec., Miss Emily Stacy; Rec Sec., Mrs. E. J. Kleckner; treasurer, Mrs. Lydia Appleman.

The promise is for good work done in Plymouth. The Lord is with His people.

MARION COUNTY.

Marion County will hold a rummage sale this month and it is hoped to put considerable money in the county treasury. Each Union throughout the county will be expected to contribute something salable to the sale. Time and place announced in papers.

Meridian Union, on January 10th held its regular meeting with Mrs. House. This being the Non-Alcoholic Medication meeting, held in accordance with the State plans for the year, that there be at least one meeting of this kind during the year.

Revival services here have met with great success at the Ella Smith settlement house 1188 Kentucky avenue. Different city ministers assisting. The Palmer Union have undertaken this settlement work.

A Good Meeting was held at 23d and Columbia avenue by some of the Northeast Union ladies and the County President. The meeting was more in the nature of a Mothers' Meeting, though it is hoped that a Union may be the outgrowth of the meeting. Mrs. Walker, evangelistic superintendent led devotions. These new Unions mean a great deal in the growth of temperance sentiment.

Mapleton Union held a successful contest at the North Park Christian church. Rose Anderson of 2419 N. Illinois street receiving the gold medal. An admission fee was charged—$9.00 taken in. This is encouraging, let us have more contests, each Union taking a deeper interest. The County Superintendent will gladly assist any one applying to her.

The Vayhinger Union had an excellent meeting with their new President, Mrs. Cravens. Mrs. Gipe our county President offered words of encouragement, also two pastors spoke. Four new members secured. An L. T. L. Superintendent was appointed and it is soon hoped to have a flourishing Legion.

The Bridgeport W. C. T. U. meeting met at the home of Mrs. Ethel Miars, December 14. They were favored with a solo entitled "Cold is the Night" by Mrs. Henry Bradley. The members were very much delighted to have with them little Francis E. Willard, who gave inspiration to them by reason of the one for whom she was named. They expressed desire that she might live to be as useful in the temperance cause as Francis E. Senior.

At Broad Ripple a very successful young peoples meeting was held on Sunday, January 7th by the W. C. T. U. in the Christian church. Miss Edith Hillis, of Kokomo, State President Loyal Temperance Legion, made a fine address. Much enthusiasm and great results expected.

Indianapolis Central Union holds its regular meetings on Thursday of every week in the parlor of the Central Avenue Methodist church. The first half hour of each meeting is devoted to an evangelistic service. Time of the meeting being from 2:30 p. m. to 4:00 p. m.

On January 4th Mrs. Ida Mix, State Secretary of the Loyal Temperance Legion accepted an invitation to meet with this Union and presented the work of the Legion in a most impressive and interesting manner.

This Union conducts and maintains a Junior Legion at the Indianapolis Orphans Home.

One of the features of the regular meeting of the Union is a ten minutes study of the Loyal Temperance Legion course of manual study.

The County Executive met Saturday, January 6th with a splendid attendance. Many things of interest was discussed. It was decided to hold a county meeting one a month in order to become more familiar with the work, studying the constitution, and giving attention to matters requiring immediate action by the County. Place of meeting to be announced.

February 6th the Local Council will meet. This being W. C. T. U. day. Mrs. Vayhinger and Mrs. Brand speaking. This meeting followed on February 7, by an indoor picnic at the home of Mrs. McWhirter, 2312 College avenue, with Mrs. Vayhinger and Mrs. Brand as guests of honor. Come and bring your lunch.

Miss Leck has organized two Loyal Temperance Legions as county secretary of the L. T. L.

Brazil and Bedford have each been visited by the Black Crook Jr. Burlesque Co.

At Brazil vile hand bills were passed at the machine shops, factories, etc., and put into the hands of boys and men. The bill boards contained obscene pictures.

The newspaper advertisement was as follows:

"Opera House, McGregor's, Will H. Leavitt, manager. Wednesday, December 13, Harry Hastings' big "Black Crook Jr. Burlesque Co.," 25 people, mostly all girls. The great European sensation, Mille Devere "Caught in the Act."

The W. C. T. U. women were appealed to. When approached concerning the show the manager was angry, denied that the show was indecent, the mayor agreed to detail an officer at the opera house and that nothing indecent should appear.

The wonderful agitation of the W. C. T. U. caused the awful features of the show to be eliminated.

The W. C. T. U. sent an article written by its committee to one of the newspapers telling the public of its intention to follow this agitation with legal proceedings, that they did have evidence that the show on the first appearance was vile in the extreme and they intended taking up the law with the billposters, they were obscene and placed in a public place near the coliseum where the young people go. The paper did not publish the article!

The Union offered ten dollars reward for information as to who passed the hand bills. Permission has been asked to appear before the city council. The literary clubs are asked to send representatives with committee before the city council.

At Bedford the announcement that this "Black Crook Jr." company would appear at the opera house caused consternation on account of the nature of its performance there about ten nights previous.

Finding that prayers with the city officials avail nothing, the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union decided to attend the performance of the "Black Crook" at the Stone opera house last night.

For twenty-four hours the ladies assisted by the various pastors had unsuccessfully sought to have the performance prohibited, and failing, they decided to "carry the war into Egypt" and most prominent members, headed by Rev. R. Scott Hyde, of the M. E. church, decided that they would witness the performance.

Bills scattered about town informed the boys "We are here nuff ced," stirred the sports like a call to arms. The news spread that the ladies of the W. C. T. U. were going to attend the performance, and there was a rush for tickets to see what the ladies would do.

Chief of Police Myers called on the manager of the "Black Crook" company and advised him to be careful of what was said and done on the stage. The manager expressed a desire to "roast" the ladies, and Chief Myers promptly warned him that at the first outbreak or any vulgar or suggestive language indulged in, meant prompt arrests.

The ladies' object had been accomplished and the performance compared to that of ten days ago was frigid, in fact to tame for the "men only" audience that expected its money's worth.

Rev. Scott Hyde, pastor of the M. E. church was asked by the Mail this morning for his impression of the show.

Dr. Hyde said:

"When it was learned that the play called 'Black Crook,' which was given in our city more than a week ago was to be repeated this week, a storm of protest came to us from every quarter. The W. C. T. U. was at once besieged by many mothers to use their influence to prevent, if possible, the performance. Accordingly representatives of the W. C. T. U. waited on the mayor who claimed that he could do nothing else than grant the company a license, according to the ordinances of the city.

"Failing here, we appealed to the manager of the opera house who insisted that the play was not immoral. But on reliable authority we knew better.

"Information from those who witnessed the performance before, disclosed the fact that the performers more than once went to the limit of vulgarity and indecency, sufficient to bring the blush of shame to the most hardened face. We attended hoping that our presence would force the company to eliminate at least some of the vile scenes.

"In this we were not disappointed. We know to a certainty that the play was not an exact reproduction of a week ago.

"But it was vile enough from start to finish. Outside of the indecent attire of the actresses (?) by an artful play on words, the vilest suggestions aglow with the fire of hell, were flung to the audience which is picked up and cheered to the echo, and sad to say, the majority of the audience were boys and young men, ranging from fourteen to twenty years.

"Many of the boys went out of the opera house last night with a deadly serpent gnawing at the vitals of his soul. It was a ghastly undoing of the morals of the youth of our city.

"There can be no justification of such a performance. The statement that the 'public demands it' is false. Because a few vile minds will support so vile a performance does not argue that it is public demand. They do not represent the public by any means.

"In truth they are a very inconsiderable part of the public. Such a statement is not only false, but a vile insinuation at the morals of our city."—Bedford Mail.

ANDERSON, IND., MARCH, 1906.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR

OFFICIAL.

THE MID-YEAR EXECUTIVE.

The Mid-Year Executive of the W. C. T. U. of Indiana will meet in Central Avenue M. E. church corner Central avenue and 12th street, Indianapolis, Ind., at 10 a. m. on April 4th, 1906. The "Executive Committee consists of all the officers of the State Union, the President and Secretary of the Board of Superintendents, and the editor of the State paper." The officers of State Union are the general officers, and the president of each organized county in the State.

When there is no county organization, the presidents of the W. C. T. U. in the county are invited to attend the Executive meeting and sit in the sessions, but will not have the privilege of voting. I trust the Unions wherethere is no county organization will avail themselves of this opportunity to help further the plans for work in the State.

The Ladies Aid Society of Central Avenue church will furnish a 25 cent dinner in the church. The afternoon session will open at 1:30, and as there is much business I trust every woman will be in her place promptly. If the business is not finished, there will be an evening session.

Any woman coming the evening before, or remaining over night, please send her name and when she will arrive to Mrs. Martha L. Gipe, 2114 N. Pennsylvania street at once and entertainment will be provided.

Dear Sisters—May we not have a full executive at this meeting?

It is the duty of the county Union to send its president, paying her expenses, as she is their representative.

CULLA J. VAYHINGER,
President.

INSTITUTES.

The name of the leader for Section Two, East, was not published with schedule in the February, Message. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley of Liberty, Ind., will be the leader in this section and I would like to ask those County Presidents who have not yet written the State Superintendent and leader regarding the Institute to do so as early as possible.

PATENT AND PROPRIETARY MEDICINES.

The Legislative Committee of the National Temperance Society has with great care prepared a bill governing the manufacture and sale of proprietary medicines, to be introduced in the Legislature of New York, and which can readily be adapted to meet the legal requirements of the legislatures of different States. Some of the ablest lawyers as well as the first medical scientists of New York have examined the bill as formulated, and give it their warmest endorsement.

Friends of temperance in other States who desire such legislation by their Legislature can get copies of this bill on writing to the General Secretary of the National Temperance Society, 3 East Fourteenth street, New York.

THE SWORD THAT GUARDS THEM.

Miss Eva Kilbreth Foster.

From the pen of Gladstone, England's "grand old man," have come to us across the sea, away off here in New-er England, many words of wisdom, but none wiser than these found in Tennyson's Memorials: "The voice of any people is the sword that guards them, or the sword that beats them down."

The Union Signal, the official organ of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, has a claim upon every wearer of the white ribbon; upon every one enjoying the honor of identification with the work and the workers of this mighty organization. It behooves us as a body and as individuals to so "voice" this claim of The Union Signal, upon the American constituency, at least, that March 1 shall find our National President, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, engulfed as never before in new and in renewed subscriptions to the official organ.

To do intelligently and acceptably the work, as representatives of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union we pledge ourselves to do, we must be students of the situation—must take notes of men and events, of the world's actors and of the world's action.

The Union Signal acquaints us not only with today's issues, but within its valued columns is "corralled" much of yesterday's history. Well-trained editors give us weekly through its pages the well-trained thought of twentieth century reformers, and we can not afford to do without these pages.

Through "Our Washington Letter," by way of a single illustration, most valuable information comes to us from week to week, remotely distant from the Nation's capitol, as we are, many of us, we may yet feel the Nation's pulse through these timely bulletins—may learn much concerning the moral health of the great body politic. Then, this official organ is our "home letter," just as Miss Willard said it was, and like all home letters, it allays the chill of the passing storm.

Let us see to it that our "voice" (vigorously championing the cause of our official organ) shall prove indeed "the sword that guards" our interests—not "the sword that beats them down."

In such manner may we best give to the editor-in-chief, our honored and beloved National president, the birthday joy which should be hers.

ANTI-NARCOTIC PLAN OF WORK.

Dear Sisters:—I delayed sending my Plan of Work to the Message during the first quarter, as I wished it to conform to the law regarding the consumption and sale of cigarettes. I was assured that a favorable decision would be rendered by the United States Supreme Court during the early part of December; since then I have been seriously ill. The work must be much the same as in past years. Public addresses, League work, Pledge Signing, and the distribution of Literature. If you find it impossible to support an L. T. L., and a Cigarette League in your Union and the L. T. L. is considered more educational; impress the value of the Anti-Cigarette Department upon the L. T. L. leaders' mind, give her supplies and Pledge Cards and secure reports from the Superintendent of that department, in this way the work of the two departments will not conflict. I am recommending the use of the Anti-Narcotic Oratorical Contest Book (price 10 cents) for use in contests, and for recitations in public meetings and school rooms. There is a growing tendency among teachers in our public schools, to use our publication for supplementary reading, see to it that every teacher in your schools is supplied with Anti-Narcotic Leaflets. A sample package can be secured by writing Miss Ruby Gilbert 131-137 Wabash Ave., Chicago, enclosing 10 one cent stamps: a selection of leaflets can be secured in this way, and those best suited to the purpose can be sent for. As the expense of sending the cigarette law through the mail is so great I should advise County Superintendents to have the placards printed, selling them to the local Unions. The value of these placards is very great when placed in public buildings and school rooms. I made promises to several Superintendents during the last State Convention which I have not kept as I lost the addresses, I am ready to redeem myself. I have the State's supply of Anti-Narcotic Pledge Cards, 10 cents per 100 or $1.00 per 1,000. I will send copies of the cigarette law for postage, tobacco Pledge Cards may be procured through me or from Mrs. E. B. Ingalls, National Superintendent. I submit the National Plan of work with Mrs. E. B. Ingalls. Congratulations to Indiana for her good cigarette law. Elizabeth Smith, 1917 Highland Place, Indianapolis, Ind.

National Superintendents' new plans for 1906. First.—To cause the arrest of thought in our own ranks, so that an Anti-Tobacco clause may be inserted in the pledge of the W. C. T. U. for honorary members. Not especially to save men from the tobacco habit, but to protect boys from the example of honorary members with cigars in their mouths. Can you ascertain for me how many Honorary Members you have in your State and how many of these use tobacco? Second.—The Sunday School Association of Illinois has decided to use the "Spring Temperance Sunday" as an Anti-Cigarette Day. this will occur May 20. Will you work upon your Sunday School Association to bring this about in your State, and whether the Sunday School Association adopts the idea or not, will you make May 20th an Anti-Cigarette pledge signing day in all your W. C. T. U. ranks? Third.—Mrs. Dietrich of New York has formulated a plan to put the enclosed little leaflet into Sunday School books,

A NEW ARITHMETIC.

I am not much of a mathematician," said the cigarette, "but I can add to a man's nervous troubles, I can subtract from his physical energy, I can multiply his aches and pains, I can divide his mental powers, I take interest from his work and discount his chances for success."

library books, and day school books. The one with mucilage back is pasted in a prominent part of the book, where it will catch the eye of the boy many times. Please consider if you cannot get your women to take up this plan and also circulate the leaflet without mucilage back, furnished for distribution. I can furnish the (sticker) leaflet for 15 cents per hundred, for the one without mucilage back send to Mrs. Emma Graves Dietrich, 84 Walnut street, Lockport, N. Y.

Very truly,

E. B. INGALLS,
5250 W. Minster Place,
St. Louis, Mo.

National Superintendent of Anti-Narcotics and National Anti-Cigarette League.

Lecturers in this department are Mrs. Ida B. Cole, Kirkwood, Mo.; Mrs. Helen Stoddard, Fort Worth, Texas; Mrs. Frances Beachamp, Lexington, Ky.; Miss Anna Quinby, Edenton, Ohio.

I ask your assistance in carrying out these plans of the National Superintendent.

ELIZABETH SMITH.

The Detroit Free Press, under the title "The Menace of Mormonism," quotes the Arizona Star, of Tucson, to the effect that Mormon hierarchy has its plans laid to secure the political control of both New Mexico and Arizona. There are now in Old Mexico 50,000 Mormons, who went there from Arizona, who are preparing to return, and colonies will be sent from Utah, Idaho and Wyoming. Arizona has already felt their efforts to control local affairs, and these, it is urged, would be greatly increased if the Territory were to become a State. The Free Press says:

"The situation as it is thus indicated is too serious to pass unnoticed. It is so much in accord with what has been proved to be the fixed policy of the Mormons that it carries the stamp of truth on its face. With New Mexico and Arizona as one State of two States it is a justified prediction that twenty years hence there will be a Mormon empire of vast extent in the West. It will include Utah, Idaho, Wyoming and perhaps Montana. In this empire there will be a union of church and state, for the allegiance to the church will be first. Polygamy will flourish as it now flourishes in Utah. The practices disclosed by the witnesses who testified in the Reed Smoot case will not only go unpunished; they may be legalized. In the State itself the Mormons will eventually secure a representation which will enable them to exact consideration for their measures. The remote possibility of such an empire is enough to cause hesitation in Congress; its immediate prospect should meet with immediate measure to prevent it. Mormonism is a danger which is discounted by the ignorance of it in the East. But it is a real danger, because it involves hostility to about every institution which reflects the genius of the American republic."

THE MESSAGE.

From a personal letter signed Lou Van Horn, Seymour, Ind., we quote. "I must tell you The Message was never so full of news and encouragement as now. People surely know 'what is the W. C. T. U. doing,' if they read its pages. God bless you in your good work."

MARSHALL COUNTY.

The Plymouth Union being reorganized is encouraging but Marshall County women need to have the cooperation of all friends of the W. C. T. U. If you have a friend at Plymouth write her to give her support to the Union there.

Women of Indiana! Now is the time to arouse yourselves, write letters, make visits and do personal work for your own Union and for the Unions wherever you have an interest. The county seat towns must become stronger factors in this temperance work, of course they are harder to work in, and just for that reason the work is so greatly needed.

WAR ON "QUART SHOPS."

It is a notorious fact that, everywhere, more Government licenses are issued than either State or local licenses to sell intoxicating liquors. In every instance where such Government license exists without a State license the holder is selling illegally—an effort to hunt down these law-breakers has been started by an order of the U. S. Treasurer instructing collectors of Internal Revenue to hold secret the names of every liquor dealer to whom he issues license. The collector can not be reached by process of law. He is not subject to the summons of any court nor does he have to testify.

Such condition of affairs places the Government of the United States in position of protecting and encouraging law breakers. It is nothing short of sowing seeds of anarchy.

The war against this injustice to state and municipalities has been inaugurated. Liquor organs are complaining of the injustice to dealers who comply with the law in so far as obtaining license is involved. The "speak easy," "boot leg" fellows are of no value to the retailers organization. They are worthless to the organs and only contribute to the coffers of the U. S. Treasurer and the other partners, distillers and brewers.

Seeing the situation and also under pressure from the increasing prohibition territory Hon. George A. Pearre of Maryland has introduced a bill providing that unless the applicant for a U. S. Tax Receipt (license) is able to produce a State license or permit to show that he is engaged in a legal business, the U. S. Receipt shall be refused. Other bills of similar nature have been introduced by Congressmen Humphreys, Bowie, and Clark. Senator Gallinger is also very active and a postal card to him addressed Washington City, D. C., requesting his speech will repay every reader of The Message.

Senator Beveridge has consented to give the Pearre Bill consideration when it reaches the Senate. Governor Hanley has approved this measure over his signature to a petition now being circulated among prominent men which will be forwarded to the Ways and Means Committee within a few days. Now with such backing won't you ask your husbands, sons and voting friends to spend a few moments in writing a postal card to your member of Congress, requesting his aid in passing the Pearre Bill, denying U. S. permit to every applicant who has not first secured a State license. It means much for prohibition territory and for encouraging respect for law.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH, BRAZIL, IND.

The following letter to our State Treasurer is from Mr. W. E. Carpenter of Brazil, Ind., Supt. of the fourth largest Sunday School in Methodism in the whole world.

"Miss Clara M. Sears, Anderson, Ind:

"Dear Friend:—We are delighted to receive the beautiful life-size picture of Miss Frances E. Willard and have placed on the wall in our main Sunday School room right where the school can look at all times on the face of so good and true woman. I presented the picture to the school yesterday and read your letter. They enthusiastically and unanimously accepted the gift by a rising vote, and I am instructed by our school to extend to you and the State W. C. T. U. our sincerest appreciation and thanks for this splendid gift. We shall always remember with pleasure the meeting of the State Convention here and look forward with pleasant anticipations to your coming again.

"We had a great decision day in our Sunday School, over 200 knelt at the altar at our time to decide for Christ. Almost the entire school of 728 present knelt for a baptism for service. (This did not include the primary department.) It was a wonderful time.

"Cordially,
"W. E. CARPENTER."

AN EXPLANATION.

Dear Press Workers:—Forgive me please for not making my message clear to you in my letter in the last Message.

The prize which I offer is to the County Press Superintendent and they in turn can make such offers to the local members as they see fit to stimulate them in the work, and the local Press Superintendent can help their County Superintendent in competing for this splendid book which I will give.

Yours for advancement in our work,
LAURA CAMMACK,
State Supt. Press Department.

PATHETIC SCENE.

From a Hartford City paper we quote: the following:

"The mother clasping to her cold breast the remains of her infant daughter, whose birth had caused her untimely demise, with the parents and husband bending in sorrow over the bier that held both forms stilled by the hand of death, is the extreme pathetic scene that touched the hearts of the many mourners at the funeral of Mrs. H. H. Peele and her infant daughter which was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of the parents of Mrs. Peele, of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Stahl.

Princeton has a Loyal Temperance Legion with 45 members. The meetings are held in the Gibson Street Methodist Church and the pastor teaches one of the boys' classes.

Recently the Union held a very successful Mothers' Meeting, many new members are being received. An organizer is to work in the county soon.

The Sabbath Observance call to prayer leaflets are now ready at 10 cents per 100. Order the same from State Superintendent. Katie Wert Holler, South Bend, Ind.

SPITTING.

The following verses were read before Indianapolis Central Union by the writer, Mrs. Rosa Browne and published by request:

Should a woman on the sidewalk strangely tack from side to side,
Don't conclude that she's been drinking, and requires a pathway wide.
She's but shunning the uncleanness that some fifth men have left,
Men who are not yet enlightened, or of manners are bereft.

Lord, how long, O Lord, how long, still, shall they so pollute the ways
That the passer must be watchful, and must tread them like a maze?
And how long, O Lord, how long still, must we breathe to our great hurt
All this dust of deadly poison from our streets so filled with dirt?

And these walks are all made filthy by some males—not by true men,
And the ordinance that forbids it fails and fails, and fails again!
But how gladly we give honor to the neat and cleanly men,
If they'd only help the women, this would soon come to an end.

Often in the crowded street car, when a vacant seat we spy
And would rest us, there beneath it is the pool, and we pass by.
"Hanging by the strap is safer," says each woman's face you scan,
And it speaks in mute expression, small regard for such a man.

And we women, so long suffering, beg with tears, caresses too,
That these bipeds take the curbstone, and not spoil our dresses new.
Still these males ignore expressions of displeasure and disgust,
While good people still are saying, "Stop this thing we surely must!"

When the women hold the ballot, they will show their strength and might.
Then offenses so unpleasing will begin to stop all right!
Next to godliness is cleanness, is a truth none will deny,
And these men must mend their manners, if they reach a home on high.

War t' the knife must be the watchword! Let good people agitate;
Force these men to be more cleanly in the capitol of our state,
Through the prodding of our Governor many, beasts are much enraged;
Let good people help to keep them where they are so safely caged.

So it is that all law-breakers hardly know "where they are at!"
Give the Chautauqua salute to Hanley, let all good men doff the hat.
Some day when our men are cleanly and have learned what's just and right,
Women shall become more queenly, men shall reign as kings in might.

O that there were more like Roosevelt, and our brave good Hanley too!
Men who say that law is righteous, and obedience manly, too.
Men with courage of convictions, owning law's high majesty,
Not regarding its restriction of their personal liberty.

Then no town would be "wide open," and all cities would be neat;
Then we could look up while walking, quite unafraid of our feet.
Then what'er for public welfare any town official did,
Would be like the act of Hanley, sitting "holding down the lid."

PURITY IN LITERATURE AND ART.

Purity in literature and art needs the hearty co-operation of every County President; you who have not appointed a Superintendent for this department please do so now and write me today for literature and report blanks.

The fields are ready for the harvest but the gleaners are so few.

My dear sisters may we not begin at once all over the State and work as never before to make this the banner year for Purity in Literature and Art.

Yours in the work,
R. C. TRAVIS,
State Superintendent.

ASK DEFEAT OF LINE EXTENSION BILL.

With reference to the effort being made to get a bill through congress increasing the limit set for the transportation of live stock, Mrs. Flora T. Neff, this city, says:

To the Citizens of U. S. A. Everywhere:
The simple facts are as follows: For 32 years there has been upon our Federal statute books a law which provides two methods of relief for live stock in transportation. First, that they shall not be transported longer than 28 hours without a five hours' stop for food, drink and rest. Second, that where animals are carried in special stock cars where they can and do have proper food, water and space, and opportunity to rest, the provisions in regard to their being unloaded shall not apply.

Even this law, which might seem liberal and humane to some, is the cause of intense suffering, and now the Western Cattle Kings demand that the 28 hours of agony be increased to 33, 36 and 40 hours, even during the hottest and coldest weather.

We quote from eye-witnesses as to results of the present law: "Often upon the arrival of cattle trains hundreds of panting, suffering, dying steers have been drawn from the cars with horrible wounds in their sides where they have unavoidably gored each other in their frantic efforts for breathing space, and festering sores in the most sensitive parts of their bodies inflicted by the goad of the merciless cattle tender. This seemed to be against the interest of all concerned, yet it does not half describe the state of things which the 28 hour law was framed to prevent. It was against the interest of public health that the meat from cattle which had endured such torture should be used for food, yet it was used. After the long struggle to reform these abuses are we now to adopt the policy of retrogression? A wiser policy would be the enactment of a law compelling all shippers to use the improved cars."

Brothers, will you not record your protest against the proposed inhuman amendment to an already inhuman law? It is you as citizens that count. Please ask that the hours be reduced rather than increased. Address any or all of the following:

and enroll your name upon the side of right as against might, mercy as against inhumanity, and courage as against greed.

Sincerely,
FLORA TRUEBLOOD NEFF,
Supt. of Mercy, Indiana W. C. T. U.

P. S. The three "starvation to cattle" bills proposed are H. R. 47, 145 and 440. They are now before the above named committee. They are a travesty upon our boasted civilization.—Logansport Journal.

CLARA M. SEARS,
Treasurer.

La Porte Union, held a Frances Willard memorial service with an interesting program. The roll call was responded to by loving tributes to our departed sister. Those who participated in the service were Rev. J. M. Harmon, Rev. S. V. Williams and Mesdames. Mary Buamgardner, Rachel Bowers, Oscar Tarkell, J. M. Harmon, S. Kreagle and Seth Pease. All the selections rendered were pertaining to the beautiful life of Miss Willard.

FIELD NEWS

MARION COUNTY.

Through the courtesy of the manager of the Grand Hotel, the County Executive W. C. T. U. met in the parlors of the hotel on February 5th. Attendance was good. The County Superintendents were made a part of the County Executive, which formerly was comprised only of the county officers and local presidents and Marion County Federation of W. C. T. Unions was formed.

After the business of the meeting, Mrs. McWhirter gave a splendid and comprehensive parliamentary drill, participated in by those present.

The next meeting of the Federation of Unions will be held in the Palm Room of the Claypool Hotel, March 5th.

A Free Kindergarten has been opened at the Ella Smith Settlement House at 1188 Kentucky avenue by the Palmer Union. Mrs. Blaker to supply two teachers. This is surely a valuable addition to this settlement house work. Gather the children in from the streets so full of vice and temptation.

At Meridian Union meeting, held in January, Dr. House gave some valuable suggestions. The use of alcohol in all forms is discouraged, as it is not a food but a poison, retarding recovery from illness. A person can live from 30 to 40 days on water, but will die in one-half that time on alcohol. As a substitute for brandy, in case of colds, use capsicum or red pepper, taken in a little water. This is also good in cases of heart failure. Egg-nog, so much indulged in, is better leaving the liquor out and using hot water.

The doctor will condense the thought of the paper for pamphlet use and these will be printed and circulated.

Miss Edith Hillis of Kokomo, the State President of the Loyal Temperance Legion, addressed a meeting of the Broad Ripple Union, in the interest of the L. T. L. work. It is hoped that this meeting will prove of great benefit to women as well as the younger people of this locality. Miss Hillis also spoke to a gathering of young people at the home of Miss Leck, speaking of the National Convention of the W. C. T. U. held in Los Angeles, California last fall.

The North East Union was recently entertained by Mrs. Dr. Howard, 1419 E. Fifteenth street. A very pleasant afternoon was spent with fifteen members present and ten visitors. The hostess very graciously serving a delicious lunch, which was appreciated by all who hope to meet with her again. At a later date this Union met with Mrs. Pruitt. Subject of Anti-Narcotics was discussed; new members were received and seven names added to the cradle roll with dues paid.

Frances E. Willard W. C. T. U. observed their seventh anniversary at the home of their President Mrs. Williams, January 9th. The anniversary song was sung, followed by scripture reading and prayer by Mrs. Scott. Receptions were given by Mrs. Hathway and Ruth Geyer, the Co. President Mrs. Gipe spoke encouragingly of the temperance work. Mrs. Elizabeth Smith read a paper dwelling especially on the beautiful life and character of Mrs. Leck, who in 1899 organized this Union with a little band of seven women. With them she worked and planned, loving them to the last, when the Lord said, "Well done good and faithful servant," calling her home to her rest and reward last July. She will ever live in the hearts of these women who have so long been associated with her, putting forth their best efforts for the temperance cause which was so dear to her.

At East 10th Street M. E. Church, Indianapolis February 5th Mrs. Vayhinger, our State President, spoke to a very appreciative audience. This meeting was held under the auspices of the Vayhinger W. C. T. U., whose membership is mostly in the eastern part of the city and numbers over twenty. Mrs. Cravens, the President, is doing a great deal of personal work, much interest is being aroused. Miss Marie Leck, county Secretary of the Loyal Temperance Legion assisted in organizing a Legion of sixty members at the Indianapolis Orphans' Home. This work is supported by the Central Union. Superintendent Miss Fern Boyer assisted Miss Irene Bowman.

A Legion is soon to be organized by the Mapleton Union, also one at the Harley Gibbs Settlement House. An L. T. L. normal class has been formed by Miss Leck. The first meeting was held at her home, and all who are interested in becoming more familiar with the work are invited to join. For information apply to Miss Marie Leck, 1801 N. Capitol avenue, New phone.

February 6th, was W. C. T. U. Day at the Local Council of Women, the affiliated societies of the W. C. T. U. of Marion County arranged the program which followed the business. Preceding the W. C. T. U. program Mrs. Grace Julian Clark, the president of the council, invited Captain Cheatham of the Arm Post to present an officer's experience under the canteen system.

Captain Cheatham favored the canteen and finished his remarks by saying he would gladly answer questions regarding the subject. By questions and little speeches he soon saw the intense interest of those present and must have been pleased to quit the place. Granting that is is wise to maintain an army saloon, this question was asked, "would it not be well to include gambling places, bawdy houses and the like in the army post, regulated by law, would not good results follow?" The Captain seemed to think that the question answered itself. Assured the audience that he did not favor vice.

Following these remarks, Mrs. McWhirter introduced Mrs. Vayhinger, as one of the speakers of the afternoon. She prefaced her remarks by referring to the question previously presented. The Chaplains stand together for the anti-canteen law. The saloon should never be re-established, and "our boys" compelled to sell liquor. If the Government demands, and can enforce loyalty and obedience of its soldiers, it has the power to prohibit them from purchasing liquor at saloons established near its army posts. The health throughout the army is better now and though men still desert, it is not because of lack of the canteen, but because of the low wages paid. If those in authority could view this question from the standpoint of the mothers of these boys, this question of the canteen would be forever settled. It is a shame to have these boys coming from Christian homes where they have been surrounded by good influences, brought in contact with this temptation in their very midst. Let us think well of this and use our influence in the right direction.

Mrs. Vayhinger then spoke more particularly of the purpose of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Any club without a wholesome purpose for being founded has no reason to live. There are many self-culture clubs which are good; we need them in order that we, as women, may become better fitted to do the work set before us.

The first purpose of the W. C. T. U. is to educate. Teach the meaning of temperance and the pledge. It would seem an easy thing for women to sign the pledge but we have only to look out and see the beer wagons going from house to house to know that it is not so easy after all. Young women, by refusing to countenance young men addicted to bad habits can do so much for bettering conditions. "Boys will be boys" is so often the excuse offered for them, but some one's daughter will pay the penalty, will pay the penalty for the wild ways of each and every one of them.

The second purpose is reform. It is not the beautiful picture of a woman clinging to the cross with both hands that is truly symbolic of the W. C. T. U., but one clinging to the cross with one hand, and with the other reaching down to lift up the fallen.

The third purpose is to agitate for better conditions. It is a fact that we never go higher until some one reaches forward to something better. Had we been satisfied with the slow-moving stage coach, we would not today be able to traverse the continent amid the comforts and luxuries of the modern railroad train. The men and women have become dissatisfied with the sins of the liquor traffic, and have determined to use their best efforts against it. The Mormon question needs our closest attention. We of the W. C. T. U. stand for the home while Reed Smoot stands for its destruction. Lincoln said regarding slavery on seeing a negro girl sold from the block, "If I ever get a chance at that thing, I'll hit it hard." This is where the W. C. T. U. stands on the Mormon question.

The fourth purpose is Organization. There is a great deal of temperance sentiment that is impotent. Like the steam generated in the kitchen, having no machinery through which its power may be directed, it is entirely without effect. The W. C. T. U. is the machinery through which this temperance sentiment must work to accomplish the desired ends.

Mrs. Brand, our National Treasurer, was then presented. We can say of Mrs. Brand that she belongs to us, being a member of Indianapolis Central Union, though she is now located at the National Headquarters at Evanston, Ill. In her address she referred to the work of the W. C. T. U. and stated that much of the progress of the organization is due to the efforts of Frances Willard. Public sentiment in favor of the movement is stronger than ever before, and one has only to look in the liquor papers to learn their fear of the W. C. T. U. A few years ago there were but three thousand papers in the United States that would publish temperance news, while at the present time the press throughout the country is eager for it.

Patent medicines were discussed freely and all present were very much interested in the test made with Peruna. As much of this medicine as one is supposed to take in a day was placed in a bottle and this being brought to the boiling point generated sufficient alcoholic gas to produce a brilliant light from an ordinary Welsbach gas burner for fifteen minutes by the watch. A chart was displayed showing the percentage of alcohol in many of the leading patent medicines as reported by the Massachusetts State Board of Health. Of the sixty-one specimens examined, they were found to contain from twenty-one to forty-two per cent of alcohol. Fifty thousand circulars have been sent out to physicians throughout the county by the W. C. T. U. in the furtherance of the work. Many of the leading medical men are beginning to realize that the use of alcoholic medication is not necessary in their practice. Mrs. Hunt says "Every woman has twenty-three million reasons for taking a stand against the saloon; these reasons are the twenty-three million school children of the country. After some discussion, this portion of the program was concluded.

On Wednesday, February 7th, on in-door picnic was given by Marion County W. C. T. U., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McWhirter on College avenue. Invitations were sent out by the local presidents to members and friends, and about one hundred and fifty persons responded.

An interesting talk was given by our State President. After prayer, dinner was announced, and all partook of a most generous feast. Mrs. Blodgett was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Heath, Mrs. Baxter, Mrs. Oaks and others, and the young women of the different Unions served most graciously.

The State song was heartily sung, after which Miss White recited a humorous selection that was well received. Mrs. Brand then favored the company with another talk on patent medicines, repeating her demonstration of the preceding day, with the Peruna experiment. After listening to her remarks concerning the National Headquarters and the work done there, all present felt that they were better acquainted with the purposes and methods of the great movement. Miss Dayse Walker was introduced and very beautifully explained the purpose of the "Home" she is establishing on Blake street where colored women can have a rest home. At the closing all joined in singing "God be with You till we Meet Again." Surely all present were impressed with the good feeling existing and the unity of purpose of all the Unions. We should feel proud of Marion County for providing this rare treat, both in speakers and a social time. A vote of thanks was extended to our hostess and to the speakers of the day, and all departed to their respective homes feeling that the in-door picnic had been a splendid success.

Spencer.—A very successful matrons' and musical contest was held in the opera house. The matrons' medal was won by Mrs. MacClaren, president of the W. C. T. U. The musical medal was won by Mrs. Matt Sadler.

Uncle Jonathan Allen, aged eighty years donated the matrons' medal. Mr. E. T. Barner donated carnations to be presented to each unsuccessful contestant.

The Spencer band and the male quartette donated services. Net proceeds for Union treasury $16.70.

Monroe County.—A promising Union has been organized at Clear Creek with eight members. Mrs. Siebenthal, the president of the Bloomington Union, with a committee of active members, accepted an invitation to meet some ladies at the home of Mr. Henry Dillman. The plan purpose of the W. C. T. U. was explained by Mrs. Siebenthal. This was followed by the organization of Clear Creek Union. The officers are President Mrs. Ida Dillman; vice-president, Mrs. Stella May; recording secretary, Miss Lillie Galaspy; corresponding secretary, Miss Zella Mathers; treasurer, Miss Lola Dillman.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley writes of the advancement of our work and the increased interest and enthusiasm.

At Waynetown on February 1, she spoke to a fine audience in the opera house.

At Bryant on February 3, enthusiasm was at white heat.

At White Oak, a Union of fourteen active members and ten honoraries was organized.

At Balbe, on February 6, Pennville February 7, Walnut Corner and Portland, February 8. At each of these places Mrs. Stanley visited the schools.

Miss Charlotte Barnum, State General Secretary, Michigan L. T. L., is giving a month's field work to Indiana. At Angola she organized a Junior Legion in the public schools with 125 members and four young lady teachers as leaders. At Auburn, a Junior of 36 members. At Kendallville a Senior with 50 members. At Warren a Senior with 24 members. Twenty-four new Legions have been organized this L. T. L. year.

The Marion County Superintendents are organized with Mrs. Elizabeth Smith as president and Mrs. Nettie Cohea as secretary. For aggressive and definite work the superintendents are divided in sections with chairman.

Miss Susan Clark's section held an all day conference on February 15th at Flanner Guild, closing the afternoon with a Mothers' Meeting. In the evening a very profitable meeting was held with addresses by several prominent persons. The section with Mrs. Handy as chairman will hold an all day conference in the Christian church at Broad Ripple on March 28. All who attend will be expected to take a box lunch. Hot coffee will be furnished by the Broad Ripple Union.

IN MEMORIAM.

LaPorte is mourning the loss of dear Sister Hamilton. After attending a W. C. T. U. meeting in the afternoon seemingly well. Soon after returning to her home the summons came without a moments warning. When laid away a wide white ribbon was placed around her casket and the little white bow was on her breast. The floral offerings were beautiful.

Mrs. Zella Hawkins, a faithful and efficient worker, has been called home. She was rich in Heavenly things.

MISS LAURA CAMMACK

State Press Superintendent.

INDIANA.

Dear Press Superintendents.—In my efforts to help you to greater interest in our very important department of work I have asked some State Press Superintendents and other National workers to tell us something of the work, methods, etc., in other States. I sincerely hope that their helpful letters may be an inspiration to us all and that we will push the press work in Indiana as never before.

For the benefit of the new Superintendents, I will give the list of questions which are to be answered when the report blanks are sent out in June and September, and I trust that each local Press Superintendent is doing much work, and then keeping a careful record of it. Are you helping your county Superintendent to win the book which will be given as a prize to the county Superintendent sending me the greatest number of lines which her county has published in the press during the year?

This book, "A Young Woman Journalist," written by Francis Willard and others will be a splendid addition to any library, and should be of especial interest to the young people.

If any of you want press leaflets write to me for them, I will be glad to send to all who want them, and you will find them helpful I know.

Don't forget the press meetings, and be sure and invite the editors to be present and have something to say.

May God bless you each one in this great work.

Yours for advancement,

LAURA G. CAMMACK.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE PRESS DEPARTMENT.

Just as a well advertised company does more business than the one that does not advertise, is better thought of and better known; so does a well advertised W. C. T. U. do better work, receive more favor from the people and more serious considerations from the enemy than the Union "unheralded and unknown."

The press department is the advertising branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and because it takes the most skillful, original and energetic man in a firm to be the advertising manager, so should we choose our very brightest minds, most winsome personalities and best trained intellects to be at the head of the Press Department in the different Unions.

Each local Union should have its own "advertising manager" whose business it would be to keep the daily and weekly papers full informed as to what the Union is doing. This work can be done by short items handed in while they are fresh and newsy to appear among other items of news, or in a regular column headed W. C. T. U.

Much depends on the faithfulness, ability and promptness of the press superintendent. If she has two of these qualities and lack the one remaining, she is not the woman you want.

The press is a critical being, it demands and will have only the best, when it comes to our news. It will have it on time or not at all, and after we have put forth every effort to get it ready, then lines straight and stringent are drawn about it on every side and our critic still rejects it if it so pleases him.

However, nothing of this must discourage, we must keep right on pushing forth in our best style, everything pertaining to our work and accept philosophically whatever we receive, and gracefully what we lose.

With hope for this as the best year in Indiana press work.

TEXAS .

The best thing the press does for the W. C. T. U. is to advertise and give it a wide-spread reputation for good. The way to do this is to "pass on the good work" and leave others to pass on the bad. We are all at it and all the time at it. Very little of interest escapes the pen of the Press Department in Texas. I believe that the local option law with all the local option sentiment in our State is largely due to the Press Department. This is one of our oldest departments and has been well worked all along these years. Texas newspapers from the beginning have been very liberal to the W. C. T. U. and they are becoming more so each year.

Our State is under low license and each county has a right to hold an election and turn whisky out if they can get a certain number of names signed, and the courts give them permission. So every two years our counties, cities and precincts vote, and most all, after a two years' trial continue local option. We are more than two-thirds dry. Most of our small towns are, and our larger cities are becoming alarmed about the decrease in liquor selling. I think the traffic is doomed in Texas. Not only the press but its nearest of kin, the literature department has been well worked for many years.

Another influence that is dreaded by the anti-temperance element is the presence of women and children, at the polls, on election day. The press has made so much sentiment for local option, that we hope in a very few years to see the last of the traffic.

Our ministers of nearly all denominations are doing good temperance work in nearly all our towns.

One strong power for good is a wise, consecrated, God called president, Mrs. Helen M. Stoddard, who gives her means, her time and herself to the cause. She not only plans but her gentle, strong character is such that all gladly obey her womanly demands. The mimeograph with its hundreds of letters is a great help.

One of our greatest victories was in Austin at the last legislation before this one. Mrs. Stoddard was reading the Willacy bill which had been introduced and she thought it had a strange sound, so she studied it, then went to the capital and asked seven lawyers what they thought about it. It meant the repeal of our local option law.

About twelve o'clock that night 200 letters with petition form were sent out, and the next day every W. C. T. U. woman in the State was at her telephone, and on the streets through sleet and snow, and the petitions went rolling in and the Willacy bill was killed by a good majority. The press was at the bottom of it.

I could write pages about the power and influence of the press in Texas.

Yours in the sacred bonds of Press Work.

MRS. SUE D. CHASE
Highler, Neb.
State Press Superintendent.

NEBRASKA.

Pursuant to your request I will try and answer your questions in regard to our important department.

"How Do I Use the Press?"

First—We must recognize the mighty power of the press, in fact, it is not only the moulder of public opinion and sentiment, but 'tis the greatest factor, either for good or evil, and can be used to great advantage in behalf of our organization. With this general admitted proposition before us, we can the more readily understand how easily the christian women can by concert of action throughout the entire State make the press a power for the right in behalf of the cause of temperance and Godliness and all that goes to build up our work. Complete organization of all the forces is necessary, by seeing to it that you have a consecrated and efficient local press Superintendent in every county and local Union. The Press Superintendent must be bright and full of the spirit of Christ, and ever on the alert spreading the glad news and letting no opportunity pass, for live up-to-date incidents are what is wanted. Keep in touch with all local papers not only secure space but see that the space is well filled, using all courtesy and kindness toward editors, for this is their due. We can secure more and better co-operation to still strengthen our work by enlisting the clergy throughout the pulpit and religious press to unite the forces for God, home and humanity. Should work to bring these forces together, a union of strength is necessary to success in this blessed work.

To reach the greatest number and extend our influence we must let the world know what we are doing. Organized thought and effort in our department has won an increased interest for the temperance cause in our State. Nothing can be wider than its influence, nor higher than its aspirations, nor deeper than its sincere endeavor to serve the neediest cause of humanity which the world has ever seen.

How our hearts thrill with gratitude to our Heavenly Father for the privilege of working for Him in company with so many noble self-sacrificing women who feel their dependence on Him in carrying out any department of our work, every line of which we believe will reach souls under His guidance and blessing.

You do not know what a blessing you have been to others. When we read in our papers of the great blessing bestowed upon the people through the influence of our consecrated women who are giving their lives to the work, let us, with reserved zeal, press on and never give up, but work in our own little quiet corner and do whatever comes to our hands to be done for the Master in the line of temperance and purity.

A tide of good has been set in motion that shall be unending. God needs you to grasp the spirit of the work and be ready for anything He has in store for you. My message to the Unions is, keep doing such good work along the most modern lines that your editors will eagerly seek your news, thus your Superintendents will be kept alert and proud of their profession.

Yours for the press,

SUE D. CHASE.

Note.—Last year Nebraska press Superintendents reported 2,535 columns of W. C. T. U. news published by the Nebraska newspapers. Excellent! editor.

ILLINOIS.

The daily press is the people's great university, and the mission of the Press Department of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is to seek to make this university a school of highest order, mirroring the best civilization, and teaching the greatest truths in the greatest ways the world has ever seen. Napoleon I. said "I wear these papers more than 100,000 bayonets." He realized the truth of the saying, "The pen is mightier than the sword." Early in the history of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Illinois, the women realized the importance of this great factor in moulding public sentiment, and although this was before the days of Miss Woodard's "Do everything policy," they adopted this department under the caption of "Influencing the press." Some of our best women have acted as superintendents. One of these that served many years in that capacity, Mrs. Gordon Read of Bloomington said, "I conceived it to be my duty to so magnify my office and its importance, that in my eyes, at least, it should transcend all others. Having reached that altitude where all other heights were but depths compared to it, I went to work seeking to arouse interest. I have always thought this was the key-note to endeavor and the secret of the success that followed her efforts, in the time when the work was not easy. We have often heard of a subsidized press, and in the larger cities where newspapers are owned by corporations and the editor an employee, not free to act as he might individually wish to do, because of the great liquor olegary which is entrenched in our great state, it was very hard to secure space. Even in the little country towns where the editors were also proprietors and had no competition, "the trail of the serpent" was seen, and while securing space, in some instances it was headed this way, "This column is edited by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the editor is not responsible for what appears in it." The Press Department asks that this great school for the people, use some of its space to set forth the truth concerning alcoholic and narcotic poisons, and help to hasten the day when poor fallen humanity will find it easier to do right and harder to do wrong. It aims to keep the press of the country, both religious and secular, strongly informed concerning the movements of the temperance army, especially that of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; also to set forth wisely and steadily the history, aims and methods of our work. It collects statistics, gathers up facts, prepares articles, and endeavors by means of the press to educate the public mind and conscience, against the use of alcoholic and narcotic poisons, believing that the traffic is the foe to every good, and that the dramshop degrades and debauches humanity and has no redeeming feature, we work to build up a public sentiment that will out law the whole business. It is the wish of our organization in Illinois, that the newspapers and periodicals of this great State should be allies of the ideal home, in building up the righteousness that "exalteth a nation," and that purity and patriotism, which make strong its foundations. Our work is much easier now, and I am glad to give my need of praise to those courteous editors who have freely given us space for a column, printed our notices, asked for our reports and patiently borne with our blunder and ignorance in managing the space accorded to us. It is seldom now that our women report space refused, and in the larger cities, reporters are present at our meetings and the reports appear on the front page among the leading news columns. It is our own fault now, if through our indifference we fail to reap the benefits to be derived from the wise use of space so freely accorded us. We are glad to say that the number of local press workers are increasing, and that many a woman's hands are hiding "leaven" among the masses through the press; and we may well believe that some sweet day the whole lump of humanity will be leavened and its ignorance and prejudice swept away. That "sweet by and by," may not be so far away as some imagine. There never was a time more opportune than now, for pressing this work. Truth will always be the antidote for falsehood and error; ignorance and prejudice must and will be dissolved by the white leaf and sunlight that honest facts will generate.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Mrs. Annabell M. Halvey, State Supt. Press Department, West Pittston, Pa.

The importance of this branch of our work can not be over-estimated. It is the mighty lever with which we are to raise public sentiment to that point which will demand the total prohibition of the liquor traffic. Napoleon never was credited with a wiser saying than "Four hostile newspapers are more to be dreaded than a thousand bayonets," and one of the greatest dangers which threatens the American Republic today is the growing tendency of the press to publish only such articles, or such versions of facts as can be wrapped or moulded to serve partisan ends, and to suppress all facts which would serve to enlighten the public mind upon subjects which is to be the interest of political manipulators to keep in the back-ground. This is especially true of facts bearing strongly upon the temperance question, and is the aim and duty of this department to, in as far as possible, overcome this tendency, and by every means practicable to bring before the public the plain truth respecting the aims and purposes of the W. C. T. U. and kindred reform associations.

First, see that the brightest woman in your Union is appointed to this position. A woman may be a devoted Christian, an eminent scholar, an active worker in all religious channels and may still lack the genius and tact requisite for this position. It is not necessary that she be able to write lengthy and learned dissertations upon any subject, indeed such productions are rarely acceptable to the general public, and quite inappropriate for the usual column or department assigned to our work in the papers of the city. She should be possessed of discrimination which will enable her to make such selections as shall contain thought germs, and give facts and figures in the smallest possible space. She should be well read upon all matters bearing upon our work and to keep pace with the times and be in possession of the latest and most reliable facts.

To local Superintendents: Be sure that every new movement of the W. C. T. U. local State or National is reported in the papers about you. Invite their reporters to be present at your conventions and other public meetings. Local news is always acceptable. See that the Associated Press reporter of your community has the items of latest W. C. T. U. facts. He will want them the day of their occurrence and it will be your object to be the first to get the news to him. If a preacher or any public man says anything pleasant or strong along our lines of work, quote him in your press news; showing that you appreciate him will sometimes disarm a foe.

Don't give up because a paper once refuses space. Cultivate the editor; win by kindly consideration all around. Be sure not to take it for granted that a paper on the other side of the question will not publish our facts. I have known editors who bitterly opposed our principles to defend attacks on the W. C. T. U., first because they have learned to like certain women of the order who had been gracious and good tempered throughout. I have known those who fought us to become allies. The main object of our Press Department is to utilize a power which costs nothing and yet can do more to disarm prejudice than any other, because persons who will not read a temperance paper have facts brought to their notice through mediums of their own selection, and they take it for all its worth as general news. Men have died from the heavy strokes of the editor's pen, and no measure or improvement in this age can be moved without the press behind it. Set your white winged truth afloat on the wings of the 6,000 dailies and 14,000 papers of all kinds in this country and do not forget to see that every religious newspaper in your State publishes your news, because the church is the most powerful engine that exists to wound our cause with good people and vice versa.

Don't shrink from discussion, it educates. Seek the daily and most widely circulator papers for this, because thus you reach an audience that needs to be convinced. The truth and not assertion will do the work.

MISSOURI.

Missouri's press work is but getting upon its feet, and our first endeavor with so many new hands at work is to teach these women to be good press workers. Editors are kindly, but keen critics. The majority of them wish us well. Nevertheless, they look to our advent among them as editors of special temperance departments strictly from a bread and butter standpoint. Any woman who can dish up fifty-two readable bills of fare in a year, that can hold her readers and gain more, that can make the W. C. T. U. column in the paper one of the strongest things in it, and the best liked, is given a hearty welcome. But if the W. C. T. U. press worker gives a dry hash of dull, trite and uninviting temperance items, she is counted a drag, and the editor gets rid of her as soon as possible.

Therefore we aim to stir our women up. (1) To a first class work from a literary standpoint. (2) To use mostly original matter and few clippings; to be alert to all national, state or community phases of the liquor traffic, or prohibition, or questions that affect the home, and (4) To give all the local W. C. T. U. news.

The better way to do this; letters are written to each beginner, and a general oversight by correspondence kept up all over the State. In addition, our State paper, The Counselor, gives me a 200-word space each month, which is used in making special suggestions for the ensuing month. I can reach every press worker in the State in this way, and thus a general plan of work is followed over the State.

Our press workers are asked to write on the subjects of prohibition, equal suffrage and medical temperance, and if any find these hard to write upon, the State Superintendent helps them over the hard places. This year of 1906, I have requested all of our press workers to emphasize Sabbath Observance and School Suffrage for women, as it is known that there will be an attempt made at the next term of our legislature to repeal our Sunday laws, while the W. C. T. U. are pledged to ask off School suffrage.

In other words we aim to do definite work, and to do it in a manner that will count.

LORA S. LA MANCE,
State Press Supt. of the Missouri W. C. T. U.
Pineville, Mo., Feb. 13, 1906.

Dear Miss Cammack:

I am not only a W. C. T. U. press woman, that ought to be glad to respond to another State Press Superintendent's courteous requests, but I was born in Indiana, and ought therefore to feel (and do) a special interest in Indiana affairs.

When I took the work, October, 1904, there were but sixteen W. C. T. U. columns in the State. The year went out with fifty-six columns, a gain of 250 per cent. There has been a substantial increase this year, but you will see that three-fourths of our W. C. T. U. press workers are beginners, which complicates matters somewhat. I am proud of our Missouri women.

Your friend,

LORA S. LA MANCE.

NEW JERSEY.

Miss Laura G. Cammack,

My Dear Comrade:—Pardon delay in response to the favor of January 21st, but my hands have been full in the capacity of State and local Press Superintendent for our thoroughly wide awake Woodstorm Union.

Speaking from a local standpoint therefore in a town of 1600 inhabitants in the center of a rural community that has its rural free delivery, its excellent telephone systems, etc., I believe I can safely say that the W. C. T. U. column, eternally filled with brief, spicy news notes of the doings of our local work, with ever a weaving in of State and National work and workings, keeps not only our hundred and fifteen members keenly alive to the great cause to which they have identified themselves, but arouses and educates, and ever educates the community at large to a higher responsibility of morality and civic righteousness as it realizes the right standard and aims to which workers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union are tireless builders.

And not alone is the W. C. T. U. column used, but the local news column, the personals and the church note, often find mention of a proposed supper to be given where and by whom our speakers are entertained, or the names of delegates who have been appointed to county and State conventions, and who of our State officers and others will speak in a particular church on a certain date, at a certain hour, etc.

Indeed I am of the belief that there is no limit to the power and influence that is in the hand of the competent Press Superintendent of she is eternally faithful and keeps eternally at it, and is untired with an enthusiasm that is gained through her close touch with the work through our State and National organs. Blessed of God.

Thine in loving service,
MISS EMILY R. KIRBY,
State Press Supt., Woodstorm, N. J.

OHIO.

The temperance reform, like all others, depends for its success upon an aroused and enlightened public sentiment. Public sentiment is credited by individuals who contribute their personal views as to the right or wrong of any habit, custom or law. Abraham Lincoln well said, "With public sentiment, nothing can fail; without it, nothing can succeed." The great work of the W. C. T. U. is to educate sentiment against the use and sale of all alcoholic liquors. One of the most important ways of accomplishing this is by the free use of the Press.

The liquor interests long ago realized the power of the Press and instituted a Campaign of Education." The Protective Bureau of the National Liquor Dealers' Association shows that in one year there were published and sent broadcast over the country more than four million written articles, designing to make the trade popular. Not content with buying up advertising space in newspapers and magazines to exploit their product, they pay large prices for editorial space in papers which will sell out for such a purpose and print as editorial utterances so-called arguments against prohibition and total abstinence, so attractively worded as to deceive, if possible, the very elect. Recent "editorials" in certain papers favoring the repeal of the anti-canteen law were traced back to this same liquor source. Temperance workers should not patronize such publications, but rather give our aid and support to those which will not accept bribes from the liquor interests and will give our cause a fair showing in their columns.

Our local Unions can utilize their town papers by furnishing material for temperance columns. If prepared in a bright, fresh style, most editors will be glad to receive them, and a rich harvest will come from such seed-sowing. Saloons have often been driven from communities by the public sentiment aroused by a brave and fearless newspaper. We should also aim to get our State and National W. C. T. U. papers in as many homes as possible. When once the people generally learn the real facts about the liquor traffic, they will unite to destroy it.

FRANCES H. ENSIGN,
Cor. Sec., Ohio W. C. T. U.

CONNECTICUT.

My Dear Miss Cammack: To tell of "The necessity for the use of the Press in our work" or of "The benefits to be derived from it," would require more time than I have at command and more space than your press issue can possibly afford. The "Necessity" is absolute and the benefits innumerable!

I presume the conditions are much the same in Indiana as they are in Connecticut and that the most difficult work is to secure good local press workers. I firmly believe that nine-tenths of the failures to reach the public with our messages through the Press is due to our own workers and not to the newspapers. In our last gathering of annual reports one of the local superintendents answered the question, "How has news been received?" by saying "So little has been sent they couldn't be much interested." Usually, however, the manner rather than the matter is faulty. As one newspaper man wrote me, "The editor desires news. Editorials he prefers to write himself."

Connecticut has some of the best local workers in the country and our organization receives cordial aid from the press of the State. Each of the eight counties has a county superintendent who keeps in touch with her local Superintendents. In each Union where a paper is published there is a duly appointed Superintendent. Inquiries last year failed to reveal any papers not printing the W. C. T. U. items.

For several years the State Superintendent has written a circular letter to each county which the County Superintendent forwards with a letter of her own. The local workers in turn describe their plans, these making a "round robin" of it. Many press meetings are held and at all county conventions and institutes the department receives special attention.

Perhaps after all the most effective way is the exchange of personal letters between local, county and State workers, arousing enthusiasm and teaching patience and perseverance.

"I would that I could magnify the office of the local workers as it appears to me" wrote Miss Lodie Reid and with her I agree. Our grand organization is one of the "world powers" in the reform work of the day and it is the privilege of the local worker to tell its story. Her own Union may be, and do a very small part, but she need not be confined to that small portion in her writings for her papers.

To the woman whose copy is cut or rejected let me say a word. Never be discouraged! Even editors themselves have that experience sometimes. Try again, being careful to send news carefully written. The editor must read it and even if his paper has not space for it his interest may be aroused so that he will note W. C. T. U. more often in other papers. To gain as a friend an indifferent editor is a conquest worth working hard to win.

Connecticut press department sends greeting to Indiana through its State Superintendent.

M. P. COOLEY,
209 Hallock Ave.,
New Haven, Conn.

NEW YORK STATE.

What a wide and fertile field is ours! I have been requested to write concerning the necessity of working it, and to tell you how we New Yorkers have tilled it; what sort of crops have resulted.

Any farmer will tell you that a field, in order to bring forth a fruitful crop, must be carefully and thoroughly cultivated. What is true of the natural world is just as true of this one little (?) corner of our great temperance organization, the Press Department. If properly worked it can and will aid every other department of our Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Its possibilities are almost unlimited. Unworked, of course, like any other barren field, it is useless.

Briefly, I will say the Press Department in our State is thoroughly organized, every county but one working under a more or less competent leader, and that one county is doing efficient work for the press, only the right woman has not been found for a leader.

It is our aim to have a Superintendent in each local Union, and to have every newspaper in the State supplied with temperance matter by these press workers. The first goal is only in sight in the distance, while to the latter we are drawing every near. In order to do this, one paper is paid for inserting matter sent by the W. C. T. U. Superintendent, we think it is better to pay something than not to be represented in that paper. This particular case, however, I am glad to say is an exception, nearly all editors now accepting the matter we send them most cordially.

In our great city of New York we have a woman, earnest and capable, who is in close touch with the representatives of the city press and by personal interviews with them, and the use of her pen, the telegraph and telephone, keeps, not only the city press, but many other papers and magazines supplied with the latest news of what our organization aims to do.

All through the State our Press Superintendents are supplying the press with notices and reports of our meetings and original articles concerning the advance movements of the day.

What is the result of all this sowing and tilling? Our organization is acknowledged to be a live one; it is made more popular; local option is carried in towns; women are added to school boards; curfew ordinances are passed; scientific temperance is more thoroughly given, and while the millenium is not yet here, still all a long the line a standard of right living and true citizenship is being lifted higher, and the army of press workers in the Empire State have had no small share in the preparing of the ground and the cultivating of all those forces that make for righteousness.

Yours for increased use of the press by our temperance workers,

MRS. GEORGIA HOWLAND HARRIS,
Press Supt. of New York State.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Your letter reached me last evening. I hardly know what to write, and fear you are asking the wrong one for advice. I am only a novice in State work. Our plans for Press Work in our State varies in the different localities. In some counties the editors are very favorable to our organization and gladly, even at times eagerly, call for our items. The editors here have sent a message up to my house a mile away from the office late at night after an interesting meeting for my copy preferring my own reports to one of their regular reporter's account. In other places my Superintendents have hard work to have their items printed unless they pay for space. I make friends of the editors, reporters, Associated Press agents, also, but I have not the opportunity with the latter, that one has in the large cities.

One rule always works well, approaching the editors in a friendly christian spirit and make known our wants. They are more apt to concede to our plans than if we were mere assertive and claimed it as a right. Second, don't find fault with the editors, it doesn't do any good. They can see mistakes as well as we can, and will be more likely to correct them if we don't scold. We never write anything personal, as that injures our cause more than it helps it. These are some of the rules we discuss in our conference at State Convention.

So far the necessity of the press. It is the only way we can reach the great masses. The public press moulds public sentiment; it is for us to mould public sentiment through the press, for the downfall of the liquor traffic and everything else that is evil.

The public press educates the people; and we must use it to educate the people in temperance. This is our work, to elevate, to purify the press. We can see some of the results of years of work of our Press Superintendents; papers in this State are refusing advertising for liquor sales, or even hurtful drugs.

Some of the benefits derived from the use of the press—Public sentiment in favor of temperance, crowding out liquor advertisements, raising the tone of the paper to a higher moral standard. By and by, with God's help, they will all be on our side, the side of "Christian Temperance and Purity."

So dear sister, let us keep pegging away, doing our work, and helping our co-workers as well as we can, trusting all to God for a good result for this year's work.

Yours for the Press Temperance,
MISS ANNA M. BRADBURY,
State Press Supt. Mass. W. C. T. U.

The Message for April will be a Press issue. Look out for it and arrange a special Press meeting during April.

Every member of the W. C. T. U. of Indiana, whose dues are paid is entitled to receive The Message in the first week of every month. If for any reason a member fails to receive The Message, complaint should be made immediately to the local treasurer whose duty it is to write the facts to our State Treasurer, Miss Clara Sears, 222 W. Fourteenth street, Anderson, Ind., who will very promptly seek to correct the error. Do not send complaints regarding the failure to receive The Message to any one but Miss Sears, for your letters thus sent must be forwarded to Miss Sears. No one else has access to The Message subscription lists.

Presidents of Unions please make inquiry at your next regular meeting regarding the membership receiving The Message, if any member does not receive her copy, ask the treasurer to communicate immediately with Miss Sears regarding same.

Recently one member write that for six months the members of her Union had not received The Message. Consider if you please such a statement. Of course, the first question in mind is, "who are the officers of that Union?" and then "how many members has that Union." That Union has probably twenty paid members, very intelligent women, too. Why did not the treasurer tell Miss Sears about this condition? If the treasurer fails to do her duty, write one postal card. Why not some member be generous enough to write to Miss Sears so she may correct the condition.

Francis Willard said, "Each year the press becomes a greater power, more people read, and public topics are more generally discussed."

Remember the story of the mushrooms, the softest, weakest growth known, and how thousands of them coming up under a great granite stone in a pavement lifted it out of its place in a single night. One pen may be feeble in itself, but thousands united against the granite stone of intemperance will accomplish its removal.

INDIANA'S SONG.

(Tune: "Annie Laurie.")

Indiana's heard the bugle,
O, army tried and true,
She is marching, she is coming,
To pledge her faith anew,
To pledge her vows anew;
To win or die with you!
You may count on Indiana
Till the stars fade from the blue.

Where your snowy flag is floating,
And white stars dot the way,
You can count on Indiana
In th' thickest of the fray;
In th' thickest of the fray,
Her "W's" lead the way,
Where your emblems white are gleaming,
The "W's" lead the fray.

You may count on Indiana!
Her "Y's" ore in the van!
They are loyal, brave and bonnie;
Go vanquish them, who can!
Go vanquish them, who can!
Her "Y's" are in the van.
O, they're loyal, brave and bonnie!
The "Y's" are in the van.

You can count on Indiana!
Her children are a-field!
Yes, the "L. T. L.'s" are coming;
Their clarion call has pealed;
Their clarion call has pealed;
Not one brigade will yield
Oh, the "L. T. L.'s" are coming;
The children are a-field.

OFFICIAL.

FRANCHISE.

I am hoping that in the next two weeks I will receive the name and address of every Superintendent in the State. Please do write me and tell of all you have been doing during my long silence which was unavoidable. Now I am ready to serve you in any way I can. If your Union can not hold a Franchise meeting, hold one in your neighborhood and invite the neighbors and entertain them with a good program. Try it, we must get the people thinking on this subject if we expect to win our cause soon. Please tell me what leaflets you have found best for general distributions. We want to make a list for use at summer assemblies, also what Franchise paper do you take. I think I need not ask if you take The Union Signal for surely every White Ribboner interested in Franchise reads that. We are soon to have a Franchise number and I hope every Union will order many copies. An offer of $1.25 per hundred will be made, provided our order and money reaches Evanston on or before the Monday preceeding date of issue of the special number, all to be sent to one address. This is our opportunity, do not miss it. You will want to give away many copies next summer. Our National Superintendent will ask for our State report in September on account of the World's Convention; so our time for work is very short. I am hoping to arrange for a course of Franchise lectures. How many of you could arrange for one? We may find it necessary to do some petition work later, so I beg of you, do all the seed sowing you can at once.

Yours for success,
LAURA M. THOMSON,
State Supt., Greensburg, Ind.

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.

My Dear County Superintendents.—I come to you with a department which has for its text, "Righteousness exalteth a nation." A few days ago I sent you literature which I am sure will be helpful to you. Could you not have something on this department printed in your county papers once a week? Editors are more anxious for copy of this kind than you think they are. Read these leaflets at your local meetings. Have this department brought before your county conventions. Have sermons preached in every pulpit. Have lectures and contests on this subject. Use the Fourth of July, it belongs to us, the enemy has had it long enough. So begin now to plan for a real old fashioned celebration, make christian citizenship the topic of the day. I claim ours is the most important department for, for when the citizenship of our nation is christianized then the saloon, with all its attending evils will go. Why not have great faith and work to that end. Where there is no county Superintendent of this department I have sent literature to county Presidents. I hope interest enough will be taken in this most important department for a Superintendent to be appointed at the spring institutes. Out of 48 organized counties, only 14 have C. C. Superintendents. This is not giving this work a fair show. I will send you local report blanks later. Begin now to keep in mind all work done in the past, and to plan for the future so we may be able to make a full report at the end of the year.

Where the county is not organized I will send literature to local Presidents, finally. My co-workers send local report blanks to the local Unions as soon as you receive them and urge a full report. Send to Miss Gilbert, also to National Superintendent of this department for literature. You will find addresses on leaflets sent you. Sow bountifully and you will reap accordingly. In His name,
GERTRUDE FULTON,
State Supt., Portland, Ind.

INDIANA.

It has been truthfully said, "You can talk a thing up or you can talk it down," and it is equally true that you can "write a thing up or you can write it down." Comparatively speaking, very few people attend the regular meetings of the W. C. T. U., but nearly every home has the county or daily newspaper. These may be made the medium through which the truths taught in the meetings may be carried into the family.

First, advertise your meeting. Tell what the program is to be, and invite everybody to come. Many a meeting fails for lack of advertising. Second, write a short report of the meeting, telling some of the truths brought out instead of giving names and subjects in minor parts of the program. Make the readers feel that they have missed much in missing that meeting. Ask your editor to print the paper which was read, or at least extracts from it. Do not be afraid to ask, he can do no more than refuse, and in many cases he will be very glad to have it for publication. Put the brightest, smartest and most tactful woman in your Union in as Press Superintendent, and she will win your editor. Be sweet and gracious and express your thanks to the editor for any kindness, and then stand by the editor who stands by you, and if you have any favors to give, remember him.

Not only advertise and report your meetings, but try to get short articles from temperance papers, reprinted in your local papers. Few homes have our leading temperance papers, and so get little temperance information. The press is the university of the people, so it remains for you to inject into its circulation the teachings on total abstinence and legal prohibition of the liquor traffic. Keep the W. C. T. U. and its work constantly before the eye of the reading public, and they will never have cause to ask you "What is the W. C. T. U. doing?"

Yours sincerely,
CULLA J. VAYHINGER.

MISSOURI.

In this day we fully understand that "The pen is mightier than the sword," and the newspaper is the vehicle through which the pen reaches the masses.

It is of the first importance to the temperance reform that the W. C. T. U. wins its way everywhere to the Press.

But how can it be done?

The W. C. T. U. has not money to pay for space to interest and educate the people on this vital theme.

Space is the newspaper merchant's stock in trade, why shall he give it without compensation?

The average newspaper man desires to keep in. As a rule he is quick to respond to all efforts for the real betterment of humanity, and if ap-close touch with all movements whether reform or otherwise, and it is his business to keep the public informed.

proached rightly will generously give all the space he can give. It is a gift (not a right) and should be received with the appreciation a gift merits.

Space obtained, copy should be on hand promptly. It should be legibly written, correctly spelled, and tell something, telling it in such a bright, crisp, breezy way, that people will not go to sleep reading it. There is no lack of material. History is making faster than all earth can chronicle.

Copy should not be given over the telephone, even of notices as most items, because this necessitates writing it at the press office, which is an imposition.

If copy is plainly written and one page of the sheet, is promptly on time, tells what has been done, and is doing, makes mention of the active promoters thereof, 99 of 100 editors will publish without money and without price.

A word to the wise should be sufficient.

CLARA C. HOFFMAN,

Rec. Sec., Nat'l W. C. T. U., Pres. Mo. W. C. T. U., Kansas City, Mo.

BEST USES OF THE PRESS.

If our local Press Superintendents would carefully study the methods used by the advertising agents of Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky, and Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and would follow their suggestions vigorously, every one who reads newspapers would soon know that alcohol is a poison, and therefore dangerous to use even in small quantities.

Until we have a majority of voters educated to believe that it is not safe to use anything that contains alcohol, either as medicine or as a beverage, and that the liquor traffic is the worst fore of the Nation economically, we shall continue to have a legalized saloon system.

These facts form the basis of all of our work, and there should never be a meeting held without these facts being made the foundation of this discussion on all of our departments.

The Superintendent who best appreciates the use of the Press, will incorporate these scientific and economical truths in her report for the benefit of the masses that never attend a temperance meeting, instead of enlarging upon the "elegant and hospitable home" in which they were entertained, or in an exhaustive use of adjectives in describing the good women who furnished the program, and the refreshments served during the social hour.

MRS. LILLIAN BURT,

TEXAS.

A Press Superintendent, who is also much interested in Sunday School work has drilled the importance of total abstinence into the minds of her boys to such an extent that they sometimes try to argue with their parents. Not long ago one of her pupils whose mother was a society woman could not give her boy a good reason for playing cards for prizes in the parlor, as he thought it would lead to gambling which he considered a great sin, especially as it was against the Texas laws. His father, a fine business man, and highly respected could not satisfy his son that it was right to be an anti. His questions and arguments learned from his Sunday School teacher were constantly brought up, and at last the mother gave up card playing and the result was the father became a Prohibitionist, that the whole family became Christians.

A strange lady took a newspaper in which there was a half column of W. C. T. U. items. Through this she kept up with the W. C. T. U. work in the State and finally a fine W. C. T. U. was organized

Mrs. Helen M. Stoddard, president of Texas W. C. T. U. does anything and everything that will advance the cause of Christ, especially along the line of Gospel temperance. She is local Press Superintendent of the Maude L. Greene W. C. T. U. of Indiana Gap, and keeps a column in the Hamilton County Herald. This is an anti-paper but it publishes almost every line that Mrs. Stoddard writes. Mrs. Stoddard is also a member of the Texas Woman's Press Association and was elected parliamentarian at the last meeting. The railroads of Texas give the press woman a trip each year to the convention and then to other points of interest. Mrs. Stoddard takes these trips and sometimes does a great deal of W. C. T. U. work as she returns. She writes to the Unions along the line of travel and they make arrangements for meetings on her return. Many railroad men of Texas are total abstainers, and some are honorary members of the W. C. T. U.

The following beautiful poem was written by Rev. Frances E. Townsley, National W. C. T. U. evangelist in 1905:

THE TREE WE LOVE.

There's a tree growing tall in our mountains,
Spreading far over hillside and plain;
Behold how its branches reach outward
In sunshine or tempest or rain.

The leaves of its branches so mighty,
So grand to their utmost spread—
Are they not for the healing of nations,
The bringing of life to the dead?

Then trim it, and tend it, and bless it—
This tree that is stately and grand—
The Press, with its branches of healing—
The Press of our own dear land:

The weary find rest in its shadow,
The starving find bread in its worth,
And we guard it, and love it, and bless it,
This tree that enriches the earth.

Shall the poison of error corrupt it?
Shall the serpent, its stout trunk entwine?
No! no! we will guard it forever,
As sacred to yours and to mine.

Then trim it, and bless it, and tend it,
This tree that is stately and grand—
The Press, with its branches of healing,
The Press of our own dear land.

Its rootlets sink deeper and deeper,
As the toil fraught years go by,
In a soil that is sacred to freedom,
While its branches point up to God's sky.

The healing of Wrong and Oppression
Of Bribery, Lying and Care,
It is not in its words that are scattered
As the leaves in the summer so fair.

Then trim it, then tend it, and bless it,
This tree that is stately and grand—
The Press with its branches of healing,
The Press of our own dear land.

Furnished by Miss Fanny L. Armstrong, State Press Superintendent of Texas.

BENEFITS OF THE PRESS.

Often when called have come for me from many states at the same time I have wished that there were many Mary H. Hunts, and each an improvement on the original pattern. Then the thought comes that if I can not speak to all I can write and the printed page will be read by hundreds where one could hear the spoken word.

If a great truth has been revealed to any one it is a duty as well as a privilege to make it known. While this is possible only to a limited extent through the tongue, it is possible to an unlimited extent through the pen, and, more than this, the spoken word escapes, the written word abides.

It has been proved in the laboratories of the world that there is a scientific basis for total abstinence. The physiological reasons that form this scientific basis have been put into simple form, adapted to the comprehension of all grades of pupils, and for the last twenty-two years have been given to the millions of pupils in our public schools through the medium of a large number of beautifully illustrated, interesting and accurate school physiologies published by many different firms.

A monthly magazine has been published by this department for fifteen years, showing teachers how to present the subject of physiology, hygiene, and temperance in the most attractive and powerful way. An innumerable number of leaflets has been sent out, each dealing with some special phase of this work, correcting popular fallacies, giving the latest scientific facts and reasons for total abstinence, and giving to the world the wealth of material on scientific temperance that for years has been collated by the Bureau of Scientific Temperance Investigation.

Thus through the medium of the press the value of this department and bureau has been increased a million fold and is destined to go on increasing in even greater ratio, and what is true of this work is true of that of every other department. God speeds the right, but we are the instruments through which He works.

MARY H. HUNT.

HOW FAR DOES IT GO?

How far does the printed word reach? Only an infinite being can comprehend. Once in a while we get a peep into the ways and means used to impress the printed words into the hearts and lives of our people.

"My song I found from beginning to end,
Safe in the heart of a friend."

A little incident will illustrate how a word was found under pretty circumstances.

It was in 1897, and after my trip in Old Mexico, which I had written up for the Union Signal.

My brother who lives in Santa Clara County, California, was driving to the sea shore, and had stopped for the noon siesta. He had fed the horses, and my sister was spreading the lunch temptingly out on a fallen redwood trunk, when my brother pointed to a small tree to a bird's nest that was swinging gently from the limb. A bit of printed paper was hanging from the nest, and more had been ingeniously woven in the birdling's house. The scrap fascinated him, and looked somehow familiar, so he climbed up, and secured it. That scrap contained part of my written report of my Mexico trip.

He was so impressed, that he wrote me all about it.

You see even the birds are enlisted to aid our Press Superintendents in bringing results from their work. That little birdie certainly had aspirations for her family, and was a Prohibitionist by nature, we know.

The trip was in Mexico, the write-up from Texas, the printing done in Chicago, the bird and my brother in the Santa Cruz mountains, California. And this is only a part of the history of one of that issued of the Union Signal. What of the other twenty thousand copies?

How far does it go?

MRS. HELEN M. STODDARD,

Pres. Texas W. C. T. U.

MRS. M. N. STEVENS, OUR NATIONAL PRESIDENT SENDS THE FOLLOWING:

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7. '06.

My Dear Miss Cammack.—Your letters is received and in reply will say I wish every county and local press superintendent might be impressed with the great importance of their department work. Each local Union accomplishes that which is of interest to the public, and which the newspapers would gladly report if the material was furnished. The local superintendent should see to it that these reports are given out, not when several days old, but while they can be classed as news. She should also endeavor to secure the publication of articles which are in accord with W. C. T. U. ideas and principles, such as the statement recently made by Col. Ray concerning the sale of liquor in the army canteen, copies of which can be had by applying to the National W. C. T. U. headquarters, Evanston, Ill.

There are many fresh, newsy documents of this class which ought to be printed in the papers and which would be, if proper influence were brought to bear.

If temperance people were as persistent in securing publication of temperance articles as the liquor trade is in securing the publication of that which is opposed to total abstinence and prohibition, we could reach many more people through the public press than we do at the present time.

Let all press superintendents endeavor to pour into this great avenue of public thought, the public press, more of that which makes for purity, temperance and righteousness.

With all good wishes for each and every press superintendent, I am,

Affectionately yours,

LILLIAN M. N. STEVENS.

NEW UNION AT DUPONT, IND.

Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, State President of the W. C. T. U. organized a new Union at Dupont, Ind., Jefferson county, November 24, 1905. Since said organization the Union has held nine regular business meetings, one open temperance meeting, one Union Temperance meeting, one Mothers' Meeting, one Silver Medal Contest. The Mothers' Meeting was held at the Baptist church, Wednesday, March 7. On account of the extra bad weather not a very large crowd attended but those who were there certainly enjoyed themselves immensely. The meeting under the management of Mrs. Adelia Woods, who is superintendent of the Mothers' Department was well conducted. Mrs. Woods asked a question, "What is Child's Worst Habit?" which gave rise to an open discussion which was very much enjoyed by all. Several interesting pieces were read by different ladies of the Union and a duet by two young ladies, Miss Percie Lee and Mary Faulkner with Miss Florence Flanders at the organ.

Immediately after the Mothers' Meeting was closed the regular business meeting followed after some topics of interest were discussed, meeting adjourned to meet in one week with Mrs. Will Reynolds.

The Silver Medal Contest was held in the M. E. Church, Wednesday, February 1, 1906. The judges awarded the medal to Miss Percie Lee. The contestants, who all did their parts nobly were each awarded a small token of remembrance and appreciation.

FIELD NEWS

MARION COUNTY.

The County Executive Union met March 5th at the Claypool hotel and a committee, as authorized by the State Constitution notified. Committee meeting followed Monday. In the main the State Institute program was adopted with a few added subjects. "The Importance of Pledge Signing," and "A Mother's Influence," program was in the hands of the printer. The Marion County Institute will meet April 12th and 13th at the People's Congregational church, corner Blackford and Michigan streets. Good speakers and special music with contest Thursday evening.

NETTIE H. COHEA,
County Press Superintendent.

Francis Willard Union observed Francis Willard Day at the home of Mrs. W. H. Blodgett of N. Capitol avenue. Mrs. Gipe spoke on the beautiful life of Francis Willard. Mrs. L. E. Scott gave several incidents of her personal acquaintance with Miss Willard. The young people rendered several vocal and instrumental solos and recitations.

A rummage sale was held by the Union, clearing about eight dollars.

Palmer Union. February 33d, was the 14th anniversary of this Union and was celebrated at the home of its president, Mrs. Rhoades. The program in the afternoon consisted of talks, papers and music, and a sketch of the life of Miss Willard.

Mapleton Union was organized in 1895, and celebrated its 12th anniversary, February 28th. Mr. Ed Clark addressed the meeting, Miss White recited, and Miss King gave the history of the Union.

Central Union held a rummage sale, realizing about $30.00 from the sales.

A "Neal Dow" meeting will be held at the English Lutheran church, March 18th Mr. McWhirter to address the meeting, also special music furnished. This meeting is held under the auspices of the County Union as a memorial to the memory of this great, good man, who was born March 20, 1804, passed away in October, 1897.

The Avon Union secured Mrs. Stahl as a speaker, February 25th, a good audience gave her undivided attention for an hour's time. She brought out fact and incidents proving that we have not arrived at a time to sit down and fold our hands in the great cause we represent, yet we may rejoice at what is being accomplished for good.

Dr. Martha E. Keller, State Superintendent of Medical Temperance of the W. C. T. U. and President of the Lafayette Union, through her personal efforts has secured one day from the Chautauqua Executive Committee which will be called "Temperance Day," and was in Indianapolis yesterday to confer with the State President, who will come to Lafayette and deliver an address on that occasion.

The W. C. T. U. women are to be congratulated upon this step, which will give them a chance to give the public a splendid program.—Lafayette Courier.

Under the Auspices of the W. C. T. U. at the Soldiers' Home at Lafayette an interesting meeting was held on a recent Sunday afternoon. Dr. Martha E. Keller, the newly elected State Superintendent of Medical Temperance delivered an address upon that subject which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience. Ten new members were received at the close of the meeting.

At Island Park, Rome City, Ind., the Assembly opens July 25th and closes August 17th.

The Tri-State W. C. T. U. days are August 14 and 15, followed by a strong Temperance day, August 16th.

At no other assembly in Indiana is there so much deference paid to the W. C. T. U. and Prohibition. Now is the time for our temperance people, living in the northern and eastern part of the State to plan to spend one week, two weeks, or three weeks at Island Park this summer.

Furnished cottages rent at very reasonable rates—from six to twelve dollars per week. Excellent milk and cream, good vegetables can be bought from wagons that pass the cottages every day for what you pay at home. For instance milk is five cents a quart. There is a bakery conveniently located. Besides, there are boarding places where one or more meals a day can be taken by those who care to do so. The furnished cottages usually contain everything needed in the kitchen and dining-room, except table linen and silver ware.

Those who desire cottages should write immediately to Rev. J. F. Snyder, LaGrange, Ind., for information regarding same. Engage as soon as possible a cottage for one week of the time during the assembly if not longer.

The lake at Island Park is quiet and suitable for bathing, boating and fishing. The children and young people have a fine time.

Our State President, Mrs. Vayhinger expects to be there with her family. The Michigan State President, Mrs. Calkins will be there. Of our Indiana W. C. T. U. who expect to be there for some time are Mrs. McWhirter and family, Miss Woodard, State Cor. Sec. Miss Clara M. Sears, State Treasurer and many others.

Because of the temperance sentiment and the number of W. C. T. U. families that enjoy their outings at Island Park, it certainly is just the place for those who like that sort of society. The assembly program is excellent. Every day and evening something new and interesting for those who enjoy attending. Everybody at Island Park goes for rest and a good time. Society people who love to display fine clothes go elsewhere. This is a Methodist camp meeting place. Some men go out early in the morning in a boat, take their dinners and fish all day. Many people like fishing, others go rowing and bathing. Let us make Island Park a rendezvous for our W. C. T. U. people. Talk with your neighbor about spending a week or more time there.

St. Joseph County work for Scientific Temperance Instruction. It is very hard, even though you attend the teachers' gatherings, to get to talk enough to individuals to introduce the Physiology Journal, especially when there are a number of other agents on hand with journals, they think more adapted to the needs of the teachers. So our first work for this year was an effort to get School Physiology Journals in the hands of the teachers by working each Union in the country to subscribe for the Journal for one or more teachers. To this request the Unions responded nicely as did also our county executive. This however, seemed such a few that we grew courageous and wrote letters to or visited every school board and township trustee in the county asking them to subscribe for the Journal for their teachers. Many did not reply at all but some did and the result is that all together we have 68 subscriptions to the Physiology Journal. Some school trustees who did not subscribe said "our plans are laid for this year but see us before school begins next year."

The schools in South Bend are divided among the Unions, each Union to look after a certain number of schools to see that the Journal which is furnished by the school board is received and the subject taught. One of our local Superintendents, on inquiring of a principal about the work learned from him that all of his schools, fifteen in number would have a lesson in this subject every day for six weeks.

A class of high school boys and girls of North Liberty is preparing for a silver medal contest, to be given in March, one half of the proceeds to go to the school, the other to our department with which to purchase the endorsed text books for as many schools as it will furnish. While we have not done a great deal on anyone line, yet we feel that on the whole we have accomplished a good deal and feel that God is blessing this work in our county. ETHEL E. BAIR, County Supt.

The Elkhart Union.—The indoor picnic given all day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Stewart was a success in every respect. The meeting was called to order promptly at 9:30 o'clock. Mrs. Gillette led the devotional services. Mrs. Rowley gave a report of the Red Letter Day held at West Cottage, Miss Willard's home at Evanston, Ill. Mrs. Weir followed with a very interesting paper. Mrs. Johnson's solo was an inspiration to everybody. Rev. McMahon gave a very forceful talk which was followed by the noontide prayer offered by Mrs. Wm. Barger. Dinner was served and besides those present during the forenoon, twenty-five men were served. During the noon-hour several instrumental selections were given by Robert Stewart and Frank Collins. Mrs. Nast, Mrs. Johnson and Rev. McMahon sang several selections. The devotional services, after the social hour, were conducted by Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Charles Holler of South Bend, followed with a short talk, after which Rev. Light told of the sympathetic attitude of the church toward the Union. Rev. Frazer also added a few words of encouragement. Miss Jacobson concluded the session with a pleasing instrumental solo. It is thought that during the day 150 people attended the meeting.

The Carmel Union held a Frances Willard meeting. Mrs. Elizabeth Symons read a part of the oration delivered by Hon. Albert J. Beveridge at the unveiling of the Willard Statue in the U. S. Capitol. Interesting selections from the life of Miss Willard were read, followed by remarks by other members of the Union. Visitors were present, some of whom became members of the Union.

Just a few of the attractions offered by the Union Signal for 1906:

The W. C. T. U. Course of Study, covering the history and scope of the organization; a splendid opportunity for knowledge and training, practically without cost.

Our Washington Letter, giving each week while Congress is in session a concise account of the progress of temperance and reform legislation, and directions for work along legislative lines.

Articles that give in usable form the facts and the logic that you need for temperance weapons.

Announcements that keep the local members in touch with "Mother National."

Sixteen pages, weekly, $1.00 per year. Address The Union Signal, Evanston, Ill.

The Crusader Monthly is the best young people's temperance paper published. Splendid premiums. Price 25 cents a year. Address, The Crusader Monthly, Evanston, Ill.

Sample copies of either paper sent on request.

Lafayette Union recently sent $5.00 to the Hadley School to be applied on the purchase price of a buggy.

Salem Union held an interesting and profitable Willard meeting at the home of Mrs. Shrum. The program was excellent and participated in by the following persons: Mrs. Alice A. Menaugh, president; Rev. G. W. Telle, Mrs. Mary B. White, Mrs. Mary N. Overman, Rev. A. B. Wilson, Mrs. Lucretia Prow, Rev. T. T. St. John, Miss Mattie White, Rev. S. T. Mathews Jr., and others. At the close refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Wawne County W. C. T. U. has planned a campaign for the remainder of the year in order to secure additions to the Unions, and if possible organize new Unions.

At Hartsville, a silver medal contest was held in the United Brethren church. The contest included two classes, one of six young women and one of six young men. The medals were awarded to Miss Ozelle Mabley, who recited "Good-night Papa," and Mr. Ralph Dugan whose recitation was "The Drunkard's Dying Soliloquy." Ten cents admission was charged for the benefit of Hadley Home. The proceeds netted about eighteen dollars for the Home. The same class recited February 20th at Columbus at the County Prohibition Convention. Miss Grace Mahaffey won the medal on "The Factory Chimney." Mrs. M. E. Cummins is the Contest Superintendent.

The South Kokomo Union held a very interesting and profitable monthly business at the home of Mrs. Nancy Hillis. All members not present missed a great deal. Each Superintendent gave a five minute talk or read a paper on the work of her department.

The Huntington Union employed David Burwell of Indianapolis (who was engaged by the Prohibitionists for a couple of weeks work), to give his lecture on the "Five Fatal Steps," Monday night, January 22. The large M. E. Church was crowded. Mr. Burwell is a forceful, convincing and inspiring speaker; and has the faculty of holding the men of his audience. The meeting was the grandest one for our cause ever held in Huntington. Mr. Burwell is a fine singer and accompanies himself on a zither. At the close of the meeting eighteen men and ten women became members of the Union. Hurrah! for our cause and for David Burwell.

Mr. Burwell's address is 706 E. Eleventh St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Guilford Union sent an offering for State organization fund. Arrangements are being made for a public temperance day on March 8th, the regular meeting will be held with Mrs. C. D. Robertson.

The Frankfort Union held an open door meeting in the splendid home of their Vice President Mrs. C. A. Barricklow. Invitations were extended to all Unions in the county. Decorations were of white and yellow with flowers and potted plants. An enjoyable time was spent informally.

South Bend Chapin Park Union gave a "Thimble" party at the home of Mrs. Ralf Smith, which was an attractive, pleasant and profitable affair. A large number were present who showed by their happy appreciative faces how glad they were to be there. A fine program was given. Mrs. Will Stover read an excellent paper on the Mormon question. Mrs. Priscilla Beyrer, our dear department of "Mothers' Meetings," gave a talk on "personal responsibility which was listened to with the deepest interest. Among her beautiful utterances she said, "Am I doing all I can for the betterment of my church society, neighborhood and home?" Mrs. Beyrer is an earnest devoted christian, the mother of a large family of children, who are growing up to call her blessed. Ah! if there were more such mothers, the world would soon be better. Miss Norris gave a reading. Solos were rendered by Mrs. Alvin Hodson and Mrs. House. Refreshments were served and a large sum was raised. The entertainment given by South Bend Unions are always instructive and well attended. Six new members were added.

Seymour Union held a Mothers' Meeting with Mrs. J. M. Shields. Papers were read on how mothers may help school teachers by Mrs. Conrad and Exaggeration of Children by Mrs. F. H. Hadley. These brought out interesting discussion. Two picture readings by Mrs. M. C. Carpenter; solos by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. C. S. Mercer. The cordial hospitality and the social hour were greatly enjoyed by the large number present.

During the blessed holy season this Union held a meeting by special invitation with Mrs. L. B. Hill, after a paper on Household Economics by Mrs. S. H. Huffman; an original Christmas story was read by Mrs. W. F. Pfaffenberg. The music and decorations as well as the refreshments and

It is easier to evade the spoken than the written word. The latter may confront you unawares in an idle or lonely hour, but what is printed in an obscure county paper may travel around the world on a mission, least dreamed of by the writer.

A MESSAGE TO THE WOMEN OF INDIANA

From Mary H. Hunt.

The saloon with its record of crime, broken hearts, and ruined lives is the darkest blot on the otherwise fair face of our American civilization. But it is doomed to go:

First, because the use of alcoholic drinks is a relic of an ignorant, barbaric age. That ignorance is dispelled by the investigations of modern science which shows that there is not a single argument for the use of these drinks that has any basis in truth.

Before the second co-ordinate proof that the saloon is doomed to go we stand with reverent awe, for it shows God's purposes of mercy to our land. It is this:

As the testimony of science has poured in its light, proving alcohol to be, not a good creature of God designed for human comfort, but a subtle, destructive poison that is always, in small or large quantities, a dangerous beverage at war with human well-being, the legislatures of this country have enacted laws providing that all the people shall know these facts through the education of all the children in the public schools. The legislatures have done their part. Science has done its part and is adding constantly to its testimony against even the most moderate use of alcoholic drinks. The Bureau of Scientific Temperance Investigation has done its part in collecting and translating these findings of science into simple language adapted for incorporation into school text-books on physiology and hygiene for all grades of public schools. An ample school literature is ready.

It now remains for the temperance people to do their part in insisting upon the full enforcement of these temperance education laws. If they do, the final going of the saloon is not far off.

Only the ballots of the majority of the voters can close the American saloon. But men will not vote to prohibit the sale of beverages they believe in and want to drink. Hence there must first be education as to the evil nature and effects of the drinks the saloon has to sell. How largely can scientific temperance education in the public schools of your State reach the future voters and through them the voters of today? The following facts will help answer this question:

A recent report of the Indiana public schools showed an enrollment of about 556,700 children registered as in actual attendance in the public schools of the State. The law requires that physiology and hygiene with special reference to alcoholic drinks and narcotics shall be studied as a regular branch by the pupils in the public schools of the State.

Assuming that the minimum for each pupil is 30 lessons yearly, each of the 556,700 children in your State is each receiving 30 lessons in the physiological reasons for obeying the laws of health. Of these lessons about one-fifth are warning lessons as to the dangerous nature and effects of alcoholic beverages and other narcotics.

Most of these 556,700 children repeat some part of their lessons at home. Please remember that for all these temperance lessons to the children, and through them to the parents, the State pays the bills, and ask yourselves by what other instrumentality could so much temperance instruction be given to the rising generations and through them be defused among the homes and people of your State.

Need of Information.

It has been said that the people can be trusted to do the right thing if they know all the facts. That they have not yet in all cases learned the facts is shown by the following incident:

A Presbyterian minister who represents the temperance cause in the gatherings of that denomination had been in attendance upon a large ministerial meeting in which that subject had been discussed. As they were leaving for home, a young minister dropped into the seat on the cars with the clergyman who tells the story. With a clouded brow the young man said to the other, "I am in trouble."

Sympathetic inquiry called out the following history: "I graduated from the grammar school and the high school in 18—. I spent two years in the preparatory school, four years in college, and four years in the theological school. These years of study ought to have prepared me for every contingency that would arise in any pastorate. But they did not. None of them ever taught me anything about the temperance question. I have been called to a church in R— where the temperance cause is at a white heat, and I don't know the first thing about the subject. I don't know its literature nor where to get it. I am helpless to do, or to inform myself as what I ought to do."

Further inquiry showed that the temperance education law was passed in the State where this clergyman lived too late to reach him when he was either in the grammar or high school. This story well illustrates the lack of information on this important subject of many persons who are otherwise informed.

Program for A Thrilling Public Meeting.

We have just published a new program for a

Scientific Temperance Instruction public meeting in which the clergy, doctors, lawyers, editors, and teachers of a community may be given a part in recounting the history, progress, results, and world-wide spread of this American educational method for the prevention of intemperance, and the present need in the community where the meeting is held. Good judges say it is the most informing, helpful, and thrillingly interesting program we have ever issued. We are inclined to think they are right.

The price of the program with all the literature needed to present it is $.80. Included in this material are a number of leaflets and a copy of "An Epoch of the Nineteenth Century," a brochure of 65 pages (marked selections only used in the program) which gives an interesting account of this scientific temperance instruction movement, and which, when sold separately, costs $.40. Since this book, as well as the leaflets ought to be owned by every Union, this package of literature not only furnishes material for a splendid program, but has also a permanent value.

It would be a good plan to distribute copies of the leaflet, "Where are the Future Majorities?" (No. 92), at the close of the meeting. (We can send 80 copies for $.20 extra.)

Send for the program and literature, work up a rousing meeting with a big audience, and take up a collection to defray the necessary expenses of the meeting, furnish the School Physiology Journal to teachers and further the scientific temperance instruction work. One of the questions for the annual report will be regarding the number of Unions who have used this program.

I am anxious that every Union in your State should hold one of these meetings as soon as possible. It will have an immense educational effect, and can not fail to re-awaken interest in the law and its thorough enforcement.

The success of this great movement to train the boys and girls in that sobriety which is already making us one of the most achieving of the great nations must now, as always, depend largely upon the way in which you, the faithful consecrated workers in the local Unions persistently agitate and constantly follow up the advantages gained in the past.

Let me in closing pass on to you the personal watchword that has been my guide through all the strenuous years of effort for the temperance education of the children of America:

"What ought to be done can be done by whoever has the courage and the faith to undertake it, for omnipotence is pledged to such an one."

Extracts from an article in "Patriot Phalanx," headed "Justice Defeated by Perjured Jury."

Under Mayor Holtzman's administration in Indianapolis, a committee of good christian temperance men went slumming. The report of this committee regarding the "wide-open" state of affairs with reference to saloon law violations, wine rooms, gambling and houses of prostitution, created quite a sensation. Many arrests then followed by the police, the cases tried in police court resulted in pleas of guilty of conviction on testimony of members of the committee, who did not instigate the prosecutions but were summoned to court to produce their published charges.

Two hundred or more saloon keepers, whose cases were yet untried, became alarmed, organized for defense and raised a big fund to employ attorneys, corrupt juries and otherwise obstruct the administration of justice. The usual dilatory tactics were adopted but after numerous postponements the Dan Smith case came up for hearing.

Dan Smith, saloonkeeper at 117 N. Illinois street was on trial charged with keeping his place of business open after the legal hour for closing. It was a test case.

The first procedure was to secure a jury, which was demanded by the defense, who knew that they could not depend on Judge Whallon, as in the previous cases he had decided in accordance with the law and the evidence. After a long effort, during which the persons brought in to act as jurors were closely questioned by the contending attorneys and several excused, the following twelve business men were selected to decide the case:

Edwin L. Leinnox, of the Carlton & Lennox music firm, 5 E. Market street; Leopold Strauss, of the Eagle Clothing Company, 33 W. Washington street; Garritt A. Archibald, gents' furnishings, 38 E. Washington street; W. M. Short, of the Dollar Hat Store Co., Sentinel building; Carl Shank, transfer and storage business, 339 E. Washington; Henry A. Davis, manager Huber Mfg. Co., 36 Kentucky avenue; P. Burgheim, jeweler, 41 W. Washington street; Horace A. Comstock, jeweler, 49 E. Washington street; Gus Habich, sporting goods, 121 W. Washington street; W. L. Resoner, furniture store, 127 W. Washington street; Robert F. Catterson, real estate, 24 Kentucky avenue; and Michale F. Smith, jeweler, Kentucky avenue and Washington street.

The Prosecuting Attorney Addressing the Jury.

The prosecuting attorney in addressing the jury reminded them that no matter what their private opinions might be as to the laws regulating saloons, or as to the methods in which this evidence was secured, they were serving as jurymen under solemn oath to render their verdict without prejudice. The case was a plane one. The evidence of law violation was undisputed. As the representative of the State of Indiana, he asked of them a verdict for the conviction of Dan Smith.

The jury retired to deliberate. They stayed out about five minutes, took one ballot, and returned with the unanimous verdict: "We the jury, find Dan Smith not guilty."

And this from a jury made up of supposed respectable business men! We knew that some of them were not very promising from a temperance standpoint, but who would ever suspect that they would willingly and deliberately perjure themselves to favor a defendant who was a saloon keeper? We know that Gus Habich has two brothers in the wholesale liquor business, that Mr. Short formerly sold liquor when in the drug business at Illinois and Maryland streets and that a few of the jurymen were of the "sporty" variety, but we did not for a minute imagine that out of these twelve men there was not one who was unwilling to make himself a perjurer. Is this not a most dangerous state of affairs?

And what will the public think of these business men? We know we are giving them a lot of advertising, but we charge nothing for it. The Phalanx is read every week in 10,000 homes. Just imagine how our readers will rush to patronize these purgers when they have purchases to make in their lines.

For instance, how the church people of Indianapolis will rush to the Carlin & Lennox store for musical instruments, in order that they may patronize a purger. We advise them to have extra clerks. The Phalanx also has among its readers thousands of farmers in central Indiana. After reading this we suppose the farmers will hurry to the city and buy their implements at the Huber Co.'s branch house, managed by purger Davis. How delightful to buy your furniture of Resoner, the purger, who helped to acquit Dan Smith, whose wine room is set afloat quit Dan Smith, whose wine dive is luring girls to ruin. So we might go on through the list of furniture, bicycles, real estate, hats, clothing, jewelry, etc.

Editor: Because of the action of these jurors, some of whom are prominent business men, it was decided by unanimous vote of some of the Indianapolis W. C. T. Unions to "refuse to patronize these business men and to use our influence to prevent any members of our families and friends from patronizing them."

But, mightiest of the mighty means,
On which the arm of progress leans,
Man's noblest mission to advance
His woes assuage, his weal enhance,
His rights enforce, his wrong's redress—
Mightiest of mighty is the press.

—Dr. Bowring.

Press work in the temperance reform is nothing more nor less than temperance evangelization by means of the printed page.

The press is the one great force in touch with the lives of the people; its field is the world, and its success the service of humanity.

No influence is at present so persuasive as that of printer's ink, and who ever fails to rate the press at its true value has but grasped a fractional part of the problem of reform.

Anderson Y. W. C. T. U. recently held a membership contest and four gentlemen joined the Union, the meetings are well attended and programs good.

Dear Treasurers: I want to thank you for helping by sending in the names for the Message list. Those who are late can not have them placed on the mailing list till April, and your members will not receive the Message till May. We believe that quite a gain has been made in membership this quarter over the corresponding one of last year. Many new Unions have been organized since the State convention and they are sending in the dues. Many counties were so delayed in getting their reports out that I can not tell you till May issue how much of a gain we have made. Begin early to plan and collect your third quarter's dues. If any of your members do not receive their Message please notify me at once.

CLARA M. SEARS, Treasurer.

Culver Indiana is rejoicing over their victory. No saloons in their town for two years.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Della Clem: Columbia City is mourning the loss of this dear sister. She was the wife of Rev. A. E. Clem, the Baptist minister, of which she has been a member for many years, and has had a rich Christian experience. We shall cherish her deep interest and excellent work in our W. C. T. U. We shall miss her. She was 31 years old and leaves a husband and two young children.

In the death of Mrs. Permelia Seal, an irretrievable loss has been sustained by the Linwood W. C. T. U. and Sunday school, she has served as President of that Union since its organization in 1903. Permelia Seal had depth of thought and strength of character; she will be missed by the W. C. T. U. and in her home an aged husband will miss the loving sympathy and christian fortitude that characterized her life. Her greatest wish was to live for Him who never makes a mistake, and now she has heard the words well done, "Enter into the joys of thy Lord."

SABBATH OBSERVANCE PLEDGE.

Recommended by the National W. C. T. U.

I Agree.

1. To observe the Sabbath as a day of rest and worship.
2. To neither purchase nor patronize Sunday newspapers.
3. To use my influence by word and example, against railroad and steamboat travel and excursions.
5. Not to patronize any store, barber shop, news stand, drug store (except for medicine), bakery or any other place of unnecessary work on the Sabbath, and to use my influence to close them.
5. Not to send or call for mail on the Sabbath.
6. To make the Sabbath work at home as light and simple as possible, that all may enjoy the privileges of the day.
7. To use my influence for legislation that will protect the Sabbath as a day of rest and worship.

REASONS FOR THESE SEVEN POINTS OF THE SABBATH PLEDGE.

1. Because it is a command of God and is essential to the best physical, mental and moral good of men.
2. The Sunday newspaper is confessedly undermining the Sabbath more than any other agency in the land.
3. Incorporated companies do wrong to break the Sabbath, and compel their workmen to do the same. We are guilty with them if we use any Sabbath hours for travel or excursions.
4. By keeping No. 5, we take away the reproach of inconsistency, and help close places of temptation and open desecration.
5. The Government, through its mail service, unnecessarily deprives thousands of men of their Sabbath rest and throws its influence against Sabbath laws. Let us avoid all complicity with so great an evil.
7. The Sabbath command embraces all employees and mothers, who especially need rest.
8. The liquor traffic and all enemies of the Sabbath are combining to overthrow Sabbath laws. Let us be vigilant and faithful by influence and vote to preserve them. Lose the Sabbath laws and we open the floodgates of infidelity and anarchy and ruin.

Gladstone said: The religious observance of the Sunday is a main prop of the religious character of the country. From a moral, social and physical point of view, it is a duty of absolute consequence.

Justice McLean of the Supreme Court of the United States, says: Where there is no Christian Sabbath there is no christian morality, and without this, free institutions can not long be sustained.

Joseph Cook said: The Sabbath is the only pillar of fire that can lead us out of commission, Socialism and the political dangers of universal suffrage.

Sir Walter Scott said: Give the world one-half of Sunday and you will find that religion has no strong hold on the other half.

Canon Farrar writes: The waste and selfish desecration of the Sabbath, and the flinging away of its golden opportunities is, I believe, to thousands of youth, the first decisive step in the downward course of moral degeneracy and spiritual death.

Prof. Austin Phelps says: The decline of religion in the family commonly begins with the relaxation of Sabbath law. The juniors plead for greater freedom and profess more liberal opinions. Miscellaneous reading, absence from public worship, indulgence in secular recreation, license in traveling on the Lord's day, are justified on the ground of changes in the times. Ancient ways are stigmatized as narrow; Christian example is adduced to support anti-Christian innovation.

A NEW ARITHMETIC.

The origin of this, which is going the Kansas newspaper rounds, is unknown. "I am not much of a mathematician," said the cigarette, "but I can add to a man's nervous troubles, I can subtract from his physical energy, I can multiply his aches and pains, I can divide his mental powers, I take interest from his work and discount his chances for success."—Epworth (Kans.) Herald.

DEPARTMENT OF SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

From the Report of Mrs. V. F. Cox, National Supt.

The Sabbath and the family, instituted in the Garden of Eden are the only institutions that survived the fall and are indissolubly united. God who "setteth the solitary in families" said "The Sabbath was made for man." Where the Sabbath is most honored and best protected the marriage vow is held most sacred and the homes are purest and happiest. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, organized for the protection of the home wisely adopted this department because it understood the Sabbath to be one of the strongest safeguards of the home and because it saw that strong assaults were being made upon this fortress. It seems strange when the scientist and the religionist are agreed as to the value of the Sabbath it should be so lightly regarded. Oliver Wendell Holmes said "He who ordained the Sabbath loved the poor." To the poor who are condemned to incessant toil the Sabbath comes as an oasis in the desert of life. It gives to many a laborer and business man his only time for the enjoyment of his family. Greed of gain and greed of pleasure are conspiring to rob the people of the home day. Every Sunday during the summer months the railroads and steamboats and trolley lines run excursions at cheap rates often to picnic grounds where an unlimited quantity of beer is supplied for refreshment and some sort of show for entertainment. Ralph Waldo Emerson said "Worship is the most important single function of the life of any people." If that be true what must be the effect of turning the day which has been set apart for the exercise of that function unto one of frivolity and dissipation?

The Sabbath is recognized in the Constitution of the United States by its being exempt from the days allowed the President in which to examine the bills submitted to him for his signature. It is recognized by all our courts of justice in that they are not required to sit on that day and business done on it is not legal. Our chief magistrates have observed it from Washington to McKinley. When General Grant was the guest of the President of the French Republic he was true to the customs of his country and won the admiration of all good people by refusing the invitation of the President to visit the races with him on Sunday. On November 15, 1862 President Lincoln issued the famous Army Order in regard to Sabbath observance in which he said "The importance for man and beast of the prescribed day of rest, the sacred rights of Christian soldiers and sailors, a becoming difference to the best sentiment of a Christian people, and a due regard for the Divine will, demand that Sunday labor in the army and navy be reduced to the measure of strict necessity. The discipline and character of the national forces should not suffer nor the cause they defend be imperilled, by the profanation of the name or the day of the Most High." Elaborate social functions have never been taken at our national capitol on Sunday and we have always felt that with the weight of the executive and the judiciary against a secular Sunday, we had a reasonable hope of maintaining the sabbath as given to us by God and preserved for us by our fathers. During the visit of Prince Henry of Germany, the traditions of our country laid aside and the American Sabbath turned into the Continental Sunday for his entertainment.

Later we are alarmed when on two successive Sabbaths mimic naval battles were fought along our coast, and President Roosevelt at Nahant and Chattanooga lent the sanction of the National Government to the desecration of the Lord's day. We joined with the Sabbath organizations in writing to him a courteous letter in which we expressed the hope that in the future he would not allow any committee to arrange for him Sunday functions so foreign to the usages of the Christian church and the spirit of the religion of which he has hitherto been a consistent exponent. We are assured that he is in sympathy with the Christian Sabbath and are glad to know that in the arrangements for his western trip care was taken to avoid any desecration of the day. There is a growing restiveness on the part of the laboring people on account of the increasing demand for Sunday labor. Among the banners displayed by those who marched the streets of Chicago on Labor Day was one bearing this devise, "Help the clerk; don't buy Sundays. Sunday rest is what we want." The Butchers' Association and other labor organizations by united action succeeded in having the Allen-Dillingham bill to protect the Sabbath in the District of Columbia introduced in Congress and the women of the Union there helped them, but too many bills deemed to be of greater importance demanded attention. It will win some time for the people are sovereign. But before that or any other legislation succeeds, those asking for it must learn each to deny himself for his brother's sake. The clerk who secures his Sunday rest should not increase the Sunday work of the train men and the motor men by crowding the excursion trains.

STATE LAWS OF INDIANA.

From Horner's Annotated Statutes, 1897.

Section 2000.—Whosoever being over (14) fourteen years of age, is found on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, rioting, hunting, fishing, quarreling, at common labor, or engaged in his usual vocations (work of charity and necessity only excepted) shall be fined in any sum not more than Ten Dollars, nor less than one; but nothing herein contained, shall be construed to affect, such as conscientiously observe the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath, travelers, families removing, keepers of toll bridges and toll gates, and ferryman acting as such.

In force September 19, 1881.

Section 2000a, Sunday Baseball.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in playing baseball where any fee is charged or where any reward or prize, or profit, or article of value is depending upon the result of such game, on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, and every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars.

In force July 18, 1885.

Mrs. Baleman says:—"A mother who would bring her children up to keep the Sabbath must understand at the outset that it means self-denial on her part. She can not sit down with her book, or shut herself up for her afternoon nap, or run into the neighbors for a chat, and leave the children to their own devices. She must give herself more entirely to them on that day than on week days. If she is systematic, she may manage to get her needed rest while the baby has its nap and the other children are reading or under the care of another; but she must be ready as soon as needed to direct their reading or their games, or to talk with them as may seem best. All this means weariness of the flesh; but you will have your reward, Christian mother, when your children are grown, and you see them enjoying the blessings which God has promised to those who 'remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.' Your children will rise up and call you blessed."

Remember the Sabbath day and to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservants, nor thy maidservants, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates.

White Ribboners are usually women of discretion and tact, such home keepers will persistently use their influence against much cooking and house work being done in the homes on Sunday. They will not countenance Sunday visiting and receptions, that make it for many a day of social dissipation. Let this one day of the week be given wholly to the companionship of the home circle. Take the young people to the house of God on the Sabbath day. Young women should be careful in the selecting men for husbands who do not respect the Sabbath day and who will not help to establish a home where the Sabbath is kept as a holy day.

Rev. C. H. Trumbull, in the Christian Herald, writes: "To bring a child into habits of loving, and reverent Sabbath observance is a matter of training; and that training ought to begin at a very early age, and continued throughout the years of childhood."

The Sunday Saloon is one of the worst enemies of the Christian Sabbath. A positive injury to the Morals of Any Community.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

The ministers will preach sermons in the interest of Sabbath observance if asked to do so. What would be helpful in many places would be a Sunday evening Sabbath observance mass meeting. The need of the Christian Sabbath presented ably by speakers. Then some speaker be especially asked to consider the Sabbath from a physical and commercial standpoint. Showing the need of rest for all artisans, writers and laborers, also the greater expense of keeping up machinery that is not allowed to cool. There are many phases to this Sabbath question and all phases should be ably presented and an appeal made to the citizens to help us keep our Christian and civil Sabbath which is fast slipping away from Americans as a result of our own short-sightedness.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The city where the glitter of gold attracted thousands, yes tens of thousands of money seekers in the fifties, the majority of whom left their homes in the East never to return and live in utter disregard of their Christian training leading ungodly lives.

The city established thus and added to by later comers and the Chinese was perhaps the wickedest city in America.

Men and women who had lived consistent lives in the eyes of their Eastern neighbors went there and became indifferent to Christianity, laid aside all former Christian training.

The struggle that the churches have had there is greater than in any other city in this country, the Christian work falls upon a few. Some of the finest Christ-like characters were in San Francisco and lived heroic lives. Apparently there was no civil Sabbath in San Francisco, business of many kinds being transacted just the same every day in the week.

The traffic in Chinese girls was carried on. There was misery untold and crimes indescribable committed within the Chinese quarters. The awful calamity of earthquake and fire has deprived thousands of their lives and made tens of thousands homeless. The Chinese dens under the earth have been opened, inmates freed, few with knowledge of English language but free. This awful calamity has aroused many a conscience, let us pray that men who rebuild San Francisco may listen to the distaste of conscious and establish a Christian city. The distressed people have had their immediate needs supplied, soon our Christian people must help them to rebuild their churches and to support the Gospel.

It is a dangerous thing for people who have the light of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to live in utter disregard of God and His laws.

THE PRESS ISSUE.

Many have been the words of commendation received concerning the Press Issue of The Message.

Few persons who have not done journalistic work realize how much time and effort was required to get out that issue. The press material was all secured and furnished by our State Press Superintendent Miss Laura Cammark of Converse. Her work for the issue was done while watching at the bedside of her aged mother who has lain dangerously ill for many weeks.

The efficient Presidents of Unions will urge the membership to carefully consider the helpful suggestions made and the plans given in the Press issue—Indiana must use the press for temperance. The W. C. T. U. work can be greatly benefitted in every locality by a good Press Superintendent, as will be well understood, by all thoughtful persons who read the Press Issue. Certain characteristics are absolutely necessary to make a successful newspaper reporter. The value of a good W. C. T. U. Press Superintendent can not be over estimated.

For The Message, please send news items concerning the work done by the Unions. Personals regarding special noteworthy work of individual members of the Union will be gladly received. On account of the size of The Message it is difficult to find space for long reports of conventions and meetings.

For this issue a Press Superintendent sent a newspaper clipping giving report of a County Institute, saying that she hoped the editor would use it as sent. When the length of it was considered and the space calculated it was impossible for the editor to comply with the Superintendent's request, but she took such items from the newspaper clipping as she thought of greatest interest to the readers. The newspaper clipping contained 940 words.

The best report possible of every meeting and convention should be made to The Message which is read by our great constituency of many thousands. To fully get the spirit of a meeting the reporter should be present, then in writing the report to consider the items of general State interest and the amount of space to be used. Some of the Press Superintendents send beautiful, concisely written news items on postal cards that are a great credit to their ability and to their Unions. Much real news can be given in fifty or seventy-five words. Excellent local reports are usually too local and too long for The Message.

FOR THE SUMMER.

Now is the time to make definite arrangements for the observance of our special days in June, July and August.

In every community public sentiment is aroused by agitation. Secure good speakers and arrange excellent programs and enlist the young people then you will have success.

Get the high school boys and girls to take entire charge of certain arrangements. These young people with trained minds and executive force can do much, and will do it well, if responsibility is theirs without dictation from the older people.

Let every Union make the most of Flower Mission Day.

Enlist the Christian young men to assist in services at jails, almshouses, hospitals, etc. Secure the help of the young boys and girls in carrying flowers with text cards attached to the sick, afflicted and aged. We can always get the sweet little girls and young women to help, they do so beautifully too, but sisters, our boys will do much if asked and it will be helpful to them and will impress forcibly upon their minds the blessedness of the W. C. T. U. We need their interest now, and as they go out into the world our cause needs them. Now is the time to work tactfully and prayerfully to win boys and young men for the W. C. T. U. Let all plans be broad minded and consider well the need of the allied forces of young people in order for our cause to win the victory.

FLOWER MISSION DAY, JUNE 9.

NATIONAL INDEPENDENCE DAY, JULY 4.

PICNIC DAY, BIRTHDAY, MISS ANNA GORDON, JULY 21.

LITERATURE AND FRANCHISE DAY, AUGUST 6.

THE LORD'S DAY WEEK OF PRAYER.

The various Sabbath organizations of the United States and Canada have set apart the week following Easter week, April 22d to 29th inclusive as the "Lord's Day Week of Prayer" in behalf of the Christian Sabbath.

We praise God, as ever, for the day of rest from toil, and also, for a year that has brought some victories in the arduous warfare for the imperilled Sabbath. We note three among many. (1) God has moved some of our governors, mayors, and district attorneys to make Sunday law supreme, especially over the Saloon. Never before since the Civil War have so many saloons been closed on Sundays and never since then have so many political papers and business men approved of such closing. (2) He has led some railway managers to refuse to run Sunday excursion trains. (3) He has brought together the various societies that seek to exalt the Lord's Day in hearty co-operation.

Pray God to arouse His people to press on vigorously for greater victories and to awaken employers and employees to realize the folly and curse of Sunday toil, and the moral blight of Sunday sport.

Study God's Sabbath law, and how to make the day more richly bless personal life and the life of the church and community, and let all appeal to Congress to forbid Sunday work in the Postoffices and in the National Capitol.

Let us federate reform forces in each town so as to educate all the people as to the value of the Sabbath, by putting Sabbath literature into every house and by encouraging and assisting executive officers to enforce obedience to Sunday laws.

KATIE WERT HOLLER,
State Superintendent Sabbath Observance,
South Bend, Ind.

JAIL AND PRISON WORK.

I kindly ask all of the County Presidents to see that this department of our work is taken up in their counties. That county and local Superintendents be appointed at once. I also recommend that they send to our National Superintendent for her plan of our work, Mrs. Jane M. Kinney, North St. Postoffice, Saint Clair County, Mich.

I will be glad to furnish literature and blanks to all who will write me. Let us strive to give our very best to this important line of our work. Remembering that the most humble service is always blessed when done in the name of our Master.

With a prayer and best wishes,
SALLIE SHUGART EDGERTON,
State Superintendent, 129 Russell St., West Lafayette, Ind.

Observe the Lord's Day Week of Prayer, April 22d to 29th inclusive.

"Remember the Lord's Day to keep it holy."

Furnish your editor with short, up-to-date items on the Sunday question.

Circulate the State Sabbath laws.

Try to secure, by united action, the voluntary Sunday closing of places of business.

Have Sabbath pledge signing in the Sunday Schools and L. T. L.'s.

Insist upon a more strict observance of the Sunday laws.

Work for a better observance of the Sabbath day.

Request pastors to preach special sermons on the Sabbath question.

The Sunday saloon is one of the worst enemies of the Christian Sabbath and is a positive injury to the morals of any community.

Educate public sentiment in favor of law enforcement relative to Sunday ball games, etc.

Remember the Sabbath Day to Keep it Holy.

FIELD NEWS

MARION COUNTY.

Marion County Executive Union, March 18th, held a Neal Dow memorial service at the English Lutheran Church, D. Leigh Colvin of Chicago, president of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, gave the address. Mrs. May Wright Sewall, as a personal friend of Susan B. Anthony, spoke of her life and work for the cause of suffrage. Mrs. Gipe made an appeal for membership, and about 100 Signals were distributed.

Miss Marie Leck, County L. T. L. Secretary has organized five Legions, and it is hoped to come up at the State Convention with each Union in the county with a Legion.

Vayhinger Union.—Mrs. Walker, a returned missionary from China addressed a meeting of this Union, giving an account of the evils of the army canteen. March 25th, members of this Union went in a body to the Englewood Christian Church where the pastor, Rev. Maurice F. Murphy gave a "real temperance sermon," dwelling especially on the life of Neal Dow.

North East Union, March 30th, held a very successful meeting securing several names to Cradle Roll and Miss White presented the contest work. A new superintendent of literature was appointed and many new subscriptions to the temperance papers. It is the plan of this Union to have their Signal subscriptions equal one-fourth the membership.

The Second Section of Superintendents with Mrs. Handy of Mapleton Union, as President held a very successful all day meeting at Broadripple, April 6th. The Flower Mission, Scientific Temperance, Department of Literature, Mother's Meetings and Cradle Roll, were the departments present and discussed during the day. Dr. Houser from the city gave a comprehensive address in the evening on "The Destruction of the Temple of the Soul." A baby oratorical contest with seven little ones under 6 years of age, contested for a medal. This was won by Robert Ferguson. The Adscript Quartette sang several selections.

Broadripple Union surely knows the meaning of true hospitality as their good president served supper to all who remained for the evening meeting.

The County W. C. T. U. Institute, was in session two days, April 12th and 13th, at the People's Congregational Church. The Institute was organized with Mrs. Martha Gipe as leader, Miss Mamie White as secretary. Virgil H. Lockwood gave the leading address on Thursday on "The Evil Influences Surrounding Our Children and How to Combat Them." Friday Mrs. Elizabeth Smith read a paper on "How to Make the Press Serve the Temperance Cause." Mrs. Lizzie Heath spoke of the desire of the county to double its membership before the State convention, and suggested to idea of a contest for membership, choosing sides as in the old fashioned spelling match. Miss Marie Leck read a most excellent paper on the "Legion Present and Future," this paper is to be entered with others in the prize contest for the best paper on this all important subject. In the afternoon Mrs. H. Foster Stone gave a paper on "The patriotism of Woman" and Dr. Rebecca George spoke on "The Mother's influence in the Home." These papers and talks were all discussed and so much good derived from them. After reports of committees the institute adjourned.

Thursday Evening April 12th, a gold medal contest was held in connection with the Institute. The entire program was provided for by the County Superintendent of Contests, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. A young man from Bridgeport secured the medal.

MRS. NETTIE H. COHEA,
County Press Supt.

Indianapolis Palmer Union—Business meeting March 9th. Treasurer reported for quarter, five active and eight honoray members. February 23, held an all day anniversary meeting at the home of President Mrs. H. Rhoads, dinner served to about sixty. In the afternoon papers were read by Mrs. White, Mrs. E. R. Hisey and Mrs. Gipe to a large audience of women and men.

Report of Ella Smith, Settlement House, showed for quarter:

Sunday School 60 to 70 scholars in attendance. Free kindergarten not large enough for scholars.

Mr. Thompson and Case of Central Business College were holding night school two nights in the week teaching mathematics and penmanship, stenography and bookkeeping.

Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

With Boys' Physical Culture Club, just organized, meeting two nights in the week and preaching on Sunday night, keeps Settlement Rooms in service all the time. This was once a saloon and one of the worst kind.

Ah! it is the woman who have given the costliest hostages to fortune. Out in the battle of life they have sent their best beloved, with fearful odds against them. Oh, by the dangers they have dared; by the hours of patient watching over beds where helpless children lay; by the increase of ten thousand prayers wafted from their gentle lips to heaven, I charge you give them power to protect along life's treacherous highway those whom they have so loved.—Francis E. Willard.

The Supreme test of the knight in the days of chivalry was his self-denial and desire to succor the oppressed. The severest test of the modern gentlemen is his willingness to forego his pipe or cigar for the comfort and health of another. Whatever the benefit or harm the use of tobacco may do the customer's body, its common tendency is to render the mind indifferent to the well-being of his neighbor. J. J.

Mrs. M. L. Hobbs, the County President of Dubois W. C. T. U., returned from Venice, Cal., where she has been spending the winter, her address will be Velpen, Ind., as it formally was.

The Smithville W. C. T. U. met at the Christian Church last Saturday, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Sibenthal of Bloomington. The time was well filled with work. The declaration of principles were unanimously adopted and the following officers were appointed: Superintendent of Medal Contest—Mrs. Ella Updegraff; Sunday School Work—Mrs. Maggie Trisler; Literature—Mrs. Cora Fox; Press—Mrs. Cora Drake; Mother's Meetings—Mrs. Dr. Leonaaid; Flower Mission—Mrs. Dr. Luzadder.

Bath, Franklin County—Francis Willard Union held a very interesting service in the M. E. Church, February 18th in memory of our beloved leader, Francis Willard. Appropriate selections and recitations were given, interspersed with songs, duett and solos. Lead Kindly Light was very beautifully rendered as a trio by three young ladies. A collection was taken amounting to between seven and eight dollars, two of which was sent to the National Memorial Fund. March 27th was observed in honor of Neal Dow, a parlor meeting at the home of Margaret M. Smith, County President. After devotional services, the first half hour was given to the study of the life of Neal Dow. The remainder of the time was given to our parliamentarian, Mrs. Barkly, and she conducted a most pleasing and instructive drill in parliamentary usage and on motion it was decided to spend fifteen minutes at each monthly meeting in this study of Parliamentary Law. Our new local president, Mrs. Brady is doing fine work. We are working and hoping for great things the coming year. Brookville Union for several years only had four members but they were faithful and true and the last year their hearts have been made to rejoice because of their success. They now number somewhere in the twenties and meet twice a month and are now planning for their spring Institute, hoping and praying it may be the best Institute ever held in Franklin County.

The Ripley County Institute held at Batesville was the means of awakening a deeper interest in the Temperance cause. Four new members were added to the local Union and an L. T. L. was organized with twenty-seven members enrolled. The meetings were all well attended.

South Wabash W. C. T. U. and friends have had a treat indeed. Mrs. Trego, national evangelist, came to us the 28th remaining over Sabbath. She spoke to good audiences Wednesday and Thursday nights, and Friday night gave a very excellent stereopticon entertainment, contrasting between a life of sin and ruin and one full of good deeds. Sabbath evening she preached in the Friends' Church. The sermon was helpful, the subject being "The Pure Life" that we might be "Hid With Christ in God." Five young men signed the pledge. Four members were added to our Union, and the end is not yet. The pastor of the Friends' Church remarked, "I am so glad you had her come, wish we could keep her a week."

The Jennings County Institute held in North Vernon was a success. Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall, leader. Many questions of great importance to all were discussed and much good gained. Many of the leading citizens taking part on the program. This Union has nearly doubled its membership in the last six months. Prohibition and Temperance sentiment seems to be on an increase in this county.

Sunday School Workers.—I will give a banner to the Union or county which will have the best display of Sunday School Temperance Pledge Cards at the State convention. The cards having been signed this year. This banner to be kept until some one does better. The banner to be brought to the State convention each year.

LIDA OUTLAND,

State Superintendent S. S. Work, Upland, Ind.

The Howard County semi-annual convention and institute was held in the Friends' Church at Kokomo, on April 12th and 13th, with Mrs. Rose Pearce of Cayuga as Institute Leader. Thursday forenoon was taken up with the convention work. Mrs. Ida M. Mix, County President, presiding, the reports of officers and Superintendents showed that good work had been done in the 21 departments taken up. In the afternoon after the devotion, welcome, response and organization of Institute, Mrs. Rose Hillis, Superintendent of Literature told why we needed our different papers, and secured for the Union Signal, eight, for Crusader Monthly, two, and the American Motherhood, nine subscriptions. The regular program as made out by the State was carried out for the remainder of the Institute. Mrs. Pearce gave an interesting address on Thursday evening along the lines of our work to a good audience. On Friday afternoon three of our local ministers, two business men and the President of our Police Board took part on the program, with splendid suggestions and helpful remarks. We had with us our former County President, Mrs. Lida Outland, now State Superintendent of Sunday School work, who gave us a talk on her departments. Our State L. T. L. President, Miss Edith Hillis was with us a short time. Eight Unions were represented with delegation, all in all our meeting was a success and we are trying to double our membership before September 15th.

Blackford County Institute was held at Montpelier in the M. E. Church and was well attended, all Unions being represented. Mrs. S. M. Stahl County President in the chair. Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley State Vice President, leader. Brief reports from the local Unions showed increased activity and interest. Discussion of plans proposed followed. The Evangelistic work of the W. C. T. U., "Why and How," by Mrs. Stanley was of great interest. "How to Increase the Attendance at our Meetings," by Mrs. Palmer of Roll and gave good practical suggestions. A good paper on "How to Make the Press Serve the Temperance Cause" was read by Mrs. O. P. Sample of Hartford City. "How to Double Our Membership in One Year," by the County President was most businesslike and practical. Each members to secure one new member. The discussions following the presentation of the subjects was instructive and helpful. The Loyal Temperance Legion work was ably presented by Mrs. L. J. Hudson, followed by Mrs. Baker of Keystone and others. "The Evil Effects of Pool Rooms and How we can Use our Influences Against them" was presented in a most excellent paper by Mrs. S. W. Worley of Montpelier, followed by the Baptist minister, Rev. Fry and the evangelist, Rev. Rhoades of Kokomo. Mrs. Mary Dunlap read a very interesting paper on Sabbath observance. "The Trend of Current Events and their Portent," by local pastors was discussed by Rev. Brown, Rev. Moffit and others. "How Best to Make our Work Felt in our Town and Community," by visiting members brought out many good suggestions, especially with reference to our Red Letter days. "The patriotism of Women; is it worthy of Expression at the Ballot Box?" by Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley was ably presented. Convincing arguments from start to finish in Mrs. Stanley's own forceful, pleasing manner. During the institute Mrs. Morley's infant babe was presented for membership in the Cradle Roll. Mrs. Stanley touchingly prayed for babe and mother and Mrs. Stahl, State Superintendent of the Cradle Roll placed the white ribbon over the heart of the dear little babe. On the first evening Mrs. Stanley lectured on Christian citizenship to an appreciative audience of whom many were awakened to their duty. On the second evening a Grand Gold Medal Contest was conducted by Mrs. Palmer of Roll. The medal was awarded to Mrs. Ida Stallsmith. Several prominent White Ribboners from other counties were present, among them was Walmer of Bluffton. The hospitality of the Montpelier people was most generous, everything possible was done for the comfort and pleasure of the attending delegates. Twenty-five new members were received during the institute.

To My Sisters in Reform Work.—I am pleased with the awakened interest manifested in the department of Mother's Meetings, and Purity, and the appeals for help. If all to whom I have sent blanks and literature will keep a record of work and not loose their blanks but report promptly our report will be better than any previous year. Shall it not be so. I am powerless to make any report except as you report to me. Dear Sisters remember to have a blank book, but don't keep it blank. Keep a record of all your work, and when you make your report refer to your book. What a broad field for work we have, for believing as we do, that the character of the child depends to a large extent upon the character of the parents previous to its birth, and that the mental condition of the mother is transmitted to her child, let us meet the conditions and by grace and faith hold up the light.

MRS. S. M. STAHL.

What One Union did for Hadley Industrial School. Organized two contest classes composed, one of young ladies, the other of young gentlemen. They went to Columbus to the County Prohibition convention, by invitation, and other places and gave their recitations. The people were edified and Hadley Industrial School fund was increased by twenty dollars. Mrs. Minerva E. Cummins is the Contest Superintendent, Hartsville Union.

Benton County W. C. T. U. Institute was held in the Christian Church at Oxford March 8 and 9, beginning in the forenoon of the 8th. Otterbein and Boswell Union were well represented, but so many officers being absent the regular program was not taken up, Miss Sears talking and answering questions. In the afternoon Mr. Jas. Bell made a fine speech on "How Can We Best Increase the Temperance Sentiment in Our Town?" Mr. Bell is an enthusiastic worker in the Good Citizen League and gave a glowing tribute to the W. C. T. U. as having kept the temperance sentiment alive. Mr. Charles Craw one of our editors followed with an encouraging talk on what has been accomplished in the county—three saloons where a few years ago we had thirty! He made many other good points.

Mrs. Ella Maddox of Otterbein read an interesting paper on Non-Alcoholic Medication. She gave the percent of alcohol in various patent medicines.

Rev. Builta talked on "The Trend of Public Events and Their Portent." A lively discussion followed.

Miss Sears talked on the educational work of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Nettie Maddox conducted a Parliamentary drill. One of the ministers said he was surprised and gratified at our knowledge of Parliamentary law.

In the evening Miss Sears gave an excellent address on "What we Have Accomplished."

The opening exercises were made interesting by the hearty co-operation of our teachers and their pupils.

Many thanks are due Prof. Jack for his help in the singing.

The pastors of the different churches helped us very much, and in spite of the fact of the funeral of an old resident and dear friend of many in the Union, Friday's meeting was well attended. We served dinner at the church for about sixty people and many of the older ladies were able to attend by this arrangement.

The Oxford ladies were dismissed for the hour of the funeral, but returned to take up the closing exercises of the day.

A silver medal contest was held in the evening with four contestants, two others taking part, Miss Edith Wetzel of Oxford receiving the medal.

Good interest was displayed all the way through the meeting, and other interesting papers and reports were given. One on the Sunday School work by Mrs. Amanda Smith was inspiring and helpful. Reports from the Presidents of these Unions were interesting.

LaPorte Union held a very interesting meeting, April 13th. The plans for the year are to meet every two weeks, each alternate meeting to be a literary or department work. All are much interested in these plans and nearly all take part in the exercises. One new and very efficient member was added to the Union. A program for a social Purity and Mother's Meeting is being arranged to be given soon.

Huntington County W. C. T. U. organizations are doing some active and efficient work. Huntington Union, since the State convention, has held three medal contests with good results. At a special public afternoon occasion, the mothers' and the "Y" meetings were interestingly discussed by Mrs. Josephine Walmer of Bluffton, State Secretary of "Y" work. A pleasant social hour followed to the delight of the goodly number present. Six new members were received. The services of Mrs. Burwell of Indianapolis were secured for one public meeting. The address had the genuine temperance ring and was well received. Members secured on this occasion numbered ten active and eighteen honorary. Thus far this year the Union has received an aggregate of about forty members. The "Slot" machines of the city recently received an airing at the hands of the Union and the result was that the number was speedily decreased from about 75 to 15. The law against these danger traps for the young should be promptly enforced.

Mrs. Eunice P. Wilson, writes:—Mrs. Rose Pearce conducted a very good Institute for the women of Grant County at Swayzee on the 9th and 10th of April, five sessions in all, nearly all of the men and women on the program were present and the few who could not be present sent substitutes. The papers, talks and discussions on the different subjects were above an average, even for Grant County. The diamond medal contest, filled the opera house with a very attentive audience. Mrs. S. Elizabeth Harvey, took the prize. The Swayzee ladies entertained the convention in a most royal manner. The fine new M. E. Church was opened throughout for our comfort and convenience. The spacious audience room with piano, tables, easy chairs, and a smiling committee of lovely White Ribboners made the stay of delegates in the city one to be remembered. At noon each day the hungry multitude was invited to the large dining room in the basement and served a good dinner. All came away feeling happy, and hoping for still greater victories in the future for Grant County.

SOME REASONS WHY THE W. C. T. U. STANDS FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

Because God created humanity free and equal. Because the mere accident of sex is an unfair qualification for citizenship.

Because "governments derive their just powers from the consent governed."

Because in a representative republic the ballot is the only direct, orderly and effective method of expressing the views of the people on governmental questions.

Because "taxation without representation is tyranny," therefore those who financially support a government and are amenable to its laws should have a voice in their making.

Because women possess the proper qualifications for citizenship, i. e., intelligence, patriotism and loyalty to the best interests of the country.

Because an enfranchised womanhood would reach a higher plane of mental and moral ability, since responsibility educates.

Because women have interests which need special representation. Men can not fitly represent women. Women need the ballot to protect property, person and children.

Because the State needs the woman element. Government is now one-sided. The State should be an enlarged family.

Because the ballot is the only weapon which can kill the saloon, the chief enemy of the home. Prayers, moral suasion, social agencies and all other influences directed against the saloon power are, in the last analysis, triumphant only as they crystalize in the ballot box.

Franchise Victories.

Seventy years ago women could not vote anywhere, except to a very limited extent in Sweden and a few other places in the old world. Now they have equal political rights in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Idaho in the United States, and in New Zealand, Isle of Man, Australia and Tasmania, while many states and countries have conferred limited suffrage. The privilege has been granted as follows:

1838—Kentucky, school suffrage to widows with children of school age.

1850—Ontario, school suffrage to women, both married and single.

1861—Kansas, school suffrage to all women.

1867—New South Wales, municipal suffrage.

1869—Wyoming, full suffrage; England, municipal suffrage to single women and widows; Victoria, municipal suffrage to women, married and single.

1871—West Australia, municipal suffrage.

1875—Michigan and Minnesota, school suffrage.

1876—Colorado, school suffrage.

1877—New Zealand, school suffrage.

1878—New Hampshire and Oregon, school suffrage.

1879—Massachusetts, school suffrage.

1880—Isle of Man, full suffrage; New York and Vermont, school suffrage; South Australia, municipal suffrage.

1881—Scotland, municipal suffrage to single women and widows.

1882—Iceland, limited municipal suffrage to single women and widows.

1883—Nebraska, school suffrage.

1884—Tasmania, municipal suffrage; Ontario, and Nova Scotia, limited municipal suffrage to single women and widows with property.

1885—Wisconsin, school suffrage, but inoperative until 1901.

1886—Washington, school suffrage; New Zealand, municipal suffrage; Manitoba, municipal suffrage to single women and widows.

1887—Kansas, Nova Scotia and Manitoba, municipal suffrage; North and South Dakota, Montana, New Jersey and Arizona, school suffrage; Montana, tax-paying women, a vote on all questions submitted to tax-payers.

1888—New Brunswick, British Columbia and Northwest Territory, municipal suffrage to single women and widows with property; England county suffrage.

1889—Scotland, county suffrage; Providence of Quebec, municipal suffrage to single women and widows.

1891—Illinois, school suffrage.

1893—Colorado and New Zealand, full suffrage; Connecticut, school suffrage.

1894—Ohio, school suffrage; Iowa, limited municipal suffrage; England, parish and district suffrage to all women.

1895—South Australia, full suffrage.

1896—Utah and Idaho, full suffrage.

1898—Ireland, municipal and county suffrage; Minnesota, vote for library trustee; Delaware, school suffrage to tax-paying women; Louisiana, tax-paying women, a vote upon all questions submitted to the tax-payers; France, women engaged in commerce the right to vote for judges of tribunals of commerce.

1900—West Australia, full parliamentary suffrage.

1901—Wisconsin, school suffrage law of 1885 made operative by second law providing ballot boxes for women; New York, tax-paying women a vote on questions of local taxation in third class cities, and in villages and townships; Norway, municipal suffrage to tax-paying women.

1902—New South Wales, full suffrage; Federated Australia, full parliamentary suffrage to her 800,000 women; women may be elected to parliament and hold any elective national office.

1903—Kansas, bond suffrage; Tasmania, full suffrage.

The above is quoted from the official leaflet of the Franchise Department of the National W. C. T. U. Superintendent Dr. Meade McLlvain Sanders, 924 Park avenue, Racine, Wis.

WORLD'S CONVENTION SEATS.

The arrangement for seats in Tremont Temple, Boston, during the World's W. C. T. U. convention is as follows:

Front rows of first balcony, $3.00; remaining rows of first balcony, excepting back row, also the first row in upper balcony, $2.00; back row in first balcony two or three rows in upper balcony, $1.00. There will be about a thousand free seats on the floor of the house and in the upper balcony.

Applications for tickets will be filed as quickly as possible after May 15. Should the demand for $3.00 seats be greater than the supply, $2.00 tickets will be substituted and $1.00 refunded, and likewise with the $2.00 supply wherever possible, unless requests to the contrary are sent with the application. Friends wishing to be together will please send their application as one order, and with one address only. No application can be filled unless accompanied with remittance. It is not safe to send currency; enclose drafts on Boston banks or postal or express money orders. All seats are transferable.

Every effort will be made to meet individual preferences. When, however, because of a large demand, this may not be possible, be assured that the next best possible thing will be attempted.

E. J. HERALD,

Treasurer Convention Committee, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Dear Madam:—A very liberal donation was made in the month of February by the various Unions of the city to one of our most worthy institutions, The Woman's Christian Home, amounting to something over sixteen dollars, besides a shower of various household articles, which was highly appreciated by the matron, also at the same time, a donation of five dollars was given by an aged lady who is a friend of that institution. Our Union also observed the Red Letter Day in February, the occasion being the heavenly birthday of Frances E. Willard.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. LILLIE HALL,

THE CRUSADER MONTHLY.

The best young people's temperance paper. Sixteen pages, and only 25 cents a year. Premiums—books, watches, cameras, lockets, knives—for subscriptions secured. Sample copies for the asking. Address, The Crusader Monthly, Evanston, Ill.

IS YOUR UNION ON THE HONOR LIST?

Is it entitled to place there? May 3, we will begin the publication of a new Honor List in The Union Signal, repeating the list each month, if possible, until Convention, adding to the list each month the additional Unions reported. This Honor List, in a more complete form, will also be prominently displayed at Hartford convention.

Every local Union having a subscription list equal to or exceeding 25 per cent of its membership is entitled to a place on this list. In order to list your Union, we must have, (1) A statement from your local Union Treasurer, signed by your President, of the number of dues-paying members in the Union; (2) A list of your subscribers to The Union Signal, with postoffice address of each, signed by your local Union Signal representative or your President. Subscriptions which expire before November 1, 1906, will not be counted.

If your Union is entitled to a place on this list, send us the required statements at once. To appear on the June list, we must have the necessary information on or before May 28th. If your Union has not the required proportion of subscribers, suppose you secure them before another month comes.

Address The Union Signal, Evanston, Ill.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Goshen Union mourns the death of Mrs. Adam P. Daub, who for about twelve years was an efficient active member. Mrs. Daub was especially zealous in the press department. She leaves besides her husband, one son and a step daughter. She was a member of St. Johns Catholic church where the funeral was held.

THE MESSAGE.

"Not by Might nor by Power, but by My Spirit."

VOL. XI. No. 7.

ANDERSON, IND., JUNE, 1906.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35c PER YEAR

MRS. MARY H. HUNT PROMOTED.

Mrs. Mary H. Hunt was born July 4, 1830, in Connecticut, her maternal ancestor was a direct descendant of the English Cavalier, Edward Winslow who came to this country on the May Flower and was one of the early governors of the Plymouth Colony. She was also a descendant of the Godly Thomas Thacher, a learned physician and eminent divine, the first pastor of the old South Church, Boston.

Mrs. Hunt was educated in Maryland and was married to Leander B. Hunt of Douglas, Mass., in 1852. They had one son only, the late Captain Alfred E. Hunt who was the comfort and solace of his lonely mother's heart for many years. Captain Hunt was able and accomplished, he was connected with the aluminum industry of Pittsburgh and Niagara.

Dr. A. H. Plumb says: "This justly celebrated young scientist, an expert chemist and successful manufacturer, was heart and soul in the work of his mother, herself a professor of chemistry before her marriage and until he gave his life to his country in the Spanish War, exemplified and assisted her pious philanthropic qualities and achievements.

Miss Frances J. Willard was guest of Mrs. Hunt's in 1879 and after listening to Mrs. Hunt's presentation of her convictions, regarding temperance and teaching in the schools Miss Willard invited her to come to the National W. C. T. U. to be held in Indianapolis that Autumn and present her plans, which invitation she accepted. Miss Willard was then corresponding secretary of the National Union. It seems that it is significant that in Indianapolis Miss Willard was for the first time elected president of the National W. C. T. U. and that Mrs. Mary H. Hunt should appear in the interest of the temperance education for the first time at the same convention in Indianapolis. Mrs. Hunt was made chairman of a committee to carry out her ideas of Scientific Temperance Instruction in the public schools. The next year this was made a department with Mrs. Hunt as superintendent. Mrs. Hunt proposed compulsory instruction on scientific study of the nature and effects of alcoholic drinks and other narcotics in connection with physiology and hygiene for pupils in all public schools; drafted the laws for compulsory scientific temperance education now on statute books of Congress, all States of the Union and some providences of Canada and other countries. She personally conducted the campaigns which secured enactments of these laws, appearing as they advocate before Congress and the legislatures of States.

Mrs. Hunt was first vice president of International Anti-Alcoholic Congress, Brussels under auspices of King of Belgium, 1897, and at Bremen April, 1903. She was superintendent of scientific temperance instruction for the National and World's W. C. T. U., at the Los Angeles convention she was made Director of Bureau of Scientific Temperance Investigation.

Mrs. Hunt established, edited and published The School Physiology Journal, one of the greatest helps to teachers.

The Union Signal Says: "The story of the battle for scientific temperance instruction for the children of this country has been in a sense the life story of Mary H. Hunt."

Mrs. Hunt lived to receive the recognition and appreciation her work deserved. Especially was this true during the last year of her life when, a prisoner almost through weary months, repeated tokens of success came to cheer her waiting soul; the endorsement of her carefully prepared text-books by Medical Associations, as in Maine and elsewhere; Germany's imperial decree that they should be introduced into the elementary schools of the empire; the petition of 15,000 medical men of Great Britain for the enactment of the law; above all the recognition widespread and far-reaching of men of scientific attainment of the scientific accuracy of her latest books. Her interview with the Empress of Germany is well-known, but perhaps not so well-known is the fact that the empress is a total abstainer and ardently espouses the cause of saving the people from alcoholic drinks; she has brought up her own sons as total abstainers.

The Boston Transcript, in an editorial tribute to Mrs. Hunt, says:

"She has imbedded in the statute books of Congress much of her own handiwork, and West Point Academy and the Naval Academy and all the territories and the District of Columbia are obliged in any teaching supported by federal funds to give a prescribed quantum of instruction upon the physiological effects of alcohol.

"The 'Committee of Fifty,' with all the social, political and educational prestige of the authors, have detracted nothing from what they term, this educational exorcism. Ten years of effort and a voluminous report have accomplished nothing in removing scientific temperance instruction laws from the statute books in the United States.

"It is difficult to realize that the heroic Mary H. Hunt has laid down the work to which she was so devoted. Alert, keen, her mind as clear as ever, she did not falter almost up to the last week of her life. Then the storm and strain and stress of battle died away and she turned her face heavenward. 'Talk to me of heaven,' she said; 'I'm tired, I want to go.'"

Funeral services were held April 26 in Pilgrim Church, Dorchester, (Boston). The speakers were: Rev. W. H. Albright, D. D., pastor of the church; Rev. Perley B. Davis, Mrs. Hunt's former pastor in Hyde Park; Rev. Albert H. Plumb, D. D., pastor of the Walnut Avenue (Boston) Congregational Church and chairman of the Advisory Board of the department of Scientific Temperance Instruction, and Miss Anna A. Gordon, representing the World's and National W. C. T. U. Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, National President, was obliged to fill an important engagement in Canada and so could not be present.

"The workers fall but the work goes on." This saying, with which White Ribboners are want to close up ranks and press on, has already been beautifully illustrated in the pledges of fealty to Mrs. Hunt's work. The Executive committee of Massachusetts W. C. T. U., which attended the funeral service in a body, said in formal resolution:

"We pledge our own undeviating fidelity to the carrying forward of the great principles of total abstinence teaching for the children of our own and of all lands. We will not cease from our labors until the 'Star of hope of the Temperance Reform' which now 'stands over the school house,' shall shine in all phases of human life and temperance be recognized as a necessary element of righteousness."

And this from the New York Central Committee for Scientific Temperance Instruction, by Alfred L. Manierre, secretary:

"Great in mind, great in soul, great in heart, great in accomplishment. The blessing of her work will rest on untold generations of all races. With affection and admiration as a pledge to support and maintain the work established by her, we lay this tribute at her feet."

The committal at Forest Hills toward the setting of the sun on a beautiful April day, had in it all the elements of the victory immortal. Turning away from the open grave, one seemed to hear a voice between earth and heaven, saying, "It is finished," "I shall arise."

Gov. Beckham of Kentucky will help to enforce Sabbath Observance State law. Mayor Barth of Louisville has issued Sunday closing orders. Sunday closing will be seriously felt by some of the residents of Jeffersonville and New Albany who have been restrained by the Indiana law.

The saloon men will doubtless resist the law as unconstitutional and it is probable that test cases will be afforded.

The great need of this country is honest law enforcing officials and good men on the Bench.

$1,375 FOR INDIANA W. C. T. U.

First installment from the estate of Mayhew Davis. Miss Clara Sears, treasurer Indiana Woman's Christian Temperance Union has received $1,375 as the first installment of the W. C. T. U. share of the estate of Mayhew Davis, of Union County. It is thought the W. C. T. U. will get about $3,000 in all.

FROM OUR STATE PRESIDENT

My Dear County Laborers:—Many encouraging letters have come to my desk in the last two months and I feel sure if the organization work is kept up, the crusade for new members pushed and dues are collected from the old members carefully in the June and September quarters we will come up to the State convention with a handsome gain. For this, let us not only pray but labor.

I had the pleasure of spending twenty-two days in the counties in the south western part of the State. In many places where I visited the saloon has been put out by remonstrance and I found that our women had been loyal and helpful in the work. In every place, temperance sentiment is on the rise and the saloon keepers are beginning to realize that "Prohibition for Indiana" is no utopian dream nor fancy of fanatical women, but is an ideal toward which all Christian men and women are striving and to which the State is fast coming.

Only Judgment will reveal the great part the W. C. T. U. has played in this great reform. Gibson County comes in as an organized county this quarter with two new Unions, making four in all. Posey County also with two Unions and a most energetic President who is planning for others. Spencer County was organized with Mrs. E. C. Graham of Rockport as County President. An excellent Union was organized in Petersburg, Pike County, with twenty-one active and four honorary members. Rev. W. M. Whitt and wife of the M. E. Church had the plans all laid and a number of members pledged when I arrived. A minister in sympathy means much. Some of the most enthusiastic meetings held were in the high schools. Seed sown among these boys and girls will bring forth a bountiful harvest.

At Mt. Vernon we more than doubled the membership, and spent a most delightful Sabbath in the Presbyterian and German Methodist Churches.

I found in "the pocket" that our W. C. T. U. is composed of the cream of the churches, just as in every other part of the State.

May God help us to all be true to our God, our churches and our white ribbon.

CULLA J. VAYHINGER.

JAIL AND PRISON WORK.

Dear Sisters:—Who are interested in this special line of our work? Let me ask you to help me make this the very best year of our work. Will you please begin now with more interest than ever before?

Let us remember Flower Mission Day the ninth of June and strive to carry sunshine and gladness to the unfortunate prisoners.

Will you also send to Mrs. J. K. Barney of Providence, R. I., and to Mrs. Louisa Lametyn of Knoxville, Tenn., for tracts which are highly recommended by our National Superintendent to be used in our work.

Please direct your letters to me after the 10th of June to Marion R. R. No. 3.

Yours for service,
SALLIE SHUGART EDGERTON,

WORLDS W. C. T. U. CONVENTION, 1906, BOSTON, MASS., OCTOBER 17 TO 23. NATIONAL W. C. T. U. CONVENTION, 1906, HARTFORD, CONN., OCTOBER 26 TO 31.

The July Message will contain valuable information concerning "beer."

To thoroughly spread information concerning any phase of our W. C. T. U. work it is necessary to reach the women in the homes of all classes. This can only be done by a systematic visiting scheme. It can be done. By districts, by squares or by streets. The Union should have an abundance of literature on some one subject, short practical leaflets, then secure the volunteer helper to go into every house in a prescribed territory and with gracious greeting to the lady in the house present a leaflet explaining something of the breadth of the W. C. T. U. work. By such a course it will be found that quite a large per cent of home keepers do not know anything about our work, consequently are not interested. By personal interview they become interested and if the leaflet presented is on, beer, tobacco, Sabbath observance, alcoholic patent medicines or what—they will read it and then the members of that family will hear all about it at the next meal time.

In every Union there are women who offer themselves for the Master's service, many say I want to work for the temperance cause. Now there is one very effective manner of working and that is in carrying the information to the homekeepers. A small per cent of them are in our church services on Sunday, a still smaller per cent ever attend any kind of a temperance meeting. Many of them read very little along these lines so where are they to get the information that is so much needed in the homes of Indiana? We must take it to them—not a select few—no, to every house.

"I have not the time" is the universal reply to all requests. This work does not take as much time as it might at first appear, counting less than ten minutes at a home, and by going in the morning few will be out. At least one entire city block could be visited in one morning. Think of that! who could refuse!

THE FLOWER MISSION DAY.

The Flower Mission Day observance presents a fine opportunity for enlisting the help of young people and disinterested people. Musicians and readers will be especially helpful on a program for an institution.

From every class of society, flowers, fruits, jellies, candy and clothing should be solicited.

Rallies and Picnics arranged for July 4th with very wide advertisement will pre-empt the territory for temperance. Family picnic parties planned for such occasions get the young people imbued with temperance ideas.

At Island Park, Rome City, twenty miles north of Ft. Wayne the assembly management is more favorable to our temperance work and grants us more courtesies than any other in Indiana.

This year the W. C. T. U. has charge of the following departments with special workers. General Superintendent, Mrs. McWhirter; Mother's Meetings, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, State President of Indiana.

Parliamentary Law, Mrs. Emor L. Calkins, State President of Michigan.

Kindergarten, Miss Ruth Ransom, Chicago.

Physical Culture and Medal Contests, Miss Mary Evaly Evertson, Asbury College, Kentucky.

Expression and Physical Culture, Miss Charlotte Barnum, general secretary Loyal Temperance Legion of Michigan and national organizer of Loyal Temperance Legion.

The work in these departments will begin at the opening and be carried on by these superintendents during the entire assembly, closing with the W. C. T. U. Days, August 15-16.

The Program for these days will be especially strong; speakers, Mrs. Harriet W. Brand, national treasurer; Mrs. Vayhinger, our State President; Mrs. Calkins, Michigan's State President and Hon. George R. Stuart of Georgia.

An oratorical contest for a diamond medal with six contestants, two each from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

Miscellaneous programs showing the practical features of our kindergarten by having the entire school on the platform, illustrating their daily work. A parliamentary drill, physical culture, class work, fancy drills, reading, etc. Then a silver medal contest by Rome City resident contestants, members of families holding assembly tickets are admitted free into all classes.

For the workers a very large furnished cottage is provided as a home. Halls are provided for classes and meetings. Thus our W. C. T. U. becomes a very important feature in this chaqueta work.

Our great desire is for those who see the outlook in this aggressive work and can understand the possibilities to attend the assembly on W. C. T. U. days if at no other time.

Furnished cottages rent for $10 and $12 per week. Sylvan lake is smooth and safe, good boating and fishing wonderful opportunities for a week's rest, quiet and congenial company in a delightful place. One fare for round trip on steam cars. Interurban cars now run to Ft. Wayne.

No better place in Indiana for the boys and girls—safe water privileges, excellent well water and wholesome surroundings with splendid entertainment at auditorium every day—no Sunday desecration. For further information concerning cottages, board, etc., write to Rev. J. F. Snyder, secretary, LaGrange, Indiana.

W. C. T. U. Unions that will run excursions to Island park, Rome City on W. C. T. U. days can make it profitable to their treasuries and at the same time wonderfully help to spread the temperance gospel. To persons who contemplate arranging for an excursion, Rev. J. F. Snyder will give helpful information.

HON. JOHN G. WOOLLEY.

At a welcome home dinner at Chicago gives a graphic glimpse of a year's trip to the Orient. In part he said:

"It goes without saying that I am exceedingly glad to be back in my own country but we have had a wonderful inspiring year in the East. As never before I feel sure that the hope of the Prohibition movement in this country and at this time is that it has become a world movement and the leading thinkers and reformers in all countries are sharing in the movement against intoxicants. Not only here in America but throughout the world the people are beginning to be free to think and act. They are beginning to rebel against dishonest service. They are more informed regarding corruption and the liquor fraud than they ever were before. The attitude of the press but reflects this fact and is adding testimony to the truth of our progress.

Observations in New Zealand, Australia and the Philippines.

"My observation in the countries I have visited is that the temperance movement while different in form is gaining ground quite as rapidly in the East as it is in our own country. In New Zealand where the people vote every three years on the liquor traffic, the Prohibition poll has steadily increased for over fourteen years, and the overthrow of the license system in that country is now merely a question of three, six or at the most nine years' time. The immediate results of the election last fall were somewhat disappointing, although Prohibition polled a majority of all the votes cast, but the rule which required a three-fifths majority in favor in order to make Prohibition legal, prevented victory at this time, but there is no hesitation and the battle is going on.

"In Australia a great campaign is on. A law similar to the New Zealand privilege has just been placed upon the statute books.

"In the Philippines our government is absolutely disgraceful as regards drink. The drinking habits of many of the government officials have been a snare to the natives. The whole American colony in Manila, with rare exceptions as far as the drinking is concerned, is bad and it will take a long time for the evil influences of our previous island governor to be neutralized in that regard.

Surprised in China and Japan.

"China proved a great surprise to me. A warm welcome awaited us at Shanghai where enthusiastic meetings had been arranged and we were royally treated. Among the leading Chinese citizens are many who have been abroad and have returned greatly interested in the progress of the temperance reform and are doing their best to extend the total abstinence policy in the Celestial Empire.

"But when we reached Japan a still greater surprise awaited us. I never saw such eagerness to hear and absorb whatever information and facts we had to give them. The war was just over when we arrived there, and thousands of the Jap soldiers were returning from Manchurian battle fields, but strange as it may seem there was little or no drinking among them and for the most part it was as abstemious a crowd as a delegation of ministers in this country en route to some church conference. Our first point in Japan was Nagasaki, a mission colony where we had a strenuous ten days of it with two enthusiastic rallies every day. The Japanese young people are most appreciative and sympathetic, and they would listen to what I had to say without any regard as to what time it was when I began or when I might stop. Occasionally they would keep me at it for two, three, four and even five hours at a time, and were ready for another meeting of the same sort at the first possible moment thereafter. At Tokio and Yokohama we had many large and enthusiastic rallies at which hundreds of university young men were conspicuous by their interest and attention. The whole trend of Japanese thought seems to be in the direction of western ideas and western customs. Everywhere the warmest friendship was professed for America and Americans. If there is one thing that stands out above others on this trip it is that we have the best people in the world in this great fight wherever it is being carried on. Nothing could match their hospitality wherever we went and especially was this noticeable in our final meetings in Japan. At our last meeting in Tokio we were presented with a silk American flag with the Japanese flag fastened indissolubly to it and this token represented the feeling of our friends throughout our journey. Best of all to me was the evidence that the Christian people are leading in this great reform. The liquor men are coming to treat the church as synonymous with its most desperate enemies and a head-on collision is rapidly approaching.

A New Faith in Foreign Missions.

"On this trip I have been converted to a great practical faith in foreign missions and I now believe that the greatest investment of money and power that I have ever seen in the world is what is being put into the foreign missionary field. The movement is spreading everywhere, the idea that humanity is brotherhood; that brotherhood implies a fatherhood in God, and the result is an advantage to every moral reform.

"I found everywhere the greatest reverence for America as the mother of reforms. But I also found, especially in New Zealand, a more intimate knowledge with facts and figures of our progress than almost any of us can command at a moment's notice. It is the universal custom of a New Zealand audience to cross-examine the speaker either during or at the end of his address, and the only way he can protect himself against endless interruptions is by inviting inquiries for information at the close of his remarks. A Prohibition rally in New Zealand is not a social gathering.

ing but one for the generation of enthusiasm merely. It is an affair to which the people go for information and one has to have his logic and argument well in hand in order to satisfy his audience. The tantalizing thing about your interpreter in New Zealand is that he is always prepared to answer if you hesitate, but by being frank with them and friendly, it has been very easy to win their confidence and sympathy.

"In closing I believe we are entering upon the greatest period of victory in the Prohibition movement. The Prohibition party has won the attention of civilization to the liquor problem and if it never did anything else, it could rest upon this as the greatest victory it could possibly achieve.

"Let us go bravely on. I bid you all God speed."

OFFICIAL.

REPORT OF MID-YEAR MEETING.

Reports of mid-year meeting held in Central Avenue M. E. Church at Indianapolis.

The "Y" branch and the "Y" Union was discussed at length and many discouraging features were eliminated and the secretary encouraged to continue her efforts. Many young women belong to the "W's" and are doing good work. On motion of Miss Woodard, "Indiana's plan of organization was amended so to read "that when a worker gave a lecture at night that the sum of $2.00 be added to the allowance of $1.00, making a sum total of $3.00 per day."

Mrs. Mary Moody was present and offered to have some most excellent literature sent to any County President leaving her name and address.

Mrs. Gipe of Marion County presented the subject of Headquarters for Marion County and asked the State to co-operate and receive a share in its benefits. The following committee was appointed to consult with the county: Mrs. Culla Vayhinger, Mrs. Lida Outland and Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall.

On motion of Mrs. Gipe the general officers were instructed to consult an able attorney before leaving the city and learn what steps should be taken to change the Constitution of the State of Indiana favorable to woman suffrage.

The treasurer's report was very encouraging; all bills paid to date and a fair balance to begin the next quarter.

The difficulty of members receiving their State paper, The Message, is greatly diminished under the careful oversight of our State treasurer.

Twenty new unions have been organized since the State Convention. A few counties have not been heard from this "first six months," and many Unions as yet have sent in no dues.

County presidents were instructed to discourage the habit of paying dues in partial payments because of the State paper not being due them until all was paid.

Miss Woodard had found much difficulty in making dates for the organizers because of the revival season, but had great hope that much work would be done in the ensuing months.

Amboy has two new Legions—Senior and Junior.

Because of a missionary convention being held in Elkhart in October—the month in which the State convention is held—the place of holding our convention was changed to Portland. Kokomo also gave an invitation.

Mrs. Thomas, Superintendent of Franchise, asked the co-operation of the committee in her department. Mattie Cammack Gibson, secretary.

MOTHERS' MEETINGS.

My tour of one week to the northwest part of the State was not all we could wish, but I am sure the Lord blessed our labors at every point. At Winamac we found good loyal souls who are not merely holding the fort, but are making an aggressive warfare on the enemy. We organized a White Ribbon Cradle Roll and will perhaps go to them again.

At Knox we held two good meetings and organized a Union of eighteen regular and four honorary members.

At Brookston we met our faithful Mrs. Allie Anderson who was made President of the Union I organized there. They decided for their first work to organize an L. T. L. Will Mrs. Mix please send them some helps and instruction.

A sister writes me that on her return home after several months' absence she was informed that the State had dropped the department of Mothers' Meetings. Not so. Ladies over the State have written me that the Mothers' Meetings are better attended and more enthusiastically attended than any of the department meetings. Certainly we can not ignore the mothers and children if we want to build up a holy nation. The nation is built by the homes. If the homes are good, pure and right the nation will be a God loving and God honoring nation. Hold Mothers' Meetings. Elevate the home, and you will elevate the nation.

May God bless every Superintendent and multiply the number.

Lovingly,
MRS. S. M. STAHL,
State Supt. Mothers' Meetings.

CLARK AND FLOYD INSTITUTE.

Great interest was taken in the Institute at New Albany. Day sessions were held in the First Presbyterian Church. Evening sessions in Park Christian and Centenary M. E. Churches. The address of welcome was given by Miss Spangler, President of Clark County. Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall, Institute Leader did good and efficient work.

What can young people's societies do to promote civic righteousness? The home training of children—Should our children be educated with saloon money? Hindrances to law Enforcement and How Should Christians Observe the Lord's Day?, were among the topics ably discussed by members and friends of the Union. A number of members taking part in the discussion.

The Institute closed with a silver medal oratorical contest. The medal was won by Mrs. Anna Coleman of New Albany.

The success of the Institute is largely owing to the zeal and energy of Mrs. Anna Jones the long-time faithful President of Floyd County.

Several accessions were made to the membership.

FROM CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

Dear Comrades:—Since my last report to The Message the following Unions have been organized: Plymouth, Marshall County organized by Mrs. Shedd; White Oak, Oakland and Walnut Corner, Jay County and Carp, Owen County, organized by Mrs. Stanley; Grandview, Spencer County and Connersville, Fayette County, organized by Miss Woodard; Smithville, Monroe County, organized by Mrs. O. N. Siekenha; Stones' Crossing, Johnson County and New Salem, Rush County, organized by Mrs. Kroft; Hazleton and Francisco, Gibson County, and Petersburg, Pike County, organized by Mrs. Vayhinger; Wabash Wabash County and Roanoke, Huntington County, organized by David Burwell; Cochran, Dearborn County, organized by Mrs. Hall; Chrisney, Spencer County, organized by Mrs. Hawk, Mrs. Hackleman and Mrs. Graham of Rockport; Dumkirk, Jay County, organized by former members; Charlestown, Clark County, organized by Miss Bertrude Spangler; Knox, Starke County and Brookston, White County, organized by Mrs. Stahl; Petersburg, Bartholomew County, organizer not reported; Summitville, Madison County, organized at time of County Institute.

In addition to these local Unions, Gibson, Spencer and Posey Counties, organized by Mrs. Vayhinger, and Owen County organized by Mrs. Stanley, we have four county Unions.

Now dear sisters this is a fairly good record in organization but not what your Corresponding Secretary has hoped for. Will you not resolve with me that we must have fifty new Unions before the State convention.

There are many places in the State in which the women might be interested in our work if only it were presented to them. Many of you have friends and acquaintances in unorganized places and now will you not as soon as you read this send me a postal card giving the name and addresses and I will try to interest them in arranging for one of our organizers. Several of the Unions organized this year were secured in this way, and with your co-operation we may double the membership before the State convention. As soon as this appears in The Message I shall look for a postal card "shower" and shall be delighted if it comes thick and fast.

Many Unions over the State have made splendid gains already this year, and are still trying for more, but so many failed to report dues last quarter that the showing on our treasurer's books was disappointing. Will you not urge your local treasurers to be careful to collect dues this quarter and report on time that we may know more nearly how we stand with reference to membership. We must not fall below 1,000 gain this year, but we will have to work hard in order to bring our gain to the 1,000 mark. The Loyal White Ribboners of Indiana will do their utmost I am sure.

Yours for victory,
MARY E. WOODARD.

FIELD NEWS

Warren Union boasts of a senior L. T. L. of 73 members and a junior L. T. L. of 50. A professor and two high school teachers are members and add much to the interest of the meetings. Pledge signing is an interesting feature among the members. Through the influence of the Flower Mission department there have been several conversions. Mothers' meetings are among the most interesting meetings held. One public meeting has been given and several temperance sermons preached, and temperance and Sabbath observance literature has been distributed. Superintendents are all at work.

Markle Union is doing efficient home work. It has held four public meetings since the State convention, and meetings are held regularly every two weeks. It has looked after druggists who are defying the law, and causing their arrests, also had an undesirable club house closed. When there are any evil deeds committed in the town the people will ask "Where is the W. C. T. U.'s, what will they do?" So it is to be seen that something is expected of the little city's "safety guard" and it is making itself felt.

The County Executive secured the services of Mr. Burwell on March 20th, for two addresses at Roanoke. These were well received and as a result Roanoke Union was reorganized with eleven active members and fourteen honorary members. Eleven departments of work were provided for. The Union starts out with fair prospects of success. The temperance people of Roanoke and vicinity recently succeeded by remonstrance in wiping out the saloon leperous spots of their town. The county plans to work in harmony with State plans. An increase of 100 active members and at least double its number of Unions is its aim for the year. Steps are being taken to organize Unions at several new points in the county.

The Morgan County W. C. T. U. Institute opened April 9th, commencing at 1:30 p. m. with four Unions represented. County Pres. Mrs. S. P. Toner in her usual hearty manner welcomed the ladies to which the leader, Mrs. Haughton kindly responded, and throughout the session fully explained the evangelistic work and other departments of the organization. Mrs. Thompson of Mooresville read an exceptionally good paper on Sabbath observance, and the discussions that followed were very helpful to those present. At night a silver medal contest, participated in by five matrons drew a large crowd. The numbers were all good and highly pleasing to the audience. Those who contested were Mesdames Wemer and Haase of Mooresville, Mesdames Woodcock of Martinsville. Solos by Misses Harvey and Latta of Mooresville and Mrs. W. A. Tulie Isenhower, Veda Maunaa and Edward Schaeffer were interspersed throughout the program, and while the judges were out a selection by Miss Edythe Magerlin was enjoyed. Mrs. Latta of Mooresville was the successful contestant. The Institute convened again at 9:00 o'clock, April 11th. After a very interesting Bible reading by the leader and after presenting the need of our temperance periodicals, a very interesting feature of the morning session was a Parliamentary drill by Mrs. Mary Utter. Mrs. Mary Green gave a fine talk on the evil effects of the pool room upon our young men, giving in a very impressive manner a personal experience which brought out the law on these things, thereby urging mothers to keep informed as to the law and save the boys. The educational department of the W. C. T. U. was made very plain under the direction of the leader which was followed by a delightful recitation by Mrs. J. E. Kennedy on "Mixing Politics and Religion," which greatly pleased the audience. The afternoon session opened with devotions, followed by Rev. M. W. Yocum on the trend of the "Current Events and their Portents. Mrs. Rena Woodcock gave a touching recitation, followed by Rev. R. H. Moore on "How to Make our Work Felt in our Own Town and Community. Bro. M. L. Gillespie entered very much into the spirit of the meeting and took up the thought where others left off on the "Unity of the Temperance Forces." Would that we had space to give here the words of cheer and helpfulness that these three good brothers gave, the thoughts they presented were plain facts and highly appreciated as the discussions showed at the finish of each talk. A paper on how to make the press serve the temperance cause was read by Mrs. Q. A. Blankenship. A very interesting paper on how to increase attendance at our meetings by Mrs. O. E. Grove and an exceedingly touching production from the pen of Mrs. W. A. Woodcock on Frances Willard was read to a very attentive audience. With but one exception every number on the program was filled, making the Institute a success. Nearing the close of the meeting Miss Martha Yokey favored the audience with a pleasing recitation, "Antie Doleful." After disposing of business the Institute adjourned feeling that it was good to have been there and learned more of the W. C. T. U. methods. At 7:30 Mrs. Elizabeth Houghton addressed the people of the M. E. Church where they were holding Lenten revival services.

A Silver Medal contest was held at Summitville with special musical numbers interspersed. Proceeds, $16.00. Medal won by Gilbert Luzzader. Bloomington Union observed Press Day with appropriate program.

Rummage sale proceeds, $30.50.

Committee on organization reported a new Union at Smithville and authorized to organize at Ellettsville.

The unlawful liquor selling in Bloomington was discussed. Mrs. Lela Carey was received into the Union.

This college town needs aggressive temperance work and The Message congratulates the membership of this Union on its aggressiveness. —Editor.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, our dear State Vice President has been bereft of her mother. She was promoted after a long illness. For some time Mrs. Stanley was with her in her home in Tennessee.

After June 1st Mrs. Stanley will be available for field work.

Dearborn County, two days Institute was held at Cochran; Mrs. Rynerson, county president, presiding; Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall, leader.

Representatives were present from Cold Springs, Lawrenceburg, Moores Hill and Bright, with good reports from each Union.

"How should Christians observe the Lord's Day with regard to business houses?" was ably handled by Rev. S. E. Davies. Following that Mr. Lindsay presented the abuses of the Sunday by Sunday mails, trains, papers and games. A special feature was a parliamentary drill by Mrs. Hall which was greatly enjoyed.

Sunday School work was presented by Mrs. C. A. Gordon of Moores Hill and evangelistic work by Mrs. J. M. Evans. "The Church Moving in a solid Phalanx Against its Deadliest Foe," was the subject of an excellent address by Rev. H. G. Wilkinson.

A fine paper on "Hindrances to law enforcement" by Mrs. O. E. Faulkner of Moores Hill was read.

A very comprehensive paper on "The home training of children," was read by Mrs. Louise S. Davis.

"The training of children to helpfulness and Christianity," was presented by Mrs. Lambertson of Moores Hill in a very interesting manner.

Mrs. Henrietta Cochran, of Moores Hill read an excellent paper on "The effects of alcohol on the system."

Rev. C. T. White of Dillsboro spoke entertainingly on "The Patriotism of Women."

On the first evening a Ribbon Lecture was given by Mrs. Mary Hadley Hall to a very large and interested audience.

On the second evening a medal contest was held, medal awarded to Miss Margaret Webb.

During the Institute a W. C. T. U. was organized among the Cochran ladies with the following officers: President, Mrs. Mary Fauss; vice president, Mrs. Anna Jarvis; recording secretary, Miss Rachel Clause; corresponding secretary, Miss Mamie Green; treasurer, Mrs. Clara Drake. Mrs. Ella Lindsay, organist. Thus Dearborn County will come up to next State convention with a splendid showing of active Unions.

That Honor List—Did you see it in the May 3 and June 7 issues of the Union Signal? Was your State well represented? Was your Union there? If not, be sure to let us hear from you in time for next month's list.

If your Union has a subscription list to The Union Signal equal to 25 per cent or more of its membership, it is entitled to a place on the Honor List. Please read carefully the following:

Requirements—To place your Union on this list, July 5, we must have in this office on or before June 25, 1906, the following information:

(1) A statement from the local treasurer, signed by the president, of the number of dues-paying members in the Union.

(2) A list of your subscribers to The Union Signal, with post office address of each, signed by your Union Signal representative.

Subscriptions which expire before November 1, 1906, will not be counted.

Address: The Union Signal, Evanston, Ill.

The Hartsville W. C. T. U. gave a reception on the evening of May 12th at the home of Mrs. Minerva Cummins in honor of the 23 new members lately received and the contest classes one of young ladies and one of young gentlemen. After a short program, refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, and coffee were served. The Union is doing good work under the leadership of Mrs. S. C. Smalley as president.

Madison County Institute was held at Summitville, one day, May 4, under the leadership of Mrs. Rose Pearce.

All Unions were represented. Mrs. Pearce gave a very encouraging report of work in other counties.

The morning was devoted to the business of the county and a short consecration service, the program followed in the afternoon.

Evangelistic work was well discussed by Mrs. Starky, Superintendent of Sunday School work.

"How to double our membership" was treated rather negatively by Mrs. Ritter Jones. She seems rather to favor the small (if need be) but thoroughly consecrated band of earnest praying women to the larger number who give their names and sometimes their presents to the Union but take no special interest in the work.

Summitville being an unorganized place a new Union with 13 members was organized with Mrs. Willis P. Peele as President.

Rev. Lacy gave a very good talk on "How can a Union of Temperance Forces be Secured" with many pertinent suggestions on the subject.

The Allen County W. C. T. U. Institute was held in the M. E. Church at Monroeville.

President Mrs. J. F. Kinsey in the chair. Mrs. J. W. Van Buskirk of the Boston Union, led the devotions. Mrs. Lucy Youse reported the work done by the Boston Union. Mrs. Protzeller reported for "Willard Union" of Ft. Wayne. Reports of Superintendents of Departments were given showing much work done.

Mrs. Rose Pearce, Institute Leader, followed with many helpful suggestions and plans for future work.

The financial business of the Institute was followed by dinner in the church parlors served by the ladies of Section 1, Boston Union.

In the afternoon the Institute was formally organized. Miss Ida McIntosh of Hoagland as secretary. Committees appointed.

Mrs. J. F. Kinsey, in a few well-chosen words, bade all welcome. Mrs. Pearce responded in a happy vein.

"Evangelistic work, when and how" was discussed by Mrs. Emily McIntosh of Hoagland and Mrs. Pearce. Many good thoughts were brought out on this subject. "How to increase the attendance at our meetings" was considered by Mrs. Barnhart and was participated in by several.

"How to make the Press serve the Temperance cause" was presented by Mrs. M. S. Amos, State Superintendent of Press Work of Kansas who gave an interesting short address.

A touching solo was sung by Mrs. J. B. Miller. The Loyal Temperance Legion was enthusiastically presented by Mrs. Ridenour of Ft. Wayne who is devoted to the work.

At 7:30 o'clock the evening session convened. Mrs. Lucy Youse, local President, conducted the devotions.

A reading by Mrs. Hubler, a recitation by Virgil Youse and music preceeded the very able and interesting address by Rev. Rowand of Ft. Wayne, which was listened to with interest by the large and attentive audience.

The music by the orchestra and the Elysian Quartette was highly appreciated and added much to the pleasure and interest of the evening.

Second day of the Institute Mrs. N. W. Bloom of Ft. Wayne conducted the devotions, reading a number of selections compiled by Miss Willard. Rev. Powers of the U. B. Church followed with a few remarks and prayer.

Mrs. Hubler presented the Sunday School work. Mrs. Martin followed with a paper on the evil effects of pool rooms on our young men which created much interest, several taking part in the discussion.

Progressive county work was ably presented by Mrs. J. W. Burns, followed by Mrs. Pearce who explained State plans and offered many valuable suggestions.

In the afternoon Mrs. Protzeller of Ft. Wayne read a paper on Pure Food Laws which was excellent. A motion was made that the paper be presented for publication.

Motion carried.

Mrs. Walter Burns read a paper on The Patriotism of Women. Is it Worthy of Expression at the Ballot Box? If any had doubts on the subject they surely should have been dispersed by Mrs. Burns' talk.

The Institute was then favored by a solo by Louella Youse, a wee tot of 5, who sang beautifully. The trend of current events were discussed with much interest by Rev. Martin. This was followed by a very interesting discussion of "How to make our Influence Felt in our Own Community?" Mrs. Lucy Youse opened the discussion with a few appropriate remarks. Rev. Robinson of Dixon, Ohio, followed with a talk on the situation in Kansas where he had been located. Father Conroy of St. Rose Church stated the position of the church on the Temperance question and told of great good being accomplished by the Total Abstinence Society of the Catholic Church. His remarks were listened to with marked attention and appreciation. Rev. Powers of the U. B. Church followed; he too bade us be of good cheer. Mrs. Gibson, superintendent of Sunday School work also gave us encouragement.

Mrs. Bertha Youse sang a solo and Mrs. J. B. Miller then gave a humorous reading in which "Samantha" convinces "Josiah" of the necessity of one standard for "Tirza Ann" and "Thos. Jefferson."

The necessary business was then transacted and the committee on resolutions made an excellent report.

On the second evening there were some fine musical numbers and a good address by Mrs. Rose Pearce, closing the most successful Institute ever held in Allen County.

Clay County Institute met in the First Christian Church at Brazil. Representatives from the three Unions in the county were present, earnest and enthusiastic.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haughton, leader, County President, Mrs. Dora Keith.

Mrs. Haughton gave helpful and interesting suggestions, and helped the different Unions with her words of encouragement and advise for future work.

The papers and short talks were all very helpful and interesting, especially the address given by Miss Fry of Clay City on "Our Sainted Leader." Having been a personal friend of Miss Frances Willard, she revealed Miss Willard's beautiful character, and told of many circumstances in her life in such a manner as to completely captivate her audience.

The ministers of the different churches attended the Institute and expressed a desire to work with the Unions in their great work of reform.

Eight new members were received. Six subscriptions to the Union Signal. Twelve subscribers to the Crusader Monthly, and three to the Mothers' Magazine.

A splendid recital was given the last evening of the Institute, Mrs. Elizabeth Haughton closing the session with a short talk and prayer.

CAREY BARD,
Co. Sec. Pro-tem.

The Huntington County Institute was very helpful lead by the warm hearted Mrs. Pearce and every minute was enjoyed. Mrs. Pearce's address on the first evening called forth much compliments for her ability. Tuesday was mostly spent with the departments of work. Instruction and minute was enjoyed. Mrs. Pearce's address on attention fine. The Institute closed Tuesday evening with a matron's silver medal contest. Mrs. H. G. Smith of Huntington was awarded the prize.

Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, State President organized a Union of about ten members at North Madison, Jefferson County in September, 1905. Since the organization the Union has held nine regular business meetings, once a month. A public Union Temperance meeting conducted by Rev. T. A. Childs, pastor of the Baptist Church, one lecture "The Holy City" given by Prof. Bonnell of North Vernon, one silver medal oratorical contest and one meeting under the management of Miss Mayme Wray, superintendent of Contest Department, all of these meetings have been well attended and great interest manifested.

The Hamilton County Institute was held at Sheridan. Owing to the death of her mother, the leader Mrs. Stanley was not present. Although great disappointment was manifested as train after train arrived bringing no news from our expected leader, yet the women of the county arose to the occasion and the work of the Institute was taken up and carried forward in its regular order.

On the evening of the 17th a gold medal contest in oratory and a vocal silver medal contest was held. Mrs. Amia Northam of Sheridan won the gold medal prize and Mrs. Sydney Carey the silver.

Great interest in the W. C. T. U. work is being manifested in the county in both the local and county organizations and a great desire to learn the methods is shown by its many new members.

The Wells County Institute was held in the Baptist Church in Bluffton. Attendance from the several Unions of the county was very good. Mrs. Goodin, County President gave an encouraging report of the work in general.

Mrs. Rose Pearce, leader, was faithful in instructing, helpful in encouraging words, and by her hopeful outlook for the future of the work. She was handicapped in her lecture and we were disappointed more than pen can portray in not being able to get for her the hearing she should have had because of an Elks' minstrel which packed the opera house until standing room was at a premium. The young people and the voters that we hoped to hear Mrs. Pearce were at the show. Mrs. Pearce held the individual attention of her interested audience.

Several ministers were in attendance during the Institute, among them being the Christian minister, Rev. Harrington who in his talk on current events and their portent, gave no uncertain sound as to where he stood on this great question inasmuch that Mrs. Pearce had the honor of pinning on him the white ribbon as soon as he had finished his speech. He has only resided in Bluffton a few months and he said that shortly after he came here a brother minister told him he had best not antagonize the saloons too much or "you may have to move." He said "If that be so I am ready to move."

Rev. Martin of the Baptist Church also gave an address.

Rev. Galbraith was present throughout the session and proved himself not only a "minute man" but a man true to his conviction and to the principles of right.

Mrs. Walker talked on the Patriotism of Women is it Worthy of Expression at the Ballot Box? and we are quite sure if there were any disbelievers there they carried away an awful load of conviction if they were not converted.

Mr. Geo. Cotton who has earned the sobriquet "Temperance whirlwind" because when they are least expecting it he walks into some saloon and find minors there, or after "closing" hours and finds them open, whereupon he gives them a little taste of law, cheered us by his presence. This man is doing the cause untold good and to show their appreciation Wells County Unions are donating him money, and they also gave him ten dollars out of the County Treasury. He donned the white ribbon.

Glen Walmer won the grand gold medal.

SCIENTIFIC TESTIMONY ON BEER

From Speech by Senator J. H. Gallinger, M. D.,
Congressional Record, Opinions of Leading Physicians.

The alarming growth of the use of beer among our people, and the spreading delusion among many who consider themselves temperate and sober, that the encouragement of beer drinking is an effective way of promoting the cause of temperance and of aiding to stamp out the demon rum, impelled the Toledo Blade to send a representative to a number of the leading physicians of Toledo to obtain their opinions as to the real damage which indulgence in malt liquors does the victim of that form of intemperance.

Every one is not only a gentleman of the highest character, but is a physician whose professional abilities have been severely tested, and received the stamp of the highest indorsement by the public and their professional brethren. More skillful physicians are not to be found anywhere. We have not selected those of known temperance principles. What they say of beer is not colored by any feeling for or against temperance, but it is the cold, bare experience of men of science who know whereof they speak.

A Beer Drinking City.

Toledo is essentially a beer drinking city. The German population is very large. Five of the largest breweries in the country are here. Probably more beer is drunk, in proportion to the population, than in any other city in the United States. The practice of these physicians is, therefore, largely among beer drinkers, and they have had abundant opportunities to know exactly its bearing on health and disease.

Every one bears testimony that no man can drink beer safely, that it is an injury to any one who uses it in any quantity, and that its effect on the general health of the country has been even worse than that of whisky. The indictment they with one accord present against beer drinking is simply terrible.

The devilish crushing a man in his long, winding arms, and sucking his blood from his mangled body, is not so frightful an assailant as this deadly but insidious enemy, which fastens itself upon its victim, and daily becomes more and more the wretched man's master, and finally dragging him to his grave at a time when other men are at their prime of mental and bodily vigor.

Beer Kills Quicker than Other Liquor.

Dr. S. H. Burgen, a practitioner 35 years, 28 in Toledo, says: "I think beer kills quicker than any other liquor. My attention was first called to its insidious effects when I began examining for life insurance. I passed as unusually good risks five Germans—young business men—who seemed in the best health, and to have superb constitutions. In a few years I was surprised to see the whole five drop off, one after another, with what ought to have been mild and easily curable diseases. On comparing my experience with that of other physicians I found they were all having similar luck with confirmed beer drinkers, and my practice since has heaped confirmation on confirmation.

"The first organ to be attacked is the kidneys; the liver soon sympathizes, and then comes, most frequently, dropsy or Bright's disease, both certain to end fatally. Any physician who cares to take the time will tell you that among the dreadful results of beer drinking are lockjaw and erysipelas, and that the beer drinker seems incapable of recovering from mild disorders and injuries not usually regarded of a grave character. Pneumonia, pleurisy, fevers, etc., seem to have a first mortgage on him, which they foreclose remorselessly at an early opportunity.

Beer Worse Than Whisky.

"The beer drinker is much worse off than the whisky drinker, who seems to have more elasticity and reserve power. He will even have delirium tremens, but after the fit is gone you will sometimes find good material to work upon. Good management may bring him around all right. But when a beer drinker gets into trouble it seems almost as if you have to recreate the man before you can do anything for him. I have talked this for years, and have had abundance of living and dead instances around me to support my opinions."

Beer Drinking Shortens Life.

Dr. S. S. Lungren, a leading homeopathic physician and surgeon, has practiced in Toledo 25 years: "It is difficult to find any part of the confirmed beer drinker's machinery that is doing its work as it should. This why their life cords snap off like glass rods when disease or accident gives them a little blow. Beer drinking shortens life. This is not a mere opinion; it is a well settled, recognized fact. Physicians and insurance companies accept this as unquestionably as any other undisputed fact of science. The great English physicians decide that the heart's action is increased 13 per cent in its efforts to throw off alcohol introduced into the circulation. The result is easily figured out. The natural pulse beat is, say, 76 per minute. If we multiply this by 60 minutes in an hour, and 24 hours in a day, and add 13 per cent, we find that the heart has been compelled to do an extra work during that time in throwing off the burden of a few drinks (4.8 ounces of alcohol) equal to 15.5 tons lifted one foot high."

Life Insurance Companies.

"The life insurance companies make a business of estimating men's lives, and can only make money by making correct estimates of whatever influences life. Here is a table they use in calculating how long a normal, healthy man will probably live after a given age.

Age	Expectancy.	Age	Expectancy.
20 years...	41.5 years	50 years...	20.2 years
30 years...	34.4 years	60 years...	13.8 years
40 years...	28.3 years	65 years...	11 years

"Now they expect a man otherwise healthy, who is addicted to beer, will have his life shortened from 40 to 60 per cent. For instance, if he is 20 years old and does not drink beer, he may reasonably expect to reach the age of 61. If he is a beer drinker, he will probably not live to be over 40 or 45, and so on."

Beer Drinking and Longevity.

The President of the Connecticut Mutual life Insurance Company—one of the oldest in the country—has for years been investigating the relation of beer drinking to longevity; or otherwise, whether beer drinkers are desirous risks to a life insurance company.

He declared, as the result of a series of observations carried on among a selected group of persons who were habitual drinkers of beer that although for two or three years there was nothing remarkable, yet presently death began to strike and then the mortality became astounding and uniform in its manifestations. There was no mistaking it; the history was almost invariable; robust, apparent health, full muscles, a fair outside, increasing weight, florid faces; then a touch of cold or a sniff of malaria, and instantly some acute disease, with almost invariable typhoid symptoms, was in violent action, and ten days or less ended it. It was as if the system had been kept fair on the outside, while within it was eaten to a shell, and at the first touch of disease there was utter collapse, every fiber was poisoned and weak. And this in its main features, varying in degree, has been his observations in beer drinking everywhere. It is peculiarly deceptive at first; it is thoroughly destructive at the last.

Beer Drinkers Unpromising Patients.

Dr. J. T. Woods: "That confirmed beer drinkers are especially unpromising patients, all practical surgeons agree."

Dr. S. S. Lungren: "Alcohol invites attacks of disease, and makes recovery from any attack or injury difficult."

Dr. C. A. Kirkley: "Sickness is always more fatal in beer drinkers, and serious accidents are usually fatal to them."

Dr. S. H. Burgen: "Beer drinkers are absolutely the most dangerous class of subjects a surgeon can operate on. Insignificant scratches are liable to develop a long train of dangerous troubles. Sometimes delirium tremens results from a small hurt. It is dangerous for a beer drinker to even cut his finger. All surgeons hesitate to perform operations on a beer drinker that they would undertake with the greatest confidence on anyone else."

"A Little Circle of Doctors."

Dr. S. S. Thorne: "If you could drop into a little circle of doctors, when they are having a quiet, professional chat, you would hear enough in a few minutes to terrify you as to the work of beer. One will say, 'What's become of So-and-So? I haven't seen him around lately?' 'Oh, he's dead.' 'Dead! What was the matter?' 'Beer.' Another will say, 'I've just come from Blank's. I am afraid its about my last call on him, poor fellow.' 'What's the trouble?' 'Oh, he's been a regular beer drinker for years.' A third will remark how ——— has just gone out like a candle in a draft of wind. 'Beer' is the reason given. And so on, till half a dozen physicians have mentioned five recent cases where apparently strong, hearty men, at a time of life when they should be in their prime, have suddenly dropped into the grave. To say there are habitual beer drinkers is sufficient explanation to any physician."

Beer Drinking Produces Rheumatism.

Dr. W. T. Ridenour: "Beer drinking produces rheumatism by producing chronic congestion and ultimately degeneration of the liver, thus interfering with the function by which the blood is elaborated and fitted for the sustenance of the body."

Dr. S. H. Burgen: "All beer drinkers have rheumatism, more or less, and no one can recover from it as long as he drinks beer. Notice how a beer drinker walks about stiff on his heels, without any of the natural elasticity and spring from the toes and ball of the foot that a healthy man should have. That is because the beer increases the lithia deposits about the smaller joints."

Beer Cripples the Liver.

Dr. S. H. Burgen: "The first effect on the liver is to congest and enlarge it. Then follows a low grade of inflammation and subsequent contraction of capsules, producing 'hob-nailed' or drunkard's liver, the surface covered with little lumps that look like nail heads on the soles of shoes. This develops dropsy. The congestion of the liver clogs up all the springs of the body, and makes all sorts of exertion as difficult and labored as it would be to run a clock, the wheels of which were covered with dirt and gum."

Liable to Die of Pneumonia.

Dr. W. T. Ridenour: "Beer drinkers are peculiarly liable to die of pneumonia. Their vital power of resistance, is so lowered that they are liable to drop off from any form of acute disease, such as fevers, pneumonia, etc. As a rule when a beer drinker takes the pneumonia he dies."

"My first patient was a saloon keeper, as fine a looking man physically as I had ever seen—tall, well built, about thirty-five, with clear eyes, florid complexion, muscles well developed. He had an attack of pneumonia in the lower lobe of the right lung, a simple, well-defined case, which I regarded very hopefully. Doctors are confident of saving nineteen out of twenty such cases. I told my partner so in the evening. To my surprise he said quietly he will die. I asked what made him think so. 'He is a beer drinker,' he answered. My patient began to recover from the attack on the lower lobe. Suddenly the disease lighted up in the middle lobe. Finally it attacked the other lung, and my patient succumbed."

Dropsy Induced by Beer Drinking.

Dr. M. H. Parmelee, physician and surgeon twelve years in Toledo, says: "The majority of saloon keepers die from dropsy, arising from kidney and liver diseases, induced by beer drinking. My experience has been that saloon keepers and men working around breweries are very liable to these diseases. When one of those apparently stalwart, beery fellows is attacked by a disorder that would not be regarded as at all dangerous in a person of ordinary constitution, or even a delicate, weakly child or woman, he is liable to drop off like an over-ripe apple from a tree. You are never sure of him a minute. He may not be dangerously sick today, and tomorrow be in his shroud. Most physicians, like myself, dread being called upon to take charge of the sick man who is an habitual beer drinker. The form of Bright's disease known as the swollen or large white kidney is much more frequent among beer drinkers than any other class of people."

Insanity Caused by Beer Drinking.

Dr. S. S. Lungren: "The brain and its membranes suffer severely, and after irritation and inflammation comes dullness and stupidity. There is no question in my mind that many brain diseases and cases of insanity are caused by excessive beer drinking."

Dr. C. A. Kirkley: "Under its influence the mental powers are more inactive than the physical. There is hardly a single cause that operates more powerfully in the production of in-

MEDAL CONTEST DEPARTMENT.

Dear Superintendents—I am sure you will understand that the summer months is the time for us to push the work in our department, and are doing all you can in the many avenues open to us. The Fourth of July, Picnics, Fairs, Summer Assemblies, Old Settlers' Reunions, Chautauquas, etc. If a sufficient number of medal holders can not be secured within your own county, let two or more counties join together, in forming classes for high grade medal, thus giving your contestants the opportunity to complete the course and receive their diplomas.

It is none too early to plan for high grade contests at county conventions.

We are very much encouraged with the work being done over the State this year, and hope to be able to bring a much better report to you in October, than last year.

Thanking you for your co-operation, I am,
Yours for contests,

MRS. JULIA OVERMAN,
State Supt.

LITERATURE.

Dear County President:—The year is slipping away and many of you have no Superintendent of Literature of course, if you live in a county where no one can read, you need none, otherwise a Superintendent of Literature is a necessity.

And now just a word to the Superintendents already appointed: The report blanks sent you from time to time are not souvenirs. Please do not regard them as such, but see that they are returned to me each quarter.

Literature and Franchise Day will soon be here. I hope you are planning great things for August 6th.

Dear ones, let us do our duty and do it promptly. Since the brewers have declared for temperance, it behooves us to make haste quickly if we would even help in this great cause.

Lovingly yours,

RETTA JONES,
State Superintendent,
Alexandria, Ind.

SUPERINTENDENTS' CONFERENCE.

The third section of the Superintendents of Marion County will be held Tuesday, June 19th at the Hyde Park Methodist Church. This will be an all day session, followed by an excellent program in the evening, addressed by Mrs. McWhirter. The departments represented are "Jail and Prison," "Purity in Literature and Art," "Fairs," "Railroad Work," "Mercy," "Household Economics" and "Loyal Temperance Legion." A good attendance is desired.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

"Shut the saloons and breweries and you would throw a great many men out of employment!" says advocates of license. What are the facts: There is no employment in the land that gives work to so small a number, for the capital invested, as that of the breweries and distilleries. Here is an illustration of what we mean: In Rochester, N. Y., the breweries have invested $6,455,000; they employ 434 men, and pay them $381,000 a year in wages. But the city clothing manufacturers have $6,150,000 invested, and they employ 3,132 people and pay them $1,561,000 a year in wages. The boot and the shoe factories have invested a capital of $3,281,000, employ 4,863 people, and pay them each year in wages $2,031,000. The capital of the shoe and clothing business is one and one-half times greater, only, than that of the beer houses; but they employ 7,995 men against 434 for the breweries. If the breweries did not exist in Rochester the two other establishments, from increased sales, could easily find employment for the dismissed workmen of the breweries. They also pay $3,592,000 in wages, while the breweries pay $381,000. Every brewery, every distillery and every saloon in America closed, there would be entailed no hardship for the workman, for other industries would at once require the dismissed force to supply their extra demands.

CURE FOR HARD TIMES.

By James B. Dunn.

Three Beers a Day, or

1 Barrel of flour,
50 Pounds of sugar,
20 Pounds of corn starch,
10 Pounds of macaroni,
10 Quarts of beans,
4 Twelve-pound hams,
1 Bushel of sweet potatoes,
3 Bushels of Irish potatoes,
10 Pounds of coffee,
10 Pounds of rasins,
10 Pounds of rice,
20 Pounds of crackers,
100 Bars of soap,
3 Twelve-pound turkeys,
5 Quarts of cranberries,
10 Bunches of celery,
10 Pounds of prunes,
4 Dozen oranges,
10 Pounds of mixed nuts,
Four big barrels heaped up! and in the bottom of the last barrel, a purse with two pockets. In one pocket a five dollar gold piece marked a "dress for mother"; in the other pocket a ten dollar bill, marked "to buy shoes for the children."

Look at that list!

That's what "Three Beers" a day for a year would buy.

(Cut out the above and tack it upon the wall or put it on edge of a much used mirror. It should be read over and over again.)—Editor.

Palmer Union. These women are busy folks, still they have time to do temperance work. Last September they had a membership of eighteen and now have a paid up list of fifty and are striving to have seventy-five by Convention.

The County Executive Union met Monday afternoon, June 11th with Mrs. Martha Gipe. Much of interest was discussed. The contest held during Prohibition convention netted the county W. C. T. U. a snug little sum. Almost $10.00.

July 1st, one of the Red Letter Days will be observed by a picnic, July 20th, Friday, and it is urged that all come and have a good time. The picnic will be held in Brookside Park, and each one will be expected to bring a well filled basket, and have men folks out to enjoy the outing and dinner at 6:00 p. m. A good time is assured to all who come.

Delaware County Institute met the 5th of June in Friends Church at Muncie.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, leader; county president, Mrs. Jester of Eaton.

The four Unions of the county were well represented.

The papers and short talks were right to the point. While our gifted leader followed each topic with helpful words dwelling on our State and National plans.

Rev. Hiatt, pastor of Friends Church, spoke on the trend of current events and their portent.

Rev Hastings, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church spoke from "Wine is a mocker," using a chart. Both talks were highly appreciated by the White Ribboners.

At the noon hour all enjoyed a picnic dinner at the church.

Thirteen subscriptions were obtained for the American Motherhood, four for the Union Signal and some for the Young Crusader.

The ladies of Eaton W. C. T. U. held a reception for Mrs. Stanley on the afternoon of the 4th, at the home of their President, Mrs. Carmichael, and in the evening Mrs. Stanley lectured to an appreciative audience while the rain fell.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE FAVORS MORMON SMOOT. HELP IS NEEDED FROM INDIANA MEN.

The fight for the unseating of Reed Smoot in the U. S. Senate is waxing hotter. The report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections was presented to the Senate June 12, 7 to 5 voting for his exclusion. Five Republican Senators voted to retain him, viz: Knox (Pa.), Foraker (O.), Dillingham (Vt.), Hopkins (Ill.), Beveridge (Ind.). The only two Republicans on the committee voting against him were Burrow (Mich.), chairman, and Dolliver (Ia.). Every Democratic member voted to exclude him. The Republicans are standing for the Mormon hierarchy, by so doing the three Mormon States will be controlled politically for the hierarchy for the Republican party. The sacredness of the home is thus bartered! It is awful! Urge our good men to write a brief letter or telegraph to our two Senators at once. Our men are opposed to the retention of a Mormon apostle in the highest legislative body in our Nation. A Senator from a Western State was heard to remark: "Oh, well, it is only a lot of old women who are making this fuss, and what does it matter?" It would not matter much if our men would take the trouble to write a few letters.

In a recent notable sermon on "Why the Masses in New York are Poor," the Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters, said: "It is estimated that New York spends $1,000,000 a day for liquor, most of it bad, which amounts to more than half as much as the amount required to run the entire Government of the United States. The annual drink bill of New York is more than the entire amount received for tariff. The interest on the city's annual drink bill at 4 per cent is nearly equal to the income of all the universities and colleges in the United States.

The policy of the municipal corporations anointing the bill boards with posters proclaiming the evils of the use of drink is spreading throughout England where there are now more than ninety cities following that policy. In some cases, the expense has been borne by local temperance organizations or individuals, but generally by the municipality itself. In some cases, the corporation attorneys have declared that the cities have no statutory powers to appropriate money for such purposes, but the policy has generally been endorsed as a sanitary measure.

Indiana has added eleven new prohibition townships to her territory and has closed out 449 saloons since May 1. Steuben County has been added to the list of three totally prohibition counties.

Some people think that you can improve an iniquity by washing it. Dr. Herrick Johnson punctured this sophism: "Better saloons is better badness, improved vice, a moral contradiction."

The new town of Gary, Lake County, Indiana, planted by the steel trust and to contain 100,000 inhabitants will have no saloons, so it is announced. At least the steel men will do all in their power to prevent it. Saloons depreciate the value of labor just as they decrease the value of property, the standard of manhood, the standard of chastity and the standard of everything else worth while.

SCIENTIFIC TESTIMONY ON BEER.

sanity; and not only that, but it excites the action of other causes that may be present."

Bright's Disease Due to Beer.

Dr. W. T. Ridenous: "I have no doubt the rapid spread of Bright's disease is largely due to beer drinking. I have always believed that Bayard Taylor fell a victim to the German beer that he praised so highly. He died of Bright's disease at 50, when he should have lived, with his constitution, to a ripe old age. He went just as beer drinkers are going all the time and everywhere."

Dr. C. A. Kirkley: "I believe that forty-nine out of fifty cases of chronic Bright's disease are directly produced by it. I have never met with a case in which the patient has not been intemperate to a greater or less degree. The proportion may be too high, but that is certainly my experience. Mr. Christian, a celebrated author, states that three-fourths to four-fifths of the cases met with in Edinburg were in habitual drunkards."

An Artificial Prop.

Dr. C. A. Kirkley, in constant practice in Toledo 15 years, says: "I do not believe the healthy organism needs an artificial prop to sustain it. Depression below the standard health always follows just in proportion as the system is stimulated above that standard. Every physician is familiar with cases in which nervous wear and tear in an active life has been kept up by stimulants without apparent loss of power for years. Bodily and mental vigor, however, suddenly fail. The repeated application of the stimulus that the exertion might be prolonged has really expended the power of the nervous system, and prepared him for more complete prostration. The temporary advantage was purchased at a great cost. The greater the expenditure of nervous power by the use of stimulants, the more complete the exhaustion."

Children of Drunkards—Idiots.

Dr. C. A. Kirkley: "Plutarch says, 'One drunkard begets another,' and Aristotle, 'Drunken women bring forth children like unto themselves.' A report was made to the legislature of Massachusetts, I think by Dr. Howe, on idiocy. He had learned the habits of the parents of 300 idiots, and 145, nearly half, are reported as known to be habitual drunkards, showing the enfeebled constitution of the children of drunkards. I have in mind an instance where children born to the mother, begotten when the father was intoxicated, all died within eight months of birth. They would have recovered, had they not had the enfeebled constitution inherited from their intemperate father. Instances are recorded where both parents were intoxicated at the time of conception, and the result was an idiot. There is not a doubt but that inebriety not only makes more destructive whatever taint may exist, but impairs the health and natural vigor for remote generations."

"A Crop of Lunatics."

Dr. A. McFarland: "That 'the iniquities of the father are visited upon the children,' that 'the fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge,' are truths that no Scripture is needed to teach. In other words, he who sins through physical excess does not do half the harm to himself that he does to the inheritors of his blood. The penalty must be paid as sure as there is seed time and harvest."

"It is your stout old hero, who goes to bed every night with liquor enough under his bed to fuddle the brain of a half dozen ordinary men, and yet live out his three-score and ten, that will be found at the head of the stock that pour into the world, generation after generation, such a crop of lunatics, epileptics, eccentrics, and inebriates as we often see. The impunity with which one so constituted will violate all physical law gets its set-off in a succeeding generation, when the great harvest begins."

Only One Safe Course.

Dr. J. T. Wood: "That beer is foreign to nature's demand is plainly evident. The whole organism at once sets about its removal. Every channel through which it can be got rid of is brought into play, and does not cease until the last trace is gone. Reaching a certain end depends only on the frequency of repetition. The whole is made up of the parts; every drink counts one. These 'ones' added together make the wreck; to secure this result it is only necessary to make the single numbers sufficient. Each leaves its footprints in one way or another; and the idea that, because you stop before you stagger, the system takes no note of the damaging material you put into it is a ruinous delusion."

Dr. S. H. Burgen: "I have told you the frozen truth—cold, calm, scientific facts, such as the profession everywhere recognizes as absolute truths. I do not regard beer drinking as safe for any one. It is a dangerous, aggressive evil that no one can tamper with with any safety to himself. There is only one safe course, and that is to let it alone entirely."

ANTI-NARCOTIC DEPARTMENT, NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

Mrs. E. B. Ingalls, Supt. Press Clippings.

Surgeons of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad refuse applicants for positions who are cigarette smokers, on the ground that cigarette smokers can not be relied upon in emergencies.

Chicago & Alton railroad bars cigarette smokers from their employ.

Indiana Supreme Court declares Anti-Cigarette law valid. Court interprets law as meaning that it is illegal to sell cigarettes in Indiana or keep them for sale, to smoke them or bring them into the State for sale, but it is not illegal to smoke them, or bring them into the State.—It is not proposed to have a federal law that will make it an offense to ship cigarettes into Indiana. In other words, Congress will be asked to enact a law that would prohibit any firm or corporation from shipping into any State any product that is prohibited from being sold by a State law.

Massachusetts: Anti-Cigarette bill killed in Senate by vote of 21 to 13. Cigarette smoking among boys increasing in Holyoke. Combined membership of Anti-Cigarette Leagues in three public schools in Boston is 1200. The press has given such publicity to facts regarding alarming growth of the cigarette evil among school children that store keepers are becoming afraid to violate the law regarding sale of cigarettes to minors in Malden. Malden, Melrose, Medford and nearby communities have started a crusade against the cigarette. Results good so far.—School officials of Everett sent circular letters to each school in city asking information regarding the use of cigarettes by school children. Reports show habit seems to be more prevalent in 7th grade, where average boy is only eleven. Teachers report that of smokers none ranked excellent in studies; 2 ranked good; 12 fair; 26 poor. Of non-smokers, 15 ranked excellent; 14 good; 11 fair, and not one as poor. A percentage of 31 smokers out of 40 had failed of promotion one or more times. Words used to describe smokers were "undersized, wizened, unkempt, weak, often sick, lazy, nervous." Non-smokers, described as "sturdy, well-kept, strong, well-developed, energetic" etc. Morally—smokers were frequently called "liars, cowards, truants." Non-smokers—not one was classed poor.

New York: Bill introduced in Legislature to prohibit manufacture and sale of cigarettes. A decided stand against the use of tobacco was taken by ministers of East Conference (Methodist Episcopal). Of forty students recently dropped from Syracuse University for low standard of work, 74 per cent was traceable to the use of cigarettes. Boy of 17 became crazy from use of cigarettes. Gen. Geo. W. Wingate, president of Public Schools Athletic League of New York, in circular sent to boys of the city schools, advises those who wish to become athletes not to smoke cigarettes. W. C. T. U. of Caledonia gave prize to young person writing best essay on "Cigarettes."

Pennsylvania: A street car company in Philadelphia is reported to have issued an order that passengers carrying cigars or cigarettes in their pockets must surrender them to conductors upon entering cars, in compliance with a direction from the Board of Health. For the purpose of arousing public sentiment on the cigarette evil, a mass meeting was held under the auspices of twenty Philadelphia clubs. Cigarette smoking by boys prohibited in station or on grounds of Philadelphia & Reading railroad. Anti-Cigarette League of Beaver Brook will organize a baseball team. Board of Control of Allentown sent notice to all tobacco dealers warning them against selling cigarettes to school boys.

California: Pastors of the various churches in Alameda are aiding in the Anti-Cigarette crusade. At a meeting of the Church Federation Council of Los Angeles, the cigarette habit was discussed and plans inaugurated for anti-cigarette campaign, later. As result so far of anti-cigarette campaign, 5,000 boys have joined Los Angeles Anti-Cigarette League.

Kansas: City council of Hutchinson, at request of school board, passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale of tobacco, cigarettes, cigars or any kind of narcotics to persons under 16 years of age. This will make it possible for police officers to handle the matter through the local courts.

Louisiana: President E. L. Stephens, of the Southwestern Louisiana Industrial Institute, has announced to the students that hereafter the use of tobacco on or off the grounds will be strictly prohibited.

Nebraska: Supreme Court decided Anti-Cigarette law constitutional. Court rules that rolling of cigarettes by individuals for their own use is not "manufacturing."

Ohio: Users of tobacco have been barred from athletic association of High School of Wellsville. Cigarettes are under ban at Stark County court house.

Colorado: Anti-Cigarette League of Colorado Springs has a membership of 150.

Illinois: Potomac has an Anti-Cigarette League. Members wear badges.

Texas: Policemen of Fort Worth are barred from use of cigarettes.

Japan: Viscount Hayasbi says the Japanese police confiscate the "smoking instruments" of any youth under twenty, as well as his supply of tobacco.

England: Two bills prohibiting the sale of tobacco and cigarettes to persons under sixteen presented in Parliament. One prepared by Anti-Cigarette League, the other by Dr. McNamara, a well-known reformer.

Drugs.

Twenty per cent of cocaine manufactured in this country is used illegitimately, says Wm. J. Schieffelin, drug manufacturer and importer of New York.

Pontiac, Mich.: An alarming number of cocaine fiends here.

Washington, Penn.: Cocaine used here to great extent.

Notes.

Christian smokers are doing more harm to our boys than any other element. I wish an arrest of thought might come to the church member who is a user of tobacco. Will you not make an effort along this line?

KIPLING CONVINCED.

In his "American Notes," page 121, Rudyard Kipling, whose stories and poems are read by all the English-speaking world, tells how, in a concert hall in the city of Buffalo, he saw two young men get two girls drunk and then lead them down a dark street. Mr. Kipling has not been a total abstainer not having his writings commended temperance, but of that scene he writes:

"Then rescanting previous opinions, I became a prohibitionist. Better it is that a man should go without his beer in public places, and content himself with swearing at the narrow-mindedness of the majority; better it is to poison the inside with very vile temperance drinks, and to buy lager furtively at back doors than to bring temptation to the lips of young fools such as the four I had seen. I understand now why the preachers rage against drink. I have said, 'There is no harm in it, taken moderately,' and yet my own demand for beer helped directly to see these two girls reeling down the dark street to—God alone knows what end. If liquor is worth drinking, it is worth taking a little trouble to come at—such as a man will undergo to compass his own desires. It is not good that we should let it lie before the eyes of children, and I have been a fool in writing to the contrary."—Ex.

Mrs. Mary E. Balch Writes:—Mr. James H. Beauchamp, lawyer, scholar and christian gentleman, passed away at his home in Lexington after a long and painful illness. While Mr. Beauchamp was absorbed in his profession, he took deep interest in the work of his distinguished wife, Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp and they worked together for the building up of Christ's kingdom.

The Kentucky W. C. T. U. mourns the loss of a well beloved and honored friend and brother and what human love and sympathy can give in this hour of bereavement is heartily bestowed on our sorrowing President.

The Message readers love Mrs. Beauchamp and will be saddened to know of the sorrow that has come to her. We extend sympathy.

When the Secretary of the Treasury of England, in reading his report the other day, stated that one contributing cause to the low finances of the nation was an enormous decrease in revenues was caused by a very great falling off in the consumption of liquors in England, the British House of Commons rose to its feet and cheered. The Anglo-Saxon race is setting its face steadily toward the port of a temperance race, and the temperance movement is gathering force under the White Man's flag all over the world.—Ex.

The Boston College of Physicians and Surgeons has engaged Dr. T. D. Carothers, who has made a special study of the effects of liquor upon the human system for many years, to deliver a systematic course of lectures upon the subject before the students. The Physicians are finding out that whisky is one of the great primary causes of disease.—Ex.

The American Medical Association, at its recent meeting in June in Boston, gave some definite and careful consideration to the subject of "No Alcohol in Medicine."

Mrs. Martha M. Allen, our National Superintendent of Medical Temperance was invited by the association to participate in the discussion on alcohol. Mrs. Allen read an able and comprehensive paper. This is a recognition of the great work of Mrs. Allen for no alcohol in medicine by the greatest body of American physicians. Her book should be in the homes of all persons interested in any phase of medical temperance.

FIELD NEWS

LaPorte Union. We are very sorry that we have no Institute report to give our county, having failed for two years to hold these helpful and instructive sessions.

The program given by the Superintendents of Social Purity and Mothers' Meetings was very interesting and encouraging.

A program for the assembly meeting at Pine Lake Chautauqua, is also being arranged.

Chapin Park Union, South Bend, observed Flower Mission Day, glimpses of the life of Jennie Cassady were given and a number of bouquets tied with white ribbon and text cards were distributed at the different hospitals.

Lafayette Union. At a farewell function for Mrs. S. E. Edgerton, who returns for her residence at Marion, the Womans Christian Temperance Union gave a delightful lawn party at the home of William P. Jester, Saturday evening which was largely attended.

The lawn was prettily illuminated with Japanese lanterns and a huge searchlight was also used during the evening. Dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. Edgerton has been one of the leading members of the W. C. T. U., was overwhelmed when Miss Eliza Baker, president of the county organization, presented her with a handsome rocker in behalf of the W. C. T. U.. It was with difficulty that she acknowledged the gift. Mrs. Edgerton has made many friends during her stay in West Lafayette who will regret to learn of her departure.

Indianapolis Meridian W. C. T. U. has planned to hold a picnic, Wednesday, June 13th at Brookside park. This to take place of regular meeting. An interesting program has been planned. Every one is expected to bring a basket of good things to eat for their family as the men are invited out to supper. Each one must bring their own dishes and a good time is assured for all. Come with your baskets well filled and have a high old time.

All friends are invited.

MRS. NETTIE H. COHEA.

Mrs. Goodacre reorganized Carroll County. The following officers were elected: Mrs. A. Hansen of Russiaville, Box 40, R. F. D. 1, County President; Mrs. E. Johnston, Burlington, Cor. Secretary; Miss Myrtle Snell, Deer Creek, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Clara Dunkin, Flora, County Treasurer.

The Gibson County Institute was held in the First M. E. Church, Princeton. Our State President, Mrs. Vayhinger leader. The first morning the county organization was effected bringing Gibson into line.

The program was carried out, each member having a carefully prepared paper on the subject given her. Mrs. Vayhinger requested the institute to vote to have the papers printed, which is sufficient comment.

The editors of the daily papers kindly printed the reports of the proceedings as furnished. Two of the pastors of the city churches gave addresses which were much appreciated.

Mrs. Vayhinger gave an address on Wednesday night on the "Gold and Silver of the World Belong to God," telling us how much of it is worse than wasted on liquor and tobacco, comparing the amounts contributed to the church and to missions in a year with what is spent for the former, to the shame of Christians. Others beside White Ribboners thought the address grand.

A medal contest was held Thursday night with success and we hope a stimulant to our L. T. Ls'. All felt the time given to the Institute well spent.

A few weeks before the Institute the Princeton Union sent out members two and two to the neighboring towns as advance agents to prepare the way for the coming of our State President with the result that she organized two Unions, Hazleton and Francisca, and stirred others so we hope to get them into the good work by and by. At Oakland City the superintendent of schools invited Mrs. Vayhinger to address the pupils and he brought teachers and pupils till the largest room in the high school would hold no more and they had an enthusiastic time.

The Carmel Union held a Mothers' Meeting at the Methodist Church. A good audience of mothers were present and heard with much interest an address delivered by Mrs. Gipe of Indianapolis.

Her advice and helpful suggestions to mothers are well worth hearing and heeding.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Miss Sarah D. Ulmer, a graduate of the Northwestern University, who has been a teacher of Huntington has accepted the position of teacher of elocution at Taylor University at Upland, Ind.

Miss Ulmer is an active White Ribboner, at present, superintendent of oratorical contest department of Huntington County, where much effective work is done. She is the daughter of one of Indiana's most honorable and worthy citizen.

Deer Creek—A good strong W. C. T. U. was organized at Deer Creek, Carroll County by Mrs. H. Goodacre. The following officers were appointed: Mrs. Minnie Cook, Camden, President; Mrs. Elizabeth McClosky, Camden, Vice President; Mrs. Emma McClary, Deer Creek, Secretary; Mrs. Beckett, Deer Creek, Treasurer; Miss Snell, Deer Creek, Corresponding Secretary.

The Evansville W. C. T. U. is furnishing a bright spot in that rum cursed city. At Evans Hall they have fitted up two beautiful large front rooms, one as a rest room with piano, couch and pillows, rockers, writing desk, books, papers and magazines; the other, a lunch room where one may get a good lunch at noon or evening for 15c. They are patronized by young boys who are in offices and after lunch they spend their noon hour sitting in front of the cheerful grate reading a good book or magazine, and by teachers and office girls who find it a pleasant place to rest after lunch.

An Oratorical Contest for a gold medal was held in the M. E. Church at Moores Hill on May 22d. A class of seven young people from Ohio and Moores Hill. This is the first contest of this class held in the county.

The Guilford W. C. T. U. held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Bessie Moodey Templeton, Thursday, April 12th. Alta K. Hansell, delegate to Cochran Institute, March 21 and 22, gave a very interesting report of the meeting. The Union will meet the second Thursday in May with Mrs. Templeton. The Guilford W. C. T. U. with the aid of the children rendered an excellent program, Sunday evening, April 1st in memory of Frances Willard. The main features of the program were an address by Mrs. Jennie Ward and a 5 minutes talk by Mrs. C. P. Ward. Mrs. Ward is ex-President of the Union an efficient worker and is to be highly praised for the noble thoughts given in her address. C. P. Ward is an able speaker and not only talks for temperance but votes for it. He is an honorary member of the Union. The Union sent an offering of $2.00 for the Memorial Fund.

Keystone at a silver oratorical contest, for the L. T. L. medal. Six of the senior girls were in the contest and each did well. The medal was won by Miss Pauline Wooton, age 13 years. The title of the recitation was "Anna's Tears."

A book was awarded to each of the contestants not receiving the medal. Receipts were $9.05.

Our L. T. L. membership now numbers sixty and we expect to hold contests until each class has had a chance to win.

In the last two months our local W. C. T. U. has lost the following members by moving:

Our President, Mrs. F. Green, moved to Red Key, Ind.; Mrs. Sarah Thomas, moved to Warren, Ind.; Mrs. Mary Borders, moved to Milton, Ind.; Mrs. Stella Albertson, moved to Mattoon, Mich.; Mrs. Mary Barner, moved to Montpelier, Ind.; Mrs. Nellie Edwards and Mrs. Stella Thomas, each moved to the country.

We elected Mrs. Elva England to fill out the unexpired term of President, and she is proving a most efficient officer.

We hold our meetings the second and fourth Fridays of each month, and although we have lost a number of our members our Union is still flourishing and able to do some good work.

A Grand Gold Medal contest will be held at this place, June 12th.

Mrs. Sabrinna Black will go as delegate from our Union to the State L. T. L. convention at Kokomo, June 26, 27 and 28.

Yours in the work,

MRS. ELVA ENGLAND,

Pres. W. C. T. U.

MRS. O. E. HAGLER,

Cor. Sec. W. C. T. U.

Dearborn County has recently had two Grand Gold Medal contests. Miss Ruth Miller of College Corner, O., and Alma Rynerson of Moores Hill, Ind. were awarded the medals.

Union County Institute was held in the Christian Church at Liberty. Leader, Mrs. Stanley, State vice president. Able discussion along different lines of our work was very interesting, followed by some very good papers read, one written by Miss Anna Buck of College Corner Union on the subject "What our local Unions can do," was especially good. Several subscriptions for our papers were taken and on Friday evening a Gold Medal contest was held which would have been a grand success if a heavy storm had not threatened just at the right time to keep people away. As it was we did well, so did the contestants. The Medal was awarded to Miss Faith Gordan of Liberty.

Steuben County Institute held at Hamilton, Mrs. Rose Pearce presiding. It was one of the best institutes we have had in the county for years.

Much credit is due the Hamilton Union and our loved county president, Mrs. Willenner, for the careful preparation made for the meeting and the earnestness with which they laid hold of the work.

It is a new Union, but it shows energy and enterprise very commendable. Mrs. Chauncy Avery is their able president. Mrs. Elma Baker was elected county treasurer to fill the vacancy left by resignation of Mrs. Alma Shaw whose removal from our county is a loss we can ill afford.

Mrs. Pearce's lecture on Tuesday night was well attended, both by men and women, and she gave us all something to think about.

The contest on Friday night was well planned and showed much ability and industry on the part of those in charge as well as those who took part. Several ministers were on the program and instead of simply giving us compliments, gave us good, strong talks. Several not on the program spoke words of encouragement and cheer. I think the delegates left the institute with a fine opinion of the Hamilton Union and with new courage for the work.

Keystone. A very delightful surprise party was given Mrs. M. F. Green by the members of the local W. C. T. U. before her departure for her home near Red Key.

The ladies assembled about dusk and found Mrs. Green resting after a busy day of packing, and although she was greatly surprised she received her guests in her usual gracious, cordial manner.

Mrs. Green had served as President for the Keystone W. C. T. U. since its organization in November, 1904, and during that time had greatly endeared herself to the members as well as the entire community.

As a token of love and respect the W. C. T. U. presented Mrs. Green with a set of beautiful Haviland china cups and saucers, after which the evening was spent with conversation and music. Dainty refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening spent with Rev. and Mrs. Green and family.

MARION COUNTY.

Mapleton and Frances E. Willard Unions observed Flower Mission Day, Saturday afternoon, by going to the work house; 175 bouquets with scripture texts attached were distributed to the prisoners. Captain Hart of the American Volunteers led in prayer, followed by scripture reading by Miss Leck and a beautiful solo by Mrs. Foster of Mapleton Union. Mrs. L. E. Scott explained to the prisoners the meaning of our Flower Mission Day and the men thoroughly enjoyed their flowers, as attested by the fact of them wearing them when Mother Scott went out the next day. The singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet again" was heartily joined in by all.

Meridian W. C. T. U. went to the work house Wednesday, June 6th to observe Flower Mission Day as a constant memorial day to the memory of our "Flower Saint" Jennie Casseday.

Broad Ripple Union Distributed over 100 bouquets, besides fruit and potted plants, each with a message of cheer and sympathy.

Broad Ripple Union also held their regular meeting with Mrs. Fannie Johnson, who entertained the Union women together with a goodly number from the city, who were members of the county executive Union. Devotions were led by Mrs. Fannie Kelso. Flower Mission department reported together with other superintendents. A fine dinner was served in the dining room consisting of the good things so plentiful in the country. The afternoon meeting was in the nature of a Mothers' Meeting, addressed by Mrs. Gipe, who gave many valuable suggestions. This talk was followed by a very helpful discussion.

Prayer closed the meeting. All present had a very enjoyable time, though the weather was not at all in accord with the picnic idea and we all joined in wishing for Broad Ripple Union unbounded success in its many undertakings. Five new members were secured and the bow of ribbon white pinned on.

North East Union. Flower Mission department of this Union distributed flowers to the Alpha Home. All appreciated the thoughtfulness of the women in giving them flowers.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. House died May 24, after a severe sickness, Brights disease. Sister House was a loving, devoted woman, who put all her time and energy to good work. She was a member of South Bend Chapin Park Union. She was most efficient member and will be greatly missed. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn her loss, the youngest only three years old. Sister House was a godly woman and made all arrangements for her death, for which she had no fear. Her earnest desire was to have the W. C. T. U. take part in the services, which request was complied with, having no ritual we had a very simple ceremony. White ribbon was drawn around the casket, which was tied into a large bow—the white ribbon which she loved so well. The members attended the funeral in a body; carriages being provided. At the church the members of the W. C. T. U. separated and the funeral cortege passed through, this was done at the cemetery also. Mrs. Cotton read the Methodist ritual and then the members passed around the grave, depositing a tiny spray of smilax tied with white ribbon, singing "Thorne of my Soul;" County President, Mrs. Fassuacht, then offered a heart-felt prayer. Those who witnessed the service all said that it was very beautiful and impressive.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS OF PRESBYTERIANS AND UNITED PRESBYTERIANS.

In a strong and aggressive memorandum the Special Temperance Committee of the Presbyterian General Assembly, held in Des Moines, Iowa, Warmly endorsed the Permanent Committee's twenty-fifth report and emphasized the importance of that Committee's recommendations regarding a Church Federation against the liquor curse.

The Assembly enthusiastically adopted its Special Committee's review of the Permanent Committee's report. The resolutions of national public interest which were adopted by the Assembly include these ringing utterances:

1. The organization of the temperance forces is made necessary by the thorough organization and aggressiveness of the liquor traffic. That traffic has brains directing it, capital to carry it on and a co-operation that commands watchfulness on our part, employs the printing press with discriminating intelligence and sends its awful literature everywhere. The emissaries of the traffic are active and animated by commercial enterprise that is merciless and menacing to the highest welfare of the nation.

License System Contrary to Gospel.

2. The license system is wrong in principle, is contrary to the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and has proven futile in practice as a temperance measure.

3. Our members are hereby warned most solemnly against signing or presenting for citizens' signature, or in court, license petitions which tolerate the continuance of this unholy traffic, or in any other manner abetting this terrible business.

4. This Assembly is unalterably opposed to the license system.

5. That we protest against the issuance of federal tax receipts (construed by the holders as license) to sell liquor in States or communities where prohibitory legislation has been enacted. And the permanent committee is instructed on behalf of this Assembly to memorialize Congress, asking that such receipts be no longer issued in such States or communities.

6. That this Assembly recommend that the last Sabbath in October be observed as Temperance Day in our churches, Sabbath Schools, and Young People's Societies, and that so far as practicable offerings be taken at that time for temperance work under the direction of the Assembly.

7. That the Permanent Committee be instructed to prepare an order of service for the use of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Societies on Temperance Day.

8. That we approve of the plan of federation of churches on temperance work as outlined in the report of the Permanent Committee, to-wit: That the proper officials of one denomination shall issue an invitation to all other denominations to appoint the delegates to a National Inter-Church conference to consider the feasibility of a Church Temperance Federation. When these delegates have formulated and agreed upon a basis of federation and this basis shall have been ratified by the participating churches it shall then become operative. The churches through their proper authorities, will appoint or elect the officers of the Federation, according to the terms of the agreement. The Federation will be controlled and supported by the constituent churches and have such departments and pursue such lines of work as shall have been agreed upon in the Articles of Federation.

Any church may pursue other lines of work or adopt any policy which is not contrary to the spirit of the Federation.

9. That in view of the large and rapidly increasing demand for temperance literature, the advisability of a monthly bulletin of temperance facts and progress, the urgent calls from churches, Presbyteries, and Synods, for the services of the Committee's representatives, and to enable the Committee to conduct the temperance work of our church on a scale commensurate with its importance, the Committee be recommended to the Churches for the sum of $25,000.00.

10. That inasmuch as it is the instruction of science that the use of tobacco is injurious, especially to the young, we urge our ministers and elders, both by precept and example to discourage its use in any and all forms.

Two important items do not appear in this report owing to the fact that they came through other channels which makes them all the more significant.

1. A special Committee appointed for the purpose brought in a report recommending that a column be placed in the Assembly minutes in which to record the offerings of the churches to temperance. This was adopted unanimously.

2. The Committee on church Policy recommended that when church members who had had timely and official warning against renting property for saloon purposes, signing bonds, petitions, or in any other way aiding or abetting the liquor traffic, continued to do so, the session should proceed to discipline.

The Assembly refused to recognize the Anti-Saloon League and sustained exceptions to Synods doing so.

The last Friday night of the Convention was devoted to a great temperance anniversary rally, with strong addresses by Dr. J. M. Fulton of St. Paul, Dr. James A. Worden of Philadelphia, Dr. S. Edward Young of Pittsburgh, and Prof Charles Scanlon.

ALCOHOLIC EFFECTS THROUGH WOMEN.

Prof. Bunge of the University of Basle, Switzerland, has an illuminating article in the current issue of The Journal of Inebriety, a magazine published for physicians, which makes a specialty of pointing out the part that liquor plays in the production of disease. Prof. Bunge is the leading authority in Europe on milk, its composition and uses. The Professor introduces his article by saying that thirty years of study of milk has demonstrated it to be one of the marvels of organic nature—that the ingredients are finely adjusted and mixed in exactly the proportions required by the suckling in order that the functions should daily perform their office and develop the young organism into an image of the paternal one. The milk for each animal varies in its ingredients, those requiring rapid growth being rich in albumen, while others vary in proportion to the requirements of the little consumer. A new born colt will double its own weight in sixty days from birth, while a calf requires but forty-seven days, but it takes a human baby 180 days to double its own weight, when normally fed at its mother's breast. Thus we find that cow's milk is very rich in albumen, which induces a rapid growth of the body, while the milk of a mother exceeds all other milk in the amount of lactic acid that it contains. The reason of this is that lactic acid builds the brain, while albumen builds the body. In a human baby nature subordinates everything else to equipping it with a brain, its chief tool of existence, and all that makes life desirable. The Professor, after discovering the foregoing facts, entered upon an investigation which proved that in towns and cities more than half the mothers were incapable of properly nursing their own babies. He looked further into this and found that in most cases the incapacity was hereditary. Tracing it back still further, using 1,600 families as the basis for inquiries, he found that when a daughter is unable to wholly nurse her children in 78 per cent. of instances that the father was a habitual user of liquor and in 42 per cent. a notorious drunkard! In all families where both the mother and the daughter were able to nurse their children, records of drunkenness were very rare. In the case of habitual drinkers (the "men that can take a drink or let it alone") 70 per cent. of both mothers and daughters were able to nurse their children, while in 35 per cent. the mother was able, but the daughter of the "moderate drinker" was not. In the matter of professional drunkards only 21-2 per cent. of both mothers and their daughters are able to nurse, while in 32 per cent. the mother was able while the daughter was not. This shows very plainly and distinctly the beginning of the incapacity of women to nurse children, and it has its rise in the use of liquor by men. The inability to nurse is hereditary—that is, once lost it cannot be recovered by the succeeding generations of daughters. Since the milk of women is the only milk adapted to brain building, it is very evident that we are degenerating in brain power, through the use of liquor. The use of cow's milk for children, even though it is pure, which it is not in cities, many produce a rapid growth of body, and on the surface may prove satisfactory. But when we consider such bodily growth is done at the expense of the brain at an extremely important part of its building, then we readily see that a fearful and grewsome cost is being paid for the poor privilege of consuming whisky. Prof. Bunge, the great milk expert, says, however, that cow's milk is not suitable for babies, simply because it is not their natural food, and that hundreds of thousands of infants are annually tortured to death throughout the civilized world by reason of being fed upon food that does not meet their requirements. The mortality among infants in London is six times greater among those fed on cow's milk than those which are nursed in a natural manner. Thus we see that the whisky traffic may justly be charged with the murder of many thousands of infants annually with the incapacity, in most cases, of women to nurse their own offspring, thus depriving the babies of the brain-building food that they should have and eventually we may charge upon the whisky traffic the moral and intellectual degeneracy which afflicts so great a proportion of the race, simply because their brain capacity was stunted and dwarfed in babyhood. These conclusions are those of a world famous arthur, in the medical and scientific world—a man whose whole life has been and is devoted to the study of milk, its effects, and what interferes with the normal effects of milk. His article was written for scientific men and physicians, not a propaganda article for the general public. What he says must be based upon facts, for he can not afford to risk his reputation before such an audience, who would soon find, by their own tests that he was wrong. Against the results of his investigations and conclusions, we have the word of the whisky dealers and the ignorant saloon bums and loafers, together with the statement of men that don't know anything about it, that "whisky is a good thing." Take your choice of the two—the professor or the bum.—Riches.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS AT RICHMOND ARRAIGN LIQUOR BUSINESS.

Richmond, Ind., June 1—"The beverage liquor traffic is not a business but a crime and must be suppressed," is the striking declaration of the Committee on Reform in the report just adopted in this city by the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church.

Urge Practical Measures Before Congress.

In the Report of the Committee on Reform, R. A. Hutchinson, chairman, the following reference to current temperance issues is made:

"We rejoice in the increasing and universal opposition to the beverage liquor traffic and the substantial indications of its ultimate overthrow. We commend the effort being made to keep liquor out of soldiers' homes and indorse the McCumber-Sperry bill, which includes the above and also forbids liquor-selling in government buildings and ships. We also indorse the Littlefield-Dolliver bill. This is an act to protect no-license territory from outside interference. We commend Congress for the appropriation of $1,850,000 for the erection and equipment of recreation building at army posts throughout the country.

The report of the Temperance Committee emphasizes the importance of the Great Reform.

PROHIBITION IN THE SOUTH.

On of the astonishing things of this session of Congress is that forty-nine Democratic congressmen joined in a petition for a prohibitory law. These forty-nine Democratic congressmen from the Southern States have joined in a petition to the Judiciary Committee of the House asking the Committee to report to the House favorably, the Littlefield bill which proposed to amend the Inter-State Commerce Law in such a way that "blind tiger" keepers and others can not sell whisky in original packages in Prohibition States and Prohibition territory in local option States.

The petitioners urge that practically the solid South is in favor of this legislation for their protection. They insist that the Prohibition laws of the States should not be nullified by act of Congress and urged the Judiciary Committee to report the bill so that it can be voted upon.

The fact is that the Prohibition Democratic sentiment of the South is having a more and more profound impression on the Democratic party and compelling it to do things.

At any event, the spectacle of forty-nine Congressmen petitioning simultaneously for a prohibitory liquor law is something unheard of in Washington.

Mr. E. Tennyson Smith of England, the very successful Temperance Evangelist returns to England soon, but expects to come back to America in the Autumn. Those who desire to invite him to conduct campaigns should make application before he leaves this country. Letters will reach him until Aug. 24, addressed to 101 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

TEMPERANCE SONGS.

Sing temperance songs in the home, in the Young People's meetings and at all meetings of the W. C. T. U.

Encourage the friends of temperance to subscribe for temperance newspapers. It is not enough that all members of the family are total abstainers. The boys and girls associate with representatives of other homes. All need definite information concerning the scientific truths regarding alcoholic drinks and the aggressive attitude of the great liquor organizations.

To be informed upon these subjects means to be interested in them.

No christian or temperance home is complete without a temperance newspaper.

What shall it be?

For all White Ribboners, The Union Signal, official organ of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, a weekly, 16 page paper, price $1 per year. Address, The Union Signal, Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill.

The National Advocate, a monthly official organ of the National Temperance Society, price $1 per year. Address The National Temperance Society and Publishing House, 3 East Fourteenth Street, New York. The cartoons in this journal are well worth the price.

The Patriot Phalanx, official organ of the Prohibition party of Indiana, a weekly devoting one page to W. C. T. U. matter, price $1 per year. Address The Patriot Phalanx, 117 West Maryland Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

The Defender, weekly, price 50 cents per year. Address 400 W Twenty-third Street, New York City.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

The twelfth annual convention of the Indiana Loyal Temperance Legion was held in the First Baptist Church, Kokomo, June 26-28. This was the largest convention Indiana ever held, more than three times larger than any previous one; brim full and running over with enthusiasm. A fine program, well carried out, won many friends for the Legion. Words of praise were heard on all sides, some saying there was no other organization of young people in the State that could prepare and carry out such a program, and all by the young people. One hundred and forty delegates, eighty-six voting, a bright intelligent company of young people from the best homes in Indiana, all desperately in earnest in this noble cause, made up the membership of the convention.

The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, flowers, potted plants, prize and other banners, and flags. A picture of Frances E. Willard occupied a prominent place on the platform. The auditorium was full at every session and great enthusiasm and interest maintained, a compliment to the worthy cause.

Soon after the formal opening of the convention, the State President, Miss Edith Hillis, of Kokomo, delivered her annual address, a strong, vigorous and earnest statement of the work accomplished during the year and that still to be achieved. It was full of inspiration and hope for the future of the conquering army of the Loyal Temperance Legion that is marching on to conquest. Other speakers on the program were Mr. Herbert C. Shattuck of Ithaca, N. Y., national organizer and lecturer, who spoke of the Legion along the Pacific coast, using a map showing the cities he had visited during the year. Mrs. Belle C. Rowley of Elkhart, who presented The Correspondence Training School, and Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, Indiana State W. C. T. U. President, who gave the class address to thirty-five of the eighty-six graduates who were present on commencement night.

A class of six young people contested for the gold medal in the medal contest held the second evening, Miss Lucile McVicker, Marion, receiving the medal. A State song and rally cry were adopted.

Great things have been accomplished in the State, as shown by the attendance, enthusiasm, and reports of all departments. The number of organizations has been doubled; $31.75 has been raised toward the Japanese Missionary Fund; 500 subscriptions to the Crusader Monthly pledged, and all department work has more than doubled over previous year. A new senior legion is to be organized at once by the young people of the First Baptist—the convention church.

Much of the increase is due to the untiring efforts and enthusiasm of our State President, who was, for the sixth time, unanimously re-elected. The convention showed its love and appreciation of both Miss Hillis and Mrs. Ida M. Mix, general secretary, by presenting each with a beautiful spoon. The convention also made Mrs. Mix the first life member of the State Loyal Temperance Legion and Mr. and Mrs. Hillis made our President the second life member.

Miss Hann of Chicago was present with us and occupied a prominent place in the convention church with L. T. L. literature.

At the close of the first afternoon session the North Kokomo W. C. T. U. gave a reception to the delegates in the lecture room of the convention church. Altogether, the Twelfth Annual Convention of the Indiana Loyal Temperance Legion was a grand success and the closing hours were spent in the beautiful city park where the first annual meeting and banquet of the Alumni Association was held.

WORLD'S CONVENTION AT BOSTON, OCTOBER 17TH TO 23D.

The sessions of the next World's W. C. T. U. convention at Boston, Mass., October 17-23, will be held in Tremont Temple. An all-day of prayer will be the first feature and will be observed with special services in Park Street Church, on Wednesday, October 17. Wednesday evening a welcome banquet will be given in the Ford Building at which ex-Secretary of War Hon. John D. Long will be toast master. Many other social events will be held during the convention and the two days of the World's Institute which is to follow the convention in Park Street Church. An afternoon tea in Faneuil Hall and a reception at the State House by the Governor and his staff are also being arranged. There will be at least two excursions made up for the foreign delegates to tour the country following the national convention. Trips including visits to New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Niagara Falls, Toronto, and Montreal are being arranged. The Washington W. C. T. U. are first to act as guides to any British delegates wishing to see the city.

The British W. T. A. has elected thirty-seven delegates and will probably elect more. Scotland has already chosen twenty-three. Australia, Sweden, Natal, and many other countries will be officially represented. Invitations have been received for the World's Convention in 1909 to meet in Sydney, Australia; from the National B. W. T. A. to meet in London, England; and the Scottish W. C. T. U. for Glasgow, Scotland.

NEW MAGAZINE.

"The Coming Day," Vol. 1, No. 1, Nashville, Tenn., is the first issue of a beautifully printed fifty-page Prohibition bi-monthly magazine, the field for which exists and has only waited for some such effective editorial preemption such as the editor of this new periodical promises to take. Price 50 cents a year. Address The Coming Day, Nashville, Tenn.

MR. WOODARD VERY ILL.

The father of our dear corresponding secretary, Miss Mary Woodard is very ill, the family have little hopes of his recovery. Our sympathy is extended to the family.

ISLAND PARK.

Sylvan Lake adds greatly to the pleasure of visitors at Island Park, Rome City.

The chautauqua continues from July 25 to Aug. 17. Our W. C. T. U. department workers live at the W. C. T. U. cottage. They are as follows: Mrs. McWhirter, superintendent; Mrs. Vayhinger, state president, in charge of Mothers' Meetings. Mrs. Calkins, state president of Michigan in charge of Parliamentary Law classes and drills. Mrs. Weston and Miss Barnum, associated together in charge of Physical Culture and Elocution. Miss Ransom in charge of the kindergarten. Mrs. Harriet Brand, national treasurer, will spend a few days there and make an address.

Some of our State officers will spend the week closing August 17 with us. All White Ribboners who can arrange to spend that week at Island Park should secure rooms at cottages. Better still, perhaps, would be for several to form a party and rent a furnished cottage and do co-operating house keeping for the week.

Prof. and Mrs. J. F. Kinsey and others will form such a party. Besides enjoying the splendid assembly program, the privileges for boating and fishing are exceptionally fine.

For information concerning cottages or rooms, apply to Rev. J. F. Snyder, assembly secretary, Island Park, Rome City, Ind.

NO WINE IN HENDERSON CASTLE.

For some time ex-Senator and Mrs. John B. Henderson of Washington, D. C., have been members of one of the Tents of the Independent Order of Rechabites. Since which time no wine or alcoholic liquors have been used or served to guests at the Henderson castle. The wine cellar has been locked. ex-Senator Henderson did not want to sell the wines and liquors and would not use them, so recently about one hundred friends were invited to the castle to witness the pouring out of all the wines and liquors. They were emptied into the gutter in the street, accompanied with appropriate ceremonies.

Among these wines there were Madeiras that can not be bought from any market in the world and Amontillado Sherry worth a dollar a drop and plenty of fine old Irish and Scotch whisky.

U. S. ex-Senator and Mrs. Henderson's home is unequalled in splendor by any other residence in Washington city. Ex-Senator and Mrs. Henderson are both total abstainers.

Mrs. Henderson believes there is only one true aristocracy, namely, the aristocracy of health. Mrs. Henderson has written a book called "The Aristocracy of Health." In it she has several things to say about pipes, cigars, cigarettes, wine, beer and whisky.

Mrs. Henderson does not emphasize the moral argument against wines and liquors but holds to the great facts, now being advocated by so many others of advanced thought, that alcohol is a poison. She says she can not consent to poison any guest and upon this ground finds ample reason for her position. With the backing of her husband and the increasing force given to her views by science and medical authorities she has done great service by her determined opposition to the use of wines and liquors in social functions.

The Associated Press says:

"The diplomats of Washington dine frequently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Henderson and they never get a drop of wine. The 'cold bottle' is unknown on the Henderson mahogany. The diplomats not only have shown that they can get along without strong food and strong drink, but they hail the chance to be abstemious, for the Hendersons' hospitality not only is accepted, but if it could be done politely it would be sought for."

Mississippi is happy over the fact that the American Express Company, which reaches nearly every town in the State, has decided to handle no more liquor shipments in Prohibition counties after July 1.

BREWERS' WATERLOO AT KANSAS CITY, KAN., ENDS LONG DEFIANCE OF STATE PROHIBITION LAW.

Kansas City, July 5.—(By Associated Prohibition Press.)—The utter rout of this city's 165 notorious liquor joints, by an attorney whose respect for his oath of office has only been equalled by his success in wiping out the illegal saloons of this county, is the topic of the hour in this State. Hundreds of friendly congratulations have poured into the Assistant Attorney General's office during the past week from every part of the United States, showing how widespread and intense is the interest in the battle which has been so quickly won against the outlaws in this their erstwhile paradise.

It is an open secret that Attorney W. C. Trickett has received various threatening letters during the past few days, warning him of bodily harm unless he stopped his fight on the jointists, but Trickett has scared his anonymous enemies and laughed at their imprecations.

Time after time the liquor men have survived law enforcement "crusades" and never before took seriously the moves made against them. But what a lightning change! Comes a man who means business, and presto, every law defying brewer rushers into the open, promising to remove their joint fixtures, showing irresistibly that not a handful of individual law-breakers, but a coterie of millionaire beer manufacturers have from the first controlled the illegal traffic in this town and by the judicious use of political influence and cash successfully maintained an organized and arrogant rebellion to the State's constitutional law in this municipality. Leaders of this rebellion have been the Schlitz, the Val Blatz, and J. J. Heim, brewery firms. It is well known that when last Saturday morning J. J. Heim in person called on Attorney Trickett, announced his absolute surrender, begging only for time to remove his joint property from the city and the State, it was in reality the confession of defeat by all these ring-leaders in anarchy.

The new attorney has been dubbed "Padlock" Trickett by the demoralized joints, because of his novel mode of procedure. Over 100 joints are now ornamented front and back, with imposing padlocks of brass, which effectually prevent patronage at either entrance.

How the Padlock Plan Originated.

The "Padlock" plan is an innovation which has attracted State-wide interest.

When Trickett conceived the idea of applying for receivers for joint properties Judge Holt told Trickett he could not get receivers without first notifying the property owners of his intention. This notice would, of course, be in the nature of a mighty hot tip to the property owners, and the rum seller would have thirty days grace during the life of the publication notice in which to escape.

"Why not padlock the 'joint' and then notify the owner of the building?" Trickett suggested.

"I'll issue the 'padlock' order on the sheriff," said Judge Holt.

And so it is up to the owner of each building where liquor is sold to face a new phase of "joint" warfare. Buildings will stand locked up for at least thirty days, and will thereafter be under the surveillance of a receiver until such time as the court sees fit to cancel the order. The expense of each receivership will be taxed against the building. Trickett has asked Judge Holt to appoint as general receiver some banking or banking trust institution in the county authorized by law to act in that capacity. Judge Holt will name the receiver tomorrow.

For the first time since the present crusade started, arrests are being made. When the sheriff goes to padlock a building he arrests on a "John Doe" warrant all persons found dispensing liquor.

The court order of Judge Holt, on which authority "joints" are being locked and placed under care of a custodian, follows:

"The State of Kansas to the sheriff of Wyandotte County, Kan. Greeting: Whereas, It has been made to appear to this court by the verified affidavit of the plaintiff herein that persons are violating the order of injunction heretofore granted in the cause, by selling and keeping for sale intoxicating liquors in and upon the premises therein described in violation of law, and permitting persons to congregate in and upon said premises therein described, to drink intoxicating liquors as a beverage, to wit: Now, therefore, you are commanded to go to said premises and see that the order of this court heretofore granted is obeyed and respected, and if necessary place lock upon all doors to said premises, or place a man in charge thereof as custodian thereof, with orders and directions to see that the order of this court is literally obeyed, and make certification of your acts therein and return to this court."

Seventy-five "joints" were padlocked Saturday afternoon, in addition to the fifteen up to that time.

A prominent Kansas City lawyer in an interview in the Journal declared that Mr. Trickett has found the correct way to abate liquor traffic in Kansas in his application for receivers for property. discovery will mean a great deal to the law-enforcement movement in Kansas. The injunction method, when resorted to by attorneys for the State temperance leagues, was considered a final solution of the "joint" problem. But in the larger towns of Kansas restraining orders were disobeyed by the rum sellers.

"It remained for the 'quietus' to be put to the traffic in Kansas City," continued the Missouri lawyer, "so long touted as the most lawless of Kansas towns. Kansas City has been all along the battleground and her experiments have later been marked with some success in the smaller towns of the State. Kansas City is now to supply Kansas with an effective, final remedy."

Purity and Mothers' Meetings. In answer to the many letters I get (though all have been promptly answered), saying I have been appointed superintendent of Mothers' Meetings, will you please tell me how to go about the work, how to hold a Mothers' Meeting and what my duties are? There is so much implied, that the question is difficult to answer on paper. Do not confine your work to the regular meetings of the W. C. T. U. for there are too many departments for them to give you as much time as the importance of this department demands. Go into districts where there are no Unions. Ask some lady to let you hold a meeting in her home. Send special invitations to the women of the neighborhood, have a well-prepared program, with songs, Scripture, prayer, talks or have someone read a paper or leaflet on duties, opportunities, possibilities or responsibilities of motherhood or what we owe our children. Have a discussion, get all the mothers to talk and they will become interested. Go in His name, the Bible your text-book, and the Holy Spirit your guide. God will bless you. Your meeting will be a success and will create a demand for another. Make your meetings informal, but spiritual. Every Superintendent should have some good literature, "The Mothers' Magazine," by David C. Cook, Elgin, Ill., "American Motherhood" by Dr. Mary Wood Allen, Ellsworth Bldg., 357 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., "The Purity Journal and Christian Life," Morton Park, Illinois, "The Light," Lacrosse, Wis., are all good and will furnish food for thought and material for Mothers' Meetings. Dear Sisters: Will you not help to make this the very best year in our work. Keep a record of all work done and report to me. I have already sent blanks and literature to seventy-two Superintendents, either county or local. If you will respond what a fine report I may have for the State convention. Will you do it? Without your aid I am helpless. If there are Superintendents without blanks, please apply to me at once, I desire to serve you the very best I can and will respond if possible to any appeal made.

Yours in His name,

MRS. S. M. STAHL.

THIRD QUARTERS REPORT, 1906, STATE TREASURER.

Dear Sisters—The third quarter has been an eventful one, not only have the dues come in very well from old Unions, but the new ones have sent in splendidly. The records on hand show this to be the largest quarter (Third), that has paid dues; 1253 W's and 4 Y's making a total of 1257 for the third quarter. More L. T. L. dues came in this quarter than any other since I have been treasurer; $45.50 in L. T. L. dues.

The $1,375 from the Mayhew Davis estate helps to make this an eventful period in our history. Forty-one new Unions organized since last State convention, but remember there are 48 old Unions that have not paid dues so far this year. Dear reader are you a member of one of these? If so, go to work and interest the women in the collection of their dues and come up to State convention with us counting the victories won through the Lord Jesus who "giveth us the victory." We will have a balance of about $320 in treasury and all debts paid which means much and $1,400 put out on interest for Hadley School.

Lovingly,

CLARA M. SEARS.

PARLIAMENTARY CONTEST.

Conducted after the manner of an old fashioned spelling school.

Let the chair select two good parliamentarians, and they in turn choose sides, about eight on a side, one for affirmative side of the question, the other for the negative.

Choose twice as many parliamentarians to constitute the balance of power, voting according to their judgment of the question, after hearing the arguments for and against, but they shall not make any motions or participate in debate. Time for closing the debate must be fixed before beginning. The secretary shall keep the record and either party may be charged or credited as follows:

Credit one point for: any motion made and carried. Appealing from chair, if sustained. Amendment to opponent's motion, if carried. Defeat of opponent's motion. Raising point of order, if sustained. Making any motion not in order. Attempting to debate an undebatable question. Raising point of order, if not sustained. Speaking to the question before being recognized by the chair.

The chair shall be the judge, subject to appeal in all cases.

After balancing the account of each side, the party having the larger credit has gained the victory, notwithstanding the question itself may have been decided against it.

This contest is recommended for every local and county W. C. T. Union in Indiana, as able to make proficient in parliamentary law of all who choose to master it thoroughly.

M. A. TOMPKINS,

State Parliamentarian.

EPITOME OF REFORM LEGISLATION'S FORTUNES AT HANDS OF LATEST SESSION OF NATION'S LAW-MAKERS.

Washington, July 7.—Staff Correspondence of Associated Prohibition Press).—Congress has again adjourned and this is what it did do and did not do in temperance matters:

1. It passed the denatured alcohol bill after one of the fiercest struggles of the session. This bill allows alcohol tax free that has been chemically treated under government supervision so as to make it undrinkable. In this way, the manufacturing and industrial uses of alcohol are segregated from the beverage traffic, thus enabling the latter to be attacked without attacking these legitimate and useful industries.

2. It passed the Statehood bill, carrying with it complete Prohibition for the Indian Territory and that part of Oklahoma now covered by Indian reservations. This period extends for a period of twenty-one years and thereafter until the people change the constitution.

3. Another important Indian measure was a clause in the Indian Appropriation bill, setting aside $25,000 to prosecute aid in the suppression of the liquor traffic among Indians. This sum is to be expended under the direction of the Interior Department and $15,000 of it is to be expended in the Indian Territory and Oklahoma. For many years, the Indian bureau has repeatedly asked for an appropriation of $10,000 for this purpose but the money was never allowed by Congress. This year, the same fate was imminent, but the matter was taken up by Rev. E. M. Sweet Jr., and E. C. Dinwiddie, with the result that the amount asked for was increased to $25,000, and the money appropriated.

4. The Humphreys bill finally passed. This bill merely provides that collectors of internal revenue shall provide certified lists of people who pay government retail liquor license to any one who will pay $1 per hundred names for copying them. This will be useful in law-enforcement matters and reverses the previous attitude of the Treasury Department which has heretofore adopted the policy of refusing to give our information.

5. The Soldiers Home prohibition amendment got rough treatment towards the last.

The result is that the sale of beer will be prohibited only for four months until the following July. However, when such a provision is once inserted into a bill, it is comparatively easy to have it renewed from year to year in the appropriation bills. This was the case of the appropriations for the State Soldiers Homes, carrying similar prohibitions.

Besides this, a favorable report was secured on the Tirrell bill, which will come up for passage early next session. This bill prohibits the liquor traffic from all government buildings, parks, reservations, and ships. This bill will probably pass at the next session.

The Littlefield bill to amend the Interstate Commerce law so that it cannot be used as a shield for protection of "blind tigers" in prohibition territory was turned down in the Judiciary Committee of the House. Rather, it was not reported and lies in cold storage.

There is a large able-bodied joke floating around Washington on Phoebe Cousins, the obstreperous lady of St. Louis, Missouri, who breaks into the newspapers occasionally. Recently she attended a hearing before the Judiciary Committee of the House on the Littlefield bill which proposes to head off brewers from conducting a "speak-easy" business in Prohibition territory under the shelter of the Inter-State Commerce Law. Miss Cousins appeared for the brewers and strenuously opposed Prohibition. In her argument, she declared that the liquor business was a blessing to humanity as it killed off the weak and aided in the survival of the fittest, thus elevating the human race. The brewers threw a fit when they heard that talk and the liquor representatives hastened to the stenographer of the Committee and got him to cut out these particular remarks of the lady. That is the reason that this part of Miss Cousins' address does not appear in the printed report of the hearings. The brewers did not wish to advertise the fact that their products killed off even the weakest.—Associated Prohibition Press.

Seventy-seven towns in Oklahoma are now under Prohibition and others on the way. The fight for a Prohibition amendment will be pushed energetically at the coming constitutional convention at Guthrie in July or August.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

One of the most remarkable incidents connected with the disaster in San Francisco was the inauguration in that city of a prohibition law which was actually operative until July 5. Before the fire San Francisco, as all the world knows, was one of the worst saloon-ridden cities in the country, having 3500 licensed grogshops. When the city was placed under martial law all saloons were closed. After the disaster they were kept closed as a matter of public policy. The mayor and police commissioners revoked every saloon license in San Francisco county. Oakland was under similar prohibitory regulations for two weeks, but has since permitted the opening of saloons during the day. The whole transaction is most conclusive proof imaginable that any city may adopt prohibition and enforce it when it comes to believe, in its administration, that such action is good public policy. The daily press notably the San Francisco Chronicle, has been delivering most notable utterances editorially on the matter.

We quote the Chronicle:

"San Francisco for the past fortnight has been absolutely free from disorder and virtually free from crimes of violence. There has been no street brawls. No drunken brute has beaten his wife. No gamblers have murdered each other in low resorts. Except for some dealings with sneak thieves the occupation of the police courts is gone. It is a most impressive lesson of the value to society of the restrictions of the liquor traffic. We are promised a continuance of this peaceful condition for a considerable time to come, save only as drunken men may drift over from Oakland where the authorities have been so reckless as to permit saloons to open. We may be compelled to renew the quarantine against Oakland." "The question arises, why should society endure and pay the cost of crime thus easily prevented? It is evidence of human inefficiency that we habitually do it. No saloon open, no crimes of violence." And very much more to the same effect.

The quarantine against Oakland has been renewed and no drunks or liquor are permitted to land from this side of the Bay. Strenuous efforts are being made in Oakland to secure the closing of all saloons for an indefinite time to come. Lovers of temperance and good order everywhere should note the object lesson now being given to the world by San Francisco.

FIELD NEWS

Hancock County Institute met at the Friends Church at Westland. The county not being organized we were enabled to get the County Institute at our place. We had expected Mrs. Stanley to be with us as leader, but owing to Mr. Stanley's sudden illness she was unable to be present. Mrs. Elizabeth Haughton of Richmond took her place. Had a short session Saturday forenoon in which she talked to the local Union members; in the afternoon she took a few of the different topics from the regular Institute program and made a short talk on each of them which was very interesting. How can we increase the attendance at our W. C. T. U. meetings? (1) Individual responsibility. (2) Attend strictly to business. (3) Have a program. (4) Make meetings interesting; begin on time; close on time.

How can we make the Press serve the Temperance cause? By letting them know what we are doing. One Saturday night Mrs. Haughton lectured on "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap," bringing out many points for the young people to think about. On Sunday morning she talked on "The Kingdom," one of the thoughts she brought out was that we should be doing all we can to set up God's Kingdom here of earth, by licensing the liquor traffic we are tearing down His Kingdom.

In the afternoon on Sunday, Mrs. Haughton talked in particular on the liquor traffic telling us as Christians the stand we must take against the liquor traffic.

Two new members joined the Union, a few subscriptions to the Crusader and Union Signal.

The Hartford City Union planned to hold their regular meeting June 26th with Mrs. Ida Stallsmith 2½ miles west of the city, and the plan did not miscarry for the meeting was a decided success. It took the form of a picnic. We drove out about eleven o'clock, and at twelve about sixty sat down to partake of the good things beneath which the tables groaned. After dinner we had our regular meeting interspersed with speeches, recitations and songs from both old and young. Our quartette furnished the music. We had the pleasure of pinning the White Ribbon on three new members.

Mrs. Bert Ritter of Hartford City Union, superintendent of Contest Work, held a Gold Medal Contest, June 23d. The church was well filled with people to hear the recitations of the contestants. The medal was awarded to Elizabeth Hummer.

While the judges were out, Mrs. Ida Stallsmith, Edna Carrell and Harry Moore who already have gold medals, pleased the audience with fine recitations. Two drills were given by young girls that were much praised. The older girls, sixteen in number responded to an encore with a pantomime, "Nearer my God to Thee."

Seymour W. C. T. U. held their regular session at the home of Mrs. Gassaway June 2d. A very carefully prepared paper on "School and the Boy," by Mrs. W. F. Pfaffenberger president was greatly appreciated by all present, also the reading of an incoming letter from State President Mrs. C. S. Vayhinger, giving news of work elsewhere.

China's Empress hears Temperance facts. Wu Tingfang, former minister to the United States from China, and during his residence at Washington a friend and frequent diner at the home of ex-United States Senator J. B. Henderson of Missouri, has just written a letter to a friend in Philadelphia in which he confesses conversion to the temperance cause and credits the wife of the Senator with his change of attitude. His Excellency says whenever opportunity occurs now he will preach temperance doctrine, adding, "in fact, I have done so to the Empress Dowager."

Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley lectured at Carmel on the afternoon of June 23d, and in the evening gave a reading, "At the Mercy of the State." The Union obtained three new members at this time.

Crown Point Union observed Flower Mission Day. Two hundred bouquets were distributed among the sick and shutins, also one hundred and fifty leaflets and papers. A bouquet and an orange were given to each of the forty inmates of the county farm. A Flower Mission service was held in the afternoon and the origin of the "day" was discussed. After a profitable meeting, delicious refreshments were served by our President and hostess, Mrs. J. P. Merrill.

Lafayette Central rendered an appropriate program in observance of Flower Mission Day, and one hundred sixty bouquets were distributed at the Home Hospital and to the members of the city police force. The flowers seemed to be appreciated at both places. Especially by the police force, each man going out that evening wearing his bouquet. The Union rejoices in the addition of five new members.

The Balbec Union accepted an invitation to dinner and to hold the regular meeting with a member, Mrs. Mendenhall who lives eight miles from Balbec. There were twenty-four present, after an excellent dinner most graciously served a very, very interesting and profitable meeting was held. Three new members were added to our list. Maria Mendenhall, ninety-three years old and two misses, each twelve years old, they were, Nila Edmundson and Hazel Paxson. Nila Edmundson is the daughter of the energetic local President, Mrs. Lottie Edmundson. The members are looking forward with great pleasure to the coming of the State Convention in our county. We are determined to have a good report from our county. Last year we had five Unions with about ninety-seven members, now we have nine Unions and hope to have more than double the number of Unions, and come up to the State Convention with five hundred members. We can do it. Mrs. Stanley held a very successful Institute at White Oak, one of the new Unions in our county last week secured several new members and held a "Married People's Contest," that was very interesting, one of the contestants was a gentleman, perhaps sixty years old, the others were younger. Our county is pushing the contest work, it reaches more people than any other one department.

St. Joseph County observed Flower Mission Day, June 9th, by distributing the following bouquets, Chapin Park Union, to the hospitals, jail, and shutins65 Colfax Avenue, Orphans Home55 Frances Willard, County House53 North Liberty, to the sick.....14

At Seymour, Mrs. Korst gave an able and interesting address on "The Relation of Temperance to Missions," at the Baptist Church, and June 10th services opened by singing America, Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Severinghaus. Mrs. Korst's little daughter recited two Temperance selections in a very pleasing manner. Mrs. Korst sang "Remember Your Promise to Mother," with much feeling. Those interested in boys and girls, or in missions here or foreign found much food for thought in her lecture. The singing of several hymns and benedictions closed the service.

Gibson County. The officers held an executive meeting June 12th at the home of the President, Mrs. Lizzie Pfohl, Princeton. All the members except two were present. The time and place for the fall county convention was fixed at Francisco, September 13th, as it was only the past April the county organization was effected it was thought best to study the duties of officers as given in the State Minutes and a very pleasant meeting was finished by the President serving refreshments.

Princeton Union observed Flower Mission Day by visiting the county poor farm. Flowers, fruit and cake, besides literature were distributed, also a program of music, Bible reading, prayer and talks with a paper by the President was given. The inmates were very much interested and pleased. The county Flower Mission Superintendent in company with others visited the jail and a religious service held in which the inmates seemed interested. Literature was distributed and we hope good was done.

The Appellate Court of Indianapolis in a recent decision reversed the judgment of a lower court releasing Curtis Sheldon of Greenfield, from prosecution for the sale of beer in his saloon on last Labor Day. Judge Wiley of the Appellate Court in his decision reviewed the legislation on the subject of legal holidays and declared "The lines have tightened about those who in any manner would corrupt private or public morals. When any day is set apart for public rejoicing, harmless festivities and celebrations, the public who congregate for such purposes are entitled to every protection the law can throw about them. There is a greater tendency to dissipation when the masses congregate than when they are in pursuit of their daily occupations. The law has been passed by the legislature and must be enforced by the courts."

"The Alcohol Cult," by John Madden, M. D. of Portland, Ore., is the first chapter of an intensely interesting discussion which begins in the summer issue of the Quarterly Journal of Inebriety, Boston, Mass. In this article Dr. Madden in fascinating style investigates the reason why alcohol although denounced by religion, science, medicine, law and society still maintains its pre-eminence. The articles on this subject promise results of important research into the relation of alcohol to ancient history. Every one who is at all interested in the question should be sure to read this first paper. In a leading editorial entitled "Spirits and Wine at Banquets," the Quarterly mentions several notable banquets within recent months at which liquors have been excluded and concludes its editorial comment as follows:

"The flow of blood to the brain and other parts of the body is irregular and spasmodic. Practically, the use of alcohol at meals is most reckless and unscientific, and is contradicted by all studies and experiments. Each banqueter who uses wine and spirits with food destroys and lessens the power of the stomach to separate and appropriate foods from this source. Nothing is more clearly proven than the error of mixing spirits with foods. It is a dietetic barbarism which should be given up at once. The frequenter of banquets always complains of disturbances and nameless diseases, ascribed to some other cause. Nothing can be more certain than that the paralyzing effect of alcohol on the food in disturbing digestion and arranging the metabolism of the body, is the source of very serious derangements and diseases."

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at its General Conference just held at Birmingham, Ala., adopted a resolution protesting against "the use of any property owned or leased by the United States government for the sale of alcoholic liquors as a beverage."

In a Pointed Editorial, entitled, "Misplaced Children," in the Christian Conservator, Huntington, Ind., July 18, that paper laments the fact that two million boys and girls under fourteen years of age are wage earners in America today. In conclusion the Conservator graphically remarks:

"The drink habit extirpated, the divorce mill product will lessen, a less number of fathers will shirk responsibility by running away, a higher type of home will ensue and children will be rescued from the presently increasing horror of child slavery."

Mr. John G. Woolley will give the opening address at the coming Chautauqua session of the National Reform Association which is to be held at Winona Lake, Ind., August 11-18. Mr. Woolley's subject will be "The Moral Accountability of Nations." It has just been announced that Mr. Woolley was honored with the degree of L.L. D. at the recent college convocation of Ohio Wesleyan University.

The Arctic Traveler Nansen was asked by a neighbor, "Did you take any alcohol with you when you left the 'Farm' to make your heroic expedition by sledges?" "No," said Nansen, "If I had done so I should never have returned."

IN MEMORIAM.

One of the Hartford City union gone home. Mrs. O. N. Ruby a dear, sweet-spirited mother in Israel, died June 21st after a few weeks illness. It was my privilege and pleasure to pin the white ribbon on her. We all loved her, but we say: "His will be done,"

MRS. S. M. STAHL.
